Now, where preachers have more than one congregation, especially amongst us, where very few get as much as will comfortably keep them and their families, such Congregational Donation Visits, once a year, would add much to the relief of their necessities. On such occasions persons can be induced to visit and give money or goods who would otherwise never give anything;—they would do it merely for the pleasure of doing so under such circumstances. Amongst us, dear brethren and sisters, there is no danger of preachers getting too much; so we need not be afraid to injure them by an over-supply of this world's goods. Therefore let me urge upon each of the churches to set apart some day when the members will meet the preacher, either at home or somewhere else, as the case may require, and try what a pleasant business it is to give either out of their abundance, or share their limited portion of the necessaries of life with him who ministers unto them in spiritual things. What is given on such occasions is never missed, and the blessedness that follows is an ample reward. Recollect that it is not proper for the preacher to set this on foot, but the churches; and if the brethren fail to make a beginning, let the sisters take it in hand, and it will go. So much from one who has no charge of a congregation, but sympathizes with those preachers who have, but who get too scant a support—especially those who have families to provide for.

Baltimore, January, 1850.

Regeneration.

Regeneration is mentioned but twice in the Scriptures. First, in Matthew 19: 28, alluding to a change of dispensation. Secondly, Titus 3: 5, speaking of a change of heart.—Regeneration is only one of the many figures made use of in the New Testament to represent a change necessary to constitute a person a Christian.

It is making use of natural generation as a figure to illustrate a spiritual change or conversion. In order, then, to a clear understanding of this subject, we shall present it in the following order:—

1st. Man is the generator,—God the regenerator.

2d. The seed or means of it, which is the word of God. Luke 8: 11. 1 Peter 1: 23. James 1: 18.

3d. The reception of the seed. The word of God must be received in the heart, or mind, through the eyes or ears, from verbal or written communications. Acts 28: 27.

4th. There must be a natural preparation, which depends both on God and man. Prov. 16: 1. 1 Sam. 7: 3. 2 Chron 19: 3, and 30: 18, 19. Ezra 7: 10. Eze. 18: 31. Matt. 13: 28. Mark 4: 20. Luke 8: 15.

5th. Generation (or being begotten) takes place previous to birth. Regeneration, or being begotten, takes place previous to being born again.* John 3: 3, 4, 5.

6th. Care should be taken to prevent abortion. Matthew 13: 18–22. Mark 4: 14–19. Luke 8: 11–15.

The medium through which God communicates this seed to the heart or mind of man is, first, his ministers. Mark 16: 15. "Go preach the gospel to every creature." Secondly, the whole Church. Acts 8: 1–4. "They went everywhere preaching the word."

Speaking in another figure; ministers should be exceeding careful where they go for seed; that they may go forth bearing precious seed, and return rejoicing, bringing their sheaves with them. Psalm 126: 6.

As God declared from the beginning that every thing should have seed in itself, and bring forth after his kind, as saith Hosea 4: 9, "Like people, like priest:" or vice versa. So that if the preachers get their seed from Rome, it will produce Roman Catholics: if from London, Episcopalians: if from Geneva, Calvinists: if from Wertemburg, Lutherans: if from Oxford, Methodists; and so on. But if from Jerusalem, Christians, or followers of Christ: as saith Isaiah 63: 8, "Surely they are my people, children that will not lie: so he was their Saviour."

But why should we go to Jerusalem? Answer: Because the pure seed came directly from Heaven, and was deposited at Jerusalem; and all the Lord's ministers received it from there: and there is still enough for each, enough for all, and enough for evermore.

In proof of the above, read the following quotations: Deut. 18: 18. Here God promises to give this seed to one that he would raise up like unto Moses. Acts 3: 23. Peter declares that that Prophet was Jesus Christ. And in John 12: 47–50, Jesus says that he has received that seed (or word) from the Father: and in the 17th chapter, 8th, 9th and 14th verses, Jesus declares that he has given that word to his Apostles; and then prays for them, that they may be one, even as He and the Father are one. And in the 20th and 21st verses he prays for all that believe on him through their word, that they all may be one, that the world may believe that the Father had sent Him. And in Luke 24: 45–50, Christ directs His Apostles to begin to preach that word at Jerusalem, when they were endued with power from on high; and 52d and 53d verses, we learn that they obeyed and went to Jerusalem,—and in Acts 1: 12–14, that they tarried there in prayer with one accord in one place; and in the 2d chapter of Acts, that the power came, and that they, being fully authorized, commenced to preach; and that there were about three thousand added the same day; and that the Lord added daily, the saved to the Church.

But why was it necessary that they should begin at just such a time and place? Answer: That the Scriptures might be fulfilled. To have begun at any other place, would have proved them false. Isa. 2: 3. Micah 4: 2. Joel 2: 28–32. Acts 2: 17–33.

At that time Christ's prayer was answered. The preachers were united, and the people were one: the Church having but one name, viz: "Church of God." Acts 20: 28. 1 Cor. 1: 2—chapts. 11: 22—15: 9. 2 Cor. 1: 1. Gal. 1: 13.

She also had but one creed, viz: the New Testament. Heb. 9: 16, 17. Heb. 7: 12. Gal. 3: 15. James 1: 25. This was their only creed for 292 years, from Penticost,—Acts 2d chapter,—or 325 of the Christian Era; when Constantine called together 318 Bishops, and formed the council of Nice, and made another, composed of the word of God and traditions of men. Afterward, by the Justinian code, the Priests decreed, in 538, that Rome should be the place of general deposit, where ministers should obtain seed instead of Jerusalem.—Hence, a new name was necessary—Roman Catholic Church, instead of "Church of God." Hence, the origin of party names and creeds, that have ever since divided the Church and distracted the world.

Hark, then, of many creeds beware,
Lest from the seed you raise the tare:
For tares and wheat are not the same,
For then you'll want another name.

These names and creeds do gender strife,
And many miss eternal life:
When Jesus comes to weed the crop,
He'll burn the tares with anger up.

URIEL.

*This is an error, growing out of an overstrained figure. Regeneration means a renewal of man's moral nature. To beget, in a moral sense, means the same thing. See James 1: 18. 1 John 5: 1. Editor.

Book Publishers and Book Sellers.

BY ELDER J. F. WEISHAMPEL.

"What! another new book?" exclaimed one upon having an interesting new volume offered him; "this world is getting crazy by the great multiplication of books." Now let us see whether this is so. To come to some conclusion on the subject, we will compare nations of gone-by ages with the present.

Take Greece, Rome and Egypt—these were the countries of the most flourishing ancient nations—but what was all their intellectual glory as nations compared with that of England, Germany and America? See the comparative moral and intellectual night that pervaded their empires; and what was it to be attributed to but, in a great measure, the want of books to be read among the people! It was not then like now: a man could not send his thoughts in print to millions of his fellows, and thereby awake in them others, as we can. No.—But in our age the art of printing enables us to give our light to others, and they soon improve upon it and reflect still brighter rays back upon us and the rest of mankind. So light begets light—and with the light of heaven to a greater degree than the ancients enjoyed it, we are wiser and happier.

What would we be as a nation had we no printed books! All the knowledge would be in the possession of scribes, priests and lawyers—ignorance would be the people's inheritance. Religion, as well as the Arts and Sciences, would languish, had we not the facilities we enjoy in spreading knowledge through books and periodicals. And notwithstanding this fact stares every one in the face, still there are some among us who look upon book publishers and sellers as drones in society—yea, as nuisances. Here is a farmer, who has perhaps never bought a book, but has borrowed or stolen the knowledge his neighbor obtained through reading; he sees a bookseller drive up to his door to offer him volumes of useful knowledge for a trifle. The old ignoramus would as soon set his big dog to chase him off the farm as look at one of the books. An appeal is made to him to buy books for his children; but he cares more for the sweat of his sons and daughters in their hard labor than the improvement of their minds. He is so established in ignorance that knowledge is insipid to him--and all who are wiser than he are despised by him. For the credit of our country, be it said, that this state of things is fast changing—although there are still many such cases.

Now, reader, did you ever consider how important a personage a book-seller is? If not, I hope you will by this time agree with me that he is not the least useful. Especially do I wish to raise in your estimation the book-pedlar, who comes to your house with a load upon his back or his wagon. These men have done more to spread general knowledge through the country, than any class beside the editor of the periodicals of the day. Even the man who calls upon you to subscribe for a book, and afterward brings one not meeting your expectation in point of size and appearance, has done much to spread knowledge:—though he has cheated you in his prospectus, he still leaves behind him the impress that book-knowledge imparts.

Then despise not the book-pedlar. But be sure to see what kind of books you buy.—Some books are worse than none at all. I would rather see no books in a house than those which are calculated to fill the mind with nonsense, vanity, heresy, and infidelity. Every family can be trained to a love of reading, and where that love exists, it is a pleasure to be. But let a due care be had by parents, that their children read only such books and papers as will make them wiser and better. Treat the book-seller as a useful man, and let him be encouraged by your liberal patronage. And know this one thing yet, that the knowledge of the 19th century can never be lost as was much of that of the ancients; because our age is the age of books and book reading.

Rules of Life.

A certain minister wrote the following on New Year's Day, for his own guidance and improvement. They may also be useful to the readers of the Advocate.

Jan. 1st. The retrospection and self-examination of the day have induced the following conclusions:—

1. There is a necessity for guarding against a lurking desire for things that cannot be attained by a 'Good Minister of Jesus Christ' in the faithful discharge of his duties.

2. There is need of special watching against scepticism of feeling—a lack of that implicit confidence and reliance upon God, which always seeks first the kingdom of God, with a complete and satisfied assurance that all needful spiritual and temporal things shall hence be added.

3. There is need of a greater exhibition of Christian meekness and affectionate faithfulness in my ministrations to and among the people of my charge.

4. There is need of a more effectual and consequently a more complete consecration of spirit and powers to God and the calling of the ministry.

To subserve these ends, I will endeavor by the grace of God, faithfully to regard the following rules:—

I. Personally. 1. I will always endeavor to possess the spirit of Christ—loving, self-denying, forbearing, forgiving. 2. Always to possess the spirit of prayer; accompanied by a deep sense of my utter unworthiness, and of the infinite perfections of Deity. 3. Constantly to exercise a rigid watchfulness against sin in deed, word or thought. 4. To spend as little time in sleep as comports with health, and make all the remaining hours of the day subserve some good and holy end. 5. As far as practicable, to make a systematic and specific appropriation of my time to my several duties. 6. To read only such works as I think will tend to make me a better and a more useful man; and critically to study and digest what I do read, so as to make the good my own and reject the bad. 7. To spend some time daily in meditation and self-examination; guarding against revery and day-dreaming.

II. Socially. 1. To exhibit the spirit of Christ in all my intercourse with the world—loving all men, even the most vile; (with the love of pity,) relinquishing everything but right in order to do good; never retaliating the worst of injuries; forgiving all, even when forgiveness is not asked; and unremitting in efforts to bless mankind. 2. Always to manifest the most profound reverence for God and sacred things. 3. To keep a strict guard over my temper and tongue, that I neither utter or think improper things, or advance truth in an improper manner. 4. To practice politeness and urbanity of manners, avoiding dogmatism and censoriousness, and being willing to learn good from any source whatever. 5. To maintain strict and inviolable integrity in all my business arrangements. 6. To avoid all places where I do not think I can glorify God; and whenever I do go, to endeavor to render passing circumstances subservient to the good and instruction of all concerned. 7. To favor and assist, as far as I am able, every enterprise calculated to benefit mankind, spiritually, intellectually or physically.

III. Professionally. 1. Emphatically to make the Bible my rule of faith and practice. 2. So to speak as to divert attention from the advocate to Christ the Master. 3. To appeal at the same time to the intellect, the sensibilities and the will, that I may reach all classes, and induce men to bring their whole being into subjection to God's laws. 4. Carefully to study and investigate every point involved in my sermons, that I may preach as much truth as possible, nothing but God's truth, and preach that truth in the best manner and spirit, that it may be approved unto every man's conscience. 5. Always to rely upon the Divine assistance for success in all my studies and ministrations. 6. Meekly but firmly to discountenance sin and wrong in every form and in every place. 7. To become as thoroughly acquainted as possible with every member of my charge, and to manifest a sympathy for all their trials, a joy in all their blessings, and to counsel and instruct them by precept and example, in every good work.

A. D. W.

"Going Around the Bush."

It appears strange to me, that so many towns are passed by on some of our Circuits without efforts being made to establish preaching places. While other denominations aim to establish churches in the towns, and draw the people in from the country, some of our brethren pass the towns and get into little school-houses in the country, as though they were afraid to preach to the village and town people. Take for instance Frederick, and a number of other towns in Maryland; Chambersburg, Mercersburg, Lebanon, Pottsville, Reading, and many towns in Pennsylvania, around which we have churches and preaching places. In these towns there are generally school-houses which could be had for service; but it seems to me that some preachers think they must wait till they get an invitation from some person in the town, to come over and help them. This is not the way. Go to the towns without an invitation—ask the trustees of school-houses or other public buildings—stick up a few notices announcing that you will preach that night, and you will have made a beginning which will result in permanent appointments there. I nearly always try to get a place to preach in towns, when I travel, and have never failed but once. I generally carry with me printed hand-bills, with blanks for the time and place; and by filling up a few, putting them to stores and other places, I have always succeeded in getting congregations—sometimes at an hour's notice. Let the Editor of the Advocate print such bills, and sell them to the preachers at a trifle, to cover cost.

J. F. W.

The Biographical Sketches.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I was one among the number of those who neglected, for a time, to write out their Biographical Sketches for the Book of the First One Hundred Preachers of the Church of God in North America; but this will inform you that I have at last prepared my quota of the matter for the work, and will forward it to you by the first favorable opportunity.

Now the question arises, will that book ever be published? I know as far as you are concerned, nothing will be wanting to its accomplishment; but have all the preachers in the Elderships furnished their Sketches? I presume not. I would suggest that the names of all the preachers whose Sketches are to be in book, be published in the Church Advocate—with those marked who have written theirs. I think if each man's name were published, it would have a good effect in more than one way.

What disposition is to be made of those men who have been among the first 100 ministers, but who have unfortunately been expelled from the Elderships of which they were members? If their Sketches are omitted, the book will not contain the first 100. And who will prepare the Sketches of the deceased preachers? Several have died, and they are the only ones out of the whole who are certain to have history record the fact that they died in the gospel ministry.

How many subscribers have been got for the book? It will take a goodly number to justify the publication; and all of us ought to do our part. I will take my part, as my circumstances may allow. As to subscribers, we can get but few in Baltimore: what are to be disposed of here, must be sold after the work is out of press. I hope it will be carefully revised by the Committee of Publication, so that it may be a credit to them, as it will be the first book published under their direction and charge. I think those preachers who are willing, at their own expense, to furnish their lithograph or wood-cut likenesses for the work, ought to be allowed to do so: it would add to the book's value.

J. F. WEISHAMPEL.

Notice of Time for Debate.

Mount Joy, Jan. 18, 1850.

Brother J. Winebrenner:—

In the last number of the Church Advocate, I saw a note from the Rev. A. Owen, informing you that the discussion "has not as good as failed." I am somewhat astonished that the gentleman will ask you to publish anything about the discussion in the Church Advocate, when the columns of the Religious Telescope are closed against our arguments, or perhaps mine. Does he expect you to do more for him than the Editor of their paper? I would advise the gentleman to ask nothing of other men but what him and his brethren are willing to allow them.

However, as truth has nothing to lose, I would respectfully suggest, give him the use of the Advocate: for the Church of God ought to do more than our Sectarian neighbors.

The gentleman talks about gratifying me. I wish he had given me better proof, in his former course, of this fact.

He says, in his closing remarks, "He modestly calls himself the challenged party." Why does he make use of that expression? Does he wish to say that I am not the challenged party, as he calls it? or what does he mean?

He wishes me to inform him when I decide on the time of discussion. I would ask him to inform the public, what the propositions of discussion are; or whether he has agreed to any or not.

But in conclusion, I would say to him and the public, that I will be ready to meet him on the 19th of February next; providing that he will have time enough, by that time, "to turn his thoughts to the subject," and be in readiness.

Yours, &c.,

JACOB KELLER.

N. B.—Has the Rev. A. Owen procured the use of the meeting-house in Shiremanstown, for the debate? If not, let him attend to the securing of the same, in good time.

J. K.

Brother Hurley's Baptism Query.

He asks: "Does the validity of Christian Baptism depend upon the ecclesiastic qualifications of the administrator?" I would say that it does. Christ commissioned his Apostles and their successors in the ministry, first to teach and then baptize. This is the rule that must be applied in all cases.

He supposes a number of persons in California to have been converted by reading the Scriptures, and they demand to be baptized, but there is no baptized person or minister within many hundred miles. In this case, I think, if either one of these new converts feels the movings of the spirit upon his heart to become a preacher of righteousness, although he has not been baptized himself, (owing to the want of an administrator,) his administering the ordinance to others would be valid.—But if neither felt that call, then neither had a right to administer it, nor perform any other function of a minister of the gospel; for only the preachers of the gospel are authorized to administer the ordinances of the gospel. If two of the number felt thus called to preach, they could baptize each other.

The ground of this conclusion is, the commission, in the first case; and in the second case, the fact that all things must have a beginning; and as the candidates claimed the rite, and the administrators had no other practicable means of obtaining it, they would act in concert with reason and revelation to pursue that course. If there were but one administrator, he would be compelled to wait to have the rite administered to himself till God would call another of the company to preach, or else send some other qualified administrator along. In case there should be no such proper administrator present, the converts would not be held accountable for the omission of the duty of baptism. Let me add, that the main consideration in ecclesiastic qualification in a preacher is, has he been converted to God, and called by God to preach; and not the mere having license from some ecclesiastical body.

J. F. WEISHAMPEL.

Letter from Brother J. H. Hurley.

Lancaster City, Jan. 22, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

A few days since, while glancing over the pages of the last number of the Church Advocate, my eyes rested upon an article signed by brother J. C. Seabrooks, in which the writer seems to lament and bewail with quite a variety of affecting imagery, the miserable condition of the Church of God. And after lifting his eyes toward heaven and adopting the language of the Prophet, he asks a very important question: Why the Church of God does not prosper as it did formerly? Then he proceeds to initiate the Editor into the whole mystery, by giving him a few ideas, that he perhaps never dreamed of before, namely: That the ministry forget the importance of the work.

Now sir, this, to a great extent, may be true: yet the evidence adduced by him to prove his position, completely fails. He refers for proof to the Journals of the last Elderships; but at the same time contents himself with the East Pennsylvania Eldership, inasmuch as he does not wish to go far from home: for he is frank to acknowledge that he is better acquainted within its bounds than he is abroad. But from his experience, and extensive acquaintance within its bounds, being a member of the Eldership just twenty-seven months, and having travelled the whole number of two circuits, he discovers that out of sixty ministers, there are only twenty-two employed. Well sir, that is more than were employed last year, or any previous year. So you perceive that we are still on the march, trying to creep before we run.

But after he makes this important discovery, and which he decides to be a hindering cause, he then turns back one leaf, and appears to commit another woful blunder. He turns back to see whether the bounds of the Eldership is extending. He fears to say that it is; but thinks he is safe in saying that it is not. And why? Why, because he sees no new reports of its extension. Here I would recommend him to another reading of the last Journal. I find one new circuit, at least, reported on the Journal, viz: the Lehigh Circuit. That never appeared on the Journals before. Here, then, our young brother has published statements to the Church and to the world which are incorrect. But, doubtless, this is an error of the head and not of the heart. It is therefore a duty I owe to the Church of God to correct such statements as these, if no one else has preceded me, seeing that such articles going out have a withering, blighting tendency. It may do for fathers in Israel to use the clerical curry-comb, to curry the clerical order, who were preaching the gospel when he was in his cradle; but it is not befitting for babes in Christ.

But again. Our brother seems to be deeply impressed with the importance of some one carrying the bread of life to the West. His bowels of mercy yearn toward the destitute. He has written more on this subject, and shed more tears, perhaps, than the whole Eldership put together. Well, for this he is worthy of commendation. But perhaps he would make as good a missionary as any one else. Why not then volunteer himself to go? Why not rise up and say, here am I, send me? If brother S. will volunteer to go, his vacated field can be supplied by some one of the many unemployed. It will be supplied too—never fear, by some one that cannot go: perhaps, too, as well as himself. He had, therefore, better reflect more seriously still, before he redeems his promise in writing more, on the same subjects.

Yours fraternally,

J. H. HURLEY.

P. S.—We have been holding meeting for a week past every night, and there are indications of good. There are quite a number of anxious persons forward as subjects of prayer. There is a fine prospect of doing good.

J. H. H.

Letter from Brother Nathan Worley.

Centreville, Fulton Co., Illinois, Dec. 31, 1849.

Brother Winebrenner:—

Once more I take my pen in hand to write a few lines for that worthy paper, the Church Advocate. It is a messenger that visits us in the West semi-monthly, and that gives us pleasing and interesting accounts of the different branches of the Church of God in the U. S. Thanks be to the Lord, for such a messenger. Therein we often find recorded the death of some of our fellows, as well as the conversion of others. What a heart cheering thing it should be for every Christian, at such intelligence, to gird on the whole armor of God, and live every day in reference to the coming of Christ; who shall reward every man according to his works, whether they be good, or whether they be evil. May the Lord help every one that professes to know Him in the pardon of their sins, to live every day according to that profession. But the paper not only gives intelligence of the death of Christians, but also their life with Christ. But were this the only good intelligence that we can get from this paper, it would be enough already to satisfy every Christian, in a ten-fold proportion, to what it costs. What! should not the news that a Christian has gone home to glory encourage every believer? Yes, surely, it ought to give every one encouragement to continue faithful unto death, so that their names may not only be recorded on the pages of the paper, but also in the Lamb's book of life. O! dear brethren and sisters in Christ,

How careful should we live,
With what religious fear,
Who such a strict account must give,
For our behavior here!

May the Lord help me, in every Christian duty, to live not only as a Christian, but to be a Christian.

Many other good tidings do we get upon the pages of the Church Advocate: such as revivals of religion, or accounts of many precious souls being converted to God. Such tidings as these are calculated to make the angels in heaven rejoice. The angels, who are perfectly happy, rejoice over the sinner that repenteth of his sins. For, says Jesus, "There is more joy over one sinner that repenteth, than over ninety and nine that need no repentance."

Here we can sit in our houses at home, read over and rejoice whilst we read the cheering news that the work of the Lord is progressing. O! ye ministers of the gospel of Christ, sound the gospel trumpet! Make full proof of your ministry: and let the pages of the Advocate glow with the gospel of Jesus. A good gospel exhortation, in the columns of the Advocate, may possibly awaken some of the fallen children of Adam, from sin and darkness, and induce them to fly to God for life, help and safety. Recollect, that many will read the paper that will not read the Bible. But in perusing the paper they may find Bible truth, that will convict their souls, and result in their conversion to God. The Advocate is loudly preaching to saints and sinners in numerous places. Many are cheered and comforted by this excellent paper, who seldom or never hear the gospel in its purity; and who are ignorant, therefore, of their duty to their fellow-men and to their Judge.

Yours, with respect,

NATHAN WORLEY.

Letter from Brother T. Hickernell.

January 8, 1850.

I am am now at Hiattsville, Miami county, Ohio. I preached here last night, and had quite an interesting time; and expect to preach again to-night at brother Aston's, if Providence permits.

The Cholera has done dreadful work here last fall and summer. Some 60 odd persons were suddenly hurried away by this dreadful disease. It commenced in June and continued till September. Among the rest who were swept away, was Dr. Marthias, a Botanic physician, and some of the most prominent characters living in the place; with some of whom I was intimately acquainted. In Mr. Gump's family, there were six died out of eight. Some families were totally destroyed. I saw orphan children in the place, who are left fatherless and motherless, through the ravages of that awful pestilence. I am informed that the cries and groans of the afflicted were heard in every direction. It was heart-rending for any person to come into the place, and hear the cries and lamentations of the afflicted.

There is some prospect of the church in this place being reared again. The hearts of the people appear quite tender. I have understood that one embraced religion in our neighborhood lately, under the labors of brother C. Sands. There was one forward to be prayed for at the last meeting I held near home. There is nothing special going on in my territory elsewhere: yet the prospects are good. I have 12 large meetings yet to hold, and trust that we shall see good times. To-morrow I expect to start for brother Hutton's, in Dark county, where I may probably hold meeting for six or seven days.

Yours truly,

THOS. HICKERNELL.

January 18, 1850.

P. S.—I preach in the United Brethren meeting-house to-night, near the city of Dayton. Last night I preached at Hiattsville.—Some five or six presented themselves as subjects of prayer, and three or four professed conversion.

T. H.

Letter from Brother H. Murray.

Stark County, Ohio, Jan. 7, 1850.

Brother John Winebrenner:—

Having a few leisure moments, I thought I would improve the time by dropping a few lines for the columns of the Advocate, which you may publish if you see proper.

Amongst many things that I might mention, I will only notice a few. During the course of my travels, I was requested to pay the people a visit in Rootstown, Portage county, which I accordingly did, and stayed ten days amongst them: during which time there was one conversion, and on the last evening of the meeting three souls came forward to be prayed for, but found no peace with God; yet the meeting on the whole was good. I returned home, and after a few days' rest, I went to Uniontown, and commenced a meeting, (on the 20th of December,) which continued 13 days. During the progress of the meeting, seven professed saving faith in God, through Christ. The little Church in Uniontown was much encouraged, and a few worthy members added to her. Brothers John Beidler and A. Megrew assisted me in holding the meeting in Uniontown. They labored faithfully, and no doubt to a good acceptance with the Church and people generally. I hope that God will abundantly bless them for their labor of love.

Yours, &c., H. MURRAY.

Letter from Brother Henry Sherich.

Washington Co., Pa., Jan. 11, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

I enclose one dollar for the next volume of the Advocate. The Advocate is a welcome messenger to my house. I would advise the patrons to pay for it punctually, and not let it go down for want of patronage; for I do say it is the best paper that I ever had hold of. I would not do without it for double the cost of it.

I noticed in the second number of the present volume, the death of my brother Samuel. If some of the readers of the Advocate in Ohio would inform me, through the medium of the same, of the Post Office address of his family, it would oblige me very much, as I would like to write to them.

I would like also to get the same information of my brother David. The last account I had of him, he lived in Morrison's Cove, Pa. I have forgotten the county, and don't know his Post Office. Who will be kind enough to give me the desired information!

Yours, &c., HENRY SHERICH.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Appointments by the Canal Commissioners.—Collectors.—Stewart Pearce, Columbia; S. S. Bigler, Harrisburg; George Smith, Beach Haven; Stephen Wilson, Northumberland; Allison White, Dunnsburg; C. D. Eldred, Williamsport; C. Thomas, Liverpool; S. Law, Newport; D. W. McCormick, Lewistown; A. S. Harrison, Huntingdon; A. A. Douglass, Hollidaysburg; E. Zeigler, Duncan's Island Bridge; J. Shoemaker, Juniata Aqueduct; A. Stewart, Swatara Bridge.

Superintendent.—W. S. Campbell, Portage.

Supervisors.—J. M. Solliday, Delaware Division; Benjamin Saylor, North Branch; Thos. Bennett, West Branch; H. D. Rodcarmel, Susquehanna; J. M'Laughlin, Eastern; J. S. Miller, Lower Juniata; J. P. Anderson, Upper Juniata.

Cargo Inspector.—G. N. Smith, Johnstown.

Weighmasters.—M. H. Horn, Easton; Robert Williams, Hollidaysburg; J. G. Chesney, Northumberland.

The Boston Tragedy.—The Grand Jury, at Boston, have found a true bill against Professor Webster, for the murder of Dr. George Parkman. It is stated that, during the examination several witnesses testified to having seen Dr. Parkman after the day on which he is said to have disappeared. The trial of the case will probably come on very soon. A son of Dr. Parkman, Mr. George F. Parkman, returned from Europe in the Canada, having been travelling for his health. He returned on a summons sent to him when it was first supposed that his father was no longer living.

York County Coal.—The Columbia Spy says: "We understand that Dr. V. Friedeman, of this place, and Mr. H. Longenecker, of Lancaster, have discovered and opened different veins of anthracite and bituminous coal, about four miles from the borough of York, which promise an abundant yield."

Land for the Hungarians.—Gov. Seward, of New York, has submitted a resolution in the Senate, which speaks in proper terms of the conduct of Austria and Russia towards Hungary—and also authorizing the appropriate Committee to inquire into the expediency of setting apart a portion of the public lands for Hungarians and others.

Curing Hams.—A distinguished gentleman of Indiana, has furnished us with his recipe for curing hams. He informs that he has hams in his smoke house, cured after this recipe, which have hung there for six years. The flies never trouble them. After his hams have been salted down for six weeks, he lays them on a board to dry. When they are dry, he scatters red pepper over them and rubs some of it in the hock and in the upper end of the bone. He smokes with hickory, and occasionally burns pepper vines or dried red peppers during the process of smoking. He also burns the vines of the peppers during the summer.—Louisville Journal.

Mayor of Pittsburg.—Mr. Joseph Barker was elected Mayor of Pittsburg on the 8th ult. There were three candidates, and the vote stood as follows:

Barker, Independent Whig,	1787
Guthrie, Democrat,	1585
M'Cutcheon, Whig,	971

Mr. Barker was indicted and convicted in November last, of disturbing the peace in the city of Pittsburg by street preaching, and was sentenced to imprisonment in the jail of Allegheny county for one year, and to pay a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars. He was in jail up to the day of his election, but was pardoned by the Governor the day before.

The Ant Nuisance.—It is not perhaps generally known, that in the West Indies, when these little tormentors pay their unwelcome visits to the houses there, a small ring of chalk will be an effectual bar to their entrance; even making a strong chalk line on the floor will stop their progress. Those housewives, therefore, who are now daily complaining of the inroad of these little depredators upon their choicest delicacies, can put an effectual stopper thereto in the way above mentioned.

Pittsburg Boat Building.—No less than fifty-one steamboats were built and fitted out at Pittsburg during the year 1849, with a tonnage of 7200 tons. The value of the boats ranges from $5,000 to $40,000 each. Pittsburg, commanding as she does the commerce of the great rivers of the West, builds annually, no doubt, more boats than any other town on the line of those great highways. In this she is as pre-eminent as Philadelphia is in boat-building on the Atlantic.

☞ Sheffield, in Connecticut, has been the birth place of four Congressmen, two Governors of Vermont, two Governors of Pennsylvania, one Governor of Connecticut, one Governor of Ohio, two Postmaster Generals, two Judges of the Supreme Court of Ohio, one Judge of the Supreme Court of Vermont, one General in the French war, and one Judge of the County Court.

Report of the Canal Commissioners.—The Board of Canal Commissioners have submitted a report of the operations on the several lines of Canal and Railroad of the Commonwealth, for the year ending the 30th of November, 1849. The receipts and expenditures were as follows:

	RECEIPTS.	EXPENDS.
Phila. & Col. R. R.,	$582,750 37	$291,855 86
Allegheny Portage,	220,466 56	222,663 11
Main line of Canal,	443,324 58	152,909 67
Delaware Division,	196,714 25	32,518 26
Susq. & N.W. Bran's,	190,301 34	55,554 03
Deduct drawbacks,	279 46
Total receipts,	$1,638,277 72	753,500 87
Net receipts over expenses,		$874,776 65

The Public Lands.—From a report of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, it appears that the quantity of land disposed of in 1847, by warrants equivalent to cash, amounts to $3,596,254 08, and in 1848 to $5,428,815 26. In the first three months of '48 it amounted to $3,937,160 30, and in the first three months of 1849 it amounts to $4,297,737 26; showing that the increase in the amount of land disposed of, keeps pace with the increase of population, and the consequent wants of the community.

The Insane.—Miss Dix has memorialized Congress for a grant of land for the benefit of the insane in our country. She shows that in the New England States, the proportion of the insane to the whole population is about 1 in 600; that in the Middle States it is one to 700; and that in the Western States it is 1 to 1,300. The worst State is Rhode Island, where there is one to every 503; and the best, South Carolinia, where there is one to every 5,058.

A Preacher's Salary in California.—Resolutions of the First Baptist Society of San Francisco, passed with entire unanimity, on the 10th October, 1849:—

Resolved, That we, from and after the beginning of next month, assume the entire support of our pastor, Rev. O. C. Wheeler, thus relieving the missionary board from any further responsibility in the case.

Resolved, That his salary for the ensuing year be ten thousand dollars.

Resolved, That said salary be paid monthly in advance.

A Southern Party.—A bill has been reported in the Legislature of Georgia, entitled "An act to repeal the present Whig and Democratic parties, and in lieu thereof establish a Southern Independent Republican Party." Folly.

☞ An Important discovery in navigation, testing the lee-way of a vessel, has been effected in the United States. It consists of a vane under the keel, connected by a rod with a dial plate on deck. The motion of the needle, of course, accords with the motion of the vane.

The Cholera at St. Louis and N. Orleans.—We regret to see by our exchanges from N. Orleans and St. Louis, that the cholera has reappeared in both those cities. Heretofore the newspapers from New Orleans have denied the existence of the pestilence in their midst, but the report of the health officer, made on the 29th ult., gives one hundred and eleven deaths for the four weeks ending on that date. The St. Louis papers of the 5th, say that several cases occurred during the past week.

A Long Pen-Holder.—We see it stated that, on Saturday afternoon, 5th ult., an operator in the Eastern Telegraph office in this city, succeeded in writing direct to Halifax, N. S., a distance of nearly one thousand miles of continuous wire. This is the greatest distance that any telegraph has yet worked intelligibly.—Argus.

City of Boston.—It appears, by the message of the Mayor of Boston, that it has a population of 140,000 souls; that the assessed value of property amounts to $174,000,000—the actual value not being short, probably, of $200,000,000.

Ohio State Convention.—Columbus, Jan. 9.—Reuben Wood was nominated as a candidate for Governor, on the sixth ballot, by the Democratic State Convention. The vote stood—Wood 164, Medill 113, Lowe 20.

Death of the late Queen Adelaide.—This royal personage (the widow of William III of England,) died on the 11th of December last. She bore the character of a woman of great moral worth and unaffected piety.

Congress---Clerk Elected.—Mr. Campbell, (Whig) has been re-elected Clerk of the House of Representatives, on the 20th ballot.

☞ Dr. Webster is preparing a circumstantial account of his intimacy with Dr. Parkman, in which he will endeavor to show that a conspiracy exists against him, and that the body found is not that of the missing Dr. Parkman.

☞ The Legislature of Maryland have elected Gov. Pratt to the U. S. Senate for the unexpired term of Hon. Reverdy Johnston, and also for the succeeding full term of six years.

☞ The Philadelphia Inquirer says that since January 1st, 1849, there have been deposited at the mint in Philadelphia, $6,000,000 of California gold.

☞ J. A. Glossbrenner, Esq., editor of the York Gazette, was elected Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Representatives, at Washington, on the fourth ballot.

☞ Arrived at New York last year, 3227 vessels from foreign countries, with 221,799 passengers.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A PARABLE.

When man had been sent from the Garden of Eden, to till the ground and live by the sweat of his brow, the Angels, sorrowing at his fall, cried, "Surely he will perish; for, there is no animal so defenceless as man."

Then Pity, looking down from heaven, grieved for him, saying, "Woe to the race of man! for of all God's creatures he is the most helpless in youth, the most imbecile in old age."

And Justice, complaining, said, "Ay, woe! woe to his race, for every beast of the field God had clothed, but man he had left naked. To every beast of the field he hath given some weapon of defence, but man he hath left unarmed. What shall his strength avail him against the strength of the lion, or his speed against the speed of the wolf?"

Then Reason rose up and said, "Grieve not for the children of the earth; for I will give unto them Cunning, so that what they cannot conquer by force, they shall compass by stratagem."

So, Cunning took up her abode among men; and she taught them to fashion the trees of the forests into clubs, wherewith to repel their enemies.

But soon man, made wroth by envy, quarreled with his kind, and turning the club against his kinsman, slew his younger brother.

And, when the Angels saw the first blow they sorrowed more bitterly than before, saying, "We armed him against the beasts of the fietd, but he has raised the weapon in anger against his kindred. And since man wars with man, we must protect the weak against the strong, so that, blow following blow, the strong, in fear, may cease to oppress the weak."

Then Vengeance, spear in hand, came down on earth, and arming the oppressed against their oppressors, bade them rise and give back ten-fold the blows that had been dealt out to them.

So the Injured slew the Injurers.

Then the sons of those who had been slain, in turn, rose up, and giving back again ten-fold the blows, destroyed the slayers and their children too.

At length, blow begat blow so fast, that tribe warred with tribe, and nation battled with nation.

And then Peace, affrighted, fled back to Heaven, leaving Strife and Ruin to ravage all the Earth.

The angels heard the clatter of the fray, and took counsel among themselves saying, "Verily, the world will never be at rest. For since man hath learned to meet blow with blow, and to have blood for blood, the circle of destruction must be endless. Oh, for some almighty weapon to stay this universal feud!"

So they all pondered on the means, and each Angel, in her turn, named some engine more frightful than the rest, wherewith to rain such certain death on all around, that men, fearing to face it, should cease to battle.

At last there remained but one to speak, and the angel-band turned anxiously to her. "You seek some new weapon," said she, "to check the wrath of man: some weapon to give back so powerful a blow, that men, however brave, shall lack the courage to stand up against it. There is one so mighty, that those you have named shall be weak as reeds to it, one so certain, that the boldest shall be cowed and the strongest be disarmed by its power."

And the angels wondered among themselves, and cried with one voice, "Thanks be to God! Thanks be to God! name it! name it!"

"Let man," she answered, "avenge his wrongs with a kiss, and he shall find it a mightier weapon than the blow."

And it was the Spirit of Kindness that spake the words.—[Magic of Kindness.

INCREASE OF VICE.

Sodom and Gomorrah present us an affecting instance of the guilt and punishment of licentious indulgences. This vice was the cause of the downfall of the Babylonian, Assyrian, Persian, and Roman empires. It was also the prelude to the terrible scenes of the French Revolution. Modesty and chastity in thought and deed, are the greatest safeguard of any nation. We have sadly degenerated from the simple and virtuous habits of the first founders of this Commonwealth, within the present century; and unless the current of iniquity can be restrained, we may justly fear that the indignation of the Almighty will be poured out upon us.—We now imitate with eagerness, the worst vices and follies of the dissipated capitals of the old world. We now open our doors to, and encourage the performances of foreign actors and opera dancers, who glory in their shame. We import French novels, and thousands have their minds vitiated and corrupted by their perusal.

The "Model Artists," now exhibiting in some of our cities, are opening the flood gates of licentiousness; and we blush to say, that the females witness these shameful and disgusting exhibitions.

Lascivious pictures and books, are greatly on the increase. Books and engravings of the most obscene and polluting character are sold in book stores, and hawked about the streets and levees! "Where," says the Watchman of the Valley, "are the conservators of the public morals? Shall constables and sheriffs, magistrates and judges, with the pharaphernalia of the courts, be put in motion, to hunt down the petty thief, and the flood gates of licentiousness, with all the abettors of the most revolting and debasing lewdness, let to do their hellish work unmolested?"

Laws we have of a stringent character, but the executive arm is never seen. Our officers seem to regard their official station, as a kind of profession for private emolument, and wait for customers with a fee; or like a pack of lazy hounds, have to be whipped to the chase, or baited to duty.

WAR.

"Has one Christian nation a right to wage war against another Christian nation?"

Arguments more reasonably and satisfactorily conclusive than the following on the subject of war, from the lucid pen of Alexander Campbell, Esq., we have not seen. They are the summing up, the cream, the essence of a discourse delivered on a special occasion.

"To sum up the whole, we argue—

1. The right to take away the life of the murderer does not of itself warrant war, inasmuch as in that case none but the guilty suffer; whereas in war the innocent suffer not only with, but often without the guilty.

2. The right given to the Jews to wage war is not vouchsafed to any other nation; for they were under a theocracy, and were God's sheriff to punish nations; consequently no Christian can argue from the wars of the Jews in justification or in extenuation of the wars of Christendom.

3. The prophecies clearly indicate that Messiah himself would be "THE PRINCE OF PEACE," and that under his reign "wars should cease," and "nations study it no more."

4. The gospel, as first announced by the angels, is a message which results in producing "peace on earth and good will among men."

5. The precepts of Christianity positively inhibit war—by showing that "wars and fightings come from men's lusts" and evil passions, and by commanding Christians to "follow peace with all men."

6. The beatitudes of Christ are not pronounced on patriots, heroes, and conquerors; but on "peace-makers."

7. The folly of war is manifest in the following particulars:—

1st. It never can be the criterion of justice or the proof of right.

2d. It can never be a satisfactory end of the controversy.

3d. Peace is always the result of negociation, and treaties are its guarantee and pledge.

8. The wickedness of war is demonstrated in the following particulars:—

1st. Those who are engaged in killing their brethren, tor the most part, have no personal cause of provocation whatever.

2d. They seldom, or ever, oomprehend the right or the wrong of the war. They, therefore, act without the approbation of conscience.

3d. In all wars the innocent are punished with the guilty.

4th. They constrain the soldier to do for the states that, which, were he to do in his own case, the state would condemn him to death.

5th. They are the pioneers of all other evils to society, both moral and physical.

Let every one, then, who fears God and loves man, put his hand to the work; and the time is not far distant, when—

"No longer hosts encount'ring hosts
Shall crowds of slain deplore;
They'll hang the trumpet in the hall,
And study war no more!"

A FEARFUL MISTAKE OF OUR TIMES.

It is one of the greatest blessings which God has conferred upon the world, that he has put the CHURCH IN IT; but it is one of the most fearful calamities which can befall the church that he permits the DEVIL to put THE WORLD IN THE CHURCH:

I would'nt give much for a parson who preaches
'Gainst vices and follies that lit's's path besirew,
Who, maugre the moral his theory teaches,
In practice performs as all other men do;
I would'nt give much for such a parson—
would you?

I would'nt give much for church members who wrangle
And sneer at whatever another may do,
With bitterness striving the fair fame to mangle
Of those who may wish other paths to pursue;
I would'nt give much for such members—
would you?

There is a stream of fresh water on the coast of Cuba, that runs for miles through the briny ocean, and re-appears in its former sweetness and purity. This ought to typify man's life, pure and innocent in the beginning, it ought to resist contamination, and be as it was in the angelic days of childhood.

THE DEATH OF THE INTEMPERATE.

It is a sad death. There is no comfort on that dying pillow. No sweet response. No voice of freindship, bidding adieu. No lighting up joy in the departing spirit.

It is a frequent death. Three, every hour go through its gates in our own land.

It is an early death. Few drunkards live out their days.

It is an unlamented death. "I am glad he is gone," is the common saying, as the bell announces the solemn event. Even his family look for comfort, now he is no more.

Let it be soberly contemplated.

1. By the moderate drinker.—It may be his.

2. By the vender.—He has filled the bottle, and done the deed.

3. By the magistrate.—He signed the license.

4. By the heedless parent. It may yet be the death of his own son.

5. If not too late, by the drunkard himself. And let him escape as for his life.

Habit hurries him onward. Appetite hurries him onward. Sickness hurries him onward. The vender hurries him onward. The devil hurries him onward. But oh, alas for his end!

"Stop, poor drunkard, stop and think,
Before you farther go!"

THE BOOK OF JOB.

There is a very distinct Scriptural testimony for the inspiration of this book, in 1 Cor. iii: 19. . . . Uz, where Job lived, was Edom, (Lam. iv: 21.) . . . We disclaim all consent to this being an allegorical and not a literal history: and we found our disclaimer on the subsequent references in the Bible to Job as a real personage; as in James v: 11, and still more in Ezekiel xiv: 14–20, where he is ranked with Noah and Daniel, of whose reality no one doubts.—Chalmers.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Special Notice.

The Committee appointed by the late Eldership to investigate the complaints presented against brother E. Logue, are requested to meet at brother Abraham Appler's, near Uniontown, Md., on the 7th of February, at 1 o'clock.

All persons concerned are requested to meet at the same time and place.

ABRAHAM APPLER,
CARLTON PRICE.

Notice.

BROTHER NELSON THOMAS, I will try and preach at your house on the 20th of February next; and also at brother Meloy's on the 22d of February. THOS. HICKERNELL.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

A special meeting will commence on the 1st of March, in the School-house at brother Stump's, Stark county, Ohio.

The ministers and brethren generally are invited to attend. HENRY MURRAY.

A protracted meeting will be held at the Broad Fording meeting-house, Washington county, Md., commencing on the 16th inst.

E. LOGUE.

A protracted meeting will be held at Landisburg, Perry county, Pa., commencing on the 15th inst.

The preaching brethren are invited to be in attendance. W. G. COULTER.

Providence permitting, there will be a special meeting at the New Bethel near brother Kumbler's, opposite Newport, Perry county, commencing on the 23d inst.

POETRY.

A HYMN.

1. My soul's full of glory,
Inspiring my tongue;
Could I meet with th' angels,
I'd sing them a song.
I would sing of my Jesus,
And tell of His charms;
And beg them to bear me
To His loving arms.

2. Methinks they're descending,
To hear that I sing;
Well pleas'd to hear mortals
In praising their King.
O, angels! O, angels!
My soul's in a flame;
I faint in sweet raptures
At Jesus' name.

3. O, Jesus! O, Jesus!
Thou balm of my soul;
'Twas thou, my dear Jesus,
That made my heart whole.
O! bring me to view thee,
Thou precious, sweet King,
In oceans of glory
Thy praises to sing.

4. O, Heaven, sweet Heaven,
I long to be there;
To meet all my brethren,
And Jesus, my dear.
Come angels, come angels,
I'm ready to fly;
Come quickly, convey me
To God in the sky.

5. Sweet spirit attend me
Till Jesus shall come;
Protect and defend me
Till I am called home.
Though worms this poor body
May claim as their prey,
'Twill out-shine, when rising,
The sun at noon-day.

6. The sun shall be darken'd;
The moon turned to blood;
The mountains all melt at
The presence of God.
Red lightnings may flash,
Loud thunders may roar;
All this cannot daunt me,
On Canaan's blest shore.

7. A glimpse of bright glory
Surprises my soul;
I sink in sweet visions,
To view the bright goal.
My soul, while I'm singing,
Is leaping to go;
This moment for Heaven,
I'd leave all below.

8. Farewell, my dear brethren,
My Lord bids me come;
Farewell, my dear sisters,
I'm now going home.
Bright angels are whispering
So sweet in my ear,
Away to my Saviour
My spirit will bear.

9. I'm going, I'm going,
But what do I see?
'Tis Jesus in glory
Appears unto me.
I'm going, I'm going,
I'm going, I'm gone:
O' glory! O, glory!
'Tis done, it is done.

10. To regions of glory
The spirit is fled,
And left this poor body
Inactive and dead:
With angelic armies
In glory to blaze,
On King Jesus' beauties
Forever to gaze.

11. When the sixth seal shall open,
The trumpet shall sound,
T' awake God's dear children
That sleep under ground.
Their souls and their bodies
Shall then join in one,
And each from their Saviour
Receive a bright crown.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 13th ult., by Elder G. U. Harn, Mr. William Heck to Miss Anna Mary Dietz, both of Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 11th of December, 1849, by Elder Henry Murray, Mr. Henry Cook to Miss Anna Dickerhoff, both of Summit county, Ohio.

On the 15th ult., by Elder J. H. Hurley, Mr. H. L. Williard to Miss Rebecca Souders, all of Lancaster city.

On the 18th ult., by Elder William Mooney, Mr. William Fenton to Miss Harriet Shafer, all of Mount Joy, Lancaster county, Pa.

On the 24th ult., by Rev. F. Hodgson, Mr. John H. Moore to Miss Ann Elizabeth Hall, both of Harrisburg.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!"

DIED—At Lewisburg, York county, Pa., on the 29th of September, 1849, Elizabeth Lovelace, daughter of John Metzler, in the 28th year of her age.

Sister Lovelace embraced religion five or six years ago, and proved faithful, we believe, to the hour of her departure. She left a husband and two children. We hope our loss may be her eternal gain.

Abraham Switzer.

In Mount Joy, Lancaster county, Pa., on the 13th of November, 1849, Erasmus Harvey, son of William and Ann Brady, aged 3 years, 9 months and 3 days.

On the 6th ult., in Lancaster, George Miller, aged 39 years, 11 months and 21 days.

Near Oyster's Point, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 23d ult., very suddenly, George Washington Gardner, oldest son of brother William Gardner, aged 8 years, 5 months and 21 days.

Funeral services by Elder D. Maxwell.

Missionary Pledges.

We, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1849, the sums annexed to our names for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner, - -	$10 00
William Reichert, - -	5 00
Isaac Miller, - - -	10 00
J. H. Hurley, - - -	5 00
Geo. U. Harn, - -	5 00
M. F. Snavely, - - -	10 00
Jacob Miller, - - -	10 00
James Miller, - - -	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, - - -	5 00
Thomas Strohm, - -	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe, - - -	5 00
Abraham Sherich, - -	7 50
Abraham Swartz, - - -	5 00
A liberal brother, -	20 00
A liberal sister, - - -	2 00
David Strickler, - -	5 00
James Casy, - - -	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover, - -	5 00

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,	$4 37½	a	4 50
Do. Rye, do. - -	2 50	a	2 56
Do. Corn, do. - -	2 37½	a	2 50
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,	95	a	98
Do. Rye, do. - -	55	a	56
Do. Corn, do. - -	55	a	56
Do. Oats, do. - -	28	a	28
Do. Barley, do. - -	60	a	65
SEEDS—Clover, do. - -	4 00	a	4 12½
Do. Timothy, do. - -	2 25	a	2 50
Do. Flax, do. - -	1 00	a	1 10
BEEF, per cwt. - - - -	5 00	a	5 50
PORK, do. - - - - -	5 00	a	5 25
HAMS, per pound, - - -	10	a	11
BUTTER, do. - - - - -	16	a	20
LARD, do. - - - - -	7	a	8
TALLOW, do. - - - - -	8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.	6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen, - - - -	12½	a	18¾
POTATOES, per bushel, - -	75	a	87½
ONIONS, do. - - -	75	a	87½
APPLES, do. - - -	1 00	a	1 12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.	1 25	a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound, - -	37½	a	45
WOOL, do. - - -	30	a	50
SALT, per sack, - - - -	1 25	a	1 25
HAY, per ton, - - - - -	11 00	a	12 00
PLASTER, per ton, - - -	4 00	a	4 25

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,	$4 87½	a	5 00
Do. Rye, do. -	2 87	a	2 87
Do. Corn, do. - -	3 00	a	3 06
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,	1 06	a	1 07
Do. Rye, do. - -	62½	a	62½
Do. Corn, old do. - -	61	a	62
Do. Oats, do. - -	31	a	31
Do. Barley, do. - -	75	a	80
SEEDS—Clover, do. - -	4 37	a	4 50
Do. Timothy, do. - -	2 75	a	3 00
Do. Flax, do. - -	1 35	a	1 40
BEEF, per cwt., - - -	7 00	a	8 75
PORK, do. - - - - -	7 00	a	7 25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo descimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

EVANGELICAL MUSIC.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us; and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music."

☞ For sale at this office, and at our Depositories. Editor.

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

List of our Depositories and Local Agents.

For the convenience of the brethren, and the public generally, we have come to the conclusion to establish Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

WM. A. LEARY & Co., No. 156 North Second street, BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, and DANIEL GETTY, No. 110 South Third street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, New York.

WATSON & WILLIAMS, St. Louis, Mo.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN C. OWENS, Baltimore, Md.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, and such others as are named in the following list of Books, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail prices.
History of Denominations in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries,	2 00
500 Sketches & Skeletons of Sermons,	2 50
Life of Christ and the Apostles, -	2 50
D'Aubigne's Hist. of the Reformation,	1 50
Wandering Soul, - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament,	50
German Reference Testament, -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - -	25
Harn on Feet-Washing, -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, -	15
Traveler's Guide to the West. -	50

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XIV. HARRISBURG, Pa. FEBRUARY 15, 1850. NUMBER 20.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

Post Office Addresses.

Elder E. Logue, Fayetteville, Franklin county, Pa.

Brother Daniel Long, Canton, Fulton county, Illinois.

Elder Jacob Lininger, Iowa City, Iowa.

The Christian Pearl.

This is a most excellent Monthly, published in Philadelphia, by G. F. Gordon, at $1 00 per annum. The friends of freedom and Christion union can, perhaps, find nothing better than the Pearl will furnish. Subscription taken at this office.

The Evangelical Messenger.

This chaste and highly interesting paper is regularly received at our office. We scarcely know a paper that is more worthy of support than this. The whole paper is filled with excellent reading matter.

It is edited and published by Henry Fisher, for the Evangelical Association, New Berlin, Pa.

The Golden Rule.

This is a spirited and ably conducted paper, published monthly, in Covington, Ky., by D. F. Newton. Price 50 cents per year.

This Monthly takes high ground on all subjects. It is anti-sectarian, anti-slavery, anti-tobacco, and anti every thing that is sinful and wrong. We heartily commend it to all parties, in religion and politics, as one of the worthiest papers of this age.

Book Agent for Iowa.

The brethren in Iowa are hereby informed that Elder Michael F. Snavely is our authorized book agent in Iowa. Those who may want our books, either for their own use or to sell on commission, are referred to him for supplies, after the first of April next, when he will have a supply on hand.

Clay's Resolutions.

Henry Clay has offered a series of resolutions in the U. S. Senate, to settle the question of slavery, so far as it relates to the territories.

He proposes to admit California, reduce the boundaries of Texas, and establish Territorial Governments for all the Territories.

Important Decision.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylyania has decided that divorces granted by the Legislature, for causes within the jurisdiction of the Courts, are unconstitutional and void. As our Legislature has granted a large number of divorces for a number of years past, this decision will invalidate a great proportion of them.

Petition for Cheap Postage.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress assembled.

The undersigned, citizens of ———, most earnestly and respectfully petition Congress, to pass a law during its present session, to establish a uniform Rate of Postage, not to exceed one cent on Newspapers, and two cents on each pre-paid Letter of half an ounce, for all distances; and for other corresponding reforms.

Greek Christians.

I have just held a conversation with Mr. Nasis Shedoody, a young Assyrian gentleman, and interpreter for Mr. Flavianus, a Priest of the Mt. Lebanon and Beyrout Christians. They are on a mission soliciting donations to re-build their Churches and Schools destroyed by the Turks in the war against them in 1843. They have the highest recommendation, vouching for the genuineness of their pretensions.

Among many other questions I propounded to Mr. Shedoody, was the following: How do you Greek Christians practice baptism? Very readily he responded, "We immerse or dip;" at the same time motioning with his hands. I replied, Do you always dip? "Always," said he. Here we have the testimony of a native of the land of John and Jesus, whose native language is that which they preached in, giving testimony for immersion. H.

Knepley's Acquital.

The trial of David C. Knepley, for the murder of his father, was brought to a close in our Court on Tuesday, the 5th inst. The Jury retired about noon, and after a brief absence, brought in a verdict of not guilty, on the ground that the prisoner was insane.—The trial occupied nearly two weeks, and was conducted with great ability by the counsel on both sides.

Revival News.

There are revivals of religion in progress in various places not very distant from this place.

In Elizabethtown, Lancaster county, there is a good work going on for the last few weeks.

In Fredericksburg, or Stumpstown, Lebanon county, there is also a work of grace in progression. Likewise in Hummelstown and Fishing Creek Valley, Dauphin county, and several other places. We hope to give some fuller accounts of these revivals in our next.

Stockton's Theory.

Thomas H. Stockton, formerly a Protestant Methodist preacher in Philadelphia, has recently adopted some singular views, if any thing can be called singular in this age of religious speculation. He has discovered a third region in the eternal world, called Paradise, intermediate between heaven and hell. Into this place are received the virtuous heathen and others in Christian lands who have not been perfectly sanctified on earth, and they are trained for heaven under the ministry of angels and glorified saints. Mr. Stockton has left the church in Cincinnati of which he was pastor, and constituted a new church, rejecting all creeds, but holding, we presume, to his own peculiar dogmas.

The Preachers' Salaries.

Once more we beg leave to remind the churches that the Eldership year is now nearly up. Preachers on the circuits have, perhaps, already appointed their farewell sermons. Soon, then, they will be going their last round on the circuits. Now, as the laborers are worthy of their hire, and as they who preach the gospel shall live of the gospel, be careful and sure to have their salaries made up at each appointment, and the whole amount paid over to them before they leave you and go to their new fields of labor. It is exceedingly mortifying and embarrassing to ministers, to serve the churches a whole year, and then be sent off without a proper remuneration for their services. Be sure, then, that you sin not by robbing God.

Revival in Wooster.

We have just received a letter from J. P. Winebrenner, of Wooster, Ohio, giving an account of a meeting in that place, which resulted in a glorious work of grace. There were about 37 converts; 26 of whom were baptized, and 31 were added to the Church. The letter will be given in our next.

We are happy to learn of the prosperous state of things in Ohio. The cause of God seems to be prospering in various places throughout that State. Our prayer is, that it may continue to be so for days and years to come.

Union among Presbyterians.

We have noticed of late, in several quarters, overtures for union between the different branches of the Presbyteriau fraternity. Some of the pacific spirits in the Old School and New School camps have held out a flag of truce, to invoke a parley. These incipient movements have not resulted auspiciously, and the reaction may cause a wider breach. It is a matter of regret that two large Christian bodies, essentially agreed in all points of doctrine, should not unite in one family.

Alas! how slight a cause may move
Dissensions between hearts that love.

Missionary Pledges Wanted.

We hereby give notice that the missionary pledges will be wanted by the first of April next. Brother Blickenstaff is now laboring in Illinois, and we wish to see him aided, as a pioneer, in the missionary career in that State.

Brother Jacob Lininger will please inform us whether he will take a missionary appointment for the State of Iowa. If so, we hope to be able to do something for him also. Will brother L. write soon and let us know what he can and will do in this matter? We hope, if able, he will take an appointment, and travel as missionary in the State of Iowa.

Debate on Baptism.

The debate on the Action and Subjects of Christian Baptism, between Rev. A. Owen, of the United Brethren, and Elder Jacob Keller, of the Church of God, will commence in the Shiremanstown Bethel on the morning of the 19th inst.

The parties are expected to meet the evening previous, to arrange preliminaries.

It is to be hoped that this discussion will result in much good; and no doubt will, if properly conducted. Both parties should be treated as honestly believing what they maintain: neither should discuss for victory, but both for truth. Of course all immersionists hold that this is no doubtful truth, but one as plainly taught as the fact of the Saviour's death.

Our Best Agents.

The preachers of the several Elderships are all agents, for receiving money and subscriptions, for the Church Advocate. The travelling preachers are the best and most efficient among this class of agents. Some of these do extremely well, whilst others do little or nothing from one year's end to the other. Yet, on the whole, they are among our best agents for the paper. We hope they will all try to do something handsome, for increasing the list, before the first of April, when many of them will change their fields of labor.

We have another class of good agents, here and there, among the membership, made up of Ruling Elders, Deacons and leading men. Some of this class have done remarkably well, and we feel under many obligations to them for their kindness. But we have long thought that this class of local agents might and ought to be enlarged. In some churches we have no local agents, and we are not sufficiently acquainted to know who to appoint. Will our friends please to recommend some suitable person, in all such places.

Another class of agents we should like to employ. And we have long been of opinion, that the very best agents for the Advocate might be found among the SISTERS in the churches. The whole Church is personified, or symbolized, by the figure of a lady, woman, &c. Women, also, in works of mercy and benevolence, are not easily beaten. The ladies, therefore, ought to be put forward in this paper business. A hint may be sufficient. We hope they will take the matter in hand and act of their own accord. We invite all to do for us what they can. We shall keep a list of their names, and publish them in the first number of the next volume.

Exhibitions of the Blind.

Interesting exhibitions were given in the Hall of the House of Representatives, and in the Court House, by twenty-five vocal and orchestral performers, pupils of the Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind. The pupils are accompanied by the Principal, Mr. Wm. Chapin. The exhibitions were instructive and highly interesting, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, examinations, and addresses by Mr. Waterman, one of the Board of Managers of the Institution.

The object of their visit and exhibitions, were to make an appeal to the Legislature for an appropriation to the Institution of the Blind, with a view to enlarge the buildings, which are too small at present for the accommodation of all the pupils.

The Legislature took up the subject immediately, and passed a bill unanimously, giving the Institution an appropriation of $15,000. This humane and benevolent act will, no doubt, be highly appreciated and generally approved.

Phonography Without a Teacher.

Phonography, or writing by sound, is a philosophical method of writing all languages with the rapidity of speech, and the legibility of common long-hand. It adopts the most simple mathematical signs, each which is made with a single stroke of the pen, which link together in a radically new system of spelling, with the greatest facility.

A most favorable opportunity is now offered to the public to learn Phonography. At great expense, the publishers of the "Phonetic Advocate" have provided engraved illustrations of the system, by which they will give a course of Lessons in Phonography in their paper, which is a neat semi-monthly of 16 pages, and afforded at the very low price of $1,00 a year.

The Publishers pledge their honor that the Lessons shall be complete, and enable the student to write the system with accuracy and ease. Address

LONGLEY & BROTHER,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

Pulpit Prayers.

Sermonizing, Expostulatory, Supplicative, Deprecatory, and Presumptuous Prayer.

1. Sermonizing prayer is that form which some preachers indulge in, that discusses Scripture, and sounds more like preaching than praying.

2. Expostulatory prayer is that form which has the character of an argument or debate, either with the Lord, or the preacher's fellowman, amounting to an exhortation.

3. Supplicative prayer is that form in which the Lord is implored to bestow whatever blessings may be needed.

4. Deprecative prayer is that which pleads with or invokes God to withhold his wrath, with a view that the guilty, by being spared a while, may repent.

5. Presumptuous prayer is that form which pretends to communicate knowledge, and dictate to the Deity.

A few words upon this matter may not be out of place; as prayer is the most solemn part of religious worship. Prayer in public should be made for a two-fold purpose: first, for our benefit; and second, the edification of others—but all in connection with the glory of God.

I do not like sermonizing prayer; because it discusses the text (frequently) before the proper time, makes the sermon tautological, and prolongs the prayer to too great an extent. I do not admire expostulatory prayer, especially before service; because it puts the exhortation before the sermon, and makes the repetition of it after sermon abortive, on account of its former use.—Supplicative prayer is always in order, and when offered with becoming reverence and due solemnity, and at not too great a length, is ever proper prayer. Deprecatory prayer is proper at times; especially when we have certain individuals in view for whose preservation we wish to pray, that they may have further time to reform.—But presumptuous prayer is objectionable in the extreme; because it attempts to communicate to that Source from whence cometh all wisdom and knowledge. By presumptuous prayer I do not mean the acknowledging (by way of enumerating) some of the blessings of Heaven to man; but I mean the custom of telling God that he had done thus and so, beginning with the creation of the world, and following the course of the Deity down to the present, or even the end of the world; thus refreshing, as it were, the memory of Divine Wisdom itself.

Another objectionable feature in prayer, in or out of the pulpit, is an apparent profaneness indulged in by some. I mean the frequent repetition of the name of the Lord. I have heard that name repeated as often as nearly one hundred times in one prayer; and often too the most awful name, such as Lord God Almighty. Oh! how reverentially should we use that name, for fear we might take it in our lips in vain. I have thought that some use the name of the Lord as a substitute for other words, that are frequently wanted, and use it with but little reverence.

Another objectionable feature in some prayers, is their deplorable length. I have heard persons complain that they were subjected to much pain in their limbs by being kept unreasonably long upon their knees during pulpit prayer. Such prayers are generally too lengthy from their sermonizing, expostulatory, or presumptuous character. Too much is intended to be said, and thus before all is touched upon, ten, fifteen, twenty or more minutes are consumed. However devotional this may appear, it is a practice that meets no person's approbation.—Even the minister who does it himself, will condemn the offering of very long prayers in others; and this shows that the practice is indulged in without an intention. Five minutes is, I think, as long a time as should be consumed in a pulpit prayer: but if the preacher needs more time to get his mind right for preaching, let him take that time in private prayer before he goes to the house of worship. A longer time than that makes the kneeling congregation uneasy, looking every moment for the closing sentence.

If a preacher wishes to know how lengthy his public prayers are, let him look at his watch when he begins and ends; then let him measure his by some other person's prayer, which he considers very lengthy, and he will soon learn why it is that he hears less responses toward the close of his prayer than at the commencement. By proper training, our mind can be brought to offer a short and effective prayer as well as a tedious long one. We are thinking beings, and we ought to know what we need before we pray in public, and so approach the Lord as to pray intelligently, ardently, and in faith; and not as if we thought our only success lay in much speaking—many words. If any have a particular delight in long prayers, let them enjoy the pleasure they may afford in their private devotions. In these we are all likely to make our prayers short enough—too short.

A HINT TO THE WISE.

The Biblical Repository and Classical Review.

Conducted by J. M. Sherwood. January, 1850. 120, Nassau street, N. Y.

The present number of this valuable Quarterly has many attractions for the Biblical student. Its contents are:—

I. "The Spirit of the Old Testament, by Prof. Tayler Lewis, LL. D." It is most ably written, and is a clear and satisfactory refutation of the idea that the Old Testament does not reveal a future state. No one will fail by its aid to discover a beauty and depth of significance in the Law and the Prophets hitherto unperceived.

II. "Extremes in Theology, by Rev. A. D. Smith, D. D." A very timely and appropriate exposition of the tendency of theological extremes.

III. "Faith in the Gospel the Foundation of Human Greatness, by Rev. L. Curtis." The writer seems to have grasped a great giant truth, not generally perceived, and he deals with it as such. We cannot but be interested in the theme and the profundity and depth of the writer's thoughts, but sometimes it might be wished that they had been clothed in a more perspicuous and less involved style.

IV. "The Death of Arius, by Rev. Prof. S. M. Hopkins." This is an argument that the death of Arius was neither the result of poison, or of the Divine vengeance, but of some natural cause.

V. "The Demand and Demonstration of a Future Retribution in Natural Theology, by Rev. G. B. Cheever, D. D." This article is the gem of the number. The theme itself is both important and interesting, the thoughts bold and vigorous, the style clear and brilliant, and the argument conclusive and convincing. We hope to notice it more at length hereafter.

VI. "Paul before the Areopagus, by Asahel Abbot." A lucid analysis of the great Apostle's inimitable defence of himself and the Gospel on Mars Hill. Alone worth the price of the number.

VII. "The Atonement and the Penalty of the Law, by Rev. S. T. Spear." One of the most logical and conclusive arguments, going to show that the Atonement by Christ is a "substitute," or an "equivalent," rather than the "penalty" of man's sins; and hence advocating a general as opposed to a particular atonement. The article, if found elsewhere, would pass for orthodox arminianism.

VIII. "Nathanael's first Interview with Christ, by Rev. E. C. Jones." An able and plausible article, proposing somewhat novel opinions concerning the character of Nathanael.

IX. "The Incarnation, by Rev. Edward Beecher, D. D."

X. "Chap. XIX. of Tholuck's Hours of Christian Devotion, Translated by Rev. Wm. Hall." No Christian can read this without profit. It is full of the marrow of the Christian life in the soul.

XI. "Literary and Critical Notices of Books, by the Editor." This department seems to be conducted with considerable ability and impartiality.

It scarcely need be added that this, or some similar work, should find a place in every minister's reading, and scarcely less in that of every intelligent and thinking Christian.

A. D. W.

Congregational Donation Visits.

Brother Winebrenner:—

It is a good while since I have written any for the Advocate. A chapter on "Congregational Donation Visits" in your last paper, has called me again upon the bright path of newspaper-authorship. People who, before brother W. informed them on the subject, knew nothing about these annual festivities alluded to, have probably admired his benevolent mind, and many have undoubtedly given their silent consent to his epistle, and if only for the sake of the novelty of the thing. I have never had the honor of being present at any of these donation displays, but I am aware that formerly they had been very fashionable in the New England States, and, what I know to the contrary, may yet be in some places. The annual return of that day is an event to which many, and especially the younger members of the congregation, look forward with joyful anticipation. The day, and the very hour, at length arrive. The parson and his family are expected to be seated in their snug little parlor; and when the door creaks upon its hinges, and some of the brethren or sisters are announced, the preacher must be all smiles and good-will, and meet them with the most graceful bows. One will bring a plucked turkey, another a little basket full of cakes, a third an embroidered handkerchief for one of the little Miss Parsons', a fourth a pair of beautifully ornamented gloves for little Master Parson, &c., &c.; and when the visits are closed, there will be a heap of turkeys, ducks, chickens, sugar-cakes, and trifles in the line of gloves, mits, &c., while every thing really useful and substantial has been forgotten. It will be impossible to consume all the eatables in due time to prevent them from spoiling; and just as likely as not, the gloves or mits will not exactly fit, and thus be useless; and if they do fit, they will be useless too! And if, perchance, one of the donors could succeed in secreting himself in some corner of the room, when all the other visiters are gone, he might hear the poor preacher exclaim, "Lord, save me from another donation visit!" And why so? "Because now the congregation think they have done a great thing, and when the time comes that they ought to subscribe for my support, each member will remember the trifle he gave me on donation day, and will deduct three times its value from the amount of money he formerly gave me, and make the remainder answer for this time, thinking that that great heap of presents ought to have lasted a family, unless extraordinarily extravagant, for three months at least."

These meetings might have a good effect for a few years, just like thanksgiving days now have in Pennsylvania; but ere long they would become a custom, just like thanksgiving days now are in New England; and would, just like the latter, be accompanied by festivity and joviality, and prove a burthen, expense, and abhorrence to the preacher.

But if I should fail in convincing the admirers of brother W.'s donation visits that they are not useful, please accept at least one word of advice from me: Let your presents be useful articles. The preacher may want a pair of boots, or his lady a bonnet; or his wood-yard or flour-tub may be empty; never come with sweet-meats and ornamental needle-work, &c. But I think the best plan to pursue is this: let each member of the Church give the preacher, in good and lawful money of the United States, as much as he ought to give, (which means as much as he can afford to give,) and then the former is at liberty to provide his wants, as he knows them best.

H. J. B.

Linglestown, Pa., Feb. 5, 1850.

The Rationality of the Gospel.

A Skeleton of a Sermon.

BY A. D. WILLIAMS.

TEXT.—Acts 26: 24, 25. "And as he thus spake for himself, Festus said with a loud voice, Paul thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad. But he said, I am not mad, most noble Festus, but speak forth the words of truth and soberness."

PAUL in preaching the Gospel before the Roman ruler was charged with madness, or lack of reason. In our days scepticism sometimes assumes that Christianity is unsupported by reason and contrary to its dictates. But as Paul effectually repels the charge of Festus, so now it may be affirmed that Religion is not only supported by reason but is reasonable in itself. And while reason without religion is infidelity, religion without reason is fanaticism. In relation to this subject, it is affirmed:—

I. REASON INDICATES A PROBABILITY OF A SYSTEM OF REVEALED RELIGION.

1. Because we are naturally limited in knowledge and perception.

2. We are otherwise confessedly unable to provide for many necessities of our nature.

3. The heart longs for a system of religion. Man is naturally a religious being, and is never satisfied without the exercise of the religious element. Hence it is reasonable that Deity should not leave him to the dim light of nature.

4. Nature and Reason are unable fully to explain the nature and conditions of the laws of our being; and therefore it is reasonable to expect a Revelation for this purpose.

II. CHRISTIANITY IS SUCH A SYSTEM AS REASON WOULD EXPECT.

1. It is from God.

2. It is adapted to our nature and circumstances, and is universally applicable—as none but a God-given system could be.

3. It appeals to our better natures.

4. It inculcates holy principles.

5. It strengthens virtue and destroys vice.

6. It enables us to provide for the unseen world.

7. It augments our happiness.

8. It satisfies the longings of the heart.

III. THE DEMANDS OF CHRISTIANITY ARE REASONABLE.

1. It invites investigation. Isaiah 1: 18. "Come now and let us reason together," &c. John 5: 39. "Search the Scriptures," &c. In Acts 17: 11 the Bereans are called "noble" for searching the Scriptures. 1 Thess. 6: 21. "Prove all things." Its entire economy is a challenge to investigation.

2. It asks the abandonment only of what in itself is injurious.

3. It requires us to do nothing but what will promote our personal happiness.

IV. IT IS HENCE UNREASONABLE TO NEGLECT IT.

1. Because Christianity is reasonable in itself.

2. Such neglect is opposed to our real interests.

3. We thus will lose blessings within our reach.

4. By obeying it we certainly shall be safe.

5. By neglecting it we peril our souls.

REMARKS:

1. The charge of Festus recoils upon himself, and is significant to all who reject or neglect the Gospel.

2. Scepticism and impenitence are no evidence of intellectual or moral sanity or greatness.

3. The true "Age of Reason" is the Age of Religion.

Baptism.

THE following Scriptures are sometimes confidently relied upon by Pedobaptists as strong proofs for sprinkling and pouring.—Isaiah 44: 3. "For I will pour water upon him that is thirsty, and floods upon the dry ground: I will pour my spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thine offspring." Isa. 52: 15. "So shall he sprinkle many nations." Ezekiel 36: 25. "Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I clease you." It is affirmed, the Prophets had in view the institution of baptism by sprinkling and pouring water on the candidate, and, therefore, predicate the fact, that by allusion of Philip to this, in his sermon to the sable nobleman of Candace, Queen of Ethiopia, he was led to demand the rite of baptism. To this may be replied,—

1st. Is it not more likely he was led to this in consequence of Philip following the direction of his Master, "Go into all the world, and preach my gospel to every creature; he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved?"

2dly. If these sprinklings and pourings refer to baptism, they have no fulfilment in the New Testament. Where is the instance? Surely not in the Eunuch's case! for Philip and the Eunuch both went down into the water, and there the former baptized, or as Paul has it, buried with Christ in baptism the latter.

3dly. Be it what it may, God himself is the administrator, and not his ministers. "I" saith He, "will sprinkle clean water," &c.—Baptism as an ordinance, is not to be administered by God, but by his ministers. "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them."

4thly. Whatever is meant, it has the virtues of the blood of Christ. "Ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you." There then is certainly saving virtue and essential efficacy in baptism if it is referred to here. A regenerating, cleansing, sanctifying power is ascribed to it. But who will admit this? Are all persons sprinkled or poured with the baptismal liquid, cleansed from their filthiness and idols?—Echo what?

5thly. The pouring or sprinkling of mere unmixed water upon any person or thing, as a religious ceremony, was never commanded by God under any dispensation of his government, Patriarchal, Mosaic, and far less Christian. There was a ceremony of mixing the ashes of a blood red heifer with water taken from the running brook. This was called clean, sanctified, holy water. The sprinkling of it, was most significantly typical of the sprinkling of the blood and water (a mixture, mark you,) that ran from the heart of the Saviour of mankind. It is only applied by faith. Num. 19: 1–13.

6thly. These prophecies have a most undoubted fulfilment in the purification of the carnal heart by virtue of the belief of the penitent in the blood of the atonement. "For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifiying of the flesh, how much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot (as the spotless heifer) to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God? Let us draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water. And to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel. Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ."—Heb. 9: 11. 10: 22. 12: 24. 1 Peter 1: 2.

I think, sir, I have fairly and candidly shown that sprinkling or pouring, as baptism, are not to be found in the above prophecies.

Fraternally, G. U. HARN.

Sanctification.

I SEND you for publication in the Advocate a brief extract from a book that recently fell into my hands, which I think points out the way of sanctification so plainly that all who read with a desire to understand, cannot fail to be benefitted by the perusal.

"The first thing necessary to entire sanctification is a willingness to be sanctified. This implies a fixed decision to be entirely the Lord's—to consecrate the whole soul, with the body, to the service of Almighty God. The seeker after a full salvation must bring himself, without the least reserve, and dedicate the offering forever to the work and service of Jehovah. This consecration made, nothing more is required but simple faith in Jesus Christ. This faith comprehends an undoubting belief in the entire willingness of God to sanctify, according to his promise, and also an unshrinking confidence that he does accept and purify in the instant that the act of self-consecration is performed. Not, indeed, because of that act, but because he has promised to do so for the sake of Jesus Christ; the act of self-consecration being nothing more than placing ourselves on the spot where God has promised to meet us. It has no merit; it does not procure the sanctifying spirit. No, it is only the proper posture of a spirit waiting to receive a free gift, at the hands of a Divine Sovereign. The blood of Jesus, and that alone, is the meritorious cause—the all-victorious motive which moves our Heavenly Father to put his sanctifying spirit in the believers' heart. Upon that blood, therefore, must the converted depend when asking for a holy heart."

Scripture Illustration.

BY ANDREW RAUDEBAUGH.

TEXT.—"Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary, the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour: whom resist steadfast in the faith," &c.

THE first question that presents itself for our consideration is, whom does the devil seek to devour? We would say, not the unregenerate. Not those that are led captive at his will. Not his own children. But he is walking about seeking an opportunity to devour the children of God. Hence, we are commanded to resist him steadfast in the faith. Now, in seeking some one to devour, he takes his march into the Church. We find wherever the Lord has a work going on, there the devil makes his appearance in some shape, or under some disguise. He came to our first parents in the garden as a serpent, and commenced trying to destroy the works of God: and we, their offspring, feel the effects produced by a non-resistance on their part.

Again, we find him, at a time when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, to come up amongst them,—looking upon Job as his victim; and Job truly was severely tried. May we resist him as Job did. For we are informed that his latter end was better than his beginning.

But again, we are told that he desired to give Peter a sifting. Although Peter did deny his Lord, yet satan did not attain to the height of his wishes. And now, though Peter is dead, and enjoying the blessings of a better state of existence, yet he has left us the exhortation to be sober and vigilant, and to resist the devil; informing us that he is our adversary or opposer: and we truly need to be on our guard, for he makes his appearance in so many ways, that if it were possible he would deceive the very elect.

We sometimes see almost whole Churches destroyed by suffering the devil to get access into it. And if not resisted in the faith, he will get in. In order to introduce himself and get amongst us, he makes use of various means. Sometimes he looks around on the objects under his control, in search of a material to decoy us with, or to present something to our view that will cause a division amongst us. Perhaps, in his search amongst his own, for a tool to work with, he discovers Mr. A., a man that has seen better days—once perhaps a church member or minister—that he has heretofore decoyed into his own ranks, and has him filled with strife, division and discord. Now, the devil knows that like begets like. So he dresses this individual up in the cloak of reform, or perhaps in tears, imitating a true penitent, and presents him to the Church as a teacher. The Church, seeing the tears and cloak, they receive him, and he enters the Church. But while he has been out, he has gained so much intelligence, and has become so very conscientious, that he now wants to set things in order. In looking over the matters of the Church, perhaps he discovers that the teachers and elders have for a long time been in the habit of meeting together once a year, for the purpose of seeing that all things work together for good. This, he says, is unscriptural, and commences to jar and misrepresent things, slander the true minister of God, and influences the unguarded to side with him. Here a sifting must take place. This character that will cause division must be expelled. Then we see him cross. He strides off, in company with a few of his like, who failed to take Peter's advice; and so we see how he undertakes to devour some. And they being like their master, are not idle or stationary, but walking about. The children of God have to meet them, and often to contend with them, when they go to the place appointed for worship, as in the days of Job. So now the devil comes up too when the sons of God meet. May God help us all to take Peter's warning and advice.

Another apprehension of danger is, when an individual in the Church gets so much influence, that the Church cannot contain the effects of it: so that he must divide it, give a part to the Church, and a part to the men of this world, in following their pursuits, in rearing secret societies, &c., &c. May the good Lord save us all from the devouring jaws of the adversary.

Query from Iowa.

North Bend, Johnson Co., Iowa, Jan. 16, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I noticed in my last number of the Church Advocate a letter from brother Thos. Bretz, Pfoutz's Valley, Perry county, in which he gives some account of the state of things in that modern "Athens." Among other things noticed was, that they had given "brother Benjamin Howard license," &c., &c. Well, thought I to myself, this looks a little strange to me after all. Brother Benjamin Howard licensed by a local church after attending two meetings of the Elderships of the Church of God! (!) Does the man indeed think local members better able and more capable of judging who ought to have license and who ought not, than the Eldership? Or is there some other motive or object in view?

If indeed brother Howard's heart is truly with the brotherhood of the Church of God, why not apply to the Eldership for license? I have yet to learn that an ear, or hand, or foot, or any other member of the body, is more capable of discerning, and therefore judging, than the eye, or the whole body. Preposterous, I think.

But as the matter happened in the valley of (former) fanaticism, latitudinarianism, and libertinism; and, as some people must have the "bell or be no sheep," I, for one, feel like here dropping the matter, with this conclusion: that if brother Howard does not fare better, in point of support, than a number of the brethren in the ministry did formerly, in the same place, he will not be able to stay long there, unless he is well off, or exeept he rob other churches to do them service. So, then, they and their God for it. Farewell.

M. F. SNAVELY.

Letter from Brother Benj. Howard.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

I noticed in the Advocate of January 15th, a letter from brother John Ulsh, in which there are some strange things. In the first place he says, it is strange to him to hear that father Howard has established a Church in Pfoutz's Valley. In the second paragraph he says, he don't know what Church it is, unless they call it a Sectarian Church. In the third paragraph he acknowledges that it was very correct that there was such a Church established as stated in brother Bretz's letter, and that he was appointed Elder of it, but that he saw his error the next day and withdrew the first opportunity, for reasons that he don't see proper to give.

Now, I don't know what reasons he would have, except it was that I had preached that it was the duty of the Deacons of the Church to to see that every member of the same pay according to his property for the support of the temporal economy. Now, if this was his reason, all I have to say is, that it is not the first time that individuals have gone away because they had great possessions. Matt. 19: 22.

But, lest some one should think that I had, or wanted to establish something different from the Church of God in this country, I would say, that I have no thought of any such thing, but will do all I can to build them up in the most holy faith.

Brother Winebrennnr, I think I know how to sympathize with brother Ulsh in his afflictions. You undoubtedly recollect what he told us at brother Kumbler's, at the dedication last fall; that the accident he met with two or three years ago, had so disordered his head that he sometimes was so confused that he hardly knew what he was about. I hope, therefore, that no one will be offended with brother Ulsh, but bear with him in Cristian kindness. And I sincerely hope that brother Ulsh, with his excellent family, will get to Heaven; where we shall all be free from the misfortunes of this life;—where we shall not have to rasp and file one another to get the rust off.

In conclusion I would refer the reader to brother Bretz's letter on page 125, which is correct. BENJAMIN HOWARD.

N. B.—I once was young, but now am old. I would therefore advise the preaching and private members of the Church of God, that when they write anything for the Advocate that is calculated to militate against the reputation and hurt the influence of any of their brethren or sisters, first to lay it by for a day or two, and pray over it; and then look at it again, and ask themselves,—

Am I not imposing an unpleasant task upon the Editor, who wishes to please all as far as possible?

2dly. Am I doing as I would be done by?

3dly. What good will it do me or the one that I am writing about?

4thly. What good will it do the Churches, all over the country, to know all about our little difficulties?

5thly. Will it have a tendency to lead people out of Sectarianism to join the Church of God?

6thly. Will it reclaim backsliders or convert sinners, to read how we are rasping and filing each other, to make the fire fly?

7thly. Will it increase the respectability of our paper, so that we shall be likely to increase the list of our subscribers?

8thly. Put on charity, which is the bond of perfection; for love worketh no ill to his neighbor. B. H.

License Question Answered.

Answer to Editor's enquiry on page 125.

I presume that not one of the members of the Church in Pfoutz's Valley knew anything of the resolution referred to. I knew nothing of it till I saw the Editor's query.

As to who is right, I should think that a Church has a right to recommend one of its members to the public as a preacher; and then, when the Eldership sits, if the preacher sees fit to make application, and the Eldership sees fit to receive him, all is well. But if not, the Church can refuse to give countenance any further. Hence they are both right.

B. H.

Letter from Brother Samuel Scott.

Trenton, Henry Co., Iowa, Jan. 10, 1850.

Beloved Brother Winebrenner:—

It is with pleasure that I inform you that we are all well. Thanks be to Almighty God for his unspeakable goodness to usward.

Notwithstanding, the churches here are laboring under very disagreeable feelings, in consequence of the strange conduct of E. Logue towards us, especially since his second epistle made its appearance in the Church Advocate, which causes us the disagreeable necessity of referring to the same. His words are as follows: "And notwithstanding those erroneous statements which made their appearance from Iowa against E. Logue," &c., &c. Then he goes on to say: "Three or four of those eight which signed the letter last spring, expressed their sorrow, and confessed their guilt, for having signed said letter."—This has caused great grief, not only in those eight, but also in the members of the churches generally, as they consider those assertions entirely groundless.

Having been reqnested to write again with regard to those things, I thought it advisable to call those brethren and inquire more particularly into the matter: aud having thus assembled together, we endeavored to ascertain the truth of the matter; whereupon we found the facts to be as follows: Jas. Barton and Jos. McDowell did not see E. L. whilst in Iowa last fall. A. Henthorn and myself did not speak to him on the subject; and the other four positively declared that they did not express any sorrow, nor confess any guilt, for having signed said letter. And further, were willing to sign a certificate to that amount—which certificate is hereto subjoined.

But there is still another cause of grief with regard to this, viz: the strange manner in which we have been treated with regard to the publication of our second letter. After having been publicly challenged to prove or make good the truth of our assertions, we did so, beyond the power of successful contradiction. This proof has never been given to the public. Here we are, by the mere assertion of E. Logue, published to the world as being guilty of telling palpable falsehood. After having waited patiently in vain to see our defence published, we wrote to you to know the reason why it was not; but instead of receiving any satisfaction, the first thing we see is another epistle from E. Logue, containing unfounded assertions against us,—thus trampling upon the rights and wounding the feelings of the brethren, and may perhaps ultimately result in serious consequences.

Dear brother, we esteem our character too dear to us, to have our rights thus trampled upon, and must now bring the matter to an issue. We now demand, as our legal right, to have our former defence, together with the subjoined certificate, published as soon as possible on the receipt of this letter: if not, we will look for your reasons for not publishing the same.

I am authorized to say, that if no satisfaction is given in about four weeks from this time, we shall be under the disagreeable necessity of preparing the whole matter for publication in some paper in general circulation. We want nothing but fair play.

Yonrs, fraternally,

SAMUEL SCOTT.

We, the undersigned, do hereby certify, that we did not in presence of E. Logue express any sorrow, or confess any guilt, for having signed the letter above referred to:—that we did then, and do still, consider ourselves justifiable in so doing.

Given under our hands this 14th day of January, 1850.

Jacob Smith,	Joseph B. Nickol,
Amos Henthorn,	David Neff,
John Zentmyer,	Samuel Scott,
Joseph Barton,	Joseph McDowell.

Letter from Bro. Jno. Hickernell.

Bethany, Westmoreland Co., Pa., Jan. 31, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I shall now try to unravel some of the mysterious things to which you referred in number 16 of the Advocate.

First. As it regards the giving up of the Pittsburg station, I shall say but little. I have aided twice to rear that church, and it took no little labor to get a commencement in that place. But the cause is partly gone there. Some of its members were advised to flee and escape for their lives. Others run off and left a stain upon their character that will not soon be wiped away. But there is still a remnant left in Pittsburg, who have no preaching to encourage them for the celestial world.

In the second place, the locating of some of the preachers—J. A. Dobson and J. Hickernell. J. A. D. must answer for himself. As it respects myself, I answer cheerfully. When I asked the Eldership to be exempted from the charge of a circuit, I did not mean to quit the field and lay my commission down. My objec was, to act as a missionary at large, and to pay my friends a visit in the East, and also in the West. When I do this, I intend to preach more or less wherever I go.

In the fall of the year I intend to return, enter into labor with the brethren, and go out into new ground, where none of the brethren have as yet been. All this I intend to do, if life and health permits.

I have now travelled circuits twelve years, and during all this period I never could have time enough to attend to the above visits. I ask, then, is it reasonable that I should have this time, after being so long in the field? My brethren thought not, but granted my request without a murmuring word.

You may say, however, all right enough; but it ought not to be done at the expense of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, by appointing one of their preachers (E. Logue) to the Bethany circuit.

To this I would say, E. L., when passing through here, on his way to Iowa, stated that he intended to travel in the West somewhere, and would not stay in the East. For this reason we spread our net to catch him. But, we are not so sure of him yet: for he requested me to write to him, and his Post Office address we don't know. I am anxious that he should come to this Eldership, for my mind is not settled in reference to my whereabouts next spring a year. In mentioning this, I expect to meet with opposition from the Eldership of which I am a member. My notion is for Iowa. Therefore, I should like to see some one take my place. There are a good many going from this place next spring. For the satisfaction of their friends and other brethren, I will mention some of their names. Brother Christian Landis and family. Brother Christian Dillinger and family. Elder W. Vance and family. Brother Rosenberger and family. Philip Breean and family. Christian Stoner and wife.

C. S. and Catharine Landis, were married to-day by Elder Vance.

Now I am prepared to receive instruction from any source; for the above is my instruction at the present. I wish brother Logue to write to me soon, and let me know what he will do as it respects travelling the Bethany circuit. Yours, &c.

JNO. HICKERNELL.

Letter from Bro. David Keplinger.

Canal Dover, Tuscarawas Co., Ohio, Jan. 17, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

I take my pen in hand to drop a few lines for the readers of your valuable paper, which is gaining influence daily. I expect to be able, in a few weeks, to send you some few new subscribers, with the money in advance.

I can say that I love the Advocate, for indeed it is a welcome visiter to me. I would be glad if it would come every week once; but I do not begrudge the cost of the paper at its present issue: yea, I would not do without it for double its price.

I would also inform you that the cause of religion is on the rise in this part of God's vineyard. Some two months ago, father Beidler and A. Holms held a protracted meeting in the neighborhood of father Showalter's, which resulted in the conversion of several precious souls. They also organized a Church of eight members. Since that time they held another meeting, which resulted in the conversion of ten or twelve; and they received six more into fellowship. Although opposition runs high, yet the people come out to hear the word of the Lord. God grant that those brethren and sisters may have grace to stand for the faith of the Gospel—live as shining lights in a wicked and gainsaying world, so that many more may turn in and walk with them in the way that the Saviour trod, and have a home in Heaven.

Brother Holms held a protracted meeting in this place. Only two professed to find peace in Jesus: but bless the Lord, the brethren and sisters had a happy time. We still look up for better times. Oh, may the good Lord bless all my dear brethren and sisters, and make them useful in this place. There are many that know that they must have religion or go to ruin. Oh sinner, in God's name, do not stifle the convictions that you have felt during our late protracted meeting; for if you do, the spirit may nevermore strive with you! Think on this subject, I beseech you; for the night cometh when no man can work. Now is the time, the accepted time; now is the day of salvation: if you hear his voice, harden not your hearts.

Again, my dear brethren and sisters, let me exhort you to live in obedience to all the commands of God; and then the world can have no evil thing to say of us. And by so doing, God will bless our efforts in His cause. Sinners will be constrained to seek the salvation of their souls, and go with us to the goodly land. I believe, my brethren, that it is our privilege to see sinners coming to Christ daily. And I believe if the Church is holy, and will keep herself so by keeping unholy persons out of her communion, that God will bless our labors. Oh! what labor is now spent in vain by those dear faithful brethren and sisters, on the account of some worldlings and ungodly professors in the Church, and kept in for relation sake, or some other unholy cause. I do believe that the Church of God ought to be holy and unrebukable before the world: then, when we hold a protracted effort, God would own and bless our labors to the conviction and conversion of many souls. Let us begin to search out every secret of our own hearts first, then we can pull the mote out of the eyes of others. Dear brethren, let us go to work in the name of our God, and see if there cannot be a better state of things brought about. Let each one do all that is in his or her power to accomplish this desirable object. Then God will bless our undertaking, and reward us richly in time and in the world to come. I humbly beg an interest in the prayers of my brethren, that I may be useful in the cause of Christ, and at last meet you all in the kingdom triumphant.

I remain yours, &c.,

DAVID KEPLINGER, Jr.

Letter from Brother Jacob Mygrants.

Stark County, Ohio, Nov. 18, 1849.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

I embrace the present opportunity of writing a few lines, which you may give a place in your valuable paper, the Church Advocate.

Amidst diseases and death, the good Lord has spared our lives with health and strength, for which I feel thankful to God. I sold my possessions last spring and moved to a neighborhood where I intend to stay till next spring, and then move to Indiana. Here I have not the privilege of meeting with my brethren.—This causes me to think of the time and place where I was first brought into the Church of God, and where I lived about 12 or 14 years. Many joyful seasons we had together while waiting on the Lord. I did not know what it was to be absent from my brethren. To be absent from my brethren seems hard to me; but as I have to live and die for myself, I will therefore serve the Lord in weaknes wherever I go. Where I now live I am surrounded with Otterbein's followers, or United Brethren in Christ. I am inclined to believe that they have given themselves the wrong name.—Why? Because I heard one of their professed preachers say, after preaching, that he would give an opportunity, to see whether there were any in the house who would join the United Brethren Church, and then stated that he thought there were some persons in the house who formerly belonged to another Church, whose practice was nearly the same. I say so too: Arianism is about as good as the other—and all good for nothing. Strange indeed! I read of but one Church, whose founder is Jesus Christ. In my opinion, whatsoever is formed outside of the directions of the Lord, is not according to gospel order, and consequently will not stand in a coming day. Oh! when will men see their folly and learn wisdom of the Lord! My brethren, I cannot go in for these things, because they are wrong. I would here call your attention to the second epistle of John. Such men will admit such as have no religion, and then call on their brethren to pray for them—calling these unconverted members brethren and sisters.—How inconsistent for a Christian to call the unconverted his brother or sister. The Scriptures say, "What concord hath Christ with Belial, or what communion has light with darkness." Again, "Be ye not unequally yoked together." The Bible is full of light on this subject.

I had the pleasure of attending the Camp-meeting at our much beloved brother John Stump's, where all was peace and harmony, and where I saw a goodly number of my brethren, whom I never expect to see again in this world: but I do desire their happiness and to see them in glory. Oh! how I love to hear my brethren preach. My prayer for you, my brethren and sisters, is that you may all be faithful to the end. Among the rest of my brethren, I saw brother Deshiri, whom I dearly love, for his powerful preaching. I never will forget the sermon delivered by him on the subject of baptism. It was plain and closely confined to the word of God. I also saw brother Soule for the first time, but did not hear him preach. I heard his voice in singing. He is a sweet singer. My Brethren pray for me, that I may hold out faithful to the end. No more at present.

Yours as ever,

JACOB MYGRANTS.

Letter from Brother M. P. Dill.

Shiremanstown, Nov. 5, 1849.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I feel to drop a few lines to you and the readers of the Advocate.

I have been a member of the Church of God for the short time of six years; and during which time, I have had some refreshing seasons from the presence of the Lord, together with some hard conflicts without and within. But still, I thank God that I am yet alive and on the way to glory, which is promised to us, if we prove faithful to God's teachings to the end. I am glad also, that I belong to the Church of God. The reason why I say so is, because I believe her doctrines are in accordance with the Bible. When a church member tells me he is getting along well in religion, and at the same time will not allow him or herself to walk in the ordinances of God's house blameless, I am led to think of the words of our Saviour: "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." I have my doubts if God will overlook sins of omission any sooner than sins of commission.

As I see and read many letters in the Advocate from my brethren, I feel to speak a few words to them. I contend for the Bible to be my discipline and guide. As I have learned Christ, so I will try to walk in him, if grace be given. I have often thought, when hearing Sectarians speak of their rules, (not God's rules,) that there are none so blind as those that do not want to see. I am often branded as a Winebrennerian; but that matters not to me. I thank my God that I have an anchor to my soul that reaches beyond this vale of tears. By the help and grace of Ged, I intend to live and die among my brethren; for I have for some time back been more attached to them than ever before.

I will further say, that the little Church in Shiremanstown is still alive, and are looking forward, trusting the Lord will soon visit them with a more prosperous time. Our prayer-meetings are good, and pretty well attended; only I wonder where some of our old brethren are, who formerly used to come and see us and preach for us. I will now close my letter by saying, brethren pray for us.

Yours in love,

M. P. DILL.

Letter from Brother J. Blickenstaff.

Near Martinsille, Ill., Jan. 28, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

By request I send you the name of one new subscriber for the Advocate. I find it difficult to get subscribers for the Advocate in this country. Some wish to see the paper before they are agreed to subscribe. But I hope for better success presently.

I have succeeded in opening a circuit, and have more preaching than I can attend to. My congregations are large, generally, for this country, and very attentive. I have fair prospects of a revival in several places at present. But my health is poor, and I have many things to discourage me. I am opposed by most all the sects here, and have had to defend the doctrines of the Gospel of Christ at various times. I have buried four more happy believers with Christ in baptism since I wrote before. The Church here (near Martinsville) numbers 23 members at present. I formed it numbering 13 members, who had all moved from Richland county, Ohio.

With Christian love and esteem, I remain yours, J. BLICKENSTAFF.

Letter from Brother Wm. Whisler.

Shelby, Richland Co., Ohio, Dec., 1849.

Dear Friend:—

I beg leave to drop a few lines for the Advocate, of which I am a great lover. I have been getting it since spring, and hope to take it much longer. Only three come to this office; but I think if our friends and preachers would try, they might do much for it: for many don't know that there is such a paper. Let us us try to do the best we can for it.

I see in the Advocate some of the Whislers' names. I am glad to see them among the patrons of the Advocate. I wish that the Whislers' would write to me, for I would be glad to receive a letter from them, and will correspond with them. I was born in Cumberland county, Pa., north of Newville. My father came from Chester county, Pa., and my grand-father from Germany. I came to Ohio about 18 months ago. Will the friends let me know where they live, and I will let them hear from me again. I hope correspondents will continue to write for publication in the Advocate. No more at present.

Yours, in the bonds of love,

WM. WHISLER.

OBITUARY OF JACOB OLINGER, Jr.

Died, at the residence of his parents, in Summit township, Somerset county, Pa., on the 19th of January, 1850, Jacob, son of Jacob and Catharine Olinger, aged 21 years, 11 months and 13 days.

His disease was Consumption. After a long and lingering sickness, his Redeemer at last called his spirit home. Sometime before he died he seemed quite sensible of the near approach of his death, and appeared to be fully resigned to the will of the Lord.

It is a matter of sweet consolation to his bereaved parents and friends, that he left this world of sorrow for a world of bliss and glory, where all diseases of body and mind are unknown, but where the soul will dwell in immortal health and youth forever.

His funeral was large and solemn. The congregation was addressed by the Rev. Henry Knepper, of Grantzville, Md., from 1 Chron. 29: 15. J. B. H.

ON THE DEATH OF JACOB OLINGER.

"Man is like the flower of the field, that flourisheth a little while, then fadeth away."

Alas, we've lost a youthful friend!
His was an early doom;
Just like a flower of summer,
That droops ere full in bloom.

He's missed from friendship's circle,
Miss'd from the social hearth;
There oft he join'd us in our sports
Of innocence and mirth!

I saw him when his raven locks,
Hung clustering round his brow;
The glow of health o'erspread his cheeks,
But ah! where is he now!

I saw him when those locks were laid
Dishevel'd on his pillow;
His soul was lingering on the brink
Of death's stormy billow.

I look'd again—his eyes were clos'd,
His lips were seal'd in death!
In the morn of life, hope and love,
He yield'd up his breath.

Yes, death has broke the "golden bowl!"
Has loos'd the "silver cord!"
The never-dying spirit hath Appeared before the Lord.

Yes still, tho' dead, he loudly speaks,
Oh, listen to his word!
"Dear youth, while blessed with strength, Prepare to meet thy God!"

C. M. H.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Religious Liberty in Turkey.—The Turkish Government is obligated by a pledge written from the Sultan, to the British Government, that hereafter no persecution shall be allowed in Turkey on account of religion. This, from the Moslem power, is a great concession. Truly, the "river Euphrates" is very nearly "dried up."

[Zion's Advocate.

Pork Packing in the West.—The Cincinnati Gazette gives the following statistics of pork packing in the West this season:

Hogs slaughtered and cut at Cincinnati and vicinity this season, according to present figures, amount to	380,555
At Louisville,	184,000
At Chilicothe,	33,000
At Hamilton, according to the Intelligencer,	15,000
At Evansville, Ia.,	12,000
At Lafayette,	40,000
At Terre-Haute,	65,500
At Vincennes,	15,000
At Clinton,	14,000
At other points in the Wabash Valley, (Attica, 8,000; Williamsport, 6,000; Covington, 3,500; Perrysville, 5,000; Eugene, 7,000; Newport, 3,800; Logansport, 5,000; Delphi, 5,000.)	43,300

There are reports of about 8,000 head at other places.

Terrible Explosion and Melancholy Loss of Life.—In the Machine and Press-making Establishment of Alba B. Taylor, No. 3 Hague Street, New York, at 7½ o'clock, A. M. the steam boiler on the first floor of the six story building, exploded. The explosion took place one moment, and all was enveloped in flames the next. Some few have been dug out of the ruins, but it is judged eight persons have lost their lives. The shock was felt for nearly half a mile distant. It is one of the most heart-rending disasters on record. The boiler was nearly new, and thought to be in a good condition. The particular cause of its bursting is unknown.

Hungary.—The New York Tribune states that a distinguished Hungarian exile now in this country, has in preparation, and now nearly ready for the press, a complete history of the recent war of independence in Hungary; including its cause, antecedents, and events, military and political, with full notices of the men who played prominent parts in that great drama of recent times.

Franklin Marshall College.—The arrangements for the proposed union of Franklin College in Lancaster city, and of Marshall College at Mercersburg (Pa.) are rapidly progressing. The new buildings required immediately will cost $25,000, and ultimately, this item of expense is expected to reach beyond $60,000. The new Institution will be under the control of the German Reformed Church.

Salt Spring.—A salt spring estimated to be six hundred feet deep, and sending forth a column of water three inches in diameter, has been discovered in Mercer county, Va., about six miles from the Red Sulphur Springs. It is calculated it will yield three hundred bushels salt per day.

California Official Salaries.—The new constitution fixes the salary of the Governor of California at $10,000 per annum, and members of the Legislature are to have $16 per day. The Secretary of State is to receive $6,000 a year.

The Boston Mystery.—Baltimore, Jan. 19, 12 M.—The Southern mail, due last evening, came to hand this morning. The New Orleaes Delta publishes an anonymous letter, dated Washington, Texas, in which the writer says that Dr. Webster is innocent of the murder of Dr. Parkman, and that he himself is the guilty one, and is on his way to California. The letter is regularly postmarked, and addressed to the Delta, and bears the signature of "Oronoke;" it is written on coarse paper, and is quite illiterate in its style. The editors think that it is not a hoax.—N. Y. Sun.

Macaulay's History of England.—Inquiries are often made respecting the continuation of this work, with special reference to the probable time of the appearance of the next volume. We have conversed with a gentleman who has recently seen Mr. Macaulay, who said he was laboring hard at the work every day, but that he did not expect to have the third volume ready for press in less than a year, and that it might not be ready in less than fifteen or eighteen months.—N. Y. Com. Advertiser.

The Indictment against Prof. Webster.—Boston, Jan. 19, 12 M.—Prof. Webster was brought before the Municipal Court at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and notified of the indictment found against him. It contains four counts, the first of which charges him with murdering Dr. Parkman with a knife; the second with hammers; the third with his hands or feet; and the fourth by means unknown. Mr. Webster was perfectly self-possessed, and appeared to have suffered nothing from his confinement.—N. Y. Weekly Sun.

M. de Lamartine.—A French paper, "La Bourgogne," states with regard to the property presented to M. de Lamartine, by the Sultan, that it lies about 12 miles from Smyrna, and embraces an area of 34 miles in circumference, and contains five villages, which have hitherto paid a trifling tax to the Sultan. It is the intention of M. de Lamartine, to leave France in the spring, and superintend in person, the settlement of this capacious domain.

Strike for Higher Wages in California.—A difference has occurred between the Journeyman Carpenters of San Francisco and their employers. The former insist on $16 a day; the latter refuse to pay more than $12. The day laborers who have had $7 and $8, refuse to work for less than $10. About five hundred are engaged in this strike, and they marched through the streets in proeession with a drum and fife.

New Rotary Engine.—Mr. George Creary, machinist, of this city, has invented an improved rotary engine, which is said to remove all the decidedly good objections made against the other engine of the same class.—Scientific American.

Railroad from Louisville to Nashville.—The citizens of Barren county, Kentucky, are up to the spirit of the age. They held a meeting at Glasgow, and passed resolutions favoring the construction of a Railroad from Louisville to Nashville. The friends of the enterprise do not ask for any appropriations from the Kentucky or Teennessee Legislature, feeling confident that the stock will be taken by private subscription along the line.

Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroad.—At the annual meeting of this company, held in Pittsburg, it was stated that the subscriptions to the stock of the road now exceed $1,860,000. Fifty miles have been put under contract, and the work is steadily progressing, Gen. Wm. Robinson has been re-elected President.

Mrs. Miller.—This woman, who some time since was supposed to have gone over the Falls, according to the Fredericksburg News, sailed a few days since, with her paramour, Mr. B., of Winchester, Va., for Italy. The intimacy (the people of Winchester think) was in the first instance prompted by Mrs. M.

Railroad in Indiana.—We learn from a letter in the Bedford Standard, that the citizens of Bloomington have taken the whole amount of stock neeessary to secure the extension of the New Albany and Salem Railroad to that place. The stoek in the Bloomington and Columbus Railroad has also been all taken.

Memphis and Charleston Railroad.—A vote has been taken by the people of Huntsville, Ala., to authorize the corporate authorities to take $50,000 of stock in the Memphis and Charleston Railroad. It was carried nearly unanimously, only some fifteen votes being against the proposition.

Salt in Texas.—A large bed or lake of Salt has been discovered about sixty miles north-west of Georgetown, Texas, and ninety miles from Austin. The salt is remarkable pure. Thirty kettles and salt pans are already ordered for drying and crystalizing the salt.

The Erie Canal Company.—The seventh annual report of the Erie Canal company has been published. From it we learn that the total receipts, from tolls and water rents, for the last year, amounted to $78,-245 46. Total expenditures, $37,847 25 Profits, $40,397 21.

Slaves in kentucky.—The whole number of slaves in Kentucky is 195,110, which are valued at $62,251,529.

A Large Sale.—Dr. S. P. Towsend has sold out his Sarsaparilla establishment for $100,000.

☞ Sunday travelling has been suspended on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ANECDOTE----FAITH AND WORKS.

On the frith of Forth was an old ferryman, a man of much thought and observation, but of few words; a constant student of the Bible, and a firm believer in its truths. Among his patrons were two loquacious companions, whose business led them across the river once a week. One of them was, as he supposed, a high-toned Calvinist, while the other imagined himself to be equally well grounded in the tenets of Arminius. Their conversation always turned upon some doctrinal point; The ferryman was frequently annoyed by the repetition of faith on one side, and works on the other, because they were used in a sense so different from their real import, and so destructive of their Scriptural harmony.

At length the patient old man felt obliged to interfere. He said nothing, but fell upon the following expedient. Upon one of his oars he painted the word faith; upon the other, works. It was not long before the zealous but friendly disputants applied for a passage over the Forth.—Upon entering the deepest part of the river. where the swollen water rushed down with fearful violence, the ferryman took in "Faith," and pulled away upon "Works" with all his might. The boat went round and round, much to the annoyance and terror of the two passengers. "Put out the other oar," said one of them, in a loud and angry tone. "Very well," was the calm reply of the old man—at the same time taking in "Works," and relying on "Faith" alone. The experiment with this oar produced the same result, and drove the witnesses of it to the conclusion that the ferryman was "out of his head." The old man however continued his "practical demonstration" on the water, until he thought the friends were prepared to see two things in connexion. He then called their attention to the names of his oars: "I have tried your way," said he—"and yours; and you have seen the result. Now observe my way." And giving a steady hand to each oar, the little boat soon acknowledged the power of their harmonious strokes, by the straight and rapid flight which she took for the landing.—Amer. Mess.

THE HALF CENTURY.

Is the first half of the Nineteen Century "dead and gone" or not? This question is undergoing an animated discussion in certain circles; apparently much to the puzzlement of some who should be able to count 100 or 1800, without making a blunder. That they do not, however, is evidence, we suppose, that there is a difficulty somewhere; though we confess we are unable to see it. It strikes us as the simplest problem in the world, that, a full 100 years being necessary to complete a century, the whole of the hundredth year belongs to the going out century; that is, that the whole of the year 100 belonged to the first century of the Christian Era; and, if so, the whole of the year 1800 belonged to the second half of the eighteenth century. Admit this, and it follows necessarily that the whole of the year 1850 belongs to the first half of the nineteenth century.

To go back to the beginning. The moment of Christ's birth was the commencement of the year one of the Christian Era; but a year of the era was not completed till the expiration of twelve months, or until Christ was one year old. Christ then entered on his 2d year, which was year 2d of the Christian Era, and continued to be the year 2 until its close. So of each successive year. Accordingly fifty years, or the first half of the first century of the Christian Era did not elapse till the close of the year fifty, at which time Christ, if living, would have been just fifty years old. The second half, then, of the first century began with the beginning of the year 51; and the first century closed with the close of the year 100, because a full hundred years are required to make a century.—The second century, then, commenced when?—Not with the year 100, which was part of the first century, but with the year 101, and ended with the end of the year 200. We thus find that the present century commenced with the year 1801, as the year 1800 belonged to the last century. Therefore, as forty-nine cannot possibly make a half hundred, we cannot possibly get into the middle of the present century till the close of the present year.—Independent Democrat.

YOUNG MAN, STOP.

You, young man, on the way to the ball-alley or the billiard-room, with a cigar in your mouth, and with an appetite for a mint-julep—stop a moment. Are you not in a dangerous way? Will those places, or your habits, lead you to respectability or usefulness in society? Will you, by them, become more moral, more virtuous, or intelligent? If not, stop where you are, we beseech you. You have nobleness of heart perhaps and a generous disposition. You may do good to those about you if you will. Your example, if it be such as will lead you to virtue, will draw others after you; or, if it leads to vice or error, will also, and the more readily, lure others in the way of evil.

Then young man, stop and think upon your course! Where is it leading?—If to bad habits and low associates, stop instantly. Stand firm. Take not another step in the dangerous way but turn back while you have the power, and seek the way of virtue, the ways of intelligence, and you may do good in your day and generation, and may be estimated by those who enjoy your acquaintance.

METRICAL GRAMMAR.

Three little words we often see,
Are articles, a, an, and the.

A Noun is the name of anything,
As school or garden, hoop or swing.

Adjectives tell the kind of Noun,
As great, small, pretty, white, brown.

Instead of Nouns, the Pronouns stand—
John's head, his face, my arm, your hand.

Verbs tell of something being done—
To read, write, count, sing, jump or run.

How things are done the adverbs tell—
As slowly, quickly, ill or well.

Conjunctions join the words together.
As men and children, wind or weather.

The preposition stands before,
A Noun—as in or through a door.

The Interjection shows surprise,
As Oh! how pretty, Ah! how wise.

The whole are called nine parts of Speech,
Which reading, writing, speaking teach.

THE GENTLEMAN AT CHURCH

MAY BE KNOWN BY THE FOLLOWING MARKS:

1. Comes in good season, so as neither to interrupt the pastor nor congregation by a late arrival.

2. Does not stop upon the steps or in the portico, either to gape at the ladies, salute friends or display his colloquial powers.

3. Opens and shuts the door gently, and walks deliberately up the aisle or gallery stairs, and gets to his seat as quietly, and by making as few people remove, as possible.

4. Takes his seat either in the back part of the seat, or steps out into the aisle when any one wishes to pass in, and never thinks of such a thing as making people crowd past him while keeping his place in the seat.

5. Is always attentive to strangers, and gives up his seat to such, seeking another for himself.

6. Never thinks of defiling the house of God with tobacco spittle, or annoying those who sit near him by chewing that nauseous weed in church.

7. Never, unless in case of illness, gets up and goes out in time of service. But if necessity compels him to do so, goes so quietly that his very manner is an apology for the act.

8. Does not engage in conversation before the commencement of service.

9. Does not whisper, or laugh, or eat fruit in the house of God, or lounge.

10. Does not rush out of church like a tramping horse the moment the benediction is pronounced, but retires slowly in a noiseless quiet manner.

11. Does all he can by precept and example to promote decorum in others.

WHAT AN EDITOR DOES NOT LIKE.

1. To pay postage on a letter ordering a discontinuance of a paper when the subscriber perhaps, is in arrears.

2. To pay postage on communications, perhaps not more than ten lines in length,—a notice, it may be, of religious interest only in the writer's own charge.

3. To be in debt, and without the means to pay, because subscribers will not pay.

4. To send the paper six months or a year to one who is dead or moved away; and the Postmaster or some one else taking them out and reading them, and then, after all, receive a letter from the P. M. saying, "stop your paper sent to Mr. ———, he is dead," or "moved away;" but not a word about pay.

5. To have a man take the paper until he is in debt eight or nine dollars, and then slip off to parts unknown, without paying; leaving the Postmaster to give notice of the slide to the editor.

DR. CHALMERS TO THE IMPENITENT.

You may delay the work of repentance, and think the future far off—but it will come; your last call from heaven far off—but it will come; your last unavailing effort to repent, far off—but it will come; the death-struggle, the shroud, the funeral, far off—but it will come; the day of judgment, the day of reckoning, far off—but it will come; the sentence; "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire!" far off—but it will come: eternal banishment from the presence of the Lord, weeping, wailing, and gnashing of teeth, far off—but it will come.

INFIDELITY versus CHRISTANITY.

Could my mind be broken loose from the moorings of Christianity—could I be made to believe that this frail life circumscribes the whole of my existence—could I regard death as an eternal sleep, and think the last vestige of hope must perish in the grave, what darkness of gloom would gather around that dreary abode! Can it be a source of consolation to an infidel, when he thinks on death, to believe he will only mingle clay with the brute, and be lost in annihilation! I envy him not of all his scepticism can afford him.

What unspeakable transport does religion afford, while meditating a final exchange of worlds, and the blissful inheritance of immortality and eternal life!—Visit the chamber of the departing Christian—hear the exulting language that falls from those dying lips—see the calm and placid smile that lights up that pale countenance—witness the unearthly animation that swells that heaving bosom, struggling, under the last dying pangs; then ask yourself, may I not pray "let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his?" Would you rob that departing spirit of its cheering hope, if you could? When you come to die, would you not desire the same consolation to be yours? In that trying hour, would you not wish to say, "yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me?"—Palladium.

METHOD OF STUDY.

I. Separate everything impertinent to the subject.

II. Examine what is pertinent.

III. Look at the arguments against it.

1. Have but one leading idea in a sermon.

2. Let the plan be simple and natural. Hence thoroughly digest before you plan. The planning is more difficult than the filling up.

3. Aim first to enlighten the understanding.

4. Aim secondly to impress the conscience. Hence look at the application, which is the most difficult as well as the most important part of a sermon. "In the plan," says Emmons, "have supreme regard to the application."—Zion's Adv.

BIRTH AND DEATH.

Those born once only, die twice—they die a temporal, and they die an eternal death. But those who are born twice, die only once—for over them the second hath no power.—Jay.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Notice.

Brother Nelson Thomas, I will try and preach at your house on the 20th of February next; and also at brother Meloy's on the 22d of February. Thos. Hickernell.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

A special meeting will commence on the 1st of March, in the School-house at brother Stump's, Stark county, Ohio.

The ministers and brethren generally are invited to attend. Henry Murray.

Providence permitting, there will be a special meeting at the New Bethel near brother Kumbler's, opposite Newport, Perry county, commencing on the 23d inst.

POETRY.

NO, NEVER GIVE UP.

No, never give up! while the land is in view,
Though stormy thy passage through life;
Though meagre thy fortune, though comforts be few,
Endure to the end of thy strife.

No, never give up! for the sake of repose,
Though conflicts be sometimes severe;
No rest to his spirit the warrior knows,
Till victory banishes fear.

No, never give up! though cheerless earth seem,
Though storms of affliction may rise;
For soon the bright day with its glory shall gleam,
Revealing blest scenes to thy eyes.

No, never give up to thy foe on the field,
Though valiant and strong be his arm;
The enemy soon to the Christian must yield,
Protected through grace from all harm.

No, never give up! though the contest be long,
Thy cause is the cause of the free—
Fight manfully, boldly—then sweeter thy song,
Then brighter thy laurels will be.

Thy Captain will aid thee in time of distress,
And angels administer cheer;
If courage should fail thee when trials oppress,
Then help shall be specially near.

Then, never give up! for the land is in view,
Its glories appear to our sight;
The land of sweet promise—Jerusalem new—
Is waiting to be thy delight.

FOR AN ALBUM.

While on thy cheek the hectic rose
Of maiden beauty blooms,
Or in thine eye life flashing glows,
Yet gleans fair flowers for the tomb:

Remember how uncertain all
Our cherished hopes for time;
Death fells them low, however tall,
And slays us in our prime.

Then yield thy prime to God's free grace,
And learn to serve Him young;
He'll grant thee near His throne a place,
To chant the Heavenly song.

There, in the garden of His love,
Fanned by the breeze of life,
Shalt thou forever bloom above,
Freed from earth's wars and strife.

G. U. Harn.

PRAYER.

There is an eye that never sleeps,
Beneath the wing of night;
There is an ear that never shuts,
When sinks the beams of light.

There is an arm that never tires,
When human strength gives way;
There is a love that never fails,
When earthly loves decay.

That eye is fixed on seraph throngs;
That ear is filled with angel's songs;
That arm upholds the world on high;
That love is thrown beyond the sky.

But there's a power that man can wield,
When mortal aid is vain;—
That eye, that arm, that love to reach,
That listening ear to gain.

That power is prayer, which soars on high,
And feeds on bliss beyond the sky!

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 27th ult., by Elder Jacob Keller, Mr. Levi Reider to Miss Elizabeth Boice, both of the neighborhood of Elizabethtown, Lancaster county, Pa.

On the 31st ult., by Elder Abraham Swartz, Mr. John H. Eisenhower to Miss Maria McCreary, both of Portsmouth, Dauphin county, Penn'a.

On the 6th ult., by Elder A. Megrew, Mr. Emanuel Beelman to Miss Susan Brenizer, both of Smithville, Wayne county, Ohio.

On the 22d ult., by Elder G. U. Harn, Mr. Daniel F. Hemperly, of Lebanon, to Miss Margaret E. Umberger, of Harrisburg.

On the 22d ult., by Rev. Wm. R. De Witt, Mr. J. G. Carmony, Mereant, Carlisle, to Miss Anna Mary, only daughter of Mr. Geo. Bitner of Mechanicsburg, Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 20th ult., by the Rev. Charles A. Hay, Mr. Robert Peebles to Miss Rebecca Wilhelm, both of Harrisburg.

On the 29th ult., by the same, Mr. John Myers to Miss Catharine Hock, both of Lancaster county, Pa.

On the 20th ult., by the Rev. Francis Hodgson, Mr. Jacob F. Martin to Miss Margaret Elizabeth Wingert, both of Harrisburg.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!"

DIED—In Newberry, York county, Pa., on the 18th of December, 1849, George Landis Wolf, son of Jacob and Ann Wolf, aged 2 years, 3 months and 6 days.

On the 2d inst., at his residence, near this borough, Mr. George Mish, aged about 50 years.

In this place, on the 10th inst., Mrs. Rosanna Bellman, consort of Mr. Washington Bellman, aged abont 26 years.

Funeral services (at Middletown) by Elder John S. Oliver.

In this place, on the 24th ult., Eliphas Zearing, aged 1 year, 8 months and 27 days; and on the 4th instant, Wesley Zearing, aged 4 years, 7 months and 2 days; sons of John H. and Sarah Zearing, formerly of Cumberland county, Pa.

"Dearest children, you have left us,
We your loss most deeply feel;
But 'tis God has bereft us,
He can all our sorrows heal."

"'I take these little lambs,' said Christ,
'And lay them in my breast,
Protection they shall find in me,
In me be ever blest'"

Missionary Pledges.

We, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1849, the sums annexed to our names for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner, - -	$10 00
William Reichert, - -	5 00
Isaac Miller, - - -	10 00
J. H. Hurley, - - -	5 00
Geo. U. Harn, - -	5 00
M. F. Snavely, - - -	10 00
Jacob Miller, - - -	10 00
James Miller, - - -	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, - - -	5 00
Thomas Strohm, - -	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe, - - -	5 00
Abraham Sherich, - -	7 50
Abraham Swartz, - - -	5 00
A liberal brother, -	20 00
A liberal sister, -	2 00
David Strickler, - -	5 00
James Casy, - - -	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover, - -	5 00

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate.
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,	$4 25	a	4 37½
Do. Rye, do. - -	2 50	a	2 56
Do. Corn, do. - -	2 37½	a	2 50
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,	95	a	98
Do. Rye, do. - -	55	a	56
Do. Corn, do. - -	55	a	56
Do. Oats, do. - -	28	a	28
Do. Barley, do. - -	60	a	65
SEEDS—Clover, do. - -	4 00	a	4 12½
Do. Timothy, do. - -	2 25	a	2 50
Do. Flax, do. - -	1 00	a	1 10
BEEF, per cwt. - - - -	5 00	a	5 50
PORK, do. - - - - -	5 00	a	5 25
HAMS, per pound, - - -	10	a	11
BUTTER, do. - - - - -	16	a	20
LARD, do. - - - - -	7	a	8
TALLOW, do. - - - - -	8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.	6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen, - - - -	12½	a	18¾
POTATOES, per bushel, - -	75	a	87½
ONIONS, do. - - -	75	a	87½
APPLES, do. - - -	1 00	a	1 12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.	1 25	a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound, - -	37½	a	45
WOOL, do. - - -	30	a	50
SALT, per sack, - - - -	1 25	a	1 25
HAY, per ton, - - - - -	11 00	a	12 00
PLASTER, per ton, - - -	4 00	a	4 25

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,	$4 87½	a	5 00
Do. Rye, do. -	2 87	a	2 87
Do. Corn, do. - -	3 00	a	3 06
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,	1 06	a	1 07
Do. Rye, do. - -	62½	a	62½
Do. Corn, old do. - -	61	a	62
Do. Oats, do. - -	31	a	31
Do. Barley, do. - -	75	a	80
SEEDS—Clover, do. - -	4 37	a	4 50
Do. Timothy, do. - -	2 75	a	3 00
Do. Flax, do. - -	1 35	a	1 40
BEEF, per cwt., - - -	7 00	a	8 75
PORK, do. - - - - -	7 00	a	7 25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo descimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

EVANGELICAL MUSIC.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us; and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music."

☞ For sale at this office, and at our Depositories. Editor.

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;

ENTITLED

History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original historics of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

List of our Depositories and Local Agents.

For the convenience of the brethren, and the public generally, we have come to the conclusion to establish Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

WM. A. LEARY & Co., No. 156 North Second street, BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, and DANIEL GETTY, No. 110 South Third street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, New York.

WATSON & WILLIAMS, St. Louis, Mo.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN C. OWENS, Baltimore, Md.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, and such others as are named in the following list of Books, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail prices.
History of Denominations in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries,	2 00
500 Sketches & Skeletons of Sermons,	2 50
Life of Christ and the Apostles, -	2 50
D'Aubigne's Hist. of the Reformation,	1 50
Wandering Soul, - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament,	50
German Reference Testament, -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - -	25
Harn on Feet-Washing, -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, -	15
Traveler's Guide to the West, -	50

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XIV. HARRISBURG, Pa. MARCH 1, 1850. NUMBER 21.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months; 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fourteen.

Names	Am't. paid	Names.	Am't paid.
Adams Wm	$1 00	Hummer Abraham	$1 00
Achey Jno H (vols 14 & 15)	2 00	Kauffman S K	1 00
Bigham Solomon	1 00	Kauffman J H	1 25
Beatty Mary	1 50	Landis Jacob	1 00
Bowman Geo	1 50	Leach Samuel	1 50
Berry Geo	1 00	Miller Geo W	1 00
Brown Miles	1 00	Mygrants J	1 00
Brandt John	1 50	Mooney Wm [vol 15]	1 00
Basinger Lewis	50	Myers Philip	2 00
Bollinger Abraham (vol 15)	1 00	Megrew Matthew	1 50
Bishop Jacob [vol 15]	1 00	Martin Christian	1 00
Brock Wm C	1 50	Musser Benj	1 25
Boyle Geo W	1 00	Mohler Henry [vol 15]	1 00
Critchfield James	1 50	Myers Samuel W	1 50
Ensminger David	1 00	Ovly John	1 00
Flenner Adam	1 00	Ovly Frederick	1 00
Frezer Jane	1 00	Pence Wm	1 00
Fenton A J	1 00	Rupp H G [vol 14 & 15]	2 25
Ferguson James	50	Ramsey E J	1 25
Gensler Adam	1 00	Schoch Joseph [vol 15]	1 00
Getter Geo	1 00	Sheaffer Mary W	2 00
Getter Philip	1 00	Sherich Henry [vol 15]	1 00
Gensler Daniel	1 00	Singiser Andrew	1 00
Guss Samuel	3 00	Strock Jacob	1 00
Herr Benj	2 00	Stouffer Eliza	1 00
Hart Daniel	3 00	Swyers Wm	2 00
Heck Wm [vol 15]	1 00	Swartz Abraham	1 00
Harn John	1 00	Shaw Philip	2 50
Hooper Wm M	2 00	Sulsberger Daniel	62
Hicks Daniel	1 25	Switer Jacob v 13, 14 & 15	3 50
Harden Josiah	1 00	Shellenberger Jacob	1 00
Heiges David	50	Wengert John	1 25
Hower Adam	1 00	Wolf Sarah	1 00
Hickernell John	1 00	Worley Nathan	1 00
Holler Henry	2 25	Walter Peter	50
Houser John [vol 15]	1 00	Weishampel J F	4 50

Chaplain to Congress.

The Rev. Mr. Gurley was elected Chaplain to the House, on the third ballot. His chief competitor was the Rev. Mr. Cushman.

Prize Essays on Systematic Beneficence.

The Committee of the American Tract Society, charged with the award of the preminm of $400 for the best essay on "Systematic Beneficence," have recommended that it be divided equally between Rev. Edward A. Lawrence, of Marblehead, Mass.; Rev. Samuel Harris, of Conway, Mass.; Rev. Senero D. Clark, of Ashfield, Mass.; and Rev. Parsons Cooke, of Lynn, Mass.

Opening the Canals.

We learn that the Canal Commissioners have directed the Superintendents on the main line of the Pennsylvania Canal to let in the water on the 7th of March, the weather permitting. The line is in good repair, and a heavy spring business may be expected.

Our Bills Explained.

As some of our subscribers appear not to understand our bills, we would say, in explanation of the same, that they only owe the amounts put down opposite the several volumes. Those left blank are paid for. When one or more volumes are charged, the amounts are always cast up and carried forward beyond the dollar mark. To the right of the mark, therefore, the respective amounts due, will always be found.

Postmasters and Newspapers.

Some Postmasters have been of opinion, that they were not allowed to send money or new subscribers to Newspaper Publishers and frank the letters containing such money or subscribers. The Postmaster General has, however, lately, on application of the Editor of the New York Mirror, decided, that "he has the power to frank such letters," he acting as the agent of the publisher. "In doing this business, the Postmaster must be regarded as entirely the agent of the Publisher, and not of the (Post Office) Department."

We authorize all Postmasters to act as agents for the Church Advocate, and hope to see a good many of their franks.

Debate on Baptism.

A debate between brothers Jacob Keller and A. Owen, on the subject of Baptism, came off a few days ago, in Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa. The discussion commenced on Tuesday, the 19th, and closed on Saturday, the 23d ult.

The debate excited a great interest, from all accounts, and drew together a large concourse of people, during the whole time of the meeting.

By an arrangement with Bishop J. Erb, we had the debate reported, with a view to give to the readers of the Advocate and Telescope a sketch of the arguments on both sides. Mr. Drake, the gentleman who has taken notes of the discussion, is a first rate Stenographer, and will no doubt give us an accurate and impartial report of the arguments.

The readers of the Advocate may look for the first part of the discussion in our next, and the remainder in such portions as we shall find room for in succeeding numbers, till the whole is published, as far as it is reported.

Our Duplicate Bills.

These bills will now be made out and forwarded to our agents, with the request that they may be speedily collected. We had hoped that the most of our subscribers would have saved us the necessity of this trouble and expense. But as they have not done so, by remitting, as requested, the amount of their dues by the first of March, we shall now call upon them through our agents, hoping they will settle their bills with them instanter.

The amount of our outstanding account for the Advocate is in the neighborhood of $1000. Some of this we ought to have had several years ago; and all of it, before this time, our terms being cash, or a short credit, in certain cases.

By the ruinous credit system, the Gospel Publisher was broken down, and various other papers throughout the country. The Church Advocate was started on the cash system, or the advance pay principle. For accommodation sake, this principle was slightly modified. But this modification of our terms, some of our subscribers have taken the benefit of, to our disadvantage. This benefit they cannot have beyond the end of this volume. Their bills must be paid up, or their papers will be stopped, at the end of this volume. Our circumstances are such that we cannot, in justice to ourselves, extend a longer credit, and thereby hazard the continuance of the Advocate. Hence we call for prompt payment of our dues.

Union of Franklin and Marshall.

The Trustees of Franklin College at Lancaster, and the Trustees of Marshall College at Mercersburg, are now making an effort to unite and consolidate these two institutions. Application has been made to the Legislature for an Act of incorporation, uniting these two institutions under the name of "Franklin and Marshall College," and to be located in or near the city of Lancaster.

In the preamble to the Act of incorporation, as reported and entered on the Senate Files, it is said, "that by the terms of union agreed upon, it is believed that a more extensive benefit will be conferred upon the citizens of this State, in the promotion of liberal and scientific learning."

Now whether this is true or not, will depend, in a great measure, upon the nature and character of the terms of union agreed upon, and the objects had in view. In order, then, to understand and judge of this properly, it is necessary to know something of the history of both institutions.

Marshall College was chartered in the year 1836, is located at Mercersburg, Franklin county, and is a denominational institution, belonging exclusively to the German Reformed Church.

Franklin College was chartered in the year 1767, was intended to be a Union College and Charity School, for the benefit of the citizens of this State of German birth or extraction, and to be located in the city of Lancaster.

For the purpose of establishing and endowing said College and Charity School, the State made a donation of 10,000 acres of land.—These lands have been sold and converted into other funds, amounting, at present, to some $55,000, or upward.

The whole of the funds were to belong to and be controlled by three parties, viz: Lutherans, German Reformed and other Denominations. The Board of Trustees were to consist of 45 persons; 15 of them to be chosen from the Lutheran denomination, 15 from the German Reformed, and 15 from other Denominations.

According to the 13th Art., the one-sixth of the whole of the funds, together with such gifts and bequests as might at any time be made to the Franklin College, for the use of the Charity School, were to be "irrevocably appropriated to the maintenance and support of said School, connected with the institution, for children of both sexes, and of all religious denominations." To facilitate the acquisition of learning to all ranks and parties, by means of a Charity School, is declared by this article, to be one of the primary and fundamental objects of this institution. Such then is the history and such the objects of these institutions.

Now, what are the proposed terms of union and consolidation of these two Colleges?—Why simply this. The German Reformed propose to buy out the Lutherans, by paying them the one-third of the real and personal funds belonging to the Franklin College; and then to merge the whole of Franklin into Marshall College, and so have both in one, under the name and style of "Franklin and Marshall College" for themselves. This is the whole plan and arrangement, when fairly analyzed and understood. The "terms of union," therefore, amount just to this: the Lutherans and German Reformed have agreed to divide the property of the Franklin College among themselves; the former taking one-third of the funds, adding them to their College at Gettysburg, and the latter the remainding two-thirds, adding them to their institution, with a change of its title and location.

This being the true and whole state of the case, how will such an arrangement confer a more extensive benefit upon the citizens of this State? What becomes of the Charity School, for children of both sexes, and all religious denominations, and which is said to have been one of the primary and fundamental objects of the Franklin College? What benefit or advantage will the citizens of this State of German birth or extraction, belonging to other denominations—such as Mennonites, Dunkards, Moravians, United Brethren, Evangelical Association, River Brethren, Omish, Church of God, &c.—derive from such a division of the funds of Franklin College? And by what rule of right and justice, can the German Reformed claim and appropriate to themselves two-thirds of the funds of Franklin College?

If it is just and fair to allow the Lutherans one-third of those funds, for the endowment of a professorship in the Pennsylvania College, why not allow the all denomination party the same? Or why not erect Franklin College into a State institution, open and free for the benefit of all denominations? Its original design was to make it a union College, mainly for the improvement of those who were of German extraction. The funds were all, or principally, derived from the State: why then should they now be appropriated to the exclusive use of two denominations, who already have their Colleges and Theological Seminaries in full operations, and do not need these additional aids to help them along?

But, if these denominations are entitled to their respective shares of these College funds, neither of them can fairly and justly claim the all denomination share. This share, therefore, ought to be appropriated in such a way as to give them a proper and equal benefit. If there is no better way, let the State, who was the donor, take back these funds, and appropriate them to the Normal School, or for the establishment of a Central High School, and then all denominations will have an equal interest.

The German Reformed, we know, it will be said, intend making the institution a liberal one, and hence they have taken men from different denominations into the Board of Trustees. True; but they have taken good care to have the charter so framed that there shall always be two-thirds of the members taken from their own denomination, and every quorum of the Board must consist of two-thirds of their own members to be competent to transact business.

Hence, with a Faculty of their own, and two-thirds of the Board of Trustees, what else will it be but a Denomination or Sectarian College, to all intents and purposes?

The National Monument.

The resolution relative to the block of marble, and inscription, from the State of Pennsylvania, to be placed in the National Monument at Washington city, finally passed both branches of the Legislature in the following form:—

Resolved, That the Governor is hereby authorized and requested to cause an appropriate block of the native marble of this Commonwealth, to be conveyed to the National Capital, to take its place in the monument to the memory of Washington, and to have inscribed thereon the State coat of arms, and these words:

"PENNSYLVANIA,
FOUNDED
1681,
BY DEEDS OF PEACE."

Resolved, That a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, is hereby appropriated for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the foregoing resolution.

God governs the world, and we have only to do our duty wisely, and leave the issue with him.—John Jay.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

Moral Retribution:* As Evinced by the Analogy of Nature.

I. CHARACTER OF THE ARGUMENT.

When it is said that two and two make four, or that a straight line is the nearest distance between two points, because any other supposition would involve an absurdity, the conclusion is absolutely decisive and irresistible. No possible addition of argument or demonstration can render it more apparent, or add anything whatever to the strength of the conviction which it induces. The argument is already a demonstration, and no other conclusion is even conceivable. It is absolutely impossible to conceive—much more to believe—that two and two can make five or any other number than four. Nor is it conceivable that there can be any distance between two points nearer than a straight line.

But in reasoning from analogy the case is essentially different. Here the force of the conclusion rests both upon the number and the relations of the parts of the argument. Take a familiar example. A watch, exhibiting evidences of design, has a designer.—Hence it may be inferred that whatever exhibits evidences of design must have a designer. But the conclusion is by no means irresistible, as in the case of demonstrative reasoning. For notwithstanding anything that has as yet appeared, it may be that everything else may exhibit evidences of design and still have no designer. If however another piece of mechanism be examined, and having evidences of design, is also found to have a designer, the argument is very materially strengthened. It may indeed be said to be twice as strong as before, and yet the second instance in itself and by itself is no more convincing than the first.

And if, in pursuing the investigation, repeated instances are found of things exhibiting marks of design, and all having designers, the argument is evidently strengthened by every successive example ad infinitum. And further, if a designer can be discovered wherever evidences of design have been found, it may then pretty confidently be affirmed that evidences of design universally indicate a designer. Nor will this conclusion be invalidated if in every instance the existence of a designer is not already substantiated, provided there is nothing in the nature of the case that must necessarily preclude the possibility of a designer. But still in any case the conviction is not absolutely irresistible. It is at least conceivable that something may eventually be found with marks of design, where there is not and cannot be a designer. And a single such example of course would necessarily destroy the entire argument. Nor is it possible to accumulate such instances, and thus strengthen the conviction, until an exception is not conceivable; and the conclusion thus be placed beyond the possibility of a doubt as is the case in demonstration.

Thus far this kind of reasoning has been considered only in its cumulative character—as affected by the number of corollaries or minor arguments upon which it depends. But more than this is necessary. The relations of these corollaries must be taken into the account. It would be fallacious reasoning to conclude that it is not true that marks of design indicate a designer, because an instance might be found exhibiting no marks of design, and having no designer. The example would lack an essential relation—that of having evidences of design. And this relation is essential because involved in the proposition itself. The example might possess a great variety of other relations and characteristics, but no one, or all of them together, could by any possibility compensate for the absence of any one involved in the proposition to be proved. Nor would the presence of a multitude of other relations have any tendency whatever to vitiate the conclusion when these are all also present.

But while analogical reasoning can never preclude the possibility of an exception and thus arrive at absolute certainty, it not unfrequently induces a conviction entirely beyond the probability of error, and absolutely superior to all counter-argument. In such cases doubting is far more difficult than implicit credence. Of this character are the arguments from design to designer and from effect to cause. It is barely possible that something may somewhere exist having marks of design but without a designer, or that there may be an effect without a cause; and yet there is not the slightest probability in favor of such a supposition. The most incredulous, or rather credulous, sceptic—for nothing is more credulous than scepticism—could scarcely hang a doubt upon it. It is impossible not to believe that fire will burn, and yet this conviction rests entirely upon analogical evidence. There is nothing in the fire itself which demonstrates that it must burn, or that would lead to the conviction that it will burn, until it is ascertained by experiment. So far as can be determined by any other evidence, water would be as likely to burn as fire. But inasmuch as fire always has produced the effect which is denominated burning, it is hence analogically concluded that fire invariably will burn.—Hence while this species of argument may settle a point beyond the power of cavil, and so as to demand a far greater credulity to disbelieve than to believe, still it cannot by any proper technology ever be termed a demonstration.

Dr. Cheever therefore, in illustrating the demand of retribution by an analogical argument, is guilty of a logical misnomer in terming it the "Demonstration of a Future Retribution." Actual demonstration is necessarily excluded by the nature of the argument which he employs. The reasoning may be, and is, convincing, and even beyond the reach of scepticism; but still it is not and cannot be a demonstration. The practical importance of the point is, that infidelity being able to prove that the argument is not a demonstration, will artfully interweave the subtle sophistry that the Dr., failing to demonstrate his proposition, has also failed to establish it. The argument itself there is no danger that scepticism will or can invalidate.

It may not be improper to add that the significance and force of analogical reasoning depend upon the universal conviction of the uniformity of nature. Whether this conviction be an innate perception, or whether it is derived from the observation of the actual uniformity in nature, is one of those tangled webs that metaphysicians are unable to unravel, and is of comparatively little importance. It is conceded upon all hands that such a conviction exists in every breast, and that all are swayed in their conclusions by its influence. Thus it is believed that fire will burn because it has burned, and that bodies will gravitate toward a common centre because they have done so heretofore. Aside from this conviction many of the simplest problems in nature could never be solved.—Even Astronomy, the most exact of all the natural sciences, is necessarily based upon it. Without assuming it there could be no such thing as predicting an eclipse, or of estimating the annual motions or density of the heavenly bodies.

Having thus premised the character of the argument to be employed, and hence the nature and significance of the evidence to be expected, we are prepared to inquire if nature evinces proof of the doctrine of Retribution.

A. D. W.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

*"The Demand and Demonstration of a Future Retribution in Natural Theology." Rev. G. B. Cheever, D. D., in the Biblical Repository for Jan. 1850.

Epistolary Courtesy.

BY G. U. HARN.

I have often thought that a short essay written on the caption of this article, might be of signal benefit to some of our ready scribes of the Advocate—old and young. In the first place, courtesy or courtly manners or good-breeding, is sanctioned and enjoined in the most positive language of the Bible. The polite, genteel and courtly conduct of the Roman centurion, Julius, toward Paul, into whose hands he was delivered a prisoner at Cesarea to be conveyed to Rome, was so highly esteemed by the author of Acts of Apostles that he saw fit to perpetuate the memory thereof by giving it a place in his imperishable history. "And Julius courteously entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends to refresh himself." In like manner the good-breeding of Publius, the chief man of a barbarous or heathen people on the island of Melita, has received a just encomium. "Who," says Luke, "received us, and lodged us three days courteously." It was not the mere act of lodging them, but the kind, friendly and courteous manner of doing it, that led the writer to record the fact. The same amiable deportment was displayed by Paul himself while delivering his defence before King Agrippa.

It is not only sanctioned by general notice of particular cases, but positively enjoined by Divine law. "Love as brethren; be pitiful, be courteous." True courtesy is the emanation of a kind and well-trained heart. Angels, I presume, are the most courteous of all God's intelligent universe. They are very guarded never to wound the feelings of their fellows. I have thought one day spent in their society would furnish matter sufficient to remodel the manners of the world.

We naturally love the man or woman truly courteous in their manners, although we feel ourselves their inferiors. The man of good-breeding truly so, will always gain the approbation of the first impulse of our nature.

Some men, however, are naturally uncouth, rough and unpolished in their manners, and not unfrequently attempt to justify a lack of good-breeding on the grounds of their natural bias. Well, much allowance should be made for such persons, especially when young in religion; but nature must be reformed by grace. The gospel is to reform men and bring them back to the standard of good-breeding sin has caused them to wander from. The softness of Messiah's manners is that standard. His address, manners and language could never be offensive to the lover of respectful-ness, although the holiness of His precepts were offensive to the corrupt heart.

Now permit me to apply this. I have noticed frequently, for years past, that brethren, in their controversies through the columns of the Advocate, appeared to be very reckless of each other's feelings. Some whose disposition it is always to look on the deformed side of a picture, cannot help bringing their evil forebodings before every body else, while the severity of attacks on them has been productive of very little good.

I love to read public discussions, even between brethren, and am very far from joining in with that sickly band who can never listen to anything bordering on a calling in question the views of others. I have no notion that it is Christianity to give every man right in all he says or does in religion. No. I have as much right to call in question the erroneous views and practices of a professed Christian as an avowed Infidel. Indeed, I hold that our brethren would become more and better acquainted with the doctrine of the Bible, were there more interchange of views through the paper, on many leading subjects. But this should be done in a far more apparently respectful manner than in many instances now, in my mind's eye.

It is uncourteous to lay hold of the motives of any man in matters of religion, and more especially so through that mighty engine for good or ill, the public press, unless we have the most demonstrable proof of being correct. "Love thinketh no evil." Of course it will preach none by tongue, pen, or type. Said a heathen philosopher: "When an action may be assigned to one of two motives,—one good, the other evil,—humanity requires that it be assigned to the good rather than to the bad one." Christianity does not require less than this.

Again, the style of language used is sometimes extremely objectionable. The very pertinent remarks of father Howard in the last paper, would suit to call to mind just here. Brethren themselves, who are well acquainted with each other, and all the circumstances, may not mind being "rasped;" but there are many good old pious disciples who do not pay so much attention to the liberties allowed in discussion, at times, as they do in learning the meekness of the Saviour, and who become much wounded with such a course.

An Editorial meeting was lately held in this place, to devise some plan for the exhibition of a greater degree of courtesy between secular Editors, and shall Christians and Christian ministers be in the van of so laudable an enterprise?

For Parents to Read.

"JUST AS THE TWIG IS BENT, THE TREE'S INCLINED."

INSPIRATION has said in the sacred volume, "Train up a child in the way he should go"—and we would expect that Christians, at least, would obey this advice. But we are sorry to say that we are lamentably mistaken—that such is not the fact. We are sorry, not because we have felt the effect of the disobeying of the above injunction, but because we have seen it. The writer has reason to bless instead of curse the parental hands that pointed to him the path that led to wisdom. His tongue and pen would both fail were they to attempt to give a truthful eulogy upon the character of those whose names are recorded at the head of his family.

Parents are to blame for various causes—especially Christian professors—regarding the education of their children. I was once placed for an hour in company with a lad of about twelve years, who startled me, during a conversation, with some very improper allusions. I stopped him and inquired if his father was a professor of religion. "Yes," was the reply. "Does he hold family prayer, and does he ever speak to you about religion?" "No—we never pray but on Sunday, and father never talks to me about religion. I didn't know that I was doing wrong, when I talked as I did just now!" What a reply! The son of a professor of religion, in the Church of God, intelligent on all things but religion, because his parents did not talk to him about it! I have heard the children of some professors even blaspheme the name of the Most High God! Oh! what an awful fact! A minister who once resided in ———, had a son who was engaged in a store. This son confessed to me that during that time he had been leading a dreadful life. He never retired to bed at night earlier than ten, twelve, or two o'clock. He did not lodge at home, but at his employer's home, and spent the leisure hours of night running about the streets, engaged in every youthful wickedness—and even acquiring a habit of using intoxicating liquor! His parent, a minister of the Gospel, of excellent abilities, never had spoken to him about the right path, but suffered him to go on without a parent's care and correction. This son is now at home, under more restriction, and is sensible of his folly and resolved to do better; but the effects of his former bad course will never leave him.

The children of professors of the religion of Jesus Christ are generally as bad as the generations of the ungodly! And where I see such a result of family non-education, I consider that there is at least "one thing needful" to make their profession of righteousness genuine.—Parents look at this matter, now, lest you may be charged in the day of God's judgment with the damnation of your children! Could you endure that accusation?

Every parent should know how to teach their children how to live. In the first place, they should be told of God—then to respect their mothers. Some children fear the father before his face, curse him secretly behind his back, and trifle and contradict the poor mother without the least shadow of respect or affection. How painful, such a case as this!

When they fear, they respect their mothers. The respect will soften to love, and the child will be on the right road to its complete duty. It will have made the first step to good education. When the child has practised the knowledge it has of its duty to God and its parents, then a taste for reading should be inculcated—not the light trash which is now deluging the world, falsely denominated "Literature," (or rightly called "false Literature,") but train them to search into sound reading for pleasure—History, Biography, Narrative, and best of all, the Holy Bible. Instead of permitting them to run at large at night and on the Sabbath, cause them to read,—force them with kind arguments at first, and afterward they will do it themselves, as a recreation instead of a task. Do not consider the money expended for books lost,—it is a great gain to a family.

When the principal points are gained, common sense will point to the minor branches of a child's education.

TIMOTHY, JR.

Account of a Meeting in Wooster.

BY J. P. WINEBRENNER.

WOOSTER, Ohio, Jan. 31, 1850.

MUCH ESTEEMED UNCLE:—

BY request I will give an account of a protracted meeting held in Wooster, commencing January 11th, 1850, and closed on the 30th inst. The ministers in attendance at the commencement of the meeting, were brothers A. Megrew and J. S. McKee. Brother Megrew preached the opening discourse in the evening, from Eph. 6: 13. We had a pleasant time together. Sabbath, at 11 o'clock, A. M., brother J. S. McKee preached, from Matt. 19: 27. His preaching was plain and pointed. Brother Megrew followed in exhortation. In the evening brother Megrew held forth, from 1 John 3: 1, to a crowded house, and brother McKee followed in exhortation. There appeared to be considerable solemnity prevailing, but nothing special effected. On Monday evening we met again, at which time brother McKee addressed the audience, from Prov. 4: 32, and with considerable assurance.—Brother Megrew followed in exhortation, and faithfully warned them to flee the wrath to come: at which time two penitents presented themselves as subjects for prayer; and, thank God, they found the pearl of great price before they left the house. On Tuesday evening we met again: at which time brother Thos. H. Deshiri came to hand, and addressed the congregation, from Luke 18: 18-24; but in consequence of being very hoarse, he could not blow the trumpet with the same ease that he generally does. Brother Megrew followed in exhortation. We had a very solemn time, but nothing special. On Wednesday evening brother Deshiri held forth, from Isa. 32: 9-15, and faithfully warned them of the danger to which they were exposed. Brother McKee exhorted, and God's power was displayed in such a manner as to cause one who was present to tremble as a Belshazzar, and exclaim, what must I do to be saved? But he did not find peace that evening. Thursday evening brother McKee addressed us, from Acts 11: 17, and brother Megrew followed in exhortation; after which two presented themselves for prayer, but did not find peace to their poor souls. Friday evening brother Deshiri addressed the audience, from 1 Cor. 10: 33, and endeavored to wield the old Jerusalem blade at a venture, and it cut its way; after which brother McKee exhorted, when seven presented themselves for prayer, and two found peace to their troubled souls. Saturday evening brother Megrew preached, from Isa. 55: 6, 7 His preaching was plain and pointed. Brother McKee followed in exhortation; after which six came forward for prayer, and five were made the happy recipients of saving grace.

On Sabbath morning we met at 9½ o'clock, A. M., to hear the saints of God relate the good dealings of the Lord. We had a good feasting time to our souls. At 11 o'clock brother McKee addressed a large audience, from Rev. 7: 37. His preaching was very pointed, and I have reason to believe that many felt the force of truth. After which brother Megrew exhorted very pointedly, and spoke in reference to baptism. An opportunity was then offered to candidates for baptism, when ten presented themselves as subjects for this holy ordinance. We then repaired to the little Jordan near town, and in the presence of a large assembly, these believers were buried with Christ in baptism, by brother A. Megrew, and they all came up out of the water praising God, as did the Ethiopian Eunuch. How good it is to be obedient to God in all things. Oh! for grace to do it! In the evening brother Deshiri held forth to a crowded house, from Isa. 63: 1-6. He drew the bow at a venture, and God directed the arrow, and it cut its way. Brother D. Gill followed with a warm exhortation, and entreated them to flee the wrath to come, when eight came forward for prayer, and seven found Him whom their souls so much desired to love. Monday, 10 o'clock, A. M., we met again, when Brother Megrew exhorted the young converts, for a short time, how to live in order to be useful in the vineyard of the Lord; after which we related our Christian experience to each other, and truly we had a glorious time. The saints of God shouted for joy. Never will I forget the occasion. It appeared to me as though we had a heaven on earth. It lasted four hours, and we could hardly get them to leave the house then. In the evening brother Deshiri preached again, from John 7: 37. He had good liberty, and his soul appeared to be filled with the Holy Ghost; after which brother McKee exhorted and pressed the truth home to their consciences, when seven presented themselves for prayer, and three of that number were made happy in the Saviour's love. Tuesday evening brother McKee preached, from 2 Peter 2: 9. He preached plain and pointed, and the word had its desired effect upon the hearts of some. Brother Megrew exhorted and endeavored to impress upon them their best and eternal interests, when four came forward and found the Lord precious to their souls. Wednesday evening brother Deshiri preached, from Eze. 37: 1-10. The people appeared to give heed to the word which he spake. Brother McKee followed in exhortation; after which six came forward to seek the Lord, and three found him to the joy and comfort of their souls. Thursday evening brother Peter Hartman addressed the audience, from Heb. 2: 1-3, and warned them to escape for their life.—Brother Megrew exhorted, when seven presented themselves for prayer, and five professed peace in believing. Friday evening brother Deshiri held forth, from John 7: 38, 39. He endeavored to point them to the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world; after which brother Megrew followed with a warm exhortation and affectionately entreated them to seek their soul's salvation, when three came forward and one found peace. Saturday evening brother Megrew preached, from Luke 15: 11-22. He exhorted them to return to God with full purpose of heart, as did the prodigal son, when four came forward to seek their souls' salvation, and three found peace to their souls.

Sabbath morning, at 10 o'clock, A. M., we met for prayer, and at 11 preaching by brother Megrew, from Zach. 8: 23. He held forth to a large congregation. His preaching was very plain and pointed, and the people paid strict attention to the word; after which he gave an opportunity for those who wished to be baptized, when 16 presented themselves as subjects for baptism. We then repaired to the water, and in the presence of a vast multitude, they followed their Living Head in this holy ordinance—administered by brother A. Megrew. We truly had a shout in the camp. In the evening brother Hartman preached, from Rev. 6: 17; after which brother McKee exhorted and gave an invitation for mourners, but did not press the matter, on account of the house being too much crowded. Monday, at half-past 9 o'clock, we met for prayer and experience meeting. The Lord was truly with us, to bless his poor saints. Monday evening brother McKee preached, from Psalms 50: 1-4. The people paid considerable attention; after which brother Megrew exhorted, and gave a pressing invitation for persons to seek God, when five came forward, and one professed peace. Tuesday evening brother Megrew preached, from Ezc. 18: 31, and pressed the truth home to their consciences; after which two came forward for prayer, and one professed peace in believing. Wednesday evening we met again. It being the last evening of the meeting, brother Megrew read the 3rd chapter of 1st Corinthians, and pointed out the characters that should be recognized with the Church of God, and the foundation they should build upon, &c.; after which he gave an invitation for membership, when 31 presented themselves and were received. We then attended to the ordinances of Feet-washing and the Lord's Supper. We had a solemn and interesting time.

The aggregate amount of those who professed peace in believing, were 37,—26 baptized, and 31 united with the Church. Some few of this number, were those who once enjoyed the love of God in their souls, but had wandered away from God; but, thank God, they have been reclaimed. Some of the converts that were baptized, were not present the last evening; and some who are not yet baptized, calculate to attend to it shortly, and unite with the Church also. I think I never saw converts more obedient than these were. But I think, also, I can account for this. Our preachers here teach them fully the gospel order. 1st. To be converted. 2d. To be baptized: and 3d. To be added to the Church, and enjoy the immunities of the same. The same order that was observed on the day of Pentecost.

Thus you see the Lord has done great things for us, whereof we have reason to be glad. This meeting has created a great uproar in the town of Wooster. Sinners have persecuted; formalists, hypocrites and hollow-hearted professors, have cried confusion! Yet, notwithstanding all this, the cause is God's and must prevail in spite of all opposition. Oh! my brethren and sisters, let us endeavor to live humble, and let our light shine in this dark and benighted land, that others may take knowledge by our Godly walk and deportment, that we have been with Jesus and have learnt of him.

Further Accounts from Wooster.

Wooster, Ohio, Feb. 11, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I wish to inform you and the readers of the Advocate of some of the good dealings of the Lord to his Church and the people of Wooster, during our late protracted meeting, which lasted 18 days. The Lord visited us in mercy, and we have had a gracious shower of his Divine grace. During the meeting some 30 or 35 professed to find peace by believing,—26 were baptized and 31 added to the Church.

Last Sabbath we had meeting again. Brother T. H. Deshiri preached for us in the morning, from the 2d verse of the epistle of Jude: after which we gave an invitation to candidates for baptism; whereupon five presented themselves. We then repaired to the water and baptized them, according to the ancient manner, by immersing them in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Spirit. We met in evening again in the little Bethel, when the writer endeavored, in much weakness, to address the people from the following words: "Who is on the Lord's side?" Exo. 32: 26. The sermon was followed with a warm exhortation by brother T. H. Deshiri: after which an invitation was given to such as were converted and baptized, to unite themselves to the Church; whereupon 11 presented themselves and were received into fellowship. Thus you perceive, that the result of our meeting, as the fruits of labor, has been, that 42 have come over on the Lord's side, and have been added to the Church. Truly, "the Lord has done great things for us, whereof we are glad." To Him be all the glory.

Yours truly, A. MEGREW.

Account of Another Meeting in Wooster.

Wooster, Ohio, Feb. 20, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

We had the pleasure of having quite a number of the preachers and brethren with us in Wooster over last Sabbath. We had meeting on Saturday evening,—preaching by Elder Bear. Sabbath morning by Bishop Holms; after which we resorted to the water and baptized two believers. Preaching in the evening by Bishop Murray.—Two more received into Church-fellowship. On Monday the Standing Committee met in the Bethel, and transacted some necessary business. In the evening we met again for divine service, when a discourse was delivered by Elder A. Holms on the ordinance of Feet-washing; after which about one hundred brethren and sisters attended to the same, and to the breaking of bread. We had truly a very solemn and interesting time. The Saviour's words were abundantly verified, "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."

Thus far, love and union characterizes the Church of God in Wooster. It is indeed a little heaven below; and my prayer is, that it may continue to be so, and abound more and more. My love to all the brethren.

A. MEGREW.

Doings of the Standing Committee.

The Standing Committee of the Eldership of the Church of God in Ohio met, according to previous appointment, in Wooster, Wayne county, Ohio, on the 18th of February, 1850, and transacted the following items of business:

1st. Having received a communication from Elder Myers, of Ashland, requesting a license, it was, on motion,

Resolved, That a license be granted him.

2d. Elder James Dennis, formerly of the Disciples, made application for license; whereupon a license was granted him.

3d. Brother Moses Coates, of the M. E. Church, made application for license; and, after due consideration, a license was granted him.

4th. Appointed the following Camp-meetings:

1, One in the bounds of the Chester Church, Chester township, Wayne county, commencing on the 15th of August.

2. One in Summit county, near East Liberty, commencing on the 22d of August.

3. One on the old camp-ground, one and a half miles West of Reedsburg, Wayne county, commencing on the 29th of August.

5th. Released brother W. Adams from the Sugar Creek Circuit the ensuing year.

6th. Released brother T. H. Deshiri from the Wooster Circuit the ensuing year.

7th. On motion,

Resolved, That brother A. Holms be released from the Wooster Circuit the ensuing year, and continued on the Sugar Creek Circuit.

8th. Appointed brothers Wm. Adams and John McKee to fill the vacancies of brothers Deshiri and Holms on the Wooster Circuit.

9th. Gave the appointments at Urick's, Sharon and Liberty to brothers Williams and Neil; and the Church at Brownsville, at Jericho, and near Columbus, to brother Bear.

A Lean Solution.

Lancaster, Feb. 14, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I perceive that the Advocate of the first of February contains a solution of my Baptism Query, given by Elder J. F. Weishampel, in which there appears to be a flat contradiction. We cannot say, with regard to brother W., as the Latins used to say, "Bonus Textuarius est bonus Theologus," from the fact that no better text could be selected than the commission of the Apostles, and a more corrupt theology could not be produced than that set forth in his solution. The commission, says brother W., is the rule to be applied in all cases. So say I; and the Scriptures justify us in saying so. This is the starting point. It is the statute law of Zion—a law inviolate. A law that has never been repealed. What right, then, has brother W., or any body else, to step aside from this rule, and run such a zigzag line as he has done, changing times and laws, calling that a valid baptism and a Gospel Church which is neither sanctioned by the law of God nor authorized by ecclesiastic power? But brother W. seems to adhere to the saying, or the opinion so prevalent, viz: that circumstances alter cases. But the Lord has but one way of saving men. His ways are unalterable. Our salvation is suspended on certain conditions, viz: A genuine repentance, a living faith, and a valid baptism, without which no man has the promise of eternal salvation. The Lord, then, has struck the line. If there be a deficiency, it is with the Lord. Hence says Solomon, "Who can make straight what the Lord hath made crooked?" It will baffle the skill of brother W., as well as many others that have tried it before.

I concur with your opinion of the essentials to baptism, given in your editorial in the same number. It is the only legitimate conclusion we can arrive at, after an appeal to the law and testimony.

Yours as ever,

J. H. HURLEY.

Congregational Donation Visits---Again.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I see some remarks in the last Advocate, by brother Byerle of Linglestown, on my communication on Congregational Donation Visits. I am glad he has said aught against it, as it gives me an occasion to say still more in favor of the practice. Your readers will please peruse my letter, and see that durable and useful articles are recommended to be given the preacher, instead of useless, flimsy and vanity feeding articles, or eatables that will spoil if not immediately used. I think his fears of evil are premature—and that the preachers will deprecate such visits is very doubtful. I see in the last Morning Star, a Free-will Baptist paper of New Hampshire, cards from three preachers and their wives, acknowledging the kindness of their congregations and personal friends for the donations received on such visits, in each of which cases a large portion of the amount received was cash. Let me, then, add, that I think it would be a very suitable act if our churches would get up donation visits for the preachers now, just before they leave their old stations and circuits—if convenient—and give every person an opportunity to contribute as they may deem proper, in testimony of their friendship to the minister of God for his labors of love during the year now closing.

J. F. WEISHAMPEL.

P. S.—The amounts received on the above occasions were from 25 to 135 dollars.

J. F. W.

Revival Intelligence.

Clark County, Ohio, Jan, 23, 1850.

The protracted meeting in the vicinity of Addison, or near brother James Wiley's, Clark county, Ohio, commenced on the 19th inst., and I expect to close it this evening. Darkness appeared to prevail the first two days, but on Monday evening the cloud broke and we had a gracious rain. Thirteen mourners came forward to be prayed for on Monday evening,—six on Tuesday morning at eleven o'clock meeting, and seven last night: and up to this date, some eight or nine professed conversion. I preached again at night, when three or four more came forward to be prayed for, but none of them obtained a satisfactory evidence of their acceptance with God, and then I closed the meeting in that place.

Yours, &c.,

THOS. HICKERNELL.

Letter from Bro. Thos. Hickernell.

Vanwert County, Ohio, Feb. 4, 1850.

After I closed my labors in the vicinity of Addison, commonly called Christianshurg, on the 23d of January, I left for Samuel Anderson's, on the 24th, and preached there at candle-light. The 25th I preached near father Kinsinger's. On the 26th and 27th at Sidney, in the Christian meeting-house. On the 28th near brother Manning's, Shelby county. On the 29th on the deep cut of the Canal, Ogleize county, within 10 miles of my home. Here I was informed, by brother J. Sands, concerning the death of my daughter, Selah Jane, just rising two years old. I left home on the 4th of January, to go South, and she died on the 6th, and was dead the space of 23 days without my knowledge.

When I was taken to a side and informed concerning her death, it did not affect my mind much at first, as it was nothing more than what I anticipated long ago, that I should lose her, on account of internal derangements with which she appeared to be troubled. But when I heard of some circumstances connected with her sickness and death, and the awful distress of my family, my mind met with the keenest trial that I ever met with since I entered into the work of the ministry. The great trouble I realized from this circumstance, has measurably deranged my health, and almost unfitted me for my pastoral duties. I staid with my family three days and left for Indiana, and do not expect to see them again for eight weeks. This is rather a great trial to my mind. When I left my companion, I left her weeping. See said she could hardly bear the thought of me leaving so soon; but this appears to be the minister's lot:—at least, it is my lot. But I trust that the irreparable loss that we have sustained, has resulted in the infinite gain of the little prattler, that is now swelling its warbling notes with the redeemed on high, and singing, like the children in the temple, "Hosanna to the King of David!" according as it is written, "Out of the mouths of sucklings thou hast ordained strength."

THOS. HICKERNELL.

Letter from Brother D. Neidigh.

REEDSBURG, Wayne Co., Ohio, Feb. 6, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER :—

I AGAIN resume my pen in order to drop a few lines for the columns of the Church Advocate, and for the encouragement of its readers and the people of God in general.

According to previous appointment, brothers J. Bear and D. Williams met in the village of Brownsville, Knox county, Ohio, to commence a protracted meeting, on the 15th of December last, and continued said meeting 16 days. During this meeting there were upwards of a score hopefully converted to God. Towards the close of the meeting, brother Williams was under the necessity of leaving, and requested the writer to assist brother Bear in the meeting. On Monday, the last day of the year, two believers were buried in baptism, according to the ancient or Apostolic manner, and for the first time in the abovementioned place. We also organized a Church of God in this place upon Bible principles: whereupon 13 mutually agreed to worship God together, and to take the New Testament for their only rule of faith and practice. On the evening of the said day we administered the ordinances of Feet-washing and the Lord's Supper to this infant Church, and truly we had a solemn and a soul-cheering time. But it was a new thing to some professors of religion, to see Christians so humble as to stoop down and wash one another's feet. Thus we closed the abovementioned meeting.

I left three appointments for that place, namely: on the 26th and 27th of January, if no preventing Providence. Through the goodness of God I was permitted to meet my appointment, and found the Church of God in good spirits. But to my surprise, when I came to the place I was told that the Methodist friends had commenced a protracted meeting, and there was only one house between the two meetings. I was further told that one of the Methodist preachers said that he would keep up the meeting 365 days. But this boasted of long meeting closed on Sabbath, the 27th. Envy will kill itself, if left alone. On Saturday evening we had the privilege of talking to a large congregation of people, and, we think, to some good effect. On Sabbath morning the brethren and sisters met for prayer and experience meeting, and truly the Lord was with his people. At the usual hour we tried to speak to a large concourse of people upon the doctrine of the Resurrection, which is the Christian's hope. We truly had a happy time. After services I gave an opportunity to any that might wish to be baptized; whereupon three presented themselves as candidates. We then repaired to a stream called Galloway, which runs near by the village, and there, in the presence of a large congregation, we buried them with their Living Head beneath the rolling waves. Thank the good Lord, he owned his ordinance by blessing his faithful chidren.

On Lord's-day evening we tried to warn the wicked of his way, and then gave an invitation to anxious souls to come to the altar of prayer; whereupon ten presented themselves at the altar, and six were made happy in the Saviour's love.

Monday we met for prayer. The Lord truly was with his people. We gave another opportunity for baptism, when four more came out and demanded baptism, according to the ancient or Apostolic order. Accordingly we took these happy believers, in the presence of a large congregation, down into (not at or close by) the water, and baptized them in the name of the Trinity. These happy souls, when rising from their watery graves, were enabled to go on their way rejoicing. In the evening we met again and tried to talk to the people. Again we invited broken-hearted souls to come to the feet of Jesus and seek salvation; whereupon seven came out for prayer, and four found him of whom Moses in the law and the Prophets did write.

Tuesday morning met for prayer. We truly could say, the Lord was with us. We again gave an invitation to the converts who wished to be baptized, when two demanded their right to the ordinance. We again repaired to the water, and in the presence of a large congregation, buried those happy converts; who, when rising from the water, could say, glory to God! for what he has done for us. Truly this was a convincing time to those who beheld the scene. We met in the evening. I tried, in my weak manner, to talk to the people.—Again invited mourners, when five came to the altar of prayer, and three found the Lord to the joy and comfort of their souls.

Wednesday we had no meeting till in the evening. Again I exhorted the people to give their hearts to God; whereupon five came to the altar of prayer, and one found the pearl of great price.

Thursday met for prayer and experience. Met again in the evening, and tried to teach the people to seek God from a principle of love; whereupon two came out to seek the Lord, and, thank God, they both found him a present Saviour in the time of need.

Friday no meeting. Met in the evening, and after services we gave an invitation to anxious souls, when one came out to seek the Lord in prayer, and, thank God, found that He has power on earth to forgive sins.

Saturday no meeting. Met in the evening for services, when we were informed, by a supposed friend, that one of his brethren, namely: a Wesleyan preacher, wished to assist in the meeting. It was responded to him, if he would leave some of his human theory lay, which he so much harps upon, he might. The response was, that he could preach as good a revival discourse as any man. License was granted him. He lined his hymn, sung and prayed, and then gave out his text—John 13: 17. Thinks I, no revival discourse this night. The first in the text was, as he thought, objections to Feet-washing. Here he tried to show,—

1st. That it was not instituted as an ordinance in the Church of God.

2dly. That it was not carried out by the Apostles.

3dly. That it is recorded by only one of the Evangelists.

4thly. That it was only a Jewish custom to wash one another's feet.

But then all he said was mere assertion, without the least shadow of proof. When he was through with what he undertook, I followed and proved from the Bible, to him and a large congregation of people, that he did not understand the Bible, or else he had handled the same deceitfully. You may guess how the professed friend felt under the power of truth. It is a hard way for men to be found fighting against God. Lord have mercy on them.

We met again on Lord's-day morning. We tried to talk to the Church from Luke 12: 32; and, thank God, the Lord was with us, in uniting us together in brotherly love. May they live humble before God, and endeavor to keep the unity of the spirit, is my prayer.

The Church at this time numbers 21. May the Lord add daily to them. I feel truly thankful to the brethren and friends of Brownsville and its surrounding neighborhood, for their love and acts of hospitality shown towards me while I was with them. May the good Lord bless them, is my prayer. Amen.

Yours truly,

D. NEIDIGH, JR.

Letter from Brother C. Price.

UNIONTOWN, Md., Feb. 21, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER :—

WE are pleased to hear that the Lord has been and still is reviving his work in different places; and we rejoice to say, that for a few months past, we have experienced a visitation of his mercy.

Brother Benjamin Howard has been laboring among us this winter, and for upwards of two months he has preached from sixty to seventy sermons. His congregations have been very large and attentive, and people come to hear him from every direction. The doctrine that he has preached, as far as faith and practice are concerned, has been in strict accordance with that preached and practised by us as a body. And so far from manifesting any sinister motives, (as some have insinuated,) he has endeavored to exert himself to his utmost, to establish and build up the Church of God in Maryland. Although but about 12 have been converted and baptized, yet he has so defined the doctrine of the New Testament among not only the religious but irreligious, that it will not, I think, be easily erased from their minds.

At present he is preaching in Westminster. His congregations are large, but the Sanhedrim is up in arms against him. The other night, after the benediction was pronounced, an Episcopalian clergyman arose and very politely objected to some things which brother Howard had advanced; among which was, that the New Testament was the only creed for two hundred years and upward. But when brother Howard replied to this and several other things, the congregation withdrew, being somewhat astonished at the doctrine of the Lord. Last night brother Howard's sermon consisted in reading and answering a long and very ably written letter, which had been handed to him, signed "FILO." So then it goes in Westminster; and what will be the end thereof, is not as yet known.

Yours, &c., C. PRICE.

Letter from Brother Jacob Bolinger.

ROCKLAND, Feb. 7, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER :—

IN looking over my paper, the Advocate, I see letters of intelligence, and oftimes gladtidings of good news, from the different churches, but seldom if ever from Rockland. I, the weakest of God's people, have taken my pen in hand to write a few lines respecting the state of religion in this place.

Now, I believe if we cannot tell how well we are prospering in the good way, it will not be amiss to state how ill we are fareing. It grieves my soul to say, that religion is at a very low ebb in Rockland at the present time: and because iniquity doth abound, the love of many waxeth cold. Some have turned again, like the dog to his vomit, and like the sow that was washed, to her wallowing in the mire.—When I look around me on the desolations of Zion, I feel to exclaim with the weeping Prophet, "O! that my head were waters, and my eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people."

I believe there is a lack of zeal on the part of professed Christians. The Church has become too much conformed to this world.—Now, God's people are to be a peculiar people, apart from the world, a light to the world, and as a city that is set upon a hill that cannot be hidden. Yes, we thank God, there are still a few in Rockland who are "contending for the faith once delivered to the saints."

Brother Hovis is laboring with us. He preaches once in two weeks for us. May the Lord make him instrumental in the salvation of many souls.

Brethren and sisters in the Lord, ye who love God and desire to see his work revived, pray for us, that the Lord may revive his work again in Rockland. May the Lord impart to us and all grace to keep ourselves unpotted from the word, This is the prayer of yours in Christian union.

JACOB BOLINGER.

Letter from Brother Wm. W. Whisler.

SHELBY, Richland County, Ohio, Feb. 11, 1850.

DEAR BROTHER WINEBRENNER :—

I TAKE up my pen to drop a few lines for publication in the Advocate.

I saw in my last number a letter from brother Henry Sherich, of Washington county, Pa.—He would like to know where his brother Samuel's family reside. If brother Henry would like to write to Samuel's widow, let him address his letter to Shelby Post Office, Richland county, Ohio.

I also saw a letter in the last number from brother Nathan Worley, of Fulton county, Illinois. I have a brother living in the same county. He lives in Canton. Brother Worley will please to call and see him. His name is Jacob Whisler.

I have seen some of the Whislers' names in the Advocate. They will please to write to me, and I will do the same to them. Will they please and not forget to write soon.

My Post Office is Shelby, Richland county, Ohio. No more at present.

I remain yours in love,

WM. W. WHISLER.

Letter from Brother Henry Murray.

STARK COUNTY, Ohio, Feb. 7, 1850.

BROTHER JOHN WINEBRENNER :—

HAVING a few leisure moments, I resume my pen in order to drop a few lines for the Advocate.

First, I would state that I commenced a special meeting in Berlin on the 10th of January, and was assisted by brothers J. Beidler and J. M. West. We continued the meeting 11 days, the result of which was as follows: five professed to find peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, and the Church was revived and greatly encouraged in the Divine life.—

On the last evening of the meeting we attended to the ordinanees of God's house, namely: the washing of the saints' feet and the breaking of bread. Truly we had a good time, whilst waiting together before God in the use of the means of graee. It may be that the brethren and sisters, with myself, may never meet and enjoy a season of graee together on this side of death and a long eternity, as we did in Berlin in January, 1850. But be that as it may, I would say to my old brethren and sisters, who have stood many a storm, O! do not let the enemy get the advantage of you in your deelining years; but to one and all I would say, be faithful even unto death, that at last we may reeeive a crown of never-fading glory.

Yours, &c., HENRY MURRAY.

Letter from Brother Jonas Speelman.

LAPPIN'S ROADS, Feb. 19, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

I AM sorry to say, the Church in this place has a very trying time. We have had little or no preaching in this place since last August, with the exeeption of brother Fenton. He held a protraeted meeting in January, and bless God, three souls found peace by believing in the Lord, and they now are ready to follow their Master down into the rolling stream. I think it is very hard that there is so much neglect on the part of the preacher that has this circuit in charge. The Chureh here is bleeding at every pore. But thank the Lord, we still have our little prayer-meetings every Lord's-day; and notwithstanding our number is small, we are willing to eome up to the help of the Lord against the mighty. I am happy to say that there is a great opening here. If we could have a faithful minister, there could be four new appointments for regular preaching. The people are very anxious to hear the word of the Lord. We wish the Committee would send us an able preacher,—one full of the Holy Ghost. Then, I think, there could be much good done. If we could have preaching every two weeks, there could be a good support and much good done. But preaching four or five times a year, as we have had it, wont do. We might as well have none. A great many complain of not getting a support; but is it not their own fault? No more at present.

Your brother in the Lord,
JONAS SPEELMAN.

Letter from Brother Benjamin Ober.

LIGONIER, Westmoreland Co., Pa., Feb. 20, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

I TAKE up my pen to drop a few lines for the readers of the Advocate.

I am still endeavoring to blow the gospel trumpet in my weak manner. I held a meeting near Laurel-hill Furnace, Westmoreland county, and had quite an interesting time. The people were attentive, and the word of the Lord had its desired effect. Some eight or ten embraced religion. I was kindly treated by the people of this place, with the exception of a few. I left, and on my return to this people, I organized a Church of seven members. May they be kept faithful to the end of the journey of life.

Yours in love,
BENJAMIN OBER.

OBITUARY OF Sister ELIZA KREIGER.

SISTER KREIGER departed this life on the 4th of February, 1850, aged 25 years, 6 months and 10 days.

She embraced religion about 10 years ago, while she was yet young in years, and joined herself to the Church of God in this place, of which she continued to be a faithful member. She was always willing to bear her part in every good work, distributing to the necessity of the saints, and using her efforts in the promotion of the cause of God. Her walk and conduct should be imitated by every young female, and all those who would wish a happy death.

About one year ago, she was taken with Consumption, which rapidly preyed upon her vital powers with unabating vigor. But, under all her affliction, she trusted and confided in God, till, through His Providenee, He took her home by death. Happy are we to say, that her hopes were bright, giving sufficient evidence of her aeceptanee with God. About her last she exclaimed, "Come, my Jesus, and take me to my rest." "Blessed are they that die in the Lord, from heneeforth; they shall rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

She leaves a large circle of friends to mourn her loss, and the Church a faithful member.

Why should we mourn departed friends,
Or shake at death's alarms;
'Tis but the voiee that Jesus sends,
To call us to His arms.

Funeral discourse by brother Wm. McFadden.

GEORGE W. KISTER.

Smoketown, York Co., Pa., Feb. 15, 1850.

Obituary Notices.

MOUNT JOY, Feb. 21, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

PLEASE insert the following obituary in the Church Advoeate.

DIED, in East Donegall, February 14th, 1850, ABRAHAM, son of Joseph and Nancy Brenneman, aged 5 years, 10 months and 14 days.

This interesting and promising little boy fell a victim to that justly dreaded and present prevailing malady, the Searlet Fever. He fell in the spring-tide of innoeence.

Like the bud, but just opened, then ehilled by the blast;
Like the dew-drop of morning, ordained not to last.

The funeral was attended by a large collection of the neighbors and relations of the deceased. A discourse was delivered in the English language, from Revelations. 'Behold I make all things new." Also, on the same oecasion, in the German, from Matthew. "The pure in heart shall see God." The truth was both heard and felt by many on the oceasion, while the dead seemed to address us all:—

Though I am gone to the grave, let no one deplore me,
Though silence and darkness encompass the tomb;
For the Saviour has passed through its portals before me,
And shed forth his love and his light throngh the gloom.

I have now join'd my kindred who had gone before me;
I am free from life's dangers, its toils and its strife;
And now love and mercy with strong arms enfold me;
My praises are perfect, and endless my life.

This sweet child (like his father, who is a sweet singer in Israel,) was fond of singing; and was particularly fond of the hymn, "Shed not a tear," &e. This he was accustomed to sing in the day school with his teacher and comrades. This hymn was also sung at his grave, but not without shedding tears thereon.

To-day I officiated at the funeral of Mr. JOSHUA BISHOP, an old and respectable resident of Springville. He had attained to the respectable age of seventy-one years, one month and some odd days.

His remains rest in the Methodist Episcopal burying-ground in this village.

WM. MOONEY.

P. S.—We had to-day no less than two funerals in our village, and one in Springville. Truly, human life is as a shadow, or as a vapor, which vanisheth away! We have with us still both the sick and the dying. O, may He who has created us for His own glory, vouchsafe His helping presenee, to make our ealling sure. W. M.

OBITUARY OF Sister ELIZABETH SWITZER.

DIED, in Lisburn, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 23d inst., ELIZABETH SWITZER, in the 62d year of her age.

Sister Switzer professed to embraee religion at the Camp-meeting whieh was held at brother Heck's, about sixteen years ago. And although she had some of the greatest trials to endure, during her pilgrimage through this wilderness, we believe she retained her integrity until the hour of her departure: and then could say, "I am now ready to be offered."

In the death of sister Switzer, her children (being five in number) have lost a kind, affectionate and indulgent mother, the people of Lisburn a good neighbor, and the Church of God a faithful and worthy member. We hope and do believe that our loss has been her infinite and eternal gain.

Her remains were interred in the cemetery near Lisburn, on the 24th inst. She had a large funeral. Services by the writer.

May this solemn dispensation of Providence prove a blessing to us all.

WM. H. MULLENIX.

Mechanicsburg, Feb. 25, 1850.

OBITUARY OF Brother JOSEPH HUMMER.

DEPARTED this life, on the 28th of January, 1850, brother JOSEPH HUMMER, of Mereer county, Ohio, of inflamation of the brain.

He was taken ill on Saturday evening and died on Monday morning. On Saturday he worked all day, and held family worship at night, and in praying, prayed that God should take care of his family, when he should take his departure from them. This kind of language made his wife think strange. She could not think what it meant. But it was not long till she discovered that he had a presentiment of what should soon come to pass. He has been a member of the Church of God for the space of fifteen years. His house has ever since been the pilgrim's hotel and preacher's home. He has left a wife and four or five children to mourn their irreparable loss. He was probably 34 years old when he died.

T. HICKERNELL.

Methodist Episcopal Theological Seminary.—The Methodists have but one Theological Seminary in America, which is located at Concord, N. H. It numbers 41 students.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Kentucky and the Union.—In the Kentucky Legislature, on the 15th of January, the following Resolution was unanimously adopted:—

Resolved, By the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That the Governor be, and he is hereby authorized and requested, to cause a suitable block of native marble to be conveyed to Washington city, to take its proper place in the monument now being erected to the memory of the Father of his country, and that the following words be engraved thereon: "Under the auspices of Heaven and the precepts of Washington, Kentucky will be the last to give up the Union."

Terrible Explosion and Loss of Life.—On the 7th ult. a fearful accident occurred near the "Summit," Cambria county, in this State, in the house of Dr. Adams. About a dozen kegs of powder were imprudently left there, and taking fire from some unknown cause, blew the house to atoms, killing Mrs. Adams instantly, though an infant child in her arms escaped uninjured. The family were in bed at the time. Dr. Adams was not injured, but has shown symptoms of derangement ever since the accident. Two other persons, whose names are not given, were very dangerously injured.

California.—The latest news from California is as interesting as usual. Mr. Fremont and Dr. Gwinn, formerly a leading democratic politician of Mississippi, have been elected to the U. S. Senate. Gold was as plentiful as ever, and the two steamships brought about five millions of dollars worth of the dust. The State Legislature was organized, and the Governor had made his inaugural address. A very extensive fire occurred in San Francisco, which laid some of the most valuable buildings in ruins, and among others the celebrated Parker House.

Severe Weather.—Although this season has been a mild one in America, it has been unusually severe in Europe. The Convent of St. Bernard has been blocked up with snow, so that the monks had to cut a passage under it in order to extricate themselves. In Florence on the 6th of January, the oil congealed in the lamps, and at Rome it was stated the snow was two feet deep. In France the olive plantations have suffered from the severe cold.

Steamboat Disasters During 1849.—The St. Louis papers publish lists of the steamers blown up, sunk, or otherwise destroyed in the West, during the past year. The total number is 112, of which 83 were totally lost. The estimated pecuniary loss is set down at $2,000,000, and the loss of life upwards of 200 persons, and perhaps as many were wounded or maimed

Ohio State House.—This building when completed will be of great magnitude and imposing grandeur. The following statement from the architect is interesting not only as demonstrating that it will be much the largest State House in the United States, but also as affording a comparative view of all similar structures among us. Though not quite as large, in many respects, it will be more commodious than the United States Capitol. All the principal rooms will be larger.

EXTRACT FROM A REPORT.

Having been frequently asked how this building compares in size with others erected for similar purposes, I have obtained the dimensions of the Capitols of some of the principal States of the Union. I subjoin a list, from which it will be seen that this house will be the largest in our country:

The Capitol of Ohio, at Columbus—304 by 284 feet, covers an area of	55,936 sq. ft.
The Capitol of Tennessee, at Nashville—135 by 240, covers an area of	32,400 do.
The Capitol of North Carolina, at Raleigh—166 by 90, covers an area of	14,840 do.
The Capitol of Pennsylvania, at Harrisbug—180 by 80, covers an area of	14,400 do.
The Capitol of Indiana, at Indianapolis—80 by 180, covers an area of	14,400 do.
The Capitol of Vermont, at Montpelier—150 by 100 and by 72, covers an area of about	12,200 do.
The Capitol of Massachusetts, at Boston—173 by 61, covers an area of	10,553 do.
The Capitol of New York, at Albany—115 by 90, covers an area of	10,350 do.
The Capitol of Virginia, at Richmond—covers an area of	10,300 do.
The Capitol of South Carolina, at Columbia—60 by 170, covers an area of	20,200 do.
The Capitol of New Hampshire, at Concord—160 by 49, covers an area of	6,174 do.
The Capitol of New Jersey, at Trenton—100 by 60, covers an area of	6,000 do.
The Capitol of Michigan—90 by 60, covers an area of	5,400 do.
The Capitol of Kentucky, at Frankfort—covers an area of	4,644 do.

The Capitol at Washington covers about one-tenth more ground than the new State House.—Christian Age.

☞ The Printing Work of the American Board has now become very extensive, and is wielding a wide and powerful influence. The present state of its Printing is thus;—

Printing Establishments,	12
Type and Stereotype Foundries,	7
Number of Languages,	30
Pages printed yearly,	36,061,118
Equal to volume of 300 pages,	120,000

This is a vast amount of printing. The Bible, Testaments, Tracts, &c., comprise the largest part of the Publications.

☞ The Collector of New York, Mr. Maxwell, has dismissed one hundred and sixty-six Custom House officers, thereby saving, as is asserted, $150,000 annually to the government.

The Doings of Intemperance.—An exchange paper gives the following statistics of the Hamilton County Jail, in Cincinnati:

Whole number committed,	811
Native,	416
Foreign,	395
Intemperate,	759

Only think of it! 759 out of 811!! Almost 15 out of every 19! What was the cost of arresting them, keeping them, trying them, and punishing them? And yet men are licensed to to all this. Talk of revenue from the license system, where fifteen-sixteenths of our criminal expenses result from drunkenness! Better inflict a fine on all who drink, and a much heavier one on all who sell. At least those who have the profits of the trade should be taxed with consequent expenses.

"Infant Baptism."—Under this head, we find in the Vermont Chronicle the following article, strikingly confirmatory of the statistics which we published not long ago, showing that infant baptism falls into disuse in proportion as Protestant Theology is evangelical:

"MESSRS. EDITORS:—Is the practice of intant baptism to be given up by our churches? One would think so by an inspection of the reports of the Minutes of the General Convention of Vermont for the year 1849. In 191 churches, I find reported 154 infant baptisms. Not one to a church."—Ex. Paper.

Sold at Auction.—"A few days since," says the Christian Chronicle, "Washington's Farewell Address was purchased by Rev. Dr Boardman of this city, for James Lenox, Esq., of New York, at $2300.—Also an original portrait of Washington, painted by Jas. Peale in 1783, for $150."

Preaching at Ninety-five.—The Rev. John Sawyer, of Garland, Me., is in his ninety-fifth year, and still preaching every Sabbath with ease, animation, and a good degree of intellectual vigor. So reports the Congregational Journal.

Legacies.—The Hartford Christian Secretary states that Miss Rhoda Cook, of that city, who departed this life about two weeks since, left by her will about fifteen hundred dollars for Foreign Missions, and the same amount for Domestic Missions.

Commerce of the United States.—The total value of imports brought into the United States during the year ending June 30, 1849, was $147,857,439; and of exports, $145,755,820, of which $132,666,955 were domestic exports.

☞ Rev. Dr. Samuel Miller, a veteran Professor in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Princeton, New Jersey, died on the 7th of January, 1850, aged 80 years. He had officiated as a minister for fifty-six years, and was greatly esteemed.—Western Recorder.

Smoking Chimneys.—The Scientific American states, on reliable authority, that if masons, at two feet above the throat of a chimney, enlarge the opening to double the size for a further space of two feet, and then carry up the rest as at first, the chimney will never smoke. Let builders and masons remember this.

Deaths in New York.—The number of deaths in this city during 1849, was 22,372; being an increase of 7,724 over 1848, chiefly attributable to the prevalence of the cholera.

Size of California.—California would make forty-five States of the size of New Hampshire! The sea-coast extends nearly a thousand miles, and the territory extends into the interior twelve hundred miles.

Congress.—We can report no progress at the Seat of Government. The Slavery question has absorbed all others, and nothing can be done till this is finally put to rest.

☞ Millions of pigeons have been filling the woods for miles around Franklin, Tenn., for several weeks past. They have a roost several miles in extent in the edge of Hickman county, and with a torch and club the people sally forth at night and bring home their game by meal bags full.

☞ Mrs. Howard who killed the paramour of her husband, at Cincinnati, and was sent to the Lunatic Asylum, at Columbus, Ohio, some time since, has been liberated. She has regained her health.

☞ The entire number of prisoners committed to the County Jail in Cincinnati for the past year, was 1,181. Of these 468 were natives, 592 foreigners, 101 negroes.

☞ According to a catalogue of the German newspapers, just published at Leipsic, there are at present printed in Europe as many as 1558 German Journals.

☞ The number of emigrants who arrived at Philadelphia the year 1849, is 13,832—an excess of 2,692 over the previous years.

☞ The Cincinnati Gazette says that the value of chewing tobacco sold in that market, amounts to one and a half million dollars annually.

☞ The Mormons, it is stated, have imposed a tariff of fifty per cent. upon all goods carried into their valley from the States.

☞ It is contemplated to hold an Anti-slavery World's Convention, in New York next summer.

☞ During January, 13,034 immigrants arrived at New York, being 4,408 more than in January, 1849.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HOPE FOR ISRAEL.

There are in the United States more than sixty thousand Israelites, and this number is swelled monthly by emigrants from all parts of Europe. There are more than one hundred natural descendants of Abraham in our country, who have embraced the gospel of Jesus Christ. Of this number there are more than twenty preaching Jesus of Nazareth, as the Saviour of men; a remarkrble number of the whole number of converts; shadowing forth our expectation of the future, when the millions of Judah shall be grafted into the symbolical olive-tree. Of this number, also, there are six in a course of preparation for the same work. What encouragement Christians have to labor for the conversion of this people, if one-fifth of those who embrace Christianity become preachers of Christ crucified.

[Chr. Times.

NATURAL BRIDGE.

The "Natural Bridge," in Rockbridge county, Va., is one of the great curiosities and wonders of the world. It consists of a stupendous arch of limestone, over a small stream called Cedar Creek. Its height above the stream to the top, is 215 feet; its average width, 80; its extreme length at the top, 93; and its thickness, from the under to the upper side, 55 feet. The chasm over which it passes, is 50 feet wide at the bottom, and 80 at the top.—The view from the top is exceedingly grand and impressive: from below, equally sublime and more interesting, because divested of associations of fear. The bridge is of important use, forming a road over this immense chasm, which is not otherwise passable for several miles in either direction.

PARENTAL PRAYER.

It is related of the parents of the Rev. Dr. Finley, that it was their practice, soon after the birth of each of their children, to set apart a day for prayer that it might be an heir of eternal life; and that they had the happiness of seeing their eight children—seven of whom were sons—distinguished by their piety in youth, and growing in grace as their years increased.—"Most of them lived to an advanced age, were useful in their several spheres, and greatly respected and beloved on account of their Christian character."

A GEM FROM AN OLD BOOK.

It has been eloquently and truly said, that if Christianity were compelled to flee from the mansions of the great, the academies of philosphers, the halls of legislators, or the throngs of busy men, we should find her last retreat with woman at the fireside; her last audience would be the children gathering around the knees of a mother; her last sacrifice, the secret prayer, escaping in silence from her lips, and heard, perhaps, only at the throne of God.

A THOUGHT FOR PARENTS.

It is poor encouragement to toil through life to amass a fortune to ruin your children. In nine cases out of ten, a large fortune is the greatest curse which could be bequeathed to the young and inexperienced.

POETRY.

MY MOTHER'S LIKENESS.

The following touching lines were written for Dr. W. Barr, Daguerrotype Artist of Harrisburg, on the death of a young man's mother during his absence from home. It strikingly illustrates the propriety of having a likeness taken while in health and life.

My Mother—yes, my dear, fond Mother 's dead!
She died when I was absent from my home.
I had not seen her for these seven years;
To see her once again I could not come.

When last I gazed upon her care-worn form,
And saw the tears flow quickly o'er her face,
I hoped we'd meet again, when we would greet
Each other with a mutual embrace.

But Time and Death have all my hopes destroyed.
Imagination could no longer paint
Her tender looks in truthful elegance;
Her face I fancied, but the sight was feint.

By lightning's speed I heard of her decease,
And straight I hastened on my journey home;
But ere I reached my sacred native place,
They'd had laid her body in the silent tomb!

Oh! who can tell the anguish of my heart!
Could I but look upon her face once more
I would be reconciled—would be content:
But 'tis too late—the loss I must deplore.

While thus distressed I walked my Mother's room,
And grieved and wept because she was not there,
I turned my streaming eyes upon the wall
And fixed them on an object stare.

'Twas the Likeness of my dearest Mother!
I clasped my hands—then seized the Picture dear,
And pressed it to my heart—then to my lips;
There I wept o'er it, and I kissed it there.

Dear Mother, thou art gone, forever gone!
And I thy face on earth no more shall see!
But this dear relic of thy dearer self
Shall unto me a guardian angel be.

EXTERNAL EVIDENCE.

Prophets of old, events foretold
Ages ere they transpired;
Each word fulfilled, as God had willed,
Proclaims they were inspired.

Wild tempests hushed; hell's counsels crushed;
The dead to life regiven;
All set their seal that God's own will Christ hath revealed from heaven.

INTERNAL EVIDENCE.

A man of subtle reasoning asked
A peasant, if he knew
Where was the internal evidence
That proved the Bible true.

The terms of disputative art
Had never reached his ear;
He laid his hand upon his heart,
And only answered, "Here!"

WHERE IS GOD?

In the sun, the moon, the sky;
On the mountains, wild and high;
In the thunder, in the rain,
In the grove, the wood, the plain;
In the little birds that sing:
God is seen in every thing.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—By Elder Benjamin Ober Mr. Hamilton Thompson to Miss Catharine Leach, both of Fayette county, Pa.

On the 14th ult., by Elder E. H. Thomas, Mr Jacob W. Hamsher, of Franklin county, to Miss Margaretta Rebuck, of Hopewell township, Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 14th ult., by Elder J. H. Hurley, Mr. Joseph J. Pusey to Miss Julia Ann Stoner, all of Lancaster city.

On the 3d ult., by Elder Jacob Keller, Mr. Michael Neuh to Miss Susan Simpson, both of East Hempfield, Lancaster county, Pa.

On the 12th ult., by Rev. W. R. De Witt, Mr. Edward P. Drummons, of New, Buffalo, Perry county, to Miss Adeline Bhooks, of Dauphin, Dauphin county, Pa.

On the 10th ult., by the Rev. H. G. Stecher, Mr. John Zerfoss to Miss Mary Ann Gould, both of Hummelstown, Dauphin county, Pa.

On the 15th ult., by the Rev. David O. Farrell, Mr. Samuel Dennis to Miss Sarah Raver, both of Harrisburg.

On the 4th ult., by the Rev. Charles A. Hay, Mr. David Neal to Mrs. Julia Lemmon, both of Harrisburg.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!"

DIED—In this place, on the 9th ult., Mary Ann, wife of Charles E. Fisk, Jr., in the 20th year of his age.

Departed this life, on the 6th of January, 1850, Selah Jane, second daughter of Thos. and Charity Hickernell, aged 1 year, 10 months and 3 days.

Her death originated from Croup, and probably some other internal derangements.

T. Hickernell.

On the 18th of January, 1850, brother William Wagner, of Schuylkill county, Pa., aged 51 years and some days.

Brother Wagner was a minister of the Church of God. Formerly he belonged to the Evangelical denomination, but for conscience and truth sake, he withdrew from them and connected himself with the Church of God, in the communion of which he lived and labored and died. His death was peaceful and triumphant.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Protracted Meeting.

A Protracted meeting will be held, by the leave of Providence, in Millerstown, Lebanon county, commencing on the 9th of March.

Ministers and people are requested to attend.

Missionary Pledges.

We, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1849, the sums annexed to our names for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner, - -	$10 00
William Reichert, - -	5 00
Isaac Miller, - - -	10 00
J. H. Hurley, - - -	5 00
Geo. U. Harn, - -	5 00
M. F. Snavely, - - -	10 00
Jacob Miller, - - -	10 00
James Miller, - - -	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, - - -	5 00
Thomas Strohm, - -	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe, - - -	5 00
Abraham Sherich, - -	7 50
Abraham Swartz, - - -	5 00
A liberal brother, -	20 00
A liberal sister, -	2 00
David Strickler, - -	5 00
James Casy, - - -	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover, - -	5 00

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.
FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,				$4 25	a	4 37½
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		2 50	a	2 56
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		2 37½	a	2 50
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				95	a	98
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		55	a	56
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		50	a	50
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		28	a	28
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		60	a	65
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -		4 00	a	4 25
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -		2 25	a	2 50
Do.	Flax,	do. - -		1 00	a	1 10
BEEF, per cwt.		- - - -		5 00	a	5 50
PORK,	do.	- - - - -		5 00	a	5 25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -		8¾	a	9½
BUTTER,	do.	- - - - -		16	a	20
LARD,	do.	- - - - -		7	a	8
TALLOW,	do.	- - - - -		8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.				6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - - -		12½	a	18¾
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -		75	a	87½
ONIONS,	do.	- - -		75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -		1 00	a	1 12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.				1 25	a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -		37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -		30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -		1 25	a	1 25
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -		10 00	a	10 00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -		4 50	a	4 50

PHILADELPHIA.
FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,				$4 87½	a	5 00
Do.	Rye,	do. -		2 87	a	2 87
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		3 00	a	3 06
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				1 06	a	1 07
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		62½	a	62½
Do.	Corn, old	do. - -		61	a	62
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		31	a	31
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		75	a	80
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -		4 37	a	4 50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -		2 75	a	3 00
Do.	Flax,	do. - -		1 35	a	1 40
BEEF, per cwt.,		- - -		7 00	a	8 75
PORK,	do.	- - - - -		7 00	a	7 25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo descimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

EVANGELICAL MUSIC.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us; and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music."

☞ For sale at this office, and at our Depositories. Editor.

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;

ENTITLED

History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

List of our Depositories and Local Agents,

For the convenience of the brethren, and the public generally, we have come to the conclusion to establish Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

WM. A. LEARY & Co., No. 156 North Second street, BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, and DANIEL GETTY, No. 110 South Third street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, New York.

WATSON & WILLIAMS, St. Louis, Mo.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati. Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN C. OWENS, Baltimore, Md.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, and such others as are named in the following list of Books, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail prices.
History of Denominations in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries,	2 00
500 Sketches & Skeletons of Sermons,	2 50
Life of Christ and the Apostles, -	2 50
D'Aubigne's Hist. of the Reformation,	1 50
Wandering Soul, - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament,	50
German Reference Testament, -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - -	25
Harn on Feet-Washing, -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, -	15
Traveler's Guide to the West, -	50

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XIV. HARRISBURG, Pa. MARCH 15, 1850. NUMBER 22.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

Pennsylvania Canals.

The water was let in the Eastern Division of the Pennsylvania Canal on Friday, the 1st, and boats commenced running on the 4th inst.

Patent Bedsteads.

A sample Bedstead of B. Hinkley's Patent can be seen at the office of the Advocate, Harrisburg, Pa. It is a first-rate article. Call and see.

To Our Agents and Subscribers.

Some of our duplicate bills of dues for the Advocate, have been made out and sent to our agents, with instructions to collect the same, as soon as possible. Others will soon follow.

We hope our delinquent subscribers will see the propriety of prompt payment. We want the old scores paid off, to prepare the way for the next volume. All who fail to pay up, will have their papers stopped.

Our Next Volume.

By the first of May our next and 15th volume will commence. This, therefore, is the best time for New Subscribers to come in.—Will our friends and agents make an earnest and simultaneous effort to extend the circulation of the Advocate! Effort has already done much, but much more can yet be done, if efforts be continued. Some of the churches have been greatly revived and increased.—Why then should not our subscription also be increased! Let the young converts be called upon, and then it will be seen what they will do.

More Revival News.

Brother T. Bean writes. "That a work of grace is in progress at the Broad Fording in Maryland." A more full and accurate account may soon be given.

Brother A. D. Williams writes, "I had the privilege of baptizing eight converts a week ago yesterday, and more will probably go forward soon—perhaps next Sunday."

From brother Myers' letter, in this paper, it will be seen that there are some revivals in progress in Ohio.

In Bainbridge, Lancaster county, there has been a small stir lately.

In Fishing Creek, Perry county, there has been an ingathering into the Church, of some 10 or 12 souls.

A No-Party Country.

Oregon is said to be politically a no-party country. The Spectator says, "Happily political parties have no existence in Oregon;" adding that, consequently, the members of the Assembly have been chosen with reference only to their fitness for the duty. A blessed state of things, if it really exists.

But how is it in respect to religion? Is it a no-sect country also? If so, it must be, comparatively, a truly happy and paradistical country. A country highly desirable and thrice blessed, for the Christian pilgrim, who possesses a meek and quiet spirit, and who is weary and tired of political and religious strife and discord.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered wishing to continue their subscription.

2. If the subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, the publishers may continue to send them till all charges are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the offices to which they are directed, they are held responsible till they have settled their bills, and order their papers discontinued.

4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publishers, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. The Courts have decided that refusing to take a paper or periodical from the office, or removing, and leaving it uncalled for, is 'prima facie' evidence of intentional fraud.

☞ Postmasters are requested to keep a copy of the above rules, and show it to persons who may decline taking their papers out of their respective offices without having paid up all arrearages for the same.

The General Banking Law.

This bill has passed the third reading in the House of Representatives, and is now before the Senate for concurrence. Among the leading provisions of the bill, are the following: One making the stockholders liable for all their debts, each one in proportion to his stock. One requiring the Banks to keep their notes at par in Philadelphia and in Pittsburg. One which prohibits any Bank from paying out any but its own notes, or, those equivalent to specie at the place paid out; and another prohibiting our own Banks from issuing any notes below ten dollars, and to prohibit the circulation of Bank notes from other States, of a less denomination than ten dollars, after the 25th day of August next.

The Debate.

The first part of the debate on baptism, between Jacob Keller, of the Church of God, and A. Owen, of the United Brethren, will be found in this paper. It was reported by Mr. Drake, an excellent Stenographer, for the use of the Church Advocate and Religious Telescope. We bespeak a careful and candid reading of the same, by the patrons and readers of both papers. Although we are giving but a sketch of the arguments and remarks of the speakers in this debate, yet from the time occupied in the discussion, which was four full days, it will require some time to publish the whole, not having room for more than about two pages at a time in each paper. It will be continued from number to number till the whole has been published. The Editor of the Religious Telescope will please to copy.

Urim and Thummim.

What was the Urim and Thummim? Literally these two Hebrew words signify Lights and perfections. But theologically they were used to designate some sacred fixtures or ornaments pertaining to the High Priest's breast-plate. Exo. 28: 30. Lev. 8: 8.

What these were, is not fully known. Learned men have entertained different opinions as to what parts of the High Priest's breast-plate were called "Urim and Thumimm." And indeed, it is no easy matter to be wise above what is written. Moses has not told us what these lights and perfections were. Hence a contrariety of opinions.

Josephus and others have supposed they were the twelve precious stones of the breast-plate, on which were engraven the names of the several tribes of Israel. Exo. 28: 15–20. Others suppose that the Urim and Thummim were something enclosed between the folding of the breast-plate. Others again maintain that they were two little images shut up in the doubling of the breast-plate. And others again assert that they were the words manifestation and truth written upon two precious stones. But whatever constituted the Urim and Thummim, in the breast-plate of judgment, this is manifest, that they formed the oracle of God, by means of which the Divine will was to be sought in cases of solemn and sudden emergency, and in reference to doubtful matters relating to Church or State. Num. 27: 21. Josh. 7: 6–15.

There is a great diversity of opinions likewise concerning the manner in which God was consulted by Urim and Thummim. It is agreed that the High Priest was the only officiating minister in this ceremony; and that for this he was clothed in all his pontifical habit; particularly he was to have on his breast-plate, to which the Urim and Thummim were affixed. Thus prepared, he presented himself before the Lord to ask counsel on public matters, not in the inner sanctuary, which he presumed not to enter, except on the great day of national atonement, but without the veil, with his face toward the ark of the covenant, inside; and behind him, at some distance, without the sanctuary, stood the person who wanted the response.

But then, as to the manner in which the respone was given, divines are not agreed.—Some say, that the Urim and Thummim were two little golden figures which gave response, which were shut up in the breast-plate as in a purse, and which answered with an articulate voice, to all such questions as were put to them by the High Priest. Others think that the answer of the Lord was obtained by certain letters in the stones of the breast-plate jutting out of their places above the rest and assuming an extraordinary lustre. Others again suppose that the answer was given by an audible voice from the Shekinah, which hovered over the mercy-seat, between the cherubims within the sanctum sanctorum. But all this is mere conjecture. There is no certainty as to the manner in which the answers were given.

This oracle, it is believed, was not used during the life of Moses, as God spoke to him directly. Exod. 33: 11. Num. 7: 89. But this mode of consultation subsisted under the tabernacle erected by Moses in the wilderness, and until the building of Solomon's temple; after which we find no instances of it. The rabbins indeed say, that it continued in use only under the tabernacle. 1 Sam. 28: 6. They have a maxim that the Holy Ghost spoke to Israel under the tabernacle by Urim and Thummim; under the first temple by prophets; and after the captivity of Babylon, by the Bath-kol, or Daughter of the voice; meaning a voice from heaven, as at the baptism and transfiguration of Christ. Matt. 3: 17—17: 5. 2 Peter 1: 7.

Church Collections.

By Church collections we understand certain contributions, which are made in the Church, especially on the Lord's-day, for the maintenance of public worship. The propriety and utility of such collections must be apparent to all who admit the truth of revelation and the obligations of religion. But may they not be more general and equal?

1st. Ought not Church collections to be more general? If it is right and necessary for one person to contribute something for the support of public worship, is it not equally the duty of all to do so? We think it is. And we think so, because the Bible shows it to be the duty of all. "None shall appear before me empty." Exo. 34: 20. "Let every one of you lay by him in store." 1 Cor. 16: 2. These and other passages show, clearly, that God has made it the duty of all persons, whether young or old, rich or poor, to contribute more or less, towards the maintenance of religious worship. But, 2dly. Ought not these contributions to be made more equal, or according to the principle of equality?

We answer yes. If it is right to give at all, it is right and fair that each one should do so, according to his or her ability. It is not just and fair that the poor should give as much as the rich. The rule, as laid down by the Apostle, is, "As the Lord has prospered you." If, therefore, a woman or girl, who earns a dollar a week, gives one or two cents towards the collection on the Sabbath, then a man who earns six dollars a week, ought to contribute six times as much. And so on in proportion. This would be right and Scriptural. So it was among the Jews, so it is among the children of this world, and so it ought to be among Christians.

But, is it so? Nay, verily not. Some give nothing—some give a penny—and some few, once in a while, give a small piece of silver.

Now, if things were as they ought to be, the penny contributions would belong to children and the poor; the picayune and dime contributions to the day laborers and journeymen mechanics; the half-dollar and dollar contributions to the money making classes; and the gold piece contributions to the rich. So we are informed it was, in the days of Jesus, among the Jews. "And Jesus sat over against the treasury, and beheld how the people cast money into the treasury: and many that were rich cast in much. And there came a certain poor widow, and she threw in two mites, which make a farthing. And he called unto him his disciples, and saith unto them, Verily I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast more in, than all they which have cast into the treasury: for all they did cast in of their abundance; but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living." Mark 12: 41–44. Now, if the rich and poor, in those days, all cast into the Lord's treasury—those that were rich much, and the poor little—then it is right it should be so yet.

But, on this score, Christian congregations are evidently at fault. Our voluntary collection system ought to be greatly improved.—The people ought to be better instructed in this matter. They ought to be taught to appreciate their religious privileges much higher than they do. If they can give 25 or 50 cents for a meals victuals, or the same price to hear a lecture, or to witness some public exhibition, then surely they ought to consider the privilege of hearing the Gospel and attending public worship, of equal, yea, more than equal value. And if so, where is the consistency of estimating the Lecture-room, the political speech, or the theatre, a hundred per cent. above the Church. Why and wherefore make the church collections penny collections, and the Lecture-room and other places dollar collections? No wonder that God charges such people with robbing. Mal. 3: 8. "Ye have robbed me—in tithes and offerings. Therefore ye are cursed with a curse. But bring ye all the tithes into the store-house, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the window of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be a delightsome land, saith the Lord of hosts."

In this passage the Lord gives a most encouraging promise to induce liberality in his cause. Those that believe God and do accordingly, may hope for a double blessing—a blessing in time, and a blessing in eternity. "For whatever good thing any man doeth, the same shall he receive from the Lord." Temporal good deeds will be rewarded with temporal blessings, and spiritual good deeds with spiritual blessings. Hence let no one believe that his acts of benevolence will be a dead loss to him—that the more he gives the poorer he will be. This is not the speech of the firm believer, but rather of the faithless and covetous. If the Bible means what it says, then doubtless virtue and goodness will be rewarded here, as well as hereafter. Nevertheless, there may be a difference as to the bestowments of temporal rewards. Some may receive less than others because of unbelief or ingratitude. The Scripture says, "Whosoever has to him shall be given." "What is not of faith is sin." And again, "According to thy faith be it done to you." Hence then, let all, whether men, women or children, contribute something every time they attend church; but let all give according to their several abilities, and in full faith, that they shall have their just reward, both here and hereafter.

BEAUTIFUL PRAYER.

Lord! bless and preserve my husband; let his life be long and blessed, comfortably and holy; and let me also become a great blessing and comfort unto him, a sharer in all his joys, a refreshment in all his sorrows, a meet helper for him in all the accidents and chances, of the world; make me amiable forever in his eyes, and very dear to him. Unite his heart to me in the dearest union of love and holiness, and mine to him in all sweetness, charity, and compliance. Keep me from all ungentleness, all discontentedness and unreasonableness and unseasonableness of passion and humor, and make me humble and obedient, charitable and loving, patient and contented, useful and observant, that we may delight in each other according to Thy blessed word and ordinance, and both of us may rejoice in Thee, having our portion in the love and service of God forever.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

SKETCH

OF A

DEBATE ON BAPTISM,

BETWEEN

J. KELLER AND A. OWEN;

Held at Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 19th, 20th, 21st, 22d and 23d of February, 1850.

REPORTED BY W. E. DRAKE,

For the Church Advocate and Religious Telescope.

[TELESCOPE WILL COPY.]

Rules of Discussion.

1. The debate shall commence on Tuesday, the 19th of February, 1850.

2. It shall be held in the Bethel in Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa

3. A. Owen selects Jacob Erb pro tem as his Moderator: J. Keller selects A. Swartz pro tem as his. These shall select Levi Merkel as a third, who shall be presiding Moderator, and whose duty shall be to keep order, and to keep the parties to the questions at issue. In case of an appeal from the opinion of the presiding Moderator, the majority of them shall decide.

4. In the opening speeches of each question, the parties may occupy half an hour each; thereafter twenty-five minutes to the close of each subject. Each meeting to be opened and closed with prayer.

5. The debate shall open at 10 o'clock, A. M., and close at 12 each day; and re-open at 2 and close at 4 in the afternoon; unless hereafter changed by mutual consent of the parties.

6. The parties shall have the liberty of access to all authorities quoted in the discussion, and when requested, the party speaking shall give book, chapter and page.

7. The parties shall have the right to revise and correct the Reporter's sketches of their arguments.

8. The debate shall not close finally, except by the mutual consent of the parties in discussion.

Questions of Debate.

1. Is IMMERSION THE ONLY PROPER ACTION CALLED BAPTISM IN THE NEW TESTAMENT?

J. Keller affirms. A. Owen denies.

2. ARE INFANTS OF BELIEVING PARENTS SCRIPTURAL SUBJECTS OF BAPTISM.

A. Owen affirms. J. Keller denies.

Signed A. OWEN,
J. KELLER.

TUESDAY MORNING, 10 o'clock.

Prayer by brother HARN. (Rules read.)

J. KELLER'S OPENING SPEECH.

BROTHER KELLER rose and said—Gentlemen Moderators: I rise before this audience for the defence of what I believe to be truth and righteousness. In the tactics of debate I confess I am inexperienced, and were I impelled by no other motive than to show myself off an adept in discussion, I certainly would not be here. I have no ambition to distinguish myself as a debater. I have a nobler and better object in view, and that object is to vindicate truth and refute error. No other consideration could have induced me to leave my circuit, or charge, and come up here to participate in a debate. To debate, as I understand it, is to reason, to controvert, to discuss, to compare arguments. I am present, then, to reason and compare arguments with my opponent, brother Owen, on the subject of Christian Baptism. The questions to be discussed are these:

1. Whether Immersion is the only Scriptural Baptism? And

2. Whether infants of believing parents are Scriptural subjects of Baptism?

On the first question, I take the affirmative, and my brother the negative.

On the second question, he takes the affirmative, and I the negative.

But, before I enter upon the discussion of the merits of the main subjects now in debate, I beg leave to give a brief account of the origin of this discussion.

At the Camp-meeting, on camp-hill, last summer, I had occasion to make some remarks on the subject of baptism. To some of these remarks, my antagonist, as it subsequently appeared, took exceptions. Accordingly, he took in hand, the next day, to send me a challenge, in substance as follows:

'If you will take the affirmative on the mode of Baptism, I am willing to meet you, either in a written or oral discussion, at any time after a few weeks."

To this I replied, "That I held myself ready to prove, what I had affirmed on the camp-ground, viz: 'That the immersion of a believer, in water, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, is the only Scriptural action of Christian Baptism:' but that I preferred a written debate, published through the Telescope and the Church Advocate."

In reply to this, I received the following: "Yours was handed me last evening, and this reply I will endeavor to have conveyed to you on camp-hill to-day; I myself cannot attend. I did not intend giving the exact form of the proposition, but said that could be settled hereafter.—You asserted, on the camp-ground, that immersion is the only mode or action of baptism. This I deny. But I would say, just come and prove it:—I shall examine your arguments. I hope you will consent to come, as oral discussion is our only alternative, and I want to give the people of this community a chance to hear both sides. The Editor of the Telescope, for numerous reasons, not personal, will not open his columns for the discussion. If you will accept my amendment to your proposition, and yet wish to discuss Infant Baptism, you can offer your proposition in your next:—no doubt we can agree."

To this letter I returned the following reply: "You have sent me an amendment to your former proposition, which I shall cheerfully accept. Now, then, let the propositions stand thus:

1. Is the immersion of a believer, in water, in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, the only proper action of Christian Baptism, as taught in the New Testament? I affirm, you deny.

2. Is infant sprinkling taught in the New Testament? You affirm, and I deny."

The correspondence between us was carried on for some time, but these questions, with some slight alterations, have finally been agreed on.

This, then, is an outline of the history and origin of this debate. I should have preferred, greatly, a written debate, through the papers, because I believe that would have been more profitable to the cause of truth and the community at large; but being overruled in my choice, in that respect, I shall now do the best I can in oral debate.

The first question, then, to be discussed, as now agreed on, is in these words: "Is immersion the only proper action, called baptism, in the New Testament?" On this question I am the affirmant; and in order to prove what I affirm, I shall offer the following arguments.

I shall take my text from the 28th chapter and 19th and 20th verses of the Gospel according to St. Matthew: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen."

The position which I shall endeavor to sus-tain in this discussion, is this: the immersion of the subject in water is essential to the ordinance of baptism. This is evident, in the first place, from the meaning of the term which Christ uses when he enjoins the rite of baptism: "Go ye and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." The Greek word for "baptizing" is baptizontes, which is a participle of the word baptizo, which is derived from bapto, which means to plunge, to immerse into any liquid, &c. But, the second signification, growing out of the primary idea, bapto, is to dip, to immerse, as we dip things for the purpose of dyeing them. I am a blue-dyer by trade, and I understand the whole process of dyeing. These are the significations of the word. But bapto is never applied to the ordinance, and baptizo never signifies to dye. Bapto, then, has two meanings, the primary, to dip; the second, to dye. Baptizo in the whole history of the Greek language has but one meaning, and one only; it signifies to dip, or immerse. Each of these words, therefore, has a specific province, into which the other cannot enter, while there is a common province in which either of them may serve to signify "dip" generally, but the primary cannot specifically express that ordinance to which the derivative has been appropriated, and the derivative cannot signify the idea, which is a part of the province of the primative. That both these words mean to "dip," to "plunge," or "immerse," all lexicographers and men of learning agree. And what does the Pedobaptist, Andrew Stewart, say on the subject? He says—and I prove it from the other side of the house—"If any person is disposed to question this, he can satisfy himself by examining places in which the words occur in Greek. In about 200 passages, taken at random, where these words are employed in their primary and proper sense, the idea is, in every instance, to dip, to plunge, or immerse." I have already remarked, in addition to these significations, that bapto means to dye, to color, or tinge; and baptizo signifies only to immerse, dip, or plunge. I here repeat the remark that in its literal and proper sense baptizo means only to dip, immerse, or plunge. And when used figuratively, upon its application depends the beauty and force of the expression. If I am in error in these positions, the fact can easily be ascertained by a reference to the original. Messrs. Moderators, I refer you to two passages in the Scriptures, and if my opponent is prepared to examine them, he is at liberty to do so. In the 2 King 5: 14, it is said, "Then went he down, and dipped himself seven times in Jordan," not at. Bear in mind, he "dipped himself seven times in Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God." Now, if the gentleman wishes to examine the original on this subject, I would refer him to the memorable occasion when John, the harbinger of the Messiah, went into the wilderness to attend to the duties made obligatory upon him. And what did he do, and how did he understand his office? John did baptize in the wilderness, saying, "Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the prophet Esaias." But, in the 5th verse of the first chapter of the Gospel according to St. Mark, the language is—"And there went out unto him all the land of Judea, and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptized of him in the river of Jordan"—not in a meeting-house, not in a barn, nor upon a camp-ground, or in the arms of a lady or gentleman. No, sirs, but they were "baptized of him in the river of Jordan, confessing their sins." Now, the gentleman will not find the word rantizo in the original, but the same term which our Saviour used when he gave the commission. In proof that I am not alone in maintaining this position, I shall refer you to a host of men of learning—men who were perfectly acquainted with the different languages—men of the most finished education, and of profound erudition. I shall bring up twenty-five witnesses, on my side of the question, to establish the position I have taken here this morning, that baptism, or baptizo, means to dip, to plunge, and to immerse. I repeat that I shall produce 25 most eminent witnesses to testify in favor of my position, and what is more the majority of them shall be Pedobaptists. And, if these do not satisfy the gentleman, I shall call upon thirteen more eminent Pedobaptist divines, who will stand by my side as firm almost as Mount Zion itself.

Here, then, I produce my 25 witnesses, to whom I first referred. Hear them.

1. Scapula. "To dip, to immerse, to overwhelm."

2. Stephanus. "To dip, to immerse, as we dip things for the purpose of dyeing them, or immerse them in water."

3. Robertson. "To immerse, to wash."

Messrs. Moderators, suffer me here to make a remark. Why is it that the Pedobaptists come out and testify against themselves, and in our favor? How happens it that the Pedobaptists endeavor to sustain the cause which we espouse and find in the Bible? I will tell you: they were honest men; they were men who did not wish to risk their reputation as men of learning. They were men who could see ahead and discover that if they were to commit an error on this point, they would be detected by my opponents. They therefore felt no disposition to be thus detected, and as faithful witnesses they were compelled to give testimony against themselves—I had almost said, turn state's evidence. Is that not exceedingly strange? Certainly it is at first sight; but when we take a second view of the subject, our minds are satisfied they were prompted by honest motives to give the truth of matters as they found them in the Bible of God.

4. Schleusner. "Properly, it signifies, I immerse, I dip, I immerse in water. 2d. It signifies, I wash, or cleanse by water, because, for the most part, a thing must be dipped, or plunged into water, that it may be washed."

The ladies perfectly well know that they would never attempt to wash gentlemen's linen by sprinkling on the collar, neither would they attempt to wash a garment by pouring a little water on it, by sprinkling on it. No, surely not. But the author says, that to dye is to immerse. Is this the fact? Am I not acquainted with the manner of dyeing? If a lady brought her garment, or a gentleman his yarn to me to have dyed, what course would I pursue? Do I take a little liquid I have prepared and sprinkle it on the end of the garment or the end of the yarn? Or, do I take it up and dip it a little into liquid, or pour it upon a few little places? If I did, they would throw the job on my hands, and call upon me to pay the damages. But, what course do I pursue? I take and dip it, and put it under a board so that it cannot be seen. And, the reason is obvious, for the moment it would have appeared at the top of the liquid it would be merely to spot the article, and it would not be entirely dyed in the full sense of the term. But, says this author, "a thing must be dipped, or plunged into water"—i. e. "that it may be washed. This is done by a figure of speech, very commonly called metonymy, which gives to a cause the name of its effect."

5. Pasor. "To dip, to immerse, to dye, because this is done by immersing. It differs from dunai, which means to sink to the bottom and be thoroughly submerged."

6. Rost says: "To plunge, to immerse, to submerge."

Next comes the noted Bretschneider, a man of profund learning and well acquainted with history. He says in reference to these matters:

7. "An entire immersion belongs to the nature of baptism. Frequently it is rendered immerse, often wash. In baptism is contained the idea of complete immersion under water"—at least he adds, "So is baptisma in the New Testament."

That is what I want. I am pleading the ordinance as taught in the New Testament. This is the position I have taken, and wish to establish. When men are to be baptized now-a-days, the rumor is soon spread abroad that a certain clergyman is going to have a baptizing Sabbath. The congregation appear, the young and the old, male and female, all seem to be on tip-toe. They hear it said there was to be a baptizing at Shiremanstown, and they gather together for the purpose of seeing some of the candidates baptized; but lo! and behold, when all comes to all, the minister merely puts his hand into the water and rubs it over the candidate. They feel like the red man of the forest, when a missionary declared to him the counsel of God. He saw immediately that it was necessary for him to attend to the next step—Christian Baptism—and the impression was made upon his mind, that according to what the missionary had told him, and especially referring to the circumstances connected with baptism as it was performed in primitive days in the Jordan, because there was much water there—that he would be so baptized. But, when he came to the missionary, and saw a bowl of water on the table, he then informed him what the object of his coming was. The missionary then said that he was prepared to baptize him, giving him to understand that he would baptize him with the water in the bowl. "Oh!" says he, "that is too small for me—I cannot get into it!" So it is frequently the case, when people who hear the ordinace of baptism is to be performed—and even the applicant himself comes with the impression that the ordinance is to performed in the water—they don't suppose until the minister comes to explain things, that they are to be baptized out of a bowl or tumbler.

A. OWEN'S FIRST REPLY.

Brother Owen, being entitled to the floor, proceeded to give a brief account of the facts and circumstances, as he recollected them, which led to the present meeting between brother Keller and himself. He said, "I suppose, on the whole, if there is any blame in our being here, or any wrong connected with it, that we will both bear a part. At the Camp-meeting, last summer, brother Keller made some remarks on baptism by immersion, and incidentally touched upon infant baptism, and after having very confidently stated his positions, he challenged contradiction. When he dismissed his congregation—I do not pretend to give his precise language—he remarked that inasmuch as we had not sufficient courage to get up and defend ourselves, he hoped we would have common sense enough to hold our peace. [Here brother Owen read the note that he sent brother Keller, accepting his challenge and requesting him to meet him.] It will be perceived that, in this note, I state, he made such remarks on the camp-ground that silence on my part became almost criminal. And, I stood on the defensive, asking him to come to this community, among whom I labor, to discuss the questions raised by him. He is here this day to do it. His object in coming is to prove, first, if he can, the charge that he made on the camp-ground, and that was, that we keep our people in ignorance, because we sprinkle, pour and dip. Mark that. And second, because we, as a denomination, practice Infant Baptism. These are the two reasons. Now for them. He thinks we are teaching humbuggery. I acknowledge the great disparity there is between us as disputants. He is a man of age and experience, and he is on the grand doctrine—a doctrine he has made his study for 12 or 14 years, and perhaps longer. I am, comparatively, a young man, never having had any experience at all in this kind of exercise, and consequently I shall, in all probability, bring forward some of my remarks in an awkward and loose manner. But, notwithstanding, if I am not able to answer his arguments and doctrines, I shall feel myself very much mistaken.

He comes here to prove that immersion is the only mode of baptism—not that immersion is baptism. For in that we are agreed. And, he will attempt to make you believe that I am opposed to immersion, but I am not. I am favorable to immersion, as a mode of baptism, but I do not believe it is the only mode. I am favorable to sprinkling, pouring and dipping. In order that the question may be brought clearly before our minds, I will read an article of their faith, as drawn up by brother Winebrenner, in his History of all the Religious Denominations in the U. States:

"She believes in three positive ordinances of perpetual standing in the Church, viz: Baptism, Feet-washing and the Lord's Supper.

"She believes two things essential to the validity of the ordinance of baptism, viz: Faith and Immersion: that faith should always precede immersion; and that where either is wanting, there can be no Scriptural baptism."

Now, according to this, if a person fails to be put under water, he is unbaptized. Then, according to brother Winebrenner, he is out of the Church. You know that on the subject of infant baptism, they have a stereotyped objection against it, and that is, that there is no warrant for it, no express precept. I think we shall be able to show, before this discussion ends, that an express precept is not necessary. Now, if immersion is the only mode—if anything short of this is not baptism—if it is essential to the validity of baptism, let us see the precept or warrant. And, I call for it thus early to afford my opponent an opportunity to produce it. If that be the fact, as alleged, should not that fact be clearly stated in the Scriptures? I hope, Mr. Moderators, he will remember, and you will remember, the "Thus saith the Lord," &c. It will be quite interesting to hear in the language of our Saviour, or that of his Apostles, that immersion is the only baptism. If he can bring forward a single passage which, by fair construction, will bear that meaning, I will acknowledge I never saw it. And, it is particularly proper I should call for it, because they have discarded human opinion and human authority. They profess to go by the Bible only. I was astonished when brother Keller quoted

Stewart—human authority. To show the additional propriety of his presenting the passage, I would here quote some excellent remarks of brother Winebrenner, which have a bearing upon this discussion. He says: "All—

Brother KELLER. That is not Winebrenner.

Brother HARN. I am the author of the article.

Brother OWEN. Very well. "All immersionists hold that this is no doubtful truth, but one as plainly taught as the fact of the Saviour's death." Now, it is not denied by Jews and Infidels that such a man as the Saviour lived and died. The immersionists believe that the only mode is taught as plainly as that. This is a strange fact. If it is, how is it so many of the great and good men since the Reformation have failed to discover it? Perhaps the gentleman can enlighten your minds on that subject. But, it bears upon its face the fact that the human mind may be strangely biassed; for the immersionists say, this fact is not only taught, but believed by them to be taught as plainly and clearly as the fact of the Saviour's death. This is astonishing. Let him produce his evidence of it, if he can. We call for it. But even if he did, it would not prove his proposition to be true—it would not show that immersion is essential to the validity of baptism. I want him to show without inference, where one man was put under water, and how, and when, and where; and how John, and Peter, and Matthew immersed. Now, I contend that all those who have lived since the Reformation, were baptized, and never immersed.

I shall occupy the remaining part of my time in answering brother Keller's first argument, which, if I understood him correctly, was founded on the Greek term baptizo, which is derived from bapto. Now, you all understand his first argument. He says immersion is the only mode of baptism. The word baptizo, as used by the Saviour, means to immerse, to dip, to plunge, and that only. Therefore, if it means only to "dip," the Saviour using it could only use that meaning. Therefore baptism must mean immersion only. My opponent, in proof of this, referred to the Greek lexicon. I will go to the same authority and prove that the word means also, "to dip, to cleanse, to wash." SCAPULA, an old lexicographer, says the meaning of the term is, "to dip, to wash, to cleanse, to immerse." Now, you observe, he does not confine it to dipping, but he makes it "washing." It is a generic term, which can be used in many senses. And I appeal to the ladies—"Cannot you wash your hands without dipping them?" Does he call "pouring"—"dipping?" It would be a strange thing that washing could not be done without dipping.

HEDERICUS. "To dip, to immerse, to cover with water; to cleanse, to wash; to baptize, in a sacred sense."

ROBINSON. "To immerse, to sink. In the New Testament, to wash, to cleanse by washing."

BRETSCHNEIDER. "Properly, often to dip, often to wash. In the New Testament, simply to wash, to cleanse."

Stephanus, Grover, Greenfield, and others, give the same meaning.

[Here brother Owen closed his first remarks.]

Female Doctors.—Two young ladies, whose names are given as Miss Almira Fraim, and Miss Mary Ward, have become regular students in the Medical Department of the Memphis Institute.

Moral Retribution:*
As Evinced by the Analogy of Nature.

(CONTINUED.)

II. DR. CHEEVER'S POSITIONS.

BEFORE proceeding with the argument, it may not be improper to glance briefly at the positions of Dr. Cheever. He says:

"Natural Theology is a volume of depravity and suffering; depravity on the part of man, and suffering in consequence, under God's righteous arrangement, proving that God is good. If you had the depravity without the suffering, how could you prove that the author and governor of this constitution of things hates sin? How prove him to be a righteous God! Or if you had the suffering without the depravity, how then could you prove his righteousness? You could not do it. Nay, your Natural Theology, so far as it goes, would prove the direct contrary, or would prove your deity to be at best a divine Gallio, caring for none of these things."

That this depravity is the voluntary, untrammeled act of man as a free agent is most clearly and unequivocally maintained.

"Sin must be viewed as coming out of a man, not going into him; as growing out of the voluntary elements of his character, and not set from abroad as a plant among them; thrown up from the depths of his voluntary being, and not introduced by circumstances, although circumstances may be laid hold upon by that being as occasions for its sinful development. * * * For certainly, if you have the article of suffering, without the article of depravity, you have the absolute demonstration of a malevolent God. Or if you make the depravity something else than voluntary sin, something else than an absolute hostility and declaration of war against God; if you make it a mere pardonable mistake, or an inevitable frailty, consequent on the very nature of a creature made weak and erring, or consequent on the circumstances by which the creature is surrounded, or consequent on the very relation between the body and the world which the creature is made to inhabit, again the suffering becomes unjust, and inconsistent with the demonstration of a God infinitely good. It is as wrong to inflict injury on an intelligent being for a mistake or an evil, which could not have been avoided, which, from the circumstances which that being did not make, was an absolute necessity, as it is to inflict suffering where there is no sin."

Arminius himself was not more radical than this; and it may reasonably be doubted whether he would have expressed the sentiment more definitely and forcibly. But hear the Dr. again.

"We must believe in the voluntariness and sinfulness of sin; that it is neither a necessity created in man's nature, nor imposed upon his nature by his circumstances, nor a pardonable imperfection or mistake, but a wickedness, the choice and persistence of his own free will establishing itself against God; or else we make Revealed Theology an incredible thing, and Natural Theology the demonstration of a supreme malevolent agency. * * * But if, again, your infidelity or your theology, makes sin a necessity, though admitting it to be a sin, yet a dire, unescapable necessity of creation and existence, an attendant, yea, a penalty of existence itself from the hand of the Creator, then again you thrust upon the soul the idea of a malevolent malignant Creator; you demonstrate, so far as you demonstrate anything, no other than a supreme, omnipotent ingenuity of evil; since what could be conceived more diabolical, than to invent a sensitive mechanism, exquisitely susceptible of suffering, inevitably producing sin, and as inevitably plunging itself into suffering because of sin! Why! the mind of the archfiend himself, the murderer and liar from the beginning, the accuser, hater, tempter, destroyer of mankind, the enemy of God and man, could imagine no refinement or hugeness of diabolism equal to this." [Brother W., tell our friend Harmon that here is a "stripling" who talks as if he might not be "beardless."]

This, not inappropriately, might be termed Calvinism exposed by a Calvinist, or at least by one who subscribes to a "Confession of Faith" as unlike the foregoing as darkness and light, error and truth, hell and heaven.

Having shown that sin is an act entirely without the agency of the Divine mind, and as entirely within man's own free and voluntary agency, and that all depravity or sin must, in the light of Natural Theology alone, eventually meet its inevitable consequences, he proceeds to show that it does not meet all of those consequences in the present existence.

"For again, as is the case with some, if your system makes sin a thing which suffering exactly pays for in this world, and is just its equivalent all through life, so that suffering is but the wages of sin paid now in full—this again, besides being a palpable contradiction of God's Word, introduces a lie into your Natural Theology, and upsets all its conclusions as to the righteousness of God. For it is as clear as day in the reality of things, that some sins receive no wages at all in this world, while, in the comparison, other sins are vastly overpaid. * * * It is perfectly undeniable that some good men suffer greatly, while some very bad men suffer very little, if at all. There never was a theory broached, more palpably contradicted by fact, every step of the way, than this, in the Natural Theology of some men, that sin receives its retribution as it goes along. * * * False theologians and forgers of lies, like Job's friends, may undertake to answer that the wicked do not prosper; but it is palpable that they do; and sometimes the prediction in their own consciences, that a day of reckoning is coming, is almost the only ingredient of pain or retribution in their cup."

This of course induces the conviction that retribution will and must come in the future. The Dr. then reasons that inasmuch as the wicked will be carried into the eternal world with the same elements of suffering that they have in this world, because they will have "the same guilty nature and conscience," it is not unreasonable to suppose that this future retribution will not be unlike in kind the "restrained and partial" suffering of the present, though "in the world of perfect development and retribution it must be complete." These "elements of suffering" he finds principally in remembrance or memory and remorse. On this point, it is apprehended that the Dr. is somewhat deficient both in classification and analysis. His conclusions are good but do not seem to cover the whole ground. In relation to the extent and ultimateness of retribution, he says:

"If there could have been redemption by retribution, no other redemption than retribution would have been needed. Redemption was not instituted to make retribution available, but to avail retribution, because retribution is that ultimate state from which there is no return. It is precisely because of this last ingredient in retribution, because of its ultimateness and eternal dreadfulness, that the occasion becomes worthy of the interposition of such an infinite scheme of grace as that of redemption, by which, through repentance, that eternal reality of retribution may be avoided. The eternity and unchangeableness of retribution justify the sacrifice of even the Son of God upon the cross, to render possible the salvation of those who will repent."

It is cheering to find such sentiments in such a quarter. The article asserts or virtually assumes all that Arminians and "Free-willers" have long been contending for. But still the question and the argument may be treated in a somewhat different, and, to the writer, quite as satisfactory a manner. A. D. W.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

*"The Demand and Demonstration of a Future Retribution in Natural Theology." REV. G. B. CHEEVER, D. D., in the Biblical Repository for Jan. 1850.

The Sabbath.

"And God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it."—Gen. 2: 3.

WHEN the mariner, who guides his ship through the pathless Ocean, sees the storm approaching, the vivid lightnings leaping in terrific grandeur from cloud to cloud, and the vast surges of "Old Ocean" swelling like mighty mountains ready to engulf him, and as he toils night and day to save his little vessel from the fury of the watery element, he becomes almost discouraged and longs for some friendly port into which he may enter and rest a while from his labors of the sea.

The weary traveller on the burning sands of the desert, as he plods on his tiresome journey, all covered with dust and exhausted with heat, sighs for some fertile oasis where he may rest and recruit his wasted strength.

And the lone exile, who has been compelled to leave his home, his native land, to wander as a stranger amid the scenes of earth, feels at length his spirit overcome, his mind oppressed, and his body almost worn out by care, and prays for some congenial spot where he may live in peace and rest in the bosom of his family.

As the mariner on the stormy deep longs for some friendly port, as the weary traveller on the burning desert's sand sighs for some cooling fountain, and as the lone exile prays for a resting place, so does the humble Christian long and sigh for the Sabbath-day. While he buffets with the cares of the world, and feels himself scarcely able to keep his head above the billows of temptation, he prays that the Sabbath may come, that he may rest a day, that he may rest in the sanctuary of his God. To the Christian, the Sabbath is indeed a day of joyful rest. He can exclaim in all the fervency of poetic affection,—

"Come, bless the Lord, whose love assigns
So sweet a rest to wearied minds;
Provides an antepast of heaven,
And gives this day the food of seven."

"In holy duties let the day,
In holy pleasures pass away;
How sweet a Sabbath thus to spend,
In hope of one that ne'er shall end."

All worldly cares are laid aside, the dull routine of business is forgotten. The chiming church bell announces the hour of prayer, and the Christian hastens to meet his God, on His own day and in His own house. There is something beautiful in this connexion. God has not only designed that a house should be erected, set apart and sanctified, in which the saints should all assemble and worship, but He has also set apart a day to perform that worship in. And if the house should be held sacred, so also should the day. We observe, then, that God has set apart a day which he claims as his own, and he demands it at our hands that we observe it and devote it to his worship. Some, however, suppose that the Sabbath possesses no merit above any other day. Hence many violators of its sanctity justify themselves by saying that they are under no more obligations to observe the Sabbath than any other day of the week. But they are sadly mistaken. For if the house of God is more solemn and sacred than any other house, so also is the day of God more important than any other day. There is a holy consecration resting upon the Sabbath-day which the Christian feels rests upon no other. For God himself declares that "He blessed the seventh day and sanctified it." He not only set it apart for worship, but he blessed and sanctified it by copious effusions of Divine grace, and by associating with it some of the most sublime truths of revelation. And I love that old-fashioned piety, which was not content with worshipping God all the week merely, but which also claimed Sunday exclusively as a day of religious worship.

If then the position we have taken be true, and if the Sabbath be not only in name, but in reality, the day of the Lord, I cannot see why the ordinances of the Lord's house should not be administered on the Lord's day. Not that it is wrong to attend to them on any other day, but that they should and ought to be observed on the Sabbath also. For that policy which places the most solemn services of religion on a common day, seems foreign to the true spirit of Christianity. The ordinances of the Church are the most important and solemn part of a Christian's duty, and hence would seem to require the most solemn day.

But then there is another reason why the Sabbath and no other day should be selected for the performance of the ordinances of the Church; and that is, because they should be performed in the most solemn and devoted frame of mind possible. And on the Sabbath-day (as I observed before) the true Christian has laid aside all the cares of the world, and his mind is in a much better state to receive the rich effusions of Divine grace than when it is encumbered with the cares of business.

Bnt as we may have occasion to notice this more particularly at some future time, we shall conclude by observing, that the Sabbath-day, as a day of rest, is a beautiful and impressive emblem of that eternal rest which "remains for the people of God" after the storms of life have all passed away and the soul of the Christian is happily and safely lodged in the bosom of his Saviour. Oh! what a rest that will be! When the Christian warrior shall have laid aside his armor—when the watchman on the walls of Zion shall cease to sound his trumpet, and the laborer in the vineyard shall throw down his implements of toil and rest! Yes! rest on the calm and placid shores of immortality. The delightful calm of that eternal Sabbath shall never be disturbed by the chilling blasts of poverty or the rude winds of affliction. No! no! but peace, sweet peace, shall reign triumphant forever. Labor on, then, pious soul—toil on, faithful Christian: but remember, that the short Sabbath which you enjoy here, and which seems so full of glory, is but a land-mark by the way and points you to a happier day which lies far beyond the bounds of time, but which will soon burst with rich effulgence upon your delighted vision. J. H. C.

Uniontown, Md., Feb. 19, 1850.

Revival in Stumpstown.

We feel grateful to God that we have once more some good news to communicate to the numerous readers of the Advocate. The cause of God in and about Stumpstown wears a better aspect at present than what it did for some time past. There was at one time a flourishing little Church in this place. But it appears that some disorderly persons crept into the Church, who caused dissensions and divisions. Happily, however, we have reason to believe that the Church has got pretty well rid of them. Their hypocrisy has been exposed, and they were expelled. Yet, notwithstanding all these trials and difficulties, there were still a few that bore up under these trying circumstances, and who did not defile their garments, nor bow their knees to Baal, but "contended earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints."

The prospects for several years past were very gloomy. We had held several protracted meetings here, without any visible good being effected. But when God's ministers and people were almost ready to give up the struggle, God at once favored us with an out-pouring of his spirit and an increase of Zion's sons and daughters.

On the 26th of January we commenced a protracted meeting, which continued every evening until the 15th of February. On the first evening the prospects were not very flattering; but on Sunday evening, the 27th, darkness began to give way to brighter hopes, and two came out to be prayed for, and one was set at liberty. On the 28th two more came out. From this time more or less came out and obtained pardon till the close of the meeting. On the 12th of February we attended to the ordinances of God's house, and had a glorious time. We had the Master with us. The bonds of Christian love and union were strengthened. On the 13th I preached to the young converts, and gave an invitation to such that felt disposed to join in with us, to take the Bible for their rule of faith and practice, when eight gave us the hand of fellowship. On the 14th seven more were taken into church-fellowship, and on the 15th three more.

Thus this meeting lasted 21 days, and the result of it was, 18 were hopefully converted to God, 18 were taken into church-fellowship, and some more will, I think, soon follow. Before this meeting, the Church in Stumpstown numbered about seven; now it numbers about twenty-five. To God be all the glory.

O, that these dear brethren and sisters may be shining ornaments in the Church of God.

A. SNYDER.

Linglestown, Feb. 19, 1850.

No Ordination.

Lancaster City, March 4, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

Not long since, while in conversation with a certain minister, I was very politely informed that we, as a ministry, were without a valid ordination, inasmuch as we were not set apart by the imposition of hands; and if we were thus consecrated, we were without the regular succession: consequently unordained.

This being a subject to which I never had, previously, devoted much attention, he took me rather on surprise. Well, said I, our ordination does not appear to be of more doubtful validity than the Nag's Head, or the Lambeth consecration of Arch-Bishop Parker. In the former it is said, that a Bible was placed upon his head while he kneeled in the Nag's Head Tavern, and he was commanded by the officiating ecclesiastic to rise a Bishop: and whether the entire account concerning the latter was not a hoax, manufactured to save the succession, is a matter of grave doubt to me. Yet this is the channel through which comes the Episcopal succession of the Anglican church, and the ordination of which he made his boast.

Now, with regard to our ordination, I confess with candor, that I am not confirmed in the belief of its validity. I am rather in the dark. Will you or some one of your ready scribes, (especially some of your courteous ones,) gives us some light on this important subject? Yours as ever,

J. H. HURLEY.

Letter from Brother J. Myers.

Ashland, Ohio, Feb. 4, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

This informs you and the readers of the ever welcome messenger, the Advocate, that we, in this section of God's vineyard, have not been altogether without some visitation of God's mercy in the character of some powerful awakenings, or as they are commonly termed, "Revivals of religion."

In the first place, I will mention that the Episcopal Methodists of this place, under the pastoral labors of the Rev. Mr. Dubois, commenced a protracted meeting on Christmas last, which resulted in an extraordinary display of reviving and awakening power. A number of backsliders were reclaimed, many luke-warm professors were revived, and scores of sinners awakened and hopefully converted. The meetings were continued for three weeks daily, and are measurably in progress up to this date. It was a common occurrence to see from 30 to 40 humble suppliants at the altar, praying fervently, and desiring the prayers of the Church. It is estimated that at this period considerably more than one hundred have experienced converting grace. Of this number above 70 have united with the M. E. Church. Among these was a celebrated member of the bar, of Ashland. His confession with the mouth created quite an interest in a congregation of some hundreds.

The First Presbyterian Church, under the pastoral care of the Rev. Mr. Robinson, of this town, has likewise at this time interesting meetings in progress.

The Rev. Mr. Emerson, of the Lutheran Church of this place, has a protracted meeting going on these three weeks at Swineford's meeting-house, three miles from Ashland. At this meeting numbers are out every special meeting, say from 10 to 20, seeking the Lord in earnest. Many have found Him of whom Moses and the Prophets have written.

The ministers named above are all excellent men—yea, I may say, of the "excellent of the earth." It is only a matter of regret that many fine ministers do not teach their hearers and friends to observe all things whatsoever the Lord Jesus has commanded them.

They are anxious and leave nothing undone to induce their converts to unite with their respective churches, and subscribe to their favorite creeds, while they neglect the weightier matters of the gospel and injunctions connected with the Divine mission. It is really a pity that the commandments of God are so much superseded by the traditions of the Elders and the doctrines of men.

When the advocates of an unadulterated gospel protest against such heterogenous proceedings, the reply commonly is—"O you are laying entirely too much stress on non-essentials and external ceremonies." At the same time the advocates for Sectarian branches lay infinitely more stress on non-essentials than the former. These facts I stand prepared to prove every time an infant is christened.

While Heaven has favored the above named people, the "Church of God" in Ohio has received a few crumbs that fall from their Master's table. About one month before Christmas, at a protracted meeting at Vermillion Church, four embraced religion, two were baptized and five united in church-fellowship. Subsequently at Brownsville, Knox county, an awakening begun, and some thirty were hopefully converted. A number were immersed, and a new Church, of some 14 or 15 members, was organized. The work there, I understand, is still progressing.

Later, at the Brick meeting-house, near Reedsburg, Ashland county, at a protracted meeting, quite a cheering number obtained a lively hope, and the Church strengthened by the addition of new members. All this just mentioned, is on the territory travelled by brothers Bear and Williams, with the aid, at the protracted meetings, of brothers Adams, Neidigh, Gill and Neil. The breach in this latter Church, occasioned by and through the recklesness of some individuals, has been mended, by means of the disaffected ones (although sincerely so) confessing their errors and coming again into church-fellowship.

Besides the above, we hear that the work of grace is still in the ascendancy in Wooster, in the Church where Elder Megrew is pastor—and no less so in the villages of Smithville, Madisonville and Union, Wayne county, where Elder Deshiri is laboring in word and doctrine. May the good Lord send more of such heavenly rains upon his "spiritual plantation."

The churches that I am in the habit of visiting and occasionally preaching to, such as Shenandoah, Briggle's, Vermillion, Jeromesville, are in my humble opinion, all in a fit state to cherish revivals, had they only workmen—had they only teachers to protract meetings at these respective places. There is undoubtedly a great want of active preachers in Ohio. The harvest is truly great, but where are the laborers? I am getting letters every short time from different parts of Ohio from old friends, calling for preachers.—Most of them, too, express their willingness to support faithful laborers.

In favor of the preachers of Ohio, I am compelled to say, numbers would be willing to supply all these destitute places, had they only their way open—could they only be sustained with the hope that their families would only not suffer during their absence on their Master's business.

Many, I do believe, would go out as missionaries, had they only the assurance of 80 or 100 dollars per annum; for the balance they would trust to Providence. But to leave house and home, amidst wealthy, or at least, well circumstanced brethren, whose eyes stand out with fatness, is too much for a poor preacher, with a companion and a number of responsibilities, looking up to him for support, without any guarnantee whatever to him, that his bread shall be given him and his water sure.

If temporal things were in the Lord's hands and entirely at his disposal, the prospect would not be so gloomy. But as men have got these things,—and they consider them their own,—they are at times not so ready and willing to give them, without some earthly compensation or equivalent.

I would write more detailedly concerning the "refreshing season," were I not pretty well assured that either brother Bear or Williams, or some of the other Elders, will give a definite and very encouraging statement of matters and things on their field of labor before long. Adieu. Yours, &c.,

J. MYERS.

Letter from Brother John Shuler.

Ottawa, Illinois, Feb. 2, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

As it is some time since I have written to you, I would now drop you a few lines. The reason I have not written before, I had nothing good to lay before the numerous readers of the Advocate. I might have done like brother Snavely, given you a flowery description of our beautiful country and its advantages, but this I forbear doing, notwithstanding I should like to have some of my brethren here. But no more of this.

I sent you a paper a few weeks ago, with a notice in of Elder Jacob Knapp holding a protracted meeting in Ottawa. I would just say the meeting has closed. He preached four weeks, and the interest, or rather excitement, was great, although the weather was bad and the roads muddy. Our large Court House was crowded all the time. In fact, the last night I believe was the fullest meeting. He so poured down the terrors of the law, that it excited the people much. He aimed chiefly at the Universalists, Sweedenbourgens and Catholics. The latter, I suppose, would have risen up against him, had they not feared the people. There was an Irish Doctor rose one night determined to speak, but the crowd raised their voices throughout the house, "Put him out, kick him out," &c., and the poor fellow was glad to get out in a hurry. The Elder's arguments were powerful. He certainly has done good here. From 40 to 50 were out to be prayed for several nights, and the Elder stated that there were 80 or 90 conversions. But this I somewhat doubt. They baptized nineteen, and I think if there were forty converted, it is all. The meetings are still going on, both by the Baptists and Methodists. In the latter, there is quite an interesting work; as high as twenty out a night to be prayed for, and the Church quite awake: but it is laid to the efforts of Elder Knapp. I do hope and pray that the good Lord will yet awaken the Church and people more and more, on the glorious subject of religion.

My dear brother Winebrenner, I still feel a determination, by the grace of God, to make my way to the kingdom. I may say, that I stand alone as a member of the Church of God. Brother and sister Souders have united with the Baptist Church. But what I can learn, they are dissatisfied. Close communion does not go with them. If they will have as much trouble to get out of it as I had, I can truly feel for them.

I was glad to learn from the Advocate, that a good work was in progress in your borough. I read the Advocate with interest, and have been trying to get some subscribers. I think I shall before long be able to get some.

If brother Harn will come to Illinois, I will give ten dollars. I do hope the time is not far distant when I can again enjoy the privileges of the Church. I must now bring my letter to a close, for fear I shall be too tedious. I could still say more; but let this suffice. Pray for me.

I remain yours in the bonds of Christian-fellowship, JOHN SHULER.

OBITUARY OF HENRY BEIDLER.

Died, on the 12th inst., at his residence, in Holmes county, Ohio, Mr. Henry Beidler, only son of Elder John Beidler, aged 26 years, 11 months and 2 days.

He took ill with typhus fever on the 3d inst., and continued to grow worse till the evening of the 12th, when he departed this life, leaving an affectionate companion, four children, a dear father and mother, and two sisters, to mourn over his departure.

His remains were followed by a large concourse of friends and relatives to the Bethel, into which the corpse was taken, where an appropriate discourse was delivered on the occasion, by the writer, from Amos 4: 12. "Prepare to meet thy God, O! Israel." This was a solemn day to many, and we think will not soon be forgotten. After divine services, we proceeded in solemn procession to the grave-yard, where the dead was deposited in the silent tomb, to rest till that day.

Great God, in whom we live,
Prepare us for that day;
Help us in Jesus to believe,
To watch, and wait, and pray.

Fight on, my soul, till death
Shall bring thee to thy God;
He'll take thee at thy parting breath
Up to his blest abode.

A. HOLMS.

Holmes Co., Ohio, Feb. 14, 1850.

OBITUARY OF CATHARINE S. V. GILBERT.

Died, in Cavetown, Washington county, Md., on the morning of the 2d of February, 1850, at the residence of her mother, Catharine V. S. Gilbert, consort of Ephraim Gilbert, in the 24th year of her age.

In the death of the deceased, society has lost an ornament, and her husband a gem which naught but heaven can replace. As a daughter, she was dutiful and kind; as a wife, she was always ready to share with her husband the ills of this life.

About six weeks before she died, she determined to seek the Lord with all her heart, and found him to the great joy of her soul. O! what a prop to lean upon in a dying hour. The writer has never known of a more powerful exhibition of faith and grace, than was manifested in the case of the deceased. She would often clap her hands in triumph; for death had lost its terrors, and she only waited for it to open the gates of endless joy.

To Jesus, the crown of my hope,
My soul is in haste to be gone;
O, bear me, ye cherubims, up,
And waft me away to my home.

Her death will not soon be forgotten in this neighborhood. It has, I trust, fastened upon many hearts like a nail in a sure place. May the friends of the deceased prepare to meet her in that better world where parting is no more, and where God shall wipe all tears from their eyes forever.

JOHN BECHTLE.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

A Great Lake in Central Africa.—An immense lake has been discovered in the central parts of Africa, hitherto unexplored, by the Rev. Robert Livingston, an English missionary among the tribe called the Buccanas. It lies in about nineteen degrees south latitude, and about five hundred and sixty miles north north-west of Kolobeng. A writer in the London Athenæum says, that "it is the most magnificent geographic discovery of modern times."

Change of Church-relations.—Rev. Dr. Higgins, for some years a popular preacher of the Methodist denomination, in Boston, has changed his theologicol views, and united with the Orthodox Congregational Church.

To Cook Frozen Meat.—If frozen meat is brought into a warm room and thawed by heat—if you have not got good teeth, and the digestive powers of an ostrich, you had best leave that part of the dinner for those who have. Therefore, bring from the larder, the night before it is wanted, the meat or poultry intended for dinner, and plunge it into cold water. The next morning a thick coating of ice will be found encrusting the whole piece. Take it off and change the water, and let it remain until the hour for dressing it. If to be boiled, put it over the fire in cold water; if for a roast, put it not before too brisk a fire, as there is always danger that the heart of a large piece may not be completely thawed, in which case it will be spoiled.

Vegetables should be thawed in the same way, and they will be better for having been forzen, with the exception of potatoes.—Sci. Am.

New Telegraphic Discovery.—Mr. W. S. Thomas, of Norwich, N. Y., has taken out a patent for what he calls the electro-thermic telegraph. The Tribune says: "This instrument is said to possess all the advantages of Morse and Bain's, and in some respects is far superior. Mr. Thomas does not use the magnet, which is the basis of Morse's electric magnetic telegraphs, or decompose salt like Morse and Bain's electric chemical telegraphs, but works on an entirely new principle, never before applied to telegraphing, and is placed beyond all litigation. The principle of this invention is caloric, generated and controlled by the galvanic battery, and with the new manipulator the operator is enabled, it is asserted, to transact twice the amount of business in the same time as any telegraph now in use."

Emigration of the Florida Indians.—The Tallahassee Floridian of the 9th ult., gives the terms upon which the Florida Indians have agreed to emigrate, and says that it is believed that the Indians will all be out of the country by the last of May. The following are the terms:

"Each warrior is to receive (before he goes on board the boat) $500, each woman $100, each child $100. Bowlegs himself will receive about $10,000, and two or three sub-chiefs about $5,000 each. They are to be provided with rations for one year after their arrival in Arkansas, and to be guaranteed in the possession of their negroes. It is estimated that the whole cost of the removal will be about $225,000."

To Wash Black Worsted or Woollen Hose.—If new, soak all night, then wash in hot suds with beef's gall, a table-spoonful to half a pail of water. Rinse till no color comes out. Then stretch on stocking-frames, or iron them when damp on the wrong side.

To Correct Sourness in Milk, Cream and Bread.—It is not generally known that the sourness of milk and cream may be immediately corrected by the addition of a small quantity of the common carbonate of magnesia, in powder. Half a teaspoonful (about equal to four grains,) may be added to a pint of milk or cream, if only slightly sour; a larger quantity in proportion to the degree of sourness.

From two to three grains may be added to every pound of flour to prevent sourness in bread, so injurious to some constitutions.

Carbonate of soda is sometimes employed for the same purpose, but it communicates a very unpleasant flavor to the bread, and in the case of milk or cream, is worse than the disease.—Sci. American.

Boiling Potatoes.—An Irish paper gives the following directions for cooking potatoes: Put them in a pot or kettle without a lid, with water just sufficient to cover them. After the water comes nearly to boiling, pour it off, replace it with cold water, into which throw a good portion of salt. After they are boiled and the water poured off, let them stand on the fire ten or fifteen minutes to dry.

Female College.—The Methodists have a Female College in Cincinnati, Ohio. It commenced operations in 1844, with 202 pupils. The number of pupils in 1849 was 453. It has graduated eleven young ladies in the classical and thirty-one in the literary department. Hundreds of others have taken a partial course, and have gone forth into society, to be the active and efficient advocates of female education.

Court House Burnt.—On the night of the 6th ult., the Court House at Sullivan, Sullivan county, Ia., was burnt to the ground, including the Clerk's office, Treasurer's office, Recorder's office, office of the Justice of the Peace, Post office, and the county library. Records, books and papers of every description were consumed, which will be a total loss to the county and others concerned.

Preserving Buds and Grafts.—Preserving the scions of fruit trees in moist saw-dust, has proved superior to any other plan.—We have preserved scions, which were cut in summer, for budding, till the following spring, and grafted with entire success, and we have kept winter-cut grafts till midsummer, perfectly fresh, and employed them successfully in budding.—Cum. Pres.

Great Fire in New Orleans.—A tremendous fire occurred in New Orleans, February 16, commencing in Camp street. The Picayune office and Robb's extensive Banking-house were destroyed. The loss is about half a million of dollars, which is mostly insured. About thirty buildings were destroyed.

N. York.—The strong resolutions against slavery extension have passed the Legislature of New York. They declare, among other things, that Congress ought to relieve the Federal Government from all responsibility for the existence of slavery. They instruct the Senators and request the Representatives of New York to vote for the abolition of the slave trade in the District of Columbia.

Growth of Western Cities.—It is estimated that Cincinnati will show a population of 125,000, and St. Louis one of 70,000 by the census of 1850. But for the ravages of the cholera last summer, each would have been considerably higher. The suburbs of either city, which practically form a part of it, are not included in the foregoing estimates.

The Cholera.—This dreadful scourge is still lingering at the port of New York, where there have been some deaths every week for some time past—principally newly arrived passengers from Europe. On a steamboat in Louisiana, whilst going up the Mississippi, the cholera broke out, and 8 or 10 passengers fell victims to its ravages.

Ireland.—The wretchedness in Ireland continues to increase. The cultivation of the soil is neglected, and the stagnation of business is general. The emigration of the lower classes, the only safety-valve for the cumulative distress, is now rendered impossible by absolute penury.

Cure for Felon or Willow.—Take the yolk of one egg, an equal quantity of strained honey, one table-spoonful of spirits of turpentine, (fresh drawn,) one tea-spoonful of spirits of camphor; mix well, and thicken to the consistence of a thin paste, spread it upon the sore thinly and cold.

Whooping Cough.—A tea-spoonful of castor-oil to a table-spoonful of molasses: a tea-spoonful of the mixture to be given whenever the cough is troublesome. It will afford relief at once, and in a few days it effects a cure. The same remedy relieves the croup, however violent the attack.

Tennessee.—The Legislature of this State has adopted a series of resolutions against the Southern Nashville Convention. She refuses to countenance the unpatriotic movement, and announces that she "will stand by and defend the UNION AT ALL HAZARDS, and to the last extremity!"

Susquehanna County Bank.—The Grand Jury of Susquehanna county, found an indictment against the former Cashier of this Bank for obtaining property under false pretences.

Columbus and Xenia Railroad.—The first passenger train passed over this road several weeks ago.

Granville College.—The last will and testament of Peter Mills, late of Zanesville, deceased, bequeathed one-third of his entire possessions to Granville College. By this act of generosity the College will receive a legacy ranging from ten to fifteen thousand dollars.

☞ The steamship Cherokee left New York Saturday afternoon with 320 passengers for California. The New York Commercial learns that the rush for California is so great that the Messrs. Aspinwall cannot issue any more tickets for their steamers until June.

The Decision in the Gaines Case.—A telegraphic despatch, from N. Orleans, states that the decision of the U. S. District Court was rendered on Thursday, the 21st ult, by Judge M'Caleb against Mrs. Gaines, on nearly every point—dismissing her bill.

☞ President Taylor visited Richmond, Va., on the 22d ult., and participated in the ceremonies of laying the corner-stone of the Washington monument. His presence excited great enthusiasm. A procession a mile in length was formed.

Ocean Steamers.—Within the past five years, ocean steamships have been constructed in the United States, the tonnage of which, in the aggregate, amounts to fifty-six thousand tons!

Cholera.—The cholera has appeared among the troops of the 9th regiment of U. S. Infantry, who had just landed at Indianola, from Texas. Seventeen have died, and other cases have occurred, but are convalescent.

Shrinking Flannel.—Enclose new flannel in a bag; put it into a boiler with cold water, heat and boil it. It will never shrink after this operation, and may be immediately made up into garments.

Pittsburg and Erie Railroad.—Fifteen thousand shares, amounting to $750,000, have been subscribed to the Pittsburg and Erie Railroad, and $35,000 paid in, according to the Pittsburg Gazette

To Remove Wart.—Wash them with a strong solution of pearl-ash, and let it dry on the warts. The warts will soon disappear.

☞ The Burnett House in Cincinnati is the largest Hotel in America. It cost 225,000 dollars, and is capable of accommodating 550 persons.

THE GOOD CHOICE

The pious Bishop Arrowsmith once exclaimed, "Let Diotrephes say, It is good for me to have pre-eminence. Let Judas say, It is good for me to bear the bag. Let Demas say, It is good for me to embrace the present world. But do thou, O my soul, say with David, It is good for me to draw near to God."

MISCELLANEOUS.

OBERLIN RESOLUTIONS.

On the appearance of Henry Clay's resolutions, the citizens of Oberlin, Ohio, convened and gave expression to their views and feelings in respect to them, by the passage of the following among other resolutions:

Resolved, That we see in the resolutions of Henry Clay on the subject of Slavery, laid before the Senate of the United States, on the 29th of January, 1850, an attempt, under the mask of compromise, to secure every object to the interest of slavery; on pretence of union and harmony, to sacrifice the great ends for which alone union and harmony are desirable; and in the name of fairness, justice, and equity, to stab fairness, justice and equity to the very vitals.

Resolved, That the Constitution of the United States gives to Congress "the right to make all needful regulations respecting the Territories,"—"for the purpose of establishing justice, ensuring domestic tranquility and securing the blessings of liberty in the people and their posterity," and that to give up the government of these Territories, except on the express and unalterable condition that Slavery shall never curse their soil or crush their people, is to betray justice, intead of establishing it, is to sow the dragon's teeth of discord, instead of ensuring domestic tranquility, and is to open the door to Slavery in regions now free, instead of securing liberty to the people and their posterity; and that therefore the proposal of Henry Clay that Congress shall leave the question of Slavery in those Territories to be settled by their inhabitants, is treacherous alike, to the trust committed to Congress by the Constitution, to the slaves of this country, to the present and future inhabitants of those Territories, and to the great ends for which government is formed.

SWEDES IN ILLINOIS.

Within the last three or four years, five or six thousand Swedish emigrants have settled in the Western States—mostly, however, in Illinois, in Henry county, where a large colony has been established, on something like the same principle with Rapp, Owen, and others. A correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce gives the following description of them, which is really a lamentable one:—

Within a few years past, a man by the name of Jansen, appeared in Sweden, claiming to be inspired, and to be endowed with divine power. He was soon surrounded by followers, much upon the principle of Mormonism. That a clear field might be opened for his operations, he emigrated to this country, something more than three years ago, with as many of his adherents as could be induced to follow him. As an important part of his scheme, his followers were required to place their money and their most valuable property in common stock, under the control of the prophet. He selected a location in the southern part of Henry county, at a point now popularly know as "Bishop's Hill." In a year or two he found himself surrounded by, perhaps, six hundred disciples. The cardinal point in his creed was, an implicit reception of his revelations; and these extended to all matters, even domestic and matrimonial. If we may credit the reports of those who have shaken off the spell that seems to have bound them, Nauvoo never exhibited scenes of deeper moral degradation and corruption. At any rate, Jansen's authority was absolute, and its exercise unlimited. The multitude ate and labored in common; fields were enclosed and cultivated, and harvests were gathered by the labor of these dupes, who were fed on corn, instead of wheat, for the very obvious reason, that the former at twelve and a half cents a bushel is cheaper, as an article of diet. than wheat at twenty-five.—The profits resulting from this economy, of course went to fill the coffers of Jansen.

The rigid exercise of authority, and the novel, or rather the immoral character and workings of the system, soon began to cause defections. These gave occasion for still more glowing promises for the faithful, and more terrible denunciations of divine vengeance against apostates. For a time immigration more than filled the ranks of the deserters; but during the past year, the new comers have been comparatively few; while defection has been accomplishing its work with increasing effect. Last summer the cholera was very fatal among them, the number of deaths amounting to about one hundred and fifty. The present population of Bishop's Hill is supposed to be about four hundred. These include all the followers of Jansen in this country.

DISAPPOINTING CONGREGATIONS.

Few prevalent sins among ministers have a worse tendency than the extreme carelessness which some manifest in meeting their appointments. If they give out an appointment, it is always a problem with the people whether they will come. Some slight affair in matters or feeling, is a sufficient apology for them to stay away; when, if two or three dollars had been depending, they would have made a greater effort to save it, than would have been required to have met their appointment.—Such a course of conduct has been the cause of much mischief. The people lose all confidence in the preacher; the brethren, being few in number, get disheartened, for when he does come, he always has a meagre congregation, few being willing to come out on uncertainties; and thus religion is brought into disrepute, the church runs down, and sin triumphs. And all because the minister evidently considers his work of minor importance, and his veracity of little worth. It does seem if there is any thing short of downright immorality, which demands the giving up of credentials, it is this careless negligence in meeting appointments.—Morn. Star.

WORK FOR ALL.

"It is a fundamental error, (says the Rev. J. A. James,) a practical heresy of most pernicious influence, to consider the conversion of souls as merely ministerial work. This is Popery and Puseyism, which would restrict the conveyance of renewing grace to the medium of priestly and sacramental channels. Against this, the whole Church of God ought to rise up in the attitude of firm resistance. As an honor—and it is one of the brightest and richest that can light upon the head of mortal or immortal—the work of saving souls is as truly and as legitimately within the reach of the pious pauper in the work house, or the godly child in a Sunday School, or the religious maid-servant in a family, as within the grasp of the mitred prelate."

POETRY.

ALL THINGS EARNEST—M. 7's.

1. Time in earnest, passing by;
Death is earnest, drawing nigh.
Sinner! wilt thou trifling be?
Time and death appeal to thee.

2. Life in earnest: when 'tis o'er,
Thou returnest nevermore.
Soon to meet eternity,
Wilt thou never serious be?

3. Heaven is earnest: solemnly
Float its voices down to thee.
O thou mortal, art thou gay,
Sporting thro' thine earthly day?

4. Hell is earnest: fiercely roll
Burning billows near thy soul.
Woe for thee! if thou abide Unredeemed, unsanctified!

5. God is earnest: kneel and pray
Ere thy season pass away—
Ere be set his judgment throne,
Vengeance ready, mercy gone.

6. Christ is earnest, bids thee "come!"
Paid thy spirit's priceless sum.
Wilt thou spurn thy Saviour's love,
Pleading with thee from above?

7. Thou refusest! wretched one!
Thou despisest God's dear Son!
Madness! dying sinner, turn!
Lest his wrath within thee burn.

8. When thy pleasures all depart,
What will soothe thy fainting heart?
Friendless, desolate, alone,
Entering a world unknown!

9. O, be earnest! loitering
Thou wilt perish: lingering
Be no longer—rise and flee;
Lo! thy Saviour waits for thee.

TRY—KEEP TRYING.

Have your efforts proved in vain?
Do not sink to earth again;
Try—keep trying.
They who yield can nothing do,
A feather's weight will break them through;
Try—keep trying.
On yourself alone relying,
You will conquer; try—keep trying.

Falter not; but upward rise;
Put forth all thy energies,
Try—keep trying.
Every step that you progress
Will make your future effort less;
Try—keep trying.
On the truth and God relying,
You will conquer; try—keep trying.

Pond'rous barriers you may meet,
But against them bravely beat;
Try—keep trying.
Naught should drive you from the track,
Or turn you from your purpose back;
Try—keep trying.
On yourself alone relying,
You will conquer; try—keep trying.

You will conquer if you try—
Win the good before you die;
Try—keep trying.
Remember—nothing is so true,
As they who dare will ever do,
Try—keep trying.
On yourself and God relying,
You will conquer; try—keep trying.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 19th ult., by Elder C. Price, Mr. Lewis Hull to Miss Julia Ann Bloom, both of Carroll county, Md.

On the 28th ult., in Lancaster city, by Elder J. H. Hurley, Mr. Zina Fuller to Miss Eliza Manning, both of Chester county, Pa.

On the 23d ult., by Elder G. U. Harn, Mr. Christian Whisler to Miss Maria Ann Funk, all of Harrisburg.

On the 24th ult., by Elder A. Swartz, Mr. Jacob Wilson to Miss Harriet Reener, both of Londonderry township, Dauphin county.

On the 7th inst., by the Editor, Mr. William Valentine to Miss Sarah McLain, both of Harrisburg.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!"

DIED—At Washington, Lancaster county, Pa., on the 6th of February, 1850, Joseph, son of Andrew J. and Catharine Kauffman, aged 2 years, 4 months and 21 days.

The shaft of death has been thrust into the family circle, and bereft it of a son and brother. Such a bereavement may be keenly felt, and the loss may occasion much sorrow, but when the reflection comes up before us that a heavenly hand has deprived the family of one whose infant tongue now chants the lays of heaven, we ought to be content, knowing that the will of God had so ordered it; but we ought also take heed to fit ourselves to meet him in the realms of unalloyed pleasure.

"He died in beauty like a rose
Dropped from its parent stem;
He died in beauty like a pearl
Dropped from some diadem."

G. R.

In this borough, on the 23d ult., Mr. Jacob Schott, aged about 30 years.

On the 19th ult., in the 16th year of his age, Benjamin Lalayette Jordan, youngest son of Benjamin Jordan, Esq., of Walnut Hill, in this county.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Camp-meetings in Ohio.

1. One in the bounds of the Chester Church, Chester township, Wayne county, commencing on the 15th of August.

2. One in Summit county, near East Liberty, commencing on the 22d of August.

3. One on the old camp-ground, one and a half miles West of Reedsburg, Ashland county, commencing on the 29th of August.

Missionary Pledges.

We, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850 the sums annexed to our names for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner,	-	pd	$10 00
William Reichert,	-	-	5 00
Isaac Miller,	-	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	-	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	-		5 00
M. F. Snavely,	-	-	10 00
Jacob Miller,	-	-	10 00
James Miller,	-	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh,	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	-	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	-	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich,	-	pd	7 50
Abraham Swartz,	-	-	5 00
A liberal brother,	-		20 00
A liberal sister,		pd	2 00
David Strickler,	-		5 00
James Casy,	-	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	-	5 00

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate.
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4 25	a 4	37½
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	2 50	a 2	56
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	2 37½	a 2	50
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			95	a	98
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	55	a	56
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	50	a	50
Do.	Oats,	do. - -	28	a	28
Do.	Barley,	do. - -	60	a	65
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	4 00	a 4	25
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2 25	a 2	50
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1 00	a 1	10
BEEF, per cwt.		- - - -	5 00	a 5	50
PORK,	do.	- - - - -	5 00	a 5	25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -	8½	a	10½
BUTTER,	do.	- - - - -	16	a	20
LARD,	do.	- - - - -	7	a	8
TALLOW,	do.	- - - - -	8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.			6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - - -	12½	a	12½
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -	75	a	75
ONIONS,	do.	- - -	75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - - -	1 00	a 1	12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1 25	a 1	30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -	37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -	30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -	1 25	a 1	25
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -	10 00	*a*10	00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	4 50	a 4	50

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4 87½	a 5	00
Do.	Rye,	do. -	2 87	a 2	87
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	3 00	a 3	06
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1 06	a 1	07
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	62½	a	62½
Do.	Corn, old	do. - -	61	a	62
Do.	Oats,	do. - -	31	a	31
Do.	Barley,	do. - -	75	a	80
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	4 37	a 4	50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2 75	a 3	00
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1 35	a 1	40
BEEF, per cwt.,		- - -	7 00	a 8	75
PORK,	do.	- - - - -	7 00	a 7	25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo descimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

EVANGELICAL MUSIC.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us; and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music."

☞ For sale at this office, and at our Depositories. Editor.

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;

ENTITLED

History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

List of our Depositories and Local Agents.

For the convenience of the brethren, and the public generally, we have come to the conclusion to establish Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

WM. A. LEARY & Co., No. 156 North Second street, BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, and DANIEL GETTY, No. 110 South Third street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, New York.

WATSON & WILLIAMS, St. Louis, Mo.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN C. OWENS, Baltimore, Md.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, and such others as are named in the following list of Books, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail prices.
History of Denominations in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries,	2 00
500 Sketches & Skeletons of Sermons,	2 50
Life of Christ and the Apostles, -	2 50
D'Aubigne's Hist. of the Reformation,	1 50
Wandering Soul, - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament,	50
German Reference Testament, -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - -	25
Harn on Feet-Washing, -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, -	15
Traveler's Guide to the West, -	50

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FERGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XIV. HARRISBURG, Pa. APRIL 1, 1850. NUMBER 23.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.

The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.

In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY AND STATE.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

Amendment to the Constitution.

The bill making the Judges elective by the people, in this State, instead of being appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate, has passed the Legislature, and will now be presented, at the next general election, to the voters of the Commonwealth, for their ratification or rejection.

Reports on Federal Relations.

The Select Committee in the House of Representatives have made two reports, a majority and minority report, on the Slavery question.

The majority report takes the ground that the citizens of the Slave States have the same right to take their slaves to the Territories as the citizens of the Free States have to take their horses, cattle and other property.

The minority report dissents from this doctrine, and holds that slavery exists only by virtue of municipal laws; and hence that property in man, cannot exist in the Territories now free, or in any other place where there are no such municipal laws. And besides, that the doctrine held by the majority report can have no force until three-fifths of stock and property are represented in Congress, and the slaves are.

The Time to Pay.

One number more and this volume will be out. Now, therefore, is the best time to pay for the next volume, for all who want the paper at one dollar a year. Please read the terms and act accordingly.

A Complimentary Notice.

The Religious Telescope, the organ of the denomination calling themselves "United Brethren in Christ," kindly notices our paper in the following chaste and courteous manner, a few errors excepted:

The Church Advocate.—This is the title of a quarto semi-monthly sheet published by the "Church of God"—is edited by the principal instrument in the formation of this denomination, the Rev. John Winebrenner. Our long acquaintance therewith renders it, with other things, quite a welcome visiter to our office. The Advocate, advocates, in the main a sound theology, and should have a much more extensive circulation than it has. Published at Harrisburg, Pa. Price, $1,00.

Whiting's Translation of the New Testament.

A copy of Whiting's translation of the New Testament was kindly presented to us, by Elder Josiah Litch. We have partially examined the work, and, judging from the parts read and examined, we have no hesitation in pronouncing it a good and faithful translation; only it is in some respects too literal. The word CHRIST, for instance, is always rendered the Anointed; and Gospel, good news, &c. These and other words, had better, we think, been retained in the common version. But, then, in some other respects, the old King's English is very much improved, and the language rendered more intelligible, chaste and conspicuous. We recommend it to the public as a work deserving a generous and liberal patronage.

A Chance for the Preachers.

All the preachers who will procure five new subscribers for the 15th volume of the Advocate, and become responsible for the pay, shall have their own volume gratis. Who will take the task of raising that amount of subscribers, and thereby get their own paper free? Try it, brethren—it can be done.

We see by some of our exchanges, that many of our Sectarian neighbors are sending in new subscribers by dozens. Why cannot the preachers of the Church of God do the same, especially where there have been such glorious reformations and large ingatherings into the churches?

There is another reason why renewed effort should be made. It is this: To supply the annual decreasc or falling off. There is a yearly falling off, by reason of deaths, removals, an indisposition to religious reading, and the love of money. Unless, therefore, a newspaper has a regular annual influx of new subscribers, the subscription list will run down and the paper cannot be sustained. Hence, we solicit the co-operation of the preachers and others for our sake, their own sake and for the sake of the cause of truth and religion.

A Call to Answer Certain Questions.

Brother Winebrenner:—

Please answer the following questions and oblige J. B.

1. Has a person who is lawfully divorced, a right to marry whilst the former partner is living?

Answer.—Yes. But then, what do you call a lawful divorce? There are many divorces granted in these lax and degenerate days, which are not Scripturally lawful.

2. Can we consistently baptize and receive into church-fellowship, a person who has been put away, or divorced, when we have strong presumptive evidence that God has blessed them?

Answer.—The propriety or impropriety of the procedure referred to, will depend entirely upon the nature of the divorce. The legality of the one will justify the other: and vice versa.

3. Is it lawful for first cousins to marry? If not, is it lawful to fellowship them into the Church?

Answer.—It may be lawful for first cousins to marry; but, in our judgment, it is not expedient. In the Church they should be borne with.

Prof. Nevin's Sermon on the Name Christian.

A few Sabbaths ago, we heard Dr. J. W. Nevin preach a sermon on the origin and import of the name Christian.

After telling us that the name was derived from Christ, which signified an anointed one, he went on to expaciate on the idea as taught in the Heidleberg Catechism, that the term CHRIST in Greek, and MESSIAH in Hebrew, involved the mediatorial character—and that character the three-fold functions of Prophet, Priest and King.

His remarks on the official character of the Messiah, in the exercise of these functions, were highly interesting and evangelical. But, when he came to the elucidation of these functional duties, as involved in the name and character of the Christian and of the Christian Church, he rather overstepped the teachings of the New Testament. At any rate, we were at a loss to see the consistency of his doctrine and practice. If the name Christian is so sacred, so highly important, involves so much official dignity, and imposes such weighty responsibilities, as the Professor intimated, then I should like to see his answers to the following questions.

1st. Why is it that Paul never uses the name Christian in any of his 14 epistles, seeing he knew the importance of this name, and wrote all his epistles subsequent to the time that the disciples received this designation.

2d. Why does not the Professor quit wearing human names and assume Scriptural ones? Why does he go by that unseemly misnomer, "German Reformed Church?"—And why indulge so frequently in the hateful practice of nick-naming others, who would go by the name that the mouth of the Lord has given? Let him answer these questions, if he can.

Methodist Quarterly Review.

January, 1850. J. M'Clintock, D. D., Editor. New York: Lane & Scott, 200 Mulberry Street.

The contents of this number are: I. Plutarch: his Life, Character and Times, by Prof. W. S. Tyler. II. Oregon, by Dr. E. G. Meek. III. Rev. Jesse Lee, by Rev. Daniel Curry. IV. On the Interpretation of Mark ix. 49, 50. Modified from the German of Bahr. V. Life and Writings of the late Dr. Richards, by T. Paddock, D. D. VI. Lowell's Vision of Sir Launfal, by R. C. Pitman. VII. The Condition of the Dead, by Rev. James Porter. VIII. Living Authors of England, by G. W. Peck. IX. Egypt and its Monuments. X. Short Reviews on Notices of Books. XI. Miscellanies. XII. Religious Intelligence. XIII. Literary Intelligence.

This is the most thoroughly critical work with which we are acquainted in the whole range of Religious Literature. The editor evinces not only extraordinary talent, but an unusual degree of tact and industry in every department of the work. His Notices and Short Reviews are always numerous, able, discriminating and candid—far more than can justly be said of some of his contemporaries. The article on Plutarch is an interesting and scholarly critique upon one of the most interesting characters of Pagan antiquity. Dr. Paddock's article will not fail of eliciting attention for its lucid exposition of some of the mistakes of Calvinists. The Condition of the Dead is a clear and irrefragible refutation of the dogma of the Sleep of the Dead and its cognate nonsense. Mr. Peck's article administers some just rebukes to the author of the Living Authors of England—Thomas Powell.

Those who wish an able earnest Review would do well to take this. It is only two dollars per annum. Cheap enough.

A. D. W.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

SKETCH
OF A
DEBATE ON BAPTISM,
BETWEEN
J. KELLER AND A. OWEN;

Held at Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 19th, 20th, 21st, 22d and 23d of February, 1850.

REPORTED BY W. E. DRAKE,
For the Church Advocate and Religious Telescope.

TUESDAY, Feb. 19.—FIRST DAY'S DEBATE.

J. KELLER'S SECOND SPEECH.

BROTHER KELLER commenced his remarks by noticing that which had been asserted by brother Owen, in relation to what took place on the camp-ground. He then proceeded to say:—"I discovered he tried, in his last argument, to raise a prejudice in the audience against me. Well, if he thinks proper to pursue this course, let him do so. I ask him to show me where and when, in the days of the Apostles they were commissioned to go forth and preach the gospel of the kingdom to all nations—and where and when we have any account of converts being made from among the heathen, who told the Apostles that they preferred sprinkling?—that they preferred pouring?—that they preferred immersion?—No, he cannot; but he wished me to rise from my seat and tell him where Christ commanded but one action. I shall cheerfully do it, and with the text I quoted in the outset, I am prepared to prove that. What said the Messiah, the Great Head of the Church, before he left his Apostles at the Mount of Olives? He said, "Go out, and teach all nations and baptize them." Does he say "sprinkle and pour!" Does he not tell them they shall go baptizing them? Now, I think, here is one action; and the gentleman wants me to show where Christ commanded they should baptize but by one mode, as he terms it. He has not yet successfully touched my main argument, nor the quotations I made from the book of inspiration. I quoted, among others, a passage in the second book of Kings, but the gentleman has not noticed it, nor any of them. It would not suit his purpose. I want him to come up like a man, and meet those passages, and show if he can that they are erroneous.

As to the citations he has made, why they are entirely on my side of the question. He was proving my position the whole time.—He went on to prove from the lexicographers exactly what I had already proved, except one idea. He says that a man can wash his hands, having water poured out upon them, and he wishes me to show where a single person was immersed. Well, says Paul, "Therefore, we are buried with Christ in baptism." Paul himself and the Romans. Is it not a fact that they were buried with Christ in baptism. Does not Paul assert it? And is it not true! I am prepared to bring Pedobaptists to sustain my position; but, on that point I shall have more to say hereafter.—When last quoting from the lexicographers, I think I closed with Bretschneider. I will now continue by citing—

8. STOKIUS. "Baptizo generally, and by the force of the word, indicates the idea of simply dipping and diving; but properly it means to dip, or immerse in water. Baptisma, by the innate force of the term, properly imports immersion, or the dipping a thing into water that it may be washed or cleansed. In the sacrament of baptism, those to be baptized were immediately immersed, as now-a-days they are only sprinkled with water, that they may be washed from the pollution of sin, obtain the remission of it, and be received into the covenant of grace an heir of eternal life."

9. BASS. "To dip, immerse, to plunge in water, to bathe ourself, to be immersed in sufferings or afflictions."

10. JONES. "I plunge, I plunge in water, dip, baptize, bury, overwhelm."

11. GREENFIELD. "Baptize means to immerse, immerge, submerge, sink."

Now, I would remark here, that brother Owen in referring to the word "sinking," seemed to intimate that when we baptize a candidate we do not sink him altogether; but everybody knows when we sink something we do not leave it at the bottom.

12. PARKHURST. 'Primarily, 'to dip, immerse, or plunge in water;' but in the New Testament it occurs not strictly in this sense, unless so far as this is included in 'to wash ourself, be washed, wash the hands by immersion, or dipping them in water.' Mark vii. 4. Luke xi. 38. 'To be immersed, or plunged into a flood or sea, as it were, of grievous affliction and sufferings.'"

I will add one Latin and one English authority to those already quoted.

13. HEDERICUS. "To dip, to immerse, to overwhelm with water, to wash, to baptize in a sacred sense."

14. GROVES on baptizo says, "To dip, immerse, immerge, plunge, wash, cleanse, purify."

Now, Moderators, you perceive that these authors, most of them Pedobaptists, are men of learning, and they say that the first and foremost primary meaning of baptizo is "to dip, to plunge, to immerse." All admit—just like my opponent, I was almost ready to say when I got up—that our baptism is right, is Scriptural. And, what more do I want than that my enemies shall tell me my baptism is Scriptural? That is what satisfies my mind, and my friend admitted it not only once but thrice, and I am under the impression he will do it frequently before this discussion closes.

A. OWEN'S SECOND REPLY.

BROTHER OWEN. I shall not quote any more lexicographers, as it is plain and clear with me as it is with my opponent, from the authority already quoted, that with one exception, they all give "To wash," a generic term. Now, it has to be proved how the Saviour used the term. The lexicographers brought forward by brother Keller himself, in addition to giving "to dip," and "to plunge," and "to immerse," give "to wash," and one of them "to sink." He brings forward these lexicographers to prove express action, and that action is baptism. Immersion is baptism, and the only baptism, he says. And why? Because the only term used by the Saviour means only "to immerse." I prove it is "to sink." I prove it is not action, and if not action, how does he prove it is the point? Then how can we infer that the Saviour used it in the precise meaning of "to dip?" Not from the word itself. He has quoted about a dozen lexicographers, and they, with wonderful unanimity, give "to wash, to dip, to cleanse," and one only says "to sink." The gentleman thinks it is impossible to say "wash," without dipping. Now, we all know that this is not the fact. A man does not baptize himself; therefore, if another baptizes me, another can pour water on my hands. If I baptize myself, I can wash myself also. Suppose I held my hand under a pump, could I not wash my face then? So you see it is a perfect absurdity. You know I called upon him to produce the express warrant that teaches we should be immersed. Has he done it? He has brought forth the passage first quoted, "Go ye and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Lord;" but, I say this is begging the question. He is to prove that the term used by the Saviour meant "to dip." And, if he does not prove it, then he fails to make out his point. The question to be decided is, whether baptism means "to immerse" only; and, unless he proves that, he cannot certainly rely upon this passage. But he told you that the lexicographers he quoted were all Pedobaptists.

KELLER. No, sir—no, sir.

OWEN. You said you would quote from Pedobaptists.

KELLER. I said mostly.

OWEN. They were learned men, he admits. And, if they were not honest men, why did he quote from them? He inquires how came they to be Pedobaptists. Who made them Pedobaptists? They were learned and able men, and there certainly must have been something to influence them to that side of the question. That, in my mind, is an argument in favor of the position I have taken. He must go to some other sources, than those he has cited, to prove what he desires to do. And he must go to some other periods to show how many meanings the word baptizo has. It is applied in numerous other senses than those named. He brought forward, in his other speech, to which I had not time to reply, an argument that John was baptizing in Jordan. Now, as soon as he can prove that John put his candidates for baptism, in the water, I should like to see the passage that he quotes. He then leaves this question, and brings forth the burial argument. Now, I contend that Christ was not put under ground. There was no ground put upon him. He then, again, speaks of the primary meaning of the word baptizo. Now, it is not certain which was the primary meaning. I will read a little on the subject. The Rev. Mr. Rice, in his debate with the Rev. Mr. Campbell on Christian Baptism, says, at page 81 of the work:

"Professor Stuart expresses the opinion, as far as he can judge, that to dip was the original sense, and to dye a secondary meaning. Others, however, contend that to dye was the primary or original meaning. The word bapto, as far back as we can trace it, was used in both senses. It may be true, therefore, that to dye or color was the original meaning. Critics have not determined this question; nor can they prove that to immerse was the original meaning of the word."

Now, Moderators, you perceive from this it would be altogether unimportant if this were the primary meaning; but as words are constantly changing, it may have changed its meaning since the Saviour used it in reference to the ordinance. But, I would here say, the Saviour used the term not because of its mode, but to designate a religious ordinance; and I presume he made use of this term because it was a term in religious use among the Jews. There is a modern plan got up among those on the other side of the house to do away with the term "mode," and substitute the form of action. Now, I say that this is degrading the ordinance. Baptism is the whole action, but it is an ordinance instituted in God's house; and although it is degrading to call it an action, we call it an ordinance. And, therefore, it is wholly the application of water to the subject. He has taken the very ground I thought he would in asserting that I am on his side of the question. In my first speech I said that I believed immersion was a mode of baptism; but did I say it was the only mode? I did not. And has he come here to prove that immersion is baptism? He has. But is that all? No. He has to prove that it is the only mode, and it will be some time before I get on that side, I assure you. He talked about the commentators, and threatened to bring forward his Pedobaptist authors; but when they are presented, I shall be ready for him.

Prayer by brother Z. A. COLESTOCK.

AFTERNOON.—FIRST DAY.

Prayer by brother FLEAGLE.

J. KELLER'S THIRD SPEECH.

KELLER. Brother Owen informed you in his last speech that the authors I referred to were good and honest men, but he said he wished to know who made them Pedobaptists. I would inform him they were made as Luther and Calvin were. You all recollect, I trust, that the gentleman said Christ was not buried. Now, let us see how Paul and my opponent agree upon this point. Says Paul, in his first letter to the Corinthians xv. 1-4: "Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand; by which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain. For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures: and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day, according to the Scriptures." Thank God for that doctrine, According, then, to this Scripture, he was buried, and rose again on the third day. Now, my opponent says that Christ was not buried, and Paul says he was. Believe which you please. Christ told the Scribes and Pharisees of the fact, and declared that no sign should be given to them, except the sign of Jonah the Prophet. That as Jonah was three days and three nights in the whale's belly, so should the Son of man be three days in the heart of the earth. Now, you may believe Christ or my opponent, or Paul or my opponent, as you see fit. The gentleman, in the forenoon, remarked that baptism was our great doctrine. Well, if it is, I am led to conclude he has no doctrine, or at least he has given us none yet. He asks for a precept or example of immersion. I have given him one. I have referred him to what Paul said in his letter to the Romans—that he and the Romans were buried with him in baptism. But he has not noticed that, nor has he courage sufficient to deny it. His own friends on the other side of the house will meet him when he undertakes to do it. But for the sake of gratifying him, I will give him a quotation from a Scotch Presbyterian, a great Reformer in Scotland. And what does he say? "The original meaning of the word baptism is immersion; and though we regard it as a point of indifferency, whether the ordinance so named be performed in this way or by sprinkling—yet we doubt not, that the prevalent style of the administration in the Apostle's days, was by an actual submerging of the whole body under water." Good for a Scotch Presbyterian clergyman. "We advert to this, for the purpose of throwing light on the analogy that is instituted in these verses. Jesus Christ by death underwent this sort of baptism—even immersion under the surface of the ground, [here is another proof of the burial of Christ.] whence He soon emerged again by His resurrection. We by being baptized into His death, are conceived to have made a similar translation. In the act of descending under the water of baptism to have resigned an old life, and in the act of ascending to emerge into a second or a new life—along the course of which it is our part to maintain a strenuous avoidance of that sin, which as good as expunged the being that we had formerly."

This, Mr. Chairman, is all I shall read from Chalmers at present. I wish my opponent, in his next speech, to put his finger, if he can, on a single instance where John the Baptist, Christ the King of Saints, or the Apostles, His ambassadors, ever sprinkled a candidate. Mr. Owen says "dipping" is a mode of baptism. Now, if this be true, I want him to tell us what baptism is. He has admitted the fact, in all his speeches, that we are right; then of course the battle is settled. Then, again, for the battle concerning sprinkling and pouring. He admits that baptism is immersion, or wash; but does it mean "sprinkle" or "pour" in any sense whatever? I want him to prove it. When I told him that he was on my side of the house, he said this was what he expected I would say. I repeat that all the others to which I have referred this morning, have, without exception, said that Immersion is the first, or primary meaning of the word boptiza, or baptism, and the word must be used in its primary meaning, unless necessity compels us to use it in a secondary meaning.

What instance is there in the New Testament of its being used in a secondary sense. I want my opponent to produce it, and I desire that the congregation may look upon it. They will undoubtedly see at once that he has failed in sustaining his point. "Wash" is only a consequence of immersion, but not the meaning of the word, unless the thing is to dip. Stokius says, it is not to wash; and I quoted, in my first speech, a passage from 2d Kings 5: 14, to prove this. Was Naaman told by the Prophet to go and wash himself seven times in Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God? How was he to do it? By sprinkling? by pouring? by putting his hand into the water? No, but by dipping himself in Jordan; and, although he got in a rage, like my opponent, and went away and asked if the waters of his country were not as good as those of Jordan? But, when his servants came to him and reasoned with him, and showed the necessity of complying with the simple request of the Prophet Elisha, he got out of his chariot, and went to Jordan and dipped himself seven times, as Elisha the man of God had commanded. And, I hope I shall have the honor of leading some of my congregation down into the water at the close of this discussion. The gentleman says that baptism is not an action, but the name of an ordinance of the New Testament. Now, was there any baptism before the ordinance was instituted? It is a Greek term, and was in use hundreds of years among the Greeks before Christ. But, again, the gentleman says "to wash" is a generic term; but will he rise and declare that baptism is also? I say no; it is a specific term. It denotes something done—action performed, not the mode of performing it, but the thing itself. There is a great difference in the mode of doing a thing and the thing itself. For instance, I am going to Harrisburg—I can go thither in a different mode and manner. I may jump into my buggy, or I may go in a balloon.

Mr. Chairman, I shall next appeal to the classics and commentators; and I want you to bear in mind that all those to which I shall refer—thirteen in number—are all on his side of the house; and, if they bear testimony in my favor, I hope and trust we will come to the conclusion that they are compelled to do so, because they are honest and the truth requires it. First, comes Prof. Stuart, of Andover. I know my opponent does not like the Professor. I know that he is a thorn in his way. "Out of a host I could add a centurion's band of the most renowned Doctors of philology—the theological critics, translators, and commentators—all of them, too, from the sons of affusion—the practical opponents of immersion. But a mere sample must suffice. I shall place an eminent American at their head." Stuart, of Andover, says:

"Bapto, baptiza, mean to dip, plunge, or immerse in any liquid. ALL LEXICOGRAPHERS AND CRITICS OF ANY NOTE ARE AGREED IN THIS." Biblical Repository, 1833, p. 298.

The next authority I shall give is Martin Luther. Dr. Luther says:

"The term baptism is a Greek word. It may be rendered a dipping, when we dip something in water, that it may be entirely covered with water. And though that custom be quite abolished among the generality, (for neither do they entirely dip children, but only sprinkle them with a little water,) nevertheless they ought to be wholly immersed, and presently to be drawn out again; for the etymology of the word seems to require it. The Germans call baptism tauff, from depth, which they call tieff in their language; as if it were proper those should be deeply immersed who are baptized. And, truly, if we consider what baptism signifies, you shall see the same thing required: for it signifies that the old man and our nativity, that is full of sins, which is entirely of flesh and blood, may be overwhelmed by divine grace. The manner of baptism, therefore, should correspond with the signification of baptism, that it may show a certain and plain sign of it." See Dr. Veil, on Acts viii. 38.

Calvin says: "The word baptiza signifies to immerse, and the rite of immersion was observed by the ancient church." Inst. book 4, chap. xv. sect. 7. So much for Calvin. I am a Calvinist here so far as Calvin's testimony is concerned. What Church does he refer to? The Church in the days of the Apostles. Will a child present, get up this afternoon and contradict his father? He will not attempt to do it, at least, not successfully.

Beza. "Christ commanded us to be baptized, by which word it is certain immersion is signified. Nor does baptizein signify to wash, except by consequence; for it properly signifies to immerse for the sake of dyeing. To be baptized in water, signifies no other than to be immersed in water, which is the external ceremony of baptism." Annotations on Mark vii. 4.

Grotius: The great Grotius says, "That this rite was wont to be performed by immersion, and not by perfusion, appears both by the propriety of the word and the places chosen for its administration, John iii. 23, Acts viii. 38, and by the many allusions of the apostles, which cannot be referred to sprinkling, Rom. vi. 3, 4, Col. ii. 12. The custom of perfusion or aspersion seems to have obtained some time after, in favor of such who, lying dangerously ill, were desirous to dedicate themselves to Christ. These were called Clinics by other Christians. See Cyprian's epistle to Magnus to this purpose."

Hospinianus: "Christ commanded us to be baptized; by which it is certain immersion is signified." Hist. Sactram. l. ii. c. i. 30.

Zanchius: "The proper signification of baptize is to immerse, plunge under, to overwhelm in water."

Alstedius: "To baptize signifies only to immerse; not to wash, except by consequence."

For if a man be baptized, he is washed. Baptism is one of the consequences. He will get washed, if baptized or immersed.

Calmet: "Generally people [speaking of the Jews] dipped themselves entirely under water; and this is the most simple and natural notion of the word baptism." Dict. of Bible, art. Baptism.

Witsius: "It cannot be denied that the native signification of the words baptein and baptizein, is to plunge, to dip." In. His. Eec. p. 138.

Gurtlerus: "To baptize among the Greeks, is undoubtedly to immerse, to dip; and baptism is immersion, dipping. Baptismos en Pneumati hagia, baptism in the Holy Spirit, is immersion into the pure waters of the Holy Spirit; for he on whom the Holy Spirit is poured out, is, as it were, immersed into him. Baptismos en puri, 'baptism in fire,' is a figurative expression and signifies casting into a flame, which, like water, flows far and wide; such as the flame that consumed Jerusalem. The thing commanded by the Lord is baptism, immersion into water." Institut. Theo. cap. xxxiii. § 108, 109, 110, 115.

Buddaeus: "The words baptizein and boptismos, are not to be interpreted of aspersions, but always of immersion." Theolog. Dogmat. l. v. c. i. § 5.

Ewing, of Glasgow: "Baptiza, in its primary and radical sense, I cover with water. It is used to denote, I plunge or sink completely under water."

Leigh: "The native and proper signification of it [baptize] is, to dip into water, or to plunge under water."

What we contend for, is this first, the primary signification. He says "it is to plunge, under water."

Bossuet: "To baptize signifies to plunge, as is granted by all the world."

Vossius, as quoted by Gale: "The great Vossius speaks exactly to the same purpose, and indeed almost in the same words; for without ever taking the least notice of lovo, or the like, he expressly says, that bapto and baptizo are rendered by merga, or mergita, and tingo, yet they properly signify mergo; and tingo only by a metalepsis, i. e. as merga implies tingo; and therefore he adds, tinging follows immersion, and is done by it."

Venema: "The word baptizein, to baptize, is nowhere used in the Scripture for sprinkling." V. p. 5.

That is what I contend for.

A. OWEN'S THIRD REPLY.

MR. OWEN. The gentleman appears quite sanguine in his expectation of making many converts. Well, if he made them from bad into good men, I should have no objection; but, for persons to be converted from the belief that immersion is the mode, and the only mode, is not a very good conversion. He says something, again, about Christ being buried under ground. Now, I deny that he was buried under ground. Let facts be brought forth. He was wrapped up and taken out to a place in a sepulchre in a rock. Sepulchres were differently constructed in those days, some being larger, and others smaller, having different compartments. The bodies were laid in a niche. There was no ground. Now, this is the fact of the case. Christ was buried by being put in a sepulchre. I did not deny that he was buried, but I denied that he was buried under ground. Christ was as much above ground as a man walking in his house. But this you know he brought forward in answer to the demand I made that he should give the language of our Saviour, or any of His Apostles, that goes to show immersion is the only baptism. He produces this passage and says we are buried with him, that is with Christ. Now, that will come up hereafter, as a distinct argument, as I do not wish to enter into it at this time. I only say again, that Christ was not put under ground—that he was not covered with ground. Then, why cannot I be buried with him without being covered up with water? He spoke something about Chalmers, and it is acknowledged that he was favorable to immersion. My opponent wants me to point to a case of sprinkling. I don't say that baptism means sprinkling exclusively, and therefore he ought not to call upon me. I say that when the Saviour used the word boptiza, he referred to the ordinance of baptism, without referring to the mode at all.—Now, if I were to get up and say that sprinkling is the only mode, then there would be some propriety in him asking for the passage. I ask him if it is the only mode? I say, then, where is the "thus saith the Lord?" He has not produced it. And, as to the burial passage, that will be made plain. He declared that I said baptism was a mode. I said no such thing; and you all understood me to say it was an ordinance, and that the mode was not important. And, so I say again.

KELLER. What is an ordinance?

OWEN. It is an institution which was ordained by Christ.

I think that is all it is necessary for me to reply to; but I cannot recollect all, although I would wish to reply to everything.

He comes now to his second argument; and I think it would be proper to state again that, supposing immersion to be the only proper action, is it the only mode? That is what he has already proved. How does he prove it? In his first argument he refers to the Greek term baptizo, which is changed a little and transferred to the English. He says it means "to dip," "to plunge." and "to immerse" exclusively. Well, I take up the same lexicons, and I find in addition to these meanings, they have "to wash," "to cleanse," and one of them "to sink," "to purify." Now, he can't prove it from the express action of this word immersion, for we see it has several meanings attached to it: Therefore he cannot prove it from this. He must prove how the Saviour used it, and what meaning he attached to it. So far, however, he has failed to sustain himself in that argument.

In quoting from the commentators, he says that most of them were Pedobaptists. Now, a Pedobaptist may be an Immersionist.—Those he quotes were many of them favorable to immersion, and he puts them on my side when they were on his side. Pedobaptists were in favor of infant immersion baptism. I wish him to point me out one of them, who is on my side, who is favorable to immersion—who was ever immersed. He believes that sprinkling is not baptism. I beg you to remember they were learned and honest men, and they were baptized in infancy—sprinkled. Now, I wish him to point me out one; and even if he should, then it does not prove that these go against me. They called themselves baptized. I tell the gentleman that if he will show me one noted reformer, who believed as he believes, I will show him one, and a martyr, who believed as we believe, in sprinkling, pouring and immersing. He has quoted a number of authors favorable to his side of the question; some whom I am acquainted with, and those I am not, I can say nothing about. But we shall notice Stuart, the one he says so much about and appears to think so much of. Let us see what he says. Mr. Rice says:

"Let us have the whole of the testimony of this apostle. Stuart also says, baptizo means to overwhelm, which certainly is not identical with dip, plunge. He goes further, and tells us that it signifies to wash, to cleanse; and maintains that there is no satisfactory evidence that the term, as used among the Jews, signified to immerse; and he gives several examples in which it evidently has not that meaning, but signifies to wash by applying water to the subject. I am willing to take the testimony of an American apostle. He does, indeed, say that baptiza signifies to dip, to plunge; but he does not admit that such is its ordinary meaning in the Scriptures. Nay, he positively denies that there is in the New Testament a single command to immerse any one, and calls upon those who say there is, to produce it."

Mr. Chairman, it is not a little amusing that these men who have come up and for years have said they discarded all human testimony, the opinions of men entirely, now should found an argument exclusively upon the opinions of men! My opponent founds his second argument upon that very testimony. Brother Winebrenner said this argument presented an inspired argument. He says, "this argument I dread above all others. I dread it like the child who had burnt its fingers." And, after it has been talked of for years together, here they come up and found an argument upon the very same author. Is that consistent? But, if the question is to be decided by authors, I presume it may be I shall not present as many, for I cannot command as many; but I shall present as learned and pious men, and of as much weight of character, as he can produce on the opposite side. He spoke as though Luther and Calvin—two great Reformers—were on his side of the question. It is certain they were rather favorable to immersion, but it is a fact that they did not believe as he believed. They did not believe that immersion was the only mode. Why, then, bring these two great men up? Luther was a learned man, but he did not believe it, although he was favorable to immersion. As a man of learning, he could not say that baptizo meant immersion only. Look at his translation. He says, "I baptize you with water," [gives the German translation.] Did you ever hear of a person immersed with water. The term mit wasser is with water. "I baptize you with the Holy Ghost." It is, that water is applied to the subject—not the subject to the water. But, we shall present some other authors. First, we quote this same Stuart my opponent regards so much:

"I go farther with this argument. If you take your stand on the ancient practice of the churches, in the days of the early Christian fathers, and charge me with departure from this; in my turn, I have the like charge to make against you. It is notorious and admits of no contradiction, that baptism in those days of immersion, was administered to men, women, and children, in puris naturalibus, naked as Adam and Eve, before their fall. The most tender, delicate and modest females, young and old, could obtain no exception, where immersion must be practised. The practice was pleaded for and insisted upon, because it was thought to be apostolic. At all events it began very early in the Christian Church."

Now, here you see is a man favorable to immersion. He says it is not of sufficient importance to change his practice, and he is in favor of sprinkling also. And Dr. Campbell calls him the American Apostle. Now, can you believe Stuart, about whom brother Keller has come here to show that immersion was the only mode? Did Stuart believe any such thing? Certainly not. Then why quote him? The same remark may be made in reference to Calvin and Luther. Here is Dr. Owen, admitted to be one of the greatest and most learned men in England, who says, "Baptizo, signifies "to wash," as instances out of all authors may be given." Again: "No one place can be given in the Scriptures wherein baptizo does necessarily signify either to dip or plunge."—Owen's Work, vol. 21, p. 557.

Dr. Thos. Scott, the commentator, is admitted to have been a learned man. He quotes Leighton as saying—

"It [baptizo] is taken more largely for any kind of washing, rinsing, or cleansing, even when there is no dipping at all"—and then remarks—"The word was adopted from the Greek authors, and a sense put upon it by the inspired writers, according to the style of Scripture, to signify the use of water in the sacrament of baptism, and in many things of a spiritual nature, which stood related to it. Some indeed contend zealously, that baptism always signifies immersion; but the use of the words baptize and baptism in the New Testament, cannot accord with this exclusive interpretation." This he gives as a conclusion resulting from "many years' consideration and study."

Strictures on Dr. Hodgson's Sermon on Baptism.

Brother Winebrenner:—

With your permission, I shall be pleased to present some reflections upon a discourse lately delivered in the Methodist Church of Harrisburg, by Dr. Hodgson, on the nature, design and benefits of Christian Baptism. I wish, however, in the commencement, to have it understood, that I am actuated by no spirit of envy, prejudice, or ill will, toward any person, or Denomination, in this undertaking.—but, prompted by an ardent desire for the promotion of God's eternal truth, and the union of all the children of God in spirit, in faith, and in practice, and the happiness and glory which would result from such a union, I am constrained to make use of the talent committed to me by God, for the great and grand object of removing, so far as my feeble efforts can effect anything, every impediment which hinders the accomplishment of this long prayed for event.—I do most ardently pray for the time to come when all God's people "shall see eye to eye," and lift up their voices together. But reason tells me that this never can or will take place, until the doctrines of the Cross are understood and practised in their primitive purity and simplicity, by the professed people of God generally. This, then, should be the study of every faithful servant of the Messiah, "to grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth;" and while with mutual forbearance and holy sincerity we hear, weigh and judge each other's views of primitive Christianity, with kindness and brotherly affection we should endeavor to point out the errors of each other. Therefore, while I offer objections which to my mind forbid the adoption of the sentiments set forth on that occasion, I do it with feelings of respect; yea more, with the best of Christian feeling, and with a consciousness of my own fallibility and proneness to err.

The Dr. commenced by defining baptism to be "the application of water as a religious rite, by a properly authorized administrator." With respect to his definition of baptism, I have but little to say, other than this: it is too peculiar in its design, and of too modern a date, to be taken for granted on the mere assertion of any man. But the point to which I would call particular attention, is his explanation of the design of Baptism: which was,—

1st. That "baptism is designed to symbolize the supernatural, sanctifying influence of the Holy Spirit."

If this be true, the question arises, how does it symbolize it?

1. Is it a type of the manner of its communication? Or,

2. Is it a figure of its reception? Or,

3. Is it emblematic of the modus operandi (its manner of operation) in purifying the heart? Or,

4. Does it represent the consequence or effect produced by its operations? Or,

5. Is it symbolical of its communication, reception, operation, and the effect produced, combined or taken together?

If it is a type of its communication only, what manner of communication does it represent? The Holy Spirit was communicated by the laying on of hands. Acts 8: 17. It was given by the breathing of Jesus upon his Apostles. John 20: 22. It was poured out in copious effusions—"not as a few drops before a more plentiful shower"—but overwhelming the Apostles and filling them, as on the day of Pentecost. Acts 2d chapter.

Sprinkling a few drops of water, may be a striking emblem of the measure of the Holy Spirit communicated to modern professors, who "make the word of God of none effect by their traditions," but a poor emblem indeed is it of the overwhelming influences of the Holy Spirit in primitive times. And, by the way, I must confess I see more beauty and a more striking resemblance between water as an emblem and the Holy Spirit as the thing symbolized, (if such be its design,) than ever I did before: for anciently, when much of the Spirit was given, it took much water to symbolize it; but in these latter days, "when little is given, little is required."

2. Is it a figure of its reception? How is the Holy Spirit received? Answer: As a covering. Isa. 31: 1. "Woe to the rebellious children," &c., "that cover with a covering, but not of my Spirit." As the drinking of water. "He that shall drink of the water that I shall give him, it shall be in him," &c.—Hence it is received inwardly. "I will give to him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life." "And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." "And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost." Such are the figures made use of in God's Word to represent the reception of the Holy Spirit. Where, then, is the similitude between the sprinkling of a few drops of water and a covering? or drinking, or an infusion and being filled? As much perhaps as did Cain's offering prefigure the death of the Messiah. We should be careful what kind of an offering we make to God.

3. Is it emblematic of its manner of operation in regenerating the sinner's heart? How does the Holy Spirit act upon the sinner's heart in order to regenerate, or new create it? How does it quicken? How cleanse? How sanctify? Does the Word of God infrom us? If so, where is it delineated? If not, how do we know that baptism symbolizes it?

4. Does it typify the effect produced by the Holy Spirit's influence or operations? Or in other words, Does it represent the state of a regenerate person? If so, let us inquire into the work accomplished, or the state produced. Is the person not entirely washed from all sin; thoroughly cleansed; fully sanctified; completely regenerated; "born of the Spirit;" brought forth into the kingdom; "translated from nature's darkness into the kingdom of God's dear Son?" Does he not become dead to sin and rise to newness of life? Is he not when cleansed by the Spirit, according to the comments of Pedobaptists themselves, on Romans 6: 4, and Col. 2: 12, buried with Christ by a spiritual baptism, and raised in his likeness from a death in sin? If this be conceded, which must be by all professed Christendom, then, in the name of common sense, and the design of all types and figures, I ask, what resemblance is there between sprinkling and a thorough washing from sin—a death to sin—a resurrection from sin—a burial in Christ spiritually—a new birth, or a coming forth into the kingdom of Christ? Really, to my mind, there is as much similitude between them as between the shadow of a mouse and the Allegheny mountains.

If (Rom. 6. 4, and Col. 2: 12,) "Therefore we are buried with him in baptism," &c., means a spiritual baptism, and water is designed to symbolize the sanctifying influences of the Holy Spirit, how can it represent it otherwise than by a burial in water? And what so appropriately symbolizes a resurrection to newness of life, or a birth, as coming forth from water? Strange that Pedobaptists should almost unanimously acknowledge that to be born of water is to be baptized, and then represent a birth by sprinkling a few drops on a person's head. As well might they tell of a man's being born of the earth because some dust blew in his face or a little ground sprinkled upon him. There would be just as much resemblance between the latter as the former. Christ was born from the dead, because he came forth from among the dead. A man is born of the Spirit, because he comes forth out of a spiritual death. And a man is born of water, because he comes forth from the water. Hence, nothing short of a coming forth from the baptismal grave, can be an appropriate type of the spiritual birth, or a perfect and entire sanctification through the supernatural influence of the Holy Ghost.

2d. The Dr. said, that baptism was a seal of the covenant of grace. This, also, was a mere assumption, without a single "thus saith the Lord" for it. The answer to this is found in Paul's letter to the Ephesians 1: 13. "Ye were sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise." And 4: 30. "And grieve not the Holy Spirit, whereby ye are sealed," &c.

Again, the speaker said, that baptism is not the cause, or the occasion of regeneration: for if it is, and the person coming to the performance of it should fail to be regenerated, but two alternatives would remain; either he must be rebaptized, or be damned.

And again, in commenting on Acts 10th chapter, he said, the reason why Peter commanded them to be baptized with water was, because they had been previously baptized with the Holy Ghost, and therefore they were commanded to be baptized, because they HAD been regenerated.

Let those who desire to understand Methodism as it was, and Methodism as it is, read their Discipline from page 103 to 112, and compare with the above, and they will find a perfect regeneration in their sentiment upon this subject.

If regeneration is not to be expected in baptism, and baptism must be attended to because of regeneration, to represent or symbolize the supernatural, sanctifying influences of the Holy Ghost,—then we ask, are infants regenerated or born of the Spirit previous to their baptism? If they are, where is the evidence of their regeneration? Certainly they who baptize infants or adults, should have reliable evidence of their supernatural change, before they baptize them. If they find this evidence in infants, why do they not point to it as demonstrable proof of the propriety and correctness of their position? Let them give us the evidence that their infants are regenerated previous to their baptism. But, we enquire again, are all infants regenerated? Then why are not all baptized? If not, why are those regenerated that are brought forward for baptism? If it be answered, in order to fit them for baptism, then it is making baptism the reason or occasion of their regeneration, just as effectually as though they were regenerated in baptism. But if it be answered, that all infants are regenerated and fitted for baptism, and for this reason they should all be baptized, then we ask, why is it necessary to preach regeneration to adults, seeing all have been regenerated in infancy?

But whether regeneration takes place in baptism, according to the Discipline, or previous to baptism, according to Dr. Hodgson's theory, the same query arises: Why do all adults need conversion? We do not hear Pedobaptists make any distinction when exhorting the impenitent to repent and be converted. They preach as though all needed regeneration. But, if half of their congregations have been converted in infancy and fallen away, then they should address them as persons "once enlightened, having tasted of the heavenly gift and the powers of the world to come."

Again, that baptized infants are not regenerated, is not only evident from Scripture and the whole tenor of Pedobaptists' exhortation to impenitent adults, but common sense and observation demonstrate the same. Do not their children grow up as others who are unbaptized? Do they not manifest the same unchanged nature, and bring forth the same fruits of the flesh? Now, "by their fruits ye shall know them." Where, then, is the testimony that sprinkled infants are regenerated? Answer: Nowhere. For what, then, are they baptized? To represent a thing for which there is not a shadow of a proof. To symbolize the supernatural sanctifying influences, by which they are said to be regenerated.

By making baptism the medium of regeneration, as the Catholic, Episcopalian and the Methodist Disciplines do, it gives some plausibility to infant baptism; but to take away baptism as the cause or occasion of regeneration, as Dr. Hodgson has done, is like Samson's pulling down the main pillars of the temple of the Philistines, and burying himself in its ruins. He has completely knocked out the under-pinning of the entire fabric of infant baptism, as all may plainly understand who will have courage and interest enough in the subject to examine it. May God reward him for the noble act, and keep him from falling when the storms shall come, and the winds shall blow, and beat upon all the relics of Popery, is the the prayer of your humble servant and friend to Pedobaptists.

S. B. H.

The Literary World.

A Journal of American and Foreign Literature, Science and Art. 157 Broadway, N. Y.

This weekly, conducted by Messrs. E. A. & G. L. Duyckinck, and containing twenty-four quarto pages per number, is indisputably the ablest and best work of the kind issued upon this side of the Atlantic. Its contributors are of the first order of mind, and it gives one a racy and spirited account of such new publications as are worth noticing, and a clear digest of what is going on in the literary and scientific world, at three dollars per annum.

A. D. W.

Moral Retribution:*
As Evinced by the Analogy of Nature.

(CONTINUED.)

III. RETRIBUTION IN PHYSICAL NATURE.

The idea of the uniformity of nature has an exact counterpart in the actual operations of nature. These are so invariably uniform that the slightest deviation becomes a miracle, sufficient in itself to stamp its author with Divinity. So true is this, that Infidels, in cavilling at the evidences of the Saviour's character and mission, have chosen unequivocally to deny the existence of miracles in toto, rather than take the alternative of denying the uniformity of nature.

By the uniformity of nature, nothing more nor less is intended than the certain and unwarying action of the laws of nature—or rather of God in nature; for it is both a logical and a real error to regard the laws of nature as effieient causes. All matter tends toward a common centre, and this tendency is called the law of gravitation; but it is so far from being an efficient cause in itself, that in fact it is only the operation or effect of a cause which, lying back of all that appears to the senses, eludes our observation. The laws of nature is only an expression indicating the mode in which this cause—which of course must be the Deity—acts. Hence these laws are always significant of an all-pervading, ever-present Divinity.

But the action of these laws necessarily implies consequences; and the ultimate character of these consequences will be according as the action is legitimate or perverted. The law of gravitation legitimately tends to preserve each portion of matter in its appropriate sphere. But if some huge rock be moved to the brow of a mountain, until the centre of gravity is beyond the extreme support, the law of gravitation, acting precisely in the same manner and with exactly the same force as when the rock was at rest, now brings it tumbling and crashing to the plain, involving everything in its way in ruin. The moving of the rock to the brow of the mountain perverted the legitimate or primary action of gravitation, and the actual consequences were the resultant of its legitimate action and of this perversion; and perhaps might appropriately be termed a secondary action.

This interference of an extraneous force, or violation of the conditions of primary law, is always present and is essential in every instance of perverted or secondary action.—Gravitation would never bring the rock from the mountain's brow, unless some extraneous force had first thrown its centre of gravity beyond an adequate support. Fire would never burn the hand unless some force, other than what exists inherently in the fire, had first brought the hand in contact with the fire; nor would it consume a city unless something besides its own intrinsic energies should kindle its flames. Water would never drown an individual, if it were not for some agency foreign to itself bringing the individual and the water into unnatural relations. Indeed such an extraneous force must always be present in every perversion of natural law, unless the same cause may produce dissimilar and often antagonistical effects, which of course is impossible.

*"The Demand and Demonstration of a Future Retribution in Natural Theology." Rev. G. B. Cheever, D. D., in the Biblical Repository for Jan. 1850.

And not only must every perversion be caused by an extraneous force, but every intervention of an extraneous force will and must produce a perversion of natural law. Every rock moved beyond the brow of the mountain will inevitably dash headlong to the plain. There is no alternative. Nothing short of a miracle, by the intervention of Omnipotence, could prevent or arrest its fall. If we hold our hands in the fire they will as certainly be burned. If a torch be applied to a train of powder an explosion is inevitable. If one unable to swim should plunge unassisted into the sea, he would as certainly drown. If air infected with the plague be inhaled into the lungs, disease, and probably death, will surely follow. There is, there can be, no such thing as an infraction of nature's law, however slight, without a consequent penalty or Retribution. It would be an instance of an active cause without an effect, which is everywhere admitted to be impossible. It might as well be believed that two is not more than one, or that addition does not increase a number.

The action of this extraneous force is often so gradual that a portion of its influence may be arrested. A person falling into the water or the fire may be pulled out before life is extinct; or the flames of a burning city may be extinguished before the city is entirely consumed. The influence of infected air upon the lungs may sometimes be arrested so that death and even disease may not result. But this is only the withdrawing of the cause, when of course the effect ceases, and not the remedying nor the perversion of the effect after the cause has acted. When an individual has lain in the water as long as the law of nature requires as a condition of drowning, there is no possibility of retaining or restoring life. When the flames have exerted their full action upon the burning city there is no remedy for its consumption. Other houses may be built but those consumed are gone irrecoverably. When infected air has fully exerted its influence upon the human system, the corresponding disease will follow. Nature may resist the disease, or its recuperative force may heal, but still it cannot prevent, nor even compensate for the effect which the infecting influence exerted. There is and must be the pain and the struggle, and often lasting and fatal tendencies to subsequent disease.

This leads to the conclusion that in every instance of perverted or secondary action in physical Nature, retribution is certain to follow—that escape is absolutely impossible—and that retribution is always in exact ratio with the extent of the perversion. If the perversion, or violation of natural law, be slight, so will be the retribution. If it be great, a corresponding retribution will be inevitable. This perfectly harmonizes with the axiom that every effect must be like and as its cause, and also with the doctrine of Revelation that every person will be judged according to his deeds.

A. D. W.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Revival.

Of late we have enjoyed very interesting times at Carolina Mills, R. I. Quite a number have professed conversion. Twelve have already been baptized, and more will probably go forward soon. Revivals are also occurring in many of the adjacent villages; and indeed throughout most of New England.

A. D. W.

A Contemplated Sabbath School in North Bend, Iowa.

Brother Winebrenner:—

We had preaching yesterday in our Schoolhouse, quite near where I live, and after it (the house being quite full) we held a consultation in reference to having a Sabbath-school, to commence some time next spring, in this place; (there being one some miles below us,) and in order to find out what encouragement we would meet with, we left it to a vote of all present, and it carried unanimously. But there is one thing somewhat in the way. It is this: the country is new, and the inhabitants generally of the poorer class. This is a truth known to many, that adventuers to a new country are generally those of a poorer class—I mean the laboring class—such as cannot more than make a livelihood for themselves and families. Such, going to new countries, will, by industry and economy, be enabled to get comfortable homes for them and their little ones. Such, then, is the case here. We have some 55 families settled within about six miles in longitude and five in latitude, and with but few exceptions, they are decidedly of the finest, (leaving religion out of the question,) quietest, and most sociable and obliging people that I ever dwelt among. This is saying considerable for them, I know, but not more than is due to them, I think.—With but few exceptions, they have homes of their own, and some building and fencing done,—some more and some less.

But, what I am about to say is this,—they being poor, have thus spent their all in trying to make them and theirs' comfortable. Now, this is true of quite a majority, as yet. Seeing, then, that this is the case, and having a feeling as well as Eastern people, for the future welfare of their offspring, to have them spend the Lord's sacred day, not in idleness, and perhaps wickedness, but in learning something good, I, for one, feel like enconraging them. And who, I ask, that professes to love God, would not? Well, then, my brethren in the Lord, what is to be done for those 40 or 50 children? How shall we go about it to get a nursery of juveniles started for the Lord? How shall we get a Library—a something to stimulate and encourage our little ones to pay attention to the means for their future happiness and welfare, in time and eternity? Here my "hand findeth something to do, and I would like to do it with my might," but who will furnish the means?

My brethren who have experience in the matter, know very well that Sabbath-schools are no vain thing. No, verily not. When my children get their little books, which they obtained at Newburg Sabbath-school, (which they have read through again and again,) the names of the Superintendents and teachers seem sacred to them—and more especially that of "Sammy Snyder," because he wrote their names so handsomely in them.

Well, my brethren, I must now tell you what (among other things) I told the people in meeting yesterday. I told them I believed that if the brethren in the East knew our condition, that they would send us a Library, as a donation. Did I venture too far in saying so?—"I trow not." Nor will I believe that I shall be put to shame for my boasting thus. However, it was decided that I should attend to this matter, which I promised to do, without delay. I have therefore concluded to send these lines to be published in the "Church Advocate."

Now, then, I ask, where are all the young Isaiah's? Which of them will say, like one of old, here am I, send me? Brethren, a Library we want, without fail, and by some means or other. I would then suggest this idea: If our good brethren can feel for us on this subject, and will make us a donation, let it be immediately noticed in the Church Advocate, so that all may see that the matter will be attended to.* Then, in the next place, select some suitable person to select a suitable Library for a new school. I have thought of brother Flake. Should the brethren jointly, however, decline doing this favor for us, I hope some one will take the matter in hand and see to it immediately, that a suitable Library will be selected for us; and have it forwarded to Harrisburg, to the care of brother Winebrenner, and he will attend to having it forwarded, by brother Funk, from Highspire, Dauphin county, who is expected on to this country some time in May next. Send it on by him, or some other suitable person.† And rather than miss having one, poor as we are, we will pay for it ourselves.

We had a very fine prayer-meeting last evening. The brethren are all well, and very well pleased with this beautiful country. The Church here in the Bend now numbers 17 members, having Elder Hawk for Ruling Elder, and brothers John Kepford and David Hoover for Deacons. We have also a treasury in the Church, for the support of poor saints, just commenced. The collections for this purpose are held quarterly.† Moreover, we contemplate holding a camp-meeting sometime during the summer, God willing. I will now close by saying, thank God that I am in Iowa. Farewell. M. F. SNAVELY.

North Bend, Johnson Co., Iowa, Feb. 18, 1850.

*We venture to predict that a Library will be donated.

†We suggest that these contributions be levied on the equality principle, according to the tithe law. We wish you God's speed in this and every good cause; especially in the Sabbath-school cause. EDITOR.

Acts of the Standing Committee.

THE Standing Committee met in Harrisburg on Tuesday, the 26th of March, and transacted the following business, viz:

1. They appointed brother Thos. H. Deshiri to the Fayetteville and Washington county circuit, in the place of W. G. Coulter.

2. They appointed Jos. Ross and J. Keister in the place of Wm. H. Mullenix, on the lower end of York county, and brother Utley to the upper end.

3. They appointed brother A. Snyder on the Matamoras and Juniatta circuit, provided W. G. Coulter declines taking the appointment. In that case, brother Keller is authorized to fill brother Snyder's place, and employ brother Petre as an assistant, if expedient to do so.

4. They connected Lisburn with the Cumberland circuit, as heretofore.

5. They authorized brother Wm. H. Mullenix to take brother Price's place, in the note held by Mr. Faithful, until such times as the money can be raised and the claim paid off.

6. They commended brothers Theo. Nickison and Geo. Fry to the care and attention of the churches, with the advice that they study to show themselves approved, and to meet with the Eldership next fall, for consideration.

Letter from Brother David Neidigh.

REEDSBURG, Ohio, March 2, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

I AGAIN resume my pen to drop a few lines for the columns of the Church Advocate, for the encouragement of the people of God.

According to previous appointment, in connection with brother D. Gill, we met with the Church of God in Lake township, Ashland county, Ohio, and commenced a protracted meeting, on the 16th of February. We also were happy to find our much beloved brother D. Williams with us over the first Lord's-day. The brethren and sisters came up to the house of God, as though they had a mind to work. The first evening the meeting was good, but nothing special. On Lord's-day morning the brethren and sisters met for prayer and experience. Public services commenced at the usual hour. After the same was over, we repaired to the water and buried three happy believers with their Lord and Master. On Lord's-day evening three mourners came out to seek the Lord, but found no peace. Monday meeting—one mourner came forward for prayer, but did not find the Lord to the salvation of her soul. In the evening we met again, and after prayer, as we were announcing our text to the congregation, one soul had such strong faith in God that she was made happy in the Lord. Oh! that all would thus believe God. After some remarks, we invited souls to come to the altar of prayer, whereupon ten presented themselves as the subjects of our prayers, four of whom were made happy in the Saviour's love. Tuesday we again had meeting, and three more went down into the water and were buried by baptism, according to the ancient custom. In the evening we met again, and gave another invitation. Four came to the altar of prayer, and three found Him of whom Moses and the Prophets did write. Wednesday we had no meeting till in the evening, and after some labor, we gave another invitation to penitent souls, when nine came to the altar of prayer, but only one found the pearl of great price. Thursday evening three mourners came forward, but found no peace to their souls. Friday three mourners presented themselves at the altar for prayer, and one was brought from the power of satan to the living God. Met in the evening again, and instructed the people that they should act from a principle of love to God, because he first loved them, and then we extended the invitation to them, whereupon nine came to the altar for prayer, and, thank God, four more believed and were saved.—Saturday meeting—five more came out to seek the Lord in prayer, and one found like precious faith with the saints of God. Two more demanded their right to be baptized in the rolling stream, according to the Apostolic order, which was immersion only. Met again in the evening After talking to the people, we invited mourners, when five came out to seek God in prayer, and four found Him a present help in the time of need.

On Sabbath, after services, two more were buried with Christ in baptism. On Lord's-day evening we attended to the ordinances of God's house, to wit: the washing of the Saints' feet, and the breaking of bread, or Lord's Supper. Thank God for these heaven-born institutions. They do blend (when properly observed) the people of God together. Thirty-nine partook of the broken emblem of Christ. Monday meeting—one more was buried with Christ. Met again in the evening, and had three mourners, but none found peace to their souls. May God have mercy on them and save them, is my prayer. Ten united with the above-mentioned Church. She numbers 21 at this time. Oh, Lord, add daily such as shall be saved, is my prayer.

DAVID NEIDIGH, JR.

Notice to my Subscribers.

BRETHREN AND FRIENDS, you who have given your names to me for the Church Advocate, as the year or fourteenth volume is soon out, I would like you all to let me know whether you still wish to have your papers continued.

A word to you who have not as yet paid for the last volume. As the year is nearly up, and as you see that you come under the third article of the terms of the Church Advocate, I would like one and all who are in arrears, to pay me, at their first convenient time.

D. NEIDIGH, JR., Agent.

Letter from Brother Samuel Scott.

TRENTON, Henry County, Iowa, Feb. 18, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

"As cold waters to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country." We presume it will not be unwelcome to the readers of the Church Advocate, to hear how we are getting along in the far West. Since our last Eldership meeting, we have tried to labor in the vineyard of the Lord, as much as our circumstances would admit of, having four regular preaching places. We labor with our hands on the working days, and preach on Saturday nights and Sabbaths.

The few brethren here have recently been revived and strengthened. Love, harmony and union exists amongst us, notwithstanding the strong opposition we have to combat with, from various sources. Until recently we have seen but little fruit of our labors in the conversion of sinners.

But at one of our regular appointments, at brother T. Barton's, near Mt. Pleasant, the Lord has commenced a gracious work, and from the 13th of January up till this time, 18 souls have been happily converted to God; whilst others are anxiously enquiring what they must do to be saved. However painful, we must now leave these mourning souls for a season, in order to attend to our secular affairs, and fill other appointments; as I have no help but brother J. Zentmyer, who has labored faithfully with me in exhorting sinners to flee the wrath to come. There are also good prospects in other places. May the Lord carry on his good begun work, until Iowa becomes as famous for piety as it now is for wickedness! I will bring my letter to a close at present, hoping to have some more good news to communicate shortly. Brethren, pray for us. Yours in Christian love,

SAMUEL SCOTT.

ELECTION DISTRICTS OF HARRISBURG.—The bill to divide the two Wards in this borough, into four election precincts, has passed both Houses, and will be a law in a few days. The South Ward is to be divided by Second Street, and the North Ward by Third Street.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Persecution for Printing the New Testament.—Some of our readers may recollect a statement which appeared a few weeks since, that nine thousand copies of the New Testament printed at Florence, had been seized by the Government. The case has been recently tried, and the Avenir, a paper printed at Lausanne, states that Mr. Binelli, the printer, is condemned to pay a fine of fifty crowns (or dollars,) and the copies seized and confiscated, notwithstanding an eloquent defence pronounced by Counsellor Marri.

Such is the tyranny that Romanists practice, wherever they have the power! They punish the man who presumes to print and circulate the gospel of Christ!—Ex. Paper.

Cost of Dying in California.—A correspondent of the Washington Union furnishes that paper with a bill for services rendered to his deceased brother in the Sacramento Hospital at Sutter's Fort, from which it is very evident that the expense of dying in California is as great as the cost of living. The following are the items:—"To thirty-six days' attendance, $755; washing and laying-out his body, $16; mattress and blanket spoiled, $20; coffin, and sending to get it made, $60; paid for digging his grave in a storm, $20; paid for carriage to funeral, $4; assistance of man at funeral, $5. Total, $880."

Great Invention in Engineering.—Mr. Sellers has just completed an invention which it is said, will simplify and revolutionize the whole science of Engineering. The machine, the Cincinnati Times learns, combines the operation of the perambulator with that of the pentagraph, giving profile lines of plats, surveys, and measuring distances. By trundling over a tract of country, a more accurate survey for a railroad can be made than by any other method; and at least fifteen miles per day mapped with correctness—altitudes, depressions and space. It can also be used on our streets, thus dispensing with the services of an Engineer.

Rheumatism and Neuralgia Cured.—It is said that neuralgia and rheumatism—the former in all its usual varieties—have been recently successfully cured in Paris, by two or three applications of the cold douche, after the patient had been thrown into perspiration by the hot air bath. The douche was general or local, as circumstances directed.

Decrease of Sunday Travel.—In a recent circular of the American and Foreign Sabbath Union, it is stated that more than 40 Railway companies now stop their cars on the Sabbath, and that on more than 2,000 miles of Railroad the men employed enjoy the rest and privileges appropriate to that day.

The Great Revival of 1740.—It was computed that in the powerful religious awakening with which this country was visited about a century ago, at least 30,000 genuine conversions occurred in New England alone. When we remember that the population of New England was then only 300,000, it is obvious that seldom have the influences of the Divine Spirit been dispensed in such liberal measure. Revivals of religion have contributed largely to the formation of New England character.

Steam Superseded.—Dr. J. H. Lillie is exhibiting in the Eastern cities, an invention by which he proposes to substitute electricity for steam, as an agent in propelling machinery. The invention is highly spoken of by many members of Congress. If the inventor succeds in his purposes, it will bring about a new era in the scientific world, and, we trust, put an end to the disasters caused by the explosion of boilers, &c.

The Wheat Crop.—The Hagerstown Torch Light says:—"We are sorry to learn that in some portion of our county the wheat crop is very unpromising. We hear of some persons who are about to plough up their wheat fields. The fly and a worm have done considerable damage; and the closing of the winter, alternating in warm and cold spells of weather, has been very severe upon the young grain."

☞ A fire occurred at St. Louis on Sunday morning, the 10th ult., which totally destroyed the Planters' Tobacco Warehouse, in the occupancy of several mercantile firms. The loss is estimated at $150,000, which is partially insured. Three persons were severely injured by the falling walls. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

Maryland Constitution.—The Maryland Legislature have passed the bill providing for calling a Convention to re-form the Constitution of the State. The question whether there shall be a Convention to reform the Constitution of the State is now with the people. That they will decide to hold the Convention is not doubtful.

Marriage with a Deceased Wife's Sister.—The Commissioners appointed in England to inquire into the propriety of marriage with the sister of a deceased wife, have reported that they "find, from a mass of evidence, that marriages of this kind are permitted, by dispensation or otherwise, in all the continental States of Europe."

Pennsylvania Railroad Company.—The Board of Directors, at a meeting on Wednesday evening last, suspended the operation of the rule forbidding Sunday travel during the next succeeding thirty days, for the purpose of being guided by the vote of the stockholders.

Scarlet Fever.—The scarlet fever is prevalent to an unprecedented extent in Baltimore county, Md. The papers of one morning contain the announcement of the death of eight children in one family.

Ripe Strawberries.—There are already strawberries in the New York market of most tempting appearance. Twenty-one sold for $2 50.

Removal of Free Negroes from Virginia.—Virginia has appropriated $30,000 per annum to the colonization of free negroes of that State in Africa.

☞ A new marriage bill has been introduced into the Massachusetts Legislature, providing for three day's notice beforehand to the Clerk of the town or city, thus dispensing with the publication of intended marriages.

☞ Over twenty-two thousand deaths have occurred in New York during the last year—about one in twenty. The ordinary ratio, for the last few years, has been from ten to fifteen thousand.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PAGANISM.

The term Paganism is derived from the Latin word Paganus, and this again from pagus. This last word is defined "a village, country town." Paganus is defined "a villager, peasant." Of it Webster says, "This word was originally applied to the inhabitants of the country who in the early ages of the church adhered to the worship of false gods, and refused to receive Christianity after it had been received by the inhabitants of the cities." Dr. Neander, in his History of the Christian Religion, after noticing the religious toleration allowed by the Emperor Valentinian, and remarking that it "was rather helpful than injurious to the spread of Christianity," adds: "This appears from the fact, that under the reign of this emperor, Heathenism began first to be called by the name of the peasants' religion, (Paganismus.)

[Morning Star.

HOW TO BE HAPPY.

Dr. Payson, in a letter to a young clergyman, says, "I took up a little work purporting to be the lives of sundry characters, as related by themselves. Two of these characters agreed in remarking that they were never happy until they ceased striving to be great men. This remark struck me, as you know the most simple remark will strike us, when Heaven pleases. It occurred to me at once that most of my sufferings and sorrows were occasioned by an unwillingness to be the nothing which I am, and by consequent struggles to be something, I saw if I would but cease struggling and consent to be anything or nothing, just as God pleases, I might be happy.—You will think it strange that I mention it as a new discovery. In one sense it was not new; I had known it for years. But I now saw it, and consented to it; and I am comparatively happy. My dear brother, if you can give up all desire to be great, and feel heartily willing to be nothing, you will be happy too."

THE COMMUNION OF SAINTS.

What a precious article of our common faith! But where shall it be found?—Really it is as rare as it is delightful. We have the Communion of German Reformed; the Communion of Presbyterians; the Communion of Lutherans; the Communion of Methodists, Episcopalians, and so on: but this does not constitute the communion of saints. Those who are of Paul, love and commune with those who are of Paul: those who are of Apollos, with those who are of Apollos. If any one says: "I am of Apollos," all they who are of Apollos, give him a warm grasp of the hand; but they who are of Paul, think perhaps he may be a clever soul, and manifest as much interest in him as a Whig does in a Democrat. Indeed there are places where, if a man can give the Odd-Fellows' pass-word and grip, he is certain of a more hearty reception by strangers, than if he says Shibboleth in a somewhat different tone from what those who are of Paul, of Apollos, or of Cephas are in the habit of saying it. As unselfish and lovely a communion as this could have been found, we presume, among the waning clans of the Highlands of Scotland, or the aboriginal tribes of America.

In the estimation of some, however, this burlesque on "the unity of the spirit" is one of the fair blossoms of Protestantism. It serves to keep off the Pope! If names and divisions were absorbed in the strong current of Jesus' love, and the followers of the Lamb, of one mind and one heart, would forget the trifling causes of schism in profound adoration before the cross of our common Lord, honest Christians would no longer watch each other, and there would be greater danger of a stupendous hierarchy. Better to invent voluntary Associations, where all may meet on a broad platform, and together make a few speeches and pass some high sounding resolutions. It is enough if our dollars lie quietly together in the same treasury. This will evince a common Christianity; although as churches we are clannish, and even bite and devour one another.

The Church, the body of Christ, may be mangled, and to quiet our consciences somewhat for the deep wounds we have inflicted, we exchange a few smiles at an Anniversary. Such a communion, of those who are of Paul, and those who are of Apollos, suits, it is thought, the advanced state of the world and the Church of the Nineteenth Century; but the communion of saints savors too much of the tyranny and corruptions of the Dark Ages.

[Ger. Ref. Messenger.

PAYING DEBTS.

One of our religious exchange papers has the following strong remarks on the subject; they drive the nail in to the head and clench it.

"Men may sophisticate as they please, they can never make it right, and all the bankrupt acts in the universe cannot make it right for them not to pay their debts.—There is a sin in this neglect as clear, and as deserving church discipline, as in stealing or false swearing. He who violates his promise to pay, or withholds the payment of a debt, when it is in his power to meet his engagements, ought to be made to feel that, in the sight of all honest men, he is a swindler. Religion may be a very comfortable cloak under which to hide; but if religion does not make a man deal justly, it is not worth having."—Pres.

POETRY.

THE PILGRIM'S SONG.

There remaineth a rest for the people of God.—Heb. iv.

My rest is in heaven; my rest is not here;
Then why should I murmur when trials are near?
Be hushed, my dark spirit! the worst that can come
But shortens thy journey and hastens thee home.

It is not for me to be seeking my bliss,
And building my hopes in a region like this;
I look for a city which hands have not piled;
I pant for a country by sin undefiled.

The thorn and the thistle around me may grow;
I would not lie down upon roses below;
I ask not my portion, I seek not a rest,
Till I find them forever in Jesus' breast.

Afflictions may damp me, they cannot destroy;
One glimpse of his love turns them all into joy;
And the bitterest tears, if he smile but on them,
Like due in the sunshine, grow diamond and gem.

Let doubt, then, and danger my progress oppose;
They only make heaven more sweet at the close;
Come joy, or come sorrow, what'er may befall,
An hour with my God will make up for all.

A scrip on my back, and a staff in my hand,
I march on in haste through an enemy's land;
The road may be rough, but it cannot be long;
And I'll smooth it with hope, and I'll cheer it with song.

LIVE TO DO GOOD.

Live to do good—this world should be
But one united family,
One holy brotherhood;
Where each should for his neighbor feel,
Helping along the general weal,
And universal good.

Live to do good—an idle wail
Is useless—action must prevail,
A living pattern teach;
Invoke example's potent aid,
And that to which you would persuade,
Practice as well as preach.

Live to do good—if festering sores
Humanity with tears deplores,
Strive all you can to heal;
Direct the young, and comfort age,
Boldly for right and truth engage,
And all the suffering feel.

Live to do good, and kindness show
To neighbor, stranger, friend and foe,
Nor think the task is hard;
Heaven will bestow its righteous meed,
And every earth-forgotten deed
Shall bring a rich reward.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Camp-meetings in Ohio.

1. One in the bounds of the Chester Church, Chester township, Wayne county, commencing on the 15th of August.

2. One in Summit county, near East Liberty, commencing on the 22d of August.

3. One on the old camp-ground, one and a half miles West of Reedsburg, Ashland county, commencing on the 29th of August.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 28th of October, 1849, by Elder T. Strohm, Mr. George Rhoads, of Cumberland county, to Miss Susan Elizabeth Lingle, of Linglestown, Dauphin county, Pa.

On the 13th of December, 1849, by the same, Mr. Jacob F. Riese to Miss Catharine Reese, both of West Hanover, Dauphin county.

On the 25th of December, 1849, by the same, Mr. John Uhler, of Annville, Lebanon county, to Miss Sarah Miller, of East Hanover, Lebanon county, Pa.

On the 10th of March, 1850, by the same, Mr. William Boltz to Miss Catharine Petry, both of Annville, Lebanon county.

On the 14th of March, 1850, by the same, Mr. Michael Bolden, of East Hanover, Lebanon county, to Miss Elizabeth Sheppler, of West Hanover, Dauphin county.

On the 5th of March, 1850, in Carolina Mills, R. I., by Elder A. D. Williams, Mr. Stephen B. Watson to Mrs. Sarah Star, both of Richmond, R. I.

On the 10th ult., by A. Swartz, Mr. Joseph Craver to Miss Susan Givens, both of Portsmouth, Dauphin county, Pa.

On the 19th ult., by Elder E. H. Thomas, Mr. David F. Miller to Miss Martha Ann Byers, all of Newville, Cumberland county.

On the 19th ult., by the Rev. J. F. Mesick, Mr. Jacob Simmons to Miss Catharine Keenports, both of Silver Spring township, Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 25th ult., by the Rev. Charles A. Hay, Mr. George W. Boyer, of Hummelstown, to Miss Mary E. Grubb, of Harrisburg.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!"

DIED—On the 8th of March, 1850, in Rockyville, Dauphin county, Robert Allen Wolf, son of brother James and sister Wolf, aged 7 years and some months.

His death originated from Scarlet fever, and probably some other internal derangements.

At his residence in Harrisburg, on the 23d of February, 1850, brother Thomas Fauss, aged 39 years, 2 months and 7 days.

Brother Fauss had, for some years, been a member of the Church in Harrisburg, but, like many others, let the business of the world engross too much of his attention. When arrested by his last illess, he very humbly acknowledged his luke-warmness and ardently implored pardon of God. During much of the time of his illness, his mind was much deranged. A kinder husband is seldom to be found than he, and in his death, his widow and six children have sustained an irreparable loss. They may say, however,—

"Dearest husband, thou hast left us,
Here thy loss we deeply feel;
But 'tis God who has bereft us,
He can all our sorrows heal.

Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life is sped;
Then in heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tear is shed."

On the 5th ult., at her father's residence, near Oyster's Point, Cumberland county, Pa., sister Nancy Stoner, aged 16 years, 4 months and 3 days.

Sister Stoner had not embraced religion till a few days previous to her death, but then put her trust in the Saviour and heartily repented. She called all to her bed-side and gave them a final adieu, expressing the strongest hope of a better life. In the language of brother Maxwell, who attended to her funeral obsequies, she continued exhorting and praising Jesus until her soul flew right off. Young expresses himself very beautifully in a few lines applicable here:

"Each moment has its sickle, emulous
Of Time's enormous scythe, whose ample sweep
Strikes empires from the root: each moment plays
His little weapon in the narrower sphere
Of sweet domestic comfort, and cuts down
The fairest bloom of sublunary bliss."

In this borough, on the 1st ult., George Henry, son of Perry H. and Elizabeth Walborn, aged 8 years, 10 months and 22 days.

This loved bud, so young and fair,
Called hence by early doom,
Just come to show how sweet a flower
In Paradise could bloom.

Adieu, my much loved boy, adieu,
Since we are called to part with you;
Though hard the stroke, we'll not complain,
But hope to see thee yet again:

Then 'midst that bright angelic throng,
And mingling with the loudest song—
There, in that world of endless joy,
I hope to meet my angelic boy.

On the 5th ult., in East Donegal, Lancaster county, Joseph, son of Joseph and Nancy Brenneman, aged 8 years, 3 months and 29 days.

On the 11th ult., in Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., Mrs. Agness E. Ingram, aged 85 years and 19 days.

On the 13th ult., at his residence in Middletown, Dauphin county, Pa., Mr. George Etter, aged 65 years, 5 months and 4 days.

On the 9th ult., of Scarlet fever, Daniel W., infant son of D. W. and Elizabeth Gross, aged 7 months 19 days.

On the 5th ult., Joseph Kintz, aged 11 years, 1 month and 17 days.

On the 7th ult., Rebecca Kintz, aged 3 years, 6 months and 21 days.

On the 10th ult., Hetty Ann Kintz, aged 7 years, 7 months and 10 days.

On the 17th ult., Mary Elizabeth Kintz, aged 12 years, 5 months and 26 days.

In Lancaster, on the 27th of February, Mr. William Cooper, aged 42 years, 7 months and 25 days.

In Lancaster, on the 21st of February, Peter Reed, Esq., formerly Sheriff of Lancaster county, in the 50th year of his age.

On the 21st of February, at his residence, in Lancaster, Adam Metzger, aged 76 years, 9 months and 12 days.

On the 2d ult., in Lancaster, Mrs. Frances L. Evans, in her 76th year.

At Elizabethtown, on the 26th of February, Mrs. Christianna Wade, aged 52 years, 1 month and 21 days.

Missionary Pledges.

We, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner,	-	pd	$10 00
William Reichert,	-	-	5 00
Isaac Miller,	-	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	-	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	-	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	-	-	10 00
Jacob Miller,	-	-	10 00
James Miller,	-	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh,	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	-	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	-	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich,	-	pd	7 50
Abraham Swartz,	-	-	5 00
A liberal brother,	-		20 00
A liberal sister,		pd	2 00
David Strickler,	-		5 00
James Casy,	-	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	-	5 00

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate.
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4 25	a	4 37½
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	2 37½	a	2 37½
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	2 00	a	2 00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			90	a	98
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	56	a	56
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	45	a	50
Do.	Oats,	do. - -	28	a	28
Do.	Barley,	do. - -	60	a	65
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	4 25	a	4 25
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2 25	a	2 50
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1 00	a	1 10
BEEF, per cwt.		- - - -	5 00	a	5 50
PORK,	do.	- - - - -	5 00	a	5 25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -	8	a	10
BUTTER,	do.	- - - - -	15	a	20
LARD,	do.	- - - - -	8	a	8
TALLOW,	do.	- - - - -	8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.			6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - - -	12½	a	12½
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -	62½	a	62½
ONIONS,	do.	- - -	75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -	1 00	a	1 12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1 25	a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -	37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -	30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -	1 25	a	1 25
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -	10 00	a	10 00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	4 25	a	4 25

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4 75	a	5 00
Do.	Rye,	do. -	2 87	a	2 87
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	2 86	a	2 86
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1 04	a	1 12
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	62½	a	62½
Do.	Corn, old	do. - -	54	a	54
Do.	Oats,	do. - -	35	a	35
Do.	Barley,	do. - -	75	a	80
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	4 50	a	4 50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2 75	a	3 00
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1 35	a	1 40
BEEF, per cwt.,		- - -	7 00	a	8 75
PORK,	do.	- - - - -	7 00	a	7 25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo descimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

EVANGELICAL MUSIC.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us; and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music."

☞ For sale at this office, and at our Depositories. Editor.

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations,

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

List of our Depositories and Local Agents,

For the convenience of the brethren, and the public generally, we have come to the conclusion to establish Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

WM. A. LEARY & Co., No. 156 North Second street, BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, and DANIEL GETTY, No. 110 South Third street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, New York.

WATSON & WILLIAMS, St. Louis, Mo.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN C. OWENS, Baltimore, Md.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, and such others as are named in the following list of Books, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail prices.
History of Denominations in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries,	2 00
500 Sketches & Skeletons of Sermons,	2 50
Life of Christ and the Apostles, -	2 50
D'Aubigne's Hist. of the Reformation,	1 50
Wandering Soul, - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament,	50
German Reference Testament, -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
View of the Church. &c., - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - -	25
Harn on Feet-Washing, -	25
Lycenm Spelling Book, -	15
Traveler's Guide to the West. -	50

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XIV. HARRISBURG, Pa. APRIL 15, 1850. NUMBER 24.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.

The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.

In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY AND STATE.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fourteen.

Names	Am't. paid	Names.	Am't paid
Ashe Heister David	$1 00	Maginnes Catherine vols 14 & 15	$2 00
Beidler Jacob	1 00	Moyer Joseph K vol 15	1 00
Bowman Jno for S dec'd	1 25	McFarren Geo	1 50
Berray Michael	3 00	Matter David vol 15	1 00
Barber Susan	1 00	Miller Henry vols 14 & 15	2 50
Billington Josiah (vols 13, 14 & 15)	3 50	Miller Christian	50
Brenneman Henry	1 50	McFarren Peter vol 15	1 00
Backwalter Sister	2 00	Myers Samuel vol 14	1 50
Bond Wm [vols 13 & 14]	3 00	Nickeson Theopholus	1 00
Beesel Daniel	1 00	Nelson Chas F 02 & vol 15	50
Clinger Wm	1 00	Ort Andrew	75
Carr Ann Amelia	1 00	Poffenberger Samuel	2 50
Corell Benj [vol 15]	1 00	Plowman Zachrias	55
Foreman John [vol 15]	1 00	Reed Henry	1 00
Freet Paul [vol 14 & 15]	1 25	Roads Isaac	1 00
Fraser Julia	1 00	Russel John R vol 15	1 00
Fisher Samuel	1 00	Strickler David	2 50
Fulton Sarah [vol 15]	1 00	Shrull Jacob	1 00
Fleisher Henry [vol 15[	1 00	Stouffer Samuel	1 50
Funk Abraham [vol 15]	1 00	Shelly Benj	1 50
Fleagle Simon [vol 15]	50	Shoulz David	1 00
Foor John C [vol 15]	1 00	Shelly Sam'l vols 11 & 15	2 25
Graybill John	1 50	Smith David vols 11 & 15	2 00
Graybill Daniel	3 75	Sherich Paul vols 13 & 14	3 00
Garverich John	1 50	Shelly Michael vol 15	1 00
Gorgas Wm (vol 15)	1 00	Snyder David vol 15	1 00
Gardner Peter vol 15	1 00	Tinsman John vol 15	5 00
Hoot Wm	1 00	Umberger John	1 25
Hicks Amos	50	Unger Catharine vol 15	1 00
Harris Thomas vol 15	1 00	Vandersaul Jacob vol 15	1 00
Kramer Joseph	50	Vanardt Wm	1 50
Kistler Samuel	1 00	Wingert Henry	2 00
Kistler Geo W vol 15	1 00	Wingert John	2 00
Longenecker Edward	1 00	Worley Thomas	1 00
Leffever Geo	1 00	Wengert Geo vol 15	1 00
Linsey Joseph	1 00	Young Jonathan	1 00
Morgan Dennis	1 00	Young Jacob	1 50

Our Next Volume.

On the first of May the next and fifteenth volume will commence. Those, therefore, who want the paper for one dollar a year, must send on the money or pay it over to some one of our accredited agents, on or before that time.

The Debate.

This being the closing number of the present volume, we could not make room for any part of the debate. It will be continued, we hope, hereafter, uninterruptedly, to its close.

Our Terms, Rules and Regulations.

We invite attention to our terms, rules and regulations, because me mean just what we say. We wish it therefore to be understood, and fairly and distinctly understood, that our terms, &c., are stern, rigid and inflexible; so that whether our subscribers choose to pay in advance or otherwise, they will in all cases be required to comply with the terms of the paper.

New Subscribers.

These are beginning to come in slowly, for the next volume. A few only have sent us enough to entitle them to a free copy. We hope, however, there will be a goodly number more, who will procure a sufficient list of new subscribers, which will entitle them to a volume gratis. Five new paying subscribers is all we require for this purpose.

Fair Notice to Our Delinquents.

We hereby give notice once more, that all persons who fail to pay up by the first of May, shall positively have their papers stopped, and their accounts sent on for collection. Some of our subscribers are back for two and three years, hence it is just and right that old scores should be paid up, before new and further indebtedness be incurred.

Notice to Brother M. F. Snavely.

Brother Funk and others left here for Iowa on Tuesday morning, the 9th inst. They expect to land at Burlington, Iowa. Will brother Snavely meet them there, or write and let them know whether they can find accommodations in North Bend. If not, they would like to hear from other brethren in Iowa, what opening, if any, can be found for them. Address Abraham Funk, Burlington, Iowa.

The Keystone Mutual Life Insurance Company.

This company, chartered by the present Legislature, has been organized and has commenced doing business in Market street, Harrisburg. The following are the officers:

President—Hon. Luther Reily, M. D.

Vice President—Hon. Augustus O. Heister.

Directors—William Colder, Sr., Herman Alricks, John H. Berryhill, Daniel W. Gross, Thomas H. Wilson, John P. Rutherford, Stephen Miller, David Fleming.

Secretary—John W. Wilson.

Physicians to the Company—Wm. W. Rutherford, Edward L. Orth.

Counsel—John H. Berryhill.

Death of Mr. Calhoun.

The Hon. John C. Calhoun, U. S. Senator from South Carolina, died in Washington city on Sunday morning, the 31st ult. He was 68 years of age.

To Our Correspondents.

We have received and put on file for publication, a variety of excellent communications, which we are not able to make room for at present, but we hope to find room by and by. Our contributors will please to have patience, and their approved effusions shall be duly honored with an insertion.

Seventh-day Baptists.

The Committee in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, to whom the bill from the Senate for the relief of this denomination was referred, made a report on the subject of the observance of the Sabbath, and against the passage of the Senate bill.

In this report and act of the House, we have another proof of human oppression and fallibility. How incompatible with the rule, "Do as you would wish to be done by."

End of the 14th Volume.

This number ends the present volume. Our numerous and attentive readers will form the best opinion, as to the comparative merits of our labors and toils in this volume. How far it will compare with former volumes, and with our numerous and excellent cotemporaries, is not for us, but for them to say. We deem it enough, and we are happy in our own consciousness, to say, that we have faithfully labored to do what we could to make the paper interesting and useful, by the diffusion of Bible truth, religious news and general intelligence. How far we have succeeded in the attainment of this object, our readers must judge.

We are pleased to know, that not a few of our subscribers and contributors have borne a very flattering testimony in our favor. Besides this, the gradual increase of the subscription list, is a further, and perhaps, better and stronger demonstration of the Advocate's favorable reception.

If unremitting toil and attention on our part, to make its columns the uncompromising exponent and advocate of Bible truth, and the proclaimer of useful knowledge and general intelligence, can enhance its value, and increase its popularity, then, God being our helper, the Church Advocate has not yet attained to its meridian glory. But, as deeds excel words, we forbear glorying—we only say, "Come and see."

Change of Post Office addresses.

Andrew J. Kauffman, Hoguestown, Cumberland county, Pa.

Simon Fleagle, Linglestown, Dauphin county, Pa.

William H. Mullenix, Baltimore, Md.

Abraham Snyder, Paul's Valley, Dauphin county, Pa.

Moses M. Utley, Lisburn, Cumberland county, Pa.

Jacob Keller, Mount Joy, Lancaster county, Pa.

Abraham Swartz, Lancaster, Pa.

William Mooney, Middletown, Dauphin county, Pa.

Carlton Price, Mount Joy, Lancaster county, Pa.

John A. Plowman, Lewisberry, York county, Pa.

Thomas H. Deshirl, Fayetteville, Franklin county, Pa.

Josiah H. Hurley, Landisburg, Perry county, Pa.

John C. Owens, Uniontown, Carroll county, Md.

William McFadden, Baltimore, Md.

Jesse Haifleigh, Shirmanstown, Cumberland county, Pa.

John Martin, South Milford, Lagrange county, Indiana.

Harrisburg Bible Society.

The thirty-sixth Anniversary of the Harrisburg Bible Society was held in the German Reformed church on Wednesday evening, the 27th ult. The President, Judge Bucher, in the chair. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. Dewitt. The Annual Report was then read by the Secretary.

EXTRACT FROM THE REPORT.

Mr. Bossler, the county agent, visited 1846 families, of whom about 50 were entirely destitute of the Holy Scriptures. He distributed 33 Bibles and 14 Testaments gratuitously, and sold 207 Bibles, 88 German and English Testaments, 17 large English Testaments, and 144 small ditto. For these books sold he received $182,24. and in donations $235,12, making a total of $417,36.

Since the commencement of the present effort to re-supply the county, there have been purchased, from the Pennsylvania Bible Society, Bibles and Testaments to the amount of $121 40. Our account with the parent Society at that time showed a balance of some $20 00 in our favor. And we had books in our depository to the amount of $10 00. There are, of the recent orders, books on hand, to the amount of $750 00. There has been paid, on account, $299 87. There is at present in the hands of our Treasurer, A. K. Fahnestock, Esq., $66 49; and in the hands of Judge Bucher, obtained by the sale of books from the depository, after deducting the percentage for the agent and cost of transportation, the sum of $12 00. Making a total of $712 36; leaving a balance in our favor of $391 96.

Trial and Conviction of Dr. Webster.

The trial of Dr. Webster at Boston, for the murder of Dr. Parkman, closed on Saturday evening, the 30th ult., and has resulted in his conviction of the crime charged. The evidence in the case was wholly circumstantial, but of so strong a character, as justified the Jury in bringing in a verdict of guilty. The following facts were given in evidence:

1. That the remains of a human body were found about the private apartments of Dr. Webster. 2. That these remains were not used for the ordinary purposes of dissection. 3. That they were the remains of Dr. Parkman. 4. That they were placed where they were found for concealment. 5. That the prisoner had business transactions with Dr. Parkman, which were approaching a crisis that would be humiliating and injurious to the accused. 6. That the handwriting of certain anonymous letters, sent to the City Marshall about the time of Dr. Parkman's disappearance, apparently endeavoring to direct suspicion in various directions, was, in all probability, that of the accused. And 7. That Dr. Parkman was actually seen in the College on the day referred to, between the hours of one and two.

He was sentenced by Judge Shaw, on Monday morning, the 1st inst.

We perceive, however, that a large majority of the press, out of Boston, take ground against the verdict of the Jury in the case of Professor Webster; and while they generally admit the probability of his guilt, express the opinion that it was not proved with sufficient certainty, to justify a verdict of guilty.

The alibi proved by the witnesses who testified that they saw Dr. Parkman, after he was proved to have entered the College in the afternoon of the day on which he disappeared, is certainly a strong fact in favor of the defendant; and, if believed, would have been sufficient to have raised a reasonable doubt of his guilt, and to have demanded his acquittal. But there is as much in the manner and circumstances under which witnesses testify, as the matter itself, to impress the minds of a jury. There were about forty witnesses examined on behalf of the prisoner, among whom were his two daughters—18 to 16 years of age. They testified to his having been at home at the usual meal hours, &c. Several witnesses testified, positively, that they had seen Dr. Parkman on Friday, November 23d, as late as five o'clock in the afternoon—which is after the time of his supposed murder.

The allegation that his counsel did not do their duty, is also made. Now, the presumption is, that what may seem to those at a distance as a failure on their part, arose out of the intrinsic difficulty of the case, and the powerful chain of facts and circumstances with which the case was surrounded. It may be that they felt the force of truth press upon them so powerfully, that they were unable to assume a hypothesis and present arguments that they knew could have no effect with an intelligent jury. But it is not to be presumed that the Governor will prematurely issue his death warrant; and if there really is any well founded doubt of the prisoner's guilt, it is most ardently to be hoped that the sentence may be commuted.

The following incidents are related in a Boston paper:

It is understood that the jury, after going out on Saturday night, at first deliberated in silence for ten minutes. They then voted on the question whether the remains were those of Dr. George Parkman. There was a unanimous "yea." On the second question, whether Dr. Webster murdered him, there were eleven yeas and one nay. The nay came from Mr. Benj. H. Greene. He stated his point of doubt, and after some discussion declared it removed.

The family of Dr. Webster was not informed of the verdict the night it was rendered.—Friends, however, undertook the task of preparing their minds for it. The awful disclosures were made on Sunday morning by Mrs. Wm. E. Prescott. The scene was the most heart-rending, and wails and shrieks could not be concealed from the passers by. Every effort has been made by their friends to assuage the grief of the afflicted wife and daughters, who, up to a late hour, confidently expected an aequital.

A letter of condolence was presented to them on Sunday afternoon, signed by the heads of all the principal families of Cambridge, including the Hon. Edw. Everett, Jared Sparks, Prof. Norton, Fay, &c.

The immense crowd retired from the court room and its vicinity in silence, and without the least disturbance.

Judge Fay gave it up that his friend, Dr. Webster, was a guilty man, after hearing his own speech on Saturday evening. Anecdotes of the cruelty of Dr. W. in early life are now told by those who were then acquainted with him.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

JOURNAL

OF THE

First Eldership of the Church of God in Michigan.

The brethren met, agreeably to appointment, at the house of brother E. H. Searles, in Thorn-apple township, Barry county, Michigan, on Saturday, the 2d day of March, A. D., 1850, when, on motion, it was Resolved, That brother B. Farnham open the meeting in the usual way.

After which brothers Lams and Kilmer were appointed to constitute the meeting; whereupon the following brethren were found in attendance, viz:

Teaching Elders—Alexander B. Slyter and Enoch B. Galasbee.

Ruling Elders—Jno. Ferdig and Jno. Kilmer.

Delegates—E. H. Searles, John Kilmer, Jr., Amos Lams, David Woods, Robert H. Kilmer, B. F. Hungerford and John E. Woods.

On motion, it was agreed that we now proceed to elect a Speaker and a Clerk, by ballot; whereupon A. B. SLYTER was duly elected Speaker and E. H. Searles Clerk.

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed on Resolutions.

Whereupon brothers Jno. Kilmer, Farnham and Lams were appointed said committee.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the ministers now give in their annual reports.

Brother A. B. SLYTER reported: That he felt glad for the privilege to meet his brethren in an Eldership capacity. He said when he started to come here to this new country, he was told by the brethren he was going away from home. But I find friends wherever I go. There is a goodly work begun here, I trust, and some have been happily converted to God, and baptized. Five last Sabbath, and five more came forward for prayer. He said that he still felt encouraged to go on, and labor in the vineyard of the Lord.

His report was adopted and license granted.

Brother ENOCH B. GALASBEE reported: That he felt highly gratified to meet with his brethren in this Western country, in an Eldership capacity, which is something that he had earnestly desired. He expressed a confident hope that the feeble exertions which may be made use of by the Eldership, in this Western country, to forward the cause of God, will not prove in vain.

His report was adopted and license granted.

Resolved, That this Eldership unite with the other Elderships of the Church of God, in the general system of co-operation.

APPLICANTS FOR LICENSE.

Brother John Ferdig rose and gave in his experience and applied for license, and license was granted him.

Brother Benjamin Farnham gave in his experience and applied for license, which was granted.

Resolved, That we, the brethren of the Church of God, prohibit any one from uniting with us who holds slaves or belongs to secret societies; and that we will take no book but the Bible, as the man of our counsel and the rule of our faith and practice.

Resolved, That we now appoint a Standing Committee, consisting of five persons.

Whereupon the following brethren were appointed, viz: J. E. Woods, John Kilmer, A. B. Slyter, Farnham, and Amos M. Lams.

Resolved, That a Stationing Committe be appointed, consisting of three persons.

Whereupon Brothers Searles, J. Kilmer and R. H. Kilmer were appointed.

On motion, it was then

Resolved, That we now ascertain whether any, and if any, who will travel this year.

The following arrangements were then made:

Brother Benj. Farnham agreed to preach on Middleville circuit.

Brother A. B. Slyter on Thorn-apple circuit.

Brother Enoch B. Galasbee will labor as much as he can on Gaines circuit.

Brother John Ferdig is to preach on Calidonia circuit; and will do as much as he is able in the ministry.

Resolved, That this Eldership now adjourn to meet again in a school-house in the town of Gaines, in the Hamman settlement, on the third Monday of October next, 1850; at which time and place we, the Eldership of Michigan, do respectfully and earnestly solicit the attendance of the brethren of Indiana and Ohio.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we tender our sincere thanks to brother Searles and wife, and the brethren in this place, for their hospitality toward us during our meeting.

The Eldership then adjourned. Concluded with prayer.

A. B. SLYTER, Speaker.

E. H. Searles, Clerk.

A Fearful Disease.

Wooster, Ohio, March 6, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

There is an alarming disease raging most fearfully in this country at this time. It is sometimes termed the "Yellow Fever."—This disease, when it first appeared in our country, was confined principally to the non-professing part of community, but at length took hold of nominal professors, and of late has seized some of the members of the Church of God. In its first appearance, it was confined exclusively to the male sex, but latterly it has made its inroads into the ranks of the poor females, and some of them are now falling victims to its virulence. This disease differs in some respects from all other diseases.

1. Most other diseases have their origin in the stomach or blood, but this in the mind, and is frequently located there some time before it developes itself.

2. Most other diseases affect the body first, and frequently the body only; but this the mind first, and if not arrested will carry off the body also.

3. Most other diseases carry the body to the grave, while the soul goes to God who gave it, but this one carries soul and body to California: and it is to be feared it will carry many from thence down to perdition.

4. While other diseases can have no moral effect upon men, this one most assuredly will produce the most serious and awful effects upon the moral condition of men, both present and future.

And, notwithstanding the disease is variously termed, the proper name for it is, "The love of the world." Now, the Saviour has taught us that where the love of the world is, the love of the Father is not. But were men not diseased before the California gold was discovered? No doubt they were, at least many of them, and the discovery of the gold has only discovered that fact or made a developement of the disease.

But may we not as well dig for gold in California as at home? Yes, and much better, if you love gold so much that you must dig for it; for you will come the best speed there.

Now, as for young men, single, unconverted young men, it may do, but for men of families, and professing Godliness too, it is quite too bad to love gold so much that they can bid adieu to their weeping wives and children, and start for California for a little gold-dust—with one chance out of ten, ever to return, or afford them any comfort more—is, I think, evidence conclusive that they are fearfully diseased: so much so, that there is no soundness in them.—And I would here say, that if divorcing was right in any case, save the one specified in Matt. 5: 32, that all such women would be justifiable in getting a divorce. But as that is forbidden by the Lord in any case save one, the evil must be endured.

But to the law and testimony. 1 Tim. 6: 6. "Godliness with contentment is great gain; for we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can take nothing out; and having food and raiment, let us be therewith content. But they that will be rich, fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition."

It is not only those that are rich that are in danger, but they that will be rich, and of these there are many at the present day. They would be rich, and are reaching after it; and I venture to say, there are few men who go to California for gold, but what are of the would be rich folks; and if so, are diseased, and in eminent danger, according to the Apostle.—In the 10th verse he says, "The love of money is the root of all evil; which, while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows." O! love of the world, what hast thou done?

But is there no balm for this disease? I answer, there is balm. And I would recommend it to all, but more particularly to those who are not yet diseased, as a preventative. The grace of God is the balm. There is no other cure. All human remedies fail, but the grace of God is a sovereign and specific cure. The love of God is a complete antidote to the love of the world. And, as the saying goes,

"An ounce of preventative is worth a pound of cure." I would say to those who are yet in health, keep your hearts full of the love of God, and there is no danger of your taking the disease. But if there is a lack, you will be in danger of taking the disease. And if it becomes once seated, you will find it difficult to get it removed; and if not cured, it will likely carry you away to California, and from thence I know not.

The Lord has counseled you to come to him for gold, and he will give that gold that has been tried in the fire, and a heart full of it is worth all that is in California. Hence, then, you need not go so far, to spend your money, your time, and expose your health, nor leave your families, to get rich. You can get the true riches. I close for the present.

ARCHIBALD MEGREW.

On Ordination.

I saw in the last number of the Advocate, that brother Hurley has had a conversation, with a certain minister, on the subject of ordination, in which it is said that the ministers of the Church of God have no lawful ordination to the work of the ministry. If this assertion is true, it is high time to know it.—Brother Hurley has asked for something to be said on this subject through the Advocate. To discuss and examine this subject critically, I will leave to older and abler hands. But I will relate a conversation had, not long since, with a minister who holds the same view concerning the ministers of the Church of God.

I asked him the question, whether he believed that the imposition of hands was essential to the work of the ministry? He answered in the affirmative; and in proof of his position, he at once referred to the fact, that the hands of the Presbytery were laid on Timothy. I replied that it does not definitely say for what purpose the Presbytery laid their hands on him: that it was more likely it was done to confer the Holy Ghost, or some spiritual gift, than anything else. He then asked me to prove it. I replied that it was just as hard for him to prove that it was to ordain him. He then referred to the fact, as further proof of his position, that the hands of the teachers and prophets in the Church at Antioch were laid on Paul and Barnabas. I then asked him if this laying on of hands was to make them ministers? He replied it was. I further asked if they did not preach the gospel long before they came to Antioch. He replied that they were only on probation. I then asked him to prove that the first ministers, such as Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John, had to remain three years on probation before they were fully qualified to preach Christ and him crucified? He then thought that there was something of the kind, or Paul would not have advised Timothy to lay hands suddenly on no man. I replied, if there was a probation in the Church in the days of the Apostles, Paul certainly knew nothing of it, according to the account of his own conversion and call to the ministry, as given in Gal. 1: 15-18. For he there says: "But when it pleased God, who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace, to reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen; immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood: neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were Apostle before me; but I went into Arabia and returned again to Damascus. Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter, and abode with him fifteen days." Mark what the Apostle says, "Immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood, but I went into Arabia among the heathen." Again, it was not necessary to wait three years before they would acknowledge his call and qualification to the ministry, for God had plainly revealed it all to Ananias, who was chosen to instruct him at the time of his conviction at Damascus, as well as his own declaration afterward. Here my friend remarked, that Paul was not an Apostle, and that there is no account of him working miracles, till after the imposition of hands. I then asked him whether he became an Apostle, and received the power to work miracles, by the imposition of hands? He answered no. I then asked him how soon after the imposition of hands he became an Apostle, and received power to work miracles? He replied that he could not tell. I then remarked, that seeing the importance of the work that he was called to engage in, that he may have had the power from the beginning of his ministry, So ended our friendly conversation.

I would merely remark, if the doctrine of ordination by the imposition of hands is to be found in the New Testament, it is certainly not to be found in the circumstance above referred to. D. R. ROCKAFELLOW.

Mechanicsburg, March 24, 1850.

The Dying Hour.

How solemn, how awful, and yet how tranquil, is the hour of death. Who has not stood by the dying bed of human beings, and viewed the last beating of the heart, or the last flutterings of the pulse, and catched the last anxious expression of the person, who was destined to to a world of spirits? Who has witnessed that trying hour through which every individual, of whatever station in life, is obliged to pass, without realizing its solemnity and importance! The high and low, the rich and poor, the proud and the humble, are all on an equal in the hour of death. No rank or riches will avail them anything in that moment. Their destiny is fixed, and they must yield, whether prepared or unprepared.

When we reflect upon this subject, is it not enough to solemnize all hearts, in view of that trying hour, in which, we shall have to bid adieu to all that we hold dear, and appear in the presence of a just God, there to give an account of all the deeds done in the body?

There are two characters, alike subject to the monster death, namely: the Christian and the sinner. But what a contrast! The Christian lays his body down upon the bed of death, calmly resigned to the will of Him who has guided him through the cares and trials of a wicked world. He looks with an eye of faith beyond this vale of tears, and sees the crown that is prepared for the faithful. He hears the well known voice of his Father, saying, "Well done good and faithful servant, enter into the joys of thy Lord." This is enough for him. He asks nothing more. He has no tie on earth, that he is not willing to break. No friend so dear, that he is not willing to part with. No—on the contrary, he resigns his all into the hands of God, and patiently waits for the moment that shall release him from all earthly ties. He cheerfully bids his friends farewell, for a season, and gives them that consolation which the faithful followers of Jesus Christ alone can give. Truly, this is a peaceful moment to the Christian!—When, like Moses, he can view the promised land, and exclaim with Paul, the aged, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith, and henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me in that day."

Thus he expires, leaving a glorious evidence that death to him was no terror, and that he has gained the victory over death, and is now engaged with all the Heavenly hosts, shouting the praises of God and the Lamb forever.

But, alas! not so with the sinner. He has no cheering consolation to bear him up through the dark valley and shadow of death. His treasure is laid up in this world, and where his treasure is, there his heart is also. He has no hope beyond this vale of tears. Vainly he looks on those around him, to catch some encouraging expression, that he may yet be restored to health; but, alas! no such encouragement meets his gaze. His destiny is fixed—the king of terrors is fast approaching, and he is hurried into eternity. His unrepented of, unatoned for, and unpardoned sins, stare him in the face! O! how miserable is the dying hour of the finally impenitent!

Oh! that God would arouse careless sinners, and help them to prepare for the hour of death. Oh! that his children may ever be found in that straight and narrow path that leads to everlasting life.

SARAH WOODRUFF.

Milford, Lagrange Co., Indiana.

The Death-bed of Joseph Brenneman, Jr.

BY HIS FATHER.

With the death of this, our beloved son, there are some things connected, about which I feel to say something. It may be profitable. I think the hand of the Lord was visible in this afflictive Providence. Many were astonished to hear the language and expressions that fell from his lips, as his end drew near. He appeared to be conscious of his end. He had great pain. Yet it was remarkable that in all his pain, he never uttered a murmuring word. He would merely say, O, how bad I feel! O, what pain I have! He would pray, O, Lord, let me die! O, I wish I was dead and in my grave! O, Lord, take me home to heaven!

He appeared to be very sensible that his end was nigh; for not long before he died, he said, "I shall soon die. I shall soon go where Abraham is." The fear of death and the grave were all gone. At one time he asked where the little girls were. They went to his bed-side, and he told them they must not be naughty. He once asked for me. I went to his bed, when he asked me to kiss him, and said, "The Lord is good." At one time I was walking through the room, and said, "Shed not a tear," and stopped, when he instantly said, "When you stand round my grave," and tried to sing it. About fifteen minutes before he died, he spoke out with a clear and distinct voice, "The spirit of the Lord be with you all. Amen." After this he sunk away fast, but still tried to speak, until he could speak no more. His talk was all about God and Christ.

Thus have we, in a few weeks, been bereaved of two dear sons. But our loss is their gain. They are gone from a world of sorrow, and I would not wish them back.—Yet, truly, the affliction is a trying one. The ties that bind us to our children are strong. However, I believe the Lord had a wise design in view in this afflicting Providence. Pray for us, that God may sanctify this dispensation of his Providence to me and to mine.

Letter from Brother John Martin.

Milford, Lagrange Co., Indiana,
Feb. 15, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I desire to drop a few lines for the Advocate, to let the brethren know that we, in these Western woods, still feel to labor in the cause of our common Lord.

When I left Ohio and came to this place, it was a new place indeed, and considerable opposition to religion was exhibited by some; but, notwithstanding all this, we raised the standard of King Jesus. Three of my brothers and my aged mother accompanied me,—who enjoyed religion. As the Church of God was a new thing here, some opposed it—others, again, said it would soon all blow over. There were but a few, and if their preacher would die, all would be done any how. But, thank God, to their astonishment, they soon found that it worked like leaven among the people. There were soon some more converted and added to the number, and, in spite of all that could be said and done, the work went on, and is still going on. We held a watch-meeting, on New Year's eve, and the good Lord commenced a gracious work among us. Several came out to be prayed for, and experienced religion. We continued the meeting for two weeks, until our monthly meeting. The work seemed to cease somewhat: however, about nine or ten had embraced the Saviour.

On Sunday evening of the monthly meeting, we gave them an opportunity to unite in church-fellowship, when ten came forward and united with the Church here in Milford. We then attended to the communion and the washing of the Saints' feet. After which an exhortation was delivered and an invitation given for mourners to come out, when ten presented themselves as subjects of prayer, and the meeting went on afresh. The power of God seemed to convict every one. The place where we held the meeting was small. We had just moved into our new house; so we held the meeting in the kitchen. The multitude was sometimes so great, that the setting-room and bed-room were crowded full. In consequence of the rooms being so small, the conversions were not as many, perhaps, as if we would have had room to accommodate the people. However, the meeting lasted for six weeks, evenings only, and during this time somewhere about thirty were reclaimed and converted—twenty of which united in church-fellowship. We have seen the young, the middle-aged, and the old come to the feet of sovereign mercy, crying for pardon and obtaining salvation.

All this has given me great pleasure. But what has given me much additional joy and rejoicing is, that some of the brethren, who considered themselves so very weak that they were sometimes almost afraid of their own shadows, now feel and act as if they could by the grace of God chase a host themselves. So it ought to be.

We have commenced building a meeting-house, and when it is finished we shall be able to accommodate our neighbors and friends more conveniently with room to hear the word of God.

This late meeting reminded me of the meetings we used to have in the city of Lancaster, when I embraced religion. I shall never forget those days, when, with my brethren in that place, I enjoyed the refreshing showers from the presence of the Lord. Yet, now we are separated, and I am here in this Western and new world. Nevertheless, my mind is often carried back to those times. I still feel to make my way onward and upward, and to meet those good old brethren that took me by the hand when I was but a child in religion. I shall never forget the kindness they manifested towards me and mine. But, to God be all the glory, that I ever met with and found a people willing to help me and do me good, and willing to obey all God's commands. Brethren pray for us in the West. No more at present.

I remain your brother in Christ,

JOHN MARTIN.

Letter from Brother J. F. W.

ANNVILLE, Lebanon County, Pa., March 4, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

IN the Advocate of the 1st of February I answered Elder J. H. Hurley's Baptismal Query, found in the previous number. In doing so I thought I was answering a question seriously asked with a desire to obtain information, and not for the purpose of idle controversy and cavilling. Such controversy and idle criticizing belongs to the world, but not to Christian ministers.

I said the commission must be our rule in all cases; and if brother H. will read again he will see that I defined my position thus: That the commission authorized preaching first and baptizing secondly. I mean that a man feels the Spirit moving upon his heart that he shall preach, as soon, perhaps, as he is converted. And we often see this to be the case; and when we see seals set to his ministry, we readily admit him to be called to preach the gospel. As soon as he is believed thus called, we believe him authorized to administer the ordinances of the gospel, as well as preach it. But the question is, Is baptism legal or valid if the administrator has not been baptized?

I have said that in the extreme case of necessity found among his California brethren, (cited in his query.) none of them were qualified to baptize the rest except he were called to preach, but in that case I considered any one of them thus called of God, qualified, owing to the circumstance of the impossibility to have the rite administered to him by a baptized minister. Now, it is a case of extreme necessity that he presents; and I have admitted an extreme remedy, upon the ground that all things must needs have a beginning. But brother H. thinks this not only "a flat contradiction" to my declaration that the commission is the rule to govern us, but charges me with "changing times and laws," and setting forth a "corrupt theology."

Suppose I would ask brother H., Who baptized John the Baptist? He would say God authorized him to be the institutor of the rite. So he did, and it was valid baptism unto repentance—and we have no account that he was ever baptized himself. The necessity of the case demanded this. So I think it does in the California brethren case. Again: Who baptized the Apostles to whom the Lord gave the commission when he ascended? When were they baptized? And is there any positive Scripture declaration that they were baptized, especially before they baptized any others? Can he take the ground that they were?—Should he not be able to prove it, that would not invalidate their ministrations; for they were the first to introduce Christian Baptism, and as there was no person there who had been baptized with that baptism to baptize them, the necessity of the case required the performance by them. So I plead in the case of his California brethren, supposed to be thousands of miles off from any baptized minister of Jesus Christ, and who, having been converted through reading the Bible, and seeing the necessity to be baptized, demand the rite. I hope brother H. will give us all the information upon the subject, so that each may have a perfect understanding of his baptism query.

J. F. W.

Letter from Brother Samuel Scott.

TRENTON, Iowa, March 18, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

SINCE I last wrote to you, we were called to follow a beloved sister to the tomb, who died at her father's residence, near Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, on the 2d inst., aged 16 years, 5 months and 16 days.

Sister MYRA was a daughter of Joseph and Mary Barton, formerly of Tuscarawas county, Ohio. She was a subject of the revival in this place. Although young, she remembered her Creator in the days of her youth. She sought the Lord with strong cries and tears, and on the 3rd of February, the Lord spoke peace to her soul. During her short religious career, she lived a happy and devoted Christian. But her race was short. On the 27th she took sick with the lung fever, and on the 2d of March her soul took its flight to a world of spirits, leaving a father, mother, four brothers and two sisters, together with a large circle of relatives and acquaintances, to mourn her loss. But we trust their loss is her eternal gain. Her father and mother, two brothers, and a sister, are happy on their way to the kingdom. The rest of the family are small children.

She bore her last illness with Christian fortitude and holy resignation, giving strong evidence of her acceptance with God. On the 4th inst., I attended her funeral, and preached to a large and weeping congregation, from Job 1: 21; after which we proceeded to the grave-yard and bade her a long adieu.

Farewell, dearest MYRA, thy spirit's at rest,
In mansions of glory, the home of the blest:
While parents are mourning the loss of their child,
Bright angels do welcome thee home with a smile.

Rest on, dearest MYRA, we trust that ere long,
We'll meet thee in glory, and join in the song,
In anthems of praises, our highest notes swell,
All glory to Jesus, who doth all things well.

The Lord is still reviving his work near Mt. Pleasant. On Friday evening, the 8th inst., I preached at brother Barton's, on church government, and on the day following, five believers were buried with their Lord in baptism: after which we organized a Church, consisting of 13 members, on the New Testament plan. This was truly an interesting time. I then had to leave, to fill another appointment. Brother J. Zentmyer staid and conducted the meeting that night, and also the next day and evening; when two precious souls launched into the liberty of God's dear children. There are still a number anxiously enquiring what they must do to be saved. May the Lord help them to seek him until they find him to the joy and comfort of their souls. Amen. Yours fraternally,

SAMUEL SCOTT.

Letter from Brother D. Neidigh.

REEDSBURG, Wayne Co., Ohio, March 21, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

I AGAIN resume my pen to drop a few lines for the columns of the Church Advocate, and for the encouragement of the people of God in general.

According to previous appointment, I met with the Church of God in Knox county, and commenced a protracted meeting, on the 9th of March, in a small cabin, in among the hills. The first part of the meeting was somewhat unruly:—some of the devil's children acted very bad.

After the first Sabbath evening, brother D. Williams came to assist in the meeting. On Monday the darkness began to give way, and the people of God took courage.

On Tuesday brother Wm. Adams came to hand, and truly he was heartily received by the brethren and friends, because he was the instrument in the hands of God, some eight years ago, in making them the happy recipients of saving grace.

On Friday brother D. Williams was under the necessity of leaving us. There was not a right feeling in the congregation till on Friday night, when our much beloved brother Wm. Adams spoke from these words: "And be sure your sins will find you out." Num. 32: 23. The Lord helped him. Seven were brought to yield and inquire what they must do to be saved. This was the last night of the meeting in that place. Three professed to find peace, and two were buried in baptism. Nine identified themselves with the Church. May the Lord keep them faithful, is my prayer.

From there we went and held meeting over Sabbath with the Church of God at Brownsville. On Lord's-day we buried three believers beneath the rolling waves. The Church of God in this place is still increasing. The Gospel of the Son of God, held forth in its simplicity, cuts its way, and causes Babylon to tremble. May the above Church of God live humble, and earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the saints, is my prayer.

Yours truly, D. NEIDIGH, JR.

Letter from Brother D. Brestel.

PEORIA, Illinois, March 8, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

AFTER my respects to you and family, I would inform you that we still enjoy our usual health, for which we owe our gratitude to the great author of our being. We are highly favored with many blessings, both of a temporal and spiritual nature.

For my own part, I have been travelling Pekin circuit, since the beginning of last August, and have seen some seasons of refreshing come from the Lord. Some 60 or 70 souls have started for heaven and glory, since last Christmas, on this circuit. Many also on some of the adjoining circuits. The four different churches in Peoria,—the Presbyterian, Congregationalist, Methodist Episcopal, and Missionary Baptist,—have had revivals in progress. The Rev. Mr. Knapp, from New York, has been laboring here.

The health of our city is very good at present, and the city still in a thriving and flourishing condition. May it soon become famous for piety! Yours, &c.,

D. BRESTEL.

OBITUARY
Sister NANCY WASHEIM.

DIED, in Woodberry, Bedford county, Pa., on the 8th of March, 1850, NANCY WASHEIM, in the 38th year of her age.

Sister Nancy Washeim became a member of the German Reformed Church, of which she remained a member for a number of years, but left off from that Church and stood aloof till something better than a year ago, when she got under conviction and sought and found peace to her soul. She then attached herself to the M. E. Church, of which she remained a member until her death. She died happy in the Lord.

She left a companion and four children, and many relatives, to mourn her loss; but our loss is undoubtedly her gain.

GEO. DILTZ.

Christ and Rome at Variance.—The commission of cardinals has thrown into prison fifty priests, for having administered spiritual consolation to the wounded republicans in the hospital during the siege! How unlike the Saviour, who, when upon earth, relieved the distressed, and who, as Judge of the earth, will reward with a welcome plaudit those to whom he can say, "I was sick, and ye visited me."

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 7th of February, 1850, by Elder Samuel Scott, Mr. JOHN NAE to Miss ELIZA YARLE, all of Henry county, Iowa.

On the 10th of March, by the same, Mr. ELI BARTON to Miss HANNAH GRIFFITH, both of Washington county, Iowa.

On the 21st ult., by Elder David Neidigh, Mr. ROBERT M. NELSON to Miss ELIZABETH WORLEY, both of Ashland county, Ohio.

On the 26th ult., by Elder William Mooney, Mr. LAWRENCE ELBERTY, of Middletown, to Miss MARIA LAPEH, of Mount Joy.

On the 26th ult., in Lancaster city, by Elder J. H. Hurley, RYLAND B. MCALLISTER to ANN GOCHNOUR, all of Martic township, Lancaster county, Pa.

On the 20th of February, 1850, by Elder I. Brady, Mr. WILLIAM H. OSWALD to Miss ANN KAUFFMAN, daughter of Andrew J. and Catharine Kauffman.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!"

DIED—In this borough, on the 4th inst., Mr. JOHN WELTMER, in the 75th year of his age.

On the 15th ult., near Washington, Lancaster county, Pa., of scarlet fever, MARY, daughter of Andrew J. and Catharine Kauffman, aged 2 years and 6 months.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Camp-meetings in Ohio.

1. One in the bounds of the Chester Church, Chester township, Wayne county, commencing on the 15th of August.

2. One in Summit county, near East Liberty, commencing on the 22d of August.

3. One on the old camp-ground, one and a half miles West of Reedsburg, Ashland county, commencing on the 29th of August.

THE

CHURCH ADVOCATE,

A FAMILY PAPER,

DEVOTED TO THE

DIFFUSION OF BIBLE TRUTH, RELIGIOUS NEWS & GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

EDITED BY JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M.

"Earnestly Contend for the Faith which was once Delivered to the Saints."

VOLUME FIFTEEN.

HARRISBURG, PENN'A.

JOHN FURGESON, PRINTER, MULBERRY STREET, BETWEEN FRONT AND SECOND STREETS.

1851.

INDEX TO VOLUME FIFTEEN.

A

PAGE.

American Farmer, - - - 1
About your Correspondents, - - 12
Anonymous Communications, - 12
Away with war, - - - 15
Anecdote of a New Foundland Dog, - 39
A Solemn Question and Trance, - 41
A Trance, - - - - 41
An Improper Question, - - 125
A Moral Essay, - - - 131
A Word to Young Converts, - - 137
A Word to the Young, - - 141
A New Church, - - - 141
Agricultural Convention, - - 145
A Short Trip, - - - - 148
An Incident, - - - - 162
Arbitration instead of War, - - 169
Another Revival, - - - 172
Another Dialogue, - - - 178
A report from the Matamoras and Juniatta Circuit, 187
Affliction, - - - 187

B

Baptize vs. Immerse, - - - 15
Brief Analysis of First Corinthians, - 20
Burning Steamboats, - - - 33, 38
Be Active, - - - - 43
Brotherly Love among Preachers, - 60
Baptismal Query again, - 69, 76, 90, 130
Bishop Asbury and Punch, - - 78
Brighter Day, - - - - 119
Baptism the Door, - - - 156
Bible Convention, - - - 170

C

Camp-meetings, - 9, 37, 76, 77, 83, 84
Cheap Postage Bill, - - - 22, 169
Counsels for the Young, - - 23
Compromise Committee, - - 23
Coming to Christ, - - - 23
Changing Year, - - - 25
Cuba Expedition, - - - 30
Church at Baltimore, - - 19, 44, 116
Confession of Webster, - - 45
Church of God at Uniontown. - 50
Chapter of Miscellaneous Items, - 57
California Trail--Cholera, &c., - 61
Contribution, - - - - 79
Christian Fellowship, - - 97
Children and Parents, - - 107
Corresponding Editorials, - - 115
Cure for Burns and Scalds, - - 119
Constitution—Pa. Agricul. Society, - 159
Christians Sentenced to Death, - 175

D

Debate on Baptism, 2, 10, 18, 34, 66, 90, 98, 122
Design of the Gospel, - - - 37
Destruction of Nauvoo Temple, - 46
Death by Drowning, - - - 53
Death of President Taylor, - - 55
Duties of Women, - - - 59
Dying in the Lord, - - - 81
Death of Judson, - - - 85
Death-beds, - - - - 87
Divine Forbearance, - - - 91
Death by Burning, - - - 116
Days of Zion's Increase, - - 105
Decision, - - - - 131
Dignity of Preachers, - - 163
Don't Complain, - - - 167
Dying in a large city, - - - 170
Dedication of a Bethel, - - 180
Dignity of Tobacco, - - - 183

E

End of the World, - - - 37
Education, - - - - 39
Enfranced Female, - - - 46
Execution of Webster, - - 78
Erskin's last Words, - - - 103
Eldership Journals, - - - 114

F

Fire Annihilator, - - - 14
Father Does it, - - - 47
Friendly Questions, - - - 52
Fire in Philadelphia, - - - 54
Finney, - - - - 62
Flood at Reading, - - - 77
Free Church of Scotland, - - 84
Fate, - - - - - 163
Fishers of Men, - - - 179

G

Gigantic Tree in Van Diemans Land, 21
General Conference, - - - 68
Good News from North Bend, 108, 116
Grace triumphant over Temptation, - 109
God represented by the Poor, - - 110
Governor's Message, - - - 138
Guardian Angels, - - - 140
Grace Abounding, - - - 145
Generosity of Joseph, - - 147

H

Hodgson's Sermons on Baptism, 3, 11, 26
Historic Sketch of Oberlin, - - 39
Holy Living, - - - - 49, 105
Hypocrite's Task, - - - 53
Humility, - - - - 82
Household Baptism, - - - 107
Harrisburg Gas Works, - - 114
History of Utah, - - - 143
Hypocrisy, - - - - 164
How to Prosper in Business, - - 167
How Coal should be Consumed, - 167
How to prepare Sermons, - - 183

I

Iowa Sabbath School, - - - 17
Island of Cuba, - - - 19
Israel of Old, - - - - 49
Iowa again, - - - - 53
Infant Baptism, - - 63, 145, 151
Inward Witness, - - - 103
Is Death Painful, - - - 115
Iowa Mission, - - - - 121
Illinois and Iowa Mission, - - 137
Immigration to the U. States in 1850, 150

J

Jerusalem, - - - - 31
John the Baptist and his Lord, - 138
Journal of the 21st East Pa. Eldership, 98
Do. 5th Indiana Do. - 106
Do. 3d Iowa Do. - 115
Do. 15th Ohio Do. - 122
Do. 2d Michigan Do. - 135
Do. 8th West Pa. Do. - 139

K

Knowledge and Zeal, - - - 52
Keller and Owen's Debate, - - 186

L

Lost in the Belle of the West, - 14
Local preachers, - - 58
Lights and Shadows, - - 81, 89, 178
Law of Newspapers, - - - 177
Letter from J. F. Weishampel, Sr., 4, 20, 27, 42, 164
Do. David Baker, - - 5, 13
Do. A Friend, - - 5
Do. Henry Murray, - - 5
Do. T. H. Deshiri, - - 6
Do. Levi Merkel, - - 6, 172
Do. T. Hickernell, 6, 29, 37, 93, 118, 133, 182
Do. B. Howard, - 12, 69, 150
Do. David Keplinger, - 13
Do. J. B. Harmon, - - 13
Do. J. J. Doman, - - 13, 21
Do. A. Megrew, 13, 118, 164, 165, 165
Do. M. M. Utley, - - 13
Do. Jacob Hickernell, - 14
Do. Wm. Bond, - - 21, 69
Do. Jesse Snyder, - - 21
Do. John Miller, - - 22
Do. M. F. Snavely, 28, 53, 108, 116, 157
Do. S. A. Brumbaugh, - 29
Do. Samuel Scott, - - 29, 70
Do. Jacob Miller, - - 29
Do. Wm. Booth, - - 29, 53
Do. G. U. Harn, - - 37
Do. Wm. Vance, - - 37, 173
Do. A. B. Slyter, - - 38, 94
Do. A. H. Kauffman, - 44, 132
Do. F. Swentzell, - - 44
Do. S. B. Howard, - - 53
Do. David Shriner, - - 53
Do. Geo. Schroll, - - 61
Do. John Stomm, - - 70, 179
Do. J. M. Klein, - - 94, 142
Do. B. Ober, - - - 94
Do. Daniel Wertz, - - 94
Do. Wm. Johnston, - 103, 172
Do. D. A. L. Laverty, - 103
Do. Oregon, - - - 117
Do. J. Myers, - 1, 17, 172, 181
Do. Daniel R. Long, - - 118
Do. John H. Chew, - - 118
Do. G. Sandoe, - 118, 188
Do. A. Clay, - - 126
Do. J. M. West, - - 126
Do. C. F. Lung, - - 133
Do. John F. Fox, - - 133
Do. J. H. Hurley, - 141, 181
Do. John Dash, - - 142
Do. Wm. Fasig, - - 142
Do. Daniel Graybill, - - 142
Do. A. Snyder, - - 148
Do. J. Haifleigh, - - 149
Do. Moses Coates, - - 149
Letter from John C. Owens, - - 149
Do. David Kyle, - 149, 174
Do. David Neidigh, - 144, 165, 184
Do. E. Logue, - - 150,
Do. Wm. L. Crossman, - 150
Do. John A. Plowman, - 156
Do. Wm. Davis, - - 165
Do. Geo. Diltz, - - 165
Do. J. Hickernell, - - 173
Do. Geo. Thomas, - - 173
Do. J. C. Foor, - - 174
Do. J. Schoch, - - 181
Do. A. J. Fenton, - - 182
Do. Frederick Komp, - 188

M

Moral Retribution, - - 3, 52, 75, 82
Masters, - - - - 7
Meaning of the Term Servant, - 7
Meeting-house in Baltimore, - - 25
Moral and Legal Suasion, - - 27
More about the Query, - - 28
My last about the Query, - - 51
Mysterious Knockings, - - 70
Meeting of colored citizens, - - 94
Missionary Subscription, - - 113
Millions for War & Mites for Messiah, 134
Milking Cows, - - - 135
More news from Mount Joy, - - 153
Missionary Pledge List, - 162, 169
More news from York county, - 188

N

Nestorian Pastor, - - - 110
New subscribers, - - - 121
New Testament Words, 126, 133, 140, 147, 157, 162, 171, 179
New Fangled Doctrine, - - 177

O

Our tour to the West, 1, 28, 33, 42, 49, 65, 74, 114, 130
Obituaries, - - - 108, 134
Origin of Coal, - - - 111
Offer to Preachers, - - - 153
Organize Churches, - - - 188

Obituary.

Obituary of Michael Bear, - - 14
Do. Frederick Stoner, - 22
Do. Anna Brenneman, - 22
Do. Levi Clay, - - 30
Do. Andrew Burd, - - 45
Do. Henry Bollinger, - 45
Do. Jane Clelland, - - 53
Do. Lucy Ann Hinny, - 53
Do. Frederick Hoover, - 61
Do. George Sipe, - - 70
Do. Caroline M. Singiser, - 70
Do. Mary Ann Myers, - 77
Do. Elizabeth Elcock, - 84
Do. Abraham Bomberger, - 84
Do. Eliza McFarren, - 109
Do. Catharine Keck, - 109
Do. C. P. Fetterowe, - 118
Do. Elizabeth Williams, - 142
Do. Susan Brady, - - 154
Do. John M. Smith, - - 154
Do. Rebecca Wise, - - 165
Do. Mary Wingert, - - 165
Do. Sarah Fetrow, - - 174
Do. Elizabeth Johnston, - 174
Do. Sarah Elizabeth Barr, - 174
Do. Matilda Coalter, - 174

P

Profanity, - - - - 15
Pentecost, or Whitsuntide, - - 17
Peace Congress at Frankfort, - 95
Peace Congress, - - - 114
President's Message, - - - 122
Printing Machine, - - - 127
Paine's Gas Light, - - - 134
Prayer, - - - - 140
Proposition to enlarge the Advocate, 161
Population of Pennsylvania, - - 175

Poetry.

Just as I am, - - - - 8
Just as thou art, - - - 8
Spring, - - - - 16
The considerate child's Prayer, - 16
To my Husband, - - - 24
The last Supper, - - - 24
A change, - - - - 30
Who is my Neighbor, - - 32
The child's complaint of a hard heart, 32
Childrens' confession of their sinfulness, 32
The Household Dirge, - - 40
The Great Hereafter, - - - 40
Happiness, - - - - 48
Who is a God like unto Thee, - 48
The Parable of the Sower, - - 56
Cast in thy Mite, - - - 64
Bless God for Rain, - - - 64
Those that seek me early shall find me, 72
Be gentle with thy wife, - - 72
The Bible, - - - - 72
The Christian's Death Song, - - 80
Death of a child, - - - 80
The Old Earth, - - - 87
Hymn, - - - - 88
'Tis good to live, - - - 88
Mother, sing Jernsalem, - - 88
The chant of the Cherubim, - - 96
A Spiritual Song, - - - 96
All can do something, - - 96
Elegy, - - - - 104
Oh! Blessed are the dead in Christ, - 104
Unite my heart, &c., - - - 112
The Chistian in affliction, - - 112
Swarm of Bees, - - - 112
My Sister's child, - - - 112
Earth and Heaven, - - - 119
A Hymn, - - - - 128
The land of the Blessed, - - 135
The Atonement of Christ, - - 135
The better land, - - - 144
Long for Home, - - - 151
Hell, - - - - - 158
War, - - - - - 159
Friendship, - - - - 159
Baptismal Hymn, - - - 166
Weal and Wo, - - - 168
The Philosopher's Stone, - - 175
The Christian, - - - 183
Come up Higher, - - - 183

Q

Query—Who may Baptize, - - 52, 60
Questions on Pedo-Rantism, - - 108
Questions for the Ohio Brethren, - 137

R

Revival News, 9, 79, 105, 137, 149, 153, 156, 161
Real Christianity, - - - 23
Respect for the Sabbath, - - 86
Report of Protracted Meetings, - 92
Review of the late Eldership, - 107
Report of the Committee on Education, 121
Revaccination, - - - 157
Religious Statistics of Canada, - 167
Reading with Maps, - - - 180

S

Standing Committee, 5, 44, 137, 164, 180, 188
State of things in our land, - - 25
Stephen the first Martyr, - - 33
Sabbath Schools, - - 39, 60, 65
Sectarian Spirit, - - - 53
Sabbath Evening, - - - 60, 81
Sabbath Morning, - - - 73, 122
Sweet courtesies of life, - - 87
Scene in a Hebrew family, - - 95
Slavery Re-defined, - - - 129
Study, - - - - - 132
Self-esteem, - - - - 148
Strangers and Sojourners, - - 170

T

Temperance Convention, - - 4
Tribute of Respect, - - - 7
The Travellers, - - - 17
The Doomed Man, - - - 57
The Contrast, - - - - 63
Thoughts on several things, - 73, 167, 178
The world around us, - - 89
The work of the Ministry, - - 89
The worth of Hope, - - - 108
The Sabbah in Germany, - - 111
Thanksgiving Day, - - - 113
The World's Fair, - - - 114
The Short Sermon, - - 119, 166
The Rapids of Jordan, - - 143
The Church—the Truth, &c., - 154
Tale-bearing, - - - - 156
Telescope Misinformed, - - 161
Trip to Philadelphia, - - - 177
The Resolution of Ohio Eldership, &c., 185
The Superiority of our Knowledge, &c., 186

U

Uniontown Selection, - - - 59
Union S. S., North Bend, Iowa, - 116

V

Valuable wash for Trees, - - 23
Visit to the General Conference, - 92
Visit to the Yearly Meeting, - - 97
Victim to Catholic Influence, - 170
Visit to Middletown, - - - 185

W

Worn out Ministers, - - - 7
Wonders of the Atmosphere, - 63
Washington's opinion of War, - 143
Washing Fluid, - - - 132

Z

Zion's Joy and King, - - - 163

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. MAY 1, 1850. NUMBER 1.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.

The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.

In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY AND STATE.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fifteen.

Names	Am't. paid	Names.	Am't. paid
Albr ght Peter B	$1 00	Gill David	$1 00
Anglemyer Adam	50	Glenn Catharine vol 14	1 00
Angle Samuel	1 00	Gher David vols 14 & 15	2 50
Ashton Thomas	1 00	Grove Christian	1 00
Banksoa Jane	1 00	Grindle Geo	1 00
Brown Mary	1 00	Grove Samuel	1 00
Brubaker Ann E vol 14	1 25	Grubb John	1 00
Buser John	1 00	Greene James	1 00
Bamberger Wm	1 00	G dogs Henry vols 14 & 15	2 00
Books John	1 00	Hoover Michael	1 00
Baker Israel vols 13 & 14	3 00	Hamsher John	1 00
Brown Lucetta	1 00	Heaga Jacob vol 13	1 50
Brown Jacob	1 00	Hawk Henry	1 00
Bricker John	1 00	Heckert John E	1 00
Baldler John	1 00	Hicks & Stutzman	1 0
Byers Joseph	1 00	Howenstein John vol 14	1 50
B a r Geo	1 00	Hart Jacob	1 00
Bricker Samuel	1 00	Harper James	1 00
Blickenstiff John	1 00	Hoverter Christian	1 00
Barnhart John B vol 14	1 50	Hartman Felix	1 00
Breneman Joseph	1 00	Hostetter John S	1 00
Bear Nancy	1 00	Hoffman Lydia	1 00
Baumgardner Samuel	1 00	Hassen James	1 00
Brown John	1 00	Hershey Jacob H	1 00
Bricker Ann	1 00	Hamilton Mary C	1 00
Balmer John	1 00	Jones Peter	1 00
Carl John W	1 00	Koouse John	1 00
Cunningham Margaret	1 00	Kann Daniel	1 00
Conrad Philip	1 00	Kratzer Samuel	1 00
Cover Jacob H	1 00	Kister Henry G	1 00
Clauser Daniel vols 13, 14 & 15	4 00	Kibler John	1 00
Cope Mary	2 00	Knisley Samuel	1 00
Clay Henry	1 00	Keith Lewis [50 on 15 vol]	2 00
Cramer Geo	1 00	Landis Christian	1 00
Cramer Wm	1 00	Long Herman	1 00
Chase Gardner	1 00	Long Abraham	1 00
Cooper John	1 00	Lick Sarah	1 00
Chipman Wm in full	1 75	Long Robert	1 00
Diehl Simon	1 00	Latshaw Abraham	1 00
Dill Michael	1 00	Law James	1 00
Dengler Geo	1 00	Marker Samuel	1 00
Dull Frederick	1 00	Miller Jacob (Mt Joy)	1 00
Deshirl Thomas H	1 00	May M W vol 14	1 50
Eberly Peter	1 00	Miller John (Potter)	1 00
Ehrisman Mary	1 00	Moyer Samuel K	1 00
Freed David	1 00	Motz Geo	1 00
Freel Abraham	1 00	Moyer Elizabeth	1 00
Forney John	1 00	Mcgrew Matthew S	1 00
Fleagle Simon	50	Miley John	1 00
Forney Christian	1 00	Miller Jacob	1 00
Fox Christian	1 00	Merkel Levi	1 00
Funk Abraham vol 14	1 50	Mason Park	1 00
Shelly Daniel	$1 00
Skinner Philip vol 14 & 15	3 00
Saroll Geo	1 00
Strohm Thomas	1 00
Shope Bernard	1 00
Schoch Joseph	1 00
Sherich Paul	1 00
Shultz Jacob	1 00
Singiser Geo W	1 00
Spannhaur Joseph	1 00
Spohnhaur Samuel	1 00
Stoner Ann M	1 00
Shaft Fred'k vol 13 & 14	3 00
Sherich Abraham	1 00
Stoner Jacob	1 00
Smith Ephraim	1 00
Shircy Joseph	1 00
Stoner Henry W	1 00
Smith Geo	1 00
Stump John	1 00
Thomas Geo	1 00
Tombaugh Jonathan	1 00
Tate Solomon	1 00
Weiss Louisa	1 00
Wolf Michael	1 00
West Johathan M	1 00
Whisler Wm	1 00
Whitley Matilda	3 0
West Edward	1 00
Wantz Abraham vol 13	1 50
Wagoner Jacob	1 00
Weible John	50
Worley Nathan vol 14 & 15	2 00
Wagoner Samuel	1 00
Wagoner John	1 00
Yeusing Geo	1 00
Zimmerman John	1 00
Zimmerman Henry	1 00

Arrest for Murder.

Two persons named Lawrence McCollin and James Farrel, have been arrested on a bench warrant, and committed to prison in this county, on suspicion of having murdered a man named —— ——, who was found murdered on the berm-bank of the canal in Londonderry township, near the Lancaster county line.

American Farmer.

A German agricultural paper, called "The American Farmer," published monthly, and edited by J. M. Beck of this place, has been laid on our table. We have glanced over it, and find it is got up in good style, replete with well written articles of great utility to the practical farmer, and illustrated with several handsome engravings. The German farmers of the U. S. have now an excellent opportunity of gaining a vast fund of useful knowledge, on the important subject of agriculture, at the low rate of one dollar per annum. Address J. M. Beck, Harrisburg, Pa.

Our New Volume.

This number commences the 15th volume of the Church Advocate. After the next number, Bishop Flake will take our place and edit the paper for a few months, during our peregrinations in the Western States. In the meantime, we intend to write for the paper, as we shall have time and opportunity. Our former contributors and correspondents, we hope, will also continue to do likewise. So that when our combined labors are thrown together, along with the productions and effusions of the new Editor, the subscribers of the Advocate may have a volume of par-excellence. At any rate, we will all try to do for the best, and hope for the best, and time will show what can be done.

Death from Jumping a Rope.

A small child of Mr. Bennet, a colored man, died suddenly on Thursday, the 18th inst. It had jumped the rope 250 times successively, by which it became heated, then drank cold water and immediately expired. Another child lies dangerously ill from the same cause.

A Word to Our Delinquents.

We gave notice in several previous numbers that those who would fail to pay up their bills, would have their papers stopped. Accordingly we have done so. But, we are willing to re-send all papers that are settled for, according to our terms. Those, therefore, who wish to have the paper continued, will please to send on our dues, and we shall gladly re-enter their names. At all events, we demand a prompt payment for past volumes.

Officers to be Elected.

The Governor has signed the bill prescribing the time and manner of submitting to the people, for their ratification or rejection, the proposed amendment to the Constitution making the Judges elective—also, the bill authorizing the election by the people of the Auditor General, Surveying General, and County Surveyors. The following officers will therefore have to be elected by general ticket in October next: one Canal Commissioner, one Auditor General, and one Surveyor General. In addition, the people will have to decide at the same time upon the proposed amendment to the Constitution.

Steamboat Burnt.

The steamer Belle of the West was burnt near Warsaw, Ky., on her trip to St. Louis, with about 400 California and other emigrants. The fire broke out about 12 at night on the 23d ult.; and, melahcholy to relate, about 100 lives were lost. Some being burnt to death, and others drowning by jumping overboard. The facts and details of this heart-rending and horrible disaster, are not yet fully known, but this much is known to our sorrow, that about 20 emigrant families from this place and neighborhood, were on board of the ill-fated "Belle of the West, and that all their goods were lost, but whether any, and if any, how many among them perished in this disastrous event, we have yet to learn.

The humane and benevolent citizens of Louisville have started a subscription for the relief of the sufferers in this lamentable occurrence. We hope their example will be followed by the people of this place and neighborhood. It is written, "Be ready to communicate." And again, "Do good to all—and especially to them who are of the household of faith." Particulars in our next.

Our Substitute.

Our esteemed brother J. Flake will supply our place as Editor, and brother Harn's place as preacher in charge of the Church in Harrisburg, during the time we shall be absent on our journey to the West. All persons writing on business or for the Advocate, will address their letters as heretofore, and their matters shall receive due attention. We invite all the brethren to continue writing for the paper, and especially our elder brethren, who have had a long resting spell in this business.

Our Tour to the West.

We hereby give notice to our brethren and friends in the West, that brother Geo. U. Harn and ourself intend, Deo Volente, to take a journey to the West during the ensuing summer. Our object is not to make a flying trip for pleasure, pastime or speculation, but to make a preaching tour for the good of souls and the promotion of the cause of all causes—the Church of the living God. We design making it a kind of exploring missionary tour. Our brethren in Ohio and the far West have long plead for a visit, and we feel anxious to gratify them. Like Paul, we long to visit them and "see how they do." Whether they are walking as they have been taught, and as they ought to walk, in holiness and righteousness: and whether "with one mind, they are striving together for the faith of the gospel." We ask for a special interest in the prayers of the saints, that the Lord may be with us, set before us open doors, open hearts, and open hands, and that we may come to the people, at all times and in all places, "in the fulness of the blessing of the gospel of Christ."

We expect to set out on our tour about the middle of May, and if all goes well, we shall be at Wooster, Ohio, sometime during the first week in June. After remaining there and in the neighborhood for a few weeks, among our friends, we shall thence proceed westward, through Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa.—After making some visits, perambulations and explorations in these latter and far Western States, we shall return again to Ohio, attend some of their Camp-meetings, in August, and then return home in September.

This is a brief outline of the plan we have formed, so far as we can now foresee and judge, in making our tour. Times and circumstances may possibly induce us to change our course somewhat, and consequently also either shorten or lengthen the allotted time for our journey. But, be this as it may, we devoutly hope and pray that a kind Providence may favor us, and order all our steps aright. In conclusion, therefore, we say again, 'Brethren, pray for us."

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

SKETCH
OF A
DEBATE ON BAPTISM,
BETWEEN
J. KELLER AND A. OWEN;

Held at Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 19th, 20th, 21st, 22d and 23d of February, 1850.

REPORTED BY W. E. DRAKE,
For the Church Advocate and Religious Telescope.

J. KELLER'S FOURTH SPEECH.

Mr. KELLER said: Brother Owen still denies that Christ was buried.

Mr. OWEN. I deny that Christ was put under ground.

Mr. KELLER. Well, what does Christ mean, if he was not put under ground? He says He must be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth. My opponent says that Christ was in a rock—that he was not in the heart of the earth.

He has advanced another idea that sprinkling is not the only mode, and in connection with it he has admitted that immersion is the primary, and the first meaning of the word baptism, or baptizo. Now, that is all I want, all I have been contending for. He, having admitted this, I suppose, will not bring up the argument again.

He wishes me to show that one of the Pedo-baptist reformers ever was immersed. I suppose he meant after they were converted, for I did not distinctly understand him on that point. I will make a joint bargain with him, that if he will come out and tell us in his next speech where a single man, or woman, or child was sprinkled before John the Baptist, Christ the head of the Church, or any of his Apostles, I will give him one. I will not tell him until he accepts my offer.

My friend now and then gets hold of brother Winebrenner, not being satisfied with me, because, he thinks, he is the head of the church, and probably thinks he would go over some day and join the United Brethren. Then, again, he appears dissatisfied with me because I referred to Pedo-baptist authors. I do not feel astonished at that, because I know the reason why. The reason is, simply, because they are too hard against him, and with me, as to the primary and first meaning of the word baptiza. That is the reason he wishes me to leave them out. There are too many of them for his side of the house.

Again: he has referred to the German translation of the New Testament, and I am happy to find that he understands a little about the German. And what does it prove to "baptize with water?" I wish the gentleman to tell us whether, when his coat was colored, the dye was sprinkled, or poured upon it? He says it was dyed with some colored stuff. Now, if it was dyed with a certain liquid, the question arises, was it sprinkled, or poured on, or was it immersed in it? I say, we cannot baptize it; we must soak it or cover it with water, but not like we do corn or wheat. The Bible makes it our duty to baptize with water; but does it not say that water is the receiving element? Did not water receive them that went in Jordan? Now, supposing my opponent were to tell you that he was baptized with water, that would be all right and correct. But, where was he baptized—in a meeting-house? at a Camp-meeting? No, he says he went into the water and was baptized. Of course it was with water. Now, I will refer to Dr. Luther. Some years ago, when our father Rupp was living, I saw a German Bible with notes:—I wish I had a German Bible with notes, for then I would give them to my friend. Here is what Luther says:

"The term baptism is a Greek word. It may be rendered a dipping, when we dip something in water, that it may be entirely covered with water. And though that custom be quite abolished among the generality, (for neither do they entirely dip children, but only sprinkle them with a little water,) nevertheless they ought to be wholly immersed, and presently to be drawn out again; for the etymology of the word seems to require it. The Germans call baptism tauff, from depth, which they call tieff in their language; as if it were proper those should be deeply immersed who are baptized."

Well, is there a German man, or woman, here, who can say it means "sprinkling?" Is there not a great deal of difference between the word 'tauff" and sprinkle? I fancy I see something in the countenances of my German friends that tells me there is.

Mr. Chairman, I have a host of other good authorities here, but I will now give Prof. Shannon:

"If baptism does indeed mean immerse, as all admit, and it must (to say the very least) be doubtful whether it can also mean to sprinkle or pour. Immerse, sprinkle and pour are three distinct ideas, expressed by different words in all languages. No man in his right mind would think of immersing an object, and say he sprinkled it; or of sprinkling an object, and say he immersed it. This is as applicable to the Greek as to the English. Indeed, it is well known that the Greek excels in the precision and fidelity with which it expresses different ideas, and even different shades of the same idea, by different words; as,

1. Lovo, to wash the person of an individual.
2. Pluno, to scour or wash his clothes.
3. Nipto, to rinse hands, face, or feet.
4. Ekkeo, to pour upon him water or oil.
5. Ballo, among other meanings, to pour out rapidly, as water from a sewer or pitcher.
6. Breko, to wet, moisten, rain, cause to send rain.
7. Rantizo, to sprinkle water, &c."

Again, Shannon says:

"While I filled the professorship of ancient languages in the University of Georgia, I had occasion to compile a table of passages, where the words dip, pour, sprinkle, and wash, in their modifications, occur in the English Bible, with the corresponding terms used in the Greek of the New Testament, and the Septuagint.

1. Dip, I found in 21 passages. In all these except one, bapto, or baptizo, is found in the Greek. The one exception is in Gen. 37: 31, where Joseph's brethren took his coat and dipped—emolunan, (smeared or daubed,) it in the blood of a kid. Mark the great accuracy of the Greek: here the idea is that of smearing or daubing, and the Septuagint so expresses it.

2. Sprinkling, in some of its forms, I found in 27 passages. In not a single instance is bapto or baptizo used in the Greek.

3. Pour I found in no less than one hundred and nineteen instances, but in not even one of them did I meet with bapto or baptizo in the Greek.

4. I found wash in thirty-two cases, where reference was had not to the whole person, but to part, as eyes, the face, the hands, the feet. In none of these was bapto or baptizo found; but nipto, invariably.

In view of the above facts, is it not strange that any should contend that the one word baptiza can have the following meanings: To dip, overwhelm, wash, pour, sprinkle, wet, purify, smear, daub, cross, crisen, &c. Yet, as opposed as are some of these meanings, they are all ascribed to baptizo."

Here is a strong witness. But before I make any application of his testimony, I beg leave to make a few remarks.

My opponent, in his first speech, acknowledged that immersion was Christian Baptism. This is an acknowledgment that the word baptism does mean immerse. And, in the law of the institution under consideration, I say it means that only.

We read in the 14th chapter of Leviticus, verses 15 and 16: "And the priest shall take some of the log of oil, and POUR it into the palm of his own left hand: and the priest shall DIP his right finger in the oil that is in his left hand, and shall SPRINKLE of the oil with his finger seven times before the Lord."

Now, here are three distinct actions; first, pour; second, dipping the finger; and third, sprinkling. If, then, any one here wishes to go to the trouble of examing the original language, with a candid and open heart, he will find there are three different words used to express those terms. I am not a Greek scholar, and therefore cannot quote the exact words, or expressions.

But here is Professur Shannon, of some College in the State of Georgia. I am sorry he is among slaveholders. I wish he were North. He says, as we have heard, "If baptism means immerse, as all admit, it must, to say the least, be doubtful whether it can also mean to sprinkle or pour. There are three distinct ideas expressed by different words in all languages. It is so in the Greek and the English." The gentleman is a Pedo-baptist.—Yet, as an honest and candid man, he acknowledges there are three different ideas expressed by these three different words in all languages. "No man in his right mind would think of immersing an object, and saying he sprinkled it; or sprinkling an object, and saying he immersed it. This is as applicable to the Greek as to the English. Indeed, it is well known that the Greek excels in the precision and fidelity with which it expresses different ideas, and even different shades of the same idea, by different words."

Again, he says, "Sprinkling I found in 27 passages, and in not a single instance is bapto or baptizo used in the Greek." Do you think a man of learning like Prof. Shannon, who stands high in the opinion of his fellow-men, and a Pedo-baptist at that, would assert a falsehood, and be guilty of a libel upon his own profession and the Church? He says, "In no less than 119 instances, I found the word pour, but in no instance did I meet with bapto or baptizo in the Greek."

Now, do you think a law of the Kingdom of Heaven is more indefinite and imperfect than a law of the land? When our Legislature passed the relief law, a few years ago, did not the officers of our government understand that law? Undoubtedly, and we have a proof of it. We all understood it, and all in the same light. And, I understaud our most excellent Governor was the father of the bill to authorize the State to issue relief money.

But, when it comes to the New Testament, where the Great Head of the Church is the Legislator, then we are to have law and words of a doubtful meaning. After his resurrection from the dead, he called upon his ministers, chosen to preach the everlasting Gospel, to go into all the world to preach and baptize. But lo! according to Pedo-baptist doctrine, we cannot understand it! The word baptize means "dip," "pour," "sprinkle," and I know not what all. It is a stain on the wisdom and character of Christ. God forbid that I should ever look upon the character and wisdom of Christ in this light.

A. OWEN'S FOURTH REPLY.

Mr. OWEN. There is nothing special to reply to. We have spent time in quoting Prof. Shannon, of whom I am a lover and admirer. It appears from what my opponent says, that he was favorable to immersion, as many other able and eminent men have been. But, does that fact meet the question? Did the Professor say that baptism means only to immerse? and that baptism is immersion exclusively? Not a Presbyterian believes that. I could not understand why, but I think he remarked there is no passage in the Scriptures where the term baptizo means anything else than to "dip." Does he say there is no passage in the Scriptures in which the term baptizo is used, where it means anything else than immerse? If he does so, that will be contradicted in good time. But, I will oppose to Dr. Shannon men equally as learned, and as eminent in any and every point of view. Dr. Timothy Dwight, one of the most eminent theologians that America ever produced, and a very pious man—and no one will deny that he was as much so as Dr. Shannon. He says:

"I have examined almost one hundred instances, in which the word baptizo and its derivatives are used in the New Testament, and four in the Septuagint: and these, so far as I have observed, being all the instances contained in both. By this examination, it is to my apprehension evident, that the following things are true—That the primary meaning of these terms is cleansing; the effect, not the mode of washing—That the mode is usually referred to incidentally, wherever these words are mentioned, and that this is always the case, wherever the ordinance of baptism is mentioned, and a reference made, at the same time, to the mode of administration—That these words, although often capable of denoting any mode of washing, whether by affusion, sprinkling, or immersion, (since cleansing was familiarly accomplished by the Jews in all these ways,) yet, in many instances, cannot, without obvious impropriety, be made to signify immersion; and in others cannot signify it at all."—Theology, v. 5, p. 331.

I must here remark upon what brother Keller said when last up. I did not admit immersion. I quoted expressly Dr. Rice to show that it could not be proven, page 81:

"Critics are not agreed, whether to dip or to dye was the original meaning. Prof. Stuart expresses the opinion, as far as he can judge, that to dip was the original sense, and to dye a secondary meaning. Others, however, contend that to dye was the primary or original meaning. The word bapto, as far back as we can trace it, was used in both senses. It may be true, therefore, that to dye or color was the original meaning, and to dip a secondary meaning. Critics have not determined this question; nor can they prove, that to immerse was the original meaning of the word."

But, here is a man as eminent as Dr. Shannon, who says the primary meaning is "cleansing," the effect, not the mode of washing. I will now go to the testimony of Richard Watson, an eminent minister and writer in England, and as a theologian, he is second to no man. He gives the various meanings of the word in the Scriptures. See Watson's Theol. p. 650. From what he there says, you will see it has different meanings in the Scriptures and the classics. Now, if a term has so many and various meanings, how is my opponent ever going to prove that that term means to dip, or that the Scriptures meant to apply it exclusively to immersion. Dr. Adam Clarke, an eminent linguist—a great authority with the Methodists—says:

"In what form baptism was originally administered, has been deemed a subject worthy of serious dispute. Were the people dipped or sprinkled? for it is certain BAPTO and BAPTIZO mean both."

And if so, how are you going to get "immersion" out of it? Here is Dr. Dick, another eminent theologian, of Scotland. He says:

"Examples, however, have been produced, from which it appears, that the idea sometimes conveyed even by this verb, which it is commonly admitted signifies to dip, is that of sprinkling, rather than of dipping."

Then again he says in the following passage:

"We here see that nothing certain as to the mode can be learned from the original term baptizo, because it has different meanings, signifying sometimes to immerse, and sometimes to wash," &c.—Divinity, pp. 470, 471.

Now, I think that here are authors that ought to throw Shannon into the shade. There was a certain Peter Edwards, of England, a Baptist minister 14 years, who, after a careful examination, changed his views, and wrote a book, which I am sorry I could not obtain, entititle1 "A Short way with the Baptists." He was the opponent of Mr. Booth.

And I would say, if my opponent attempts to bring forward Pedo-baptists, and does not bring them forward to prove that it is the only and the exclusive mode, they prove nothing. If they were here, they would not acknowledge it, because they were Pedo-baptists.

There is but one thing more that I shall refer to, and that is the case of Luther. When the gentleman was quoting that man's baptism, why will he not believe in the modes which he practised? If Luther was in favor of baptism by dipping, why did he practice pouring and sprinkling? He quotes Luther as far as it suits his purpose, and then he goes to the other side. But, I have proof that he translated the preposition eis, "with," and that the baptism with water would naturally be to apply it. I repeat, again, it appears absurd to say immersed with water. He is immersed in water. I do not understand the German language. Where the Germans would express the idea of dip, they use the word tauch. But when they speak of the ordinance of baptism, they employ the word tauf.

Now, if that is a fact, and if tauch means "to dip;" and that is the word used by the Germans, when they wish to express that idea, how is it that Luther made use of the word tauf?

That is all I have to say on that subject. I think that I have answered all his positions. I would merely observe to the audience, that when authors are quoted, it would be well to inquire in your minds how far the matter quoted goes to prove the proposition. The gentleman is come to a definite proposition, and it is to prove that baptism means "to immerse," therefore when a document, or paper, is produced by him, I shall compare it with the proposition. Now, you should inquire how near it goes to prove it. I would like to know how the Pedo-baptists can give any proof that immersion is the only baptism. That would be worth knowing. It is what they never have given us, and what their practice contradicts. If I had time, I would call attention to one important testimony. It is Origen; but, no doubt, he may be introduced here again. However, as I have Campbell and Rice's debate before me, I will quote from page 158. Mr. Rice says, "His (Origen's) authority, it is admitted, is worth more than that of Beza, and Calvin, and Luther, and half a dozen lexicons besides. His language is as follows:

"How came you to think that Elias, when he should come, would baptize, who did not, in Ahab's time, baptize the wood upon the altar, which was to be washed before it was burnt, by the Lord's appearing in fire? But he ordered the priests to do that; not once only, but says, Do it the second time: and they did it the second time: and, Do it the third time; and they did it the third time. He, therefore, that did not himself baptize then, but assigned that work to others, how was he likely to baptize, when he, according to Malachi's prophecy, should come?"

Now, I shall not refer to the passage of Scripture. I read this to show what he called to baptize. Now, my opponent wants to make it appear that this is not supported by the Pedo-baptists. He says the altar was baptized—baptized the wood upon the altar.—How was it baptized? Was it by immersion? No—water was poured upon it. Mark that! Now, if Origen makes "baptize" mean to pour, what authority has Dr. Shannon for saying it means exclusively "immerse?" and, it shows how it was understood at that day. But, that will come up under another head, and be noticed at another time.

Prayer by brother Josiah H. Hurley.

Moral Retribution:*

As Evinced by the Analogy of Nature.

(CONTINUED.)

IV. RETRIBUTION IN INTELLECTUAL NATURE.

MIND however differing from matter in its essential properties is nevertheless intimately associated with it in the actual developments of life and action. It may therefore be fairly and safely inferred that to the extent of these developments at least it must be under the influence of laws harmonious with those which govern the material world. Otherwise there would result a perpetual conflict between the developments of physical and intellectual existence, indicating either a lack of wisdom or of goodness upon the part of the Creator—either of which would be subversive of his perfections, and consequently of his existence. Perversion, it has been seen, may occur in physical action, and when it does retribution invariably follows. It is therefore legitimate to predicate the same of intellectual action.

And whatever may be true of mind in itself, or whatever may be its ultimate manifestations, still, organized as we are at present, it is manifested only in connection with and through the medium of a physical organization. Hence it is impossible for it to act under the influence of laws opposed to those controlling that organization. Retribution being the inevitable consequence of the perversion of physical action, impunity cannot then be affirmed of the perversion of intellectual action. But if there is not impunity there must of necessity be retribution; and hence it follows that retribution must be an inevitable result of the perversion of intellectual action. Furthermore most of the perversions of physical law, that so invariably produce retribution, are the direct result of the interposition of the mind. If a finger be put into the fire voluntarily, it is in consequence of a mental determination and interposition. The retribution which follows cannot be predicated exclusively of the physical perversion without assuming that a cause which in fact was the principal cause had no agency in producing the effect, or that the responsibility of an effect may be attached elsewhere than to its cause. The retribution must therefore in fact attach itself to the mental action.

That mental action may be perverted there is and can be no dispute. The fact is so glaringly palpable in every department of human action that the most inveterate sceptics have never professed to doubt it. Hundreds and thousands upon the back of millions, by nature gifted and noble, have prostituted intellect to perversions than which hell itself could not have conceived more diabolical and degrading. Here, there and everywhere in this sin-burdened world, intellect is being pandered to purposes as unlike its evident and original design as are sin and holiness, satan and God.

Nor is the relation of cause and effect, which induces physical retribution as the sequence of physical perversion, less positive and unescapable in its application to mind. It is conceded upon all hands that even the voluntary element of man's nature cannot separate effect from cause, when once the cause has been exerted—as well in the intellectual as in the physical world. Volition may decide between causes, and hence indirectly control effects; but when once the cause has been selected, and its influence has operated, the volition of a seraph cannot prevent or evade the legitimate and determinate effect. Niagara's waters were as well rolled back to Erie's bosom, or to their pristine home in mountain dell or sequestered valley, as to prevent the effect of any perversion of mental action.—The multitude who, wittingly or unwittingly, have made the experiment have found to their bitter and irremediable cost that mental law is not less peremptory and unyielding than that which governs the material universe. They who prostitute intellect to mental diabolism, of whatever hue or degree, garner the fruits in retribution as varied and as dire as the nature and extent of the perversion.

This truth, like that of physical retribution, is no doubtful dogma or fanciful opinion. It is based upon the direct testimony of universal consciousness and experience, and the broadest and most reliable induction. Illustrations of it are found upon every page of human history and experience, and in every conceivable variety of character and extent. Here is an individual who, perhaps by too intense and long study, has caused the light of reason to flicker and go out in the dark dismal inanity of madness. The cold cheerless mantle of insanity, robbing life of all that it brings to man more than to the brute—aye! and more—is his retribution. Terrible indeed it is, and the very thought of it sends a freezing chill of terror coursing every vein back to the fountain of emotion. Another has become so familiarized to unworthy and distorted habits of thought, that noble and manly thoughts are well nigh an impossibility to him. And this too is a fearful retribution. And another has so perverted his powers of perception as to see nothing on earth or in humanity but deeds worthy of the deepest hell; and his retribution is the starless midnight of misanthropy. One has perverted the power of faith until he is mired in the almost inextricable quagmire of superstitious credulity, and another doubts until faith is entirely lost in the bewildering mazes of infidelity—retributions nearly alike dreadful and fatal.

As might be expected however, as the investigation proceeds from the more tangible to the more subtle and etherealized—from the material to the mental and thence to the moral—the retribution gradually becomes more distant from the perversion, and the connecting links that still bind them in indissoluble relations are less obvious; and hence often escape the notice of the more superficial and thoughtless. If a finger is thrust into the fire the retribution is immediate; but when the laws of mind are transgressed it is often years before the retribution is realized. But it is none the less certain. Come it will, and the lingering often seems to have been but to gather increased intensity for the inevitable blow. Nor when the blow comes is it always perceived from whence it came. It is this which frequently induces us to charge Omniscience with the consequences of our own folly; when if we should trace back the sequence of events we should find it the fruit of a seed implanted in the mind by our own hands. Too often the attempt is made to avoid responsibility by saying, "It is my nature," when it is but a "second nature" which our own improper habits of thought have engendered, and for which we are of course responsible.

As perversion of physical law results from some force extraneous to the law itself, so does the perversion of intellectual law result from a force not inherent in either its character or conditions. To affirm otherwise would be to charge Jehovah as the author of those laws with necessiating if not direct performing the most fiendish diabolism—not only of causing perversion, but of inflicting retribution, as a second diabolism, upon the innocent and already outraged and suffering object. That extraneous power from which mental perversion comes is found in the voluntary element of our nature. Conscience and consciousness sufficiently fasten upon us the conviction, that even madness itself seldom shakes off, that it is the moving and the acting cause; and hence we are ourselves the responsible agents.

Hence it will be seen that in intellectual retribution there is an element not found in physical retribution. When the rock comes tumbling from the mountain's brow, it was no self-induced action. But when the laws of mind are violated it is by the demand or permission of the will—either of which induces the element of responsibility. In the choice of means or the selection of causes it has sole and absolute control. In the sequence of retribution it must hence bear the individual responsibility. And if, as nearly all mental philosophers assert and none deny, thought is imperishable, and whatever once becomes impressed upon the mind remains inseparable from it, to be dimmed by no lapse of time, to be lost by no forgetfulness, and washed away by no repentance, how terrible indeed must be the united retribution of every perversion of mental action! A. D. W.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

*"The Demand and Demonstration of a Future Retribution in Natural Theology." REV. G. B. CHEEVER, D. D., in the Biblical Repository for Jan. 1850.

Introduction to Further Strictures ON Dr. Hodgson's Sermons on Baptism.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

DUTY, and not a vain desire for notoriety, again compells me to solicit the favor of your columns, that I may tender my humble thanks to the Rev. Dr. Hodgson, for his very kind and courteous attention paid to my strictures on his former discourse on the subject of Christian Baptism, last Sabbath, in the Methodist church of this place. I own myself his debtor for the very high compliment so genteelly and happily presented on that occasion; and, I am apprehensive that it will not be possible for me, at this time, at least, to repay him. I hope, however, he will receive this poor acknowledgement as a token of gratitude and an earnest of the recompense I intend to make at some future time.

The Rev. Dr. wonders if the name of the author of that article is Solomon. What could have originated such a fanciful idea in the Doctor's cranium, I am at a loss to determine; unless accounted for upon the inference that he vainly supposed "a greater than Solomon was there;" and, as a matter of course, his ipse dixit was all-sufficient to convince "an audience composed of mere English scholars" of the "audacious absurdities" (as he was pleased to denominate them) of Baptists.—"Mere English scholars," of course, must not have the audacity to presume to call in question the classical talent and Biblical researches of his gigantic mind.

I wonder if his Pedo-baptist friends did really begin to think Solomon's mantle had fallen upon him, when he professedly was showing to Immersionists a more excellent way. For example: "In order that their baptism may be like to the baptism of the children of Israel in the cloud and in the sea," the Dr. recommends to construct two vessels in such a manner that the party to be baptized can stand between them and let the baptism descend from above. It is a wonder that his fruitful imagination had not suggested some means for the creation of steam above to resemble the cloud, so as to have completed the simile.

Perhaps, too, he would like to take the contract to construct a few specimens of his newly discovered and wonderful piece of mechanism. It will doubtless be a profitable invention when he succeeds in persuading Immersionists to follow his advice.

But another suggestion was, that Baptists have something constructed on the principle of the diving-bell, by which they may be better enabled to represent the burial and resurrection of our blessed Saviour, while at the same time it would be a more comfortable way of baptizing, especially at some seasons of the year. "Ah! there's the rub;"—for comfort's sake, attend to something of man's invention. This is the most potent argument in the Doctor's three sermons on baptism, and doubtless has the most weight with the Pedo-baptist clergy generally.

I really would not advise the Rev. gentleman to apply to the Legislature of Pennsylvania to change his name to Solomon with his three discourses on baptism before them, lest they might confer a misnomer.

But, for his satisfaction, I will confess that I lay small claims to erudition. I come not in the name of Solomon's wisdom, Dr. Hodgson's lore, or Goliah's boasted strength. I come as the stripling with the pebble of truth from the river of life. I trust in the God of David to direct by the energy of his Spirit, and confide in his promise, that the battle shall not be to the strong, nor the race to the swift, and that God hath chosen the foolish things of this world to confound the wise, and the things that are weak to confound the things that are mighty.

I desire, however, to have Dr. Hodgson and all whom it may concern, understand that I am not ashamed of my name, nor of the cause I believe by the grace of God I am able to sustain, and which I shall endeavor to sustain so long as I believe it to be God's eternal and unchangeable truth.

His cant witticisms may now pass to those who live on such tainted food. The fruits of the Spirit relish much better with me.

But, as I said before, so say I again, in all that I have said or have to say, I am actuated by no spirit of ill-will to Dr. Hodgson. On the contrary, I believe him to be a pious and well-meaning man, and with him I hope to join the redeemed of the Lord before the throne of our common Father, to dwell as members of the one great family. But wherein he leaves and teaches others to leave the way in which my Saviour walked, he must allow me the same privilege that I freely grant him—to raise my voice, though it be weak or strong, against the innovation.

I design soon to review his criticisms on the absurdities of Immersionists, which will not require the wisdom of a Solomon to disclose their glaring inaccuracies and inconsistences.

But even some of the children to whom he appealed on last Sabbath, (if I have been rightly informed,) have already pointed out some of the discrepancies in his futile arguments and misconceptions of Baptist views. But I wondered not at his ignorance of Baptist arguments, when I understood from his own confession that seven years had passed away since he had made baptism the subject of discourse. This was not so with ministers in the days of the Apostles.

But, as I intend this merely as an introduction to subsequent strictures upon the Doctor's last sermons, I will close by saying, that in the meantime he or any who feel interested, are at liberty to treat my productions with just as much contempt as arrogance and the spirit of Methodism will allow.

S. B. HOWARD.

Letter on the Wing.---No. 1.

Brother Winebrenner:—

As I am again travelling and trying to sell the Patent Rights for my Revolving Horizontal Coal Grate Stove, I thought to give you a sketch occasionally of my journey.

I left Baltimore in the early part of February, and spent two weeks about Harrisburg, during which time I visited Mechanicsburg and Middletown, where I had the pleasure of preaching several discourses, and enjoying the company of my good friends, brothers Hinny, Mullenix, Swartz, Rife and families, together with others.

Left Harrisburg for Lebanon—stopped at a tavern. Called to see Rev. A. Sand, the United Brethren preacher, stationed there—told his wife (he not being at home) if he would give privilege I would preach for him once on the following Sabbath. On Saturday night I preached in the Court House to a good audience. Sunday morning went to Sand's church—at the invitation of brother Abraham Shirk addressed the Sabbath-school and attended preaching—S. preached a discourse against secret societies—after sermon merely asked me a few civility questions, and pretending barely to know me, turned away.—He and I were at one time both members of Otterbein's Church at Baltimore. Such treatment was unexpected. I visted Annville several times and preached there, stopping with brother Uhler. The Church there is very small, and complaints were made that Elder S. disappoints the people frequently by not coming to fill his appointments, which injures the cause. The pious portion of the Lebanonites complain that religion does not prosper there as formerly. I would wish our brethren would labor there—the people will hear us; although the Rev. Mr. Ruthrauff told me that there was no sympathy in Lebanon for Winebrenner. He charges you with bigotry for calling the Church "Church of God;" and on attempting to argue the point with him, he rather insinuated to me that he did not care to know anything about the matter. He is the bigot in my opinion. He is unable to preach, and now fills the office of Post Master. Lebanon is a very dull place. They need a Railroad to give the people a stirring spirit for business. They hope the Valley Railroad from Reading to Harrisburg will be made—that will make the town good.

Came on to Reading in the beginning of March—found brother and sister Row, formerly of Cumberland county—they were glad to be visited—visited Rev. —— Noll, missionary of the United Brethren in Christ, who very cordially invited me to preach for him twice on the Sabbath in their meeting-house. He seems to be a very zealous and useful man. Not knowing of any brethren in Reading, I stopped at a tavern, and happened to get in one of the worst. Heaven save me from another such a stopping place! I have not room to tell of the works of the devil carried on there. Reading is an abominably wicked place, but a beautiful city.

I called on the Mayor, who owes you a small bill for books: he said he was bankrupt; and got into a passion on my urging him to compromise by paying part. He shows a strange example of honor for an honorable officer.—Complaints are heard that business is failng very much in that town. If Elder Keller will call at brother Row's, blacksmith, Second near Penn street, he will find a good home to stop at while he may preach there. He can get houses to preach in; and with suitable exertions a flock could soon be gathered. Will he try, or will he go round that bush? Enquiries were made of me, "Where is Elder Barlow?"

Left Reading and came on to Auburn in Schuylkill county, and stopped a week with brothers Moyer and Cramer, preaching three or four times. The Church there has suffered some by the first love of members waxing cold. A number of the brethren are going off to boat on one of the New York canals, flushed with promised prospects; but fears are entertained by the others that they will lose grace and money by the operation. I am sorry they are determined to go.

During my stay there I was sick, and was well cared for by sister Moyer. She is a second Sister Hinny. I drew up a petition to the Post Master General for a Post Office at Auburn, which I think the petitioners will get.

There is also search made after iron ore, I think, with some prospects. If successful, the place will soon grow into a smart town.

There is a misunderstanding between some of the brethren here and at Orwigsburg on Feet-washing, the latter believing that the Lord's Supper should be administered before the washing of the disciples' feet. Brother G. K. seems to stand at the head of those who hold this view. Now it is clear enough to me that they are wrong, and that the Lord first washed the disciples' feet and then instituted the Supper. I hope Elder Keller will be able to set this matter right and harmonize the views of the brethren. I left a few of Elder Harn's little book on that subject there, to give them light. Brother Keller must be decided and settle the matter at once for the longer it stands so, the greater will be the difficulty.

I next came to Pottsville. Here I found our old friend, brother Jacob Kimmel, formerly of Harrisburg, with whom I stopped—also found our old friends, brother Houston and wife, formerly of the same place, all of whom received me very kindly. I stopped there a week, during which time it snowed more or less every day. I preached in the Market House two Sabbaths in the afternoon to many people, although it was snowing and blowing part of the time the first day. One party stopped till they were cold, went off and others came up.

I visited the Catholic church on Good Friday, and witnessed the kneeling and kissing a little wooden cross by many of the members of that church.

I attended a Temperance meeting one evening—and called one myself in the Market House the last Sabbath I was there, but the professed temperance men are poor concerns there. I would not give brother Frank Sullivan for them all put together to labor. He ought to visit Pottsville, if he can.

If brother Keller will visit Pottsville to preach, he will be kindly received by brother Houston, who lives in the lower end of the town. He can make a beginning to preach in the Market House, and soon he will find a place (for there are numerous halls) where he can labor. Good can be done there as well as elsewhere.

I left Pottsville for Catawissa, on the North Branch—took the canal, came up to Nanticoke dam, 8 miles below Wilkesbarre, and here we found the river swelled so high that we had to lay by from the 5th to 8th inst. This afforded me chances to labor. I preached once in Catawissa, and was entertained there by Mr. Stephen Baldy, a Lutheran gentleman, and here I preached three times and lectured on temperance once, and am kindly entertained by an old Methodist gentleman, Mr. Joshua Pugh, with whom all God's people can stop, as he keeps a Christian's home. The Lord bless them. More anon.

J. F. WEISHAMPEL, Sen.

Temperance Convention.

In pursuance to a call of several Temperance Associations, a Convention was held in the village of Lisburn, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 6th day of April, 1850, at 10 o'clock, A. M. The meeting was organized by appointing Jesse Kirk Speaker, and Joseph E. Kline Secretary.

The Chairman, on taking the chair, addressed the meeting in a happy and appropriate address. The following named persons were then announced as representatives to the Convention, to wit:

YORK COUNTY.

Lewisberry Temperance Association.

Samuel Beck, Jesse Kirk, Abraham Grove, Henry Ensminger, Joseph E. Kline, Wm. M. Kauffman, Samuel S. Ensminger, Henry D. Repman, Franklin Smith and M. W. Starr.

CUMBERLAND COUNTY.

Allen Temperance Association.

Jacob Hickernell, John Eichelberger, Henry Young, Andrew Cramer, John Young, Abraham Swisser, Michael Lambert, Reuben Starr and James Deviny.

Mr. Sullivan and Rev. Mr. Utley being in attendance, were admitted.

On motion of M. W. Starr, a committee of five was appointed to prepare resolutions for the consideration of the Convention.

The commitee are, John Eichelberger, Esq., M. W. Starr, Andrew Cramer, Samuel Beck and Henry Ensminger.

On motion, the Convention adjourned till 2 o'clock, P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Convention met at 2 o'clock, P. M.—Jesse Kirk in the chair. The minutes of the forenoon session were read and approved; after which M. W. Starr, from the committee on business, reported the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:—

The committee appointed to prepare business for the consideration of this Convention, would respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, intemperance appears to be on the increase, and requires united efforts to arrest its progress: And whereas, we have convened together for the purpose of consulting each other as to the best mode of advancing the Temperance cause, and to stay the desolations of intemperance, therefore

Resolved, That the several Societies represented in this Convention (and all other Temperance Societies originating in the time intervening between the meetings of this Convention) appoint delegates, to meet semi-annually, at such times and places as shall be determined on by the Convention; and that each Society shall give correct reports to the Convention, of the state of the cause in their respective associations.

Resolved, That we sincerely regret to learn that some ministers of the Gospel speak disdainfully of the Temperance cause.

Resolved, That we hold the Order of the Sons of Temperance to be a good moral reform institution.

Resolved, That in our opinion we should never make Temperance a party question in politics; yet, at the same time, we believe that any person who uses ardent spirits to excess, is incapable of acting in the capacity of a legislator.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Convention, that if those who sell liquors would not violate the law, that many would abandon the traffic for the want of patronage.

Resolved, That if Temperance men were more vigilant, they could accomplish more by moral suasion than by coersion.

Resolved, That any person who will attempt to justify the drinking of ardent spirits as a common beverage, is doing more hurt to the community at large than if they would preach infidelity.

Resolved, That we do highly appreciate the presence and approving smiles of the ladies, and ask a continuance of their approbation.

John Eichelberger, M. W. Starr,
Andrew Cramer, Henry Ensminger,
Samuel Beck.

On motion, the Secretary read a Temperance Sermon from the able Lyman Beecher.

On motion of Mr. Diviny, it was

Resolved, That when we adjourn, we adjourn to meet in Lewisberry, York county.

On motion of M. W. Starr, the following gentlemen were appointed a committee to have the proceedings of this Convention published in the Church Advocate, viz: Franklin Sullivan, Rev. Mr. Utley and S. Beck.

On motion, the Convention returned their thanks to the people of Lisburn, for the privilege of meeting in their commodious church.

A motion to adjourn prevailed.

JOSEPH E. KLINE, Secretary.

Doings of the Standing Committee in the State of Indiana.

The Standing Committee of the Annual Eldership of the Church of God in the State of Indiana met, according to previous appointment, on the 25th of March, 1850, at brother Comp's, Whitley county, and transacted the following items of business, viz:

1. Appointed a Camp-meeting, in the bounds of the Church in Decalb county, in the neighborhood of brother Joseph Walters', five miles southeast of Auburn, commencing on the 23d of August.

2. Brother A. Slyter's case was examined, and after a mature deliberation and investigation of his case, it was

Resolved, That his license be withheld until he renders such satisfaction as is required of him in the Journal of the last Eldership.

3. A charge was brought against brother J. Blickenstaff for a breach of trust, and after examining the charge preferred against him, he was considered highly censurable; and, therefore,

Resolved, That we consider his license annulled, until he appears before the Standing Committee, and gives further satisfaction than those confessions contained in a letter written by him to brother Martin.

4. On motion, it was

Resolved, That, inasmuch as the harvest is great and the laborers are few, brothers Joseph Walters and Wm. Framton, of Decalb county, Indiana, and Alexander Menely, of Lagrange county, be solicited to take part with us in the ministry and prepare themselves for the same.

5. On motion, the Committee proceeded to establish the fund, by subscription, which was proposed at the last session of the Indiana Eldership, for the support of superannuated ministers, and that brother John Martin be appointed Treasurer.

6. On motion, brother A. Menely was appointed Book Agent for this Eldership, and that the profits of the books be applied to religious purposes.

Letter from Brother David Baker.

Union, March 30, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

As our present Eldership year is about closing, and our present preacher is going to leave us, to return to the East, it may not be amiss to imform the numerous readers of the Church Advocate of the gracious seasons of revivals we have had, and still have, throughout the Wooster circuit.

In the first place I would say, that brother Deshiri commenced a series of meetings with the Church at Chester, of which you had some account in a former letter, consequently you are aware of the good result of said meeting.

In the next place, a series of meetings commenced with the Church at Smithville, December 1st, 1849, and continued until the 18th, which resulted in good, and might have been better, had the Church at that place been properly prepared.

Again, a series of meetings commenced with the Church at Madisonville, December 22d, 1849, and continued until January, 13th, 1850, which resulted in the hopeful conversion of ten souls,—four baptized, and seven identified themselves with the Church. The Church was quite invigorated. The brethren there have quite a fine Bethel. The Church is in a prosperous condition. The Lord grant that they may continue to flourish and blossom as the rose.

Another series of meetings commenced with the Church at Union, January 26th, 1850, and continued day and night until the 5th of February. Two professed faith in Christ.—This meeting was a special blessing to the Church at Union. God's people were abundantly revived. The preaching was plain and pointed, so that sinners were made to feel the power of God's truth.

A fifth series of meetings commenced with the Church at Moreland, February 16th, and continued until the first of March. At this meeting 10 or 12 professed to be happily converted,—nine baptized and 14 united with the Church. This meeting was a great blessing to the Church at Moreland. Those lost sheep of the house of Israel who were halting between two opinions, took the advice of the Prophet, "Stand ye in the way and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way? and walk therein, and ye shall find rest to your souls."

A sixth series of meeting was held at Gollystown, commenced March 16th and continued until March 21st; but no conversions.

A meeting was also held by brother McKee in Jefferson, which resulted in good: four converted, and a Church organized of fourteen members.

Brother Deshiri is now on his last round on the circuit, which the several churches deeply regret. They are loth to part with him. He is a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth.

On the 23d of March, at 10 A. M., he preached for the Church at Cedar Valley, and in the evening of the same day, he gave us a lecture from John 13: 1–17: after which we attended to the ordinances of the Lord's house, which proved to be a season of refreshing to all the faithful in Christ.

At this place the people of God were much annoyed by the wicked. We should remember that the house of the Lord is a house of order, and such conduct should not be tolerated. On the 24th, at 10 A. M., he delivered a farewell address at that place, to a large, attentive and weeping audience. One was received into church-fellowship. In the evening of the same day he came to Union, and preached again to a large congregation. On Monday, the 25th, at 10 A. M., he delivered his farewell address to the Church at Union, from the 137th Psalm, 5th and 6th verses. This was a time of tears. We are sorry to part with our beloved brother and pastor, but may the Lord bless him wherever in his Providence he may be called to preach the gospel of the kingdom. In the evening of the same day, he lectured from John 13: 1–17: after which the saints washed one another's feet, in token of their love to each other; and then broke the loaf, and drank of the cup, in commemoration of the broken body and shed blood of the blessed Saviour. Truly, God was in the assembly of his saints, to own his blessed ordinance. "Many wept with a loud voice, and many shouted aloud for joy; so that the people could not discern the noise of the shouts of joy, from the noise of the weeping of the people: for the people shouted with a loud shout, and the noise was heard afar off."

Thus you see that the Church in Ohio is still engaged in pushing onward the great gospel car of salvation.

Your brother in the Lord,

DAVID BAKER.

Letter from a Friend.

Maytown, April 5, 1850.

Dear Sir:—

As paying time has again come for those who wish to have the next volume of the Church Advocate at one dollar a year, I now avail myself of the opportunity, (for I do not wish to be behind in paying for a paper containing such a large amount of entertaining religious matter, and published at so low a price,) and herewith send you the sum required.

I am sorry to learn that there are so many delinquent subscribers on your list; for I am of the impression that a refusal to comply with the terms of a religious paper, as good and low in price as the Church Advocate, is not a common act of injustice; because it is refusing the payment of a sum for which the subscriüer has received double value, and perhaps much more, at the loss of the Editor.

Besides, the fact that there are so many non-paying subscribers, is a dishonor to the readers of the Advocate, if not to the paper itself. It looks as though they did not comply with the injunctions, "Do justly and love mercy."—"Owe no man anything." But I hope the number of cash paying snbscribers for your paper may increase daily.

Yours, most truly,

ABRAHAM LONG.

Letter from Brother Henry Murray.

Stark Co., Ohio, March 26, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

Having a few leisure moments, I sit down to drop a few lines for the columns of the Advocate.

I commenced a special meeting with the Church of God in Stump's neighborhood, Bethlehem township, Satrk county, on the evening of the first of March. There was a pretty general turn-out of the brethren and sisters in the neighborhood, on the first evening of the meeting. On the second day of the meeting, some eight or ten brethren and sisters from a distance came to assist us, some of whom continued with us over the second Sabbath, whilst others came towards the close of the meeting, which was very encouraging to us. But none of the brethren in the ministry came, save brother M. Coates, who lately united with us, and he, being young in the ministry, did not wish to preach much. I did expect some of my brethren in the ministry, but was disappointed, which caused me to feel grieved. But I overcame that, and would just say, I do not treat my brethren so, for whom I have special regard. Howbeit, in the name of our God, I commenced and preached the first and second evenings. Brother Coates preached on Sabbath. After that I preached every evening until I had delivered 11 sermons in succession; doing in the meanwhile a considerable amount of other labor; such as singing, praying and laboring with mourners. Finally I was compelled to give up. I then told the brethren, that I actually was not able to preach any more. Brother J. M. West took my place and preached every evening, save one, until Sabbath, and one discourse which was delivered by brother Samuel Spohnhaur, one of the Elders of the Church. I was not present, in consequence of ill health, but was told that he did very well for a new beginner: for it was the first time he ever attempted to preach. On the third and last Sabbath of the meeting, I tried to speak again to the people, and likewise in the evening. I delivered a discourse on the ordinances of Feet-washing and the Lord's Supper; after which we attended to the same. I think we fully realized the promise. I was made to rejoice when beholding the brethren and sisters following the example given by Christ in washing one another's feet. Thank God for this humiliating ordinance, in which we are all brought down upon one common level.

On the whole, we had a very good meeting. It is supposed by the brethren and sisters who attended the same, to have been the best meeting ever held by the Church of God in this neighborhood. The result of the meeting was as follows: Twelve professed to find peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ; sixteen were buried with Christ in baptism, and seven united with the Church. There are others that I think soon will.

In conclusion, I would say to my brethren, one and all, look up; there is a better day coming. Thank God, the cause of our Redeemer is on the march; for which let us "thank God and take courage!" Let us live humble, and walk worthy of the vocation wherewith we are called.

Fraternally yours,
HENRY MURRAY.

Letter from Brother T. H. Deshiri.

Wooster, Wayne Co., Ohio, April 4, 1850.

Beloved Brother Winebrenner:—

On Easter Sabbath I closed up my poor preaching labors on Wooster Circuit, and now my time has expired, and I expect to leave this beautiful country in a few days, no preventing Providence prohibiting me. But it is not without considerable reluctance on my part, that I consent to do so. However, as the fault is altogether my own, and not the wish of any of my beloved brethren, I will endeavor to submit to my lot. Yet I find it impossible for me to leave, without the tenderest sympathies of my heart being moved; yea, they twine around and yearn toward the several local churches among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God.

It is true, the past year has been one of toil and severe buffetings from the world and the adversary of my soul. Nevertheless, I have, perhaps, never tried to preach so frequent as I have since my stay here, in the same period of time; and I may add, that my weak efforts never have been more signally crowned by the Lord in winning precious souls to Christ, than on this circuit. Besides, I never have been so well compensated for my preaching on any circuit, or by any churches, as I have been by the liberal brethren of Wooster Circuit. They have given me much more of a support than I asked of them.

At this time the churches all over this field of labor are in a flourishing state. They are endeavoring to preserve the spirit of union—they are walking worthy of the vocation wherewith they are called, with all lowliness, and meekness, with long suffering, forbearing one another in love, endeavoring to keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace.

Numerous accessions have been made to the several churches on the circuit, and we have not failed to adhere to the true Scriptural plan: 1. A thorough conversion. 2. A burial with Christ in baptism; and, 3. Church-fellowship. The Saviour says, "Teach them to observe all things, and lo! I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." If we had adopted the unscriptural example of some of the surrounding churches, there is no doubt but what we might have been much more successful in extending the borders of our beloved Church of God, so far as members are concerned. But this we have failed to do, because the New Testament does not guaratee us the right thus to proceed.

I am now in Wooster, with my esteemed sister E. Winebrenner, brother John P. and sister Augusta Winebrenner, brother and sister Immel, and other of my beloved brethren and sisters of this town.

I design remaining here until the 8th inst., and then I intend leaving for Fayetteville, at which place I will try to preach on Sabbath, the 21st of April, and then enter on my new field of labor, Washington county, Md.

Yours, most affectionately,
THOMAS H. DESHIRI.

Letter from Brother Levi Merkel.

Near Shiremanstown, Pa., 29th April, 1850.

J. Winebrenner, V. D. M.:—

Dear Sir—Enclosed you have my remittance for the 15th volume of the Church Advocate.

The Apostle Paul, in his 2d epistle to the Thessalonians, writes as follows: "The mystery of iniquity doth already work." I have for some days been thinking of this expression. What may be its real meaning? There is perhaps very little doubt by any Protestant Christian, but what the final developement of this mystery of iniquity was the persecuting papal power in the dark ages. But the query on my mind is: What may be its first workings, in its embryo state, or the first symptoms of its working? The spirit of persecution has ever been characterized by hatred to dissenters. Now, if I cannot love my brother or sister, because he or she, may honestly differ with me in opinion, in point of religious experience, doctrine, faith, or practice, provided the points are not essential to salvation, have I not already the first symptoms of this mystery of iniquity working in me?

Your humble brother,
LEVI MERKEL.

Remark.—Sectarianism, i. e. the spirit of schism, bigotry and rivalry, among Protestants, is quite as much the workings of "The mystery of iniquity" as what Catholocism is.—Editor.

Letter from Brother Thos. Hickernell.

Dark Co., Ohio, April 9, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I see some things in the Advocate I do not like. There is too much of a warlike spirit exhibited in some of the letters of our brethren in the ministry. I do wish this was otherwise. The Apostle says if any seem to be contentious we have no such custom, neither the Church of God. The letter written by brother G. U. Harn, on Christian Courtesy, is well worth a perusal. If we were all of the mind of Christ, of course we would all be more courteous: and a better feeling would exist among ministers than what there does.

Yours, &c.,
THOS. HICKERNELL.

P. S.—Some 70-odd have embraced the Saviour in the bounds of the Indiana Eldership, within three months past. For particulars, I cite you to a letter which I left in Decalb county, Indiana, which I hope the brethren will send on. In the neighborhood of brother J. Martin's, some 40 have enlisted under the blood-stained banner of King Emanuel.

T. H.

P. S.—We stop the press to say, that brother Bond writes from Florence, Indiana, informing us that the company which left this for the West, were all on the unfortunate steamboat which was burnt on the night of the 22d ult., about 75 miles below Cincinnati:—that 35, out of 350 passengers on board, were burnt or drowned—that two young men who left here with the company, were badly burnt, but that hopes are entertained of their recovery. He states that they merely escaped with what they had on, and that the scene was awful and beggars all description.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Peace Convention.—On Thursday last a meeting of delegates from several counties in Pennsylvania was held in the Chinese Museum, Philadelphia—Henry C. Corbit presiding. The object was to adopt measures to promote the cause of universal peace, and to nominate delegates to the World's Peace Convention, appointed to be held the ensuing summer at Frankfort-on-the Main in Germany.

The following delegates were appointed, and a State Central Committee authorized to add to the list so as to have one from each Congressional district:

Senatorial.—Prof. C. D. Cleveland, Hon. Walter Forward.

Representatives.—Rev. A. A. Willetts, James S. Lippincott, Joseph H. Sill, Morris L. Hallowell, Geo. W. Taylor, Henry C. Corbit, Hon. E. Joy Morris.

A memorial was adopted by the meeting, asking that Congress should pass a joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to furnish an unarmed vessel, to convey the American delegates to the World's Peace Convention, Frankfort on Main in Germany.

Important Discovery.—A mammoth vein of white ash coal, of superior quality, has been struck, on the property of Dr. McCarty, a short distance north of Port Carbon, Schuylkill county, in this State. It is from twenty to fifty feet in thickness. This is regarded as the beginning of new discoveries of coal beds in that vicinity, for which several costly explorations are now in progress.—North American.

The Wesleyans Expelling a Newspaper Editor.—The Wesleyan Times of Monday says: "Our columns to-day contain a fresh instance of ecclesiastical despotism on the part of the dominant faction of the Wesleyan Conference. The editor of this journal has been expelled, by one of the chief actors in the Manchester inquisition, for the crime of editorship."

Fugitive Slaves.—A bill has passed the Ohio House of Representatives, making it a penal offence for any citizen to aid in the arrest of fugitive slaves; and it is said that the bill will pass the Senate.

Soaking Corn in Saltpetre.—Mr. James C. Taylor, of Atlantic county, N. J., exhibits the following result from soaking seed corn in a sulphate solution, compared with other seed not so prepared:—"I had the benefit of soaking corn in saltpetre to plant, well tested this year, on a small piece of ground, planted late. I had not enough soaked to plant all the piece. Where it was not soaked, the blackbirds pulled out about one-third; where it was soaked, they seldom touched a hill. But what was most peculiar, there happened to be one row planted with dry corn, between two rows that were soaked; of the dry, they took several hills clean, and, altogether, about one-third of the row; while they did not take more than one hill of the two saltpetre rowes."

Maryland.—The following among other Acts, were passed by the Legislature of this State, and have become Laws:—

An act to incorporate the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

An act to establish a Bank and incorporate a company to be styled the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Carroll county.

An act giving jurisdiction to single Justices of the Peace over cases of attachment in this State.

An act to incorporate the New York and Maryland Steamship Company.

An act to provide for taking the sense of the people upon the expediency of calling a Convention to frame a new Constitution and form of Government for this State, and to provide for the election of Delegates to such Convention.

Revival of Religion.—A revival of religion is at present in progress in the Congregational Society of New Milford, and under somewhat peculiar circumstances. They have no minister. The interest is wide and deep; a large number have experienced a total change of feelings and principles; and the meetings during the week in different parts of the place are conducted by the church members themselves.—New Haven Journal.

Subscriptions for Dr. Webster's Family.—A despatch from Boston, April 14, P. M., to to the N. Y. Globe, says:—"The recent calamity that has occurred to this interesting family, has incited their old friends in Boston to raise for them a handsome donation, as a testimonial of continued friendship. The widow of the late Dr. Parkman heads the list with $500, which has already reached above $20,000.

A Gold Chain for Mr. Webster.—A massive chain, of California gold, has been presented to Mr. Webster by Mr. Geo. W. Eggleston, of San Francisco, in acknowledgement of his eminent services in the cause of the union of the States. It is of pure gold, and of a value exceeding four hundred dollars, as it came from the mines.

☞ California, in its largest extent, embraces 448,671 square miles; stretching nearly one thousand miles along the Pacific coast, and twelve hundred miles into the interior. Iowa excepted, it outmeasures all the Free States together, and is nearly equal to all the slaveholding States. The admission of California into the Union, entire as free soil, would be a glorious event.

A Mine of Coin.—Some workmen on the bed of the canal near Albany, last week struck upon a pile of sovereigns, and a regular grab game ensued. The first finder secured $500, and the others about $150 a piece—in all about $1200. It is thought to have been accidentally dropped into the canal by some emigrant.

Legacy to a Theological Seminary.—Mrs. Lucille Simons, of Charleston, S. C., has bequeathed to the Southern Theological Seminary of the Presbyterian Church, the sum of four thousand dollars, which will nearly complete the endowment of three professorships.

United States Territory.—Some curious person has been calculating the area of the territory of the United States not yet organized into States, and finds that we have domain enough for forty-six and a half States as large as Pennsylvania. Of these, thirty-five will lay north of 36 30.

The World's Peace Convention.—The American Peace Society has chosen its President, Judge Jay, of New York, and Rev. Charles Brooks, of Boston, to represent it in the Peace Congress to be held, in August, at Frankfort-on-the-Main.

Paste Blacking.—Ivory black 60 parts, vinegar 12 parts, and the oil of vitriol 12 parts. Mix them together for 30 minutes, and then add 9 parts of India rubber oil. This is a patent blacking, and is of no small value as a recipe.

Revival in College.—The St. Louis Presbyterian publishes an account of a revival in McKendree College, at Lebanon, Ill., in which upwards of thirty young men have professed conversion, six of whom were sons of ministers. The work still continues.

Chinese Bible.—The translation of the New Testament in Chinese is proceeding at the rate of 30 verses a day, and it is hoped will be completed this year. The missionaries, as they proceed, insert every new word in a vocabulary.

☞ Twenty thousand herrings were taken at one haul, at the fishery of Major Edward Wilson, near Elkton, Md., a few days since.

☞ It is said that more than 150 Southern papers have taken a decided stand against the dissolution of the Union.

The Sabbath.—We are much gratified with the recent passage of a bill by the Legislature of Georgia to prevent the running of freight trains upon all the Railroads in the State on the Sabbath day.

Population of Boston.—The population of Boston is estimated by the city register, from a comparison of statistical information, to amount to 132,000, of which number 50,000 are foreigners.

The Washingtons.—The new Twenty Dollar Gold pieces, from the United States Mint, have at length made their appearance, and a more beautiful coin we do not remember to have seen.—Ledger.

☞ The Railroad fare between Albany and Buffalo is to be reduced. On and after the first day of May the fare in all the trains, excepting the express, will be $8, and in the express $9.75. This will doubtless satisfy the travelling public.

☞ Eleven Camels were imported into Baltimore last week from Canary Islands. They are intended for the far West, to test whether they can be raised and acclimated.

☞ The General Assembly of New York, on Friday, passed a homestead exemption bill by a vote of 67 to 34.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MASTERS.

Beloved masters, those of you who sever the tenderest ties of consanguinity, will you read the following?

1. That according to the law of marriage, as contained in the Word of God, there is but one ground of divorce, fornication by one of the parties.

2. That the bond of union is for life.

3. That no human authority can abrogate or alter Divine laws. This is true of all God's laws, but

4. Especially of the law of marriage, because there is specific prohibition of human interference to separate husband and wife.

5. That the only limitation to this prohibition is founded on the right of government to punish. But, that the master, who for other reasons, voluntarily separates slaves, married to each other, is guilty of a violation of the law of God.

"All things, whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them, for this is the law and the prophets."—Golden Rule.

WANTS AND MEANS.

One great secret of domestic enjoyment is too much overlooked. It consists in bringing our wants down to our circumstances, instead of toiling to bring our circumstances up to our wants. Wants will always be ahead of Means, and there will be no end to the race if you set the latter to chasing the former. Put the yoke of self-denial on desire, apply the spur of industry to energy, and then if the latter does not overtake the former, it will at least keep in sight of it. Try it ye longing restless spirits.—Palladium.

WORN OUT MINISTERS.

DR. MAGRAW'S OLD HORSE.

When a boy, at the school of the late Rev. Dr. James Magraw, of West Nottingham, Maryland, among the first things that I noticed, was an old black horse, that had the liberty of the farm. He was always taken care of, and never did any work. We wondered to see this, and on inquiry, learned that he had been a faithful servant in his early life, and now being old, the Doctor would not allow him to be used, but required that he should be taken care of, as well as any of those that were in service.

It is a very common thing for men to try to work off an old horse when he begins to get stiff in the knees, or loses his vigor and sprightlioess. While he is ready for active service, and cannot well be dispensed with, he can find stable and provender, and will even bring his hire; but when he requires care and rest, he becomes a weight, an incumbrance, and managing men fall upon some plan to get rid of him. They will sell him at a low price. Rather than not secure the chance to dispose of him, they will even charitably give him away.

Since the subject of providing for disabled and worn out and infirm ministers has been in agitation, I have thought of the old black horse. And when I read of so many congregations putting off their old ministers, and endeavoring to fill their places with vigorous, sprightly, and energetic young men, I cannot help thinking of the management of those who always try to have young horses.

* * * * *

The fact is, this subject must claim more of the attention of our churches. We must cherish respect and love for those men who have labored and borne with patience the heat and burden in God's service—and we must provide for their comfort in their old age—or God may give us up to the instructions of the young, and take the aged and experienced to himself.—Pres.

MEANING OF THE TERM SERVANT IN THE NEW TESTAMENT.

Slaves, as long as they were under the government of a master, were called Oiketai; but after their freedom, they were Douloi, not being, like the former, a part of the master's estate, but only obliged to some grateful acknowledgements and small services.

Oiketes is only used four times in the New Testament: Luke xvi. 13; Acts x. 7; Rom. xvi. 4; 1 Peter ii. 18.

Doulos is used in the New Testament one hundred and seventeen times.

Apply this word as Bishop Potter affirms it was used by the ancient Greeks, and it will elucidate Paul's Epistle to Philemon concerning Onesimus, v. 16: "Not now as a doulos, (who at most was not a part of the master's estate, but only obliged to some grateful acknowledgements and small services,) but above a doulos, a brother beloved."—N. Y. Ind.

CHILDREN.

The education of our children is never out of mind. Train them to virtue, habituate them to industry, activity, and spirit. Make them consider every vice as shameful and unmanly. Fire them with ambition to be useful. Make them disdain to be destitute of any useful knowledge.—John Adams to his wife.

DOW ON DELINQUENTS.

Dow, Jr., in one of his discourses, speaks as follows:

"The printer is in a very disagreeable situation; his money is scattered everywhere, and he hardly knows where to look for it. His paper, his ink, his type, his journeyman's labor and living must all be paid for. You, Mr. ——, and Mr. ——, and a hundred others I could name, have taken his paper, and you and your children and your neighbors have been instructed by it.

"If you miss one paper, you think very hard of the printer—you would rather go without your meal than go to bed without your newspaper. Have you complied with the terms of your subscription?—Have you taken as much pains to furnish the printer with his money as he has to furnish you with your paper? Have you paid him for his hand work and his head work? If you have not, go and pay him off."

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

According to Martin, in his account of the British Colonies, twenty written and various unwritten languages, are spoken throughout this great empire of colonies. There are about 5,000,000 Christians, 50,000,000 Hindoos, 20,000,000 Mahommedans, 10,000,000 Budhists, and millions of other idolaters of various descriptions, in the British foreign possessions. The whole population is estimated at 130,000,000. Of these, not more than 26,000,000 eat flesh abundantly; about 10,000,000 sparingly; 24,000,000 occasionally; and 70,000,000 live principally on vegetables and fish. About 34,000,000 make wheat, oats & barley their principal graminiverous food; 16,000,000 on potatoes, pulse, and other vegetables, and 80,000,000 rice, maize, millet, &c.: about 10,000,000 drink wine frequently: 25,000,000 malt liquors; 35,000,000 distilled liquors; and 60,000,000 chiefly water.

PROPER EMPLOYMENT OF TIME.

The excellent Bishop Hall, in a letter to Lord Denny, has the following pithy paragraph on the use and abuse of time:

"Sweet is the destiny of all trade, whether of the brows or of the mind.—God never allowed any man to do nothing. How miserable is the condition of those men who spend the time as if it were given them, and not lent; as if hours were waste creatures, and such as never should be accounted for; as if God would take this for a good bill of reckoning.

WHAT THE END WILL BE.

When I see a boy angry with his parents, disobedient and obstinate—determined to pursue his own course—to be his own master—setting at nought the experience of age, and disregarding their admonitions and reproofs—unless his course of conduct is changed, I need not inquire, "What will his end be?" He not only disobeys his parents and insults his friends, but he disregards the voice of God, and is pursuing that path which leads directly down to the gates of death and wo.

☞ The most holy ministers are the most useful: the ark is pure, and must be touched only by hallowed hands.

POETRY.

JUST AS I AM.

Just as I am, without one plea,
But that thy blood was shed for me,
And that thou bid'st me come to thee,
O Lamb of God, I come!

Just as I am, and waiting not
To rid my soul of one dark blot,
To thee, whose blood can cleanse each spot,
O Lamb of God, I come!

Just as I am, though tossed about
With many a conflict, many n doubt,
Fightings within, and fears without,
O Lamb of God, I come!

Just as I am—poor, wretched, blind;
Sight, riches, healing of the mind,
Yea, all I need in thee to find,
O Lamb of God, I come!

Just as I am, thou wilt receive,
Wilt welcome, pardon, cleanse, relieve;
Because thy promise I believe,
O Lamb of God, I come!

Just as I am—thy love unknown
Has broken every barrier down;
Now, to be thine, yea, thine alone,
O Lamb of God, I come!

JUST AS THOU ART.

Just as thou art—without one trace
Of love, or joy, or inward grace,
Or meetness for the heavenly place,
O guilty sinner, come.

Thy sins I bore on Calvary's tree;
The stripes thy due were laid on me,
That peace and pardon might be free—
O wretched sinner, come.

Burdened with guilt, would'st thou be blest?
Trust not the world; it gives no rest:
I bring relief to hearts opprest—
O weary sinner, come.

Come, leave thy burden at the cross;
Count all thy gains but empty dross:
My grace repays all earthly loss—
O needy sinner, come.

Come, hither bring thy boding fears,
Thy aching heart, thy bursting tears:
'Tis mercy's voice salutes thine ears;
O trembling sinner, come.

"The Spirit and the bride say, Come;"
Rejoicing saints re-echo, Come:
Who faints, who thirsts, who will may come:
Thy Saviour bids thee come.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 24th of March, by the Rev. Charles A. Hay, Mr. Henry Becker to Miss Sophia Morsch, both of Harrisburg.

On the 25th of March, by the same, Mr. James Clennennin, son of Hon. John Clendennin, to Miss Ann Barbara Kieffer, both of Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 4th ult., by the same, Mr. James Nicholson to Miss Matilda Bomgardiner, both of Harrisburg.

On the 14th ult., by the same, Mr. Frederick W. Ensinger to Miss Mary M. Reynold, both of Harrisburg.

On the 21st ult., by the same, Mr. George Winters to Miss Mary E. Hughes, both of Portsmouth, Dauphin county, Pa.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!"

DIED—At his father's residence, in Holmes county, Ohio, on the 18th ult., Mr. Washington Rease, aged 18 years, 5 months and 13 days.

At her residence, in Holmes county, Ohio, Mrs. Eliza Beidler, wife of Henry Beidler, late deceased, aged 25 years, 11 months and 12 days.

Mrs. Eliza Beidler was a sister of Mr. Washington Rease, and were both conveyed to the tomb at the same time and in the same carriage. They left an aged father and mother, and also a number of brothers and sisters, to mourn o'er their departure. But their loss, we trust, has been their eternal gain. After the dead were interred, a discoure was delivered by the writer, from Num. 23: 10, to a very large and attentive audience.

Now lay my body in the tomb,
Till that great day of judgment come,
Then burst the scene with sweet surprise,
And in my Saviour's image rise.

A. HOLMS.

March 16, 1850.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Camp-meetings in Ohio.

1. One in the bounds of the Chester Church, Chester township, Wayne county, commencing on the 15th of August.

2. One in Summit county, near East Liberty' commencing on the 22d of August.

3. One on the old camp-ground, one and a half miles West of Reedsburg, Ashland county, commencing on the 29th of August.

Protracted Meetings.

By Divine permission, a protracted meeting will be held at Mechanicsburg, Cumberland county, Pa., commencing on the 11th inst.

Ministers and the public generally are invited to attend.

A protracted will be held, Providence permitting, in Matamoras, Dauphin county, Pa., commencing on the 18th inst.

Ministers and people generally are respectfully invited to attend. A. Snyder.

A protracted meeting will commence on Saturday evening, the 11th inst., at the Union School-house, New Market, York county, Pa.

Another will commence at Plainfield, union meeting-house, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 18th inst.

A protracted meeting will be held at Harrisburg, commencing on Saturday, the 11th inst.

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo descimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book,

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocat.
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,				$4	62½	a 4 75
Do.	Rye,	do.	- -	2	37½	a 2 37½
Do.	Corn,	do.	- -	2	00	a 2 00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				1	00	a 1 05
Do.	Rye,	do.	- -		56	a 56
Do.	Corn,	do.	- -		45	a 50
Do.	Oats,	do.	- -		31	a 31
Do.	Barley,	do.	- -		60	a 65
SEEDS—Clover,		do.	- -	3	50	a 3 50
Do.	Timothy,	do.	- -	2	25	a 2 50
Do.	Flax,	do.	- -	1	00	a 1 10
BEEF, per cwt.		- - - - -		5	00	a 5 50
PORK,	do.	- - - - -		5	00	a 5 25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -			8	a 10
BUTTER,	do.	- - - - -			15	a 20
LARD,	do.	- - - - -			8	a 8
TALLOW,	do.	- - - - -			8	a 10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.					6	a 7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - - -			10	a 10
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -			62½	a 62½
ONIONS,	do.	- - -			75	a 87½
APPLES,	do.	- - - -		1	00	a 1 12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.				1	25	a 1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -			37½	a 45
WOOL,	do.	- - - -			30	a 50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -		1	08	a 1 08
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -		10	00	a 10 00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -		4	00	a 4 00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,				$5	12½	a 5 25
Do.	Rye,	do.	-	2	87	a 2 87
Do.	Corn,	do.	- -	2	86	a 2 86
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				1	14	a 1 20
Do.	Rye,	do.	- -		62½	a 62½
Do.	Corn,	do.	- -		58	a 58
Do.	Oats,	do.	- -		40	a 40
Do.	Barley,	do.	- -		75	a 80
SEEDS—Clover,		do.	- -	3	50	a 3 50
Do.	Timothy,	do.	- -	2	75	a 3 00
Do.	Flax,	do.	- -	1	35	a 1 40
BEEF, per cwt.,		- - -		7	00	a 8 75
PORK,	do.	- - - - -		7	00	a 7 25

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice.) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

RECOMMENDATIONS
OF THE
HISTORY OF DENOMINATIONS.

History of all Denominations in the U. States.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby certify that we have examined the above new and highly interesting work, written by fifty-three of the most eminent men in the various denominations, and embellished with 24 splendid portraits of the founders and leaders of the different sects, and embracing their doctrines, disciplines and usages, together with the statistics of their Churches, Preachers and Members.

We would therefore recommend this work to the public as one equally interesting to all professed Christians, it being the only work in this country where each and every denomination have represented themselves.

Hiram Witcher,
Pastor Free Bap. Church.
Joseph Marsh.
G. W. Montgomery,
Pastor Universalist Society.
Wm. Sibley,
Pastor Christian Church, Rush.

From the examination which I have made by a slight perusal of the History of all Denominations in the United States, I think it an interesting and instructive work, and worthy the patronage of the Christian public.

A. G. Hall,
Pastor 3d Presbyterian Church.

Rochester, April 27, 1849.

I cheerfully concur with Rev. Mr. Hall's remarks. D. D. Buck,
[Pastor St. John's Church.

Rochester, May 1, 1849.

All who wish to understand the peculiarities of the different denominations of Christians as exhibited by their own writers, will be gratified by the possession and perusal of this work. In the recommendation of which by Rev. A. G. Hall, I cordially unite.

C. DEWEY.

Rochester Collegiate Institute, April 30, 1849.

I cordially concur with the above recommendation. J. G. Gulick,
Pastor First M. E. Church.

The History of different Religious Denominations, is a book well fitted to subserve the purpose for which it was made. A man can find here information which it would be difficult to obtain from any other source, and we think the authors have conferred an obligation on the Christian community by having it published. Jas. B. Shaw,
Pastor Brick Church,

I fully agree with the above recommendations, and think it to be a very useful work for all Christians. Geo. P. Kempe,
Pastor of the Ger. Luth. Zion Church.

Rochester, May 3d, 1849.

The undersigned has examined with much interest the "History of all the Religious Denominations in the United States," published at Harrisburg, Pa., by John Winebrenner, V. D. M. The work is a very valuable one, especially as affording in a small compass a species of information which few possess, and which can hardly be found anywhere else.—The article on the "Protestant Episcopal Church," in which the undersigned is more particularly concerned, is written with the author's usual ability, though it is to be regretted that he steps on disputed ground in his exposition of the doctrines of that Church.

On the whole, the volume is calculated to do good, by making Christians acquainted with each others's views, thus increasing their mutual charity, and by showing to all the great need of that Christian unity which is so sadly impaired by such a multitude of distinct and rival ecclesiastical bodies.

Henry W. Lee, Rector of St. Luke's Church, Rochester, N. Y.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. MAY 15, 1850. NUMBER 2.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.

The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.

In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY AND STATE.

Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fifteen.

Names	Am't. paid.	Names.	Am't. paid.
Anderson Wm	$1 00	Coover John B	$1 00
Augustine John A	1 00	Diehl Simon	1 00
Ayres John	1 00	Diltz Geo	1 00
Apper Abraham	1 00	Dorr Martha	1 00
Allen Michael F	1 00	Dorstein Abraham	1 00
Achey John H	1 00	Dull Jacob	1 00
Barkey Henry	1 50	Dehl Levi	1 00
Boyer Wilkin (vols 14&15)	2 50	Deemer Josiah	50
Beck Henry vol 14	1 50	Davies Wm vol 14 & 15	2 00
Baker David	1 00	Doman J J	1 00
Baker Wm C	1 00	Hantup John	1 00
Brown Daniel	1 00	Emrick John P	1 00
Benneman Abr'm	1 00	Evens Daniel	1 00
Benneman David	1 00	Etter Samuel	1 00
Benneman Benj	1 00	Eisenhower J F	1 00
Benneman John	1 00	Eppley Geo	1 00
Beck Henry	1 00	Easminger Mrs F	1 25
Bowman John	1 00	Elcock Joseph	1 00
Brown John	1 00	Engle Sarah	1 00
Brady Cath vols 14 & 15	2 00	Felty John	1 00
Brown John	1 00	Fauss Samuel	1 00
Bassard Daniel vol 12	1 25	Frealey Peter	50
Brown George	1 00	Fleagle Benj	1 00
Barlow John vols 13 & 14	3 00	Fleagle Henry	1 00
Bricker Jacob	1 00	Fanwell Jacob	1 00
Brady Sarah	1 00	Poor Richard vol 12	1 25
Blake Mary	1 00	Friend Phœbe	1 00
Byerly H J	1 00	Funk John	1 00
Bricker Samuel	1 00	Funk Henry	1 00
Beelman John	1 00	Freeburn John	1 00
Boyer Washington	1 00	Fore Maria	1 00
Brady Wm	1 00	Funk Henry	1 00
Barlow James vol 13	1 50	Forney Michael	1 00
Carpenter Michael	1 00	George Daniel	1 00
Campbell Levi	1 00	George Joseph	1 00
Criswell Geo	1 00	Geo ge Isaac	1 00
Christ Jacob	1 00	Grose John	1 00
Christ J H	1 00	Grose Joseph	1 00
Crowford E L	1 00	Grove Sarah	1 00
Chew John H	1 00	Gable John S vols 13, 14 and 15	4 00
Cassel Emanuel	1 00
Cockley John vol 12	1 25	Garner Ephraim	1 00
Cramer Mary	1 00	Garner Jesse B	1 00
Carper Jacob	1 00	Gore John	1 00
Carper John	1 00	Gibson Caroline	1 00
Croft Geo	1 00	Gilbert Ephraim	1 00
Cazey Elizabeth	1 00	Gingerich Joseph vol 15
Cable Abraham	1 00	and part of 13th	1 00
Crusey Wm	1 00	Hoffer Henry vol 14	1 50
Hess John	1 00	Rife Jacob	$1 00
Homan John	1 00	Raysor Daniel	1 00
Hall Elijah	1 00	Rice Elijah	1 00
Hitschew Wm	1 00	Rineberger Mary Ann	1 00
Hicks Samuel	1 00	Rohrer Frederick D	1 00
Hickernell Jacob	1 00	Rush Abraham vol 14	1 50
Hartman John	1 00	Romspert Mrs	1 00
Huff Charles	1 00	Sheaffer Peter H	1 00
Hefflebower Henry	1 00	Saddler Jacob	1 00
Harman Lydia	1 00	Speelman Jonas	1 00
Hicks Daniel	1 00	Sherich Peter	1 00
Hinny Samuel	1 00	Smith Samuel	1 00
Houston John	1 00	Sheaffer Emauel	1 00
Hiuny Wm	1 00	Sheaffer Edwin	1 00
Hood Wm	1 00	Stoner Christian vol 14	1 50
Hair Abraham	50	Schoch Geo	1 00
Idle Jacob	1 00	Shafer Geo D	1 00
Jones Moses	1 00	Swartz Jonas	1 00
Jones Thomas	1 00	Schneder Jacob	1 00
Jinkins Morris	1 00	Shelly Christian	1 00
Kauffman Andrew J	1 00	Sleasman Geo	1 00
Keller Samuel	1 00	Stair Casper	1 00
Kinsey Jacob	1 00	Stoner David H vol 12	1 25
Kauffman A H	1 00	Server John	1 00
Kister Jacob G	1 00	Selby & Tawney	1 00
Keely Sebastian	1 00	Stevens Abraham vol 14	1 50
Kline Jacob	1 00	Sherich Jos vols 14 & 15	2 50
Keplinger David jr	free	Spicer Ab'm vols 14 & 15	2 50
Keller Christian	1 00	Snyder S S	1 00
Kauffman Aaron M vol 14	1 50	Stevick John	1 00
Louck Joseph	1 00	Shrom David	1 00
Lehr Daniel	1 00	Showatter Joseph	1 00
Longenecker Benj	1 00	Sink Henry	1 00
Lighter Lydia A S	1 00	Souffer Daniel	50
Latta Ephraim	1 00	Snyder Abraham	1 00
Lidge Samuel	1 00	Spahr Joseph	1 00
Miller Silas	1 00	Slingluff Levi	1 00
McCormick Wm	1 00	Singiser Geo	1 00
Myers Anna	1 00	Shidler Henry	1 00
McKean Robert	1 00	Strickler David vols 14 and 15	1 95
McFadden Daniel	1 00
Myers Wm	1 00	Stees Daniel	1 00
Miller Geo	50	Shaffe Wm vol 14	1 50
Martin Geo	1 00	Shuler John	1 00
May Daniel	1 00	Souder Jacob	1 00
Moyer John	1 00	Smith Benj vol 14	1 50
Moyer Samuel	1 00	Sleasman Geo	1 00
Machlin Ann Elizabeth	50	Tintsman Adam vol 14	2 50
Markley Daniel	1 00	Tinsman Adam	1 50
McCreary Joseph B	1 00	Tyler Elias	1 00
Marks Wm vol 12	1 25	Tate Isaac	1 00
Mishey Sarah	1 00	Thomas E H	1 00
Mclachlan Samuel vol 14	1 50	Thomas Daniel	50
Mell John	1 00	Utz Elizabeth	1 00
Miller J C	1 00	Vanaston Margaret	1 00
McCoy Daniel	1 00	Vanaston Isaac	1 00
Myers Samuel	1 00	Walker Joseph	1 00
McDowell M	50	Whitley Geo	1 00
Mil y Jacob	1 00	Whisler Isaac	1 00
Mateer John W	1 00	Wolfley John	1 00
Murphy Wm	1 00	Wolf Jacob B	1 00
Morrison Alex vols 12, 13 and 15	3 75	Wn ley John	1 00
		Worst Samuel	1 00
Myers Jacob vols 13 & 14	3 00	Winkler & Swartz	1 00
Oberlin John vols 13 & 14	3 00	Winebrenner J P	free
Overmold Martin	1 00	Winebrenner C G	1 00
Osman Moss	1 00	Winger Geo	1 00
Poffenberger Sam'l vols 14 and 15	2 50	Walker John vols 14 & 15	2 50
		Walters Joseph	1 00
Ryan John vol 14	1 50	Young John	1 00
Ryan Lazarus vol 14	1 50	Zimmerman Philip	1 00
Ross Geo	1 00	Zell Henry vols 13 & 14	3 00

Hymn Books and Testaments.

We have in press new editions of the Revival Hymn Book and Reference and Pronouncing Testament, both of which will be ready for delivery in the course of a few weeks. Orders can be supplied, at any time, on usual terms.

Fatal Accident.

A Mr. Paxson, employed as breaksman on a freight train on the Pennsylvania Railroad, fell from the train on the morning of the 1st inst, in attempting to jump from one platform to another, and was instantly killed. His head was severed from his body.

Revival News.

Brother J. Keller informs us that there has been a very considerable revival of religion, this spring, in Mauchentongo Valley, Schuylkill county, where between 40 and 50 professed to find redemption in the blood of Christ—eleven of whom have been baptized, and others it is expected will soon follow their example. They intend holding a Camp-meeting in that valley in August next.

List of Appointments.

The following list of appointments Elder G. U. Harn and ourself will try and fill, Deo Volente, on our Western tour. The brethren in the following places will please make the arrangements necessary.

Mechanicsburg, Monday, May 20.
Shippensburg, Tuesday " 21.
McConnelsburg, Wednesday, May 22.
Bloody Run, Thursday, " 23.
Woodberry, Friday, " 24.
Martinsburg, Saturday and Sunday, May 25, 26—protracted meeting.
Shellsburg, Monday, May 27.
Somerset, Tuesday, " 28.
Bethany, Wednesday, " 29.
McKeesport, Thursday " 30.
Pittsburg, Friday, " 31.
Old Harmony, Saturday and Sunday, June 1, 2—protracted meeting.
Wooster, Ohio, Saturday and Sunday, June 8, 9—protracted meeting.

We expect to be in the parts near Wooster till over the following Lord's-day.

This and the Next Number.

In this number of the Advocate will be found a spicy variety from various sources. We hope our old and ready writers will continue their accustomed contributions, and that our silent ones will soon awake to duty and help to enrich the columns of the Advocate.

The next number will be issued under the direction and care of our esteemed subsitute in the editorial chair, Bishop J. Flake. He will, no doubt, be a strong witness for the cause of truth—bringing forth things good to the use of edifying, and fully meet the expectation of the pious readers of the Advocate.

In the meantime, as we said before, we shall write more or less, (for each paper perhaps,) during the time we shall be absent on our journey through the Western States. Brethren, forget not to pray for us.

Camp-meeting Season.

The time has come to fix on the time and place of holding the model Camp-meeting; and also for appointing all other Camp-meetings. Other Elderships have already appointed their camps, and we hope it will soon be attended to in this. Let all the faithful pray for the revival of a Camp-meeting spirit, and for a devout, working and sacrificing Church. Faith without works is dead. Do good. Be zealous. Always abound in the work of the Lord. What your hand findeth to do, do it with your might. Labor for the meat that perisheth not. Lay up treasure in heaven; not on the earth. Press toward the mark for the prize of your high calling in Christ Jesus.

Sayings like these clearly show that Christians must not be slothful and luke-warm, if they wish to serve their day and generation well and secure the crown of eternal life.

The Crops.

The grain and grass crops in this neighborhood look remarkably fine and promising. Should the season continue favorable, the farmers may hope for an abundant harvest.

The fruit crops also, are no less promising, in this meridian. Although we have had heavy frosts and cold weather during the month of April, yet the most of the fruit escaped uninjured.

Acknowledgement.

We feel it a duty to say, that some of our brethren are entitled to many thanks, for the new and lively interest they are taking in procuring new subscribers for the Advocate. The following brethren have sent us the requisite number to entitle them to a free volume, viz: Wm. McFadden, John C. Owens, A. Megrew, David Keplinger, G. U. Harn, John Hickernell and John A. Plowman. These and others will please accept our thanks for their kind labor of love. Will others agree to go and do likewise? Effort is what we want.

Sabbath Travelling.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company had stopped running their cars on Sabbath-days, for a little while, but on submitting the decision of Sunday travel to the stockholders of the company, it was decided in favor of a daily line. This decision is a pretty fair exhibit of the morality and religious feeling among the opulent and upper ranks of the community. With them interest is paramount to religion. And if such be the morality and religion of our intelligent and wealthy citizens, what must it be among the common people?

We are much surprised to find that some of our public journals will undertake to justify the Railroad companies and the State in their anti-christian and demoralizing Sabbath desecrations. One of our town papers holds the following latitudinarian language:

"There are some, and the majority too, who can reconcile the running of a line over an extensive road with their consciences. Many of these are religious, church going men, honest and upright in their dealings, and strictly observant of all the requirements of a Christian. Let the line run, and let each man regulate his conduct and square his actions according to his own convenience. Let those who can see no harm in Sunday travel and can justify it upon any urgent motive, travel, and let others, who cannot justify it on any plea, abstain from it. To coerce man to this or that course is at utter variance with freedom of religious opinion. It is not a question of abstract right; it is a question of duty, for a violation of which man is not answerable to any earthly power, but to a Higher Power who judges with perfect wisdom and mercy."

If this erroneous and infidel sentiment holds good in relation to Railroad companies and the public improvements, why not apply it to the community at large? Has a company and the State itself any exclusive rights and privileges? Is it just and right that they should be permitted to violate the Sabbath with impunity, whilst private citizens are punished for it? Reason, justice, consistency and religion requires one of two things, either the repeal of all Sunday laws, or an act requiring the suspension of all business on company and State improvements.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

SKETCH

OF A

DEBATE ON BAPTISM,

BETWEEN

J. KELLER AND A. OWEN;

Held at Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 19th, 20th, 21st, 22d and 23d of February, 1850.

REPORTED BY W. E. DRAKE,

For the Church Advocate and Religious Telescope.

SECOND DAY'S DEBATE.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 20.

Met at ten o'clock. Prayer by brother Frederick May.

J. KELLER'S FIFTH SPEECH.

BROTHER KELLER said—Gentlemen Moderators: The gentleman yesterday observed that he thought we should never refer to human authorities, but should discard them all, and only bring forward the Bible. We only used them as matters of fact and not of opinion. I consider it my duty, this morning, to show this congregation, as well as refresh the gentleman's memory, that I presented several arguments yesterday which he did not successfully answer. I intend to keep them ringing in his ears, till he answers them; or if he cannot, to acknowledge it. The first one is a passage in the Old Testament, where the word baptizo in the original is made use of. I allude to 2 Kings 5: 14, and Mark 1: 5, where John baptized in Jordan. In the second place, I have asked him to show me that John, Christ, or any of his Apostles ever sprinkled, or poured in their day? He has not done it, and I think never will. In the next place, brother Owen says "dipping" is a mode of baptism. He has not answered me what baptism is. He, however, admits that baptism is immersion, but says it means sprinkling and pouring also: But he has not yet proved it. Then, again, he wishes me to show him where any of the Reformers speak in favor of immersion. Where ever they immersed; I said—

OWEN.—Not one Pedo-baptist you quoted.

KELLER.—I stand corrected. I promised to do so, bear in mind, if he could show one case in the New Testament where one person was sprinkled, or poured, I would show where one Pedo-baptist, at least, was immersed; nay, where all the Reformers, before the reformation, were immersed. The gentleman said, several times, yesterday, that perhaps the term baptizo was changed in the days of Christ, but he has advanced no proof of it. But, I will give a proof to the contrary, if he desires it. He refers to the Pedo-baptists for his position—Clarke, Watson, White, and last of all, the apostate. What is all this worth? I would just as soon have him refer to our friend, Bishop Erb, for I would as soon believe him as any of these men. He brings up his Pedo-baptists to prove he is right.—Might I not do the same thing to prove that I am right also? The Baptist writers would declare that brother Keller is right in his position; but will Baptists say that he is? They would say —No; and he knows it; and therefore I would be on the strongest side of the house. Or, does the gentleman think there are no able men on the Baptist side. Does he think that they are all ignorant, insignificant men? Is this the reason he will not refer to the Baptist side of the house? What does he think of Alexander Campbell? Is he an illiterate man? Can he gather nothing from him? What does he think of Hinton and Carson? Why does he not refer to them for proof? He cannot get anything from them! What does he think of Power, and a host of others? I quoted from his side of the house, which he does not like. Let him quote from our side, and that would be fair; but he will not do it, and the reason is plain. If he did, we would soon get down to Jordan side by side. But, I would not propose to immerse him, because he is, I imagine, already baptized.

It is not necessary for me to go out of the Pedo-baptist ranks to prove that baptizo, or baptism, is immersion. The subject has been before a jury for many hundred years, and the jurors have declared that baptism is immersion. Now, as I have already said, and I wish it to be impressed upon the minds of the congregation, the first and primary meaning of the word baptizo is to dip, to plunge, and to immerse. I have Luther on this subject; and if his friends did not tell the truth, I am not accountable for it. But is it reasonable to suppose that Luther would go and bear testimony against his friends—his own brethren? Reason says "No."

But I was going to make this remark, that you are well aware that when we take a candidate to the water to baptize, we see that the person is washed; but that is not baptism. It is, however, the natural result, or effect of baptizing. If you put a man in the water, why, in the strict sense of the word, he is washed; but wash is not baptism, nor is baptism to wash. I would refer my opponent, for a few ideas, to the debate between Campbell and Rice, p. 171.

"Professor Charles Anthon being addressed by Dr. Parmly, of New York, on the subject of this proposition, last spring, he favored him with the following answer. I shall quote the correspondence, that the subject may come fairly before the reader.

"No. 1, Bond Street, N. Y., March 23, 1843.

PROFESSOR CHARLES ANTHON:

In conversation with Dr. Spring, last evening, he stated that, in the original, the word baptism, which we find in the New Testament, has no definite or distinct meaning; that it means to immerse, sprinkle, pour, and has a variety of other meanings—as much the one as the other, and that every scholar knows it; that it was the only word that could have been selected by our Saviour, having such a variety, as to suit every one's views and purposes. May I ask you, if your knowledge of the language, from which the word was taken, has led you to the same conclusion? And may I beg of you to let the deep interest I take in the subject plead my apology.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, most respectfully yours,

E. PARMLY."

Here is the answer:

Columbia College, March 27, 1843.

DR. PARMLY:

My Dear Sir—There is no authority, whatever, for the singular remark, made by the Rev. Dr. Spring, relative to the force of baptizo. The primary meaning of the word is to dip, or immerse; and its secondary meaning, if ever it had any, all refer, in some way or other, to the same leading idea. Sprinkling, &c., are entirely out of the question. I have delayed answering your letter in the hope that you would call and favor me with a visit, when we might talk the matter over at our leisure. I presume, however, that what I have here written will answer your purpose.

Yours, truly,

CHARLES ANTHON.

I will also quote from Stokius' lexicon, to prove that wash is but the result of immersion, and not the proper New Testament meaning of the word.

"Generally it obtains the sense of dipping or immersing. Without respect to water or any liquid whatever. 2. Specially, and in its proper signification, it signifies to dip or immerse in water. This is its New Testament sense. 3. Tropically, and by a metalepsis, it means to wash, to cleanse, because a thing is usually dipped or immersed in water that it may be washed, that it may be cleansed. Its general sense is to dip. Its proper sense, to dip in water. Its figurative sense, to wash, to cleanse."

Again, I call upon my opponent to produce one single lexicon for 1800 years, that gives "sprinkle" or "pour," as any one of the meanings ascribed to baptism. He will not do it. He cannot do it. I shall now read the Scriptures in these various translations.

First: I refer to Matt. 3: 5. "Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins."—Now, let us substitute a few other words, and see how they would suit. Poured of him in Jordan, confessing their sins. Again: Wash—and they were washed of him in Jordan, confessing their sins. Again, try sprinkle: and they were sprinkled of him in Jordan. And, suppose we were, with Ewing of Glasgow, to say—and were popped of him with Jordan, confessing their sins; and we get some of our Pedo-baptist friends to go to Jerusalem, to be popped of him with Jordan. Apply this rule to any passage which has reference to the ordinance of baptism, when administered in the water, and you will see the absurdity of the rendering at once.

A. OWEN'S FIFTH REPLY.

BROTHER OWEN.—As my friend has touched a number of points, I do not know that I shall be able to reply to the whole of them now, because I desire, before proceeding any further, to review the progress we have made in this discussion. And, in regard to those passages which he wishes me to notice, I will simply say, that I will reply to them at the proper time. He came here yesterday morning, according to arrangement, to prove that baptism is immersion only. In proving that, he came to the conclusion that the majority that have lived since the days of the Reformation, were not baptized; and, as might have been expected, curiosity was excited to hear such a fact proved—to hear that some of the best men that ever lived and died, and while they lived had the Bible in their hands and understood it, and were yet unbaptized! He begins with the lexicons, those who gave the definitions of the Greek terms. He brought forth a number, and they with great unanimity did not sustain him; but, in addition to giving his meaning, also gave a number of others, as Parkhurst, Scapula, and others. He, likewise, brought some other lexicons to show, besides, that "wash" was meant, a generic term, to bathe, and even sprinkling was reckoned.

Now, mark, if it is a fact—and you have been here to hear it—that these lexicons give "to wash, and to cleanse, and to purify," and one of them even sprinkling, as the meaning of the term, how is he going to prove exclusive baptism from it? Now, I won't repeat from Parkhurst and Bretschneider again.—They give simply to wash—to cleanse. He says that the primary meaning of the term was to dip. I answered his assertion by saying, that he could not prove it—that some authors supposed that cleanse, or wash, was the primary meaning, and some others, that dip was. And, I quoted Dwight, a learned man, to prove it. But suppose that dip was the primary meaning, what is to be inferred from this? Has he proved that the word has not changed since the Saviour employed it? Certainly not. I said, that although to dip could not be proven to be the primary meaning of the term, yet we might admit it, and still gain our point by showing, by Ernesti and Carson, that words are continually changing. The former says, p. 52, "The fluctuating use of words, which prevails in every language, gives rise to frequent changes in their meaning. There are but few words in any language which always retain their radical and primary meaning." Carson says, p. 62-3-4, "A word may come to enlarge its meaning so as to lose sight of its origin. This fact must be obvious to every smatterer in philology."—Again: "It is by extension of literal meaning, and not by figure of any kind, that words come to depart so far from their original meaning."

There, I have proved by two learned critics that, although we might admit this to be the primary meaning, yet, as language is so subject to change, it might have changed radically since the Saviour used it. And how can it be proved it has not? Then you see his argument fails.

In my first speech, I said that inasmuch as they had a stereotyped objection to sprinkling and pouring, that we looked for an express warrant from them for immersion,—a "Thus saith the Lord." And this, I thought especially appropriate, and I did not think they could object, because they profess to go by the Bible, and not human authority. And what do you think my opponent referred to as his proof? Why, the commission; just as though he had proved the word itself meant immersion only: then only could he find an express warrant for his practice in the commission. It was begging the question. The other passage he referred to was Christ's burial, where the term baptism is used, and he went on that as presumptive evidence that there was a comparison between Christ's burial and the mode of baptism: Therefore he thought that was a "Thus saith the Lord" for it, without attempting to enter into an argument—he begged the argument. I remarked that Christ was not put under ground, and that we might be buried without being put under water—without being immersed. He replied to that yesterday, prophetically, saying, that the Saviour was buried, being in the heart of the earth. And, I would simply state that Christ was put in a sepulchre, hewn out of a rock,—put in a niche. And, if he denies that, and also that a stone was rolled over it, he will deny anything: but I hope he will not make himself so ridiculous.

He was going to prove that the greater part of the Christian world was unbaptized, and when we ask him for the warrant, he points to the grave of the Saviour. But, as has been truly said by brother Winebrenner, that our duty is first by precept and example. I wished him, if he could not get from the Apostle a clear warrant, to give us an example; and he gravely got up and asked that I should show him where one was sprinkled. Now, if I had come here and proved that the whole Christian world was unbaptized, as he did, then he should ask it of me, but not till then.

I am going to offer a few arguments to show that sprinkling and pour is valid baptism—not the baptism.—I know it will be only presumptive evidence; but I know it is as good evidence in favor of sprinkling as they have for immersion. And this, you observe, my opponent brings as an offset against us for bringing forward a Pedo-baptist who was immersed. What authority has he to ask me to produce what I do not profess to produce—that sprinkling was the only mode of baptism. If I had come here to prove what he has, that there is but one action—one mode, I should think I had a right to produce a warrant for it, or a clear example. I proposed to him that if he would produce one noted Reformer who believed as he believes—who believed that immersion was the only mode, and that it was essential to the validity of baptism, I would bring a noted Reformer, a martyr, to prove the contrary. Has he done it? No. Has he produced a precept, or warrant? No, he has not, but evaded it. Has he presented a Reformer? He has not. And, if he does present him, I confess I know nothing at all about him. If he does, I will agree to present, in due time, a Reformer, and a Martyr, both eminent men, who believe in our doctrine. Has he left the lexicons? I think it is clear the lexicons give more than "to dip."

He has left them, and gives a second argument upon the commentators. And here he read the Pedo-baptists—Dr. Chalmers, Luther, and others. He gave them all as testifying that the word baptizo means immerse only. He said there were some Pedo-baptists favorable to immersion, and many to infant baptism. Then I brought the evidence of Luther, who did not believe as he did. And now I will proceed a little further. Since our discussion of yesterday, six German and English dictionaries have been examined, to ascertain if I was correct in what I said yesterday, in reference to the words tauch and tauf. I find tauf to mean to baptize and christen; and tauch to christen—to immerse. Now, this proves that neither Calvin nor Luther had any concern about the subject, and did not investigate it. Calvin wrote a large work, and devoted only a few pages to the matter. And, moreover, in that day the subject was not so much discussed, and I do not believe in it.

But, we have a right to wonder why they brought forward human authors about the Bible and nothing else. We remarked that if the question was to be decided by human authors, we could bring forward as wise and great men, in every sense of the word, to prove the opposite of what they wanted to prove. Did I not do it? Men of established reputation, of undying fame. Well, if we oppose truth by truth, what of it? and I will show that the Pedo-baptists were not with them. I wish them to show us one of them who was immersed after he was sprinkled. He refers to the New Testament for a case that was sprinkled. Now, show me the Reformer that was immersed. And, mark ye, we judge those men by their actions. James says, "Show me your faith, and I will show you my works." Brother Keller believes that if they were not immersed, they were unbaptized. And immediately he proves that, I will show you a Martyr and a Reformer on the other side not with them. They come here to prove a Bible doctrine—a doctrine which they say is as clearly proved as the fact of the Saviour's death. I think they spent only one day on human authority to prove that doctrine, quoting here and there from the Scriptures. They quoted from the lexicons to prove a doctrine which, as they say, is as clear as Christ's death. A perfect absurdity!

He asks why I quoted Pedo-baptist authors, and why I objected to his doing the same thing. I do object to his bringing them on his side. He may quote as much as he pleases, but I want him to treat them fairly. He says that I am not satisfied if he quotes from Baptists. Let him say so. I am. But he comes up with his Pedo-baptists, to produce a greater effect. Now, I wish it to be known distinctly that I have to see the first one who believes as he believes. He had better keep to his own side of the house. He said that I should prove that baptism has changed since the Saviour's day, and he wonders why I don't quote from the Immersionists. It is not my side, and I am not on both sides. When a man can be quoted fairly, I shall quote him. He talks about the great majority believing their doctrine. I should like to know how he proves that.

Further Strictures
ON
Dr. Hodgson's Sermons on Baptism.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

AMONG the wise maxims of the great Solomon, we find one appropriate to the occasion which called forth my former strictures and the following observations on the discourses of Dr. Hodgson on the subject of Baptism, to wit: "He that is first in his own cause seemeth just, but his neighbor cometh and searcheth him." Dr. Hodgson would fain make the world believe that the "superior liberality" of himself and Pedo-baptist brethren generally, would not admit of an attempt on their part to proselyte or dissuade any one from getting immersed who conscientiously believed it to be their duty. But on searching him out, we are led to inquire, What object had he in view in his four zealous discourses on baptism? Was it not in order to convince some young converts, who were desirous of being immersed, that sprinkling or pouring would answer as well, and thus dissuade them from the path which their own consciences marked out as duty? And for what purpose, I ask, are the abundant labors of the Pedo-baptist clergy on this much controverted subject? Is it because they have conscientious scruples that those who are immersed are unbaptized? Is it because they are so desirous to see all the professed followers of the Lamb "fulfil all righteousness?" No. They acknowledge themselves satisfied when a person is once baptized by immersion. They have no doubt but what such are properly baptized. Why then so much opposed to immersion? Dr. Hodgson answers, "Because it is more convenient and comfortable, especially at some seasons of the year, to sprinkle, than to go down into the river to immerse." Give me the principle that sacrifices to God, and they may sacrifice to comfort and convenience who change the ordinances of God's house.

Perhaps I ought to make a few observations for the benefit of those sensitive persons who are so easily affected when anything is offered in opposition to their 'faith and order," and those fault-finders who are ready to complain of everything, unless they or their favorites have a hand in it.

It will be well, therefore, to notice, that the wise man has not questioned the propriety of the neighbor's behaviour, in improving an incident like the one mentioned in the parable, for the elucidation of truth, and the consequent enjoyment of those who are liberated from their doubts and fears. And I may venture to assert, that no one, in this day of enquiry and mutual forbearance in the interchange of opposing sentiments, will contest the right of Christians to hear and investigate the arguments on all sides of controverted questions relative to Christian duty. No one but those destitute of the spirit of Christ, or such as have been so completely baptized into the spirit of Sectarianism, would have the effrontery to unchristianize a man because he dared to speak in defence of what he believed to be truth in opposition to that which appears to be error.

Every sensible man and woman knows, that before the desire of Christendom can be realized, "That they may be one," and "all come in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man," there must be a universal and simultaneous searching time for the "old paths, wherein is the good way." I would to God that Pedo-baptists every where would "sound the tocsin" of war, rally their forces, and contest the grounds in dispute betwen them and Immersionists at the point of the "Sword of the Spirit." But it has ever proved with them, as Isaiah said on one occasion to the Jews, "Their strength is to sit still."

Fearing, however, that I am trespassing upon the columns of the Advocate, and the patience of its readers, in my preliminaries, I hasten to the performance of the very easy task which the cause of truth has assigned me to do.

1st. To answer the arguments advanced by Dr. Hodgson in reply to objections offered in my strictures on his sermon on the Design of Baptism.

One objection presented was, that sprinkling was not an appropriate or Scriptural emblem of the communication, reception, operation of, or state effected by the Holy Spirit."

In answer to this, the Dr. quoted a passage thus: "Sprinkle me with hyssop, and I shall be clean," together with Ezekiel 36: 25, "I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean," and John 13: 10, "He that is washed needeth not, save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit."

I think the Dr. did not inform us where the first passage was to be found, and not being able to find such a passage myself, it will not be possible for me to examine the context in order to reply. The passage, doubtless, alluded to, may be found in the 51st Psalm, 7th verse, which reads, "Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean."

There is probably an allusion in this prayer to the cleansing enjoined by the Jewish ritual, which was to be performed by sprinkling clean or pure water, as it was sometimes denominated, and at other times the "water of separation," upon the person or thing to be cleansed. But even then the cleansing was not completed until the person was thoroughly washed or bathed in water. See Num. 19th chapter.

The same may be said of the passage in Ezekiel, "I will sprinkle clean water," &c.—Both are figurative expressions, made use of agreeably to the custom of the Jews; and if the sprinklings alone performed by them were designed to symbolize the purification effected, or the state produced, what farther need was there of bathing the whole body.—But they were neither sprinkled nor washed to symbolize a previous moral cleansing by the Spirit; for they were not considered clean until they had attended to both. Hence, if there is any intended analogy between their manner of purifying and baptism, it would not only show that baptism should be consummated by an entire bathing of the body, but it would also carry the impression that the person should not be considered as morally cleansed until baptized.

But what proof did Dr. Hodgson offer, to show that these passages had any reference to Baptism whatever? What authority did he produce for the doctrine taught, that these sprinklings spoken of were symbolical of the communication or work of the Holy Spirit? None but his own assertion.—Do the Scriptures anywhere speak of the sprinkling of the Holy Spirit? Do Pedo-baptists ever pray to be sprinkled with it? Is the Holy Spirit ever compared to sprinkling? Pedo-baptists say that this passage in Ezekiel alludes to it—and we say it don't. Now, here is nothing but assertion for and against the views held by them on this point. They stand in the affirmative; we now ask Dr. Hodgson, or any Pedo-baptist desiring to communicate light upon this subject, to point to the passages, chapter and verse, that sustain them in their assumption.

From these statements the question arises: What did the sprinklings under the law prefigure? Turn to Hebrews, 10th chapter—Paul informs us: "Having therefore, brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus," &c., "Let us draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water." See also 1 Peter 1: 2, "Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ." Also Heb. 12: 22–25, "But ye are come unto Mount Zion," &c., "and to the BLOOD OF SPRINKLING, that speaketh better things than that of Abel."

From the Apostles, then, we learn, that the sprinklings enjoined under the former dispensation, were to typify the blood of Jesus Christ, "which cleanseth us from all sin," and not the communication of the Holy Spirit, or the effect produced by it, as Pedo-baptists say.

We are now prepared for the argument on John 13: 10. We notice in this passage two washings spoken of by the Lord. 1st. leloumenos, or an entire washing of the body; and 2d. nipsasthai, a partial washing. Now, Jesus said, "He that is washed needeth not, save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit." If this has any allusion to baptism at all, it teaches us that "He who has been wholly bathed, or immersed, needeth not be again baptized, but save to wash his feet:" and if it was intended to symbolize the work of the Holy Spirit, it would prove that a complete washing of the body was first requisite to show an entire moral renovation, and a partial washing afterward to represent the renewal of God's favor from day to day.

If our Methodist friends have any other passages to sustain them in the views presented by Dr. Hodgson, we kindly invite them to hand them along; and if we find, after mature deliberation, that they are right, and we are wrong, we shall be happy indeed to exchange the cross-bearing practice of immersion to the very "convenient and comfortable mode of sprinkling" practised by modern sects.

I have written out the strictures on Dr. Hodgson's first sermon in answer to Baptist arguments, and had intended it for this number of the Advocate: but as this reply comes first in order, and is already longer than I had anticipated, I shall be under the necessity of postponing it till the next.

Hoping that God may be in all our thoughts and ways, and that whatever we do, we may do all to the glory of God, by the elucidation and practice of truth, I commit all to his hand till the day of final retribution.

S. B. HOWARD.

About Your Correspondents.

Brother Winebrenner:—

Allow me to suggest a few ideas to your correspondents, especially the preachers, who write accounts of travels, revivals, &c. I often notice letters that I cannot locate, because they have no locality given them. Let the brethren always give the town, or say, near the town of ———, in the neighborhood of which they may write, the county, and the State, as well as the date; and also locate the places they speak of; then their letters will afford more satisfaction to many readers.—Some write just as if every person knew where Camp-hill, Brush-creek, Shade-grove, or brother Such-an-one and Such-another are located and may be found, without reference to county or State. Let them also see that the names are correctly written; and in long letters the matter divided in suitable paragraphs.

Again: I think it would be good if all the preaching brethren who travel were to give notice once a year where they reside, so that their Post-office addresses may be known. I have frequently desired to write letters of friendly intercourse to some of them, but did not know where to address them. This is a custom followed in other denominations.

Brevity.—Your paper is small, therefore all articles written for its columns should, of necessity, be as much condensed as possible. To effect this, and thereby make the paper the more interesting, let your correspondents dispense with all unnecessary preambles, such as this: "I now take my pen in hand to let you know that I am alive and trying to get along," &c., &c. That is all useless; for any person knows that the pen would not write of itself, and that if he were dead he could not write. Let them think first what they intend to say, then write it in as few words as will make it intelligible to the reader. It is better to send only half a sheet of pure substance than a whole sheet mixed with chaff; for neither editors nor readers, I am convinced, like to read long, lame, dry, lean, tautological letters, the substance of which could be told in less than half the words. By studying the short style the writer and reader will both be better satisfied. Leave off all useless introductions, and go right on to say what you have got to say, dear friend; and when done stop, sign your name, pay the postage and send it on.

Descriptive letters of travel are always interesting, if not too tediously lengthy on each subject. Such letters should be always written in the short style. Like this: "I visited ——— and stopped with———. Preached to an attentive congregation—one convert."—This will answer in place of saying: "I mounted my horse, rode 20 miles and reached ———. I stopped at the house of ———, and found him at home. I thought I would hold a meeting there; so in the evening we had meeting, and I preached to a large congregation of people, who paid much attention to the word. One person came forward as a mourner and obtained peace." Now count the words, deduce the sense, and see whether the first style is not preferable. Long letters may be made very interesting if brevity of style be observed by the writer. Your readers will excuse me for these suggestions; they are made from proper motives. And they will also please remember what was said in number 14 of volume 14 on the subject of writers.

J. F. W.

Anonymous Communications.

Mr. Editor:—

I frequently see articles in your valuable "Advocate," in which complaints are lodged against those who write anonymous communications. Now let me just say that this is one of that description; and that I consider there are several good reasons for writing such.

1. Some writers are naturally too modest or timorous to append their names to every little article they may write for the public eye. They think it looks egotistic and vain for them, while they find no fault with others for doing so. They think if the editor knows their name that is sufficient.

2. Sometimes an article, that has for its object the correction of some impropriety, or vice, in certain individuals or communities, carries more force with it when the name of the writer is withheld; thus the object is the more readily attained, without the unpleasant personal feelings that might otherwise follow. A thinks: I have but little influence, and my name would perhaps kill my communication where it is particularly designed to bear; but as B, C, nor any person else will write, I will try to reach the evil. So he writes, omitting his name. And,

3. It is by no means necessary that the writer should append his name to some pieces. An article, for instance, on a general religious subject; what good does A's name do it?—Perhaps the answer will be, that the name may be the cause of our believing and adopting the sentiment in it, or rejecting it. But I say, names ought not to govern in this matter: "Prove all things, and hold fast that which is good," no matter who says or writes it.

If a reader considers himself aggrieved at what has been written, then let him apply to the editor, who always knows the author's name, for it; and if any personal matters are involved, let them be settled privately, if possible; or let the controvesy be carried on, where it is practicable, anonymously. I am sorry to see so many open personal controversies in our paper, in which both preachers and the laity of the churches are concerned. It certainly looks very unlike union, harmony, and CHARITY.

Notice and Request.

Andrew H. Kauffman and family left Washington, Lancaster county, Pa., on the 29th of April, bound for Bloomington, Musketien county, Iowa. Brother Kauffman wishes the friends and old acquaintances to make themselves known, as he desires to get acquainted with the brethren there, as soon as he can. Brethren, call on me at Bloomington, Iowa.

A. H. KAUFFMAN.

Institution of Education.

It will be remembered that at the Orrstown Eldership in 1848, a Committee was appointed, consisting of Elders Winebrenner, Harn, Flake, Swartz and Thomas, who were requested to meet and report to the next annual session of that body the expediency of endeavoring to establish an Institution of Education, under the immediate direction of the Churches of God. The Committee, in consequence of never being called together, neglected to make a report. This has led to an inquiry in many minds, as to whether the subject has died, or was it only intended for show and appearance in the first place? So far as I was concerned in the matter, I felt, and do yet feel, the deepest interest in its ultimate success. But, in expressing a few thoughts farther on the subject, I propose to notice,

I. Is an Institution of Education, such as contemplated in the appointment of the above Committee, necessary and expedient?

II. Are the Churches of God possessed of sufficient means to establish and conduct such an Institution?

III. Where would be the most proper place for its location?

Many other incidental questions of great importance might be mentioned, but to me these appear to be the greatest and most prominent. Lest, however, my views thereon may be thought premature, I shall close for the present, with the hope that our brethren will feel sufficient interest in the subject to give an expression of their views through the paper. In a multitude of council there is wisdom, so speak out. Fraternally,

G. U. HARN.

Tribute of Respect.

April 18, 1850,

The Committee appointed by Enterprise Division, No. 341, S. of T., to draft a preamble and resolutions, expressive of the feelings of this Division on the death of brother John T. Fratts, respectfully present the following:

Whereas, The Wise Disposer of events, has in his wisdom seen fit to remove from amongst us, by death, our late fellow member and Treasurer, brother John T. Fratts, one of our oldest and most active members; and as death, in whatever manner, or at whatever stage of life, cuts down our fellow-beings at our side, should be viewed with awe, as it gives the solemn warning, you too are mortal; but when it strikes from amongst us, as in the present case, those in the prime of life and usefulness, the loving and the beloved, its warning is peculiarly painful, as it takes from society a valuable member, from a wife a loving husband, from his children a kind and affectionate father: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That by the death of brother John T. Fratts, this Division is called to mourn the loss of a faithful and unflinching officer, and a brother who was always willing to sacrifice his own convenience and comfort to promote the interest of the Division, and the cause of Temperance.

Resolved, That this Division deeply sympathize with the family of the deceased brother, who by this sad bereavement have lost a loving husband and a kind and affectionate father.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing be forwarded to the family of the deceased; also to the Pledge and Standard, and Church Advocate, for publication.

Reuben C. Bates, }
Henry Ettla, } Committee.

Information Given.

Mount Joy, Pa., April 30, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

In reading over the Advocate, I noticed a letter from my cousin, Henry Sherich, from Washington county, Pa., wishing to get information respecting his brother, David Sherich. Will you therefore have the goodness to publish the death of David Sherich in the Advocate. He died on the 18th of March last, in Bedford county, Pa. His place of residence was about one mile from McConnellsburg.—His widow was at my house this week, and requested me to write to you, and request you to give this information. I would be thankful for Henry Sherich's Post Office address: so that I could give him some information respecting Samuel Sherich, and likewise David Sherich. Yours respectfully,

HENRY G. MUSSELMAN.

Notice.—Henry Sherich's Post Office address is Simpson's Store, Washington county, Penn'a. Editor.

Letter from Brother B. Howard.

Rochester, N. Y., April 29, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

Having safely arrived at home, in the pleasant city of Rochester, and finding my family and connexions all alive and well, I sit down with pleasure to drop a few lines for your useful paper.

Looking over my memorandum, I find I have been absent about seven months—have travelled about 2000 miles—preached a little over 200 discourses, (and some of them no doubt my hearers thought were long enough for two)—baptized 13—saw a number baptized by others—attended the Eldership and beheld their order and harmony of soul, and in divinest numbers their pure donations roll: having received in the time $203 39, and expended 104 20, leaving me $99 39 for the support of my family.

I would now return to God and my brethren, my heart-felt gratiiude for their kindness shown to me during my sojourn among them, and trust that I shall visit them again early in the fall, and travel more extensively; and I hope do more good, and be more successful in my labors.

I have not had time to visit the Churches of God in this section since I have returned, and of course I can say nothing about them.

Brother Winebrenner, I do not expect to find perfection in the Church here on earth, but it does appear they might come a great deal nearer to it than they do. In regard to the name, "Church of God" has an advantage over every other professed Church in the world. In regard to the creed, (the New Testament,) we know we are right, however strongly others may contend that something else beside is necessary. I only can hope and pray that the Church may advance until we shall be able to carry out the principles of the New Testament in the temporal economy, by an equality, in giving and receiving. If this was done, I am satisfied that there is no denomination that would meet with equal success. Our name and creed (speaking after the manner of men) commends itself to every man's conscience in the sight of God, and if the principle of equality in supporting the cause could be carried out, nothing could stand before its mighty influence. Come, brethren, wake up upon this subject. Think over it—pray over it—study over it—prepare for the next Eldership. Present a resolution and see how many of the preachers will agree to act upon it themselves: and how many of the circuit and stat on preachers will agree to take a regular census of their members, and learn how many there are among them that will act upon this principle, and return the names of all such members to the next Eldership. Then we may know our strength.

But perhaps some will say, what have you to do with it? No matter about that. I think I have as good a right to feel interested for the Church of God as anybody else; and I am confident that if this principle was carried out, that there are many able ministers that would enlist in spreading the good cause. This I know from conversations that I have had with them. This might be done. Let the preachers first try, and see how many members of each Church will act upon this principle. In the second place, let them present the 10th, 15th, 20th, or 25th, and try it, and see which sum will have the majority in its favor; and then whatever ratio the majority of the churches are in favor of,—whatever sum they shall agree upon, carry it out—act upon it; and leave the rest to trudge along behind, till they get ashamed, or back out altogether. For there is no need of this snail-like pace.

I know this is touching a tender place; but it is the best test in the world to find out hypocrites. For every professor would like to have the name of belonging to the Church of God, (if they could cover it with their Sectarian name,) and have the Bible for their creed, if they can hide it with their man-made creeds. But, then, the Church of God alone, and the Bible alone, in the spirit of it, carried out in its true principles, which is equality, this is what will try men's souls.

Yours, &c., B. HOWARD.

Letter from Bro. David Keplinger.

Canal Dover, Tuscarawas Co., Ohio, April 23, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

I herein send you five new subscribers for the 15th volume of the Church Advocate, with the money in advance. I can say that the Church Advocate is still on the advance in this part of God's vineyard. It truly is a welcome messenger to me, and others in these quarters.

I shall now inform you of a protracted meeting held at father Showalter's, which commenced on the 29th of March, and closed the 3d of April. The result of the meeting was, one found peace in Jesus—seven were baptized, and three united in church-fellowship.

The preaching brethren were father Beidler and A. Holms. The meeting was very good. This is but a new place; but the Church already numbers sixteen. The prospects here are very flattering. There are a number of others that will be baptized soon. We verily feel thankful to God for his grace displayed in this place and surrounding vicinity. I hope the dear brethren and sisters here will ever live to the glory of God, and show to all around that they are determined to be obedient to all the commands of their Divine Master.

I will also drop a few lines to the brethren and sisters in the above named place. You know, brethren and sisters, that the Lord has been good to us, one and all. We have the privilege to meet in the prayer-room almost every Sabbath, and once during the week.—This I consider one of the highest privileges on earth. Suppose that you were deprived of prayer-meeting and preaching privileges for one year. I think that you would then, probably, place a greater estimate on these privileges than what many of you do now.

Brethren and sisters, let me exhort you to embrace every opportunity of doing good.—Always find your way to the prayer and experience meetings: ever showing to all around that you are true and faithful to your God, and he will give you grace for every trial and temptation.

Let us all lay aside everything that will have the least tendency to disunite our hearts.; yea, let us come up to the work with one accord, and by the grace of God never slack our hands until we all can have it to say, that I love all my brethren and sisters with a pure heart fervently. Let us all try to feel a strong and earnest zeal for God's glory, and the cause of Christ, and doubtless we shall see his cause prosper. If we expect to get to heaven, we must do our duty in everything; and then, and only then, can we have a right to the tree of life, and enter in through the gates into the city. There I hope to meet all the faithful children of God.

I remain yours fraternally,

DAVID KEPLINGER, Jr.

Letter from Brother David Baker.

Union, Wayne County, Ohio, April 20, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

All hail! truth, mercy, peace and consolation. We still feel like taking the Advocate. Send it on—we need it. We must have it. We need help, to enable us to stand against the wiles of the devil—against the wicked influences surrounding us—as, Sectarianism, Intemperance, Sabbath-breaking, war, licentiousness, covetousness, worldly and secret combinations, political strife, novel reading, pride, fashions, folly, rum, whiskey and tobacco. All these, and still more. The Lord help and deliver us; for who is able to stand? Like priest, like people.

Send on the Advocate—let it find a lodgment in every family, in every heart. For who does not fear and tremble in view of raising a family in the midst of so much evil!

We long to see the day, when Christians of every sect and order, shall lay aside party feelings, come up unitedly to the help of the Lord against the mighty: when Sectarian walls shall fall with a mighty crash, and shall crumble to dust.

The stream of death is on the rush. Satan is at every corner. Still there is hope.—Some few, at least, which have not defiled their garments, are still walking in white, with up-lifted hearts, hands and voices: Firm as a rock. Praise the Lord. The word of the Lord abideth forever. God still reigns in Zion. Go on brethren.

When we hear good news from our brethren through the Church Advocate, it still cheers, gladdens and encourages us to press onward in bearing the standard of Jesus. Our motto is, "Holiness to the Lord." Down with sin—all sin—popular and unpopular. Let Christ reign, and all the world keep silence before Him.

The Church Advocate, breathing this spirit, will accomplish wonders. We are determined to recommend it to every brother and family in the neighborhood; and so far as we can, still to bring to light the hidden things of dishonesty—expose and bear down corruption, misrule and oppression, and fearlessly elevate the standard of the God of Holiness. Success must and will attend the effort in the strength of the great Head of the Church. For this we meet you at the altar of our common centre, Jesus Christ, our only advocate with the Father. Your brother in the Lord,

DAVID BAKER.

Letter from Brother J. B. Harmon.

Canal Dover, Ohio, March 20, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

By request of my brethren, I employ my pen to inform you and the readers of your good paper, the Church Advocate, of a protracted prayer-meeting held by the brethren and sisters at father Keplinger's.

This meeting commenced on the evening of the 9th of March, and closed on the evening of the 17th. We met on Saturday evening for prayer, but not being as warm in religion as we should have been, the meeting was consequently not as interesting as it might have been. Sabbath morning we met for experience meeting, and truly the Lord was with his people. Met again in the evening for prayer, at which time darkness began to give way, and our hearts were filled with love to God and to each other. Monday morning met for experience meeting, and the Lord blessed us in the discharge of our duty, for we realized that "obedience is better than sacrifice." Met in the evening for prayer, and we were permitted to feel the Divine reality of religion, and also to believe that the Lord would grant us the desire of our hearts, even the conversion of precious souls. Tuesday met again to tell what the Lord had done for us, at which time one and all were bold and active in doing the will of the Lord. We had a very solemn time, and our souls were cemented together in Christian love. Met in the evening, and after a few prayers were offered to God, brother David Keplinger rose and exhorted the people to embrace religion: after which three came to the altar of prayer, and one obtained pardon. The work now commenced to prosper.

On Thursday evening A. Holms came to hand, and preached to an attentive assembly—gave an invitation to mourners, when six presented themselves at the altar of prayer, and thanks be to God, one found the pearl of great price, and was enabled to exclaim, glory to God, I am happy.

From this on to the close of the meeting we had precious times. Truly, our little meeting was not in vain. Ten were mourning as the dove. Two were comforted. Four baptized, and two united with the Church.

In conclusion, I will say to my brethren and sisters, let us fear God and keep his commandments, that we may have a right to the tree of life, and finally meet to part no more.

Yours in love,

J. B. HARMON.

Letter from Brother J. J. Doman.

Grandview, Louisa Co., Iowa.

Brother Winebrenner:—

This morning I take up my pen to drop a few lines for the Advocate, and to inform you and the readers of your paper, that we are all well at present. We have enjoyed good health ever since we came to this new country. We had a plentiful season. The wheat crop last year was good—corn and potatoes plenty too. We have nothing to complain of. For my part, I am at home here. I must say, like brother Snavely, I would not go back again to live, if I could get five hundred dollars in gold. Land here is rich and good. We can raise anything that a man may want. Tentant farmers pay one-third in the stock, or in the field, and have no fences to make, or taxes to pay. They have a good chance to make a living; and, I think, for my part, it better for poor people here, than in old Pennsylvania.

But I must say, religion is in a low condition. It seems strange to us to hear men invite sinners to come and join the Church. I looked for mourners. I saw but two persons, that got their sins pardoned at the mourner's bench, since I came here. They take saints and rebels into the Church in this country. We have united with the Brethren for a home; but it is no home to me. There is no life, nor power; nothing but a form. The people asked us when we came, what Church we belonged to. We told them the Church of God. But they knew nothing about it. They would like to hear a preacher of the Church of God. I believe if a preacher would come out here, he could be supported. I hope and pray to God, there will be a preacher sent to Iowa. I think it would suit brother Hurley. Let some one come and travel over these beautiful Prairies.

We had no Camp-meeting to go to this year. But I hope we will have Camp-meetings the ensuing summer. Brethren, pray for us. No more at present. Yours truly,

J. J. DOMAN.

Letter from Brother M. M. Utley.

York County, Pa., April 30, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

This is to inform you that I am laboring in the vineyard of the Lord on the Circuit assigned me for this year. The prospects for good, at present, in York county, are not so favorable as in times past and gone. Some reasons might be given for this. There is by times a kind of luke-warmness gets into the Church, and that pure and undefiled religion which the Apostle speaks of, leaks out of the hearts of many professing Christ. Love, impartial love, is wanting amongst many professors; and if you examine the Scriptures critically on this subject, you will find it is the main-spring in religion. If so, then we ought not to forget the first and great commandment, which is, "To love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, soul, mind and strength; and to love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the Prophets." Now, is it not true, that there is too much biting and devouring one another, even in the Church: and not only amongst the laity, but amongst the clergy. This war is not only with the tongue, as St. James has it, but also with the pen. The Lord give the spirit of watchfulness to both preachers and people, is my prayer.

Yours, &c., M. M. UTLEY.

Letter from Brother A. Megrew.

Wooster, Ohio, April 24, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

Grace, mercy and peace be multiplied to you, and all the faithful in Christ. Myself and family are well. The brotherhood also are well, so far as I have knowledge.

I have commenced my present year's labor with the two churches assigned me by the Eldership, viz: the Church in Wooster, and the Church at Moreland. For these two churches I am to preach once every Sabbath. This appears to be very confining to me indeed. However, in my present circumstances, it becomes me to be much at home. I shall therefore try to submit, and by the grace of God endeavor to do all the good I can.—Where my lot may fall by another year, I know not. But if I am permitted to live, I wish to be useful wherever God in his all-wise Providence may direct and cast my lot.

The cause stands fair in Ohio. Nothing very special occurring; but peace, love and union appears to prevail and abound. My prayer is, that it may continue and abound more and more. Amen, and Amen.

The gold, or yellow fever, has subsided somewhat, and I believe but few of the members of the Church of God in Ohio, have been seriously diseased by it. Some few, I believe, were carried off entirely with it, but are all, I think, likely to recover. May the Lord grant that life and health may again, universally, abound in the churches. Brethren, don't forget the remedy. There is balm in Gilead.

Yours truly, A. MEGREW.

Letter from Brother Jacob Hickernell.

April 27, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

As the time has come that payment should be made for the Advocate for the coming year, I send you two dollars, one dollar for John Whiley and one for myself. I love the Advocate, and I love to pay for it. I love what it contains; but there is one thing I don't love: and that is, that subscribers for the Advocate suffer themselves so long, and so often, to be dunned for your dues. With such, I fear, there is something wrong in the heart, or in the head. No more at present.

I remain your brother,

JACOB HICKERNELL.

OBITUARY OF Brother MICHAEL BEAR.

The following obituary notice is a synopsis of a letter written to me by a son of the deceased.

Michael Bear, born in Berks county, Pa., A. D. 1778, died suddenly at Plainfield, Cumberland county, on the 16th of December, 1849, aged about 72 years.

For some time previous to his death, his bodily constitution was gradually wearing away, but his mind was vigorous and healthful, which enabled him to attend to his daily affairs. On the day of his departure, he attended preaching by brother Utley, in apparent good health. After preaching, liberty being given to close, he rose and made some remarks on the text, which was Heb. 11: 24–26. He observed, if professed Christians would do now as did Moses in his day, they would all come to the knowledge of the truth—they would all be one united body, as they should be—that the people were guided by preachers, parents and customs, at the expense of the word of God—that the Bible was a plain book: if people wanted to know the truth, let them search it carefully and prayerfully, and they would find and understand what the will of God is—that the reason why Sunday-schools did not effect as much good as they should is, the teachers do not teach the whole truth, nor do they walk in it themselves—that when professed Christians would search, learn and do the whole will of God, the kingdom of Christ would prevail, and not till then.—I am old, and shall soon leave this world: I want to speak this once more to you.—I enjoy peace with God—it is by obeying God that He will make His abode with us—it has been by this He has abode with me, referring to Revelations 3: 20, and John 14: 23. You all know me, that I have tried to serve God. I have had my failings, and confess them.—You shall soon see me no more; and, casting his eyes out of the windows, he exclaimed, As I look at the trees, I see I am fast passing away—I have said enough, and added, I hope to die at peace with God and all mankind. These were his last words. He immediately lay, or gently sank down on the floor, and expired without pain, a groan, or a struggle, in a moment of time, his countenance beaming with an angelic smile, which continued till I closed his eyes after death. He appeared as if reposing in an agreeable slumber. While he was speaking I thought, and it was remarked by others, that his mind was very clear. He uttered his ideas with such ease, and in so few words, that it was past common. His tone was healthful and clear, and in quite a moderate state of feeling. Father was one of the most conscientious, sincere and Godly men of his day—I know him to have been so. He died from no natural cause to be perceived—he had no disease, and might have lived for years. B.

Thus has gone to the land of the blest one long and extensively known by the members and ministers of the connexion in which he stood, who was among the holiest of earth's children. He was unflinching and uncompromising in the truths of the Gospel. How suddenly was he arrested in his career through life! How gloriously did he fall under the mighty stroke of death! Where is the man living that would not prefer falling like him, to all the treasures and honors that earth could bestow upon him! May our last end be like his. H.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

A Curious Slander Suit.—About a year since, Rev. Dr. Storrs, of Braintree, was sued for slander by Jonas Farnsworth and wife, and the case was tried last Friday in the Supreme Court in this city. The facts were simply these: Mrs. Farnsworth had been excommunicated from Dr. Storrs' church, and the Dr. read publicly the doings of the church in the case, comprising a statement of the offence, viz: a violation of the seventh commandment. The court have decided that Dr. S. violated no law, but acted under the direction of the church as he was bound to do. Thus a general principle has been settled, favorably affecting the rights of ministers in their own pulpits.—N. Y. Evangelist.

Action Looking in the Right Direction.—The following questions were in substance proposed to the Geneva, (N. Y.,) Presbytery.

1. Can a Christian consistently vote for an excise man who will license the sale of liquor?

2. Can a Christian who is an excise man consistently give such license?

Both these questions were answered in the negative, When such doctrines shall be proclaimed, generally proclaimed from the high places of ecclesiastical power, a great point will be gained.

The Lost in the Belle of the West.—An official statement of the loss of the Belle of the West gives the following list of LOST OR MISSING AND INJURED.

Jeremiah Bumberger, Dauphin county, Pa.

John Anders and wife, from Marietta, Ohio, (in care of son.)

Frederick Bretze, wife and three children, (two children aged 5 and 2 years, saved,) Lancaster county, Pa.

Mr. Keller, (wife saved,) Pa.

Mr. Dewey, wife and three children, Pa.

Amos Yordy, Lancaster, Pa.

Lady, cabin passenger, name not known.

Man, wife and six children, name not known, St. Mary's Landing, Va.

Three children of Mr. Waggoner, Pa,

Two Germans, deck passengers, names not known, took passage at Cincinnati.

A family consisting of two men, two women, and four children, names not registered, Cincinnati.

Burned Severely.—John Bumberger, Dauphin county, Pa.; Levi Yordy, Lancaster county, Pa., hopes are entertained that both will recover.

Burned Slightly.—Miss Yordy, Lancaster county, Pa. Some three or four others very slightly burned—not reported.

Saved.—Among the names of the saved are these: George Geyer and family, (7) Pa.; Jacob Tollman, do.; Henry Gyger, do.; Hiram Stevenson, do.; Perry Stevenson, do.; John Sugars, do.; Wm. Bond and lady, do.; A. J. Bond, Springfield, do.; Charles Fide, do.; Daniel Reubles and family, (6) do.; Mrs. Keller, Pa.; Fred. Blessing and family, (8) do.; Jonathan Mother, do.; Wm. Hunsucker, do.; Wm. Green and lady, Juniata, do.; Abraham Funk and family, Dauphin county, do.; Peter Yordy and son, Lebanon county, do.; Jacob Hikes, Cumberland, do.; Mrs. Phelps, Hollidaysburg, do.; Edward Dorsey, Pittsburg, do.; George Rupard and family, do.; J. Waitem, do.; John Neidig and lady, do.

Camel Train for California.—It is said that Sands and Howes, the circus proprietors, are about to establish a line of camel trains from independence, Mo., direct to San Francisco. It is also said that a company is formed for establishing a line of post-coaches between the same points, to run through in twenty-four days. The company only ask of the government a strip of land one hundred feet in width for the entire distance, and the exclusive use of the road for fifteen years.

Important Experiment.—The Legislature of Virginia, at its recent session, made an appropriation of $10,000 for the purpose of testing the efficacy of an invention whereby locomotives can be made to ascend and descend inclined planes with little difficulty.

The Fire Annihilator.—Mr. Phillips, the inventor of this new apparatus, recently gave an exhibition of its powers to a large company assembled at the London Gas Works, Vauxhall. After some preliminary remarks on the vast losses from fire, amounting, annually, in the three kingdoms, to £2,000,000, and the inefficacy of water in quenching a furious conflagration, he set fire to a compartment of a large open building; filled with partitions, and temporary joisting of light wood, daubed with pitch and turpentine, and hung with rags soaked with the same combustibles. The flames ascended, roaring with such vehemence as to repel the spectators to a distance of forty feet, reaching, apparently, beyond all remedy by water; when Mr. P. with one of his hand machines, somewhat larger than a good sized coffee pot, from which a volume of gas and vapor was discharged, extinguishing the flames "in half a minute;" and then, to prove that there was no noxious quality in the resulting air, immediately walked through the building with a lighted candle in his hand.

A company has been formed to manufacture these new-styled fire engines; which, if they answer as well in practice as they seem to do in experiment, will soon make their way to this country, and find their field of operation in subduing flames, and perhaps the fire riots.

Phenomena in Oregon.—In the Cascade mountains, in the month of last November, there were heard loud reports, like distant thunder, and immediately after Silver Creek dried up for twenty-four hours. When the water did resume its course, it was so thoroughly impregnated with alkaline substance as to have the appearance of strong lye, and also to cause the death of the fish in the stream. About the time of the occurrence, strong winds prevailed from the south, a heavy fall of ashes was noticed in most parts of this valley, and a dense cloud of smoke settled in the atmosphere, shutting out the light of the sun for nearly a week.

Alteration of the Capitol.—The proposed alteration of the Capitol at Washington, will add 300 feet to its length. New chambers being contemplated in the additions for the House and Senate, the present Senate Chamber will be used for the Supreme Court, and the House of Representatives for the Library.

Rich Legacy.—The Society (English) for the propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, has recently come into the possession of thirty thousand pounds sterling, bequeathed to it by the late Wm. Long, Esq., of London.

☞ The Bill to abolish capital punishment in Ohio, which passed the Senate, has been defeated in the House.

Mr. Calhoun's Public Services.—The following chronological arrangement of Mr. Calhoun's public services, will furnish some idea of the part he has borne in the government of his own State and of the Union:—

He was born March 18th, 1782.

In 1804, he graduated at Yale College.

From 1804 to 1808, he practised law in the Courts of South Carolina.

From 1808 to 1810, he served in the Legislature of his native State.

From 1810 to 1817, he was a distinguished and leading member of the House of Representatives.

From 1817 to 1825, he was Secretary of War, under Mr. Monroe's administration.

From 1825 to 1833, he was Vice President of the United States.

From 1834 to 1843, he was a Senator in Congress.

From February 1844, to March 1845, he was Secretary of State of the United States.

From 1845 to 1850, he was Senator in Congress.

Baptize vs. Immerse.—Considerable controversy has been excited in the journals of the Baptist denomination, by a proposition of some of the leaders of the denomination, to alter the reading of a certain word or words in the King James' translation of the Bible. The proposition is to change the word baptize to immerse. Various reasons are brought to support such alteration, while the objectors hold that the alteration would serve no material good purpose, but would destroy the present name of the denomination, and by setting an example of tinkering with words to suit individual tastes, would soon give the Bible over to endless alterations; every denomination rendering it to suit themselves. The majority appear to be for keeping to the King James' translation intact.

Age of Senators.—Henry Clay is in his 74th year; Daniel Webster is in his 69th year; Col. Benton is 67 years of age; Lewis Cass is 68; John C. Calhoun was 68; Mr. Seward is 50; Mr. Cooper 40; Mr. Bradbury 45; Truman Smith 50: Mr. Bright, of Indiana, 38; Mr. Douglass, of Illinois, 37; Mr. Downs 49; Mr. Dickinson 50; Mr. Clemens 35; Mr. Upham 58.

Honor to Quincy.—The city of Quincy, Ill., has determined, by election, that no license to keep a liquor or beer-shop shall be granted in that city. About one-half of the votes were polled—600—of which only 45 were in favor of the license.

☞ A new process for making sugar has been discovered in Louisiana. The sugar thus made, without being refined, is snow-white, crisped, highly granular, and so purely sacharine as to leave the residue when dissolved in water.

Temperance Facts.—The people of Vermont have again voted "No License" by a majority of 7,334. In every county but two the majority was decisive in favor of temperance principles. In those two it was slightly on the other side. It will be remembered that this is the vote of the people, not of their legislature.

Something to Think About.—The entire sum of money raised by the churches of Great Britain for missionary purposes, is about $1,750,000, by those of America, $750,000; making together, $2,500,000; and yet this sum scarcely equals the annual gifts at Kalee's temple, Calcutta.

Cleaning Trees.—Trees and vines which are kept the cleanest, bear the best; like the human body, the pores of their skin become clogged with dirt, and retain gases which should escape. Trees, the bark of which has been scraped and scrubbed, become more thriving, and more vigorous.

Verdict against Sureties.—The Circuit Court, at Albany, N. Y., have given a verdict for $46,633 in favor of the State against Messrs. Thaddeus Joy, John Keyes Paige and Edward Artcher, who were security to the State for the public money deposited in the exploded Canal Bank.

Deaths in the Mexican War.—The total number of lives of officers and men, of the regular army and volunteers, lost in the war with Mexico from all causes, was 12,798.

Who, after reading this, will be an advocate for war?

☞ It is announced in the London Watchman that the income of the Wesleyan Missionary Society, for the year ending December 31, 1849, was one hundred and eleven thousand pounds sterling, or $500,000; an increase of $7060 upon the income of the preceding year.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ON SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

In order that Sunday schools may be productive of the greatest amount of good, the platform on which they are established should, if possible, be so broad that no Christian should be crowded off. The Holy Bible should be the text-book. The promotion of true religion as taught by the Sacred Scriptures, should be the object of all concerned, as officers or teachers; and all party principles entirely excluded from the school. In order to secure a permanent state of prosperity in the schools, the neighborhood must write, the parents, officers and teachers must adopt, those measures which will be the best calculated to encourage and to produce a laudable spirit of enterprise, and industry, among the children. Great care must be taken, that they are all duly rewarded according to the rules or constitution of the society or school, for their attendance and the progress they make in learning, that strict and impartial justice be administered to all, in the distribution of tickets and reward-books.

AWAY WITH WAR!

Did you ever think of the evils of war? Did you ever realize that it was one of the greatest curses of mankind? Did you ever see that the practice of war filled the world with blood, with slavery, with barbarism, and every species of misery?—Yet this is the case; and reader, are you not a military man, or guilty in some way of promoting war? If so, complain not of want, suffering, ignorance, or degradation. Oppressed laboring man or factory girl, don't murmur at your hard lot; if your politics, religious or social influence upholds war, the reproach falls upon your own head. You foolishly empty your own pockets and cause your own sufferings. Benevolent man, philanthropist—do you favor armies, navies, and military governments? Wonder not, then, at the depravity of man and the slow progress of truth and righteousness. Your self-contradiction and inconsistency in sustaining the custom of war swells the current of wickedness more than your good efforts can that of righteousness.

WHAT WAR HAS DONE.

Evil, evil, nothing but evil! It has destroyed human life, property, virtue and happiness. Nothing else has it aimed to do. Drunkenness, profanity and licentiousness have been its legitimate products. Widows, orphans, paupers, beggars it has multiplied. Dr. Dick estimates that fourteen thousand millions of human beings have been slaughtered by war—inhabitants enough to people eighteen worlds like the earth! Think of this. What greater curse could wickedness invent? Plague, pestilence and famine have followed in its track: but these of themselves have not begun to equal war in their number of victims. Had Hyenas, Tigers, Panthers and Serpents been the world's only inhabitants, they would not have equalled man in the destruction of life. What a field of human bones! What a sea of human blood!

From the Monumental Fountain.

PROFANITY.

BY JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, JR.

That gentle Poet who sang a defence of the poor, crushed worm, and wrote a melancholy elegy over the grave of his hare, also gave a solemn verse for the benefit of the profane:—

"It chills my blood to hear the Blest Supreme Rudely appealed to in each trifling theme;
Maintain your rank—vulgarity despise—
To swear is neither brave, polite nor wise;
You would not swear upon a bed of death—
Reflect! your Maker now might stop your breath!

Immeasurable distinguished and celebrated men, in all ages, disapproved, and have left on record many words against the pernicious use of blasphemous language. On the books of secular law in many countries there are penalties written against the practice. In all civilized nations, and also in some barbarous lands, the force of popular public opinion is against it. It is considered vulgar to utter oaths in certain genteel circles of society. It is considered by all Christendom a sinful performance; and, even the worst classes of enlightened communities, allow that it is at least useless, repugnant and uncalled for. But with such a universal barrier against the encroachment of the vice, public opinion is most lamentably capricious, and self-deceived. Condemning it with one breath, she practices it with the next. Denouncing it one moment, she approves of it, another. Acknowledging its evil, with apparent contrition she turns and hides herself in obloquy by repeating it.

It is astonishing and astounding that the age in which we live—the most enlightened in the whole history of the world—should prove to be the most profane.—This assertion is emphatically true, considering the superior advantage and light that exist among the present race of mankind. Some good men assert, and with plausibility too, that the state of human wickedness is worse than at any time since the antedeluvain extirpation, and even less excusable than the outrageous sins of Noah's cotemporaries. This, really, appears to be no false conjecture. Such an awful supposition should be sufficiently cogent to arouse the dormant minds of the most unconcerned.

Did the most insignificant halo of truth glow upon the contemptible excuses that are offered for its perpetual practice, there would be some gleam of palliative hope. But there is not a single noticeable excuse for this wanton sacrilege. It cannot therefore, be discussed, but, should only be subject to the strongest reprobatory denunciations.

This state of society must certainly be abrogated, or posterity will possess a legacy that may annihilate all hope of reformation. If it is not discontinued, the commencement of the next century may not be observed by mortal sight—but a mocking world may be counting the retributive years of a painful eternity. That would be lamentable, indeed.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 25th ult., by Elder E. H. Thomas, Mr. JACOB HOUSEHOLDER to Miss ANN DEARNBAUGH, all of Plainfield Cumberland county, Pa.

In Louisa county, Iowa, on the 11th of October, 1849, by brother McWay, Mr. MICHAEL KECK to Miss CATHARINE WAGNER, daughter of brother Henry Wagner, formerly of Dauphin county. Pa.

On the 24th of March, 1849, by Elder John Hovis, Mr. JOHN MULAT to Miss SARAH CRAMER, all of Rockland, Venango county, Pa.

On the 2d inst., by Elder J. M. Klein, Mr. WILLIAM SMITH to Miss REBECCA WAREHAM.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!"

DIED—On Tuesday, the 29th of April, 1850, brother JOHN TYSON FRATTS, aged 37 years, 10 months and 12 days.

On the 29th of October, 1849, near Newburg, Cumberland county, Pa., JOSIAH CLIPPINGER, aged 1 year, 9 months and 28 days.

The grave is now a favored spot,
To saints who sleep in Jesus blest;
For there the wicked trouble not,
And there the weary are at rest.

On the 25th of November, 1849, MARY ELIZABETH CLIPPINGER, aged 3 years, 11 months and 21 days.

Life is a span—a fleeting hour,
How soon the vapor flies;
Man is a tender transcient flower,
That e'en in blooming dies.

The once loved form, now cold and dead,
Each mournful thought employs;
And nature weeps, her comfort's fled,
And wither'd all her joys.

POETRY.

SPRING.

BY WM. M. H——R.

The gloomy reign of Winter's ended—
Sweet Spring is ushered in once more,
With all the beauty which attended
Her lovely advent heretofore.
The Sun, in all his matchless glory,
Unveils his long be-clouded face,
To smile on earth and tell that Flora
Must now resume her annual place.

See, what a splendid scene's before us—
The fields arrayed in splendid green—
The songsters chant their music o'er us,
Enlivened by the lovely scene.
The jocund lumbkins meet the morning
Full of jollity and chur;
The flowers their tender stems adorning,
Send perfumes both far and near.

Now Flora, dressed in robes of splendor,
Profusely scattering fragrant gems,
Doth cause the plants both tall and slender,
To bow upon their tender stems.
The desert and the lonely places
Do bud and blossom as the rose:
The flower with brushwood interlaces,
And in the shady woodland grows.

The brooks their icy bands now sever,
Which held them fast through winter's reign;
And now the brook and gentle river,
Glide smoothly to the sea again.
The husbandman in hope rejoices,
When gazing on his fields of toil,
To hear the songsters' lovely voices,
And see the grain bedeck the soil.

Sweet Spring! I love thee—yea, I love thee,
Thou harbinger of summer's reign—
Around, beneath and all above me,
Thy praise bespeak in many a strain.
Yet, lovely Spring, thou art terrestial,
Thy beauty soon shall pass away;
Yet thou'rt a type of joys celestial—
A spring-time of Eternal day.

THE CONSIDERATE CHILD'S PRAYER.---7's.

Many children, young as I,
Ev'ry year in numbers die;
And before the year has pass'd,
I may too have breath'd my last.

Jesus, thou great children's friend,
Let me think upon my end;
May I early learn to pray—
Serving Thee through ev'ry day.

If I live to be of age,
Still I'll love thy sacred page;
Let the Bible be my guide,
Let whatever may betide.

When my dying day shall come,
Make me ready to go home;
Save me from an awful hell—
Let me with my Jesus dwell.

THE FRIEND YOU NEED.

Children do you want a friend,
Ever faithful, ever true:
One whose kindness knows no end:
One whose love can shelter you?
Jesus is the friend you need:
Jesus is a friend indeed.

None that sought his love's embrace,
Has he ever turned away;
You may see his smiling face:—
Gaze upon his charms to-day!
Ever faithful, ever true,
Jesus is the friend for you.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Camp-meetings in Ohio.

1, One in the bounds of the Chester Church-Chester township, Wayne county, commencing on the 15th of August.

2. One in Summit county, near East Liberty, commencing on the 22d of August.

3. One on the old camp-ground, one and a half miles West of Reedsburg, Ashland county, commencing on the 29th of August.

Indiana Camp-meeting.

A Camp-meeting will be held in the bounds of the Church in Decalb county, in the neighborhood of brother Joseph Walters', five miles southeast of Auburn, commencing on the 23d of August.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

The following protracted meetings will be held on the Cumberland Circuit, viz:

1. One at Camp-hill Bethel, commencing on the 25th of May.

2. One at Baselıore's, commencing on the 1st of June.

3. One at Shiremanstown, commencing on the 8th of June.

The ministerial brethren especially, and the public generally, are invited to attend.

A protracted will be held, Providence permitting, in Matamoras, Dauphin county, Pa., commencing on the 18th inst.

Another will commence on the 29th inst., in the Bethel near brother Wm. Kumbler's, opposite Newport, Perry county, Pa.

Ministers and people generally are respectfully invited to attend. A. Snyder.

A protracted meeting will commence at Andersonstown, York county, Pa., on the 25th of May.

Another will be held at the Cross Roads School-house, commencing on the 1st of June.

Preachers and people are invited to attend.

M. M. Utley.

A protracted meeting will be held, Deo Volente, by the Church of God at Newburg, commencing on Saturday, the 25th of May.

Another at Churchtown, commencing on Saturday, the 1st of June.

Ministers and members of the surrounding churches are invited to attend.

E. H. Thomas.

A protracted meeting will commence at Plainfield, Union Meeting-house, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 18th inst.

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion,

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo descimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4	62½ a	4 75
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	2	37½ a	2 37½
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	2	25 a	2 25
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1	00 a	1 05
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		56 a	56
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		45 a	50
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		31 a	31
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		60 a	65
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	3	50 a	3 50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2	25 a	2 50
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1	00 a	1 10
BEEF, per cwt.		- - - -	5	00 a	5 50
PORK,	do.	- - - - -	5	00 a	5 25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -		7½ a	10
BUTTER,	do.	- - - - -		20 a	25
LARD,	do.	- - - - -		8 a	8
TALLOW,	do.	- - - - -		8 a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.				6 a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - - -		10 a	10
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -		62½ a	62½
ONIONS,	do.	- - -		75 a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -	1	00 a	1 12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1	25 a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -		37½ a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -		30 a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -	1	08 a	1 08
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -	10	00 a	10 00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	4	00 a	4 00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$5	12½ a	5 25
Do.	Rye,	do. -	2	87 a	2 87
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	2	86 a	2 86
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1	12 a	1 20
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		60 a	60
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		60 a	60
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		40 a	40
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		65 a	68
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	3	50 a	3 50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2	75 a	3 00
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1	35 a	1 40
BEEF, per cwt.,		- - -	7	00 a	8 75
PORK,	do.	- - - - -	7	00 a	7 25

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED

History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

RECOMMENDATIONS
OF THE
HISTORY OF DENOMINATIONS.

History of all Denominations in the U. States.

We, the undersigned, do hereby certify that we have examined the above new and highly interesting work, written by fifty-three of the most eminent men in the various denominations, and embellished with 24 splendid portraits of the founders and leaders of the different sects, and embracing their doctrines, disciplines and usages, together with the statistics of their Churches, Preachers and Members.

We would therefore recommend this work to the public as one equally interesting to all professed Christians, it being the only work in this country where each and every denomination have represented themselves.

Hiram Witcher,
Pastor Free Bap. Church.
Joseph Marsh.
G. W. Montgomery,
Pastor Universalist Society.
Wm. Sibley,
Pastor Christian Church, Rush.

From the examination which I have made by a slight perusal of the History of all Denominations in the United States, I think it an interesting and instructive work, and worthy the patronage of the Christian public.

A. G. Hall,
Pastor 3d Presbyterian Church.

Rochester, April 27, 1849.

I cheerfully concur with Rev. Mr. Hall's remarks. D. D. Buck,
Pastor St. John's Church.

Rochester, May 1, 1849.

All who wish to understand the peculiarities of the different denominations of Christians as exhibited by their own writers, will be gratified by the possession and perusal of this work. In the recommendation of which by Rev. A. G. Hall, I cordially unite.

C. DEWEY.

Rochester Collegiate Institute, April 30, 1849.

I cordially concur with the above recommendation. J. G. Gulick,
Pastor First M. E. Church.

The History of different Religious Denominations, is a book well fitted to subserve the purpose for which it was made. A man can find here information which it would be difficult to obtain from any other source, and we think the authors have conferred an obligation on the Christian community by having it published. Jas. B. Shaw,
Pastor Brick Church,

I fully agree with the above recommendations, and think it to be a very useful work for all Christians. Geo. P. Kempe,
Pastor of the Ger. Luth. Zion Church.

Rochester, May 3d, 1849.

The undersigned has examined with much interest the "History of all the Religious Denominations in the United States," published at Harrisburg, Pa., by John Winebrenner, V. D. M. The work is a very valuable one, especially as affording in a small compass a species of information which few possess, and which can hardly be found anywhere else.—The article on the "Protestant Episcopal Church," in which the undersigned is more particularly concerned, is written with the author's usual ability, though it is to be regretted that he steps on disputed ground in his exposition of the doctrines of that Church.

On the whole, the volume is calculated to do good, by making Christians acquainted with each others's views, thus increasing their mutual charity, and by showing to all the great need of that Christian unity which is so sadly impaired by such a multitude of distinct and rival ecclesiastical bodies.

Henry W. Lee, Rector of St. Luke's Church, Rochester, N. Y.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. JUNE 1, 1850. NUMBER 3.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

☞The acknowledgment of payments made on the Advocate will be continued in the next number.

To the Readers of the Church Advocate.

In accordance with the wishes of the Eldership, and brethren, I am here to attend to the Advocate, during the absence of brother Winebrenner, the Editor, and to fill the place of brother Harn, the preacher in charge of the Church. These two beloved brethren have gone on a ministerial visit to the churches in the Western States, and expect to be absent until some time in the next autumn.

Those who have heretofore written for the Advocate, will, we hope, continue their communications. Other brethren, who wish well to the cause, but hardly ever write a line for the paper—especially some of the elder preachers—these we invite to favor us with their contributions. Those who have already thus favored the paper, but have not seen their articles in print, will please make allowance for the present, on account of the large space taken up by the discussion on Baptism.

We shall do the best we can to please all who read the Advocate, or write for its pages, but above all, we trust our aim will be, to please God, and to help on with his blessed work in the conversion of souls, and building them up in holiness, truth, and love.

J. F.

The Travellers.---J. F.

Brother Winebrenner, our Editor, and brother Harn, the preacher in charge in Harrisburg, have gone on an old-fashioned visit to the churches, and brethren, scattered through several Western States. A visit of this kind was much desired by the brethren West of the mountains, and they will be greatly pleased, and we may hope profited, by the prayers, and preaching, and conversation of the travellers. They went, not exactly in old-fashioned Israelitish style, which was on foot, or with the humble ass, or mule, but they had a plain, and strong, and roomy carriage, with two horses, which will permit them to seek the scattered members of our church in their journey of a thousand miles, or more, to Iowa.

Since the revival twenty years ago, or more, in which originated the small body of believers to which especially we belong, there have been many who have professed to find the blessing of true evangelical religion among us. Of these a number have emigrated to the West, and formed churches, in some places, or have settled at a distance from their old friends—and others have gone over Jordan in the faith and hope of Jesus. It is therefore the bounden duty of the preachers who remain East of the mountains, to visit and help as much as possible those who have spread out westward.—Presbyteries, or Elderships, (small as yet,) have already for years, been established in West Pennsylvania, and Ohio, and more recently in Indiana, and Iowa. This is the right way in order to the building up of believers, and the conversion of unbelievers, and sinners. Gather into one, instead of scattering, for in our day especially, very few are able to stand alone, and yet be happy and useful.

A journey of this kind, at this time of year, must be very pleasant, especially when you can go independent of the hurry and danger of the Steamboat, or Railroad car. Nature is out now in its loveliest dress, and if the traveller's heart is right, he will find that God's works speak to him with a solemn and cheering voice, as well as God's word. And then if you can stop at night, and be entertained for days, by kind Christian friends, and converse, and preach, and pray, and sing among them, and thus do good wherever you come, like our Master did, this is about as desirable a journey as we could wish. If we had more of the cross to bear, like the primitive Christians, perhaps it would be better for us.

Our brethren will likewise attend some of the Western Camp-meetings, and thus be able to preach to many souls; for this is the great object of a special meeting, to get many to attend, so as to reach their ears and their hearts. So that whether it be in the log cabin or larger building—by the river side or in the encampment in the woods—in the family or in the congregation—let them teach and preach Christ Jesus, and him crucified, and hold up the faith once delivered to the saints.

And may the peace of God be with them, and may their visitation every where be a lasting blessing to many souls.

The Island of Cuba.

The letter in another page is from a pious young man of my acquaintance, who is on a visit to the South and West. It is addressed to a friend in Philadelphia, and gives the writer's impression concerning the Island of Cuba, and its capital, the city of Havana, during his stay of a few days. Cuba is the largest of the West India Islands, and belongs as a colony to Spain. At the present more than common attention is directed toward it, by the effort which is being made by an adventurous army of several thousand men, raised unlawfully in this country, to invade and revolutionize the Island, in order to make it independent, or finally to annex it as another State to our great Republic.

J. F.

Iowa Sabbath-School.

To Brother M. F. Snavely, and the Brethren in his neighborhood, in Iowa.

Dear Brethren:—

I saw by your communication in the Advocate that you had gathered a Sabbath-school in your neighborhood, and that you were in want of a School Library, and thought the brethren in the East might perhaps give you one. Two days ago I called at the great establishment of the American Sunday-school Union in Philadelphia, and made enquiry. I found they had a Library of seventy-five small volumes for five dollars, and another of one hundred volumes for ten dollars, and various other prices—all the books differing from each other.

A gentleman of my acquaintance was present, who perhaps is connected with the Union, who told me that they have in many instances made donations of Libraries to Western Schools, and advised that you should address a letter to the Board of Managers of the American Sunday-school Union, giving a statement of the situation and wants of the children you have gathered, and direct the letter by mail to the care of John F. Porter, Corresponding Secretary, at Philadelphia. Tell them to whose care in your neighborhood it should be sent, if they see fit to extend their bounty to you. Or if sent to me at the Church Advocate Office, Harrisburg, Pa., I will send it on to you. Try this plan and report.

J. FLAKE.

May 16, 1850.

The Pentecost or Whitsuntide.

BY J. FLAKE.

I came to Harrisburg the night before the Sabbath of the Pentecost, May 19th, and was glad of the privilege of preaching the Gospel of Christ on the day which is to me so full of holy and delightful thoughts and remembrances. I went to the Bethel at the hour of ten, and after solemn hymns and prayers, spake unto the congregation from the four first verses of the second chapter of the Acts of the Apostles.

"And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place. And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance."

SKETCH OF THE DISCOURSE.

Verse 1. The day—the Pentecost was a Jewish festival kept to commemorate the giving of the law on Mount Sinai.

On this occasion the pious Israelites came from all parts of the land up to Jerusalem, and from foreign countries where they had been sojourning.

It was observed every year, and fifty days after the Passover was the time—which brought it to the beginning of their wheat harvest. Leviticus 23: 15.

They then brought an offering of the first fruits of the season—a sheaf of wheat—and waved it before the Lord.—It is the first day of the week—the Lord's Day, that is here spoken of.

"This is the day the first ripe sheaf,
Before the Lord was waved;
And Christ, first fruits of them that slept,
Was from the dead received."

Our blessed Lord suffered at the Passover feast, as the Lamb of God to take away the sins of men. And now fifty days afterward, at another great festival, the Pentecost, he was glorified. At the Passover he was rejected by the multitude, and wrongfully numbered with the transgressors, and died in pain and sorrow, once for all—and one for all—the just for the unjust.

But now he was alive again, and had ascended up on high. He was not now personally on earth, but again lived in heaven, being a Prince and a Saviour, to give repentance, and remission of sins, to those for whom he died.

It was a glorious day when the law was given on Mount Sinai, at the first Pentecost; but now when the Gospel of salvation comes from heaven to men, it is more glorious still, though in a different way.

"This is the day the Spirit came,
With us on earth to stay;
A Comforter to fill our hearts
With joys that last for ages."

The Church was then a little flock. The number of the names at Jerusalem was one hundred and twenty.

They were all in one place—probably a large room—near the temple. God is with us in our closets, and also in the congregation. Let us therefore meet with the people of God in all their solemn assemblies, and then when He comes among them, we shall share in the blessing which is poured out.

They were all of one accord. Once they were anxious who should be the greatest, but since Jesus died their vain ambition was also dead, and now they thought and felt alike, as children of one family. They had one faith—one hope—They loved Christ, and loved one another.

Verse 2. Suddenly there came from heaven—all our blessings come from heaven.—Even temporal things—food and raiment, God gives them all; and especially gives the Holy Spirit to them that ask him.

Blessings come suddenly. We may be long waiting, and praying, and then suddenly we find our prayer answered. All at once the angels appeared to the shepherds at Bethlehem—unexpectedly at Jerusalem did Jesus appear in the midst among his disciples, after his resurrection,—and now, suddenly there came from heaven a sound as of a rushing mighty wind. It was the Holy Spirit—the promised Comforter—coming as the wind comes; so the Spirit breathes where it pleaseth.

Verse 3. There appeared cloven tongues as of fire.—Tongues, to fit them to speak—speech is the gift of God.—Cloven, to speak in various languages.—Fire, burning zeal, and holy love. The Holy Spirit not only gives light in the mind, but purifies and warms the heart. Let us obtain all the knowledge and light we can, to make us wise; and all the warmth and love we can, to make us holy and happy.

These tongues of fire sat on each of the disciples. The gifts of grace are bestowed on all believers—not all alike—not all in the same measure—but each partakes of the heavenly blessing.

Verse 4. They were all filled with the Holy Spirit.—There was felt by each the inward power and influence of the Divine Spirit in its enlightening, quickening and comforting their souls.

And from this inward feeling they began to speak, in different languages, the wonderful works of God. The tongue of man should bless his God, and speak forth his praise. But before we either can do it, or wish to do it, the Holy Spirit must breathe into our hearts the power to will, and do. And then when the quickening power is felt, we say with the Prophet, "O Lord I will praise thee; though thou wast angry with me, thine anger is turned away, and thou comfortest me. Isaiah 12.

The Holy Spirit never has departed, and never will leave the true people of God. We may experience the same heavenly gift in these last days as was enjoyed by the first believers at Jerusalem—perhaps not to such great extent, and full measure, as to outward signs and miracles, but our hearts may be as full of love and wisdom. We may be as happy as they were, and live as near to God, and die in peace as they did. Let us, then, like them, humbly wait, and watch, and pray.

"Come Holy Spirit, our hearts inspire,
Let us thine influence prove;
Source of the old prophetic fire,
Fountain of life and love.

"God through himself we then shall know,
If thou within us shine;
And sound with all thy saints below,
The depths of love divine."

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

SKETCH
OF A
DEBATE ON BAPTISM,
BETWEEN
J. KELLER AND A. OWEN;

Held at Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 19th, 20th, 21st, 22d and 23d of February, 1850.

REPORTED BY W. E. DRAKE,
For the Church Advocate and Religious Telescope.

SECOND DAY'S DEBATE.
WEDNESDAY, Feb. 20.

J. KELLER'S SIXTH SPEECH.

BROTHER KELLER.—The gentleman says I came here to prove that immersion is the only proper action of Christian Baptism. I acknowledge it, and therefore it is not necessary that he should say so in every speech he makes. Yes! and I have successfully done it. He brings up Robinson as proof in favor of sprinkling. Robinson! why, I say again, that I would as soon bring brother Erb. I would as soon believe brother Owen as him. Let my opponent go back to past ages, and bring forward authorities in favor of his position. No, he cannot, he will not do it successfully. He brings up Parkhurst, and he says baptizo means to "dip" and to "wash." Now, I do not object to what he says. Brother Owen says, I cannot prove it means to immerse, as the primary meaning of the word baptize. I think I have abundantly proved it to the satisfaction of every man who has investigated the subject. He says it devolves upon me to prove that the word baptize has not changed. He declared that perhaps it changed in the days of the Saviour. The proof of this devolves upon him, not me. Has he not the affirmative of that position? He has.

He referred to the burial of Christ, and he intimated that I did not bring up one proof from Divine authority, to show that he was immersed, or buried, or dipped, or plunged. I not only did that, but I brought up one of the greatest ministers, too, of the Gentiles that ever spoke to a congregation on the subject—one of the most eloquent, pious, best men that the Church ever produced, as having been immersed, and he informs us he, with his Roman brethren, were buried with Christ in baptism. And, does he mean to call it "sprinkling?" How can "sprinkling" an object, be to bury it. Let a child of five years old witness the two acts, and it would not call them one and the same.—But, it seems the gentleman has had access to some German authors, and he rests upon them.

I am very ignorant, and if I had not this little boy (Rev. Mr. Harn) with me, I could not do anything at all. So insinuates my opponent. He says that I have intimated that all who were and are not baptized are out of the Church. I am of the impression that my opponent is a stronger Baptist than I am. Did any man hear me say that a Baptist was introduced into the Church by baptism? No! this is his own position—this is the way he gets his babies in. But I said by a new birth or regeneration they were brought into the Church, and not by baptism. I say a man must get into the Church before having baptism.

Now, he refers to the Reformers again, and says that I cannot tell where they were baptized. Where, I would ask, was brother Owen immersed? Can we ascertain exactly where Luther and Calvin were immersed? Can this congregation—can common sense teach you to point out the place? All that is necessary for me to do is to show that they were immersed. And, if my opponent does not believe it, I am afraid he would not believe it if his own eyes saw it. The rise of sprinkling was in the following manner:

Dr. Wall, who bestowed a great deal of labor on his inquiries into the History of Infant Baptism, could find no instance of sprinkling in the room of baptism, previous to the case of Novatian, about the middle of the third century; which case is thus recorded by Eusebius, one of the early Church Historians: "He fell into a grievous distemper, and it being supposed that he would die immediately, he received baptism, being besprinkled with water on the bed whereon he lay, if that can be termed baptism." Pœd. Ex. vol. i. p. 293. This was not considered perfect baptism. The persons thus sprinkled were called Clinici; and by the voice of the people, as well as by a canon of the Council at Neocœsarea, the Clinici were not permitted to enter holy orders. Public sanction was not given to pouring or sprinkling, even in cases of dangerous sickness, until A. D. 753. The progress of this innovation is thus briefly recorded in the Edinburg Encyclopedia: "The first law for sprinkling was obtained in the following manner: Pope Stephen II., being driven from Rome by Astolphus, king of the Lombards, in 1753, fled to Pepin, who a short time before had usurped the crown of France. Whilst he remained there, the monks of Cressy in Brittany consulted him, whether in case of necessity, baptism performed by pouring water on the head of the infant would be lawful. Stephen replied that it would.—But though the truth of this fact should be allowed, which, however, some Catholics deny, yet pouring and sprinkling was admitted only in cases of necessity. It was not till the year 1118, that the legislature, in a council held at Ravenna, declared immersion or sprinkling to be indifferent. In this country, (Scotland,) however, sprinkling was never practised in ordinary cases until after the Reformation, (about the middle of the 16th century,) and in England, even in the reign of Edward VI., (A. D. 1547–1553,) trine immersion was commonly observed. But during the persecution of Mary, many persons, most of whom were Scotchmen, fled from England to Geneva, and there greedily imbibed the opinions of that church. In 1556, a book was published at that place, containing "The form of prayers and ministration of sacraments, approved by the famous and godly-learned man John Calvin;" in which the administrator is enjoined to take water in his hand and lay it on the child's forehead. These Scotish exiles, who had renounced the authority of the Pope, implicitly acknowledged the authority of Calvin; and returning to their own country, with John Knox at their head, in 1559, established sprinkling in Scotland. From Scotland this practice made its way into England in the reign of Elizabeth, but was not authorized by the established church. Art. Baptism, Judd's Review, pp. 82, 83.

Now, the authors I referred to lived before this time. But were not the authors members of the Church of England? Now, can this congregation, with my opponent, discover that these authors, who lived before "sprinkling" was introduced, were immersed? Again, brother Owen has repeatedly said, that to dip, to plunge, or immerse is proper Scriptural baptism. This, I have proved from his own side of the house. It is said those word means to wash, to cleanse, to purify. These definitions are given as the effect of immersion; but not one of them says it means "Sprinkling," or "Pour," or any other act as its proper signification. Now, were I to bring forward Baptist authors, and I could a host infinitely more numerous than he has done—men of the greatest piety and learning—who, to a man, agree with me in the proposition here taken, why, I ask, have I not a right? But, I see no necessity, for, all that I want to know is, what is the testimony of the opposite witnesses? And that is, also, what the world and the Church wants to know; and we have come here to examine and cross-examine, during this discussion, with a view to elicit the truth. We have proved, I think, to the satisfaction of the audience, that Immersion is the primary meaning of the word baptism. Well, if this does not satisfy the gentleman, I know not what will. I produced several witnesses from Divine writ, to prove that the word baptizo could only bear the definition of immersion. Some of these my friend has not noticed at all, and others but very slightly, without affecting my argument in the least.

Again: he assumes to cavil a great deal about being buried with Christ in baptism. It is too plain. He says he was not covered with ground. Why, he will say that he was covered with rock. Why was he not buried? Paul declares that he was buried. Is not that plain? Did I not prove yesterday from Paul's own language, that Christ was buried? Certainly I did. I care not with what, and how he was buried. Then, was a man ever buried without being covered? It matters not whether the rock was of white sand-stone, or anything else. He says that he, Paul, and the Romans were buried with Christ in baptism. But how was Christ buried? Not in the ground, but in a rock.

Then, again, brother Owen himself cites authorities already quoted from his own party, to prove that immersion is the proper baptism. Now, I adduce all the Baptists, and Paul into the bargain, to prove that it is the only proper baptism taught in the Bible. Brother Owen has admitted again and again that immersion was baptism. You recollect that. Now, if immersion is baptism, says Paul, "There is one Lord, one faith, and one baptism." My opponent says I have come here to prove there is but one baptism. True, I have come here for this express purpose, and by invitation of the gentleman. I say that my position is established, according to his own doctrine, without a doubt. It is built upon a rock against which the Pedo-baptists cannot prevail. They cannot; they have tried it, and failed in their attempts. But, I now distinctly wish to be understood to tell brother Owen, that unless he proves another baptism was ever practised, or commanded by the Saviour, that I unhesitatingly declare there is no other baptism but immersion. Proof would be evidence in any court, human or Divine, except in a court of Sprinklers, who assume everything and prove nothing. If there be any proof, I call for it now. He must prove that sprinkling and pouring is baptism. This, it is his duty to do, and how he can avoid it, and how this congregation would like it, I cannot tell. But I am afraid they will be disappointed. He has declared he would do it, and I want him to do so, if he can. I have proved that Paul says there is but one baptism; now I want him and Paul to contend.

A. OWEN'S SIXTH REPLY.

Brother Owen.—The first item that I have to notice in reply to the gentleman's off-set against me is, to the proposal I made, or rather demanded—that he should show us that one of those authors he quoted, was immersed. He, in reply, referred to the history or origin of Infant Baptism; and, if I understood his argument, he made the origin of sprinkling in later times than when those men wrote.—Consequently, if sprinkling was instituted after they wrote, they must have been immersed. Now, if he can prove that, I can prove exactly the contrary, which I will now do. I think he made the origin about the twelfth century. I need not be definite, for I am far from that point. I will give you the authority of Wall's history of Infant Baptism—(Cyprian) being in the council with about sixty Bishops.—When the following came up before them, they decided upon it. There was a letter written to him by a certain individual on the subject. His reply is the following:

"You inquire, also, dear son, what I think of such as obtain the grace in time of their sickness and infirmity; whether they are to be accounted lawful Christians, because they are not washed all over with the water of salvation, but have only some of it poured on them. In which matter, I would use so much modesty and humility, as not to prescribe so positively, but that every one should have the freedom of his own thoughts, and do as he thinks best. I do, according to the best of my mean capacity, judge this; that the divine favors are not maimed or weakened, so as that anything less than the whole of them is conveyed, where the benefit of them is received with a full and complete faith, both of the giver and receiver."—Wall's His. of Inf. Bap., v. ii., pp. 357, 358.

"And no man need, therefore, think otherwise, because these sick people, when they receive the grace of our Lord, have nothing but an affusion or sprinkling; when as the Holy Scriptures, by the Prophet Ezekiel, say, Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean," &c. He quotes to the same purpose, Numbers xix. 13, and viii. 7, &c.—And having applied them, says, a little after, "If any one think they obtain no benefit, as having only an affusion of the water of salvation, do not let him mistake so far, as that the parties, if they recover of their sickness, should be baptized again."—Ibid.; pp. 386, 387.

Here, you perceive that sprinkling is found in the thirteenth century; but, in the third century it was acknowledged by Cyprian and the sixty Bishops to be valid baptism, and that persons need not be re-baptized, they being baptized by sprinkling. Now, we are at a direct issue. He makes one of the Popes in favor of sprinkling; but, I go back and show that sprinkling and pouring existed in the Christian Church in the early ages. It may be that the twelfth century was before the third, therefore we are both right.

He holds on to the term "buried," and he says that the meaning of the word baptizo is, to dip into anything. Therefore he says, if the Saviour was not buried in the ground, he was buried in a rock. Now, if the term, as he says, means to dip, how would you bury him in a tomb not in the ground? It is a perfect absurdity.

I believe in baptism, but I do not think the mode essential to the ordinance. He does.—I do not believe it was designed that the mode was essential to the ordinance, or it would have been more clearly taught. Hence I believe in pouring or sprinkling. If I came here to prove that sprinkling was to dip, but not the only mode, and if immersion were not the only mode, pouring comes in. I shall offer some arguments in favor of sprinkling, and I am sure it will be as good as the argument of my opponent in favor of immersion. He says there is but one baptism, and wants me to prove another. Now, I repeat what I have before stated, that I do not believe the mode essential to the ordinance. When he proves the affirmative, it will be time enough for me to reply to him. There are a few items in one of the speeches of the gentleman to which I have not yet replied. He alluded to Charles Anthon, and the correspondence with that gentleman. He read it, and I will do so also, for a good thing may be read twice. Here is Mr. Anthon's answer:

"Columbia College, March 27, 1843.

Dr. Parmly:

My Dear Sir—There is no authority, whatever, for the singular remark, made by the Rev. Dr. Spring, relative to the force of baptizo. The primary meaning of the word is to dip, or immerse; and its secondary meaning, if ever it had any, all refer, in some way or other, to the same leading idea. Sprinkling, &c., are entirely out of the question. I have delayed answering your letter in the hope that you would call and favor me with a visit, when we might talk the matter over at our leisure. I presume, however, that what I have here written will answer your purpose.

Yours, truly,
CHARLES ANTHON.

Now, here are good doctrines. The gentleman makes Parmly something, and Spring nothing.

Keller.—Anthon, you mean.

Owen.—Dr. Spring is on my side. Now, I contend that he is as eminent a man. Here we are just as we were before. Although my opponent brings up Professor Anthon, I will introduce Dr. Spring, and then the audience can decide between them, unless brother Keller can show that Dr. Parmly is a greater man than the other. He talks about Stokius's figurative meaning. I think I will answer that. He quoted some passages of Scripture to see what sense it would make. Now, I think we might quote some that would look equally ridiculous. For instance, we say the term means to dip. Well, we would say John the dipper,—that he dipped in the wilderness, and preached the doctrine of repentance.—Again, plunge. John the plunger preached the plunging of repentance. Again, sink, we find that it is used four times out of five. John the sinker, preaching sinking and repentance. Now, it will be seen that these passages of my opponent make nonsense. What sense would it make to say that John was a sinker? I will refer to the passage to which my opponent called my attention. It is in 2d Kings: it is the case of the leper and the Prophet Elisha. He quoted that passage yesterday, and I believe he used it in one of his first speeches, to show that baptism (baptizo) meant exclusively to immerse, to dip, or to sink.—We read in the 10th verse, "And Elisha sent a messenger unto him, saying, Go and wash in Jordan seven times," &c. Verse 14th, "Then went he down, and dipped himself seven times," &c. Now, the question is, was he really dipped, as the translators here have it? My friend says he was. I will read the 10th verse again. "And Elisha sent a messenger unto him, saying, Go and wash in Jordan seven times," &c. How must the man have understood that? Certainly he could not understand that he was to dip himself, for it is a generic term. And the man at length went down and complied with this direction, and washed himself. Well, he may say he dipped himself, or he may say he did not. Who is to prove it? Suppose he went down and washed himself without dipping, which is possible, would he not have complied with the directions given him? Did the Prophet tell him to go down and dip himself? He told him to go down and wash, using the Greek term luo. He went down, according to the translators, and dipped himself. And have I not shown from the lexicons that it means wash as well as dip? He might have washed himself seven times. But, if my opponent wishes to take this translation, of course we will be ready to meet him.

The Island of Cuba.

Steamship Falcon, April 21, 1850.

My Dear ——:—

To-day finds me upon the broad bosom of the Mexican Gulf. The thermometer nearly 100, and not breeze enough to fill our sails. Think of this, ye people, who still linger around the fireside to keep comfortable. The change has been too sudden, and thus far has not proven so favorable to my health. Yet I stand it well, taking all into consideration.

We left Havana Saturday, 8 A. M. Our anchors were not tripped two hours when we were out sight of land, and perhaps bid farewell to Cuba, the green spot of the Gulf, forever. Who that ever visits Cuba could forget it! Its leading attractions are derived from its location. All around it rolls the surge of a mighty Ocean, while swinging depths of shade wave over the glad rills that leap down the sides of the mountains and make music at their base.

The city of Havana lies partly upon the Gulf, yet most of it is sheltered by one of the finest harbors in the world. Nature has done much for this place, but man, vile man, has been its curse. With an American population, manners and customs, I think there is no spot upon the habitable globe I would prefer to make my home. Here is eternal summer. Here the tropical fruits grow in greatest profusion and perfection. The Cocoa, Pine Apple, Banana, Orange, Pomegranite, &c., are now in the height of perfection. These have been my chief sustenance. Meats are good for nothing here, of any kind, at least to my taste. My sojourn upon the Island was rendered very pleasant by the kindness of Mr. ——, a very wealthy planter and sugar manufacturer. He did all in his power to show me the various places of interest in and about the city, and kept the Volante constantly going.—The Volante is the most curious carriage I ever saw, and is very easy for inhuman man, but to the poor horse or donkey, death. I will tell you all about these things when we meet, which I pray may be soon.

The buildings of Havana, with but few exceptions, are very mean in appearance. Even the Governor's palace, a high two story, covering a square, with its iron-grated windows, has every appearance of a prison, and would prove so to me, were I obligated to live there, amid all its luxury. How true is the saying, (as regards this place,) that God made the country, man the town. Some of the elevations are crowned with public edifices, but no princely palace, gorgeous dome, or glittering spire, charms or attracts the eye. The architecture of man here is so inferior to that of nature, it ought to make an apology whenever it shows itself. Some of it reminds me of what I have read concerning the Arabs,—and as much in contrast is the Arab that pitches his tent, the dirty cone of which is thrown up beneath the magnificent umbrage of the Palm. You know it is said the genius of a people is in harmony with the scenery in the midst of which they are reared, but here is the scenery that might almost throw sunbeams over the dreams of the dead, and architecture sombre enough even to put a Philadelphia Quaker to sleep.

Such is the appearance of Havana, from our ship. Yet I had hope, from an actual survey, to find matters more to my taste; but, alas! cities, too much like fashionable women, are very apt to betray their charms at the first blush, as further acquaintance gave me the more dislike. The great Moro Castle is rather formidable in its appearance, and from its situation and strength, is no doubt one of the most powerful in the world.

But, alas! for the Island, cursed as it is, with a standing army of 20,000 men. One thing, however, is quite certain, that bad laws with martial force, could never and will not always keep in subjection the consciences of men. The hand-writing is upon the wall.—Cuba must either become a sovereign State, or annexation is sure to follow. One or the other is inevitable.

The morning I left we made an early visit to the churches, the Cathedral and San Dominico. In one part of the Cathedral is to be seen the tomb of Columbus. Here my attention was drawn for some length of time; and how could imaginative genius help pausing in solemn silence, while the mind run back a few centuries! What a field for reflection was here! But time and place will not allow, and I must let this pass, without even daring to make a broken remark.

Our drive on the Pasao I can never forget. I have read men's highly wrought imagination touching scenery, but here it was real, and far exceeded all I ever read of. On a road as hard and smooth as marble was seen all the wealth of the city. The Signorettas (Spanish girls) dressed in the most costly attire, while their Volantes and horses were literally covered with silver and gold. On either side of the drive, the rose and various kinds of flowers, with occasional Cocoa-nut, Palm, and other trees, yielded a perfume far preferable to the most fastidious lady's toilet. I must drop this, as it is out of the question to give it in writing.

Woman, God's best gift to man, is not appreciated here as she is in the United States, by no means, and never can be where God is not in the hearts of the nation. How woman should prize Christianity. This is her only safe-guard in any part of the world. Take away this glorious light from among us, and how soon would her condition in the U. S. be on a footing with other barbarous and half-civilized nations. But here I find myself digressing.

Slavery, in its worst form, appears in Cuba. If Thomas Jefferson had been here, he might well have said, I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just, and that his justice will not sleep forever. Many of the slaves are but poorly fed and clad, and some as naked as at birth. This all looks strange to the uninitiated, and is revolting to decency.

What appears strange to me, is to see persons here hold slaves whiter far than themselves. Nor would anybody go into hysterics should a man marry a woman whose skin was a shade whiter than his own. It is for us Americans to preach up humanity, freedom and equality, and then turn up our noses if an African takes a seat at the same table on board a steamboat. Even in our churches he is obliged to look out some obscure nook, and drudge gloomily towards heaven, as if he had no business on the narrow way. The misery is, that they who preach, equality the loudest, are generally the last to practice it. They are generally for levelling downwards; but give me the man that tries to level upwards. Give me the man whose smiles are like the rays of the sun,—if they strike the loftiest objects first, it is only that they may glance at the lowest. But what has all this to do with the matter? I will not discuss slavery.

I was speaking of religion being the great conservative. I bless God that my footsteps were ever led to the rock of safety, and that a new song was put in my mouth. You, my friend, can imagine with what delight one passes through distant and strange scenes, when one feels that he is upheld by power Divine. Yours affectionately,

JOHN ———.

A Brief Analysis of 1st Corinthians.

I. The Epistle opens by announcing the names of its author and his accomplice, and their mutual salutation or greeting of the Church of God at Corinth. The writer expresses his fervent gratitude to God for the conversion and many blessings enjoyed by that people, and exhorting them to believe that God would also confirm them unto the end, in order that they might be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ. Chapter 1: 1 to 9.

II. He next proceeds to treat of the blind, untempered, inconsiderate zeal of several factions of the Church; under the influence of which they had divided themselves into sects or parties, with human names or titles to designate each by. This subject begins with the 10th verse and continues on to the close of the 4th chapter. Many incidental subjects are thrown in, and various arguments introduced, to exhibit the sin and folly of such a course, and to heal, if possible, the breaches.

III. The fifth chapter takes notice of the horrid sin of incest tolerated among them; pronouncing it more scandalous than anything of the kind tolerated among the unconverted heathens. This I suppose was owing to a laxity of discipline among them, and not a disposition to excuse such crimes. Some very wholesome directions are given about what steps should be taken with such offenders, and at the same time classing the covetous, the extortioners, the idolaters, the railers and drunkards under the same head of notorious violators of the law of God, unworthy of the society of Christians.

IV. Chapter the sixth opens by noticing another evil among them—that of litigations before wicked tribunals by those professing the faith and love of Jesus, "Brother goeth to law with brother, and that before the unjust. Now therefore there is utterly a fault among you, because ye go to law one with another. Why do ye not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded?"

V. From the 9th verse the author digresses from his subject, and enumerates several classes of individuals who can never inherit the kingdom; but his mind is chiefly dwelling upon the fornicator, who abuses the members of Christ by joining them to a harlot. He appeals to the fact of their purchase by the precious blood of Christ, as an inducement to avoid such iniquity. This was a touching appeal.

VI. In the seventh chapter he alludes to a letter they had previously addressed him on the subject of matrimony: stating that under the very difficult circumstances that then surrounded Christians, it was good for a man not to touch a woman; and that the better plan would be for every one to remain as they were called of God. If wedded, profit by it—if not, seek not to be so. By this Paul did not intend to set aside the original law of marriage, which declared it not good for persons to live in celibacy, but to show that the probability was, that it was most expedient to remain unmarried in such or similar circumstances. This subject is followed up to the 10th verse, then left, and resumed in the 18th verse, and continued to the close of the chapter.

VII. At verse the 10th is introduced the propriety or impropriety of living with heathen, unconverted or unbelieving partners. He lays down the law first, telling them that the law demanded them to live together or remain unmarried. He next gives his own advice, and defends the right of persons who had been wedded in heathenism to continue to claim their partners even after conversion. For the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the believing wife, and the unbelieving wife by the Christian husband; or in other words, that they were legitimately holy to each other—that their marriage contract was a lawfully sanctified one, although entered into in a state of heathenism; and that Christianity did not annul that covenant, "Else," said the writer, "were your children unclean; but now are they holy." From this we learn that the children of the members of the Church stood exactly in the same relation to the Church that did the unbelieving partners of Christians.

VIII. The eighth chapter opens and closes with a very wholesome piece of advice to avoid the festivals given by their former associates in honor of their idol gods. He merely intended to impress their minds with the fact, that by being found within the influence of these festivals, they might be decoyed away or wound the tender conscience of others. A warning yet applicable to all Christians.—"Evil communications corrupt good manners." The same subject is resumed again in the tenth chapter, where the Apostle presents some awful instances of God's sore displeasure to sin, and particularly the sin of idolatry.

IX. The ninth contains a lengthy argument in defence of the rights of the ministry to a competent support from the Church. "Am I not an Apostle? am I not free; have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord? Have we not POWER to eat and drink? Have we not POWER to lead about a sister, a wife, as well as other Apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas? Or I only and Barnabas, have not we POWER to forbear working?" He proceeds to the proof of these propositions, and then concludes: "Even so hath the Lord ordained, that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel."

X. The next subject broached, is the external appearance and most expedient deportment of Christians when assembled together in the public congregation. After giving some orders thereabout, he appeals to their natural feelings in proof that it was proper for a man to have his head bare when praying or speaking, but it was indelicate for a lady to pray or speak before the public audience without a covering—God had given her her hair for that purpose.

XI. Another important point in these external regulations was, their proper deportment at the Lord's table. This chapter most clearly proves that both men and women were participants in the Supper of the Lord. The writer is addressing both sexes all the way through it, and says, "As often as YE (men and women) eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye (men and women) do show forth the Lord's death till he come." Leaving the subject of the abuse of the Lord's table, he reminds them of his contemplated visit, and that he would then set all things in proper order.

XII. The next subject in order is that of spiritual gifts. No Church had a greater variety of these than the Church at Corith, and none made a worse use of them. They were to be desired not for individual aggrandizement, but as the property of the whole Church, in order for the edification of the whole. Gifts were the property of the Church. If the gifts of one were inferior to those of another, this was no ground for despising the former. It was the same Spirit dispensing the whole.

XIII. The thirteenth chapter is a lucid argument on the important distinction between many natural and spiritual gifts, with zeal and natural benevolence, and true religion. Some men are naturally disposed to give or be benevolent, and yet have no religion. Indeed, some men will give all they have to feed the poor, and yet swear and get drunk. Others would die for a cause, and yet would not obey God. But true charity or Christian love regulates the whole of a man's life; yea, his motives of action also.

Many have extremely erroneous conceptions, however, of what true charity is. The charity of some Christians is a sickly tenderness or silly weakness. It will not allow them to correct error wherever they find it, and in justification of their course, will often plead the Saviour's language to the blind man, "According to your faith be it unto you."

Now, I scarcely conceive how any one can apply Scripture so falsely. Doubtless, Jesus had no reference to the kind, but amount of faith. The faith he knew to be good in kind, but was it in amount or strength sufficient to justify him in bestowing so great a blessing? Real charity, the man of God declares, "Rejoiceth in the truth; beareth all thing, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things." That is all things contained in the truth—that truth is every word of life. This shall abide eternally. More anon.

Fraternally, G. U. HARN.

Letters on the Wing.---No. 2.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:—

WHEN I last wrote to you I was at the Nanticoke Dam, on the North Branch of the noble Susquehanna, and after witnessing the wrecking of a number of rafts in passing the sluice, owing to the freshet produced by the melting of the snow by the rain, I left for Wilkesbarre, in the same (Luzerne) county, where I stopped several days. This town is the county seat, is large and lies in a fertile section of country, not far from the coal mines, and is a place of considerable business. I stopped at a tavern, and it being Court week, became acquainted with a number of Lawyers, Judges and Doctors, who, counting up the number of lawyers in the place, one evening, found them to be at least fifty in the town, besides about fifteen others in the country! I thought if lawyers are a blessing it was a blessed place; but if a curse it is an accursed place. You would be disgusted to hear the great bombastic speeches some of them would make in cases where but a few dollars were in dispute between the silly litigants.

I preached in the south part of the town one evening, in the Academy, to an attentive audience; and next day accidentally heard that one of our brethren lived there. I hunted him up and met with a warm reception by brother John Jacobs, formerly of Shippensburg. He embraced religion there about the time I did, and we were both members of the Church under Elder Mackey, in 1839. He and his kind wife joined the Baptist Church here some years ago, in the absence of any of our brethren to fall in with. They were very glad to see me, and desired me to stay over Sabbath and preach in their meeting-house, as they have no regular minister at present; but I had to leave. They would gladly receive and entertain any of our preachers who would visit them. They seem warm in their love for the brethren. I think you had best send them the Advocate; they will probably take it. I would suggest to brother Harn to get on board of a canal boat at Harrisburg and visit all the towns along the canal to preach. If he takes such bills along as I carry, he can get audiences at a few hours' notice, and houses to preach in at every place. In the summer he could preach out doors to vast multitudes; and I think the people would bear his expenses. I wish he was along with me. The canal boatmen would charge him nothing, and if he would have a lot of tracts to distribute, his tour would cost him nothing. Will the Harrisburg Church let him go a month? He will find a hearty welcome at the houses of the friends I pointed out in my last, and shall in this.

Leaving Wilkesbarre, I came up the beautiful Wyoming Valley, of Indian massacre memory, and stopped at a pretty little village, North Troy; near to which stands the monument to the memory of the settlers massacred in the bloody days of the early settlement.—Here I stopped at a tavern, the keeper of which is from Baltimore; and his conscience lashed him so severely, that he began to apologize to me for being in the business of rum-selling, and promised to get out of it as soon as possible. I advised him to do so, assuring him he could not save his own soul while engaged in destroying his fellow-men with his rum. I was pressed to stay and preach over Sabbath, but had to leave. They wanted to hear what our doctrines are. There is a good schoolhouse here at brother Harn's pleasure.

From Troy I came to Pittston, a new village eight miles above Wilkesbarre. This is a very brisk place, where a company are laying a new Railroad, to carry the coal of this region to the Delaware and Hudson Canal, and thence on boats to New York. The coal mines are in and all about the village, and for many miles up the valley. To this place all eyes about here appear to be directed for business. Many miners are leaving Pottsville and coming hither. I stopped at a miserable rummery, till I fell in with a Methodist brother, (name forgotten,) who keeps the Coal company's store, who kindly invited me to stop with him, and then introduced me to his brethren in a meeting, and I was invited to preach for them, which I did twice. On going to meeting on the last evening, I met with a young man from up country, by accident, who is a member of the M. E. Church, and was on his way to school to finish his education; and I prevailed upon him to stop with me and exhort after my discourse, which he did. He is open to conviction for the reception of the truth. I promised to send him some papers; so you will please to send him a few copies of the Advocate. This village lies near the head of the canal; and there are School-houses in it at Harn's command.

Carbondale was my next point to arrive at; and on my way hither I passed a number of villages, among them Harrison Iron Works, a large village in Lackawanna Valley—which is one vast coal field from Pittston to Carbondale—about twenty-five miles,—near to which is another named Hyde Park, and both will soon be one; and two miles off another, Razorville. The distance is about 25 miles. Carbondale lies in a coal region, in the upper end of Luzerne county; but the coal mines are, I am told, pretty well worked out. Under one hill they say there are about thirty-five miles of Railroad. On this account the new Railroad mentioned above has been projected to reach a new coal region—same company partly concerned in both works. Want of room prevents me from noticing many things in this and other towns.

I left Carbondale for Honesdale, the county seat of Wayne county. There is a Railroad of about 16 miles between those two places, with six inclined planes, upon which the coal is brought from the former place to the latter, which is located at the head of the Delaware and Hudson Canal, where it is shipped and sent off to New York. Of all the different rides I ever had, the one over this road was the most novel, interesting, dangerous and pleasant—the danger seemed to heighten the pleasure. At four or five of the planes, some of which are about half a mile long, four loaded cars always met four empty ones; and where the loaded cars had to ascend, they were drawn up by a steam engine stationed on the hill, while the empty run down on the side track, drawing the rope to the foot for another loaded train. Where the loaded descended the plane, their weight drew up the empty cars. At about midway, some thirty cars are attached to each other, and have down grade eight miles to Honesdale. This road runs over many deep ravines and streams, and at some places it passes for many hundred feet over wooden trussels, from one to fifty feet high, with no flooring. Upon these awful heights a break down could not help producing inevitable death; and as you pass off from each, your heart throbs with joy at another happy deliverance. There is another track over these last eight miles, with several water powers at planes, to draw up the empty trains, returning from Honesdale, to run them back to the last motive power, by which they are drawn up, and then meeting the loaded cars, go up and down four at a time, as above stated. No passengers are carried on this road, but hundreds of persons mount the coal cars and ride over this dangerous track continually, at the risk of life and limb—gratis. At the head of the long plane, a village called Waymart, there are about 200,000 tons of coal in a vast heap, deposited there during winter, while the the canal is closed. In addition to that, there are about 400,000 tons or more at the canal head, ready to be shipped. At the depot here they have two engines to work all the screens and draw up the cars to the top of the back track, the hill being at an angle of about 30 degrees. The loaded cars are drawn up another inclined plane and run out on temporary tracks laid on the immense heaps of coal, at least 50 feet high, where the coal is emptied out; and it slides down, sometimes into the canal, where there is at present a heap of fifty tons, which slid in the other day. When the boats begin to run, which will the 6th of this month, (May,) then all the coal is shipped from the cars, as it reaches the canal.

Honesdale is a beautiful town, of all white houses, with green shutters; after the Eastern States' style. In one street, at short distances apart, are four pretty churches in a line, and the whole place is a tasty one, and is quite a business town. On arriving here I called on the proprietor of a public room called "Berean Hall," for privilege to preach, and having been previously informed that he was a Universalist, I was very agreeably disappointed by finding him a minister of the Christian connexion instead of a Universalist. His name is Moses Cummings, a "gold-smith." He pressed me till I consented to leave my boarding-house and take up lodgings with him; and I had the great pleasure of being very hospitably entertained by him and his excellent lady for two weeks, during which time his hall was at my command. I preached a number of times in it. I found in his possession a copy of Winebrenner's "View of the Church," with which he says he is very much pleased. We exchanged views on many points, and agreed on nearly all; and agreeing to exercise the spirit of toleration on the few points upon which our opinions were not alike, we could worship together and love as brethren. He spoke much of his desire to see a union effected between his and our bodies, and urged that matter once at one of the Conferences of his brethren. He would be glad to see a committee appointed to visit on both sides. I expect to meet one of their Conferences on my way round through New York and New Jersey. If so, I shall participate in their Christian friendship. Brother Cummings will be there to introduce me. I shall then report the result of my acquaintance with them to you for publication. He has also now one of Winebrenner's works on regeneration, and will probably review it, being pleased with it.

Brother Cummings is a remarkable man, a keen, intelligent and fearless advocate of Bible truth. Brother Harn would do well to come here: he would be delighted with brother C. When he came to this place years ago, he devised a plan to build his Berean Hall, for the use of all denominations; and by having two stores on the first floor, he can use the upper floor as a hall, with but little expense, and gives it freely for preaching. Such is the plan I have long thought and spoken of for building houses of worship in towns where we have no meeting-houses; and if our wealthier members would do as brother C. has done, we could have numbers of churches in large towns where we are yet unknown. The rents of such buildings for the stores alone, will pay the interest on the whole investment. The motto over his pulpit is, "In faith unity; in non-essentials liberty; in all things charity." He goes upon the plan of the noble Bereans, who searched the Scriptures daily to see if the things taught were true. I am finishing this letter at his house to-day, (May 2d,) and will leave either this evening or to-morrow morning; and the thought of doing so is quite repugnant to my feelings, so strong an attachment have I formed to him. His liberal soul has won from me an enduring esteem. We love one another, although we differ a little. Why may not that same friendship, fellowship and Christian love be brought about between both our bodies collectively! More anon.

J. F. WEISHAMPEL.

Letter from Brother William Bond.

Muscatine, Iowa, May 9, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I take my pen in hand to inform you that I am well at present, and thank God that I am alive in the land. We have arrived safe at Muscatine, at which place we expect to stay for some time. As I informed you in my other letter, all of our family escaped from the disaster with our lives, though two of my father-in-law's children were burned pretty badly; but they are, thank God, doing pretty well. Brother, how transitory are the things of this world! We set out from our little homes, as we supposed, well provided for the West, and so we were; but, as it were, in a moment, all our hopes were blasted. But with Job, we are willing to say, "The Lord gave, and the Lord has taken away, and blessed be the name of the Lord." Dear brother, it was an awful sight: I can hardly describe it. But I want to give you some idea of the calamity.

There were about eighty-three souls on board the boat when we started from Harrisburg, and continued together so to Pittsburg. We there engaged the steamer "Belle of the West," and in a few days reached Cincinnati. Not having sufficient lodging, we lay there a few days. April 22d we started for St. Louis; but on the night of the 22d, about 12 o'clock, the alarm of fire was given. We had taken a cabin passage with some of the rest. Others of our company engaged a deck passage. All was peace and harmony with us until about 12 o'clock that night. It is supposed, by what we can learn, that the boat was on fire about an hour before the passengers were aware of it. The state-room, which we slept in, was burst open by some one as they passed, but how I cannot tell, for we were all asleep. My wife told me that some one had burst the door open. I sprang to my feet, and opened the door to see what was the matter. On opening the door I found that the cabin was full of smoke. I told my wife to dress herself as soon as she could, and try to get out, for I saw that the boat was on fire, and little time to spare. We put on some of our clothes as soon as we could, and made our escape. I thought of taking a trunk of mine with me that was in the room, but I was afraid I should not not be able to get out with it, for the cabin was so full of smoke that I was not able to see where I was going. I thought perhaps I might recover some of my goods yet, but in the space of five minutes the boat was all on fire. Such a scene I had never witnessed before! It appears the boat caught in the hold behind. The front hatch was opened, to see if the fire could be seen, but it could not, for it was in the hind part of the boat. On opening the hind hatch the fire got air, and burst out, which soon spread in flames all through the boat. Some of the children had lost their parents, and brothers their sisters. Some of the passengers had to escape without any of their clothing. The boat was run ashore in the sand-bank with the bow, but the stern of the boat was some distance from the shore; for it appears the boat was run in square, and all the deck passengers that could not make their escape before the hind hatch was opened, had but a very poor chance. Therefore they had to make their escape from the boat by jumping into the water. Three girls and one little boy were saved with the small boat.

Out of 83 of our company, we lost 14 souls, and two young men, Yordy and Bomgardner, very severely burned. We heard that Bomgardner has since gone to the eternal world.

But, brother, on the other hand, we still feel encouraged to travel on in the narrow way that leads to glory. But I must close for the present. Please correct my errors, and excuse my writing, for my mind is so much scattered that I am hard able to write.

Yours, truly, WILLIAM BOND.

N. B.—We have been out to North Bend, and found the brethren all pretty well, except brother Snavely, who was very ill, and has been for some time, but is getting better.—The brethren have been very kind to us in our distress. May the good Lord reward them for it. Pray for us. W. B.

Notice.—Our Post Office address is Muscatine, Iowa. A. FUNK.

Letter from Brother Jesse Snyder.

Mechanicsburg, Ohio, April 7, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

It is with pleasure I take up my pen for the first time to drop a few lines for the consideration of the readers of the Church Advocate, which, if you think proper, you are at liberty to insert.

Enclosed you will find one dollar for the next volume of the Church Advocate, for which I have been a subscriber for the last two years; and I am glad to say that I have obtained great benefit thereby. It is a welcome visiter to us; and I would cheerfully recommend it to every father and mother who desire to see their children walk in the path of virtue. In it we find many wholesome instructions. In its columns we learn the progress of the different branches of the Church, and the good dealings of God toward the children of men. The cause it advocates is a glorious one, and therefore it should receive the patronage of all who love to see the cause of religion prosper.

The cause of God is prospering in this part of His moral vineyard. I attended several protracted meetings last month, and saw some precious souls (I trust) happily converted to God. I for one feel to praise God for what he has done for me. Whereas he was angry with me, now his anger is turned away, and I, through his grace, am enabled to rejoice in hope of a blessed immortality beyond the grave. No more at present.

Yours, in the bonds of Christian love,

JESSE SNYDER.

N. B.—My Post Office address is Windfield, Tuscarawas county, Ohio. J. S.

Letter from Brother J. J. Doman.

Grandview, Louisa Co., Iowa, April 20, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I take my pen in hand to drop a few lines to you and the readers of the Advocate, to let you know that we are all well at present.

If any of the brethren intend coming to Iowa, let them land at Port Louisa, and then they can look out for themselves. I think they can suit themselves in Louisa county as well as anywhere else. It is near market, and a fine country, and a healthy place.

But religion is in a low condition here. They take all into the church—good and bad. I saw but one person converted since I came to this country. We would like if some pious preacher would come here. I believe good might be done. I wrote to brother Snavely to come, or brother Lininger, but have received no answer as yet. California killed all the religion.

I enclose one dollar for the Church Advocate. It is a valuable paper to us since we came to this country. Excuse me for not sending it sooner. I forgot myself until the 1st of April number came to hand. Pray for us. No more at present.

Yours, &c., J. J. DOMAN.

Letter from Brother John Miller.

Rondout, Ulster Co., N. Y., May 13, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

I take my pen in hand to drop a few lines for the Advocate. I formerly lived at Auburn, Schuylkill county, Pa.; now I am at Rondout, York State. There is a set of rough people here, and I have but little enjoyment among them. I was at the Methodist meeting, which was pretty good, but rather cold. But, thanks be to God, that I can enjoy myself, if I keep myself close to Him. Brethren, pray for me, that God may strengthen me, and make me bold in his cause. My prayer is, that God may bless all his children, and awaken sinners, and bring them to see the awful state they are in. May God bless us all, and be with us to the end. Amen.

Yours truly,

JOHN MILLER, Potter.

OBITUARY OF Brother FREDERICK STONER.

Died, on the 23d of April, 1850, brother Frederick Stoner, of Cumberland county, Pa., aged 73 years, 1 month and 18 days.

Brother Stoner was a man of God. This he gave evident signs of through his life. He embraced religion when he was about 20 years of age, in Dauphin county, Pa., about 53 years ago, and from that time to the day of his death, his house was always open for the people of God. His house was a home for the preachers. He delighted in the worship of God; and, with his soul filled with the Spirit of the Lord, would go to the sanctuary of God, and there pour out the feelings of his heart before the Lord; and as his days began to draw to a close, he would exhort his wife and children to meet him in heaven. A few hours before his departure, while his companion was weeping, he told her not to weep, for he would soon be free. His departure from this world was easy and triumphant. He left a wife and seven children to mourn his loss.

His funeral was attended by a large concourse of people, and the occasion was improved by Elder J. C. Seabrooks, from Heb. 10: 19–22. Truly, it was a solemn time. We met there to pay our last respects to one who, doubtless, is in heaven. H.

OBITUARY OF ANNA BRENEMAN.

Died, on Friday, February 22d, 1850, of Scarlet Fever, at the residence of her father, (Sporting-hill,) Anna, daughter of Joseph and Catharine Breneman, in the 11th year of her age.

The death of this interesting little girl has caused many sad hearts, and tears of affection have flowed from the eyes of many, whose love and esteem she had won for herself by her good qualities and gentle disposition, with which she was so bountifully gifted. Young as she was, she was endowed with the art of being a tender-hearted sister, an affectionate daughter, and a warm-hearted little friend.—Her bereaved parents are left with this consolation, that the All-wise, in his infinite wisdom, was pleased to remove her from this transitory world, and transplant her spirit to a more permanent and brighter sphere. Peace to her ashes. Funeral services by Elder Jos. Breneman, from Matt. 24: 44.

JOHN MARTIN.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Cheap Postage Bill.—The following is the substance of a bill introduced into the United States Senate by the Chairman of the Committee on Postal Affairs:

1. Two cents per each half ounce pre-paid, and five cents if not.

2. Drop letters one cent pre-paid, and two cents if not.

3. Postmasters appointed by the President are required to establish places of deposite for the reception of letters, and to employ carriers to convey them to the Post-office free of charge.

4. Letter carriers to receive only one cent for the delivery of letters.

5. The charge on advertised letters to be only one cent beside the regular postage.

6. Postage on newspapers and other printed matter the same as now charged, except that circulars and handbills are to be charged letter postage.

7. Bound books may be sent by mail to be charged one cent per ounce.

8. The franking privilege to be totally abolished, except to the persons who enjoy it as a token of respect and honor.

9. Postage on Congressional documents, speeches, &c., mailed during the session of Congress, to be paid out of the contingent funds of the respective Houses.

10. All communications to and from the Departments of the General Government, properly chargeable to the public service, to be marked as such, and the postage to be paid like the other contingent expenses of the Government.

The other parts of the bill relate to the duty of the Post-master General, in drawing funds according to existing laws, to defray the expenses of the Post-office Department.

The Crops of Montgomery County, Pa.—The Norristown Watchman says: "We do not recollect ever having witnessed such cheering prospects for an abundant harvest.—We have heard from almost every part of this county, and every intelligence echoes the same. We never had better prospects for a full harvest."

☞The Mormon emigrants have commenced the journey from Council Bluffs to their New Jerusalem. Some hundred and fifty teams, on the 3d ult., crossed the river, and they are continually crossing at every ferry. The total number who are expected to go there, this year, will reach six thousand souls! Next year, the number, it is expected, will be at least trebled

How Money is Made in California.—A gentleman, formerly of St. Louis, writing from California, gives the following account of how he made his first money in El Dorado. He left the western frontier of Missouri late in the season, and consequently met with bad luck in his progress across the plains, having worn out twenty head of stock, abandoned wagons, and sacrificed every thing of property but the clothes upon his person, before he reached the mining region. Of course, he was completely destitute when he got to Sacramento; but he says:—I pulled my watch from my pocket, and pawned it for a bag of beans, at one dollar a pound, and some flour, and a few other articles at California rates. These I intended for the support of my family; but the thought struck me that I might sell a portion by the pound, and replace at lower prices. With this view I spread my possessions upon an India-rubber cloth on the ground, and commenced operations. I need not give you a detailed statement of my business transactions, but it is sufficient to say, that in fifteen days I had made about one thousand dollars."

Sabbath School.—The Methodist Sabbath School Union turned out in large numbers on Tuesday, to celebrate their Anniversary. The number of schools out was 20, embracing over 7000 children. They assembled in the Washington Parade ground at 4 o'clock, P. M., and marched through the various avenues singing hymns appropriate to the occasion. Owing to an impending cloud and a prospect of a heavy shower, much of the pleasure of the occasion was marred. The good order, intelligence, neatness and good feeling, expressed in the bright eyes and rosy smiles of so many children, as they passed along amid groups of spectators, under the charge of their Teachers, was remarked upon by all. We observed a beautiful banner attached to the Norfolk-st. School, that was very appropriate. The first division of the long array entered from the south side, the next passed in at an angle, and all kept moving until the noble grounds presented a most beautiful and animated appearance. We have seldom witnessed a better display.—New York Sun.

Massachusetts New Marriage Law.—This law, approved March 28, dispenses with the fourteen days' notice and publication of intentions hitherto required in the State of Massachusetts, and enacts that such notice shall be given to the Register, Clerk or other officer appointed for that purpose. Parties married out of the State, must give notice of the fact to the officer, within seven days after their return.

☞The Columbia Spy says that, in consequence of the high price of cotton, the Conestoga Steam Mills will partially suspend operations as soon as the present stock is worked up.

American Temperance Union.—This society celebrated its anniversary in New York. Chancellor Walworth presided. The annual report says:

The State of Vermont has returned 20,000 votes against all license, and 12,000 in favor. Massachusetts grants no license, and has made more stringent her law against the traffic. Rhode Island gives license but in four towns. Maine holds to her prohibitory statute. A committee of the New York Legislature have recommended such a statute. In New Jersey and Maryland the Sunday liquor traffic is hedged up. The Wisconsin law holds the vender responsible for damage. Father Matthew's visit has been well received. Temperance organizations are numerous and efficient. The Order of the Sons of Temperance numbers about 300,000.—Temperance lecturers are diminished, but the labors of Messrs. Gough, Jewett, Kellogg, White, Hale and others, have been unremitted and successful.

Harrisburg, Lebanon and Reading Railroad.—A bill was passed by the Legislature, authorizing the construction of a Railroad between Harrisburg and Reading, by the way of Lebanon. This road, when completed, will be about 48 miles in length—and as it will, we are told, in many places and for considerable distances require but little grading, and will pass through one of the richest valleys in the State, it cannot be otherwise than that the investment will be a profitable one. The citizens of Lebanon, aware of the fact, are up and doing, and have already collected large amounts, in the way of subscriptions, to the stock of the new road. The citizens of the borough of Lebanon had a meeting a few evenings ago, and 167 shares were at once subscribed for. Committees were appointed to canvass each township in the county. The precise point for the western terminus of the road, has not, we believe, been yet fixed upon.—Ex. Paper,

Brown Bread.—This is made of Indian and rye meal. Take equal quantities of each, say two quarts. Sift and scald the Indian meal; when it is cool, add the rye meal, with a table-spoonful of salt, and a gill of fresh yeast. Half a tea-cup of molasses improves the bread. Mix it either with milk that has been boiled, or with water, sufficient to make a stiff dough. After kneading it, scatter dry flour over it, cover it with a course napkin, and set it by the fire to rise. When it is very light, seperate it into buttered irons or tin pans. Bake it in a hot oven three or four hours.

Wheat Crop of Ohio.—A friend, says the Cleveland Herald, recently from Columbus, states that the wheat crop in Ohio never looked better than now. It is free from all danger, save that of the rust, and we trust a good crop will reward the labors of buckeye husbandmen.

The Newspaper Folder.—Many will remember the announcement, a year or more since, that a machine for folding newspapers had been invented in Springfield. A variety of circumstances have conspired to prevent its being brought into use until now. Important improvements have been effected in the invention, since the original conception, and it has this week been attached to our steam power press. It does its work excellently well, far exceeding our anticipations of its practicability and utility, and fully equalling those of its sanguine friends. The machine is itself a very ingenious and beautiful piece of workmanship. It is compact, occupies but comparatively little room, and operated by the same power that carries the press, and therefore operating with equal speed.

The sheet passes from the press into the folder by bands, and after passing through the severel folds, it is then thrown out at the sides, compactly and neatly folded, all ready for the carrier or the mailman. No description of the operation would be intelligent to the reader, without a diagram.—Springfield Republican.

Locomotive for New York.—A powerful locomotive, built at Baldwin's foundry, weighing 28 tons, was yesterday put on board one of the barges belonging to the Albany Commercial Line, at the foot of Dock street. The locomotive is called the Susquehanna, being intended for the Hudson River Railroad. It will be landed at Manhattenville, about six miles above New York.—Phila. Ledger.

MISCELLANEOUS.

COUNSELS FOR THE YOUNG.

Never be cast down by trifles. If a spider breaks his thread twenty times, twenty times will he mend it again.—Make up your minds to do a thing, and you will do it. Fear not if troubles come upon you: keen up your spirits, though the day may be a dark one.

Troubles never stop forever,
The darkest day will pass away.

If the sun is going down, look up at the stars; if the earth is dark, keep your eyes on heaven! With God's presence and God's promises, a man or child may be cheerful.

Never despair when fog's in the air! [ning.
A sunshiny morning will come without war-

Mind what you run after! Never be content with a bubble that will burst, or a fire work that will end in smoke and darkness. Get that which is worth keeping.

Something sterling that will stay
When gold and silver fly away.

Fight hard against a hasty temper.—Anger will come, but resist it stoutly. A spark may set a house on fire. A fit of passion may give you cause to mourn all the days of your life.

He that revenges knows no rest;
The meek possesses a peaceful breast.

If you have an enemy, act kindly to him, and make him your friend. You may not win him over at once, but try again. Let one kindness be followed by another, till you have compassed your end. By little and little great things are completed.

Water falling day by day,
Wears the hardest rock away.

And so repeated kindness will soften a heart of stone.

Whatever you do, do it willingly. A boy that is whipped to school never learns his lesson well. A man that is compelled to work cares not how badly it is performed. He that pulls off his coat cheerfully, strips up his sleevs in earnest, and sings while he works, is the man for me.

A cheerful spirit gets on quick—
A grumbler in the mud will stick.

Evil thoughts are worse enemies than lions and tigers, for we can keep out of the way of wild-beasts, but bad thoughts win their way everywhere. The cup that is full will hold no more; keep your head and heart full of good thoughts, that bad thoughts may find no room to enter.

Be on your guard, and strive and pray,
To drive all evil thoughts away.

COMPROMISE COMMITTEE.

The following is the report of the Compromise Committee:

1. The admission of any new State or States formed out of Texas to be postponed until they shall hereafter present themselves to be received into the Union, when it shall be the duty of Congress fairly and faithfully to execute the compact with Texas by admitting such new State or States.

2. The admission forthwith of California into the Union, with the boundaries which she has proposed.

3. The establishment of territorial governments, without the Wilmot proviso, for New Mexico and Utah, embracing all the territory recently acquired by the United States from Mexico not contained in the boundaries of California.

4. The combination of these two last mentioned measures in the same bill.

5. The establishment of the western and northern boundary of Texas, and the exclusion from her jurisdiction of all New Mexico, with the grant to Texas of a pecuniary equivalent. And the section for that purpose to be incorporated in the bill admitting California and establishing territorial governments for Utah and New Mexico.

6. More effectual enactment of law to secure the prompt delivery of persons bound to service or labor in one State; under the law, thereof, who escape into another State.

And 7. Abstaining from abolishing slavery; but, under a heavy penalty, prohibiting the slave trade in the District of Columbia.

VALUABLE WASH FOR TREES.

The practice of washing, or rather, we should say, of coating fruit trees with whitewash, so prevalent some few years since in many sections, appears now to have but few advocates. Instead of lime wash, most cultivators of fruit apply a wash formed of common wood ashes, or potash and water, which they apply in a very diluted state, with cloths instead of brushes. This application has a tendency to remove moss, imparts a healthy appearance to the cutis, and destroys the animalculæ which locate and adhere to, the epidermis of most fruitiferous trees in May and June. Whitewash as it obstructs the pores of the bark, is an application rarely productive of benefit; it may remove moss, and dislodge insects, but the bad consequences inseparable from its mechanical action on the circulatory and absorbent systems, far more than counterbalances all the good it is likely to produce. A tree that has become coated with moss, can in no way be more speedily and effectually renovated, than by a careful removal of the obnoxious fungi, and the application of soap-suds. Trimming at the proper season, with judicious manuring rarely fails of effecting the result desired.—Germantown Telegraph.

SUPPORT THE GOSPEL.

The opinion that the Gospel should not be supported by the contributions of the Church is opposed to reason and Scripture. Men pay their lawyers and physicians for doing them temporal service, and believe it to be their duty to do so. Much more, then, is it their duty to support the Gospel, which renders them spiritual and eternal good. The Scriptures of Divine truth present this duty in the clearest light.

We would refer the reader to the 8th chapter of 2d Corinthians, were Paul, to excite his Corinthian brethren to liberality in supporting the Gospel, sets before them the liberality of the Macedonians,—and also to the 9th chapter of 2d Corinthians, 6th and 7th verses:—"He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly: and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully;"—"every man, according as he has purposed in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver."—Is there not much truth in the following lines of the poet?—

"That man may last, but never lives,
Who much receives, but nothing gives:
Whom none can love, whom none can thank.—
Creation's blot—creation's blank.
But he who marks from day to day
In generous acts his radiant way,
Treads the same path his Saviour trod—
The path to glory and to God."

It becomes us, then, to give toward the support of the Gospel Ministry according to the direction of the Apostle, "as the Lord hath prospered you."

COMING TO CHRIST.

Once more, coming sinner! think of the Saviour who inviteth thee; full of grace as well as of truth. He complaineth if thou come not; he is displeased if thou call not upon him; he can bear with thy weakness; he can pity thy ignorance; he can be touched with the feeling of thy infirmities; he can affectionately forgive thy transgressions; he can heal thy backslidings, and love thee freely. His compassions fail not; he will not break the bruised reed, nor quench the smoking flax; he can pity where no eye pities, and be afflicted in all thy afflictions; he will bow his ear to thy stammering prayer; he will accept the weakest offering if there be in it but thy heart; he hath strewed all the way from the gate of hell where thou wast, to the gate of heaven, whither thou art going, with promises.

Behold, how the promises, invitations, calls and encouragements are mixed with the names of mercy, goodness, love, pity and pardon! In his book they are fairly written, that thou, through patience and comfort of the Scriptures mightst have hope. Coming sinner, blessed art thou, for "flesh and blood have not revealed this unto thee, but thy Father who is in heaven!"—Bunyan.

REAL CHRISTIANITY.

It is not Christianity merely to give assent to a creed or a set of dogmas; for this is often done while the character remains unchanged. The devils believe and tremble. It is not Christianity merely to be baptized, to partake of the eucharist, to submit to rites and ordinances of the church; for this is not necessarily attended with a character. But plainly, it is Christianity to be imbued with the spirit of Christ, and to live as he lived. This is the great idea—Christianity is a life. Not a mere outward life, but an inward spiritual life, leading to a corresponding outward life. The inward life is the power and principle; the outward life the exponent—the development—the fruit. Creeds and dogmas are a logical construction—a theological science. Rites and ceremonies are symbolical institutions. This life is the reality. The most diverse forms of character—the good and the bad may unite in the former. Only one form of character—only the good unite in the Christian life. The unity of the life, therefore, is the highest unity; nay, the only real and essential untiy.—New York Evangelist.

ANSWER TO PRAYER.

In February, 1839, on the day of Fasting for Colleges, a parent sent a request to a neighboring church, that his son, who was a member of a New-England college, might be made a special subject of prayer. That youth, then thoughtless, is now one of the most promising and useful ministers in our land. Who shall say that his extensive and beneficial influence is not the result of the prayers offered by that church, in compliance with the wish of that anxious father? Who shall estimate, then, the value of those solemn days of supplication for our literary institutions? How many parents have been gladdened by the consequences which have flowed from the observance of these days! How many churches have been supplied with faithful pastors, by reason of these public entreaties for the conversion of collegiate students!

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Camp-meetings in Ohio.

1. One in the bounds of the Chester Church-Chester township, Wayne county, commencing on the 15th of August.

2. One in Summit county, near East Liberty, commencing on the 22d of August.

3. One on the old camp-ground, one and a half miles West of Reedsburg, Ashland county, commencing on the 29th of August.

Indiana Camp-meeting.

A Camp-meeting will be held in the bounds of the Church in Decalb county, in the neighborhood of brother Joseph Walters', five miles southeast of Auburn, commencing on the 23d of August.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

A protracted will be held, Providence permitting, at Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., commencing on the 8th inst.

A protracted meeting will be held at brother George Wingert's, near the Cole-brook Furnace, Lebanon county, Pa., commencing on the 15th of June.

The preaching brethren, and people generally, are invited to attend.

THOMAS STROHM.

POETRY.

TO MY HUSBAND.

Yes, go! for though thy presence
Around my dwelling throws
That all of light and gladness
Which pure affection knows.
I will not bid thee linger
When Zion loudly calls
The presence of her watchmen
Upon her sacred walls.

'Tis true that I am lonely,
By many cares opprest,
The busy world a stranger
To this poor anxious breast.
Yet go! thy God is with me;
I feel his guardian care;
His hand of love is present
To dry the falling tear.

I would not—cannot murmur,
Since thou art called to be
The messenger of mercy—
Of grace—pure—boundless—free.
Then hasten with the tidings,
Thou may'st not linger here;
Go, seek the weary wanderer,
The broken heart, go cheer;

For time is onward hastening,
Thy work will soon be done,
And God will call his watchmen
Up to his glorious home;
Then when thy crown of triumph
Thick set with stars shall be,
I'll glory in thy conquest
And ever be with thee.

THE LAST SUPPER.

BY WM. M. H——R.

'Twas night at Jerusalem—that city so fair,
Where high sculptured columns and ornaments were—
That city which dazzled with splendor so bright—
To dwell in its suburbs, did Prophets delight.
But what were its riches and ornaments bright,
Compared with the Jewel which shone there that night?
That Jewel was richer and brighter than gold,
Whose value was tried, but never was told.

That Jewel was Jesus—Oh wondrous to tell,
He did with the sinful inhabitants dwell!
In a lone upper chamber that Jewel was found,
A band of disciples were gathered around.
That meeting was mournful, and sad was the scene,
When this band of disciples and Christ did convene.
He spoke of His death and atonement for sin,
That sinners might find an interest therein.

He for His disciples in silence did break
Their bread, and commanded them all to partake—
Saying, this is my body, now broken for you,
Through all generations this ord'nance renew.
Our glorious Redeemer—Our Jesus Divine,
To teach His disciples, likewise took the wine;
"Drink ye all of this," Immanuel said,
'Tis the testament blood—for you it was made.

From henceforth, said Jesus—their Master Divine—
I'll drink no more with you the fruit of the vine,
Till that glorious season when those whom I love,
Shall drink it with me in that kingdom above.

Oh! what an example of love we here find,
When Jesus, our Saviour, did die for mankind.
So great were the wonders His love did involve,
That angels desire the mystery to solve.

He rose from the table—but could there yet be
One instance more striking of humility!
That Being, coeval with earth and the sky,
Arose and laid His habiliments by.
Oh! great condescension, when Christ did complete
This ord'nance, by washing His brethren's feet.
An example, a precept, and promise were made,
As sure as the stone which in Zion was laid.

Addressing His disciples—He said, you must do
This THING for each other, as I have shown you.
What humiliation did Christ undergo,
To purchase redemption for sinners below!
Well might the Temple's vail be severed in twain,
For ne'er did it witness such wonders again.
Well might the sun lose his radiant rays,
Beholding the death of the Ancient of Days.

East Sharpsburg, Blair Co., Pa.,
April 30, 1850.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 25th of April, 1850, at the residence of her father, near Unionville, Frederick county, Md., by Elder J. H. Hurley, of Landisburg, Pa., Elder A. D. Williams, of Carolina Mills, R. I, and Editor of the New England Diadem, Providence, R. I., to Miss S. Harn, of Cedar Hill, Lancaster county, Pa.

On the 16th ult., by G. U. Harn, V. D. M., Mr. Michael Forney to Miss Margaret Crownshield, all of Harrisburg, Pa.

On the 21st ult., by Elder S. Bigham, Mr. Frederick Grubb to Miss Elizabeth Hetrick, both of Perry county, Pa.

On the 2d ult., by Elder Thos. Strohm, Mr. Leonard Peters to Miss Mary Rouch, both of West Hanover, Dauphin county, Pa.

On the 14th ult., by the same, Mr. Davin Breneman to Miss Ann Graybill, both of Lancaster county, Pa.

On the 31st of December, 1849, by the Rev. C. A. Hay, Mr. W. H. Kolsher to Miss R. F. Mahon, both of Harrisburg.

On the 12th ult, by the same, Mr. Jeremiah L. Wise to Miss Elizabeth Eichelberger, both of Cumberland county, Pa.

On the same day, by the same, Mr. Henry Witmer to Miss Caroline Smith, both of Lebanon county, Pa.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!"

DIED—At his residence, in Middletown, Dauphin county, Pa., on the morning of the 9th ult., Mr. George Gross, aged 72 years and 14 days.

In New Market, York county, Pa., on the 10th ult., Henry Leander Fisher, aged 2 years, 1 month and 10 days.

Funeral services by Elder J. J. Miller.

"Death may the bands of life unloose,
But can't dissolve my love:
Millions of infant souls compose
The family above."

In Fishing Creek Valley, York county, Pa., on the 2d of May, Laura Danner, daughter of George Danner, aged 11 years, 11 months and 26 days.

Funeral services by the writer, from John 5: 25, 28, 29. Her remains were interred in the grave-yard at Yocumtown.

Farewell, dear Laura, thou art dead,
Thy days are past, thy spirit's fled;
And in your tomb you long shall sleep,
While mourning friends o'er you do weep.
But soon you'll rise to die no more,
Your great Redeemer to adore.

In heaven you now do shining stand,
Amidst that holy, happy band,
Who raise their songs and clap their wings,
And make all heaven with hallelujahs ring.
On Canaan's bright and pleasant shore,
You sweetly live to die no more.

John A. Plowman.

Near the Cole-brook Furnace, Lebanon county, Pa., Caroline Wingent, daughter of brother George and sister Wingert, aged 10 months and 21 days.

Funeral sevices by Elder Jos. Breneman.

At Springville Lancaster county, Pa., on the 20th of May, 1850, of malignant fever, Henry D., son of Henry F. Musselman, aged 2 years, 11 months and 18 days.

At his residence, in Harrisburg, on Friday morning, the 17th ult., Isaac Hovis, aged about 68 years.

On Friday evening, the 17th ult., Philip Cline, an aged and respectable citizen of Harrisburg.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,				$4	62½ a	4 75
Do.	Rye,	do.	- -	2	50 a	2 50
Do.	Corn,	do.	- -	2	37½ a	2 37½
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				1	00 a	1 05
Do.	Rye,	do.	- -		56 a	56
Do.	Corn,	do.	- -		45 a	50
Do.	Oats,	do.	- -		33 a	33
Do.	Barley,	do.	- -		60 a	65
SEEDS—Clover,		do.	- -	3	50 a	3 50
Do.	Timothy,	do.	- -	2	25 a	2 50
Do.	Flax,	do.	- -	1	05 a	1 25
BEEF, per cwt.		- - - -		5	00 a	5 50
PORK,	do.	- - - - -		5	00 a	5 25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -			7½ a	10
BUTTER,	do.	- - - - -			14 a	16
LARD,	do.	- - - - -			8 a	8
TALLOW,	do.	- - - - -			8 a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.					6 a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - - -			10 a	10
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -			56 a	62½
ONIONS,	do.	- - -			75 a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - - -		1	00 a	1 12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.				1	25 a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -			37½ a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -			30 a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -		1	08 a	1 08
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -		10	00 a	10 00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -		4	00 a	4 00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,				$5	12½ a	5 25
Do.	Rye,	do.	-	2	87 a	2 00
Do.	Corn,	do.	- -	2	86 a	2 86
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				1	12 a	1 20
Do.	Rye,	do.	- -		60 a	60
Do.	Corn,	do.	- -		60 a	61
Do.	Oats,	do.	- -		40 a	42
Do.	Barley,	do.	- -		65 a	68
SEEDS—Clover,		do.	- -	3	50 a	3 50
Do.	Timothy,	do.	- -	2	75 a	3 00
Do.	Flax,	do.	- -	1	35 a	1 40
BEEF, per cwt.,			- - -	7	00 a	8 75
PORK,	do.	- - - - -		7	00 a	7 25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America,

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo decimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

Missionary Pledges.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	-	5 00
Isaac Miller, -	-	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	-	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	-	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	-	-	10 00
Jacob Miller, -	-	-	10 00
James Miller,	-	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	-	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	-	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	-	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	-	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	-	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	-	-	5 00
James Casey,	-	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations,

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work. (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.
JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. JUNE 15, 1850. NUMBER 4.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fifteen.

Names	Am't. paid	Names.	Am't paid.
Adams Wm	$ 50	Miller Christian	$1 00
Brumbaugh S A	1 00	Mentzer Henry	1 00
Bowman Sarah	1 00	Miller John L	1 00
Bossler Elizabeth	1 00	M'Fadden James	1 00
Barkstresser Geo	1 00	Mosey David	1 25
Bener John	1 00	Mallen Millington	1 00
Barkstresser John	1 00	McKee Mary vols 13 & 14	2 00
Baughman Wm	1 25	Martin John	1 00
Barton Benjamin	1 00	Magrew Matthew	19
Barton Joseph	1 00	Minsker Rachel Ann	1 00
Booth Wm	1 00	Nickell Joseph B	1 00
Bryan Richard	1 00	Oswald Ann	1 00
Bray Ann	1 00	Overholt John [on vol 14]	1 00
Clippinger Peter	1 00	Orli Christian	1 00
Cramp Jacob	1 00	Reichart Wm	1 00
Carper Christopher	1 00	Reaver Wm	1 00
Cenceney Nancy	1 25	Rolowmell Henry	1 00
Doner Daniel	1 00	Ramsey E J	1 00
Dentler Jacob	1 00	Reeme J W	1 00
Dillinger Christian	1 00	Reichart Henry	1 25
Fisher Jacob	1 00	Rupp John G	1 00
Fritzelle Ann	1 00	Strawbridge Joseph	1 00
Fisher Geo	1 00	Snyder Jesse	1 00
Faukler Abraham	1 00	Styter Alex B	2 00
Friese Adam	1 00	Stouffer Geo	1 00
Garner Abraham	1 00	Stomaugh John	1 00
Gutshall Joseph	1 00	Shultz Isaac	1 00
Graham Judah [vol 14]	1 50	Shott Augustus	1 25
Gallentine C	2 00	Strock Frederick	1 00
Heppich Joshua	1 00	Snyder John	1 00
Hurley John E	1 00	Shnell Jane S	2 00
Hobbs Nathaniel, Jr	1 00	Seabold David	1 00
Hetterickle Uriah [vols 13, 14 & 15]	4 00	Swisser Ann	1 00
Hoover David	1 00	Swively M F	1 00
Hamnel J P	1 00	Sherrick Widow	1 00
Kopp Martha	1 00	Swiler David C	1 00
Kinsinger David	1 00	Snavely Jacob	1 00
Kinsinger Geo	1 00	Saantz Aaron	1 25
Kauffman A M	1 00	Shantz David	1 25
Kimmel Geo	1 00	Tamplin Cyrus	1 25
Laverty D A L	1 00	Thomas Martha	1 00
Lingle David	1 00	Tailor John	1 00
Lingle John [vols 14 & 15]	2 25	Utz Elizabeth	1 00
Lambert Michael	1 00	Ulich John (in full)	3 00
Lininger Jacob	1 00	Vance Wm	1 00
Lindley Timothy S	1 00	Werner Jas [vols 15 & 16]	2 00
Mackey Jas [vols 13 & 14]	2 00	Wulfersberger Levi	1 00

The Changing Year—My Own Lot.—J. F.

"Sweet spring will come, and summer too,
All things will change, divinely new."

Fourteen months ago I left Harrisburg, and now returning, find that a short year changes things around us, and also within us. I return to H——— a sadder, if not a wiser man. I hope I may also say a better man—for God's holy Providence is designed to lead the soul to seek its rest in Him. I have not now quite so many friends on earth—for some have crossed the flood—

"And we are to the margin come,
And we expect to die."

I have come to H——— to preach. I love to preach. I love to hear good preaching—it is to me sweeter than the honey-comb. Music is pleasant to the ear—whether by the voice, or the harp, or viol, or organ. Eloquence has great power to influence and move the multitude, and kindle the fire of patriotism. But the preaching of Christ's gospel changes, and rules all.

I have come to preach at the Bethel in H———. To be sure, it is not a very fashionable place. There are no cushioned pews—nor pew rents—but the souls that attend are precious souls. Paul says take heed to the flock—to all the flock—feed them with bread, that bread which comes down from heaven. Give them to drink of the waters which flow from the rock which was smitten for our salvation—"that rock was Christ." These streams never run dry—and the bread never fails.

At the Bethel, many, from year to year, have said they experienced renewing grace, but with too many it was like seed fallen on stony ground, or among thorns, its fruitfulness was soon gone. And beside this, we have not been sufficiently careful in discriminating between the real and the fanciful. We have been far too ready to baptize in the seasons of excitement, and revival, and then we mourn on account of having administered that solemn ordinance, which is the being "buried with Christ," to those who had no real faith in Him.

But the wheat remains when the chaff blows off, and I now find a number still at the Bethel whose faces are toward Zion. And to these I have come to preach the best I can—that is, the plain, simple, doctrine of Christ Jesus, as our wisdom and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption.

Some must go to heaven, I trust, from the Harrisburg Bethel, and in order to be prepared to enter in through the gates into the holy city, the soul must be sanctified. And so I feel disposed to preach and pray about this blessed doctrine and experience. And whether the brethren here, or in other places, exactly agree with me or no, in my views of this great point—only let them listen, and give liberty to preach it—and they perhaps will preach it also if they are preachers, and pray for it if they are private members. There must be a waking up to spirituality, and higher attainments in the divine life, for the world rolls in like a flood with its business, and gains, and amusements, and honors, and how can we escape, except by being conformed unto Christ, and living the life on earth which he once lived.

Our Meeting-house in Baltimore.

We have a small meeting-house in Baltimore, and a society of about twenty-five members. The house and lot has a debt of about two hundred dollars, (including ground rent,) which must be paid by the beginning of August. If the money is not paid by some one the place will be sold; for how can it be otherwise in these days when people must, and will, have what is justly coming to them, and if the fault is ours we cannot rightfully complain.

Many persons in the churches have contributed small sums toward obtaining that meeting-house, and now that the brethren have the house, is it to be forfeited, because no one will advance two hundred dollars, or because a few of our brethren, who are well off in temporal things, will not contribute—say, twenty of them, ten dollars each, and let the little society keep their house.

Brother McFadden called on me the other day, and tells me he is preaching this year (since the first of April) in this meeting-house in Baltimore. (I think I was the first of the brethren who preached in it seven years ago, while on a visit of a few weeks—we then first took it on rent.) Brother McF. says that the prospect is favorable—the attendance on the services is good—but the small society is poor—yet out of their poverty they have for years done far more for the support of the cause among them than would be expected by some who are well off in the things of this life.

Now what can be done is this, let some one of the brethren pay the two hundred dollars, and take the house for security—as a fair investment of money on interest. Or, let a few advance ten or twenty dollars each, and thus prevent a house of worship from being sold, and turned perhaps into dwelling houses, or possibly to some unworthy purpose.—J. F.

Notice and Request.

Brother James Ferguson, at Martha Furnace, Rudsburg Post-office, Clarion county, Pa., wishes some of the preachers to call on him, as he is there alone.

☞ The Debate on Baptism will be continued in the next number.

Notice to the Camp-meeting Committee.

The Camp-meeting Committee will meet in the Bethel at Harrisburg, on Tuesday, the 2d of July next, for the purpose of arranging the Camp-meetings for the present year. Punctual attendance is requested. By order of the Chairman. E. H. Thomas for J. Winebrenner.

The churches and brethren interested, will please send in their communications by that time, addressed to brother J. Flake, Harrisburg—post-paid. E. H. THOMAS.

Camp-meeting Committee presumed to be J. Winebrenner, E. H. Thomas and A. Swartz.
J. F.

Jerusalem—In another page will be seen a very interesting account of the Holy City in its present state, written by one on the spot. Read what he says concerning the city of the great King in its forsaken condition, and think whether He will not return again ere long, and gather the children of the kingdom around him. Even now,

"He sits a sovereign on his throne,
With pity in his eyes;
He hears the dying prisoners' groan,
And sees their sighs arise.

He saves the souls condemned to death,
And when his saints complain;
It sha'nt be said that praying breath,
Was ever spent in vain."

The earthly Jerusalem may not be built again, but the heavenly city will come down from heaven, on, or near the earth, and all the saints in it—the Lord among them.—J. F.

State of Things in Our Land.---J. F.

The beginning of summer in 1850 finds our land without war, internal, or external. To be sure, we have not as much peace, or as much union, as we would wish to see—the North and the South are not just agreed as to what shall be the future lot of the large territories which have been lately gained. The South wishes to darken those new lands with the evil which rests so heavy on themselves—but the free States say, let us have free soil, and no extension of the blighting influence of slavery. So here there is trouble, but no war. For this be thankful, for of all wars an internal war is the worst—the most desolating—and full of misery and sin. War is worse than pestilence and famine joined together.

Congress is trying to compromise and settle the matter, but find it very hard to unite freedom and bondage. Such a favored nation as ours the world has never seen, and how terrible it would be, to behold it dashed in pieces, and our republican institutions giving way to a monarchy, or, what perhaps is even worse, to have no law or government. Let us hope that the union of the States will last until the end of the world.

The expedition for invading the Island of Cuba has made the trial, by a few hundred men under the command of General Lopez, formerly a Spanish General. They landed in the night before May 19, (Sabbath,) from the steamer Creole, at the town of Cardenas, on the coast of Cuba, and after a little fighting gained possession of the town, and held it until toward evening, when they had another battle with a military force, which came in from the neighboring country. Finding very little aid, or countenance, from the people of the place, for whose benefit they professed to come, in assisting them to shake off the Spanish yoke, they (the men of the expedition) retreated to their steamer, and set sail again for the land which they had unlawfully left. They landed at Key West, and were no doubt glad to find themselves again safe on American ground. They lost a few of their number—some killed—others wounded. Such are the results of war, whether on a large or small scale—bloodshed—suffering—death.

So the unlawful effort of a few from our States, to give political liberty, and republican institutions, to the largest and richest of the West India islands, has failed for the present.

The Spaniards have captured a vessel with a large number of men on board, and on the plea that they were part of the expedition, they threaten death, or imprisonment, as their doom. This may possibly lead to trouble, as our Government will interfere to prevent further bloodshed.

Europe.—The nations of Europe are uneasy and restless, but there is no war there at present. The lower classes are endeavoring to raise themselves to a share in government, as well as a small portion of the good things of the world; especially of bread, which good things, along with political power, have too long been monopolized by a few. France appears to be getting ready for another great movement for better, or for worse. Germany and Italy, also, are waking up—who can tell beforehand what the present year may record in its history.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

STRICTURES ON
Dr. Hodgson's Sermons on Baptism.

In the commencement of Dr. Hodgson's sermons on the mode of baptism, he stated, that "Baptists claim that the verb baptizo means only to immerse," but that he could show that it had a variety of meanings, including sprinkling and pouring; and that in proof of this he might have brought Lexicons and piled them up on either hand, but he did not consider it expedient, as his audience was composed of "mere English scholars:" Therefore he should confine himself to the present English text, and prove by one passage (1 Cor. 10: 1, 2) that Immersionists assumed too much in saying that immersion was the only proper meaning of baptizo.

In answer to this flourish of pretended support from Greek Lexicographers, I have only to say, when Dr. Hodgson will do what many of his talented ministerial brethren have failed to perform, when called upon by Immersionists, namely: to produce one single Greek Lexicon for eighteen centuries, which gives the term "sprinkle" as the proper translation of the verb baptizo, then, and not till then, can we admit that they have one chance in a thousand of being correct.

In reference to the passage quoted from 1st Corinthians, which reads, "Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea," the Apostle explains how they were baptized. They were under the cloud, and passed through the sea; and were baptized IN the cloud and IN the sea. Or, as the Psalmist expresses it, "He spread a cloud for a covering, and fire to give light by night." It is not very probable that from this "pillar of fire" a shower descended upon the Israelites; and none other than an enthusiast would be capable of conjuring up and entertaining such a fanciful and groundless imagination.

But Dr. Hodgson quoted this passage to show that baptism meant something beside immersion. "There was no immersion in this case, as the history of the occurrence would prove." "They passed over dry-shod." "There was not even enough water applied to wet the sandals on their feet," so says Dr. Hodgson. Well, really, it must have been a dry baptism indeed. But how does the Dr. reconcile this view with his former definition of baptism? In his first sermon baptism was defined to be "the application of water;" and in his second he presents us with a perfectly dry baptism. But if baptism does not mean an immersion in this passage, what does it mean? Does it mean sprinkling, or pouring, or washing, or cleansing? Read the passage, and substitute any, or all of these terms, and see if they appear synonymous. Our fathers were all sprinkled in the cloud and in the sea, &c. Or all washed in the cloud and in the sea. Or were all poured in the cloud and in the sea, &c. In view of this, I ask, what school-boy so stupid as to say that all these terms, sprinkle, pour, wash, cleanse, purify, and immerse, are synonymous with the word baptize? Words as different in meaning as day and night, or black and white.

Again, the Dr. says, "It is not to be found in the New Testament, that one single baptism was performed by immersion." In reply to this bold and reckless assertion, I will quote Dr. Wall's language, an eminent Pedo-baptist, whom Dr. Hodgson also quoted in one of his sermons. After saying that the ordinary way among primitive Christians was to immerse, he adds: "This is so plain and clear by an infinite number of passages, that as one cannot but pity the weak endeavors of such Pedo-baptists as would maintain the negative of it; so also we should disown, and show a dislike to the profane scoffs, which some people give to the English anti-Pedo-baptists, merely for their use of dipping."

John Wesley says: "'Buried with him by baptism' alludes to the ancient manner of baptizing by immersion."

Dr. Adam Clarke also says of this passage: "It is probable that the Apostle here alludes to the mode of administering baptism by immersion."

Geo. Whitefield says: "It is certain that in the words of our text there is an allusion to the manner of baptism, which was by immersion."

I might still oppose to Dr. Hodgson on this question such men as Doddridge, Whitby, Luther, Hammond, Barns, Chalmers, &c., &c., &c., all eminent men; not Baptists, but men of candor, who would not turn aside from plain common sense matter of fact, merely to gratify the caprice of a superstitious and bigoted sect.

John "baptized in the river of Jordan."—Jesus "came up straightway out of the water." "And they went down into the water, both Philip and the Eunoch, and he baptized him."—"And when they came up out of the water," &c.

These passages were explained thus: "The prepositions in and into, in these instances, may be rendered by, at, to, or with; and out of may be rendered from." Hence, the passages would read: John baptized at the river of Jordan, &c. Jesus came up from the water, &c. And they went down by the water, &c.; and came up from the water, &c. Here we have the new Pedo-baptist translation. Dr. Hodgson seemed to take it hard because the Baptists had attempted to give a faithful translation of the Scriptures to the world. In his view it was an audacious attempt. "Pedo-baptists are satisfied (said he) with the present translation," &c.

The sequel shows how well satisfied they are with the translation coming to us mainly from Pedo-baptist translators. They as frequently change the present version of the Bible as Immersionists, Dr. Hodgson himself bearing testimony to the fact by following their example.

But why need the people leave their homes and go a journey to the river of Jordan to have a drop of water sprinkled upon them individually? Dr. Hodgson says, "Because the ecclesiastics were opposed to him, and he would not avail himself of their reservoirs and cisterns of water. It was more independent to go to the Jordan." Strange that John did not call for a bowl of water from some one of the multitude that came to his baptism. Or were there none among this great number of applicants who could command water enough to sprinkle a drop on each person desiring to be baptized? Singular independence! to go a journey into the wilderness, to procure water enough to sprinkle the smallest particle on the multitude individually! What a novel subterfuge! What a streteh of faith to believe an anomaly so preternatural! How strange that men of talent can persuade themselves to believe such perfect nonsense!

But why did John baptize in Enon? Why, the answer is given: "The people needed water for themselves, and their Camels and Asses to drink." I wonder who first saw this vision of four-footed beasts and creeping things at Enon? The Bible says nothing at all about them. It must have been some timid visionary, whose conscience was troubled about baptism. But fearing the cold, sickness, appearing ridiculous, or some one of the terrible things enumerated by Dr. Hodgson in one of his discourses, this wonderful phantom, chimera, or bugbear intruded itself on his or her excited imagination. Surely no sane person ever dreamed of such an unmeaning and groundless apparition. Inspiration informs us, that John was baptizing there because, there was much water; and Pedo-baptists add to the words of inspiration, "their camels and asses," and say that John was baptizing there because of the many waters where the people and their beasts of burden "might quench their raging thirst and drink a full supply."

But again: it was said that "Baptists hold that going down into, means going under the water: and if they are correct, then Philip and the Eunuch both went under the water, and he baptized him." This, I fearlessly assert, is an unfounded fabrication; probably not original with the Dr., but borrowed from some ingenious person used to inventing, for special purposes. Immersionists, as a body, hold no such inconsistencies. They do not pretend that into in these passages means to, at, by, with, nor under: but that going into the water is an essential prerequisite to baptism; but not a prerequisite to sprinkling or pouring.

The Dr.'s arguments on Rom. 6: 4, and Col. 2: 12, having been so well met and completely refuted by brother Harn in his sermon on Capitol Hill, I do not consider it necessary to attempt another reply, being contented with the Dr.'s own concession on the point: "That there is doubtless an allusion in these passages to water baptism." If there is an allusion, then, that allusion represents baptism as a burial, and therefore "we (Immersionists) are buried with Him by baptism," "that like as He was raised up by the glory of the Father, so we should walk in newness of life," "having been planted in the likeness of His death, we should be also in the likeness of His resurrection."

In looking over my notes, I find nothing further worthy of notice. There were many little things said, doubtless more with an object to amuse, than to convince. These I pass, not fearing any injurious effect to the cause of truth from them.

And now, in conclusion, suffer me to remark, that the apparent levity in the treatment of Dr. Hodgson's arguments, are not the result of disrespect to his superior attainments and experience in theological literature, but are the unavoidable reflections involuntarily presenting themselves before the mind in view of the nature of the positions assumed by him.

Hoping that none will be offended for my plainness of speech, and if any should be so foolish as to manifest the "fruits of the flesh," instead of the Spirit, in consequence of my humble attempt in contending for what appears to me to be the truth—hoping that they will not make themselves very unhappy on my account, I dismiss the subject till I think duty demands of me to resume it again.

S. B. HOWARD.

Letters on the Wing.---No. 3.

Brother Winebrenner:—

After I wrote you last, I concluded not to leave Honesdale, Wayne county, Pa, as soon as I had said I should; and in a day or two I accompanied my excellent friend, Elder M. Cummings, over to Hyde Park, Luzerne county, to hold several meetings. We took a ride over that strip of Railroad to Carbondale, of which I spoke in my second letter. We passed a place where there was formerly trussed work one hundred and six feet high! over a large ravine. The weather was very inclement—congregations small.—Heard Elder Cummings preach—he is much such a reasoner as our Elder McFadden—sarcastic.—I preached three times at and near the place. On Monday we returned to Honesdale; and after another day's enjoying the hospitality of my friend and his good lady, I took up my journey again.

Leaving Wayne county, Pa., eastwardly, I crossed the Delaware river at Narrowsburg, Sullivan county, N. Y. The bridge here is built on two high rocks on either side of the river; has but one span; and is very high. This pass is called "the Narrows," and gives the name to the town. The amount of wood that is lying along upon the hills of Wayne county, rotting, cannot be imagined. The New York and Erie Railroad passes up west along the Delaware river from opposite Pike county, and southeast through Orange county towards the city of New York. You have doubtless heard of the celebrated Goshen or Orange county butter—and I think I never tasted as good butter in my life as they have along here. The county is lovely, somewhat hilly, but rich, and the main crops are grass and hay. The Railroad carries milk from this county daily to New York. I saw one train of seven or eight large double cars (the milk train) all loaded with milk cans, amounting to about twelve hundred in number, and each can containing from six to eight gallons of milk! The railroad track is six feet wide—wider than any other I have ever seen, and the locomotives and cars are all strong and large in proportion.

I stopped at a village called Middletown and preached to a very attentive and respectable congregation. Next day I came on to the town of Goshen. This is a lovely village; and what adds to its interesting character, is the fact that quite a religious reformation has recently taken place there. The white houses, churches, and other buildings, green shutters, green grassy streets and beautiful fields around the village, are all very fascinating. From thence I passed on to Newburg, on the magnificent Hudson or North River, and put up at T. Patton's Temperance House. I arrived in the night, but hastened out next morning early to see the river. Having been hedged up in the coal regions of Pennsylvania for three months, I felt like a bird out of cage when I got into a seaport town again. And when I looked upon the river a mile wide here, and then upon the high hills all along on both sides as far as the eye can reach, I felt the spirit of poetry rise quite naturally, and I could scarcely refrain from making rhymes upon the scenery. Stopping here over Sabbath I made an appointment to preach on a wharf, in the afternoon, where I had a large concourse of hearers. I have often very much regretted that I had none of our pamphlet history and other tracts to distribute. In the forenoon I went to the Reformed Dutch Church, and heard the Rev. Hollis Read, of New York, deliver a most excellent and interesting sermon on the Holy Scriptures. I was so highly pleased with it that I called on and requested him to furnish me a copy of it for publication in the "Church Advocate." He very generously consented and invited me to call on him in New York for it, which I shall do in a few days; and I hope you will be so well pleased with the sermon that it will be published at the earliest day. I presented Mr. R. with a copy of "Winebrenner on Regeneration," and he, having one of your History of all Denominations, recognized you at once, and remarked that he had desired to have your views on the subject of regeneration. The book will doubtless receive a careful perusal.

On the same afternoon I crossed the river to Fishkill Landing to preach that evening, and was directed to a Rev. Mr. Hyer, for a lecture room he owns. On making application for it he first informed me it was engaged, and then administered the fatherly and masterly advice that I ought not to come to such places like that to preach, where the people were supplied with preachers of the gospel, but go to the destitute. I told the gentleman that I was a hedge and highway preacher, and when I could not get into houses I dispensed the word in the streets, and he must not think his reasoning sufficient to silence me. I hunted for a place, and found a Baptist local minister, Elder L. W. Annan, who introduced me to another Baptist minister, Elder John Eberle, formerly of Pennsylvania, who is acquainted with you, and some others of our preachers. He very politely invited me to preach that evening in his place—even in that place where the people are already "supplied with preachers!" I was very kindly treated by the Baptist friends there. There is a Railroad from New York to Po'keepsie, on the east side of the river, which does much business by the connection with steamboats to Albany. There is a steamboat building in New York with four boilers, intended, they say, to out-run the cars, and serve as an opposition line between New York and Albany.

I am finishing this letter in the tremendous city of New York, having arrived here yesterday evening from Newburg, on the steamer Columbus, a distance of about 60 miles—fare 50 cents. In passing down the magnificent Hudson river, we passed the following among other places, viz: Cornwall, a small village, said to be a very "hard place."—Cold Spring, (opposite West Point,) where there is a foundery that casts nearly all our cannon.—West Point, where the U. S. Military Academy is located: it lies on a high beach of the river, having many splendid buildings.—Cozzins' Boarding House, a place for summer resort, is located a short distance below West Point. It is a splendid large edifice on a high bank. For many miles along the west side of the river there is a bank of rocks as straight up as a wall, perhaps 20 to 30 feet high, the strata of the rock running perfectly perpendicular.—Peekskill, a smart town, and manufacturing place; below which are fine lime-stone quarries.—Haverstraw, a town beautifully situated between the river and a rugged mountain in its rear. All along here are many brick-yards, on both sides of the river.—Sing-Sing, a beautiful town, 30 miles from New York. The N. Y. State's Prison is located here on the water's edge, without outside walls, having sentinels on the outskirts of the prison bounds to watch. There is a marble quarry on the premises, where some of the prisoners are kept at work. The female department is a handsome large building. There are sometimes as many as 900 prisoners at Sing-Sing prison.—Piermont, is a village on the western bank, where the N. Y. and Erie Railroad terminates. Steamboats run between this place and the city, carrying passengers and freight back and forth. There is a wharf or pier built out over a mile into the river, upon which the cars run out to the boats. The river is about two miles wide here.—The telegraph wire crosses the river, at least half a mile wide, about 10 miles above New York, from shore to shore, resting, on either shore, on high poles, and suspended so high over the water that vessels pass under the wire.—Yonker's town, is a handsome place, built, apparently, for residences of wealthy men. A hat factory here turns out a hat each minute in the day.—Edwin Forrest's (the player) residence stands on the east bank of the river. It consists of five towers built up together, has a very ancient appearance, and also appears to be a "castle in the air," for it was built with a design of happiness; but as there is discord between himself and wife the happiness doubtless fails to come.—Croton Aqueduct, the arched conductor that supplies New York with water from Croton river, passes down on the eastern bank of the river. It has only 100 feet fall in the whole length of 40 miles.—On the same bank of the river are many splendid residences. Of all the beauties of nature I ever witnessed, I think the scenery on this river for 60 miles up is the most to be admired. If any of your readers desire to take a rich treat to themselves, let them take a steamboat ride up this river. Talk about your magnificent Susquehanna now!

On reaching New York yesterday evening, it commenced to rain, and is pouring down to-day, while I sit and pen this in a German eating-house and tavern, where I am witnessing an almost constant flow of rum from the glass to the stomachs of the poor, miserable rum-drinking wretches who squander their money here. I could find no Temperance house. I shall leave here to-day for Newark, N. J, to attend the Christian Conference to be held near that place, commencing the 18th of May. In my next I shall give an account of the Conference and this city.

J. F. WEISHAMPEL.

Moral and Legal Suasion.

The published proceedings of all public bodies are public property, and hence there can be no impropriety in commenting upon the resolutions, passed at a Temperance Convention held at Lisburn, Pa., and published in the first number of the current volume of the Advocate.

One of those resolutions is as follows—"Resolved, That if Temperance men were more vigilant, they could accomplish more by moral suasion than by coercion." This, taken in connection with another resolution affirming that in the opinion of the Convention Temperance should never be made "a party question in politics," seems to be intended as a disclaimer against the use of law in supressing intemperance. It must be confessed however, in relation to the whole series of resolutions, that whoever claims their paternity appears to have been eminently successful in the ambiguous use of terms, and the employment of equivocal phrases and involved sentences, so that most of the resolutions may mean one thing or a dozen, or nothing at all, almost equally well—to say nothing of the improvements upon the President's orthography, grammar, and the like.

The extreme modesty of this resolution is deserving of particular notice. When a World's Temperance Convention, embodying the wisdom and experience of the Temperance ranks in all parts of the globe, assembles, and where every principle is thoroughly and amply discussed, it is to be expected that it will speak definitely and decisively; although it is true that even such bodies generally throw in some such sentences as this—"It is the sense of this body," or, "in the opinion of this Convention." To be sure the Convention which adopted the resolution referred to, was composed of only nineteen delegates from two local country Temperance Associations. But what of that? It is true that none of the old, experienced and long tried champions of the cause were there. But what of that? It is moreover true that there does not seem to have been a single efficient speaker present; inasmuch as, "On motion, the Secretary read a Temperance Sermon from the able Lyman Beecher"—(Query. What sort of a book, pamphlet or manuscript, is "the able Lyman Beecher?")—being, so far as we are informed, the Alpha and Omega of the addresses, except the "appropriate address" of the Chairman of the meeting "on taking the chair."

Hence the resolution, instead of simply expressing the opinion or conviction or belief of the Convention, merely assumes to resolve, in behalf of all the friends of Temperance the world over, and as possessing perfect knowledge of all the bearings and demands of the cause everywhere, that Temperance men can accomplish more by moral suasion than coercion. This is indeed modesty personified—wisdom and humility incarnate! And in this case it is the more commendable and noteworthy, inasmuch as the truth thus proclaimed is so absolutely indisputable. Nobody can deny it. No one of any wisdom or discernment at all, will dare for a moment to stake his reputation upon a denial of it, even for the sake of argument.—In fact there is—there can be—no argument against it. It is as clear as a sunbeam. Anybody who talks of legal suasion must be as blind as a bat. To think of suppressing intemperance by law, as we do other crimes and evils, is utterly preposterous. No true Temperance man ever thinks of it—especially after such an extremely modest pronunciamento.

Again, the preamble asserts that "intemperance appears to be on the increase." Moral suasion—that great, best and only way of promoting Temperance, as we are left to infer—has been at work some twenty years or more to destroy intemperance. The noblest talents and the best hearts in the nation have been all this time employing their greatest energies for the same purpose. With but comparatively few exceptions, the whole moral power of the Church, of all denominations, has been exerted in the same direction. Such a moral enginery has been set at work in favor of Temperance as was never before used in this country in favor of any cause. Old and young, high and low, pious and profane, have each and all added their talents and their mites to give efficiency to moral suasion. Such a power as Temperance has aroused in its favor if applied in a revolutionary direction, would overthrow any civil government that ever existed. And yet in spite of all this moral suasion "intemperance appears to be on the increase."

But, this very extremely modest Convention would tell us, the great need is that Temperance men should be "more vigilant." Yes! T. P. Hunt must talk oftener and longer and more effectively—in short must be "more vigilant. Dr. Jewett and Dea. Grant have not been vigilant enough. John B. Gough, Geo. Riley, Wm. H. Burleigh, Gen. Cary, and a host of others, together with the whole band of the clergy, and the more than hundreds and thousands of the Temperance phalanx, have been sadly wanting in vigilance. Many of them, it is true, have worn out their lungs and their lives in promoting Temperance by moral suasion, but still they have not been "vigilant" enough. Come, Messrs. Temperance advocates, one and all, walk up to the ring—take off your coats—get down on your knees—prepare a receptacle for the briny flood—while you take a castigation from this unspeakably modest Convention, for lacking more vigilance in the use and application of "moral suasion."

Ah yes! The man who steals my property is a thief, and upon conviction by due process of law must expiate the crime within the walls of the penitentiary. But he who not only steals my fortune, but what is of infinitely more moment to me, my reputation and my happiness, by enticing me into the vortex of intemperance—robs me of all that is valuable on earth and of my hope of heaven—ah no!—his is no crime to be punished by law! He is a gentleman; or if not, he is and must be sacred in the eyes of jurisprudence.

And the man who maliciously kills my neighbor who is in the full possession of his health, reason and virtue, and hence comparatively fit to die, is a murderer, and must hang by the neck until he is dead. But he who first brutalizes my neighbor—destroys his sense of of manly dignity, kills his manhood, and then hurries him to that drearest of all tombs, the drunkard's grave, with the delirium tremens—having before made his wife worse than a widow and his children worse than orphans, and now leaves them the sad inheritance of a drunkard—and this he does not only to one of my neighbors, but to another and another, and perhaps to me—entailing besides taxes, and pauperism and crime and misery upon society, actually beyond estimation—this man too must not be punished nor restrained by law!

Moral suasion must be applied to him more vigilantly. It would be a very foolish proceedure in the case of the first mentioned murderer. But no matter for that. It is just the thing for this one. No matter if he does laugh you in the face and mock you to your very teeth—though he does recklessly continue to scatter fire-brands, arrows and death all around, more than ten times worse than the mere cool blooded murderer could do—yes you must only be "more vigilant" in the use of "moral suasion." It won't do to talk of legal suasion. It would infringe upon personal rights. It would make the rum-seller mad—stark raving mad and desperate. This would be no argument in the case of the first mentioned murderer, but it is all conclusive here. It would be mingling Temperance with "party politics," to enact a law making rum-selling a crime, or to elect legislators who would legislate against intemperance. Will not some one send the members of this Convention some life elixir, lest in the event of their death, all wisdom as well as modesty should die with them! A. D. W.

Miscellaneous Letter.

FROM BROTHER M. F. SNAVELY.

North Bend, Johnson Co., Iowa, May 6, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

Grace be with you and the brotherhood. Amen.

After a much longer delay on my part in writing for the Advocate than I expected when I last wrote, I take my pen in my trembling hand, and try to compose a few lines, to inform my apparently anxious friends somewhat about matters and things in this our beautiful country. My long delay in writing depended altogether on my infirmity and inability. Two days more, and it will be six weeks since I am confined to my room. Four weeks and better I was bed-fast, and very ill, with fever. On Tuesday previous to Good Friday it was very cold and windy, and I was helping to raise a house, and took a severe cold, which laid me up the next evening. I am still very infirm, but able to stir through the house.—After me being laid up about two weeks, my better-half was also confined, and delivered of the 14th heir!—a son, who saluted my feeble ear, and, as it were, bade farewell, and in about 15 moments went to its Heavenly Father.—Now all are well save myself not yet.

On the 4th inst., our much beloved, but much distressed brethren, Funk and Bond, came to see us from Muscatine, (the proper place of landing for this place.) They are yet with us, but will leave to-morrow to go to their distressed families. They think under present circumstances of staying at Muscatine, where brother Funk wishes you to send his Advocate. You will shortly receive full details of their unfortunate journey through brother Bond.

I am still glad that I am in Iowa. I have by this time, however, one, and only one, objection to the climate: that is, it is too windy in the spring of the year. There was scarcely one whole calm day since March began; and especially this season it is rather discouraging, for several reasons. First, the "Californians," almost locust-like, came flocking into our "Bend" and surrounding settlements, and bought up, far and near, and consumed (for they laid over from three to four weeks, and some longer,) all that could be got of Corn, Oats, Potatoes and Flour, &c., (the season being from two to three weeks later than common, and the pasture backward,) so that the prices became much higher than in Pennsylvania. Oats has sold for 75 cents. Corn $1 00. Flour $6 00 per barrel. Potatoes 62½ and 75 cents per bushel, &c. Somewhere near 2000 teams have passed through the city already, and still more are coming.—I purpose sending you a few of our Iowa City papers.

Fishing.—This (and if it had been warmer, weeks before this,) is the season for fishing. However, owing to cold weather and low water, the fish seem not to be so very plenty this spring. Yet, brother Lininger has caught about a barrel, with one dip-net, in two days and one night! That will do, won't it? Neither were they altogether chubs, as you have in Pennsylvania; for brother Lininger told me that his strength was never in his life more tried than one of our Iowa Pike tried it! and he is a stout man.—Brother Winebrenner, such slender little arm as yours would have no business to take hold of the pole of a dip-net to catch fish here; for one fish would run off down stream with you, net and all, unless you would let go! One Pike weighed 23 pound, and either one or three-fourth; and another 20 or 21 and one-fourth pound. However, the two Pike weighed 44 or 45 pound! And one Cat-fish weighed 12 pound! The other kind of fish that are in our river, are as follows: Salmon, White Pearch, Buffaloes, Red Haws, Suckers, Sun-fish, (large kind.) Bass, &c.

Book Agency.—I saw a notice some time since of my appointment as Book Agent for the sale of your books. Query.—Where shall I find those books that I was to have been in possession of after the first of April? I have none, and heard of none. If anything is sent to me, in the way of freight, it must be sent by Muscatine—not Burlington. That is sixty miles too low down. But to send one single box, unless sent by some one coming out, would cost at least five times as much freight. Passengers coming from Harrisburg to Muscatine, their freight will cost about $1 25 per hundred, or not that—perhaps not much over $1 00.

Our Papers.—The brethren looked to me to write according to promise, and taking sick, throwed all wrong. I hope, therefore, that this may be sufficient apology for our money coming out of due time, and let us pass; for, be assured, April would not have been out, without our money being there, had it not been for my sickness.

Having written too long a letter already, I will come to a close by simply advising that young brother who travelled Broad-top circuit last year, to let brother Lininger and myself alone, lest he touch our combativeness—and mine is pretty large. I think it a bad plan for any one to try to raise his own reputation at the expense of any others. But such seem to be the fruits that grow on the trees of secret societyism. Farewell.

M. F. SNAVELY.

More About the Query.

TO ELDER J. F. WEISHAMPEL.

Dear Brother:—

Having recently learned a little courtesy from brothers G. U. Harn and T. Hickernell, I proceed (not in my former uncouth style, but in as courteous a manner as possible,) to notice your letter contained in the 24th number of the last volume of the Advocate. And in the first place, permit me to say, that I exceedingly regret that you have turned the keys of the kingdom against me, classing me with the world. And why? Why, merely because I could not reconcile the two ends of your conflicting solution of my baptism query.—Did you suppose, dear brother, that I was like a young crow, to swallow everything you would put into my mouth, whether poisonous or nutritious? Far be it from me. I am set for the defence of the gospel.

So far as I can perceive, Christ has imposed two conditions of membership, viz: a credible profession of faith and baptism. And where either of these is lacking, a man cannot be a legal subject of the kingdom of Christ, from the fact that he has not complied with the conditions. If in at all, they have crept in some other way, not by the door.

But the query was, "Can a Church be considered legally constituted a Church of Christ, whose members were baptized only by an unbaptized layman?" You affirm, and I deny, consequently the burden of proof devolves upon you. You will please give your testimony, chapter and verse. The query is simply this: is baptism legal and valid when administered by unqualified hands? I say no man, whether layman or clergyman, who is unbaptized, has a right to administer the rite of baptism, for this would be degrading the ordinance. It would be wrong, in the very nature of things. God is a God of order. It is a usurpation of authority, like Uzziah, who invaded the priest's office, and burned incense, and was smitten with leprosy. 2 Chron. 26: 16. And why? Why, not because it was wrong to burn incense, but because he was not consecrated for that purpose. He usurped the office of the priest: hence says the priest to him, "It pertaineth not to thee." Read the connection, if you please.

But you say that all things must have a beginning. So say I. But, you admit that the ordinance was instituted in the days of Christ and his Apostles. Surely, then, you do not want another beginning, seeing that the law was never repealed. If so, you will have two beginnings, and no end.

But, you ask, who baptized John the Baptist? John was sent from God to perform this rite, consequently God gave him the necessary qualifications. This you will not deny.

Again, you ask, who baptized the Apostles, or were they ever baptized at all? Most assuredly they were. Peter and Andrew, and others, were disciples of John, as we learn from the first chapter of John's gospel: and do you not suppose that John baptized all his disciples? He was too stringent an immersionist to admit them without. Paul was commanded to be baptized by Ananias, and he tells us that he was baptized. Rom. 6: 3, 4.

Thus you perceive, dear brother, that after a truthful research of the Scriptures, the only rational and legitimate conclusion at which we can arrive is, that they were all baptized; and they were commanded to teach and baptize others: and as many as believe and are baptized shall be saved; and they who believe not shall be damned. Mark 16: 16.

Yours, in love,

J. H. HURLEY.

Landisburg, Pa., May, 22, 1850.

Our Western Tour.

Monday, May 27, 1850.

Journal of our first week's journey.

We are now at brother Slingluff's, in Blair county, Pa. Thus far, we have been highly favored on our journey. We have had good health, good roads, good weather, and good and kind friends to entertain us along the road.

We left Harrisburg on Monday, the 20th of May, 1850. The first night we stopped with brother Jonas Rupp and family, at Mechanicsburg, where we were kindly treated. We preached before the Church there, that evening, and had a pleasant interview with the brethren.

Tuesday, 21st, we went to Shippensburg—stopped with brother Wm. Reichart and family, and preached in the Bethel, to a pretty good congregation. Among others, we had the pleasure of an interview with brothers Mackey, West, Thomas, Deshiri, Laverty, Warner, &c.

Wednesday, 22d, we journeyed on, by way of Chambersburg, to the neighborhood of McConnellsburg, Bedford county, and stayed over night with the family of brother David Sherrich, dec'd., where we met with a kind and hospitable reception.

Thursday, 23d, we proceeded on to Bedford, and stayed over night with brother Kyser and family, formerly of Shippensburg: here, also, we were kindly treated.

Friday, 24th, we left there and went to Woodbury, Morrison's Cove—stopped with brother Zook and family, formerly of Mount Joy, Lancaster county; where we were kindly received and hospitably entertained. We preached there that evening, to a pretty large congregation.

Saturday, 25th, we proceeded to Martinsburg, and held a two-day's meeting with the Church in that place. Brother D. Kyle and family reside there, and seem to be doing well. Brother K. is a sonnd and good preacher, and is laboring faithfully to spread the cause of truth throughout the Cove. The churches at Woodbury and Martinsburg are living in union and peace. They have both had, interchangeably, their evil and good days, all of which seem to be working together for their good, and we trust, will work out for them a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. During our sojourn there, we stopped with brother L. Slingluff and family, who received and entertained us with their accustomed cordiality and Christian kindness.

Owing to the heavy rains on Saturday and Sabbath morning, the congregations were not so large as they otherwise would have been. Nevertheless, the congregation on Sabbath morning was pretty good, and in the afternoon and evening (when the weather cleared off) they were still better. The Lord sanctify the dispensation of his truth to the hearts and minds of saints and sinners, for his name sake. J. W. & G. U. H.

Letter from Bro. S. A. Brumbaugh.

Rockford, Winnebago Co., Ill., April 29, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

Dear Sir—I herewith send to you enclosed *one dollar for the 15th volume of the Church Advocate, which is a very welcome visiter to myself and family, and with which I would not like to dispense in our Western home.

It is almost a year since we left our home and separated ourselves from many near and dear friends and acquaintances, (whose society we would yet love and like to cherish,) for the purpose of seeking a home in this Western country. After travelling about eight days, by Stage, Steamboat and Railroad, we arrived at brother Mentzer s, McHenry county, Illinois, where we were kindly and hospitably received. Here I left my family and went in pursuit of a location. I travelled through the northwestern part of Illinois, and also part of Iowa, and finally made up my mind to locate at Rockford, Illinois, which is the county seat of Winnebago county, and is situated on Rock River. It is the central point in the charter of the Chicago and Galena Railroad, which is in progress. It has about two thousand inhabitants, and is surrounded by a most delightful and fertile country. Rock River affords a splendid water power at this place, which is as yet rather temporarily improved. Steamboats have been up this river as high as this place, but it is not likely that it ever will be made navigable.

This part of the State is also very healthy. The climate is pleasant, but the atmosphere rather changeable and windy. It is certainly one of the pleasantest countries for agricultural purposes that could be wished for, the soil being easy to till and very productive, (well watered and a good proportion of timber.) The wheat crop was rather a failure for the last two years; but prior to that it always done well, yielding from 20 to 40 bushels to the acre. Corn and Oats also yield abundantly. Spring wheat is now worth 50 to 55 cents—winter wheat always about ten cents higher than spring wheat. In the winter Corn and Oats could be bought, the former at 25 cents, and the latter at 20 cents; but both will now readily bring 37½ cents per bushel. Mechanics wages rate from $1 25 to $1 50. Common laborers $1 00 per day. Land rates from two dollars to fifteen, according to improvements. Government land is principally all entered; but improved property can be bought cheaper than the improvement can be made. Money is very scarce, and a great deal of trading is done.

There is quite a good state of morals in this section of country, and a great many professors of religion, (Sectarians,) but the life and power is very low. There are five churches in Rockford: one M. E. Church, two Congregational, one Baptist, (close communion,) and one Unitarian. These churches all have preaching twice each Sabbath, and are well attended. We have been solicited by several of the Sectarian congregations to unite with them, but have thus far declined. I have not seen a member of the Church of God since we live in Rockford; and to talk to the people about the Church of God and her doctrine, seems to them like setting forth some new doctrine. But if some of the preaching brethren were to come here, they would have no difficulty in getting congregations. People in this section of country are very partial to religious meetings, and also schools.

Should any of the brethren come to this country, either for the purpose of settling, or should they be travelling through farther West, I would cordially invite them to call and see us: or if any brethren reside in this country, unknown to me, I would be happy if they would make themselves known to me. If any brethren of our old acquaintance should read this letter, we would invite them most earnestly, as well as all others, to remember us at a throne of grace. I have set up the family altar, and around that we wrestle. But, dear brethren, it goes very hard, seeming as though we were all alone. May God give us all grace to make our way through earth to the city which has foundations, whose builder and maker is God, is the prayer of your unworthy brother. Farewell.

S. A. BRUMBAUGH.

*A mistake. There was no money in this letter. J. W.

Letter from Brother Samuel Scott.

Trenton, Iowa, May 13, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I again take up my pen to inform the readers of the Church Advocate how we are getting along in the far West.

In my last I informed you of some of the good dealings of the Lord toward us. On the 7th ult. we met with the Church at Big Creek, and preached to an attentive congregation, on the subject of baptism, from Acts 2: 38; after which we repaired to the water, and buried six believers with their Living Head in the ordiuance of Christian Baptism. A young sister, who had been converted a few weeks previous, but had moved away with the family with whom she lived, came a distance of some 25 miles to obey her Lord and Master in this ordinance. The Lord owned and sanctioned his ordinance by blessing the candidates.—Thus we see the power and influence of truth over error.

At candle-light we endeavored to preach to the people on the subject of Feet-washing, from the first 17 verses of the 13th chapter of John, and then attended to doing those things which Christ commanded his followers. This was truly an interesting time, and the promise of the Saviour was strongly verified, "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." After the breaking of bread and a short exhortation, we gave an invitation to mourners, when eight came forward to the altar of prayer, only one of which professed to find peace with God. We now must leave these mourning souls, for four weeks, praying that the Lord may still follow them with his Spirit, and that ere our next meeting, they may find him to the joy and comfort of their souls.

May 4th we met with the Church at the above place again, and preached at candle-light. On the day following, (Sunday,) at 11 o'clock, the Master was in our midst, and we enjoyed a comfortable waiting upon the Lord. At 5 o'clock we met for prayer and experience meeting. This was a soul-refreshing season. The fervor with which those young converts prayed—the ardor and animated feeling exhibited in praising God—the warm emotions and humiliation manifested in speaking of the goodness of God—the strong faith and resolution to persevere in this best of causes, together with the ardent zeal and sympathetic feeling exhibited in exhorting sinners to turn to God, is seldom paralleled. May the good Lord enable them ever to prove faithful. At candle-light we again endeavored to hold forth the truth to the people, after which we gave an invitation to mourners; whereupon four presented themselves for prayer, one of which found peace in believing.

Saturday, 11th, (candle-light,) we met again at the above place, and had the happiness of meeting with brothers Vance and Landes, who lately emigrated from Westmoreland county, Pa. Brother Vance addressed the people, on Saturday evening and Sabbath, in a plain, pointed and powerful manner. At candle-light we preached again, followed by a warm exhortation, by brother Vance, with an invitation to mourners, when one came forward and obtained pardon. The Church in this place now numbers about 20 members. May the Lord carry on his well begun work. More anon. Yours, fraternally,

SAMUEL SCOTT.

Letter from Brother Jacob Miller.

Sterling, Whiteside Co., Illinois, May 2, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner: —

We are still without a preacher, and I see no prospect of any one coming to preach for us, for which I am truly very sorry, and do hope it will not always be so. Are none willing to come and preach the gospel in this Western world, where it is so much needed? I still have hope that there are, and I should be sorry if I am disappointed. I sometimes think that there is no effort made to send some one. Sectarians have preachers, who have their regular appointments, and have also revivals. The United Brethren are adding to their number very fast. They hold Camp-meetings and protracted meetings: and the Evangelical Society likewise. They are increasing also. And why should not the Church of God hold forth the principles of the gospel, and see if the Lord will not raise up a people here who will be willing to obey him in all things that he has commanded? I feel confident if there is an effort made, there will be; for the Lord has said, "Come and try me, and see if I will not pour out such a blessing that there will not be room to contain it." I for one say, come and try.

It is with sorrow that I am called upon to inform you that brother Isaac is dead. He is no more with us, to help us to hold meetings, and to advocate the right ways of the Lord. His sickness was short, but severe. He lay eleven days. Myself and wife were there when he died. The day before he died, when I went to his bed-side, he stretched out his hand and asked me how myself and family were. I told him we were well, and that I was sorry to find him so sick; but I did not think he would die so soon. He could get up and set up himself. This was about 12 o'clock on Sunday, the 14th of April. He began to get worse that afternoon. In the evening brother Jones, a Methodist preacher came to see him. He put out his hand and said, "Brother Jones, are you going to preach for us?" He asked him if he should sing and pray with him, and he was very glad that he should do so. He had a prayer-meeting appointed at his house while he was sick. We have every reason to believe that he lived and died a Christian. His loss to us and his family is severe; but is doubtless his gain. He died on the 15th of April, in the 43d year of his age. About 14 or 15 years ago, he found peace with the Lord, and united with the Church of God. He was a zealous advocate of the gospel and its commandments. He left a wife and six small children to mourn his loss.—Brother Jones preached a very solemn discourse on his funeral occasion. There was a very solemn feeling in the congregation.

His widow thinks she cannot well continne the Advocate, but I dislike to have it stopped. Does he owe anything on it? If so, let me know, (after I write to you again,) and if you will let her have it for one dollar, I will send it to you when I get to Hagerstown. Give our respects to brother G. U. Harn, and tell him I would like to meet him in old Maryland, and accompany him out to Illinois.

Yours, in Christian love,

JACOB MILLER.

Letter from Bro. Thos. Hickernell.

Sidney, Shelby County, Ohio, May 22, 1850.

Dear Brother:—

There is nothing special going on on the circuit at this time. Brother Adams and myself held a three-day meeting, sometime ago, at Clintonville, five miles north of Columbus. Four were buried with Christ in baptism. A small Church has been organized there, in the winter, of 18 members, and bids fair to be a prosperous Church. I also baptized a young sister near Newport, after travelling in my buggy the distance of 28 miles. Herself and her parents, and nearly all the citizens of Newport, met me on the Laramie Shores, at 4 o'clock on the 8th of this month, (May,) to witness the scene.

I still remain yours, with affection and esteem, THOS. HICKERNELL.

Letter from Brother Wm. Booth.

May 18, 1850.

Dear Brethren:—

It is now twelve months since we left Lancaster county, Pa., the place of our nativity, and moved to this Western country, with which we are well pleased, with but one exception; that is, strange to say, brethren, in all this time we have not so much as seen or heard any of the dear brethren of the Church of God. But may we not hope to see some of them soon? As we learn, in the first number of the present volume of the Advocate, that brothers Winebrenner and Harn are making a tour through this Western country, like the ancient Apostles, to see how these brethren do, we hope, if possible, they will not pass by, but give us a call, if they can. It is true, we have Methodist and other brethren here, who are very sociable; and we are glad to say, that we believe them to be pious and zealous in the cause of religion; but we cannot be thought hard of when we say, that we feel a strong attachment to our old brethren, with whom we have worshipped and stood in connection for nearly twenty years: and more especially do we feel strongly attached to the pure and wholesome doctrines of Christ and his Apostles, taught and maintained by them.

For further information of the brethren, as a general invitation, we inform them that we have removed from Milton, three miles south, to a small place called Lockport, close to the turnpike leading from Cincinnati to Milton, The Methodist brethren have a house of worship here that could be had for preaching, unless I should be much mistaken: if so, a public school-house is convenient. Brethren, don't forget us. We are entirely alone, and know of none in this region like minded with us. Pray for us.

Enclosed you will find one dollar for the Church Advocate, it being one of the most welcome visters we have to our family. We are only sorry it does not come to us every week, bringing glad tidings of good things.

Yours, truly, WM. BOOTH.

N. B.—My Post-office address is still Milton, Wayne county, Indiana. W. B.

An Obituary Notice.

Brother Levi Clay, of Mercer county, Ohio, has at last, after a long and protracted illness, originating from an ulcer, departed this life and gone to his long sought home.—Before he left the shores of mortality, he called his friends and neighbors to his bed-side and exhorted them to meet him in heaven. What must have been the feelings of those who were unconverted, when he asked them to meet him in heaven! How anxious I feel to hear of a speedy preparation being made by them! His last moments were that of peace, as one said anciently, "Mark the perfect man; for the end of that man is peace." Death to him was but as a gate of entrance into eternal joys: and I trust that he is now enjoying the happiness of a blessed immortality, where joys immortal reign. THOS. HICKERNELL.

May 22, 1850.

A CHANGE.

BY CARLOS.

He stood on the brow of a towering hill;
But the hope that once throbbed in his bosom is still:
His features were marked by the furrows of care,
And the rigors of sorrow were visible there.
Like a cloud that overshadows some gurgling stream,
So the tortures of grief shroud his brow once serene;
And the lustre that beamed from his spirit was quelled
By the tide of affliction that crushed as it swelled.

Lean, haggard and moping his grief-stricken form,
Oppressed by adversity's cold, chilling storm,
Like the Elm that is bowed by the hurricane blast,
Its vigor was tested—it yielded at last.

Ere time had enwrapt him in circling years,
Or the fount had been opened that gushed forth in tears,
The goddess of plenty had crowded his board,
And friends thronged around him with titles of lord.
His heart was as free from vexation and care,
As the bird that unchecked soars gaily through the air;
But the friendship that proffered its varying hue,
Soon folded its pinions and bade him adieu.
Alas! when he deemed himself crowned with success,
The buds that were blooming were rife with distress;
While their freshness and beauty were ruthlessly shorn,
And each varied blossom made room for a thorn.
As long as prosperity yielded its store,
His friends thronged around him in many a score;
But alas! when misfortune came on in its stead,
They swerved at the fruits of his folly and fled.
Forsaken of friends, and despised by his foes,
He seeks the loved spot where z phyrs repose:
There, on the broad brow of that time-tested hill,
He mused on the changes time wrought at his will.

Ere sorrow had opened its chalice of tears,
And ages had hastened succession of years;
Ere grief with its anguish had been his sad lot,
In youth he had roamed o'er this still cherished spot.
But a change has come over the spell of his dream;
He sees it not now as in youth it was seen.
Then light was his spirit, and joyful: but now
The rigors of ages have wrinkled his brow.

As he peered o'er the distance, refulgent and grand,
His thoughts soared aloft to a happier land;
And he held with his spirit a converse of love,
Comparing this world with that blessed one above.

Here hope took its flight from the throne of his heart,
And friends with their friendship were eager to part:
Here kindred and loved ones, who lived at his board,
No more flocked around him with titles of lord.

There, in the loved land of the happy and blessed,
Released from its fetters, the spirit's at rest:
There friendship grows stronger, and love forms the theme
Of wonder and praise through eternity's scene.

Then seek that blest haven, the spirit replied,
Look up to the Saviour—for sinners He died:
Break the ties that still bind thee to this gaudy show,
Look aloft to that world where salvation doth flow.
He heeded that voice, as it came from his heart,
Resolving with sin and its trappings to part,
He flies to the Ark for the wretched designed,
And seeks for that pardon the penitents find.
While struggling in agony, anguish and fear,
He sees from the heavens a figure appear;
And heard a faint whisper descend from on high,
Though all men forsake thee—yet will not I.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

The Cuba Expedition.—New York, June 7.—Three of the officers who fought at Cardenas under General Lopez, have arrived in this city, and state that many of the troops that landed at Cardenas are now in New Orleans, still organized, and recruiting, waiting for a fortunate moment to act in concert with the second division, whose "whereabouts" seems to be mysterious, and the third division in this city and its vicinity, who have not yet sailed, but who are organized and ready for action. The three officers of superior rank who arrived here from New Orleans, have joined two who were all the time keeping up the organization, and communicating with the expeditionists at a distance. These five gentlemen are holding their secret meetings night after night, and are well watched by government spies; but they in their turn know the spies and watch them as well. They have hitherto baffled the skill of the custom-house and police, and the Spaniards to boot. A craft, not long since built, has been chartered to carry provisions, arms and men outside Sandy Hook, where they are to be received by another vessel, and conveyed to their destination. On Long Island there are munitions of war secreted, and there are more in Harlem, and in boarding houses in the upper parts of the city. It is stated that Gen. Lopez is superseded in the command, and that next time it will be in the hands of an American.

Yesterday afternoon, as Mr. Currile, of No. 21 Ninth street, was trying to get into the cars at the corner of Christopher and West streets, he stumbled and fell, the hind wheels passing over his left arm, crushing it in a dreadful manner. A surgeon amputated the arm above the elbow.

More of the Cuba Expedition.—The U. S, steam frigate Saranac arrived at Havana on the 26th ult., and carried despatches to the Captain General and Gen. Campbell, our Consul at Havana. It was stated in Havana that the Saranac was put under the orders of the Governor of Cuba to assist in suppressing any armed expedition from the United States.

The U. S. ships Albany and Germantown, lying at Havana, received information that Spanish vessels of war were expected with part of the Cuba expedition on board. The American vessels intercepted these vessels a few hours' sail from Moro Castle, and demanding the release of the prisoners from the Spaniards, and they refusing, were about enforcing their release, when the Saranac came up. After an interview between Lieut. Tatnall and Commander Rundolph, the Spaniards were allowed to take their prisoners into Havana, and place them in confinement on board of a Spanish 74.

Five persons, part of the force of Gen. Lopez, who were taken at Cardenas, were afterwards shot at Mantanzas. Four of them were Scotch and Irish, and one an American—a boy, who stated that he joined the expedition under the impression of going to California. He asked permission to write a letter to Gen. Lopez, giving information of his fate—which was granted. After finishing the letter, it was torn up by the soldiers. A spectator picked up the pieces and pasted them together, with the intention of forwarding them to the parents of the boy.

Thrilling Incident.—A little before nine o'clock yesterday morning, as the train was going out for Newark, when rounding Bergen Cut, was closely upon a gentleman and lady, who were walking on the track. The locomotive squealed and they jumped across on the other track—but horror! Just ahead was another train, from Ramapo, on this track, and the next moment would hurl them into eternity. They had no room on the outsides of either track, from the embankment—and not knowing which train would pass first, were almost paralyzed! But the next moment the gentleman seized the lady, who had almost swooned—placed her on the narrow walk between the two tracks, embraced her dress in his circling arms, to keep the cow catcher from hooking it—and thus awaited their fate. The two trains passed them at the same moment, roaring and thundering on, but neither the gentleman or lady were injured—more than awful fright.—Jersey City Sentinel.

Advance in Flour.—A great and rapid advance has taken place lately in the price of flour in this market, and sales of Ohio were made yesterday at seven dollars a barrel, which is a dollar and a half more than it would have brought three weeks ago. The choicest brands of St. Louis flour are now held at eight dollars a barrel, and there seems to be every prospect of a further advance. At St. Louis the stock is unusually low; and a telegraphic dispatch of the 26th, received yesterday, stated that good brands of superfine were selling there at seven dollars a barrel.—N. O. Delta, May 30.

The Nashville Convention.—Nashville, June 7.—The Convention consumed the entire day in reading resolutions from different members. The committee on resolutions will doubtless make a report tomorrow, when something will be done, foreshadowing the final action of the Convention.

A Texan City.—Houston, Texas, is computed to have a population of 5,000 souls. It has four Protestant churches, with an aggregate of about 320 communicants.—Four Sunday Schools, aggregate number of scholars, 350 Number of volumes in all the Sunday School Libraries, 2000.—These are circulated weekly. Of newspapers, at least 1000 copies are circulated, of which number 400 copies are printed in the city, and 250 are devoted to morality and religion. Each church is supplied with a highly respectable pastor, to whom their respective congregations contribute a liberal support. The church buildings are all paid for. A Bible class is sustained in connection with each congregation. It contains a Division of the Sons of Temperance, numbering near 200 members, but it has no theatre.

The California Emigrants.—The St. Joseph Adventure of last Friday says:—"California emigrants continue to arrive overland, with teams, in great numbers. Those starting from St. Joseph may be set down at thirty thousand persons, from point above, to Council Bluffs, about ten thousand. The number of animals will average more than two to each person, say from one hundred thousand to one hundred and twenty thousand horses, mules and oxen, will be taken on the plains from the States this spring. Those arriving now cross the river immediately, three ferries—one steam ferry and four flats—have been constantly employed for the last four weeks."—Ala. Republican. 22d ult.

☞ Two cows on the farm of Mr. G. R. and N. S. Mowry, at Lime Rock, were killed by lightning during the thunder storm on Sunday evening. One of the cows was lying under the barn at the time, and the other in another part of the yard, several rods distant. Neither of them bore any marks of the electric fluid, and the barn and other cattle in the yard were uninjured. The yard gate however was set on fire, and several trees in the neighborhood were more or less injured—Providence Post, 28*th*.

Population of the Rio Grande Valley.—The Valley is being rapidly settled by an intelligent, enterprising population. It is now supposed to contain a population of 20,000 souls. Two newspapers are published at Brownsville. Incipient measures have been taken for the erection of two Protestant churches at that point. A well conducted male and female Seminary, and one of the most flourishing Union Sunday Schools in the State, are now in existence at Brownsville.

☞ Another Mathematical wonder has sprung up in Pittsburg in a boy ten years of age, named Theodore Hartman, who will respond to the most difficult arithmetical questions with a few moments mental operation.

Railroads.—The Railroad Journal states that at least ten thousand miles of Railroad will be built in the United States within the next ten years. Besides the iron required for the new structures, a considerable amount will be needed for relaying worn out tracks and repairs. Over 100,000 tons will be purchased annually, which at present prices will cost $5,000,000 per annum.

☞ The Pennsylvania Railroad is completed to Huntingdon and the cars running. This is 100 miles from Harrisburg. So goes on the work. We shall soon have to announce that the cars will make their first trip from Philadelphia to Pittsburg. When that happens we shall immediately drop pen and scissors to enjoy one inspiration of the smoky atmosphere of the iron city.—Ledger.

MISCELLANEOUS.

From the Correspondence of the New York Courier.

JERUSALEM.

I have now been more than a week in Jerusalem, and have become quite familiar with all its features. The city is about two miles square, and is surrounded by a thick wall of gray limestone, about twenty-five feet in height, built in a Saracenic style. The population amounts to about 15,000, of whom one-third are Christians, one-third Mahometans, and one-third Jews. The people, except the numerous monks and a few resident Europeans, dress in the Oriental costume, and all the native women, of every religion, go closely veiled. The houses are built of stone, and present, externally, the same black and tomb-like appearance of all Eastern cities. The streets are narrow and uneven, and are extremely slippery, since the stones with which they were long ago paved, have been worn off by the feet of innumerable pilgrims to a marble-like smoothness. The bazars are poorly built, ill supplied and thinly frequented. The pavements, instead of rattling with wheels and ringing with hoofs, or echoing with the tramp of a busy multitude, hardly lisps with the pedestrian's sandalled step, and the camel's muffled tread. The hum of business and the voice of merriment is nowhere heard. A strange melancholy stillness reigns over the once "tumultuous and joyous city."

The first object of the stranger's attention, of course, is the church of the Holy Sepulchre. It is closely hemmed in by other buildings, and for the first time can hardly be found without a guide. Its front is of pointed architecture, but of a mixed and corrupt style, and is ornamented by a few bas-reliefs much injured by time.—The church is jointly occupied by the Roman Catholics, the Greeks, and the Armenians; and, almost daily, service is performed in it in one of these rituals. Admission, however, may be obtained at any time on the payment of a small fee. The first object shown to us, on entering, was the marble slab said to cover the stone on which the body of our Saviour was anointed for burial. This is situated in the vestibule of the church, and is regarded with great reverence.—Passing into the body of the building, we at once recognized the chapel of the Holy Sepulchre. It is an oblong structure of plain white marble, some twenty feet in length, ten broad and twelve high, situated directly under a lofty dome, through whose open top the bright blue sky looked lovingly down. The thick walls of this chapel are perforated with two large holes, through which the Armenian and Greek priests on Easter Sunday miraculously receive fire from Heaven, in the presence of a pilgrim throng, frantic with excitement. The Roman Catholics despise and denounce the exhibition as a base imposture. The chapel is divided into two small compartments, in the first of which are the tombs of the heroic Godfrey de Bouillion and his brother Baldwin, and in the second the Holy Sepulchre itself. The exterior of the latter is simply a white marble platform, elevated about twenty inches above the floor, seven feet long and three wide. Its upper slab is broadly cracked through the middle. Around it were ranged many vases of flowers, and above it were dozens of splendid lamps, belonging to the different churches, kept constantly burning. The priest who attended us gave us each a flower after having first devoutly laid it on the sepulchre and sprinkled it with holy water.

Leaving this sacred place, we were afterwards shown the family tomb of Joseph of Arimathea, cut from the solid rock, the stone on which our Saviour stood when He was tried, the pillar on which He was bound, when flagellated, and the grotto in which the Empress Helena found the three true crosses. In the Greek place of worship, which was highly guilt, and ornamented with the most tawdry finery, a marble globe, inserted in the floor, was pointed out to us as the centre of the world! Ascending a flight of some twenty steps cut from the solid rock, we stood on Calvary. Here was a large chapel, splendidly decorated, near the altar of which were the three identical holes chiseled out of the solid rock in which the crosses were originally planted. Hard by was the rock which was rent! Many other places and scenes associated with our Saviour's life were also exhibited, but were too palpably spurious for sober mention.

After a personal survey of the spot, and mature consideration of all the evidence, I confess that I cannot implicitly adopt the general conclusion of the Protestant world, that the Church of the Holy Sepulchre does not cover the site of our Saviour's Tomb, and has usurped its distinction.—No arguments tending to show that the locality of this Church was anciently, as it is now, within the city walls, have been strong enough in my mind to invalidate, with anything like decisive effect, the firm assertion of tradition to the contrary. But whether this spot was or was not hallowed by the death and burial of the Incarnate Son of God, the Church that is built upon it is venerable for its extreme antiquity, venerable for its awful traditionary claims, and venerable as having been for ages the earthly centre of all Christian love and reverence, where millions have knelt with bursting hearts, after enduring battle, and toil, and fever, and want, and earthly suffering. The man who can stand here unmoved, has a heart harder than a nether millstone!

The Mahometan Mosque of Omar occupies the site of the ancient Jewish Temple, and is surrounded by a lofty massive wall, which none but Mahometans are allowed to enter. The Jews have purchased the privilege of repairing on Friday afternoons to the exterior of a very ancient portion of this wall, there to bewail the fate of their Temple. I was present on one of these occasions, and a more impressive scene I have seldom witnessed. I found collected a large number of both sexes, and all ages and conditions. Most of them were seated on the pavement, in the shadow of the wall, and were engaged either in reciting from the Book of the Law, or in repeating to themselves prayers and ejaculations. The sorrow of desolate hearts was depicted in every countenance. Soon they all joined in a dirge of indescribable mournfulness, after which they rose, and, leaning against the wall with their faces inwards, they read from the Law, repeated another dolorous chant, and then motionless and silent, all remained absorbed in their own prayers and meditations. The matron and the maid, the boy and the grey-headed man, the rich in sumptuous robes, and poor in filthy rags, all alike seemed oppressed with a sense of desertion, and burdened with misery. I turned from the spot and left them all alone with their sorrow, struck as I had never been struck before, by the history and fate of the chosen people of God.

The Mount of Olives, situated just east of the city, has been my favorite resort, not only on account of its intensely interesting historical associations, but as commanding the best of all views of Jerusalem. The city lies on a shelf, gently sloping towards you, and all its main features are discernable at a glance. On the east side of the city, nearest you, is the Mosque of Omar, covered and faced throughout with blue porcelain, and standing on a broad marble esplanade, in the midst of an immense area, shaded with trees, and ornamented with praying chapels. Though the eye perceives little elevation, this is Mount Moriah, and the Mosque stands on the very spot once occupied by the Holy of Holies. How different is the dull dusky fane of the false prophet from the Temple of the living God, that used to glitter there, like a shrine of beaten gold! High up on the south side of the city, partly within and partly without the walls, is Mount Sion. But in those vile hovels where Jews hide their wretchedness, and lepers their despair, or in those terraced and plowed slopes, where the poor Arab desperately struggles with the scanty mould for a few grains, who can discover the seat of that royal city, which was once "beautiful in situation, and the joy of the whole earth?" Away to the western extremity of the city, is the spot they call Mount Calvary, and still leading to it, is the long way up which the "Man of Sorrows" bore his cross.

At the foot of Olivet, directly between you and the city, is the Garden of Gethsemane, enclosed by a wall twenty feet in height. It contains eight olive trees of the greatest antiquity, the very scions, it is said, of the trees which shaded that fearful mysterious passion of the Messiah. The valley of Jehosaphat stretches its dismal length, above and below the Garden, entombing in its dark cliffs untold generations of the sons of Abraham. "Siloa's brook that flowed first by the oracle of God" is dry and silent now, but the pool of Siloam, encased with time-worn stones and draperied vines and flowers, still yields its pure and sweet waters. Sweeping round the base of Sion is seen the deep rugged glen of Hinnow, where were perpetrated the "dark idolatries of alienated Judah;" overhanging it is traditionary Aceldama, whose scanty herbage bespeaks the wages of iniquity and the price of blood.

The closing day is my favorite time for visiting Olivet. The city at that hour always wears a sad and almost sepulchral appearance. Not a voice is heard save the Muezzin's cry to prayer, from the distant minaret, and not a figure is seen except that of some solitary villager hurrying through the half shut gates away to his humble home. The evening breeze is just beginning to sigh over the tombs of the valleys and rustle among the hoary olives around me, and the sun is casting its last dying beams athwart spire and dome, and canopying the sunken bed of the Dead Sea with one vast pavilion of crimson and purple, and enveloping the whole landscape with a lurid glow that contrasts most strangely with the cold grey mass of the city and the deep shades of the valleys around it. If there is a spot on earth situated to pensive musings or a thoughtful mood, it is the Mount of Olives at an hour like this. SIGMA.

GIGANTIC TREE IN VAN DIEMEN'S LAND.

Last week I went to see two of the largest trees in the world, if not the very largest that have ever been measured.—They were both on a tributary rill to the Northwest Bay River, at the back of Mt. Wellington, and are here called Swamp Gums. One was growing, the other prostrate; the latter measured to the first branch 220 feet; from thence to where the top was taken off and decayed, 64 feet, or 284 feet in all; so that with the top, it must have been considerably beyond 300 feet. It is 30 feet in diameter at the base, and 12 at 220, or the first branch. We estimated it to weigh, with the branches, 440 tons! The standing giant is still growing vigorously, without the slightest symptom of decay, and looks like a large church tower among the puny sassafras trees. It measures at 3 feet from the ground, 102 feet in circumference, and at the ground, 230 feet! We had no means of ascertaining its height, (which however, must be enormous,) from the density of the forest. I measured another, not forty yards from it, and at 3 feet, it was 60 feet round; and at 130 feet, where the first branch began, we judged it to be 40 feet; this was a noble column indeed, and sound as a nut. I am sure, that within a mile, there are at least 100 growing trees, 40 feet in circumference.—Botanical Gazette.

QUICK DIGESTION—HEALTHY FOOD.

Of all the articles of food, boiled rice is digested in the shortest time—an hour.—As it also contains eight tenths nutricious matter, it is a valuable substance for diet. Tripe and pig's feet are digested almost as rapidly. Apples, if sweet and ripe, are next in order. Venison is digested almost as soon as apples. Roasted potatoes are digested in half the time required by the same vegetable boiled, which occupy three hours and a half; more than beef or mutton. Bread occupies three hours and a quarter. Stewed oysters and boiled eggs are digested in three hours and a half—an hour more than is required by the same article raw. Turkey and goose are converted in two hours and a half, and an hour and a half sooner than chicken.—Roasted veal, pork, and salted beef, occupy five hours and a half—the longest of all articles of food.—Scientific American.

☞ No man can be happy in this world who has not a well founded hope of happiness in the next.

POETRY.

WHO IS MY NEIGHBOR?

Thy neighbor? it is he whom thou
Hast power to aid and bless;
Whose aching heart or burning brow,
Thy soothing hand may press.

Thy neighbor? 'tis the fainting poor,
Whose eye with want is dim;
Whom hunger sends from door to door:
Go thou, and succor him.

Thy neighbor? 'tis that weary man,
Whose years are at their brim;
Bent low with sickness, cares and pain:
Go thou, and comfort him.

Thy neighbor? 'this the heart bereft
Of every earthly gem;
Widow and orphan helpless left:
Go thou, and shelter them.

Thy neighbor? yonder toiling slave,
Fettered in thought and limb;
Whose hopes are all beyond the grave:
Go thou, and ransom him.

When'er thou meet'st a human form,
Less favored than thine own,
Remember, 'tis thy neighbor worm,
Thy brother or thy son.

Oh! pass not, pass not heedless by;
Perhaps thou canst redeem
The breaking heart from misery:
Go, share thy lot with him.

R. F. Jones.

Wooster, Ohio, April 14, 1850.

The Child's Complaint of a Hard Heart.---7's.

Oh! my heart, it is so bad,
Oft it makes my spirit sad;
Oft I've cause for shedding tears—
Oft my soul is fill'd with fears.

I am much afraid to die,
For I know that God's pure eye
Sees the sins that I have done
When with others, or alone.

Oh! dear Teachers, pray for me,
That I may from sin be free;
That I may the Saviour love,
And his free mercy prove.

If I die in sin at last,
I shall into hell be cast;
Oh! how awful is that word!
Save me, Jesus! Save me, Lord!

Childrens' Confession of their Sinfulness.---7's.

Little children, young and gay,
Think of nothing, oft, but play;
When we're call'd God's word to read,
That's a task we often dread.

When our parents read and pray,
We would gladly go away;
We are wicked all within,
And delight in nought but sin.

Oh! that we could love God's word!
Oh! that we could serve the Lord!
Oh! that we could hate our ways!
Keep us, Lord, thy name to praise.

Then we all could happy live;
Then no more our Saviour grieve;
Then we all could happy die,
Praising God eternally.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 17th ult., by Elder J. Keller, Mr. Daniel Smith, of Mahantungo Valley, to Miss Lavina Bolich, of Machenoy Valley, Schuylkill county, Pa.

On the 18th ult., by the same, Mr. John Smith to Miss Judith Hahn, both of Mahantungo Valley, Schuylkill county, Pa.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—On the 17th of January, 1850, in North Bend, Johnson county, Iowa, Mary, daughter of Elder Jacob and Eliza Lininger, in the 3rd year of her age.

Her disease was of long standing—disease of the lungs, the dregs of measles.

At his residence, in York county, Pa., on the 3d of June, 1850, Frederick Ottstatt, aged 45 years, 2 months and 2 days.

Funeral services by Elder J. J. Miller.

At Linglestown, May 28th, 1850, sister Mary Garverich, aged 61 years, 11 months and 26 days.

Sister Garverich was hopefully converted to God when brother Winebrenner was first preaching at this place; since which time she was a consistent member of the Church of God, and died in the hope of everlasting life.

In West Hanover, May 30th, 1850, sister Elizabeth Perkey, aged 83 years and 2 months.

Mother Perkey embraced religion about 13 or 14 years ago, at a Camp-meeting held by the brethren, at which place God manifested himself in the conversion of many souls.—She could not avail herself of the privilege of meeting with the people of God for the last five years, on account of old age and feeble health. She is now gone to rest from her labors. Thomas Strohm.

At his residence, in Menoghan township, York county, Pa., Lewis Freysinger, in the 82d year of his age.

Grand-father Freysinger was an honorable member of the Lutheran Church for many long years, and led a very moral, civil, inoffensive and industrious life, well worthy of our imitation. He left a large number of relations, to mourn his departure. O, that our loss may be his eternal gain. A funeral discourse was preached by Elder Philip Shaw, from Job 30: 23, to a large and attentive congregation, at his residence; after which his remains were taken and buried in Filey's grave-yard, there to rest until the resurrection of the dead. May the Lord sanctify this dispensation of his afflicting Providence to all his relations and neighbors. His sickness was but of one hour's duration; after which he expired without a struggle or a groan. Disease not known.

John A. Plowman.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Camp-meetings in Ohio.

1, One in the bounds of the Chester Church-Chester township, Wayne county, commencing on the 15th of August.

2. One in Summit county, near East Liberty, commencing on the 22d of August.

3. One on the old camp-ground, one and a half miles West of Reedsburg, Ashland county, commencing on the 29th of August.

Indiana Camp-meeting.

A Camp-meeting will be held in the bounds of the Church in Decalb county, in the neighborhood of brother Joseph Walters', five miles southeast of Auburn, commencing on the 23d of August.

Camp-meetings for Schuylkill Circuit.

The followinging Camp-meetings will be held on the Schuylkill Circuit, viz:

One in Mahantungo Valley, on the land of brother George Hepler, commencing on Monday, the 12th of August next.

The second will be held at brother George Kimmel's, one and a half miles east of Orwigsburg, commencing on Monday, the 26th of August.

The German preachers are all invited to attend the above Camp-meetings.

J. Kelley.

PROTRACTED MEETING.

A protracted meeting will be held at Strayley's School-house, Warrington, York county, Pa., commencing on Saturday evening, the 22d of June.

Preachers and brethren are respectfully invited to attend. John A. Plowman.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4	62½	a 4	75
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	2	50	a 2	50
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	2	37½	a 2	37½
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1	00	a 1	05
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		56	a	56
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		45	a	50
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		33	a	33
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		60	a	65
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2	25	a 2	50
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1	05	a 1	25
BEEF, per cwt.		- - - -	5	00	a 5	50
PORK,	do.	- - - - -	5	00	a 5	25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -		8	a	11
BUTTER,	do.	- - - - -		10	a	10
LARD,	do.	- - - - -		8	a	8
TALLOW,	do.	- - - - -		8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.				6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - - -		10	a	10
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -		56	a	62½
ONIONS,	do.	- - -		75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -	1	00	a 1	12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1	25	a 1	30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -		37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -		30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -	1	20	a 1	20
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -	10	00	*a*10	00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	4	00	a 4	00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$5	25	a 5	25
Do.	Rye,	do. -	3	00	a 3	00
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	3	00	a 3	00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1	18	a 1	22
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		43	a	43
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		65	a	68
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2	75	a 3	00
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1	35	a 1	40
BEEF, per cwt.,		- - -	7	00	a 8	75
PORK,	do.	- - - - -	7	00	a 7	25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion,

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo decimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

Missionary Pledges.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	-	5 00
Isaac Miller, -	-	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	-	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	-	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	-	-	10 00
Jacob Miller, -	-	-	10 00
James Miller,	-	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	-	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	-	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	-	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	-	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	-	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	-	-	5 00
James Casey,	-	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.
JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. JULY 1, 1850. NUMBER 5.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

☞ The acknowledgement of monies received for the Advocate will be continued in next number. Send $1 25, except it be a new subscriber.

To Writers.—We thank our brethren for their communications, and hope they will excuse the delay of their appearing in print, as the Debate on Baptism takes up so much space.

☞ Brother J. P. Weishampel, of Baltimore, Md., the patentee of the Revolving Horizontal Coal Grate Stove, hopes to be in Ohio about the time of holding the Camp-meetings in that State, and would like to have a letter from brother Thos. Hickernell, informing him of the best route from Pittsburg to the first Camp-meeting.

☞ Yesterday was the Sabbath of the great body of Christian people on earth—the first day of the week—the Lord's day. The people generally of our favored land are glad when the holy day comes round. In the towns, such as Harrisburg and Lancaster, all the church bells ring at the same time, and for fifteen minutes the streets are filled with young and old going to the "places where prayer is wont to be made"—whether those houses be large and costly—or more humble and plain, in outward appearance.

I love to hear those Sabbath bells—I love to see the crowd of parents and children in their best apparel entering the house of worship. I feel as if I would like to be found among them as long as I can walk the earth, and then go home at last to that rest, the keeping of a Sabbath, which remains for the people of God.

In the morning I preached from the words of Jesus, "Behold a sower went forth to sow." Matt. 13: 3.

"This is the field, the world below,
In which the sowers come to sow;
Jesus the wheat, Satan the tares,
For so the word of God declares."

In the evening I spoke concerning Stephen, the first Christian martyr, Acts 6: 15, of whom it is said, that his face appeared like that of an angel. J. F.

Stephen, the first Christian Martyr.

No. I.---J. F.

He was one of the dwellers at Jerusalem when the first Christian Church was formed there by the Apostles. He might have been one of the original disciples composing the one hundred and twenty, who believed in Jesus while he was going up and down through the land of Israel, doing good. He may have been one of the seventy, who were sent out by our Lord, two and two together, to sow the seed, the word of God—to heal the sick—and preach that the kingdom of heaven was at hand.

He was chosen one of the seven, in the Church at Jerusalem, to the honorable duty of taking care of the poor, and these were ordained by the Apostles, by prayer and laying on of their hands. Whether the laying on of their hands brought a blessing, we may judge, from the short history of Stephen.

Stephen must have been a man of honest report—that is, a strictly moral, and conscientious man, for this was one of the requisite qualifications for the office of a steward.—Another was wisdom—which means not only having knowledge—but the putting that knowledge to the best use. He had a good head, as well as a good heart, and life.

It is also said that he was full of faith—that is, he had faith in a large measure. O what a blessing this is. To believe in God, and in Christ Jesus, the blessed Son of God, with all the heart. To be able to pray in faith—in humble faith—lifting up holy hands, without wrath or doubting. The faith which brought peace with God through Jesus Christ—even the assurance of sins forgiven through his one precious atoning sacrifice. Stephen had faith

Holy Living.---No. 1.---J. F.

In the morning when you wake, and rise from your bed, lift up your thoughts, and voice, to God, in humble thankfulness, for his watchful care, in keeping you safe, and giving you rest, and sleep, and peace.

Consider that some have not been able to lie down at all through the night. They had to labor—or travel—or watch, or had no shelter from the cold, or the storm. Perhaps they were in pain or sickness, so that they could not bear any other than an upright position—or they had to watch the sick through the long hours of night.

Consider that some even if they did lie down, could not sleep, because of affliction of body, or trouble of mind. How many such there are is not known to the prosperous and happy—but the angels know where they are—and how they turn from side to side on the bed of down, or the bed of straw, and sleep comes not to them—who perhaps most need it.

Consider that some may have lain down like you, and slept—but they have not awoke—it is to them the sleep of death. Children and friends will gather as usual in the morning, but their place will be vacant, and their voice will no more be heard in words of kindness, if they were good, or words of evil, if they were in unbelief, and sin.

Therefore in the morning lift up the voice of humble prayer, and praise to God on high. His hand has kept you—his angels have watched around your bed—therefore offer up the morning sacrifice.

Burning Steamboats.---J. F.

One on the Ohio—Another on Lake Erie.

Fire in the dead of the night, when wrapt in sleep in your peaceful dwelling on land, is fearful. More so to be aroused by the smoke, or the startling cry, when on the river—or lake—or mighty ocean. Yet how frequent are these disasters in these wonderful days of improvement in art and science. The rushing steamboat carries many a soul to the ocean which has no shore.

A few weeks ago the Belle of the West was burnt on the Ohio, and upwards of —— were lost by fire or drowning. Among those who were on board, but happily escaped, were some of our acquaintances, or brethren, with their families. Let them remember what we used to sing—

"Whom Thou dost keep, O King of Kings,
No evil shall molest;
Beneath the shadow of Thy wings,
Shall they securely rest.
Thy angels shall around their beds,
Their constant vigils keep;
Thy faith and truth shall shield their heads,
For Thou dost never sleep."

And while they tremble at the remembrance of the dreadful scene, let it lead them to become better Christians, if such already, or to true repentance, if they have never yet experienced this grace. For the judgments of the Lord, and the goodness of the Lord, are both designed to bring back the wandering soul where it ought to be—that is, in the dust—with true penitence, and humble faith, before its God.

Another sad calamity occurred early in the morning of Monday, June 17, near Cleveland, on Lake Erie. The Griffith, with upwards of 300 souls on board, was on its way up the Lake, and was burned within less than a mile of the shore. Less than fifty escaped. The rest of those on board had to pass through the fire, or the water, to reach their long home—whether that be to them a better, or a more sad condition, than their earthly lot.

Well may we say in the language of the ancient burial service, "In the midst of life we are in death—of whom then shall we seek for succour, but of thee, O Lord, who for our sins art most justly displeased."

Our Western Tour.---No. 2.

Wooster, Ohio, June 10, 1850.

Journal of our second and third weeks.

May 27th.—We took leave of our friends and brethren at Martinsburg, and returned through Woodbury to Bedford, and thence to the Buffalo Inn, at the foot of Dry Ridge, where we stayed over night, and were kindly treated.

May 28th.—We journeyed on, over Dry Ridge, and across the Allegheny mountain, to the town of Somerset, where we put up with brother Davis and family, formerly of Middletown, Dauphin county, Pa., and were used with marked attention and brotherly kindness. We preached there, in the E. M. Meeting-house, and had a pretty good congregation, for the short notice. The Disciples have a congregation in that place, of more than one hundred members. The Methodists had quite a revival there last winter, and quite a number of converts.

May 29th.—We set out for Bethany, Westmoreland county, where we arrived in the evening, and stopped with Elder John Hickernell and family. They received us gladly and showed their accustomed kindness and hospitality. At candle-light we repaired to the Bethel, where we found a large congregation convened to hear the word of God, and to whom we preached with a good degree of liberty, and, we trust, with some good effects.

May 30th.—We resumed our journey and travelled on to McKeesport, on the Monongahela river, and preached in the Baptist meeting-house, to a large and respectable congregation. Here we had special liberty in explaining the right ways of the Lord to the people. The Lord, no doubt, will sanctify his truth to the good of some souls in that place. We lodged with brother Gallentine and family, and were treated with much Christian courtesy.

May 31st.—We took our departure from thence, and went to Pittsburg, where we arrived at noon, and where we remained till next morning. We stopped with brother F. Yonsling and family, and were handsomely and kindly treated. In the afternoon we visited brother Gray and others—took a bird's-eye view of the city, and attended to a little business; but held no public meeting. On our return in the fall, we intend, if the Lord permit, to spend a Sabbath there, and hold a series of special meetings. We are heartily sorry to find that the mission in Pittsburg has been abandoned, and that the Church there has gone down. A few years ago, and even before that, the prospects for rearing the Church of God in that city, were quite flattering; and with proper care and attention, we have no doubt, the efforts put forth there would have been crowned with success. But, the history of our operations in that city, furnishes another proof of the vast importance and necessity of a holy, prudent, self-sacrificing and efficient ministry, to carry forward the work of the Lord in gathering and building up his Church. Some ministers are too lazy, and others too unskillful, to perform the work of an efficient missionary. It requires a man who knows both how to plant and how to water—how to gather, and how to feed the flock of God—and how to combine the wisdom of the serpent with the meekness and innocence of the dove, in order to success, (and especially in large cities,) to build up the house or Church of God. May the Lord of the harvest increase the number of his true, wise and faithful ministers!

June 1st.—Left Pittsburg and proceeded to Old Harmony, Butler county, Pa. There we held a two-day's meeting, and had large, attentive and solemn congregations. We preached in both the Evangelical and Baptist meeting-houses, and had good liberty in preaching the word. Here we formed an acquaintance with sundry brethren from surrounding neighborhoods, and had a pleasant interview with them and the resident brethren there. Elders J. M. Klein and J. Hickernell were also with us. A Camp-meeting was there agreed on, to be held in Venango county, Pa, commencing on the 5th of September, and which we have promised to assist in holding, Providence permitting. Brother Aaron Shantz kindly entertained us during our sojourn in that place.

June 3d.—We left there and went to New Brighton, three miles from Beaver, and stopped with brother John Tinstman, who received us cordially and entertained us kindly for two days. Had no meeting on Monday evening, as we expected.

June 4th.—Stayed with brother Tinstman and family over that day. Brother Harn and Ellen took a ride up to Economy, on business, during the day. I wrote seven letters, and preached at 3 o'clock, P. M., in the E. M. meeting-house. Elder Harn preached there in the evening.

June 5th.—We pursued our journey westward, and arrived at brother Joseph Anglemyer's, near Columbiana, in the evening. With him and family we tarried over night, and were treated with much Christian kindness.

June 6th.—We set out for Canton, a distance of 40 miles—got there in the evening, through much heat and dust, and put up with brother Petre and family; who were glad to see us, and used us well.

June 7th.—We started for Wooster, but finding the road exceedingly dusty, we lay by several hours, during the heat of the day, with brother Isaac Whisler, at Dalton, and then went on to brother Jacob Bricker's, near Wooster, and stayed over night.

June 8th.—We proceeded on to Wooster, and stopped with brother J. P. Winebrenner, a nephew of mine, where we were most cordially received. During the course of the day, we had a very pleasant interview with quite a number of our old friends, brethren and acquaintances. In the evening we commenced a series of meetings, in the Baptist meeting-house, and had a good congregation.

June 9th.—We preached four times in this place. In the morning, at 10 o'clock, in the Court House, and also in the Bethel; and in the afternoon and evening in the Baptist meeting-house. Our congregations were large, and the people very attentive, but there was nothing very special, save tender and good feelings. The brethren from the surrounding churches and neighborhoods, came in quite numerously on Sabbath morning, and many of them remained with us all day. The Church of God in this place numbers about 80 members at present, some having moved off to other places. The Church seems to be in a spiritual and prosperous state. The city of Wooster has improved very much, since I was here last, six years ago. It is situated in a fine rich country, and is a place of considerable business. The Pennsylvania and Ohio Railroad is to pass through this, and is already under contract thus far—the grading on many sections being already finished.—When this road is finished, it will bring Harrisburg and Wooster within a day's ride of each other; allowing 24 hours to a day. We shall remain here, and expect to preach in the city and neighborhood, till after next Sabbath, when we hope, by the leave of Providence, to pursue our journey westward through Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. Those who write to us between this and the first of August next, must address us at Mount Carroll, Carroll county, Illinois.

J. W. & G. U. H.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

SKETCH

OF A

DEBATE ON BAPTISM,

BETWEEN

J. KELLER AND A. OWEN;

Held at Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 19th, 20th, 21st, 22d and 23d of February, 1850.

REPORTED BY W. E. DRAKE,

For the Church Advocate and Religious Telescope.

SECOND DAY'S DEBATE.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 20.

J. KELLER'S SEVENTH SPEECH.

BROTHER KELLER.—The gentleman cannot forget the idea that I came here to prove one baptism. That seems to sting him—to be uppermost in his mind. I have no doubt it tormented him all last night. Well, I have told the audience repeatedly that that was my object in coming here. And, the gentleman said before he sat down that he acknowledged I have accomplished my end. That being admitted, he turns round and says I have proved nothing. This is the sum and substance of his remark. The gentleman says, upon his own admission, that he has come on my side, and given me an argument. Hear him! The gentleman has yesterday and to-day admitted that baptism is immersion. I have come here to prove there is but one baptism. And, I have told you the cause: there is one Lord, one faith, and one baptism. And now the gentleman says there is but one baptism. Every unprejudiced mind must be convinced that the gentleman is defeated, and that he will be buried before the present discussion is terminated.

BROTHER OWEN.—Not in the earth, I hope.

BROTHER KELLER.—Never mind. I repeat it again. I want the people to understand it. It is our great doctrine, said our opponent. So it is our great doctrine. I glory in it, and I am happy to say that we have got it from the Bible. Our opponent has admitted the fact. It was the great doctrine of old Peter, and while he preached on the day of Pentecost, the people became impressed with the subject of the religion of the new dispensation, and became powerfully convinced. They inquired and said, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" Peter said, "Repent, and be baptized." This is the great doctrine—the great stepping stone. Peter established the fact that Christ had risen from the dead, and this made them so unhappy that they made the inquiry I have alluded to. My opponent has proved that immersion is the only baptism, because there is but one faith, one Lord, and one baptism. I shall hold him there. I shall tie him hand and foot there. I shall keep him there.

He referred to Dr. Spring. Now, I wish the audience to understand that he is no professor of languages. He is merely a Pedo-baptist minister. I have no knowledge of Dr. Spring, but Bishop Erb here I do know. I would ask the gentleman, when he (Owen) tried my translations, what law of grammar he violated. He said John the dipper. He wished to make it look ridiculous. He may call me Keller the dipper, if he pleases. I glory in the name. In 1843, I was a dipper in this county, and from that on for upwards of two years, during which time I dipped at least two hundred candidates. The word "baptism," to dip, to plunge, and to immerse, carries no stigma with it. I am like John the Baptist, I have no objection to being called a dipper. But, my opponent says that John was an immerser. Are there not many translations that render the expression John the immerser? But it is said that he immersed in the wilderness, and not in Jordan. He says John the plunger. I have not said John the plunger. John the sinker—I have no objection to that. My opponent poured water on my cause.

But, I think we ought to try his rule on some other passages: however, we may do it at some future time. I suppose my audience will bear with me while I take him to the Scriptures. "Know ye not, that so many of us as were sprinkled into Jesus Christ were sprinkled into his death." His practice calls for that. It is his practice. "Therefore we are buried with him by sprinkling," &c. I might go on and try the rule on many other passages, but I will defer doing so for the present.

My opponent quoted some passages in relation to Elisha, and when he comes to the winding up of the affair, he wants to know how the man was washed. The Bible tells you how. I recollect he put a query why he went and dipped himself seven times, according to the saying of the man of God. Now, I say the man was washed by thus dipping himself, as he was commanded to go and wash seven times. Why, he washed, says the gentleman, dipping himself, according to the saying of the man of God. The word "wash," according to the original, is not bapto. Although that word occurs frequently, there is no reference to baptize; but where the word baptizo occurs, there is a reference. Now, in the instance where he went and dipped himself, the word baptizo is used in the original, and no one is to be found objecting to it.

I came here yesterday morning for the purpose of proving that baptism was immersion, and immersion only. My first argument was taken from the meaning of the word baptize, or baptizo. My second argument I take from the figurative and typical use of baptism. This I shall now commence.

The first passage to which I shall refer, you will find in 1 Peter 3: 20, 21. "Which sometime were disobedient, when once the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls, were saved by water. The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God,) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ."

All I wish to say on this subject is, that we must here conclude that the Apostle refers to figurative baptism. I have proved that baptism is immersion, and the Apostle wishes us to understand that this is it in a like figure, or by a like figure. For instance, in baptism we are enveloped in water. Were not those in the ark closed over? Certainly: we cannot deny it.

The next figurative baptism to which I refer is, the baptism of the Holy Ghost. Here, I suppose, is my opponent's strong-hold; but, perhaps, I will be prepared to meet him.—Now, it is almost generally known that the Pedobaptists usually refer to the baptism of the Holy Ghost for the purpose of proving sprinkling or pouring, especially pouring.—For the establishment of this point, they refer to the second of Acts, where the Spirit is said to have been poured out. Now, I am under the impression that this is no proof at all of it. The gentleman, undoubtedly, is wiser than I am. There are many translations that go to show that when the words baptism of the Holy Ghost are used, the word baptism, as translated, means to immerse, or baptize in the Holy Ghost. But, I suppose my opponent will not admit it. I have something at hand on this subject. Matt. 3: 11. "I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire." This is all I have to say at present.

Prayer by brother Oliver.

AFTERNOON.—Met at 3 o'clock. Prayer by brother ———.

A. OWEN'S SEVENTH REPLY.

BROTHER OWEN.—I will now read the passage, to which I have already alluded, from Ernesti in reply to the quotations made from Stokius, concerning the meaning of baptism.

[This passage is from Campbell and Rice's debate, page 207.—We have not the book at hand.—ED.]

We may simply remark upon this important passage, that if my opponent can clearly prove that dip was the primary and proper meaning, we would consider ourselves safe; for, here is a critic who says that the words of a country are frequently changing, and that the secondary sense oftentimes becomes the proper one, and the first and proper and primary meaning becomes entirely out of use. Therefore, if he shall be able to prove that the primary sense was to dip, I shall prove by Ernesti that long before the Saviour's time the word might have changed its literal and assumed its tropical meaning as its proper meaning.

The gentleman says, in his last speech, that I admitted immersion to be baptism; and he asserts that Paul says there is but one baptism, consequently he infers the one baptism must be done by immersion, and that there cannot be two ways of doing this ceremonial. I admit there is but one baptism, but I believe there is more than one way of performing it. That is the distinction between us—he contending that there is not; but he has yet to prove it. And it is a fact that he has here confounded the mode of doing it with the thing itself. It is degrading the ordinance into a mere action. He makes action baptism, and it must be this process of action of baptism, or there can be no action. Now, I say it is a baptism done in the Lord's house, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; but that it is not essentially necessary to this one baptism that it should be by immersion. If it is, my opponent has to prove it. He remarked that I was defeated, and I suppose the congregation are astonished to find me again in the fight. I must acknowledge that in my simplicity I was not aware of it. He brought up the case of Dr. Spring against Dr. Anthon, and said that the first was nobody—was quite an unimportant man.

Keller.—I did not make use of that expression.

Owen.—Perhaps not exactly, but phraseology going to show that he was quite an unimportant man.

Keller.—I did not say that he was nobody.

Owen.—If he did'nt say that he was unimportant and of no notoriety at all, then he candidly acknowledges he knows nothing about it. Now, it could be proven, if it were necessary, that Dr. Spring is known to be as great a man as Prof. Anthon, and Campbell does not contradict Rice in that; and certainly it cannot have much weight upon one's mind, when we are told by brother Keller he knows nothing about it!

I now, Moderators, come to speak of typical baptism. I do not know whether he makes it a distinct argument, founded on one of the passages he quoted, or not, for he did not say; but he quoted 1 Epis. Peter 3: 20, 21. You know to what great event this passage refers, viz: the salvation of Noah and his family in his ark, as it is said, by water. And it appears that that was a type, held forth by Peter, of our baptism. Now, the argument is, that Noah and his family were put under water; so baptism, which is the anti-type, required that we be put under water. If that is not the idea, I know not what it is, because it brings up the idea that baptism is only when performed by immersion. Now, this idea refers to the ark—the type. If says the like figure whereunto baptism doth now, &c. Well, then, the figure and the question is—Was Noah immersed? I will show that the antediluvians were immersed, but that Noah was not. The ark floated on the water, and Noah was saved. He was saved by water. Lest I should be laughed at for that idea, I will produce some good authority.—Dr. Clarke, vol. 6, p. 862.

He says, "The ark was not immersed in water, for had it been so, they would have perished. We know that the ark was not covered with water, but was borne up and sprinkled with the rain that fell upon it." The text quoted says nothing about immersion, and how brother Keller gets immersion, I know not. If it says anything in favor of any mode, it would be more in favor of sprinkling than immersion; for, while the antediluvians were immersed in water, Noah was saved by being floated on the surface of the water within the ark. Now, if any of this congregation can see how immersion is to be gotten out of the passage, I confess they are sharper-sighted than I am. The proposition of my opponent is, then, that we must be dipped in water, as the only mode or act. Here was no dipping in water, except of the antediluvians, and the only mode by which Noah was saved was, his being carried on the water till it abated, when the ark came down and alighted on a mountain, where he got out of the ark.

The next passage was a figurative baptism—the baptism of the Holy Ghost. This my opponent quoted from Matt. 3: 11, in the language of John: "I indeed baptize you with water," &c. After the fulfilment of this prophecy he referred to the Acts. I will follow him there. Now, we will hear how Christ baptized with the Holy Spirit: "And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place. And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance."

Here, then, there was a baptism of the Holy Ghost. Brother Keller said it was by immersion, and it is important to the argument that it should be proven. If it be found that Christ baptized by pouring, upon what ground can my opponent, who says it was by immersion, maintain his position? Why, he says the house was filled with the Holy Ghost. If he reflects, he will see that destroys his whole argument. But, it was said also by brother Winebrenner that the Holy Ghost was poured into them. Now, it appears absurd to me that the Holy Ghost was all about us, in a room, and poured into our souls. "And suddenly there came a sound like a mighty wind," &c. There was no wind there, as far as we have any knowledge. "A sound filled all the house where they were sitting, and there appeared," &c., "and it sat upon each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost"—that is distinct from the wind. Now, mark, the Holy Ghost did not fill the house. I say it was not filled with the Holy Ghost. My opponent has introduced this passage into the subject in order to prove the process of action, or dipping. How does it prove it? We will read the language of Peter when he rises up: "But this is that which was spoken of by the Prophet Joel: And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out my Spirit." It is the specific action. "I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh." Here, then, is one of my opponent's passages completely on my side of the argument. I believe in baptism, the way the Saviour applied it. That is spiritual baptism. But, mark you, this pouring of the Spirit is called baptism. "I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance; but he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost." Now, he says baptize is to immerse; but here it is contradicted by Christ. Here is a pouring, which is baptism. It is called a baptism by the authority of my friend—that is, John the Baptist. He calls it action. This pouring of it into the heart, he calls baptism. And if he does so, what right has a man to get up and say that pour is not baptism? John is on our side; and Peter is on our side, for he says, "The Holy Ghost was poured out." And Peter is a jewel. Therefore they are all on our side. That is one of my opponent's passages brought forward to prove immersion. Now, the only astonishment to my mind is, how any man can twist such a passage to his own views. And, I want you to observe, clearly, this point, it is called a baptism, and that it was poured out.

J. KELLER'S EIGHTH SPEECH.

Brother Keller.—Although I have been waiting a day and a half, my opponent has not yet proved his position. I have called upon him repeatedly to prove, if he could, that sprinkling and pour is at all baptism. He seems glad to avoid answering my arguments, and instead of doing so, runs off and discusses other matters. The gentleman some time since quoted an author to show that we had departed from the primitive practice of immersion, and he wished to convey that idea to the minds of his audience. He quoted one author to prove that the primitive mode was not immersion, and then he brought up the testimony of Cyprian in support of that fact. Now, I maintain that it was immersion; and that ponring, or sprinkling, was a comparatively modern substitute for it, and therefore was opposed by many of the council who were called upon to decide in the matter. Now, if anything but immersion could be substituted, how came it that the council had to decide whether sprinkling would be by them regarded as lawful? It seems that there was a difficulty in the minds of the people; but does not brother Owen's practice contradict the testimony of his own witness? It seems, according to this witness, that when the people were sick, and could not go to the water, they sprinkled them. But was there not a dispute afterwards as to the validity of the act?—When the gentleman sprinkles a person on a sick bed, will he pursue the course that the Bishops in question did? I don't think he would. Well, it is evident that after the reformation, sprinkling was introduced, but before that event the practice was to immerse. The practice of immersion was kept up till the days of John Wesley. What was the reason he refused to sprinkle a child in the State of Georgia, when the mother refused to permit it to be immersed? Why, because the lady refused to say that the child was sick, he would not consent to sprinkle it. The custom was to sprinkle, when the ceremony of immersion might be attended, under certain circumstances, with danger. The gentleman's witnesses, then, contradict themselves. I have already told you that in Scotland the practice became general in 1311; and after this, it was introduced into England.

Brother Owen said yesterday that the word baptism may have changed, but he has not proved it; and he afterwards turned round and asked me for the proof to the contrary, when it does not lay with me to produce it. He has tried to make this respectable audience believe that this is the baptism that was practised in the days of the Saviour. Has he proved it? If he cannot, I have proved my position. I think he neither will, nor can prove his position. He tells you that the word "baptism" means, in German, to christen. I want him to give me the definition of that term, i. e. christening. Has he touched it? Has he approached it? I believe not, and I don't know exactly what it is, and I am upwards of forty years of age. I want to know it.

Again: Brother Owen seems still to intimate that he acknowledges there was one baptism, but there was more than one way of administering that baptism. Did he prove it? No. But have I not sustained the position that the action of Christian Baptism is immersion, and immersion only? Yet, I admit that the act of immersion can be administered in more than one way. The candidate can be baptized forward or backward, his feet foremost, or his head foremost. I care not how you immerse the candidates.

Now, having made this statement, brother Owen has no argument against me of any weight. He brought forward Dr. Spring, and he wished to make an impression upon the audience—I hope not designedly—that I regarded that gentleman as nobody. I did not intend to do that; but I simply said that he was not a Professor of Languages—that he was merely a Pedo-baptist clergyman, and as far as literature was concerned, he was, perhaps, no more than hundreds of men of our day, who make no pretensions to these matters. The gentleman then referred to the passages I quoted in Peter, and he wished to prove from them his mode, as he calls it, of the word baptizing by sprinkling. Now, does it not look a little singular in the estimation of an enlightened community, that they would have sprinkling, when water would never touch the candidates? I said that the figure was baptism, and brother Owen admits that baptism is immersion. We must next go and look at the figure, and see what it teaches; and then we look back, and if the Bible says that they were baptized, we must come to the conclusion that they were immersed, enveloped, closed up on all sides. Is this not the fact? Does not the case prove that immersion is far better than sprinkling? Certainly. Noah and those that were with him were enveloped, shut up in a huge box, closed on every side.

Next I come to a strong and powerful argument, almost as strong as the pillars upon which this earth rests. I quote from Carson on Baptism, p. 104.

"The baptism of the Spirit is a figurative expression, explicable on the principle of a reference to immersion. This represents the abundance of the gifts and influences of the Spirit of God in the enlightening and sanctification of believers. That which is immersed in a liquid, is completely subjected to its influence and imbued with its virtues; so to be immersed in the Spirit, represents the subjection of the soul, body, and spirit, to his influence. The whole man is sanctified. It is objected that the Holy Spirit is said to be poured out, and therefore, to represent the pouring of the Spirit, baptism must be by pouring. This is the grand resource of our opponents, and is more specious to the illiterate than anything that has been said. A very considerable part of the language of Scripture, in the representation of the gifts of the Spirit, is founded on the figure of pouring; and readers who have no discrimination, or who are under the influence of bias, at once conclude that this pouring is the baptism of the Spirit. This argument is drawn out in formidable array by Mr. Ewing; and is relied on with the utmost confidence by Dr. Wardlow. But it is nothing but a careless confusion of things entirely distinct, and is founded on an egregious blunder, as the reader will perceive from the following observations.

First: The word in its literal sense must guide all its figurative applications. The explanation of the figure must conform to the literal meaning. but the literal meaning can NEVER bend to the figurative. The latter, indeed, may assist us in ascertaing the former; but when the former is ascertained, the latter must be explained in accordance with it. But the literal meaning of this word is aseertained to be immersion, by a strength of evidenee, and a multitude of examples, that cannot be exceeded with respect to any word of the same frequency of occurrence. This is a fixed point; and in the examination of the reference to the baptism of the Spirit, nothing can be admitted inconsistent with this. The baptism of the Spirit must have a reference to immersion, because baptism is immersion, and in its literal sense never signifies anything else. When we come to the examination of this figure, or any other of the same word, we must ground on the ascertained fact. As there is not one instance in the literal of the word, in which it must signify POURING, or anything but dipping, the pretensions of pouring, as the figurative baptism, do not deserve even a hearing. They cannot legitimately even go before a jury; because true bills are not found. There is no ground of trial, because there is nothing in the allegations that can at all excite a doubt. Pouring cannot be the figurative baptism, because baptism never literally denotes pouring.

Secondly: This opinion is founded on the egregious and blasphemous error which teaches that God is material, and that there is a literal pouring out of his Spirit, which may be represented by the pouring of water. Our opponents understand the baptism of the Spirit to be a literal baptism, and the pouring out of the Spirit to be a literal pouring out of Him who is immaterial. But though this is a real communication of the Spirit, there is no real or literal baptism of the Spirit. Let the reference in the baptism of the Spirit be what it may, it cannot be a literal baptism, because God is not material. We cannot be literally dipped into God, or have Him poured on us. Pouring, then, in baptism, even if baptism were pouring, could never represent the pouring of the Spirit, because the Spirit is not literally poured. Baptism, whatever be the mode, cannot represent either the manner of conveying the Spirit, or his operations in the soul. This thing cannot be represented by natural things. There is no likeness to the Spirit, nor to the mode of his operations. It is blasphemy to attempt a representation. It would be as easy to make a likeness of God creating the world, and attempt to represent by a picture the Divine operations in the formation of matter, as to represent by symbols the manner of the communication of the Holy Spirit, and his operations on the soul. If Christians were not infatuated with a desire of establishing a favorite system, such gross conceptions of God could not have so long escaped detection. This error is as dishonorable to God, as that of the Anthropomorphites. It degrades the Godhead by representing it as a material substance.

When the Spirit is said to be poured, it is a figurative exprssion, to which there is nothing resembled in the divine operations. What, then, it may be asked, is the resemblance?—Why is the Spirit said to be poured, if the pouring of water does not resemble it? The foundation of the figure is the very reverse of that supposed. The Spirit is said to be poured out, not because there is any actual pouring, which is represented by pouring out water in baptism, but from the resemblance between the effects of the Spirit and those of water. Between the Spirit itself and water there is no resemblance, more than an eye or a circle and the Divine nature. Nor is there any resemblance between the mode of the operations of the Spirit, and that of the influence of water. The Holy Spirit is said to be poured, because his influence or effects are like those of water, and because he is supposed to dwell above. The Holy Spirit is said to be poured out, on the same principle on which God is said to have come down from heaven, or to have hands and arms. It is in accommodation to our ways of thinking and speaking, not as expressive of reality.

The Holy Spirit is figured as water, not to represent any likeness in him to water, just as God is figured as a man. If the Anthropomorphites blasphemously perverted this language to degrade God, as supposing that it teaches that he has actually human form, it is no less a blasphemous perversion of the language in question, to suppose it imports a real pouring out of the Spirit. The Holy Spirit is said also to be as dew. Does this imply that there is a likeness to the falling of dew and the manner of the communication of the Holy Ghost? Our Lord represents the Spirit as a well, the waters of which spring up, John iv. 14. Is there also a likeness in the manner of the communication of the Spirit to water rising up out of the ground, as well as water poured out from above? The Holy Spirit is also represented as a river whose streams make glad the city of God. Is there also a likeness between his operations and the running of water? In all these figures, the Spirit is represented in accommodation to natural things, and natural things are not accommodated to it. The effects of the one resemble the effects of the other; but as to manner there is no likeness. A particular manner is given to the operations of the Spirit, to suit the manner of the communication of the natural object. Therefore it is that the Spirit has ascribed to him all the various modes mentioned above. The Spirit, in every figure, takes the manner of the resembling object, but the resembling object never takes the manner of the Spirit, because nothing is known of his manner. Of this there must not be—there cannot be any likeness. If the manner of the communication of the Spirit could be represented, one only of these must be employed. If his manner is pouring, it cannot be like dew, nor like rain, nor like a river, nor like a spring—well. But if the likeness be merely between the effects of the Spirit and the effects of water, then the Spirit may be represented as dew, or rain, or a river, or as a spring—well, just as the water is supposed to be applied. It is absurd to suppose an ordinance to be appointed to represent the mode of the Spirit's communication; and as it is spoken of under all these modes, each of them might claim an ordinance as well as pouring. Baptism might as well represent water rising up out of the earth, distilling in dew, running in a stream, falling in rain, as pouring out of a cup.

Each of these represents the blessings of the Spirit, by conforming the operations of the Spirit to a particular state of the water; none of them represent the mode of these operations. The Holy Spirit is said to fall; why, then, should not baptism represent falling? The Holy Spirit is represented as wind; why, then, is there no blowing in baptism? The Holy Spirit is represented by fire; why is there no fire used in the ordinance? The gift of the Spirit was represen ed by the breathing in baptism. The influences of the Spirit are represented by oil; why is not oil used in baptism? The reception of the Holy Spirit is represented by drinking water; why is there no drinking in this ordinance."

'But though the baptism of the Holy Spirit is a figurative baptism, to which there cannot be a likeness in literal baptism; yet, as respects the transaction on the day of Pentecost, there was a real baptism in the emblems of the Spirit. The disciples were immersed into the Holy Spirit by the abundance of his gifts; but they were literally covered with the appearance of wind and fire. The place where they met was filled with the sound of a rushing mighty wind, and cloven tongues as of fire sat over them. They were then completely covered by the emblems of the Spirit. Now, though there was no dipping of them, yet as they were completely surrounded by the wind and fire, by the catachrestic mode of speech which I before explained, they are said to be immersed."

Thirdly: There is another grand fallacy in this argument. It confounds things that are different. Water is poured into a vessel in order to have things put into it. But the pouring out of the water, and the application of the water so poured out, are different things. Water is poured into a bath in order to immerse the feet or body, but the immersion is not the pouring.

Now, our opponents confound these two things. Because the Spirit is said to be poured out in order to the baptism of the Spirit, they conclude that the pouring is the baptism."

Can you make a picture of the Spirit of God? Do you know anything that looks like the Spirit of God? Have you known anything of the kind? There is no likeness of the Spirit, nor mode of its operation. It is blasphemy to attempt a representation.

A. OWEN'S EIGHTH REPLY.

BROTHER OWEN.—I now remember the author that I quoted relative to the history of immersion; and I want you to notice it is that Stuart my opponent spoke of so highly as furthering his views. That is the author I now quote. He says they were disrobed; but I would observe that I did not use the language, although there is nothing improper. Campbell calls Stuart the American Apostle. He brings forward the case of Cyprian and the sixty Bishops, and raises some objections, to which I need only reply and say it was considered valid baptism. Now, would my opponent consider it valid baptism, if a man were sprinkled on his sick bed? He would say "No." And, mark you, it was written by Cyprian that those sprinkled should not be rebaptized. Now, that one point overthrows the whole fabric upon which my opponent has rested that mode of his as essential to the ordinance. But Cyprian and the sixty Bishops thought it was not necessary to baptize again: hence it was thought valid. Cyprian and the Bishops, who met in Carthage, looked upon sprinkling with a more favorable eye than do our opponents at this time. They placed more stress upon baptism in that day than we do now: that is, they connected it with regeneration—that in those men allowing the sick man to be validly baptized, they allowed a great deal more than we would do under our circumstances, because they attached more importance to the rite itself. This Cyprian will be one, together with the sixty Bishops, I shall bring up in favor of sprinkling being baptism. Immersion, he says, was practised extensively in the third century. And so I read from Stuart, but I did not use his own language. When immersion was first discovered it had connected with it many superstitions and absurdities; and it is hard for us, or our opponents, to tell what was superstition, and what was descended from the Apostles. Did they go in for three immersions? No. Then it appears that the practice of the ancients was just of as much good to them as it is good to us. Why, brother Keller would just take away the two immersions, of the sign of the cross, the crism, &c., and leave one immersion; and then it is right. We allow of immersion as well as sprinkling; and in this we are supported by Cyprian and the 60 Bishops. The practice of pouring can be shown as early as is immersion, and a little earlier.—[Here Mr. Owen recapitulated several of the positions taken by his opponents, and which have been noticed repeatedly. He then proceeded.] But, suppose we allow that immersion was the primary meaning, we now ask that he shall prove that baptism is immersion exclusively. They must prove it was so in Christ's day—that he taught immersion.—And, if Christ taught immersion, they must prove that he added a type to immersion. This is brother Keller's duty. He quoted the first text to prove this, and he must show that Christ used it. He asks me to prove to the contrary; and it will be seen, when we get into the Bible, how the term was used by the Jews. Alluding to the different modes of immersion spoken of by his opponent, Mr. O. asked why it is there have been cases in which it was refused to baptize an individual forward? The proof of that can be given when necessary. They have refused to baptize or immerse a man forward in the water, and now my opponent gets up and says—

KELLER.—Do you wish to be corrected? It may save some trouble. I said that the act of baptism was immersion, and that it could be performed in different ways. I did not say we allowed it. I say the action could be performed in different ways; but we do not practice it.

OWEN.—Then why refuse to put a man in forward?

KELLER.—There is a man here who would put candidates in forward.

OWEN.—But, I can point to a case where a man was refused.

KELLER.—That may be.

OWEN.—My friend says, how could Noah and his family be sprinkled, if the water never touched them? I would submit how could they be immersed if the water never touched them? Because it is to be a figure, of course, of baptism. He said they must be immersed, because baptism means immersion. That is just what he has got to prove. And this congregation has to decide whether he has proved it. When a favorite theory is to be maintained, everything must bend and square itself up to that theory. He says that Carson says, the term is always literal. I will here quote a passage from Rice and Campbell, p. 68.

"A word," says Mr. Carson, "may come to enlarge its meaning, so as to lose sight of its origin. This fact must be obvious to every smatterer in philology. Had it been attended to, Baptists would have found no necessity to prove that bapto, when it signifies to dye, always properly signifies to dye by dipping; and their opponents would have seen no advantage from proving that it signifies dying in any manner." Again, "Bapto signifies, to dye by sprinkling, as properly as by dipping; though originally it was confined to the latter."—Again, "Nor are such applications of the word to be accounted for by metaphor, as Dr. Gale asserts. They are as literal as the primary meaning. It is not by extension of literal meaning, and not by figure of any kind, that words come to depart so far from their original signification."

OWEN.—It was a hard stroke on Campbell.

KELLER.—It is not a fair quotation. I am better prepared to speak for myself than brother Owen.

OWEN.—Why, the gentleman himself has been quoting all the time from authors, many of them I have never seen. It is to be supposed that the authors were honorable men; and if the quotations were not given right, how came it that Campbell never contradicted them?

KELLER.—I don't want any charges to be made against Carson, of which he is not guilty.

OWEN.—Now, mark you, if this quotation is true, they feel it. If it is not true, Campbell would not be the man, a third time, to pass it over.

KELLER.—We don't know that he passed it over.

OWEN.—He passed it over in the discussion, certainly. My opponent says that the baptism of the Spirit was not real, but figurative.—Don't you suppose the Holy Ghost was given on the day of Pentecost? Now, it is said it was figurative. What was that figure? It was pour. It was figurative, given to an idea. And that figurative idea was called pouring. Therefore John, I say again, was on our side. "I will pour out my Spirit on all flesh," &c.

You may glean knowledge by reading, but you must separate the wheat from the chaff by thinking.

Leaves torn from the Scrap-book of Thought.

LEAF THE THIRTEENTH.

The End of the World.

(CONCLUDED.)

The human mind, gigantic as it is, cannot properly understand a subject without a full acquaintance with it. It is so with the great subject of the consummation of the earth's history. We have detached particles of prophecy with regard to that event, scattered plentifully through the sacred Scriptures, and as Christians we admit the truth of the predictions, and expect such an event. For the righteous, as we have remarked, it will be the most joyful period in history; and, though the mind cannot perfectly understand the tragic solemnity and momentous greatness of that time, yet we may safely conclude, by what has been revealed in the Bible, that for the wicked it will be an era of the most terrible punishment and overwhelming justice—exceedingly distant beyond the greatest stretch of fancy and the remotest line of thought. Imagination may revel in the mazes of the future and roam to its utmost limit, but it will never exceed the awful reality of that great event.

Among the immense squadrons that shall then be assembled upon the face of the earth, many will—alas!—be the trembling expectants of the fearful damnation they labored for during their lives. Of the hundreds of thousands who annually expire by the use of intoxicating beverages, oh!—what an army might be composed!—reeling, tottering to the grave, they rise from it in the same postures!—it is a fearful fact to know that God has emphatically declared—"No drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of heaven!"

And the liar—the one who speaks an untruth—who wilfully deceives his fellow—the liar—"he shall have his portion in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone!" Are there many liars!—the lamentable fact is too true! It will swell the host of the accursed to an undistinguishable length. God has said it.

And the proud—oh! ye proud—haughty—conceited living sepulchres of Gomorrah!—listen—"In the day that cometh," saith the Lord God of Hosts, "all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be as stubble," and the fire of his wrath shall burn them up with a never consuming fire! Another countless legion to double the host of the lost!

And, the murderer, fornicator, thief, and sensualist—shall all help to increase the doomed army. But they need not be particularized. All the guilty men of Christendom know their duty and their sin. They are acquainted with their own hearts, and are well aware of their unfitness for Heaven.

Oh! ye roaming spirits of the untombed host!—howl ye aloud, till your echoes awaken the nations from their lethargy!—and weep ye for yourselves--for the wrath of God is terrible!

In the final day, when the wicked and righteous shall be judged, the earth shall be burned and purified; after which the redeemed shall inhabit it to live forever and ever with their Saviour, and "the wicked shall be turned into hell with all the nations that forget God."—The terrors of that hell—Oh! who can describe them? The devil and his angels shall regale their new found comrades upon the bitterest cups of despair, and "the smoke of their torment shall ascend up forever and ever!"

"For the Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels, and then he shall reward every man according to his works." "And whosoever was not found written in the book of Life, was cast into the lake of fire!" Sinner! "Flee from the wrath to come!" J. F. W., Jr.

Baltimore, Md., Sept., 1849.

Design of the Gospel.

BY M. M. UTLEY.

What is the design of the Gospel? For what purpose was it sent? Was it not to open the eyes of the blind, to unstop the ears of the deaf, and to give light to the Gentiles? Jesus Christ is the institutor of the Gospel; and he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. Now, I argue that the design of the Gospel is the conversion of the world. But, says an objector, the world, or all the wicked, will not be converted before Christ's second coming. I know that; for all will not comply with the conditions, though sufficient means have been provided in the Gospel.

But again, for what did Christ come? I answer, to make an end of all sin, and to bring in everlasting righteousness; or, to make a full end of the Jewish law, and to establish the Gospel; the design of which is, to bring about a state of peace in the Church. Isaiah 2: 4. Now, I ask, when did this peaceable kingdom of Christ commence? I answer, about the time of Peter's preaching on the day of Pentecost. For a proof of this, I refer you to Acts 2: 17. "And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh." It shall come to pass, when? Why, in the last days. When did the last days commence! I answer, again, when Peter preached. Not until then was there a full developement made of the Gospel. Now, I argue, that Christ's peaceable kingdom is on earth, and peaceable Christians are the subjects of that kingdom. Isaiah says, "Ye shall learn war no more." We live in the time in which the lion is to be changed to a lamb. See Isaiah 11: 6.

Agian, Isaiah 2: 2, speaking of Christ's kingdom, says, "And it shall come to pass in the last days, (that is the Gospel days,) that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills." This certainly has allusion to the spread of the Gospel.

I am an inquirer after truth. If I have misapplied these Scripture passages, I want some courteous writer to take up the subject, and give the true view thereof.

May 2, 1850.

The Camp-Meetings.

As brother Winebrenner has gone West, and will not be likely to return by the usual Camp-meeting season, I presume the project of holding a "model Camp-meeting," as proposed by him at the last session of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, is abandoned; therefore I would suggest that brother John Bowman's plan be tried by some of the churches this year.

Let all the families that can do so, tent out as usual. But instead of making slaves of some of our most benevolent sisters by keeping them busy all the day, cooking, &c., let there be a general boarding-tent opened on the following plan, viz: Appoint a willing committee of five responsible brethren to arrange and manage matters: Provide sufficient provisions for use, and employ suitable persons to do the work.—Let a long shed be put up for the table, and furnish meals to all who wish them, at the lowest reasonable price, so as to pay all the expenses and leave a surplus of from $25 to $50. Horse feed to be furnished in the same way. The particulars of the plan were published in the "Advocate" of last year, I think. Let those who have no tents there, and who can afford to do so, pay their board and horse-feed. And let the surplus money be divided either among the preachers, or used to defray camp-ground expenses and that together. Try it, brethren, you will find it to be a good plan. J. F. W.

Letter from Bro. Thos. Hickernell.

February 21, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

Having a few leisure moments, I wish to improve the same in writing for the Advocate. I have labored in several protracted meetings since I wrote last, which wound up with the best of consequences. Believers were strengthened, mourners comforted, and backsliders reclaimed. I here give the particulars in the following order.

Whitley County, Indiana, Protracted Meeting.

This meeting was held at brother Comp's, near Columbia, and wound up in the conversion of five precious souls; and one of that number was baptized. Those who were forward for prayers, were principally of German extraction: and one of the company was a woman from Germany, a member, probably, of the Lutheran Church. Brother Thomas came to my assistance on the evening of the 9th of January. The meeting continued until the Tuesday evening following. On Tuesday morning I left to fill other appointments at brothers Philip Baker's and Latta's, while brother Thomas carried on the meeting at Comp's.

Kosciusko County Protracted Meeting.

This meeting was held in Clay township, in Rhoads' School-house, in the settlement of the Beich's and Snoak's. The meeting commenced on the 16th of February, and continued till the 18th. Some eight or nine were forward for prayers during the meeting, and six or seven professed conversion. I had brother Hood to assist me part of the time. I preached to a full house at brother John Hibschman's, near Warsaw, on the evening of the 19th inst. On the 20th I embarked for Marshall county, to preach in the neighborhood of F. N. Thompson's. I am now at brother Thompson's, and find them in good health, with their faces Zionward, and exceedingly anxious to have us to preach here. From here to Laporte it is 40 miles, by the way of Plymouth. Brother Thompson lives ten miles east of Plymouth, on the road leading to Warsaw. I relate this for the satisfaction of those that may travel through this way to Illinois. By measuring on the Atlas, I find it is one hundred miles from Laporte to Ottawa, on a straight line.

I held another three-day's meeting at brother Meloy's, in the same county above named. He lives two miles west of Syracuse. This meeting was well attended, and the word appeared to have a good effect; but the people in the vicinity of Syracuse are generally very wicked. I went from thence to Martin's, Lagrange county, and preached there several days. Two professed conversion while I was there, and one since I left, and about 25 before I came there, under the labors of J. Martin and A. Mencly. The Church there is in a prosperous condition.

Troy Township, Whitley Co., Protracted Meeting.

This meeting commenced the 2d of March, and broke up on Monday evening. Nothing special took place in the meeting. The Baptists had a four week's meeting in that place; and, if I have been correctly informed, baptized about 25 persons.

I am now holding a five-day's meeting at brother Haddix's, in the northeast corner of Decalb county. So far I have had but little success. I formed a Church last night of three members. I had brother J. Martin to assist me in the meeting up to this date, March 12th.

Yours, &c., THOS. HICKERNELL.

Letter from Brother G. U. Harn.

Foot of Dry Ridge, Bedford Co., Pa., May 27, 1850.

Brother Flake:—

Please receive my congratulations on the assumption of your new position as Editor and preacher at Harrisburg. The Elder, his daughter, and myself, are now lodging near the Eastern base of the Allegheny, seven miles from Bedford, and one hundred and sixteen from Harrisburg. The scenery amid these gigantic protuberances of nature, is truly sublime at this season of the year. The rich foliage that begins to clothe with a vesture of emerald the rock-ribbed sides and craggy clefts of nature, beautifully variegated with the snowy dog-wood umbrella, presents reviving and cheering reflections, especially when contrasted with the gloom of winter, while each hillock appeared but as a mammoth tabernacle in a tented field. Add to this the interminable roar and mumurings of the mountain rivulets, swollen by the recent rains almost to the size of young rivers, and the scene increases yet in interest. On yesterday (Lord's-day) the West Branch of the Juniata overflowed its banks, and extended in some places hundreds of yards out from the main channel. Fences in great quantities were washed away, and many corn fields severely injured, while some are nearly ruined.

Vegetation here is near three weeks later than about Harrisburg. The apple trees are just now in full bloom, and the peaches are not out of bloom. Fruit generally bids fair to be abundant. I believe I have never seen wheat look more promising at this season. If it yields as abundant as all appearances now indicate, will there not be some difficulty in saving the harvest? as so many of the young men of our country are running off to the golden regions of California.

May 30th.--On reaching the height of the Alleghenies, 2400 feet above the level of the sea, and 2000 above the level of Harrisburg, we discovered vegetation was not less than four weeks in the rear of the vallies this side, and about five of your place. The appearance was quite singular, to see the trees on the top of the Alleghenies as grey as mid-winter, and the forests below covered with a robe of the most luxuriant foliage. This suggests a question as to the reason of this difference in nature.

Fraternally,
G. U. HARN.

Letter from Brother William Vance.

Trenton, Henry County, Iowa, May 20, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

This is to let you and the readers of the Advocate know that the seven families that brother Hickernell published as going to Iowa, have landed there safely. We bade adieu to our friends and native country on the 11th of March, and truly the occasion was a solemn one, and one that will not be forgotten soon by me, as their society was pleasant to me; and I often thought that it would go hard with me, when I could no more see their friendly faces, and hear their voices, and mingle mine with theirs in celebrating the praises of the Lord. And truly it oftimes causes solemn emotions to heave within my breast, to know that we are separated far from each other in this world. But I hope the brethren and sisters with whom I labored in West Pennsylvania, will maintain their integrity in the good cause of the Lord; and while we remain here in the far Western part of the world, we shall endeavor to co-operate with them in maintaining the cause of our Lord and Master: and by so doing, I anticipate that at the farthest, in a few rolling years, we shall enjoy each other's society in a better world, beyond the confines of this unfriendly world.

But for the satisfaction of those whom it may concern, I would say, that on the evening of the 11th I arrived in Pittsburg with my family, and on the 12th the rest of my company arrived. On the 13th we all went on board of the boat called "James Millingar," and on the evening of the 16th we left Pittsburg, and on the 23d we landed at St. Louis, Mo. Here we reshipped for Burlington, Iowa, where we landed on the 29th of March. Our voyage to this place was unpleasant. Our boat was very much crowded. We had 700 passengers on board, 400 of whom were bound for California. The California fever has been very high in this Western country. Hundreds have started for that place to make fortunes; but numbers are coming back with grief and sorrow, and empty pockets. But enough of this.

We have realized considerable trouble since we left Pennsylvania. The trouble was sickness. We had it to contend with when we started, and on the river my family had the diarrhœa and cholera-morbus. Since we arrived here my youngest son has been very ill with the lung fever. He was confined to his bed for two weeks, but at this time is up again. We are all well at present, for which I feel thankful to the giver of all good gifts. All the rest of the company were well the last I heard of them, and they seem to be well pleased with the country. The spring has been very backward. The weather has been cold and unpleasant, till of late it has become warm, and things are putting forth.

All persons wishing to address me, will remember that my Post-office address is Trenton, Henry county, Iowa. No more at present.

I remain yours, as ever,

WILLIAM VANCE.

Letter from Brother A. B. Slyter.

THORN-APPLE, Michigan, June 10, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

HAVING a few things to write for the Advocate, I take the present time. Since I last wrote, there have been some four converted and baptized, and about ten united in fellowship. I feel thankful to the Lord that he still is reviving his work, in spite of all opposition. When I came here last fall, there were no churches here. Now there are six churches and some 75 or 80 brethren and sisters here. A week ago last Sabbath, I preached in Paris, on Church government, and some of the people said, this is the right way. I think the prospects for a revival there are fair. Brethren, pray for us. Yours, truly,

A. B. SLYTER.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Burning of the Steamer Griffith.—The Cleveland Herald gives the following as the substance of the statement of Mr. Parks, one of the passengers on board the Griffith, burnt on Lake Erie:

Mr. R. G. Parks, of Beaver, came on board the Griffith at Erie. When about 14 miles below Cleveland, and about four o'clock, this morning, the Griffith was discovered to be on fire around her smoke-pipe, on main deck. She was about three miles from shore. The Second Mate, then on watch, gave orders to run her ashore. The boat was then headed for the shore, and when about half a mile from shore, she struck a bar, and before the flames burst out above. Immediately after she struck the flames burst out in forward and after cabin and Pilot house. An officer gave word to the passengers to save themselves. Captain Roby gave orders for the wood piles to be thrown over, which was done. The cabin and deck passengers were then jumping over in crowds. The Captain remained on boasd, on the upper deck, forward of wheel-house, until the last, with his family, and until the flames drove him off. He then threw over his wife, children, mother-in-law, and the barber's wife, and jumped in himself, and remained on the surface a moment with his wife in his arms, when they sank together.

No cabin ladies saved except the barber's wife. Mr. Parks thinks there were 15 ladies and children in the cabin. Mr. Parks jumped over; he could not swim; floated to wheel, got upon it, with the barber's wife, a German woman and two cabin boys, where they remained until taken off by a small boat. He counted about 40 persons in all saved. There were about 250 Steerage passengers, and from 45 to 50 Cabin passengers. He thinks in all about 300 persons were lost.

The Cleveland Herald says:

We left the scene of the wreck at two o'clock this afternoon, and at that time one hundred and forty bodies had been recovered, most of them those of German emigrants. The wreck of the Griffith lies about forty rods from the shore, and is a mass of ruins from which the pipes projeet. When she first struck it was in seven and a half feet of water. The emigrants, aroused by the alarm of fire, sprang overboard, and they have been found six or eight linked together in the close embrace of death. An English woman and her four children, who had been sent for by the husband, a resident of this city, had risen early and dressed themselves in their best to greet the husband and father—all were lost. The row of corses along the beach, with green leaves laid over the face of each, and the limbs distorted, was a sight we hope never again to witness—The inhabitants in the neighborhood turned out to give their aid, and when we left long trenches were receiving the unknown dead. Our townsman, John G. Stockley, was looking after the dead, and we saw the tears trickle down his cheek as he placed a mother and three children in the rude boxes prepared for them.

[From the Buffalo Express, June 19.]

The fire was discovered between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning, issuing in flame from the combing of one of the smoke pipes. A strong and determined effort was made to extinguish it, but without avail. Soon it broke out below, and communicated with the cabin, which, in ten minutes time, was wrapped in flame. The alarm was sounded and the passengers waked from their slumbers and told to save themselves. The boat was headed in shore, and the crew and passengers abandoned themselves to despair, as the flames spread with such fearful rapidity as to cut off all hope of escape except by taking to the water. The scene of consternation that ensued was appalling beyond descriptionr The only place that was not pervaded by flame and suffocating smoke was forward, and there the three hundred human beings were huddled, presenting a sight that would appal the stoutest heart. When within less than a mile of shore, the boat struck, and lost her headway.

At this moment the flames were fast approaching the passengers, and soon the heat became so intolerable as to force them into the lake to save themselves from the consuming fire. Within five minutes after the boat stopped she was entirely deserted, and the lake filled with the three hundred persons struggling in the flood. Husbands threw their wives and children into the struggling mass below, and then followed to share a common fate. Mother after mother was seen to toss their offspring overboard, and then betake themselves to the waves in the vain hope of saving them. The lake was still, and the water clear, and within a few minutes nearly all this vast multitude disappeared from the surface, and could be seen on the bottom cling to each other in the cold embrace of death. The family of Mr Heth was found in a group. Captain Roby was locked in the arms of his wife—and poor Donovan, the steward, fell a victim to a determination to save the daughter of Capt. Roby, and was found with her folded to his breast.

The coolness of young Diehl, when he left the boat, is entitled to especial mention. He had been suffering fright severely, but when it really became a question of life or death—when the flames reached out toward him, he saw but one alternative. His heart was nerved in the moment, and fear disappeared. The thought struck him that he must behave as when in the lake bathing, and being a good swimmer, he might save himself. He leaped down the side of the boat, and had scarcely reached the water when one of the fender ropes burned off, and the fender fell in the lake near him. He seized hold of it, and found it capable of buoying up more than himself. At this moment his attention was arrested by the wife of the head waiter, another female, and three children, who were clinging to the side of the boat, nearly exhausted. He went to their assistance, took them on the fender, and swam to the wheel-house, where the six remained clinging to the paddles or rim of the wheel until a boat came and took them on shore.

Mr. Forsyth, Clerk of the Troy, who spent an hour at the scene of disaster on the afternoon of the occurrence, states that there were 85 cabin passengers on board, and 250 steerage, mostly emigrants, nearly all of whom were lost. He furnishes us with the following names of those in addition to what we gave yesterday morning. However, but few of the bodies found could be recognized or known by name.

The Cleveland papers give the following further particulars from Mr. Jas. Stacy, who had just returned from the wreck.

It was supposed that the most of the passengers jumped overboard—but it appears that the boat is literally covered with the bones of the burned.

The citizens in the vicinity of the disaster are doing all in their power to make the survivors comfortable.

Phenomena Attendant upon Immersing the Hands in Molten Metal.—M. Corne, in a paper submitted to the Paris Academy of Sciences, says:—

"Having determined on investigating the question whether the employment of liquid sulphurous acid for moistening the hands would produce a sensation of coldness when they are immersed in the melted metal, I immersed my hands, previously moistened with sulphurous acid, in the melted lead, and experienced a sensation of decided cold.

I repeated the experiment of immersing the hand in melted lead and infused cast iron. Before experimenting with the melted iron, I placed a stick, previously moistened with water, in the stream of liquid metal, and on withdrawing it found it to be almost as wet as before; scarcely any of the moisture was evaporated. The moment a dry piece of wood was placed in contact with the heated metal, combustion took place, M. Covlet and I then dipped our hands into vessels of the liquid metal, and passed our fingers several times backwards and forwards through a stream of metal flowing from the furnace, and the heat from the radiation of the fused metal being at the same time almost unbearable.

We varied these experiments for upwards of two hours; and Madame Covlet, who assisted at these experiments, permitted her child, a girl of nine years of age, to dip her hand in a cruicible of red hot metal with impunity. We experimented on the melted iron, both with our hands quite dry, and also when moistened with water, alcohol and ether. The same results were obtained as with molten lead, and each of us experienced a sensation of cold when employing sulphurous acid."

Steamboat Navigation above the Falls of St. Anthony.—The experiment has fully succeeded. Another link is added to the chain of navigable waters in the Great Valley of the West. The geographer of the last year stated that the Mississippi was navigable for steamboats from the Balize to the mouth of the Minnesota or St. Peter's river, a distance of 2200 miles. In his next edition, he must add another hundred miles, from the Falls of St. Anthony to the Sauk Rapids. He may also be more minute, and encroach slightly upon the grounds of the historian, by stating that during the winter of 1849–50, a few enterprising citizens of Minnesota, aided by some gentlemen of means residing at Bangor, Maine, built at the Falls of St. Anthony a light draught steamer, which they named in honor of our worthy and deservedly popular Executive, Governor Ramsey; that on the 25th of May, 1850, the Ramsey left the Falls on her first trip to Sauk Rapids, freighted, in addition to the good wishes and high hopes of the Minnesotians, with a full cargo of pork, flour, groceries, dry-goods, &c.; and that she fully succeeded in reaching her point of destination, and returned the next day without hindrance or accident. She is now making her three trips per week, going up one day and returning the next. The "Upper Mississippi" is now above the Falls of St. Anthony. Its reclamation from the bark canoe of the red man, by the appearance of the steamboat, marks an era in the history of the Northwest.—St. Paul Chronicle, June 3.

Foreign News.—Rome.—The Pope has published an address and explanation of the startling events of his reign, and commenting on the affairs of the Roman Catholic world. He especially stigmatized the prosecution of the archbishop of Turin by the Piedmontese government. The houses of English residents and others are being closely searched for Bibles, not even excepting the British Consul's.

Prussia.—The king is rapidly recovering. The contest of the Germans for free trade and unity proceeds, but with little prospect of a speedy and successful issue. Vast warlike preparations are said to be in progress, but they are supposed to have reference more to international than to external defence.

Austria.—The latest advices from Vienna give assurance that there is not the slightest prospect of a rupture between Austria and Prussia. The Emperor of Russia has declined to mediate between them. It is said that the Czar will visit Vienna after the conference which is being held at Warsaw.

England.—From a report recently presented to Parliament, it appeared that the largest importation of wheat and flour this year, into Great Britain, has been from France. The quantity from the United States is compartively small.

In Ireland the agitation for tenant rights of a fixation of tenure to the agricultural population is fast gaining ground. Ministers of every creed and politicians of every grade are said to be united to forward the movement.

One hundred Hungarian refugees have landed at Southampton, at Malta. Count and Countess Dembinski were among them.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HISTORIC SKETCH OF OBERLIN.

That portion of the community who are most conversant with religious polemics, and the progress of popular or unpopular reforms, have often heard of "Oberlin" and "Oberlinism," and as the currents of this world run, a certain sort of bad names and fame has attached to the people, from the fact that as a people, the community and the Institution at Oberlin have been conspicuous as earnest and thorough reformers; while as religionists they have verged in one or two particulars from the beaten track of Orthodoxy, and from the iron rail of Sectarianism.

Being in a measure, as a literary and religious Institution a contraband concern, according to the verdict of the rulers in Israel; and the great political parties in its immediate vicinity having taboord Oberlin, for its early and steadfast opposition to slavery, church and state have, as it were, run a muck against this "College in the woods;" and it has had to struggle and strive against the wind and tide of popular opinion for its very origin.

So general is this sentiment of opposition, or of distrust, that in our periodical journals and ecclesiastical bodies, it is scarcely noticed among the religious and educational Institutions of our country: and yet perhaps it is now, and for the last ten years, has been one of the most important and influential literary and religious centers in the Union.

Humble as was its origin—unpopular as has been its position, with its sister school; and unaided as it has been by the rank and power of Church and State: it has nevertheless done a great work, and is still exercising a potential influence upon the community, in promoting solid learning, and a pure and elevated practical religion.

A recent visit to Oberlin has impressed the writer of this article with its importance and value, to the country, and he has thought that a brief history of its origin, progress and present condition would interest our readers, and perhaps correct misapprehensions which ought in justice to them and to the Institution to be removed.

Its origin was on this wise:—About the year 1831, the Rev. Mr. Shipherd and a layman named Stewart, strongly impressed with the religious and educational wants of the Western States, and especially the defective character of female education generally, concluded to make an effort to meet these wants, and first of all undertook to interest the hearts of some others in the common walks of life, in their plans and purposes, and proposed to them to leave their homes, and plant themselves in some new country, constituting a colony of Christians who should consecrate their substance and their energies in establishing an Institution of learning, for the education of the poor, and especially for the training of minds male and female to act well their part as Christian citizens.

In furtherance of their views, the two individuals just named pushed into the woods of Ohio, and finding a tract of forest land, remote from any settlement, and unapproached by any path or highway, and possessing together less than five dollars in money which they could call their own, and having nothing else, they singled out some thousand acres of this wilderness tract, and contracted for its purchase upon credit, with reference to planting a colony, and with the understanding that the colonists should come as Christian missionaries to co-operate with them in their plan of Christian education.

In 1832, some of the colonists came upon the ground, cutting their way through the wilderness to reach the spot where they proposed to erect their temples of science and religion. The colonists were from various New England States, were fervent in piety, zealous in reform, under the deep religious impressions which had characterized the revivals of the few preceding years, and were thoroughly in earnest in their double purpose of promoting the cause of education, and in giving an illustration in practice of their ideal of a Christian community.

Facilities for education at the cheapest possible rate were furnished; manual labor was a condition of membership to the schools, and it was proposed that by the manual labor of each student the entire or a large share of his tuition and board should be paid.

At once large crowds of young men and women flocked to this new academic grove. Log cabins, temporary sheds, and the humblest shelter and plainest fare, with the forbidding appearance of stumps, burnt clearings, and a surrounding wilderness shutting them off from the world without, did not prevent the influx of great numbers of pious young persons who sought an education there, to be acquired by the sole labors of their own hands; the colonists' houses were filled with these new comers, and the hospitality of the people was stretched to its utmost capacity in giving them shelter and a home.

In 1835, or there about, the anti-slavery excitement running high, Oberlin distinguished itself for its uncompromising espousal of the rights of man, and upon the accession of some sixty recusant theological students from Lane Seminary; and the initiation as President of the Institution, of Rev. Asa Mahan, and to the chair of Theology of the celebrated C. G. Finney, it assumed a new and more imposing phase. It now became a complete and thorough Institution; comprising a preparatory, collegiate and theological department, and has gone on from year to year in a course of success, and with a power and influence, remarkable and unexampled; when it has been considered how mighty and how many have been its enemies—how few and how feeble have been its friends.

For the last ten years, its average number of pupils has been rather more than five hundred, and being generally from the humbler walks of life, their average age is perhaps something beyond that of our college students generally—although many of them have not reached the college classes.

Oberlin is one of the precious monuments of the power and energy of American yeomanry. The wise and the mighty, the ecclesiastics and monied aristocracy did not lay its foundations;—have not bid it God speed on its way;—the widow's mite, the believer's prayer, the poor man's efforts have reared its walls; have cherished its progress, have made it a blessing to mankind.

Oberlin is a little Christian republic. The Institution is a democratic and Christian school. It has been, it is, eminently useful. Its peculiarities have been exaggerated, its sentiments misunderstood, and hence misrepresented. But prejudice is wearing away, its influence begins to be acknowledged as healthful and conservative of all that is good, and even its enemies are inclined to admit that it is "more sinned against than sinning."

Oberlin is situated in the county of Lorain, State of Ohio, about 30 miles South West from Cleveland.—Rochester Daily American.

EDUCATION.

An education is a young man's capital; for a well-informed, intelligent mind has the best assurance of future competency and happiness. A father's best gift to his child then is a good education. If you leave them wealthy, you may assure their ruin; and at best you only leave them that which at any moment may be lost. If you leave them with a cultivated heart, affections trained to objects of love and excellence, a mind vigorous and enlarged, finding happiness pure and elevated in the pursuit of knowledge, you effect an insurance on their after happiness and usefulness. Unless you bring up the young mind in this way, you cannot with any justice, claim for its possessor independence. Your children must be virtuous, or they will not desire it. They must be intelligent to have intelligent associates, as they must have habits of industry and sobriety to make the company of the industrious and sober agreeable. It is in your power to bestow this virtue, this intelligence, and these golden habits. Present them a good model in your own life, and give them every opportunity to cultivate the heart and the understanding.—Spare not expense on your school, and put into your children's hands everything that may encourage or assist them in their mental or moral improvement.

ANECDOTE OF A NEWFOUNDLAND DOG.

A gentleman connected with the New Foundland fishery was once possessed of a dog of singular fidelity and sagacity.—On one occasion a boat and crew in his employ were in circumstances of considerable peril just outside a line of breakers, which, owing to some change of wind and weather—had since the departure of the boat, rendered the return passage through them most hazardous. The spectators on shore were unable to render any assistance to their friends afloat. Much time had been spent, and the danger seemed rather to increase. Our friend, the dog, looked on for a length of time, evidently aware of there being great cause for anxiety in those around. Presently, however, he took to the water, and made his way through to the boat. The crew supposed he wished to join them, and made various attempts to induce him to come on board; but no! he would not go within their reach, but continued swimming about a short distance from them. After a while, and several comments on the peculiar conduct of the dog, one of the hands suddenly divined his apparent meaning. "Give him the end of a rope," said he; "that is what he wants." The rope was thrown, the dog seized the end, in an instant turned round and made straight for the shore; where a few minutes afterwards boat and crew, thanks to the intelligence of their four-footed friend—were placed safe and undamaged. Was there no reason here?—No acting with a view to an end for giving a motive? Or was it nothing but ordinary instinct?—Rev. J. Atkinson, "in The Zoologist."

BOOKS.

"When everything else fails—when fortune frowns, and friends cool, and health forsake us—when this great wide world of forms and shows appears a "two-edged lie, which seems but is not," when all our earth clinging hopes and ambitions melt away into nothingness,

"Like snow flakes on a river,
One moment white, then gone forever,"

We are still not without friends to animate and console us,—friends, to whose immortal countenance, as they look upon us from Books, we can discern no change; who will dignify low fortunes and humble life with their kindly presence; who will people solitude with shapes more glorious than ever glittered in palaces; who will consecrate sorrow and take the sting from care; and who in the long hour of despondency and weakness, will send healing to the sick heart, and energy to the wasted brain."

SABBATH SCHOOLS.

What rich fruitage has this blessed system already yielded! The Sabbath school is a nursery of national righteousness. It has supplied men of integrity for responsible stations in society. It has, from year to year, replenished the Church of God with new members. It has provided the ministry of our land with not a few of its illustrious ornaments; and has given the first impulses of seraphic zeal to many of the most distinguished missionaries of modern times. And who can compute the number of dormant minds it has quickened into activity; the trailing virtues it has supported and invigorated; and the thriving vices it has withered, uprooted, and destroyed!—John Allan Quinton.

POETRY.

From the Knickerbocker.

THE "HOUSEHOLD DIRGE."

BY R. H. STODDARD.

I've lost my little May at last!
  She perished in the spring,
When earliest flowers began to bud,
  And earliest birds to sing;
I laid her in a country grave,
  A rural, soft retreat,
A marble tablet o'er her head,
  And violets at her feet.

I would that she were back again,
  In all her childish bloom,
My joy and hope have followed her,
  My heart is in her tomb!
I know that she is gone away,
  I know that she is fled,
I miss her every where, and yet
  I cannot make her dead!

I wake the children up at dawn,
  And say a simple prayer,
And draw them round the morning meal,
  But one is wanting there!
I see a little chair apart,
  A little pinafore,
And Memory fills the vacancy,
  As Time will—nevermore!

I sit within my room, and write
  The lone and weary hours,
And miss the little maid again
  Among the window flowers,
And miss her with her toys beside
  My desk in silent play;
And then I turn and look for her,
  But she has flown away!

I drop my idle pen and hark,
  And catch the faintest sound,
She must be playing hide-and-seek,
  In shady nooks around;
She'll come and climb my chair again,
  And peep my shoulder o'er;
I heard a stifling laugh—but no,
  She cometh nevermore!

I waited only yester-night,
  The evening service read,
And lingered for my idol's kiss
  Before she went to bed;
Forgetting she had gone before,
  In slumbers soft and sweet,
A monument above her head,
  And violets at her feet!

THE GREAT HEREAFTER.

BY OTWAY CURRY.

'Tis sweet to think, when struggling
  The goal of life to win,
That just beyond the shores of time
  The better years begin.

When through the nameless ages
  I cast my longing eyes,
Before me, like a boundless sea,
  The great Hereafter lies.

Along its brimming bosom
  Perpetual summer smiles,
And gathers like a golden robe,
  Around the emerald isles.

There in the blue long distance,
  By lulling breezes fanned,
I seem to see the flowing groves
  Of fair old Beulah's land.

And far beyond the islands
  That gem the waves serene,
The image of the cloudless shore
  Of holy heaven is seen.

Unto the great Hereafter,
  Aforetime dim and dark,
I freely now and gladly give,
  Of life the wandering bark.

And in the far-off haven,
  When shadowy seas are passed,
By angels hands its quivering sails
  Shall all be furled at last.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 23d ult., by Elder J. J. Miller, Mr. PHILIP V. DANNER, of New Cumberland, Cumberland county, to Miss ANN MAGLOCKLEN, of Perry county, Pa.

On the 11th ult., by the Rev. Chas. A. Hay, Mr. WILLIAM BROOKS, of Dauphin, to Miss ANN MARY ULRICH, of Harrisburg.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—On the 24th of May, 1850, at her residence in Highspire, Lower Swatara township, Dauphin county, Pa., Mrs. MARGARET ROOP, wife of the Rev. Jacob Roop, Sr., of Highspire, aged 66 years and 29 days.

Mother Roop was a kind and affectionate mother to all who became acquainted with her. She was always administering some good to the poor and to the afflicted. She was useful in may respects, and was always willing to lend a helping hand to whatever was in her power. She was respected by all, and beloved by many. Sister Roop was truly a mother to the motherless. O! that our loss may be her eternal gain. A funeral discourse was preached by Rev. D. O. Ferrel, from the 39th Psalm and 4th verse. Hymn sung, 328th, Common Metre.

"Thee we adore, eternal name,
  And humbly owe to thee;
How feeble is our mortal frame,
  What dying worms we be."

May the Lord sanctify this dispensation of his afflicting Providence to all her relatives and neighbors. Her sickness was but of one week's duration; after which she expired without a struggle or a groan.

GEORGE GARMAN.

Highspire, May 27, 1850.

On the 1st of May, 1850, at Johnstown, Cambria county, Penn'a., after a protracted illness, NANCY DAVIS, wife of Wm. Davis, V. D. M.

She has left a husband and three children to mourn her departure; but their loss is her gain. She embraced religion about nine years ago, and maintained her integrity until death. She was an honored member of the Church of God. About an hour before she died, she called her husband to the bed, and said, "I am going home, and when I get there, I will look for you to come, and to bring the three children along," and then closed her eyes in peace.

WM. DAVIS.

June 10, 1850.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Camp-meetings in Ohio.

1, One in the bounds of the Chester Church-Chester township, Wayne county, commencing on the 15th of August.

2. One in Summit county, near East Liberty, commencing on the 22d of August.

3. One on the old camp-ground, one and a half miles West of Reedsburg, Ashland county, commencing on the 29th of August.

Indiana-Camp-meeting.

A Camp-meeting will be held in the bounds of the Church in Decalb county, in the neighborhood of brother Joseph Walters', five miles southeast of Auburn, commencing on the 23d of August.

Camp-meetings for Schuylkill Circuit.

The followinging Camp-meetings will be held on the Schuylkill Circuit, viz:

One in Mahantungo Valley, on the land of brother George Hepler, commencing on Monday, the 12th of August next.

The second will be held at brother George Kimmel's, one and a half miles east of Orwigsburg, commencing on Monday, the 26th of August.

The German preachers are all invited to attend the above Camp-meetings.

J. KELLER.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—WHEAT,	per barrel,		$4	62½	a 4	75
Do.	RYE,	do. - -	2	50	a 2	50
Do.	CORN,	do. - -	2	37½	a 2	37½
GRAIN—WHEAT,	per bushel,		1	05	a 1	10
Do.	RYE,	do. - -		56	a	56
Do.	CORN,	do. - -		45	a	50
Do.	OATS,	do. - -		36	a	36
Do.	BARLEY,	do. - -		60	a	65
SEEDS—CLOVER,		do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do.	TIMOTHY,	do. - -	2	25	a 2	50
Do.	FLAX,	do. - -	1	05	a 1	25
BEEF, per cwt.	- - - -		5	00	a 5	50
PORK, do.	- - - - -		5	00	a 5	25
HAMS, per pound,	- - -			8	a	11
BUTTER, do.	- - - - -			10	a	10
LARD, do.	- - - - -			8	a	8
TALLOW, do.	- - - - -			8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried)	per lb.			6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,	- - - -			10	a	10
POTATOES, per bushel,	- -			56	a	62½
ONIONS,	do. - - -			75	a	87½
APPLES,	do. - - -		1	00	a 1	12½
PEACHES, (Dried)	per bush.		1	25	a 1	30
FEATHERS, per pound,	- -			37½	a	45
WOOL,	do. - - -			30	a	50
SALT, per sack,	- - - -		1	20	a 1	20
HAY, per ton,	- - - - -		10	00	*a*10	00
PLASTER, per ton,	- - -		4	00	a 4	00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—WHEAT,	per barrel,		$5	25	a 5	25
Do.	RYE,	do. -	3	00	a 3	00
Do.	CORN,	do. - -	3	00	a 3	00
GRAIN—WHEAT,	per bushel,		1	18	a 1	22
Do.	RYE,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	CORN,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	OATS,	do. - -		43	a	43
Do.	BARLEY,	do. - -		65	a	68
SEEDS—CLOVER,		do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do.	TIMOTHY,	do. - -	2	75	a 3	00
Do.	FLAX,	do. - -	1	35	a 1	40
BEEF, per cwt.,		- - -	7	00	a 8	75
PORK, do.	- - - - -		7	00	a 7	25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

THE Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo decimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

Missionary Pledges.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	-	5 00
Isaac Miller, -	-	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,'	-	-	5 00
Geo. U. Hain,	-	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	-	-	10 00
Jacob Miller, -	-	-	10 00
James Miller,	-	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	-	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	-	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	-	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	-	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	-	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	-	-	5 00
James Casey,	-	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of ALL the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.
JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. JULY 15, 1850. NUMBER 6.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fifteen.

Names	Am't. paid	Names.	Am't paid
Adams Samuel K	$1 00	Hatton Mary Ann	$1 00
Anglemyer Joseph	1 00	Hartman Peter	1 00
Bollinger Jacob	1 25	Kline John	1 25
Brown Wm	1 00	Keller Wm	1 00
Cope Mary	1 00	May Jacob (in full)	3 75
Crossman Wm L	2 00	Pence Isaiah	1 00
Carberry J D	1 00	Pickett P G	1 25
City Wm	1 25	Reeme Benjamin	1 25
Fuss Jeremiah	1 00	Strock Joseph	1 00
Gates Jacob	1 00	Senseney Washington	1 00
Goodwin Jacob	50	Taylor Lewis	1 00
Himes Henry	1 25	Wagner Wm H	1 00
Hollinger Seth	1 25	Warren D	1 00
Hollinger Joseph	1 00	Wagner D for H Wagner	1 25

☞ The continuation of the report of the debate on Baptism did not come to hand; and so there is none of it in this number.

☞ Those who are indebted to brother W. for the Advocate, or for books, will confer a favor on him, and his family, by remitting what they owe. Do it quickly.—Editor pro tem.

☞ The Germantown Telegraph says: "Our patrons must not permit the warm weather to interfere with settling their little accounts for subscription, advertising, &c. Warm weather is a capital excuse for not going a sleighing, or filling an ice-house; but none in the world that we can see to withhold "the supplies" from the "editor, publisher, proprietor" of a newspaper."

A Trance.

In the present number of the Advocate there is an exceedingly interesting account of one who lay for some time in what is called a "trance." It is written, and testified to, by a respectable Methodist missionary, and is to be believed, however strange it may seem, if sustained by good testimony.

I remember hearing of, and reading an account concerning Doctor Thomas Say, of Philadelphia, I think a pious Quaker, who was favored with a somewhat similar insight concerning spiritual things, which are hidden from mortal eyes. I think I yet have the little book giving the account. And the trance, or vision, of William Tennent, of New Jersey, a very devout, and useful Presbyterian minister, of former days, will be remembered by many who have read of him.

It seems to be with these, as with St. Paul, whether in the body, or out of the body, they cannot certainly tell, but these things they saw, and heard, and felt. It seems as if the spiritual world were not so far off from us as some imagine, and that the transition from the visible, to the invisible, is very quick, and easy. It is to very few persons, and very seldom, that these solemn scenes are opened; but when our friends do return, and tell us what they have seen, and heard, beyond the curtain of mortality, let us not reject as "idle tales" these glimpses of a spirit world; but more than ever labor, and strive, to have our robes washed white in the blood of the Lamb, and our souls sanctified by the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, so that we may be prepared to mingle with the holy, and the happy, through the long ages of an immortal life in heaven. J. F.

A Solemn Question.---J. F.

"Lord, are there few that be saved?"—Luke 13.

It seems an easy thing to ask a very trying and solemn question. Children sometimes surprise, and embarrass us, by the questions they ask—and we ought to be prepared to answer. Many questions were put to our blessed Lord; some prompted by curiosity, some by yet better motives, and sometimes to ensnare him in answering.

It is with us at times the best to be silent, and not attempt to answer, unless we can do so truly, and for edification. But our Saviour's wisdom equalled every call, although he gives not, in this instance, a direct answer, but yet a solemn and impressive response to the inquirer.

Are there few that be saved? that is, are there few or many souls that find their way to paradise when the body dies, and who will come forth with Jesus when he comes at the resurrection of the just. Do you think it would add to your comfort, and happiness, to know whether you, and your friends, and acquaintances, will be among the happy number?

As it regards yourself individually, if you are a true believer, you may, through grace, be satisfied on this point. For true religion tends to assurance, and certainty--not doubt. Your faith may become strong, like that of Paul, who speaking of himself and his brethren says, "We know that if the earthly house of our tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

This strong faith—this knowledge, and assurance, was not peculiar to Apostles, and primitive Christians, but it is the privilege of all true believers to have the same confidence. You may know that you are going to heaven yourself, but as to whether there will be few or many saved at last, it is better you should not know at present.

Our Saviour says, "Strive to enter in at the strait gate." There is a great work for every one to do—each one for himself must enter—and also do what you can to assist those around you to enter in, while the door is open. In order to this we must strive—pray—watch—labor.

To be sure salvation is by God's free grace; for He has opened the door, and gives the gracious call, and lends a helping hand; but we are to yield obedience to that call, and enter in, while yet it is the day of our merciful visitation.

The World around us, in the Summer of 1850.—J. F.

The world rolls on quietly, from day to day, considering that we live in the nineteenth century—in the age of movement. Congress has not yet settled the conflicting claims of North and South, as to whether we shall, or shall not, have more slave territory.

There is no war on our continent, and every land on the face of the earth just now, seems to be taking time to breathe, and think; and the mighty armies of the European nations, have a short time to rest from their fearful work of taking human life. On the fourth of July, 1850, there was no war going on all over the world, that we know of—let it be remembered—and let us rejoice.

In the meantime, the skill and energy of our countrymen is exerted in spreading over the land the iron railroad, with the fiery locomotive, and the handsome car holding fifty, who are comfortably seated, and urged onward, over hill, and valley, and stream, at a speed of fifteen, or thirty miles an hour. And what the locomotive does on the land, is also done by the steam vessel on the water. But a fearful risk is still attending these results of human ingenuity and power. How imperfect are all the works of man.

And every where throughout our wide extended land the fields are covered with grass, and grain, and fruits, and flowers, and in the Northern States the free laborer gathers in the harvest, working in the hot sunshine with strong limbs, and a willing mind. And in the South, the poor black slave also toils—but he does not even own his own limbs—and his wife and children are not his property. God sends rain, and sunshine, and fruitful seasons, to the just man, and also to the unjust, for the goodness of God is intended, if possible, to lead the sinner to repentance.

Almost every one is busy; employed in trade--or farming--or mechanics--or in the cotton factories, springing up all around--where hundreds and thousands, especially young women, find employment, and help to support aged parents, or orphan brothers and sisters. In Harrisburg, they are just about to open a fine and large cotton factory, which is the first, but we hope it will be followed by other similar establishments, for the good of the whole community.

And so the world rolls on--many taking a long or short journey from home, for pleasure, or health, or business--and some few can say, like John Newton said,

"From pole to pole, let others roam,
And search in vain for bliss;
I am contented still at home,
The Lord my portion is."

So that in our land, at the present time, it seems to be the day of prosperity--the nation feels its strength--and if the union of the States can be preserved--no danger from abroad is feared.

And only think of the constant stream of emigration which is pouring on our shores, especially from Germany and the British Islands. I think it is at least a quarter of a million souls every year who come to find a better home in our land than they had in Europe, where the rich and noble rule, and live in luxury, while the poor millions toil hard for a scanty living.

Such is, and has been, the state of the world; so unequally divided in consequence of man's fallen, and sinful condition. But let us hope that the curse will after a while be removed, and men learn war no more; but the law of Jesus which he taught will be obeyed, and men every where love one another, even as they love themselves. But this will not be until the Saviour comes the second time.

☞ With great regret we announce the death of Gen. Zachary Taylor, President of the U. States. He departed this life on Tuesday evening, July 9th, between 10 and 11 o'clock, after an illness of a few days. His complaint at first was Bilious Cholera-morbus.

Our Western Tour.---No. 3.

June —, 1850.

JOURNAL OF OUR FOURTH AND FIFTH WEEKS.

June 10th.—Finished out, and sent on for publication, a two week's journal. Wrote a letter to my wife. In the afternoon we visited some of our relations and old aequaintances, in Wooster, dined with my sister-in-law, Eliza Winebrenner, and took supper with Mr.——, who is married to Catharine, a niece of mine. They have one child, a sweet little girl, and seem to be doing well, at least, so far as this world is coneerned. In religion, they might, perhaps, do much better, and hope will ere long. In the evening I preached again, in the Baptist house, whilst brothers Harn and Megrew went to Moreland, six miles south of Wooster, to hear a Mr. Parker, a Methodist minister, preach on the subject of baptism; and who, in his sermon, denied baptism by immersion in toto. Brother Harn has agreed to reply to him on Thursday evening, the 13th inst.

June 11th.—Wrote several letters in the morning—dined at brother Smith's, who is married to Elizabeth, also a niece of mine, brother Jacob's second daughter—took a walk to the country, about a mile from town, to see brother —— Crainer, formerly from Linglestown, Dauphin county, Pa., and returned in the evening and took supper with Elder A. Megrew, who is Pastor loci, at Wooster, this year. At candle-light brother Harn preached to quite a respecable congregation, in the Baptist meeting-house. We feel to award a just tribute of praise to the Baptists at Wooster, for the handsome manner in which they treated us, in giving us the use of their house.

June 12th.—We visited Elder J. Funk and family, in the morning—had a pleasant interview with sundry brethren, and dined with brother Spink, who is intermarried with Charlotte, another niece of mine, brother Jacob's third daughter. In the afternoon we left Wooster and went to brother Isaac Tate's, near Moreland, six miles south, where we took supper and stayed over night. In the evening we preached in Moreland, where the brethren have a snug Bethel, to a large congregation, and showed the house to the house, i. e. the Church to the people; from Eze. 43: 10, 11.

June 13th.—We visited Fredericksburg, nine miles south of Wooster—took a view of the Type Manufactory in that place, and dined with brothers H. and P. Cramer, formerly of Elizabethtown, Lancaster county, Pa. In the afternoon we called to see brother E. Rice and family, near Moreland, took supper with them, and then went to meeting again in Moreland, where brother Harn preached, and according to previous notice, replied to the arguments made use of, a few nights previous, by a certain Mr. Parker, a Methodist preacher, in favor of baptism by sprinkling. Mr. Parker had just preached two sermons in Moreland, one on the evening of the 10th, on the mode of baptism, and one on the following evening, on the subject of Feet-washing. In his sermon on baptism, he took the ground, that immersion was not baptism, but that sprinkling or pouring only were valid modes of this ordinance.—Brothers Harn and Megrew had heard his sermon, and had noted down his arguments. To these arguments brother Harn replied, in the presence of Mr. Parker and a large congregation. And, if any man ever had the fallacy of his arguments shown up, to a Belshazzar's trouble, I think Mr. Parker had that night. A more triumphant refutation, of any man's arguments, I believe, I never heard.—Yet, after all, Mr. Parker had the audacity, at the close of the meeting, to rise in the congregation and challenge brother Harn or myself to a public debate, either on the subject of Baptism or Feet-washing. This, he was told, was merely done for effect, as he knew we were on a journey through some of the Western States, and had a chain of appointments already out, so that it did not suit us to take up the challenge. But, had it suited us to accept his challenge, I for one, should have been very loth to waste my time, in public debate, with a man like Mr. Parker. For I verily believe, that no man, who will venture to assert, in the light of the 19th century, that immersion is not Christian Baptism, is, properly, entitled to belief on any subject. I hold such a man to be hopelessly crooked and perverted. And any man that will so lightly and irreverently ridicule the ordinance of Feet-washing, as Mr. Parker did, is hardly entitled to the honor and respect of a public compeer in the arena of debate. I trust we are not ignorant of satan's devices so far as to suffer ourselves to be drawn aside from the path of duty, by vain babblers. We have not come to this Western country to spend our time in unprofitable debate; and especially not with "men of corrupt minds." No, we have come hither for nobler and better purposes. We have come to do our Father's business, in building up the house or Church of the living God. In doing this, we shall not shun to declare the whole counsel of the Lord Jesus.—We stand for the defence of the Gospel, and all the right ways of the Lord. We invite the people to come and hear us, and to hear us patiently. If our doctrine is not according to the "law and testimony," we ask no man to receive it; but, if it is the doctrine of Christ, no man can overthrow it, and no one should gainsay or reject it.—After meeting we went home with brother S. Metzler and stayed over night.

June 14th.—We returned to Wooster—did some writing—and went to brother C. Huff's for dinner. Brother Huff lives about two miles east of Wooster, and is doing well, temporally and spiritually. After dinner we visited brother P. Eberly and family, a few miles from Smithville, and took supper with them. They are doing well and prospering. After supper we went to Smithville, a thrifty village seven miles east of Wooster, and stopped with brother John Zimmerman and family, formerly of Churchtown, Cumberland county, Pa. In the evening we preached to a pretty good congregation.

June 15th.—We had a fine rain during the morning. After the rain we visited brothers Jacob Beelman and family, David Shrom and family, John Myers and family, and John Bricker and family, all of whom we found well and striving for the kingdom. We dined at brother Bricker's, who lives on a fine farm near the town. In the afternoon we went to Madison, a small town four miles north-east of Wooster, on the clay turnpike leading to Cleveland. We stopped with young brother Hollinger—preached in the Bethel in the evening, and after meeting went home with brother Miller, who is married to a daughter of brother Glover's, of Middletown, Dauphin county, Pa. They were well.

June 16th.—This being a fine Lord's-day morning, the brethren and people gathered in from the surrounding neighborhoods in large numbers. We had prayer-meeting at nine o'clock and preaching at 10, A. M., and again at 3, P. M. The congregatinns were large and interesting. We dined with brothers Selby and Tawney, formerly of Carroll county, Md., who reside near the village. About noon we had another fine shower of rain. In the afternoon, after services, we returned to Wooster, and preached in the Bethel, at candle-light, to a crowded house.

June 17th.—Having heard of a two-day's meeting at brother Thomas Hickernell's, near Mendon, Mercer county, Ohio, we took leave of our friends at Wooster, and set out for said meeting. We stopped and dined at brother Remley's, near Jeromesville, and then went on to Ashland, the county seat of Ashland county, where we preached in the Court House, in the evening, to a large and attentive audience. We stayed over night with our old friend and brother, Jacob Myers, who resides there, and has a large practice as a Homœpathic physician. Here also we saw brothers Jacob Burgoyn, Fisic and others.—We hope and pray the Lord will soon raise up a people for his name in that place!

June 18th.—We went as far as Bucyrus, the county seat of Crawford county, and stopped with brother Peter Worst. Here we expected to have an appointment, but brother Worst not having received our letter authorizing an appointment, there was none given out for us. Brother W. and family were well, and treated us well.

June 19th.—We stopped and saw brother Sleighbauch, at the edge of the town, and at whose house the brethren preach. We then journeyed on by way of Wyandot, (10,) Little Sandusky, (15,) Brownsville, (22,) Burlington, (25,) to Kenton, the county seat of Hardin county, and stopped at a tavern. Here we were informed that there was a great revival in progress among the people in Kenton, and that the Methodists, Baptists, and New School Presbyterians were holding protracted meetings. The Methodist meetings had been going on for four weeks, and about 150 had joined their society. How many conversions had taken place among them, we could not ascertain. We attended Methodist meeting that evening. They had a full house and a feeling time.—Some ten or a dozen forward to be prayed for. I saw there brother John Soule, one of the Soule's family, formerly near Linglestown, Dauphin county, Pa.—He told me he had a sister living in the place.

June 20th.—Called to see Soule's sister, married to a Mr. Holmes, the present Sheriff of Hardin county. She seemed very glad to see me, and told me she got religion in one of our meetings many years ago. Her husband, Mr. Holmes, professed to be a subject of the work of grace now in progress in Kenton. The Lord bless them both, and all the young converts in that place! From thence we went that day to Lima, the seat of justice of Allen county, Ohio, where we lodged at a tavern.

June 21st.—We set out for brother Hickernell's, near Mendon, in Mercer county, where we safely arrived in the evening, and found them all well. Brother H. had just got home from a preaching round, on his circuit in Southern Ohio. He lives on a nice little farm of 80 acres—having about one half cleared, and in a good state of cultivation. He seems to be doing well, temporally and spiritually. We tarried with him and his kind family over night.

June 22d.—Brother Harn borrowed a horse and went to the town of St. Mary's, about 15 miles distant, to see some of his relations. I remained at brother H.'s and spent the day in reading and writing. In the afternoon we went over to brother Jas. Anderson's, where the two-day's meeting was appointed. Here we met a number of old friends, brethren and acquaintances. The meeting commenced in the evening, and was held in the barn. The people turned out well, and paid good attention to the word preached. We tarried with brother Anderson and his Christian family during the time of the continuance of the meeting. They have a pleasant home on a good farm, a few miles north-west of Mendon.

June 23d.—This day was remarkably fine. We had three sermons—preached to large, attentive and solemn congregations. Prayer-meeting commenced at 9 o'clock and preaching at 10, A. M. At about 1 o'clock, P. M., the second sermon was preached. Then the meeting closed till evening. After preaching in the evening, we had several mourners and one or two converts. The meeting lasted till after midnight. The Church at Mendon appears to be doing well, and the prospects for a revival are growing brighter. We shall not be surprised to hear of a speedy and large harvest of souls, into the kingdom of God, in that neighborhood. J. W. & G. U. H.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

Letters on the Wing.---No. 4.

Mr. Editor:—

In my last I gave an account of my journey up to my arrival in New York city. Well, I stopped there several days, and went to see a little of the much to be seen; and the following are among the interesting objects that presented themselves to my view in that tremendous city.

The first that I shall notice is Trinity Church, (Episcopalian,) on Broadway, erected in 1841 to 1845. It covers ground about 200 feet long and 80 wide—Besides the main steeple, which is 284 feet high, there are about 50 pinnacles on the building—In the steeple is a chime of nine bells—Some seats are free—House seats about 1000 persons—The organ cost 15,000 dollars—They are going to have another smaller organ for week service—Cost of building $400,000! I admired the grandeur, but lamented the immense extravagance.—There are about 225 churches in the city—many very costly, but none as much so as the above. Among the rest are four floating Bethels for the use of seamen—one of them a very large house with a high steeple.—Episcopalian 2—Methodist 2.

The Post Office is kept in an old Dutch church (150 years old.) Barnum's Museum was undergoing repairs and enlarging—when finished will seat 3000 persons!—There are 1000,000 curiosities in it. The "Sailor's Home" is a large boarding-house on the Temperance principle. The "Pearl Street House" is a large hotel, six stories high, is built on the ruins of the great fire in 1835, when 650 houses were burnt—loss $20,000,000! I visited the "Anatomical Museum." Here I saw much to instruct; and the moral and reflective mind finds much for reflection; while the licentious have ocular demonstrations of the curse God has placed upon their wickedness. Among the curiosities therein was a wax figure of a woman 80 years of age, in France, out of whose forehead a horn, one foot long, had grown, and another shorter one out of her cheek.—I saw one sugar house nine stories high. Many of the houses are six stories, and a great many five and four. I visited the printing offices of the New York "Sun," "Tribune" and "Herald," and saw the latest improved Printing Presses in operation. No one, not even a printer, could have a correct idea of these monster machines without seeing one. They print from 10,000 to 14,000 sheets per hour; and the "Sun" is getting one made to print nearly double that amount! Faustus and Franklin! what would they say to see the operations of printing in these days?

I saw several iron steamships, which have their hulls boarded up with sheet-iron about three-quarters of an inch thick. On one steamship they were building, they intended to put four tremendous boilers, each occupying as much space as a small house. New York being located on the point of land between the Hudson or North, and East rivers, at their confluence, and both rivers being navigable for large vessels, both sides of the city are literally lined for miles, with vessels and steamboats. The streets are very narrow—Broadway being only of ordinary width. They are paving that thoroughfare with square blocks of stone, cemented, so as to be smooth like a brick pavement. The markets there are every week day alike, and resemble meat, garden and fish shops, more than, at least, one of our Baltimore or Philadelphia markets.

Many of the business men reside in the neighboring towns and out in the country; and going into the city in the morning, they dine at the eating-houses, (of which there are great numbers,) and return home in the evening by railroad or ferry boat. Some live 10 to 20 miles out of the city, and travel that distance daily, and live cheaper than if they resided in the city. The ferry boats bring in immense numbers at their early arrivals, from Brooklyn, Williamsburg, Hoboken, Jersey City, and other neighboring towns. O what a place that New York is! What a city of bustle!

Leaving New York, I came over to Jersey City, (opposite, and in the State of New Jersey.) This is quite a large town, with many manufacturing establishments, and some splendid churches. From thence I came to Newark, N. J. This is a lovely city, with thirty-three fine churches, many manufactories and much other business; there being at least 30 leather tanning and dressing establishments. It has a town library of over 3500 volumes; and I presented them with a copy of Winebrenner's Treatise on Regeneration. There are three German churches, and many Germans in the place. The streets are wide and the town is like a garden. Here I was met by Elder Moses Cummings, of Honesdale, Pa., who had invited me to attend the New Jersey Christian Conference, to be held three miles off, in the village of Camptown, commencing on the 18th of May.

In company with Elders M. Cummings, O. Barr, D. Millard, and W. Lane, I rode to Camptown, where we met a considerable number of ministers and delegates, ready to commence business. It being Saturday morning, after organizing, the Conference adjourned till 3 o'clock, P. M., to hear the opening Address by Elder Austin Craig, a young College educated brother, of no ordinary mind. His Address was very searching, and aimed at the destruction of denominational sectarianism and the furtherance of practical piety. When it is published you shall have a copy sent you. On Monday Conference met again and during the day considerable business was transacted, and the session closed in the evening. I was invited with others to participate in the proceedings. During the day I presented, through Elder Cummings, a copy of Winebrenner's View of the Church, his work on Regeneration, and our Hymn Book to the Conference, when he offered a resolution of acceptance, and calling for the appointment of a committee of three to peruse the first two books and report the character of their contents to the next Conference—Adopted. Elder J. C. Goff was President, and Elder A. Craig Secretary of Conference.

Elder Goff is a man something like our Keller in point of moral and constitutional make;—Barr is of that amiable, loving disposition, like our Flake;—Lane is much like (formerly) our West, both in appearance and talent;—Millard (the Author of Travels in Palestine, &c.,) is an old-fashioned man like our Mackey, about his age;—Craig is younger, but gifted similar to our Mooney, and speaks much like him.

From Conference I returned to New York, where I spent a night with Elder Barr, and found a true Christian spirit breathing in all he said on the subject of religion. Leaving New York again, I came on to Morrisville, Bucks county, Pa., (opposite Trenton,) and stopped with Elder P. J. Hawk, Christian minister, residing there, who treated me very kindly—preached in the village that evening; and spent next day and Sabbath at Tullytown, five miles off, among the same people, and preached for them on Sabbath evening. Monday I came on to Bristol, and thence to Philadelphia. Stopping over night there, I "sailed" next day in a steamboat for Baltimore, where I arrived safely on the 29th of May, after a journey of almost four months; during which time I endeavored to preach 38 times in 21 different places, and hope I have done some good.—I am at home at present, but expect to leave again soon; and may write some more letters on the wing. Should any of your readers take no interest in reading these descriptive letters, they will please remember that others do; and if they appear long to them, they will please remember they cover a good deal of ground.

J. F. WEISHAMPEL.

Be Active.

"Press on! there's no such word as fail;
Press nobly on! the goal is near—
Ascend the mountain! breast the gale!
Look upward, onward—never fear!
Why shouldst thou faint? Heaven smiles above,
Though storm and vapor intervene;
That sun shines on, whose name is Love,
Serenely o'er life's shadow'd scene."

Activity is necessary for the success of every cause; nothing succeeds without it. A decline is sure to follow lethargy. For, however brilliant prospects may appear under active movement, no sooner does inaction pervade affairs, than the lustre begins to fade, and things begin to topple to their fall. But to become active we must first become interested; for, to become deeply concerned in any cause, is to work, and with the working comes success. Here, probably, we have a clue to the reason that many persons in every calling are mere drones, parasites and burdens, that will not work themselves, and their example influences others to act similarly. Not feeling interested, they care but little whether things prosper or not, and if they begin to flag, they quickly turn from the cause, and go to something more congenial to their peculiar bent of mind, for they love to swim lazily in the popular channel.

If to be active in business constitutes a good business man—and activity in politics makes a good and true politician, so the person active in religion, is the only good and true Christian. This may seem strong ground. And so it is. But if the assertion holds in one case, it does in the other. If a citizen was in imminent danger of the loss of life or limb, what would the community do? Every person would haste to his aid, and every exertion made to save him unhurt. Would any sane person stand quietly with his arms folded at such a crisis? I opine not. Again, say but that a house is on fire, and scores are in a moment on the spot, and with untiring industry the ravages of the devouring flames are stayed. Here is activity manifested, and how beautifully it commends itself to our best consideration. If there is a scheme of wickedness to be advanced, say war, and with an activity worthy of a better cause, it need only be named to be accomplished; thousands are ready to flock to the standard, and give their time, and money, and sacrifice their lives at the bayonet's point, or cannon's mouth.

But we come to religion, that best of causes, and find the least activity prevailing. Now, in any Church in which the members are active, prosperity reigns, and the flock increases; but let that Church lose its warmth of action, and anarchy and luke-warmness will hurry not a few of its members to ruin. What will make the Church active? Piety. And the more we have of it, the greater will be our desire to see its advancement, and hence exert ourselves to this end, and conversely. To make this more clear we need but observe how energetic Church members are to advance God's cause during a revival of religion; and then, because all are firmly, and actively engaged, and pulling together, how smoothly, easily and gloriously affairs move onward; then none complain about trifles, each one minds his own business, and lends his assistance, and thus the structure is nobly reared.

We profess the religion that makes active Christians. But are we active—are we using all our energy to further the cause we have espoused? If we we have not been trying to advance God's cause, is it not time to begin to do so? If a burden is very heavy, the more that help to bear the weight, the lighter it becomes; if a few only in a given Church must do all the labor, are there not a few other noble spirits, that will come to their rescue, and lighten the toil? For when we come to leave this world, how transporting the thought will be, that we did our whole duty, and, besides, did much labor that others ought to have done, and knowing that our lives have been well spent, our consciences will be clear, and we can die in peace. But how differently must be the feelings of the mere idler, at that solemn period, being conscious that he did nothing, but acted as a barrier; his example keeping others from their duties. He must feel guilty of great neglect of duty, and too late for amendment.

Moreover, how soothing is the thought of giving our little mite of influence to so great a cause; it takes away the pain of toil, and animates us to renewed efforts in this way. The active Christian leaves this world, like a bright star, just set, his sterling splendor is remembered, and a gap is left not easily filled again; but the indolent character is as a blank while he lives, and so he dies; none regret his demise, and the space he occupied is soon filled by a more worthy being, and he is scarcely missed.

G. R.

Elizabethtown, Pa., June 26, 1850.

On Reading the Scriptures.

The Bible is the book which all men should value above all other books in the world, because of its holy origin, and the glorious doctrines it contains. "All Scripture," says the Apostle, "is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." 2 Tim. 3: 16, 17. Hence we see that the Scripture is not of a human, but of a Divine origin. Its author is the everlasting God. Hence, by a candid, prayerful and serious perusal of the sacred volume, we will certainly not be led into error. If those that read the Scriptures go astray, it is not because the word of God is not explicit, but it is because they do not search it in the right way and manner. The Scriptures, if searched in a proper way, are calculated to enlighten our mind, "enlarge our views:" and if we obey its precepts, it will gently and safely lead us along in the path of duty from beginning to the end. It also affords comfort and consolation to the persecuted and afflicted follower of Christ. Like the weary traveller joyfully stops to quench his burning thirst and refresh himself at the crystal fountain that issues forth its waters along his road, so the Christian pilgrim gladly comes to the fountain of all true wisdom, comfort and happiness, there to refresh his drooping spirit. There are many good books now in circulation that may occasionally be read with profit; yet the Scripture is the best reading—it is the fountain; other books are streams, and streams are seldom entirely free from the quality of the soil through which they flow.

As there is a right and a wrong way to read the Scriptures, permit me therefore to suggest a few ideas, showing in what manner we should search the Scriptures.

1st. We should read it with reverence. Many people read the Bible without any esteem for it whatever. They read merely to pass away time, as though they read some other historical book, giving an account of some great men, or of war and bloodshed: though it must be confessed that the Bible contains many historical accounts of nations and individuals. Yet the Bible claims our special regard; and in order to gain a special veneration for it, we should consider, 1st. The character of its author. 2d. The holiness of its doctrines and precepts. 3d. The end to which its doctrines and precepts tend. Any person who can consider these things, and not gain a special regard for the Bible, is worse than a heathen.

2d. We should read it often. What man, travelling to a distant place, would not often inquire after the road that leads to that place, for fear of going astray? Is the Christian exposed to less danger of straying from the path that leads to heaven? Verily not.—Therefore let him, like David, "Meditate in the law of God, day and night." Let it be the "rule of his faith and practice," and it will safely lead him through the gates into the city of the living God.

3d. We should read it with attention. Sometimes people run over several chapters and when they are done, they perhaps have forgotten what they have read, and perhaps are not able to explain a single passage. To understand what we read, we must, 1st. Read slow. 2d. We must pry into the meaning of the passage we read. In order to do so, we must sometimes compare passage with passage. There are passages that we may not easily understand their meaning by reading the single passage; which, if we compare it with other passages, we may at once get the meaning of it. 3d. To understand the Scriptures right, it is not good to read too much at one time. A person may gain more light by reading one paragraph with attention, than by carelessly running over large portions.

4th. We should read the Scriptures with candor. We should deal honestly with the Bible; and to do so, our minds must be open to conviction. Many people who read the Scriptures are not honest before God, especially with regard to some subjects. Now, we must not first form our opinions upon a subject, and then try to twist and turn the word of God to suit our own pre-conceived opinions. We must suit our opinions to the word, and not the word to our opinions. And if we do thus, we may be sure that the word will be a light to our feet.

5th. We should read it with prayer. Our constant prayer to God should be, "Oh! Lord, teach me what thou wilt have me to do; and let thy commandments be continually before me." And when we pray thus, we must, 1st. Feel an ardent desire to have our request granted. 2d. Our minds must be open to receive the instructions of God's Spirit and his word. And 3d. Be willing to follow the Spirit and word of God in all the commandments, from the greatest down to the least.

Thus I have suggested a few ideas of what I believe to be the manner in which we should read the Scriptures, hoping that they will receive a serious and candid perusal by those into whose hands they may come, and have their desired effect.

Fraternally yours,

A. SNYDER.

Matamoras, Dauphin Co., Pa., June, 1850.

Church at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, June 26, 1850.

To the Churches of God throughout Pennsylvania, and elsewhere.

DEAR BRETHREN:—

WE, the undersigned, Elders of the Church of God in Baltimore, feel constrained through our circumstances to call upon our brethren at a distance, to give us their aid in helping us to liquidate the debt of the Church in Baltimore, which is about two hundred dollars, including ground rent. Dear brethren, we are few in number; and besides, we are all poor, or nearly so. We only number about thirty-five members, of which number there are only fifteen that can give any thing at all, and the most of those that do give, have large families and heavy house rents to pay, which renders them unable to pay any more than what they have been paying the two past years. But the Church believes that if they can be set square, that through the exertions of Elder McFadden and the brethren, they can sustain themselves and keep the house clear of debt. Therefore we call upon our brethren to assist us, so that our little Bethel will not be sold. There must be something done by the first of August next, or we will be without a place to worship, which we do hope and pray will not be the case.

But, that our brethren may know whether we deserve their sympathy or not, we will lay before them a true statement of the Church, and what she has been doing the two past years, while brother J. C. Owens was with us. The Church at present, we believe, bids fair. Since brother McFadden has been among us, the congregation has improved very much, and we believe if we can only be set square, we can get along without any or much difficulty. Therefore, dear brethren, we hope you that feel interested for the cause of God, will remember us poor, despised, persecuted Nazarenes, who have been struggling hard for the cause of God, and the principles of the Church, here in Baltimore, and cannot bear the idea of having our little meeting-house sold. So, my brother, do what you can for us, and may God help you. We feel assured that if our preaching brethren who have congregations, would only bring our case before them, they would lend us some aid. And if such of the brethren or sisters as have a dollar, or as much as they can spare, will forward it either to brother Ross, Middletown, Pa., or to brother McFadden, No. 66, Ross street, Baltimore, Md., it will be most thankfully received.

And now we will show you what the little number has been doing the two past years, for fear there might be an impression upon the minds of some, that the Church does nothing, and then we will leave you to judge whether we deserve your sympathy or not. During the two years that brother J. C. Owens was with us, the Deacon received and paid out the following sums:—

Received from the brethren and sisters, as monthly contributions, during the two years, - - -	$275 88
Received from public collections, -	79 11
Total, - - - - - -	$354 99
Paid out as follows:
To brother J. C. Owens, the 1st year,	$121 37
Do. Do. the 2d year,	107 63
For ground rent and other expenses,	112 46
Total, - - - - - -	$341 46
Balance on hand, - - -	$13 43

With the above statement, we hope you will come to our relief; and may the Lord bless you, is our prayer.

WM. M. LEONARD, H. W. GIBSON, } Elders.
GEO. MCCONNELL, Deacon.

Doings of the Standing Committee.

THE Standing Committee met at Harrisburg July 2d, and agreed to the following arrangements:—

1. A Camp-meeting for Dauphin Circuit, to commence on the 19th of August, on the land of brother John Felty, about four miles from Harrisburg, and three from Linglestown. The preachers and brethren are invited to attend.

2. A Camp-meeting for Landisburg Circuit, to commence on Tuesday, August, 27th, on the old camp-ground in Germany, about four miles from Landisburg. The preachers and brethren are invited to attend.

3. A Camp-meeting or a Woods-meeting will be held near Churchtown, to commence on Saturday, August 10th. All the preachers and brethren are invited.

The Standing Committee recommend that the Church at Baltimore appoint brother McFadden to collect all he can immediately toward the payment of their debt. And they request brother McFadden to release brother Price, and take his place in regard to the property.

E. H. THOMAS,
A. SWARTZ.

Letter from Brother A. H. Kauffman.

GRANDVIEW, Louisa Co., Iowa, June 1, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

AFTER returning home from a long tour over the rich Prairies of Iowa, I take my seat to inform you and the readers of the Advocate, that we arrived safe on the banks of the upper Mississippi, well and hearty, after a journey of three weeks. We landed at a town formerly called Bloomington, but of late Muscatine, and remained there five days. We would have stayed at Muscatine, but the emigration to this land of the setting sun has this spring been beyond description, so that every house and room was taken up. We then came to Grandview, where we shall remain for some time.

I cannot give my Eastern friends a full description of this country, owing to the short time I have been here; yet I have been roving considerable for the last week. I have been up towards Linn county, and out on the great Prairie, where there is nothing to be seen as far as the eye can reach, but one unbroken green sheet, with here and there herds of cattle feeding thereon. I have also been through the Muscatine bottoms for 16 miles, and permit me to tell you, that better land the sun never beamed down upon. I have also been over to the forks of the Iowa and Cedar rivers, and kept down through the Iowa bottoms for some distance. This land is indeed hard to be beat. In short, I have seen no poor land in Iowa yet. It matters not where you go in the State, the land is as black as a coal-pit; and for Corn, Oats, Potatoes, and all summer crops, it cannot be equalled.

But this is speaking all about good land, and leaving all inconveniences out of the question, which are not a few. And I would say to my Eastern friends, those who contemplate emigrating to this country, do not expect to find things cut and dry, as they are in old Pennsylvania, for if you do, you are widely out of your reckoning. Indeed, it will be like the turning of a great picture, for you must put yourselves down to hardships and inconveniences, and become as the Patriarch, who was a plain man, and dwelt in a tent. Yet, I cannot say that I am sick of the country; not at all. Neither would I endeavor to discourage my Eastern friends in coming here. I would like you to come on and till the rich soil of this new country of the setting sun. Yet, I would say, come out and pay us a visit before you move your families. It will cost but a trifle; and indeed it is a pleasant route. As you pass along up the beautiful valley of the Juniatta, and through the romantic mountains of the Alleghenies; and as you arrive at Pittsburg, take a view of the smoky city. And, again, as you glide along down below Cincinnati, take a seat on the hurricane-deck and enjoy the cool breezes of the evening, while the majestic steamer plunges along, pushing his way onward towards the father of waters; and as you put your feet upon the rich soil of Iowa, judge for yourselves.

I would not wish to bring an evil report on the land. There is plenty to eat and to drink here; and a finer people I would not wish to live among. Yet we did not feel ourselves at home at first; but the neighbors tell us we shall have patience, and all will come right. And I am sure if some of our Eastern preaching brethren would come along and give us a sermon occasionally, it would add considerably to our joy. No more at present.

Yours, in Christian fellowship,

A. H. KAUFFMAN.

Letter from Bro. F. Swentzell,

A PREACHER IN THE P. METHODIST CHURCH.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19, 1850.

BROTHER FLAKE:—

YOU will please accept this as an expression of an attachment created in former years. I congratulate you upon your newly assumed position, hoping that you will be enabled, by your own acquirements of knowledge, by study, observation and experience of many years, to furnish your readers with a rich variety of wholesome instruction, found in the wide and unexplored fields of literature, where many, by their industrious and studious habits, have been crowned with scientific honors, based upon their attainments and usefulness in training their pupils for the various callings and professions in life. Much, however, depends upon the observance of a simple rule, "that our progress in science should be measured by the practice of virtue." The expanding faculties of a well trained and cultivated mind, longs with burning desire to comprehend the intricacies and mysteries locked up in the deep vaults of nature. With these perplexities the mind is often startled, and for a moment shrinks, and then suddenly its gigantic powers are aroused and fired with the hope of success, until all its attributes resolutely grasp and unravels these mysteries, in the explosion of error, to possess and enjoy the truth.

Without multiplying words on this topic, you will please favor me with your company, to walk a few moments through nature's wide domain, as the bland and beautiful spring has now approached, with its dew and incense, birds and flowers. Here we may gaze with profound amazement and transporting delight, upon the mysterious principle of life, and loveliness of nature; the variegated coloring spread over the face of creation; the towering mountains, and valleys, with rich and pleasant fields, carpeted by the God of nature; the streams gently flowing, with their borders fringed with many willows; the leaves, mechanically formed, appear, and the youthful branches growing daily, "and once beautifully expressed, but no sign of toil, no visible hand to fashion, no model to imitate," forcibly impressed that in the beginning of time, "touched by the finger of Omnipotence," how brightly the wisdom of the Creator shines in vegetable physiology. What thoughts do these scenes awaken in the contemplative mind! Here we stand as living witnesses of the work of our Father; and shall I now inquire, where is your God, ye Christians, where? There is an eloquence unutterable in the early voice of spring, which thrills the heart with joy; but ah! many loved ones, around whom our hearts have fondly entwined, are now sleeping quietly and undisturbed in the silence of the grave, that the fresh opening of joyous spring cannot awake to life and beauty: but, thank God, we hope to hail them in the spring of a blissful immortality, where leaves, nor flowers, shall never decline.

Lest I should occupy too much space, we bid adieu to the physical world, and briefly remark, that there is another subject equally beautiful, and infinitely more important, including the attributes and perfection of the Deity. The dispensation of religion, disclosing the scheme of human redemption, through the death and mediation, resurrection and exaltation of Jesus Christ our Lord; the agency of the Holy Spirit in the regeneration and perfection of the soul; the final glorification of believers, and condemnation of the impenitent; upon these revealed truths we predicate our faith, and reject every thing that is new in religion as false; for it must be remembered that the Apostle of the Gentiles, in the abundance of revelation that he received, obtained no additional knowledge above that which Christ previously taught the Evangelists; and we must not conjecture that the wisdom of the present age, with its boasting metaphysicians and refined philosophers, whose nature is adverse to religion, are capable of restoring long exploded theories, at the expense of the Christian economy. The elements of salvation are like those of our being, "simple in their character, easy of access," and summed up "few in number." Let us be watchful, for many foes our camp surround; and as we have received the Christian science, with its privileges, blessings, and joyous hopes, let us canvass the boundless sea of theological research, the gates of which are accessible to all intelligent beings, to enter and gather the flower, whose fragrance alone can sweeten the air inhaled into our spiritual existence. Have we not hearts to appreciate and minds to maintain them, that they may be perpetuated to the latest generation, until the last weary pilgrim shall be guided to the harbor of rest, and enter with the shouts of angels and the triumphs of the redeemed.

I conclude by wishing you success in your editorial chair, wielding the sword in defence of the truth, and in the proclamation of the Gospel of Christ, and when our warfare is ended, we shall lay our armor by, and be crowned kings and priests unto God and the Lamb forever.

Affectionately yours in Christ,

F. SWENTZEL,

Pastor of the B. M. M. P. C.

OBITUARY OF HENRY BOLINGER.

Died, on the 22d of March, 1850, in Rockland, Venango county, Pa., at the residence of his son, Jacob Bolinger, Henry Bolinger, aged upwards of eighty years.

He had borne arms in defence of his country at the time of the last war between the United States and Great Britain—afterwards lived in the enjoyment of liberty—saw many changes of times and seasons—heard of the dethroning of kings, the downfall of kingdoms and empires: but after spending many years in the service of the prince of darkness, he at last enlisted under the blood-stained banner of Prince Immanuel, which took place about eight years previous to his death, under the labors of T. and J. Hickernell, at the time of their planting the Church in Rockland.—His Christian life was a life of warfare, at times somewhat in doubt, then again expressing great joy in serving God.

For two or three years before his death, he was somewhat childish and doting, his mind being weakened by affliction and age: but for some days before he died, his mind became strong and fully able to reason, expressing a great desire to be absent from the body and to be present with Christ, exhorting his son and family to live the life of the righteous; "For," said be, "heaven is mine, and I wish to meet you all in the kingdom of glory." Thus continuing till about 9 o'clock of the above-mentioned day, the frail bark, which had been driven and tossed by many adverse winds over the ocean and tide of life for many long years, sunk to rest, while the spirit went up to God, to live in the enjoyment of the blest. Funeral services by the writer.

JOHN HOVIS.

June 3, 1850.

OBITUARY OF Father ANDREW BURD.

ANOTHER REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIER GONE.

Departed this life on the 3d of May, 1850, in Greenwood township, Perry county, Pa., father Andrew Burd, aged 87 years, 8 months and 18 days.

He enlisted in the American army in 1776, between the ages of 14 and 15 years; and from the time of his enlistment to the end of the war, he continued an active and faithful defender of his country's cause, the noble freedom and liberty which we now enjoy. He had the privilege of hearing the cheering news of Liberty and Independence proclaimed before the time of his enlistment had expired. Notwithstanding, he bore a large portion of the dangers and fatigues of the war. He was engaged in the bloody conflict of Brandywine, Paoli, and likewise in Baltimore, at the time Cornwallis was taken.

About 17 years ago father Burd enlisted under the banner of King Immanuel, and obtained the evidence of his sins forgiven; and from that time on to his end, he had the evidence that he pleased God. Shortly after his conversion, he was "buried with Christ by baptism," in a creek called Cockelamas, and walked in all the ordinances of God's house. After his conversion, he associated and communed with the Church of God in Greenwood; and to his end he continued a liberal supporter of God's cause. His disease originated by a pain in his left side, which threw him into a continual fever. His sickness was of short duration. He took sick on the night of the 24th of April, and died on the 3d of May.

Thus another veteran of Christ, and our country, has gone to his eternal rest. He has left behind a large circle of friends and relatives to mourn his departure; but they mourn not as those who have no hope, for his end was calm and peaceful. On the 5th of May his mortal remains were conveyed to their final resting place, on which occasion an address was delivered by brother David Grubb, from 2 Tim. 4: 7, 8. A. SNYDER.

Matamoras, Pa., June 29, 1850.

Agents Wanted.

Brother J. F. Weishampel, at Baltimore, wishes to employ a few good, trusty and industrious Agents, to sell the Patent Right of his Revolving Coal Grate Stove, in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, and Western Maryland. Apply for particulars, post-paid, without delay.

New Invention.—Mr. Weishampel, of Baltimore, Md., has been in our place with his patented Revolving Horizontal Coal Grate Stove, which seems to us to be a very convenient article in the Stove line. Mr. W. is a brother printer, and we wish him success in his travels selling his Patent Right.—Pottsville Miner's Journal.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Confession of Professor Webster.—Boston, July 2d.—At the meeting of the Council this morning the case of Professor Webster was referred to a Committee. Before the Committee, at 12 o'clock, appeared the Rev. Dr. Putnam, the spiritual adviser of the condemned, with a petition for a commutation of punishment, together with a confession that he killed Dr. Parkman.

The Rev. gentleman prefaced the statement by a few remarks relative to the manner in which the confession was made to him. He stated that he had no previous acquaintanceship with Prof. Webster, before being called to act in the capacity of his spiritual adviser. In the first few weeks of his visits, he sought no acknowledgement of the prisoner. At length, on the 23d May, he visited him in his cell, and demanded of him, for his own well-being, that he should tell the truth in regard to the matter, and he acceded to the request, by making a statement which was now submitted for the consideration of the Council. The following is an extract of the confession:

On Tuesday, November 20th, I sent a note to Dr. Parkman; it was handed to Littlefield, and was unsealed. It was to ask Dr. Parkman to call on me, as he had become quite importunate about his debt. I wished to gain time. I did not expect to be able to pay him on Friday.

My purpose was, if he should accede to the proposed interview, to state to him my embarrassments and utter inability to pay him at present—to apologise for those things in my conduct which had offended him, to throw myself upon his mercy, to beg of further time and indulgence for the sake of my family, if not for myself, and to make as good promises to him as I could have any hope of keeping. I did not hear from him on that day, nor the next, (Wednesday,) but I found on Thursday he had been abroad in pursuit of me without finding me. I imagined he had forgotten the appointment, or else did not mean to wait for it. I feared he would come in upon me at my lecture hour, or while I was preparing my experiments for it, therefore I called at his house that morning, (Friday,) between 8 and 9, to remind him of my wish to see him at the College at half-past 1, my lecture closing at 1. I did not stop to talk to him, for I expected the conversation would be a long one, and I had my lecture to prepare, for it was necessary for me to have my time, and also to keep my mind free from other exciting matters. Dr. Parkman agreed to call on me as I proposed. He came accordingly at half-past 1 and 2 o'clock, entering at the lecture-room door. I was removing some glasses from my lecture-room table into the room in the rear, called the upper labratory. He came rapidly down the step, and followed me into the labratory. He immediately addressed me with great energy, "Are you ready for me, Sir? Have you got the money?" I replied, "No, Dr. Parkman," and was then beginning to state my condition and my appeal to him, but he would not listen to me, and interrupted me with much vehemence,—he called me scoundrel and liar, and went on heaping on me the most bitter taunts and approbrious epithets. While he was speaking, he drew a handful of papers from his pocket, and took from among them my two notes, and also an old letter from Dr. Hossack, written many years ago, and congraulating him on his success in getting me appointed Professor of Chemistry. "You see," he said, "I got you into your office, and now I will get you out of it." He put back into his pocket all the papers except the letter and the notes. I cannot tell how long the torrent of threats and invectives continued, and I cannot re-call to memory but a small portion of what he said. At first I kept interposing, trying to pacify him so that I might obtain the object for which I sought the interview—but I could not stop him, and soon my own temper was up—I forgot everything and felt nothing but the sting of his words. I was excited to the highest degree of passion, and while he was speaking and gesticulating in the most violent menacing manner, thrusting the letter and his fist into my face,—in my fury I seized whatever was handiest;—it was a stick of wood—and dealt him an instantaneous blow with all the force that passion could give it. I did not know, or think, or care where I should hit him. It was on the side of his head, and there was nothing to break the force of the blow; he fell instantly on the pavement; there was no second blow; he did not move. I stooped down over him and he seemed to be lifeless; blood flowed from his mouth and I got a sponge and wiped it away. I got ammonia and applied it to his nose, but without effect; perhaps I spent ten minutes in attempts to recusitate him, but I found he was absolutely dead. In my horror and consternation I ran instinctively to the doors and bolted them,—the doors of the lecture-room and of the labratory below—and then, what was I to do? It never occurred to me to go out and declare what had been done, and obtain assistance. I saw nothing but the alternative of a successful movement and the concealment of the body, on the one hand, and of infamy and destruction on the other. The first thing I did, as soon as I could do anything, was to draw the body in the private room adjoining; then I took off the clothes and began putting them in the fire which was burning in the upper labratory. They were all consumed there that afternoon, with papers, pocket-book, and whatever they contained. I did not examine the pockets nor remove anything except the watch. I saw that or the chain of it hanging out. I took it and threw it over the bridge as I went to Cambridge.—My next move was to get the body into the sink, which stands in the small private room, by setting the body partially erect against the corner, and by getting up into the sink myself, I succeeded in drawing it up there; it was entirely dismembered. It was quickly done as a work of terrible and desperate necessity.

He then proceeded to state his proceedings after the dreadful deed was done in trying to avoid discovery. We have not room for all. The account closes thus:

After Dr. W. had stated the acts recorded above, on the 23rd May, this question, with all the earnestness, solemnity, and authority of tone that Dr. P. was master of, he thus addressed him: Dr. Webster, in all probability your days are numbered; you cannot, you dare not, speak falsely to me now; you must not die with a lie in your mouth; so prove to yourself that your repentance for the sins of your past life is sincere; tell me the truth then, a confidence to be kept secret during your life time and as much longer as my regard for the happiness of your family shall seem to me to require, and the interest of truth and justice to permit,—search the bottom of your heart for the history of your motives, and tell me before God, did it never occur to you before the decease of Dr. Parkman, that his death, if you could bring it to pass, would be of great advantage to you, or at least that personal injury to him might possibly be the result of your expected conference with him? As a dying man I charge you to answer me truly and exactly, or else be silent, had you not such a thought. "No, never!" said he, with energy and feeling. "As I live, and as God is my witness, never! I was no more capable of such a thought than one of my innocent children; I never had the remotest idea of injuring Dr. P. until the moment the blow was struck. Dr. P. was extremely severe and sharp, the most provoking of men, and I am irritable and passionate; a quick handed and brief violence of temper has been a besetting sin of my life: I was an only child, much indulged, and I have never acquired the control over my passions that I ought to have acquired early, and the consequence is all this." But you notified Dr. Parkman to meet you at a certain hour, and told him you would pay him when you knew you had not the means? 'No,' he replied, I did not tell him I would pay him, and there is no evidence that I told him so, except my own words spoken after his disappearance, and after I had determined to take the ground that I had paid him; those words were of the miserable tissue of falsehood to which I was committed from the moment I had began to conceal the homicide—I never had a thought of injuring Dr. Parkman. This was accompanied by the statement which Professor Webster attempts to explain as to his seeing Littlefield sending for blood and of inquiring about gases from the vault—after receiving the statement, Doctor Putnam proceeded to argue its truthfulness, saying that it was made when the writ of error was still pending. Also that Professor Webster's estate was worth several thousand dollars, and that he was not in such a straight as to commit such a crime deliberately. The previous petition from Professor Webster, protesting his innocence and praying for absolute pardon, he said, was got up by his family, who were unwavering in the belief of his innocence, until his confession was communicated to them about a week since.

He concluded in asserting his belief that the confession was true. Members of the Council have retained a copy of the petition previously presented and withdrawn by the advice of Dr. Putnam, which will probably be published.

Destruction of the Temple of Nauvoo by a Storm.—The Temple of Nauvoo, erected by the Mormons, finished in 1845, partially burnt in October, 1848, having but its four walls left—all its timber works having been consumed by the flames—was destroyed by a hurricane on the 27th ult.

On arriving at Nauvoo, in March, 1849, the Icarian community bought this Temple with a view to refit it for schools, studying, and meeting halls, &c., and many men were employed in adapting the building to those uses, when a frightful hurricane burst suddenly on the hill of Nauvoo, with lightning, thunder, wind, hail, and rain, completely prostrating the walls. P. Bourg, Sec. of the Icarian community, in a letter to the St. Louis Republican, says, "they will begin again, on the place of the Temple, provisional and urgent constructions, that will serve until they build another large and fine edifice."

Locomotive Boiler Explosion.—Springfield, June 30.—The boiler locomotive Erie, one of the freight train on the Western Road, exploded at Clappville Depot yesterday afternoon. The engineer, John Madigan, was blown some distance into the air and fell dead fifteen rods from the spot, minus one leg, which was blown the other direction, and all his clothing. The fireman was severely scalded, and will probably lose an eye. The wood in the tender was blown high in the air and fell like hail. The cause of the explosion is unknown. It is the first accident of the kind that has occurred on the Western road, and the second on record in New England.

The Cholera in Cincinnati.—Cincinnati, July 3.—The Board of Health report for the 48 hours ending last evening, forty deaths by cholera.

The Cincinnati Board of Health on Monday last, reported twenty deaths by cholera, during the past 36 hours, and says not more than half the deaths have been reported. The deaths on board the boats daily coming up the river, are said to be very numerous.

The cholera is subsiding at Nashville, but increasing at Louisville and St. Louis.

☞ The Detroit Free Press, speaking of the tide of travel on the lakes, says: "Every upper lake boat that touches here, comes up crowded with passengers, reminding one, as they jostle one another in their efforts to get a view of the city from the boat, of an immense beehive, the bees just swarming. The Central Railroad line also brings up remarkable crowds of passengers. We think that travel has never been better than it now is."

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Entranced Female;

Or, the Remarkable Disclosures of a Lady Concerning Another World.

BY THE REV. ROBERT YOUNG, WESLEYAN MINISTER, ENGLAND.

From the twenty-fourth London Edition.

RECOMMENDATORY NOTICES.

Extract of a letter to the Author, from the Rev. Richard Treffray, dated Institution House, Hoxton, June 19, 1841.

"I think you do well in publishing the narrative which you kindly submitted to my perusal. It is altogether of an extraordinary character; and while it makes a large demand on our credulity, it can scarcely fail to awaken serious thoughts and devout desires in the minds of all who read it with attention. Infidelity is fearfully prevalent; and the opinion that the whole of a man dies with his body is so widely disseminated, that every means to check its progress, and to convince men of the existence of another world, should be called into requisition,"

Extract of a letter from the Rev. John Crofts, dated Manchester, August 3d, 1841.

"Being a few days since in company where your interesting little book, 'The Entranced Female,' was the subject of conversation, a remark was made which led me to mention that I was in the place where the young person resided, about the time the extraordinary occurrence took place; and not only recollected the excitement it produced, but some additional circumstances not stated by you."

ADVERTISEMENT.

The disclosures of Miss D———, contained in the following pages, are thus made public by the repeated and urgent request of several valued friends. If they should excite a more diligent attention to eternal things, the writer will greatly rejoice, and the design of their publication be fully accomplished. R. Y.

London, July, 1841.

The word trance, as explained in the London Encyclopædia, signifies a temporary absence of the soul; a rapture; a state in which the soul is wrapt in visions of future or distant things. And according to the learned Parkhurst, the word means a sacred ecstacy, when the use of the external senses being suspended, God reveals something in a peculiar manner to his servants, who are then taken and transported out of themselves. This is a phenomenon full of mystery, and the reality of which some persons have doubted; but, I think, without due consideration. Balaam is said to have been in a trance: and having "his eyes opened," we are told that he "saw the visions of the Almighty, and knew the knowledge of the Most High." Peter was also in a trance upon the house top, to which place he had retired for prayer, and received symbolical instructions relative to his future proceedings with the Gentiles. And Paul is supposed to have been in a trance, "but whether in the body or out of the body he could not tell; God only knew:" but he "was caught up into paradise and heard unspeakable words, which it was not lawful for a man to utter." Since that period there have been well-attested instances of individuals who have been in a similar state; some of which are on record in several highly respectable publications:* and the following singular relation is intended to add to their number.

While residing in a British colony, as a Christian missionary, I was called one evening to visit Miss D———, who was said to be dying. Mrs. Young, by whom she was met weekly for religious instruction, feeling a deep interest in her spiritual welfare, accompanied me to her residence. We found her in the chamber of a neat little cottage, exceedingly ill, but confiding in the merits of Jesus; and after spending some time with her in conversation and prayer, we commended her to God, and took our departure without the least hope of seeing her again in this life. Soon after we left she seemed to die; but as the usual signs of death, which so rapidly develope themselves in that country, did not appear, her friends concluded that she was in a trance, and anxiously waited to see the end. She remained in this state for several days, during which period we repeatedly visited her; and the only indications we could perceive that life was not extinct, were a slight foaming at the mouth, and a little warmth about the region of the heart. She was watched with great interest both night and day; and after being in this state for nearly a week, she opened her eyes and said, "Mr. C——— is dead." Her attendants, thinking that she was under the influence of delirium, replied that she was mistaken, as he was not only alive, but well. "O no!" said she, "he is dead; for, a short time ago, as I passed the gates of hell, I saw him descend into the pit, and the blue flames cover him. Mr. B——— is also dead, for he arrived at heaven just as I was leaving that happy place, and I saw its beautiful gates thrown wide open to receive him: and heard the hosts of heaven shout, 'Welcome, weary pilgrim!'" Mr. C——— was a neighbor, but a very wicked person: and Mr. B———, who lived at no great distance, was a good old man, and for many years had been a consistent and useful member of the Church of God. The parties who heard Miss D———'s startling and confident statements, immediately sent to make inquiries about the two individuals alluded to, and found, to their utter astonishment, that the former had dropped down dead about half an hour before, while in the act of tying his shoe; and that about the same time the latter had suddenly passed into the eternal world. For the truth of these facts I do solemnly vouch. She then went on to tell them where she had been, and what she had seen and heard.

After being sufficiently recovered to leave the house she paid us a visit; and Mrs. Young, as well as myself, heard from her own lips the following account of what she had passed through. She informed us that, at the time she was supposed to die, a celestial being conducted her into the invisible world, and mysteriously unveiled to her the realities of eternity. He took her first to heaven: but she was told that as she yet belonged to time, she could not be permitted to enter into that glorious place, but only to behold it, which she represented as infinitely exceeding in beauty and splendor the most elevated conceptions of mortals, and whose glory no language could describe. She told us that she beheld the Saviour upon a throne of light and glory, surrounded by the four-and-twenty elders, and a great multitude which no man could number; among whom she recognized patriarchs, and prophets, and apostles, and martyrs, and all the missionaries who had died in that colony, besides many others whom she mentioned; and although those parties were not named by the angel that attended her, yet she said that seeing them was to know them. She described those celestial spirits as being variously employed; and although she felt herself inadequate to convey any definite idea of the nature of that employment, yet it appeared to be adapted to their respective mental capacities, and spiritual attainments. She also informed us that she heard sweet and most enrapturing music, such as she had never heard before; and made several attempts to give us some idea of its melodious character, but found her notes too earthly for that purpose.—While thus favored, the missionaries already referred to, and other happy spirits, as they glided past her, sweetly smiled, and said they knew whence she came, and, if faithful to the grace of God, she would in a short time be admitted into their delightful society. All the orders of heaven were in perfect and blessed harmony, and appeared to be directed in all their movements by a mysterious influence proceeding from the throne of God.

She was next conducted to a place whence she had a view of hell, which she described in the most terrific language; and declared that the horrid shrieks of lost spirits still seemed to sound in her ears. As she approached the burning pit, a tremendous effort was made to draw her into it; but she felt herself safe under the protection of the guardian angel. She recognized many in the place of torment whom she had known on earth, and even some who had been thought good Christians.—There were princes and peasants, rich and poor, learned and unlearned, writhing together in one dreadful and unquenchable fire, where all earthly distinctions and titles were forever at an end. Among them she beheld a Miss W———, who had occupied a prominent station in society, but had died during the trance of this young woman. She said that when Miss W——— saw her approach, her shrieks were appalling beyond the power of language to describe, and that she made a desperate but unsuccessful effort to escape. The punishment of lost souls she represented as symbolizing the respective sins which had occasioned their condemnation. Miss W———, for instance, was condemned for her love of money, which I had every reason to believe was her besetting sin; and she seemed robed in a garment of gold, all on fire. Mr. O———, whom she saw, was lost through intemperance; and he appeared to be punished by devils administering to him some boiling liquid. She said there was no sympathy among these unhappy spirits, but that unmixed hatred, in all its frightful forms, prevailed in every part of the fiery regions. She beheld parents and children, husbands and wives, and those who had been companions in sin, exhibiting every mark of deep hatred to each other's society, and heard them in fiendish accents upbraiding and bitterly cursing one another. She saw nothing in hell but misery and despair; and heard nothing there but the most discordant sounds, accompanied with weeping, and wailing, and gnashing of teeth. While she gazed upon this revolting scene, many souls arrived from earth, and were greedily seized by innumerable devils of monstrous shape, amidst horrid shouts of hellish triumph, and tortured according to their crimes.

*See the well known account of the trance of Rev. Wm. Tennent, a learned and eminently pious minister of the Presbyterian Church.

This fearful view of the state of the lost agrees with the testimony of S. T., whose case is on record in Mr. Wesley's Journal.* She tells us that while in her trance, the place of the condemned was unveiled, and she "saw a vast number who stood up cursing and blaspheming God, and spitting at each other. And many were making balls of fire, and throwing them at one another." She also "saw many others who had cups of fire, out of which they were drinking down flames; and others who held cards of fire in their hands, and seemed to be playing with them."

From the gates of hell Miss D——— was conducted to another position, whence she had a view of heaven, and hell, and earth: and she described earth as appearing like a vast stage crowded with human beings, and full of devastation and blood. From this stage persons were continually stepping off; and others were rapidly approaching its edge, and would very soon disappear, amongst whom was Mrs. L——, an intimate friend of ours, who died a fortnight afterward. Other persons whom she named, were represented as near the edge of the stage; and although quite well when she made this communication, did in every case shortly afterward leave this probationary state. One of the days in which Miss D——— lay entranced was the holy Sabbath; and she told us that she knew where I and my colleagues preached on that day; and from each chapel she perceived holy incense rise, which she described as mingling together and coming up before the throne; then taken by the Saviour and presented to the Father, while angels and all the company of heaven rejoiced together. She also stated, that during one of Mrs. Young's visits to the house where she lay entranced, she saw her sitting by her bed-side, reading to the family a chapter out of St. John's Gospel, and then saw her kneel down and pray with them. She likewise gave us to understand that matter, under none of its forms or modifications, is any interruption to the vision or movements of spiritual beings.

She was next taken to a place where she saw the moral state of the world symbolized. A female, holding a prominent situation in the Church, was represented as sitting under a tree of most luxuriant and beautiful foliage, with a long tube in her mouth, by which she was drawing people to her; and the conducting angel informed Miss D——— that the tube indicated the power of this female's persuasive language, the foliage of the tree her religious profession, and its trunk the state of the heart. On looking at the trunk, she beheld that its core was rotten, and full of venomous reptiles. Miss D——— told this to the female in question; and from the unchristian temper she manifested on the occasion, and her subsequent conduct, she fully proved the correctness of her representation. Another female, a professor of religion, highly respected for her apparent piety, was represented to her as having yielded to temptation, and withdrawn her heart from God; and when her backsliding was announced in the world of spirits, Miss D——— looked towards the Saviour and thought she perceived the appearance of blood trickling from his wounds, as if "crucified afresh." (Heb. vi. 6.)* When Miss D——— was at our house, she sent for this female, and in the presence of Mrs. Young and myself told her the above: and, according to her penitential acknowledgement, but to our utter astonishment, it was a correct view of her spiritual state. Miss D——— had likewise the moral condition and perilous circumstances of a young man brought before her. He was in possession of religion, was represented as assailed by a very plausible temptation, and would make shipwreck of faith if he did not resist it. She made this disclosure to him also in our presence; and after some evasion on the subject, he appeared greatly agitated, and declared that such was his temptation, although he had not mentioned it to any one. For some time he resisted, but finally fell into the snare; and his experience proved the correctness of Miss D———'s communication. A lady whom she named was represented to her as attired in the purest white, and surrounded by a number of little children, whom she was striving to wash in pure water, that they too might be white and clean; and the angel told her that the lady's robe was indicative of her purity of heart, and holiness of life, and that her employment symbolized the nature and effects of her exertion in the Church of God. I was well acquainted with this lady, and could bear witness to the correctness of this picture; for she was, in my opinion, one of the holiest of women, and was exceedingly useful to children and young people; indeed, the honored instument of bringing many of them to God. Another lady she described as standing at the entrance of the path leading to eternal life, with a book in her hand, and crying to the giddy multitude,

"Come back, this is the way,
Come back, and walk therein."

This lady, who was well known to the writer, had made many sacrifices for the cause of Christ, and was, I believe, doing what she could to bring poor wanderers back to God.

Many other things were mentioned by her, but which I cannot now so distinctly remember, as to warrant my making any record of them here. There was a strange unearthliness about this young woman, after this remarkable event. Previously her disposition was rather sullen, and there was an impression of sourness on her countenance; but the change produced by this occurrence was manifest to all who knew her. Her temper became the most amiable, and her countenance was lighted up with more than ordinary joy. But, strange to say, in a few months she allowed herself to be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelation, and consequently lost much of her glory; but the rod of affliction led her to recover her forfeited enjoyment, and in about three years after this trance she died happily in the Lord.

No person is perhaps more disposed to scrutinize and to reject the disclosures of what are called trances and visions than myself; yet, when they furnish so many marks of genuineness as those of Miss D———, I think they should be allowed their proper weight and influence in confirming and illustrating the doctrines of revelation. There is nothing in Miss D———'s disclosures inconsistent with that Book which is to be a light unto our feet, and a lamp unto our paths, and by which we are to regulate our faith and practice; but, on the contrary, there is the most perfect accordance. The Word of God informs us that there is a world of spirits, into which men enter on quitting this life, and are happy, or otherwise, according to their moral character; and if the Lord should, in some cases, for reasons best known to himself, lift the veil which conceals from our view that spiritual region, we ought not to reject the light thus let in upon us, but rather avail ourselves of its assistance for the better understanding of the Word of God, and the realities of another state of existence.

With respect to the locality of the world of spirits, conjecture has been busily and fruitfully employed. Some suppose that it is in the sun; others that it is in the centre of the vast universe, attracting and governing all the celestial bodies in their revolutions: but the opinion which to me appears most plausible is that of its being in the atmospheric region, and consequently all around us. It is true we perceive it not, because our "senses are holden."—Our physical nature is supposed to be the veil separating between us and the invisible world: but when this veil is removed by the hand of death, our souls will at once find themselves in that world and discern things which, though now present, are not seen, because spiritually discerned. This view of the subject seems to be countenanced by the Scriptures. The mountain appeared covered with spiritual beings when the Lord, in answer to the prayer of the prophet, opened the eyes of his servant, or drew aside the veil. (2 Kings vi. 17.)—Stephen, at the time he was about to suffer martyrdom, "saw the heavens open, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God." Believers are to be "caught up to meet the Lord in the air;" and the ministering spirits which "minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation," "do always behold the face of our Father who is in heaven." They do not leave the spiritual world to perform their ministrations, but are in heaven, it would seem, at the very time they are "encamping round about them that fear the Lord." It is true that this view, as well as others, relative to the abode of separate spirits, involves difficulties not to be solved in this imperfect state; but it nevertheless appears to receive some sanction from the Word of God, and is, in my estimation, more consistent with the condition of being entranced than any other opinion held on the subject.

It is also a very generally received opinion, that spirits know each other in the invisible world. The rich man knew Abraham and Lazarus; and the Apostle, referring to a future state, tells us that "then shall we know as also we are known." According to the testimony of Miss D——, she knew, without being informed, the various beings she met with in the world of spirits. It appears to be a region of knowledge intuitively obtained, without any laborious effort or inquiry. This view of the subject is calculated to strike terror into the hearts of those who, by their neglect or influence, destroy souls, as it supposes they will know their victims when they shall meet them in the world lying beyond the tomb; but it is a view well adapted to excite pleasurable emotions in the breast of those who "turn many to righteousness," as it encourages the hope of their recognizing their "spiritual children" as their "crown of rejoicing in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming."

There is another opinion, entertained by some persons, which does not appear to be without foundation in the Word of God; that the inhabitants of eternity know what is taking place in this world. The temptations presented to the mind by wicked spirits, the guardianship of angelic beings, the cloud of witnesses represented by the Apostles as looking from their place of rest upon Christians running the race set before them, and the joy felt in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth, certainly very strongly countenance the opinion. This also agrees with Miss D——'s statement; for she told us distinctly that the state and circumstances of the population of our globe were fully known to the inhabitants of the other world. How startling is the thought? What manner of persons ought we to be, in all holy conversation and godliness? If earth is without a covering to eternity, with what circumspection ought we to walk!

Now, if these things be so—if there be a state of future rewards and penalties, on which we must enter on leaving this state of trial, how important it must be for eternal things to exert their due weight and influence upon us, that when we fail on earth we may be received into everlasting habitations! Were we to judge of the relative claims of time and eternity by the general deportment of men, we should conclude that the former were far more imperative than the latter; the perishing body more valuable than the immortal soul; and the pleasures of sin, which are but for a season, more to be desired than those unfading joys which are at God's right hand in heaven.

One of the persons that Miss D——saw in torment, had been in the habit of violating the Christian Sabbath by matters of worldly business. I more than once reproved her for it, warned her of her danger, and exhorted her to flee from the wrath to come. She acknowledged the propriety of my remarks, but, like many, pleaded her secular engagements, and expressed a hope, that, at no very distant period, she would be able to retire from business, and attend to her soul. Unhappy woman! Procrastination has ruined many a soul, and it ruined hers; for, while she was about to realize all that her earthly mind had long anxiously desired, the messenger of death suddenly and unexpectedly blighted all her hopes, abruptly put an end to her mortal life, and Miss D—— saw her in hell lift up her eyes, being in torment. "O that mortals were wise, that they understood this; that they would consider their latter end!"

Reader, are you prepared for another world? If impenitent, you are not; for, "except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish." If unbelieving, you are not; for, "without faith it is impossible to please God," and "he that believeth not shall be damned." If unregenerate, you are not; for, "except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." If unholy, you are not; for, "without holiness no man shall see the Lord." Such is the testimony of God. "He that hath ears to hear let him hear!"

*Vol. iii, pp. 374—376, Amer. Edit.

*She was now in the place of Symbols.

"FATHER DOES IT."

Then it is no wonder if sons do it too. If father reads the newspapers on Sunday, John will be likely to read his toy-book. If father drinks a dram, or bolts out an oath, the little ones are in a fair way to do the same. If father defiles his lips with an ugly word, it will go down in regular course to the barn and kitchen. On the other hand, if father reads his Bible every morning before he opens his newspaper, his children will never forget it.—American Messenger.

POETRY.

HAPPINESS.

BY ADAM FRIESE.

True happiness is sought in vain
Amid ambition's airy halls;
For earthly pleasure is but pain,
And all its pump and honors frail.
The charms of fortune, wealth, and power,
Are all allurements vain and void;
And flatt'ries in a prosperous hour,
Like bubbles on the stream of time.

Is happiness found in the gay
And mirthful scenes of youthful life,
'Amidst hours of music, dance, and play,
In healthful smiles and rosy cheeks?
Ah no, though all seems joy combined,
There lurks within the human breast,
A secret sigh—a troubled mind—
Of discontent and not of rest.

The miser with his hoarded treasure,
With his goods of silver and of gold,
Can never taste of real pleasure—
He lives for self and dies a fool.
'Tis reason that it should be so,
For we are but probation'rs here,
And as through life we pass, should lay
Up treasnre in a brighter sphere.

Though in our pilgrimage through life,
We chance to meet some fountains clear,
To quench our thirst, and cool our strife;
Yet as we pass they disappear.
Then let us place our hopes above,
On things beyond this vale of tears,
Where perfect happiness and love
Do flow, in streams that never dry.

"WHO IS A GOD LIKE UNTO THEE?"

BY H. J. BEYERLE, M. D.

How wondrous great is He
Who made the earth and sky!
Come, mortal, bow thy knee,
And worship Him on high.
'Tis He made all that is,
He reigns supreme o'er all;
The universe is His,
And answers to His call.

He casts a gracious glance
Upon the earth and skies,
And all the great expanse
His glory magnifies:
The twinkling stars above,
Which stud the firmament,
Proclaim their Author's love
Throughout the sky's extent;

The rippling, crystal brook,
Which wanders through the vale,
Replies to His kind look,
Prolongs the wondrous tale;
The flower in the field,
The foliage on the tree,
And all the earth doth yield,
In praise to Him agree.

O man, why should'st not thou
Throw in thy humble mite,
And to thy Maker bow,
And in His love delight?
Lift up thy voice in praise,
Bestow a grateful heart,
And pray that in thy days
He may not from thee part.

Without His helping hand,
Without His love and care,
Thou never canst withstand
Wicked temptation's snare.
'Tis God that watched o'er thee
When evil did impend,
And if thou'lt faithful be He'll guard thee to thy end.

'Tis He that gives thee food,
And clothes thy body frail;
'Tis He, the Great and Good,
That doth all things so well.
Then dedicate thy soul,
Thy strength, and heart, and mind,
Unto the Lord of all,
The Lord who is so kind.

In Him place all thy trust,
And let this be thy cry;
"In life I will be just,
And happy when I die!"
And when beyond the grave
Thy blood-bought soul shall land,
His blessings thou'lt receive
From His parental hand.

Linglestown, 1849.

THERE'S LIGHT BEHIND THE CLOUD.

In the lone and weary nights, my child,
When all around is pale and drear,
When the moon is hidden by the clouds,'
And grief and pain are near--

O, never think, my gentle boy,
In that gloomy, trying hour,
That thou art not protected still
By a kind Almighty Power!

Soon will those dark clouds roll away,
And the glorious stars appear;
And the pensive moon, with her calm, pale light,
Will shine in beauty clear.

There is an eye above, my child,
That slumbers not, nor sleeps:
There is a Friend in Heaven, love,
Who still His vigil keeps.

And though in trouble's darkest hour,
His face He seems to shroud,
Believe--remember--O, my child,
There's light behind the cloud!

Chambers' Journal.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 27th ult., by Elder J. C. Owens, Mr. Jacob Appler to Miss Margaret Cover, both of Carroll county, Md.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

West Pennsylvania Camp-meetings.

The following Camp-meetings will be held within the bounds of the West Pennsylvania Eldership, viz:

One in Marshall county, Virginia, commencing on the 9th of August.

One in Brush Valley, Indiana county, Pa., commencing on the 22d of August.

One in Irvin township, Venango county, Pa., commencing on the 5th of September.

Brothers Winebrenner and Harn will be in attendance at the last meeting.

Also, a Protracted meeting at Bethany, Westmoreland county, Pa., commencing on the 20th of September.

Brothers Winebrenner and Harn will attend. By order of the Committee.

J. M. Klein.

Camp-meetings for Schuylkill Circuit.

The followinging Camp-meetings will be held on the Schuylkill Circuit, viz:

One in Mahantungo Valley, on the land of brother George Hepler, commencing on Monday, the 12th of August next.

The second will be held at brother George Kimmel's, one and a half miles east of Orwigsburg, commencing on Monday, the 26th of August.

The German preachers are all invited to attend the above Camp-meetings.

J. Keller.

Camp-meetings in Ohio.

1. One in the bounds of the Chester Church-Chester township, Wayne county, commencing on the 15th of August.

2. One in Summit county, near East Liberty, commencing on the 22d of August.

3. One on the old camp-ground, one and a half miles West of Reedsburg, Ashland county, commencing on the 29th of August.

Indiana Camp-meeting.

A Camp-meeting will be held in the bounds of the Church in Decalb county, in the neighborhood of brother Joseph Walters', five miles southeast of Auburn, commencing on the 23d of August.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4	62½	a 4	75
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	2	50	a 2	50
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	2	37½	a 2	37½
GRAIN—Wheat, per bnshel,			1	05	a 1	10
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		56	a	56
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		45	a	50
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		36	a	36
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		60	a	65
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2	25	a 2	50
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1	05	a 1	25
BEEF, per cwt.		- - - -	5	00	a 5	50
PORK,	do.	- - - - -	5	00	a 5	25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -		8	a	11
BUTTER,	do.	- - - - -		10	a	10
LARD,	do.	- - - - -		8	a	8
TALLOW,	do.	- - - - -		8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.				6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - - -		10	a	10
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -		56	a	62½
ONIONS,	do.	- - -		75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -	1	00	a 1	12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1	25	a 1	30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -		37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -		30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -	1	20	a 1	20
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -	10	00	*a*10	00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	4	00	a 4	00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$5	12½	a 5	25
Do.	Rye,	do. -	3	00	a 3	00
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	3	00	a 3	00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1	18	a 1	22
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		43	a	43
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		65	a	68
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2	75	a 3	00
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1	35	a 1	40
BEEF, per cwt.,		- - -	7	00	a 8	75
PORK,	do.	- - - - -	7	00	a 7	25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in duo decimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

Missionary Pledges.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner, -	paid	$10 00
William Reichart, -	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, - - - -		10 00
J. H. Hurley, - - -		5 00
Geo. U. Harn, - - -		5 00
M. F. Snavely, - - -		10 00
Jacob Miller, - - - -		10 00
James Miller, - - -		5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, - - -		5 00
Thomas Strohm, - - -		5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe, - - -		5 00
Abraham Sherich, - -	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, - - -		5 00
A Liberal Brother, - -		20 00
A Liberal Sister, - -	paid	2 00
David Strickler, - - -		5 00
James Casey, - - -		5 00
Samuel M. Hoover, -	paid	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. AUGUST 1, 1850. NUMBER 7.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

☞ Some brethren in Schuylkill county wish to hear of brother Strawbridge's welfare.

☞ The Harrisburg Cotton Mill, it is said, will be ready for operation on the first of September.

☞ The death of Sir Robert Peel, by falling from a horse, is announced in the late foreign news.

☞ A Post-Office has been established at Auburn, Schuylkill county, Pa. J. Hofmaster, Post Master.

☞ Those who are indebted to brother W. for the Advocate, or for books, will confer a favor on him, and his family, by remitting what they owe. Do it quickly.—Editor pro tem.

☞ The Christian Pearl is a beautiful literary and religious monthly published in Philadelphia, by Geo. F. Gordon, corner of 12th and Wistar streets. One dollar a year. The plates alone might to some be worth the dollar. Twenty-four pages of pleasant and edifying poetry and prose are in each number.

One Day's Calamity.

Read the account in another page of this paper concerning the last illness and death of the lamented President, General Taylor. He was a native of Virginia—had been in the army forty years—was in the sixty-sixth year of his age—and had been President sixteen months.

Read also of the terrible fire in Philadelphia which happened on the same day, and in which sad calamity forty lives were lost, and upwards of one hundred wounded and hurt, by an explosion in one of the stores on fire, containing large quantities of saltpetre and brimstone—though some think there was gunpowder also. Says the Prophet, "Is there evil in the city, and the Lord hath not done it."

J. F.

Israel of Old---America Now.---J. F.

"In the day of prosperity be joyful, but in the day of adversity consider." So says the Old Testament, and it may well apply to us who live in the clearer light of Gospel days.

There is a time of prosperity for a nation. Israel of old had its day of prosperity. First, while a commonwealth, or republic, governed by the prophets from Moses and Joshua, until Samuel, the last of these righteous rulers.—The people sat under their own vine and fig-tree—none were vastly rich, and none were very poor, for every family had its inheritance in the land, and if they had to part with their land because of misfortune, the law was, that in the fiftieth year, called the year of Jubilee, then the inheritance reverted back again to the original possessors. O what a good law.

They had prosperity also under the reign of Saul, and David, and Solomon, so far as frequent wars would permit a nation to prosper. They had good laws—good religious institutions—and all they needed was good rulers. In the days of Solomon's son they were divided, and became two nations. Ten tribes revolted, and Samaria became their chief city instead of Jerusalem.

Our nation from its birth has been in outward circumstances as prosperous as Israel of old ever was. For a long time Israel had no King—and we have never yet had any, wish for one. Our land spreads far and wide, from the cold regions of the North, down to the sunny South—and from the Atlantic coast on the East, to the Pacific on the West, three thousand miles across. And whether the Indian tribes are descendants of the ten lost tribes of ancient Israel or no is uncertain—but some writers lately contend, that the Anglo-Saxon race—especially the English, are descended from the lost tribes of Israel.—If so, the most of us have an honorable root from which we sprung, and are Israelites by nature, if not by grace. Who would not wish that it were so?

But our land has had great prosperity. Washington was not a Moses, but he was a true patriot. And so with the most of our chief magistrates. We acknowledge it after they are gone to the grave, that their intentions were good, and to promote the welfare of their country. The bitterness of party feeling gives way—the mind is softened down—and when the hand that held the reins of government lets go—and the voice of authority is hushed in death—we overlook the errors, and remember the virtues, of the departed ruler of a great and mighty nation.

So it has been lately among ourselves. Zachary Taylor stood very high in the esteem of the American people. Friends politically, or opponents—all considered him honest, and patriotic, and with moral courage enough to do what he thought was best for the country. But just at the time when a strong arm was needed to hold the helm, and guide the ship, he is called away, and the news of his death strikes solemnly and sadly on every heart. A few days illness, and in the midst of family, and friends, and wise physicians, and the rulers of the land around him, he departs to that strange world of spirits to which we all hasten. And the whole nation mourns his death, like ancient Israel used to mourn, when their great men slept with their fathers, and were buried in their sepulchres. We only wish that he had, living and dying, given a more decided evidence of faith, and hope, in Him who is the resurrection and the life. The summons came suddenly—like it did to his predecessor, James K. Polk—"arise and depart, for this is not thy rest."

Holy Living.---No. 2.---J. F.

"Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."—St. Paul.

Human life is mostly made up of small things, common every day occurrences.—Great events in our experience seldom come. It therefore becomes us to make every day, and all we are engaged in, pleasing and acceptable to God.

Who is it spreads the table for us with our daily bread? Many think their own industry and prudence sufficient to secure for them, and theirs, a full supply. But these are they who have no true and saving faith. Jesus tells us that there is an eye that watches over us, and a hand that supplies the returning wants of every day. He who has been taught of God has learned this lesson, and delights to bear it always in remembrance, that earthly blessings—food and raiment—house and home—come from the same hand which gives liberally in spiritual blessings to the soul.

To you then it is no hardship when you sit down to your table first to offer thanksgiving unto God who spreads it for you—sometimes in the midst of danger or of death. Let parents and children sit down quietly, and then let the head of the family himself, or some one else at his request, offer up a few words of humble and devout thanks.

I have heard it said that in England the children sometimes sing a verse appropriate to the occasion—and it is perhaps sometimes done among the pious German people in our land—I think the Dunkers. Be it then a short prayer of a few words—or a verse of a hymn—sitting as some do—or standing as others—it is no doubt well pleasing unto Him whose gracious providence has spread the board.

Western Tour.---No. 4.

Mount Carroll, Ill., July 9, 1850.

JOURNAL OF OUR SIXTH WEEK.

Monday, June 24th.—We left brother Anderson's, in company with brother Sands, one of the preachers of the Indiana Eldership, who kindly went with us, to show us the road, as far as Monmouth, where he left us to return to his home. We travelled that day 36 miles, and stopped over night with brother Croup, formerly of Lancaster county, Pa. He lives 13 miles south of Fort Wayne, in a rich and fertile country. The Lord reward him and his family for their kindness toward us.

Tuesday, June 25th.—We went to Fort Wayne, the county town of Allen county, where we stopped a little space, and called on our old friends and brethren, George and David Hartman. We found them both well and hearty, but no longer members of the Church of God. I regret that so many of our old brethren go out from the Church and unite with the sects. Christian brethren, among the sects, ought to come over to the Church of God, as they did anciently, and not vice versa. The days, however, I trust, will soon come again when it will be so, and not otherwise. May the Lord hasten that glad and auspicious day!

Fort Wayne is a handsome town. It is situated on the Maumee and Wabash Canal, and contains about 6,000 inhabitants. The Northern Indiana Conference of the E. M. Church have established a Female College there, which is beautifully situated, and in a prosperous state. I greatly admire this noble and praiseworthy enterprise. May similar institutions soon spring up and bless every State, and every denomination, in this great Republic!

After looking round and mailing several letters, for home and elsewhere, we passed on 12 miles further, and stayed over night at P. Keller's Inn.

June 26th.—We went on to my cousin, John Winebrenner's, in Noble county, near Wolf

Lake. With them we tarried over night, had some repairs done to our carriage, and held meeting in the evening. The congregation was large and attentive. The people, and cousin Andrew especially, want brother Geo. Thomas to call and preach for them. Go, brother Thomas, and make it a preaching place.

Cousin David Winebrenner has been living in that country some 10 or 12 years. He has opened up a very handsome farm, and his crops were promising and good. Cousin John and Andrew live near to David, and each have bought fine farms, at four dollars per acre, and are beginning to improve them. The land is good, and part of it Prairie. There are fresh water Lakes near them, and throughout that country, which abound with Pike and other large and excellent fish. We had them served up in great plenty during our sojourn with them. They were excellent. We were treated very kindly. Whilst there we had a fine rain. Hay-making had just commenced.

June 27th.—We left there and passed thro' Wolf Lake, to the town of Benton, in Elkhart county, where we fed and took dinner, with brother Gross, a member of the Christian connexion. After dinner we journeyed on, over Elkhart Prairie, to Goshen, the county seat of Elkhart county, and thence to brother Nickodemas', married to my cousin, about six miles from Goshen, on the road leading to Elkhart. In that neighborhood there has lately been a revival of religion, and some 30 or more were hopefully converted. Brother N. formerly lived in Martinsburg, Blair county, Pa. Aunt Winebrenner, from Morrison's Cove, lives with them. She was glad and over-rejoiced with our visit. The old lady is happy and steadfast in religion.

The land through that country is excellent. Something, perhaps, like the ancient land of Goshen in Egypt. Elkhart Prairie is exceedingly handsome and fertile. It cannot well be beaten. It is equal to any part of Lancaster county, in point of beauty and fertility. We saw the best fields of Corn and Wheat here of any along the road we travelled, since we left Harrisburg. The best farms, well improved, in that handsome country, can be bought at from 20 to 30 dollars—common farms at 8, 10 to 15 dollars.

June 28th.—We took leave of aunt, brother N. and family, and passed through the town of Elkhart, situated at the junction of the Elkhart and the St. Joseph rivers, to E. L. Harn's, cousin to G. U. Harn, a few miles west of Elkhart. Here we stopped a little space. Then we journeyed on westward, down the river St. Joseph, through Mishawaka, to South Bend, the county seat of St. Joseph county, Indiana. Here we dined, and met several old friends and acquaintances from Pennsylvania. Among them we saw D. Sherborn, from Cumberland county, Pa., and son-in-law of old Mickell, formerly of Churchtown. Old Mickell is dead. He died at his son-in-law's, near Mishawaka, some time last winter. Sherborn is doing well temporally, and I hope may do so spiritually also. From thence we travelled on to Carlisle Hill, 14 miles further west, where we stayed over night.

Mishawaka and South Bend are manufacturing places, of some considerable note. At the latter place there is great water power, which is used for milling purposes, and for propelling Woollen Manufactories, and various other machinery. At Mishawaka there are several large Iron Works, which do a heavy business.

June 29th.—We started for New Buffalo, on Lake Michigan, and present terminus of the great Michigan Railroad, leading from Detroit westward, by way of Kalamazoo, and where we arrived about 3 o'clock, P. M. Here we tarried till 8 o'clock in the evening, when we entered, horses and all, on board of the splendid steamboat Julius D. Morton, and crossed the Lake to Chicago, where we safely landed about 2 o'clock that night, and put up at the Sultana House.

Sabbath, June 30th.—We attended public worship three times.—In the morning at the First Presbyterian church; in the afternoon at the Baptist; and in the evening at the Methodist. The several congregations were large, and the preaching plain and practical. However, the worship seemed cold, heartless and formal. The custom there in all the churches is, to sing standing, and pray sitting. The former is well enough, but the latter, in my judgment, is both unreasonable and unscriptural. When men honor and reverence but an earthly prince or monarch, they usually stand up, or kneel down: how unbefitting, then, is it, irreverently to sit down when we call upon and worship the God of heaven!

The city of Chicago is a great business place. The lumber bought and sold there annually, amounts to 70 or 80 millions of feet. There are also many New York and Boston Branch Stores, doing a large and heavy wholesale business. It is likewise a great place for mechanical business—for machine-shops and factories. The city is rapidly improving, and contains at present about thirty thousand inhabitants. Some of the streets are beautifully planked, and others are to be planked soon. Several plank roads, leading to different points, are in course of construction. The Chicago and Galena Railroad is finished and in operation as far as Elgin, a distance of forty-two miles.

J. W. & G. U. H.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

HISTORY
OF THE
Church of God in Uniontown, Md., and its Vicinity.

In the year 1830 there was no Church in this place or its vicinity, designated by the appellation, "Church of God." The German Reformed and Protestant Methodist were the only organized churches in Uniontown. Of the Reformed, the Rev. Mr. Hobbleston was at that time pastor. Many of the members under his charge enjoyed the indwelling of Christ's Spirit, and felt a longing desire to conform more to the will of God in all things, as far as they understood it: and notwithstanding many, with great tenacity, held to the traditions of the Elders, and looked upon them as their only sure guide, yet there were a few of the more spiritual, who were not satisfied with anything short of a knowledge of Divine truth, as taught by Christ and his Apostles, and believed and practiced by all the faithful members of the Churches of God in Judea. These brethren, among whom was Abraham Appler, and others, whom we deem it not necessary to mention, to the great dissatisfaction of many, began to entertain doubts about the validity of Infant Baptism, and also about the different modes by which the Divine ordinance was then said to be performed. In reading the commission, they saw that Christ only authorized the baptism of believers, and in tracing the history of the Apostles, they found that believers were the only ones whom they baptized; and as they could only read of the baptism of believing men and women, they were (at first) at a loss to know from whence originated the practice of Infant Baptism. But when the rays of historical truth began to illuminate their minds, they clearly saw that it was a human tradition, and detrimental to the spiritual welfare of mankind. The various modes by which the Divine ordinance was said to be performed, was no less doubtful to them than the infantile subjects. In reading the New Testament, and noticing the places chosen for the administration of the ordinance,—the manner they proceeded at those places,—in connection with the expression of the Apostle, (Rom. 6: 4, Col. 2: 12, &c.,) they were constrained to believe that baptism was nothing less than a burial, or an immersion of the body under water, in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

These views, when entertained, gave rise to private discussions, which caused no little excitement. Those few who wished to know the word of God fully, met with great opposition from those who had formerly been their warmest friends; but this only drove them the nearer to Christ, and incited them to make further inquiries after the good old way. And as they had heard of Elder J. Winebrenner, a dissenter from the German Reformed Church, and one who professed to have relapsed back upon Apostolic principles,—thinking that through him they might be enabled to learn the way of the Lord more fully,—they came to the conclusion to renew the Macedonian cry, and send for him to come over and help. But as other calls prevented him from complying with this request, he solicited Elder Walborn (who was then in good standing) and Elder Andrew Miller to come over in his place.—They having accepted of the invitation, came over, and, like sons of thunder, poured forth the unvarnished truths of God in all their original purity and simplicity; which truths, being attended by the Spirit of their Author, were gladly received: yea, they found a happy lodgment in many good and honest hearts. At that time Abraham Appler and wife, Nancy Senseney and Charity Hollenberry were baptized. Soon after fifteen others were baptized; and under the labors of different preachers who came here from time to time, the work of the Lord rapidly advanced. Many who made no profession of religion, in connection with those who had a mere name to live, saw the necessity of a change of heart, and a life spent in conformity to the revealed will of God.

About this time the Church was organized. Abraham Appler, who for some years past has been a member of the Eldership, was by the Church elected and set apart as their Elder, and Isaac Appler Deacon. As the number of believers increased, others, namely, George Shreiner, Matthias Hollenberry, (who has since dropped the curtain of mortality,) Geo. Bean, (who now lives at Bainbridge,) Henry Fleagle, Geo. and Abraham Garner, were elected and set apart for the same purpose, who, having served for a few years, gave place to others. At present Abraham Appler, John Gore and Washington Senseney are the Elders of the Church. Abraham Appler has served from the beginning, John Gore about twelve years, and Washington Senseney about eight. The present Deacons are Ephraim Garner, Andrew Sloanecker and John Chew. These brethren also have served the Church for several years past.

The first preacher who was sent to this place by the East Pennsylvania Eldership, was Elder West. He was succeeded by Elder Maxwell, who commenced his labors in the year 1834, and preached with some success for two years. While here he preached at Frizzlesburg, a small village about three miles north-east of Uniontown, and about that time organized a Church at that place. Simon Fleagle, who is now a member of the Eldership, was elected and set apart as an Elder of the Church, and Henry Fleagle Deacon. These brethren have been succeeded from time to time by different members, who (by the Church) have been set apart for the same purpose. For several years past Benjamin Fleagle has been their Elder, who is also at this time a member of the Eldership.

Although this Church, from her commencement, has been but small, yet, in the hands of the Lord, she has been instrumental in the conversion and salvation of many; some of whom have died in the triumphs of faith.—Many others have gone to distant lands, where we trust they are endeavoring to walk in conformity to the perfect law of liberty. But, alas! some have made shipwreck of their faith, and brought a stain upon the cause which they once espoused. At present the Church at Frizzlesburg numbers about twenty members; and if it had not been for the devices of satan, she might have numbered thrice that many. Brother Maxwell, while here, faithfully discharged his duty, and to this day his memory is dear to all who knew him. He was succeeded by Elder William Miller, who for two years endeavored to hold forth the doctrine that he then believed, and for which he was willing to make any sacrifice.

In the year 1838, Joseph Adams, being sent by the Eldership, came and took charge of the Church, and for a year or more success attended his labors; but in consequence of some difficulty which arose between him and the Churches, he was rejected as their pastor: after which the Churches had no regular preaching (with the exception of the six months that Elder McElroy preached for them,) until the year 1841, at which period Elder McFadden, being sent by the Eldership, came and took charge of the Circuit. These difficulties, which so unexpectedly arose, gave rise to great persecution. The enemies of the Church, seeing the embarrassments under which she had to labor, seemed to realize and predict her overthrow. Others, who were impartial, took no part either for or against the Church, but stood aloof, and with increasing interest watched to see what would become of the little flock. But seeing that every member maintained their integrity, and that all their opposition only had a tendency to incite them to greater zeal, perseverance and stability, they were constrained to believe that they were truly the people of God, and upheld and sustained by Him; in consequence of which many were brought under conviction, and after having experienced a change of heart, were baptized and added to the Church.

Elder McFadden, who succeeded Joseph Adams, remained here three years. He was greatly beloved, and his labors were abundantly blessed. Many were converted, baptized and added to the Churches. He succeeded in opening several new appointments. Brother Joseph Bamberger, who, in the prime of life, has since been called to a better world, was his assistant. He also was highly esteemed. His piety, ministerial ability, and unwearied zeal and perseverance, secured to him the affections of nearly all who knew him. These brethren, while here, visited Baltimore, and were instrumental in the establishment of the Church of God in that city. They also preached at Waterloo, twelve miles from Uniontown, where, through their instrumentality, many were happily converted to God, made recipients of his Spirit, and heirs of immortality and eternal life. About that time the Church of God at that place was organized. Aquilla Pickett was elected and set apart as an Elder of the Church, who, to the present time, has faithfully discharged his duty as such. This Church, from her commencement, has met with great opposition, both from the irreligious and sectarian world. Yet she has continued to move onward, and the members, with but few exceptions, have endeavored to maintain their integrity. Mr. Crawford, although destitute of experimental religion, has ever been a warm friend of the Church at Waterloo; and his friendship has been exhibited by opening his house for the free reception of preachers and people, who, from time to time, have gone there to hold forth the word of the Lord and labor in his cause.

At the expiration of three years brother McFadden left the Circuit, and was succeeded by Elder J. Lininger, who only preached here one year. His labors were well received; but owing to some difficulties in the Uniontown Church, which resulted in the expulsion of one of her principal members, he became somewhat discouraged; and although the Churches desired him to remain with them the second year, yet, thinking that he would be more useful elsewhere, he would not give his consent to stay. Brother Lininger was succeeded by Elder Jacob Keller, who commenced his labors in 1845, and continued to serve the Churches for three years. His labors were highly appreciated. His piety and Christian-like deportment secured to him the affections of the more pious. Many experienced a change of heart, were baptized and added to the different Churches while he was here: and if it had not been for the fact, that upwards of a dozen of backsliders were retained in church-fellowship, who were living in the entire neglect of their duty, and yet without being looked after or visited from one year's end to another, double the good might have been accomplished under the labors of so faithful a man.

In the year 1848 the writer, being sent by the Eldership, came and took charge of the Circuit, and for two years past has endeavored to preach the Word and serve the Churches, according to the best of his ability. Last fall a year there was a Church organized at Oregon, four miles from Uniontown, of twenty-eight members, the most of whom, up to that period, were members of the Church at Uniontown. Abraham Garner and Samuel Bean were elected and set apart as the Elders of the Church, George Garner and James Mahanna Deacons; and thus far peace and unity have marked her history.

Last October a year, the Church at Uniontown rejected from her communion all those who had so far backslidden as to give no evidence of their acceptance with God: since which time she been on the increase. A goodly number have been received into church-fellowship, and at present the Church numbers about eighty, who, with a few exceptions, are endeavoring to walk worthy of their profession. The Church at Waterloo at present numbers between twenty-five and thirty.—There is also a good prospect of a Church being established at Sandy Mount, (12 miles from Uniontown.) at which place there are ten, or more, who are endeavoring to follow the Lord in all his appointed ways.

Having noticed the different Churches on the Circuit, their present membership and standing, we will glance back to the time when the first Camp-meeting was held in Maryland, by the Church of God. This was in August, 1833, and held on the ground of Jacob Appler, who has since departed this life. Since that time there have been fifteen Camp-meetings on this Circuit, (including that,) and as far as I can learn, they have all been attended, more or less, by the displays of God's convicting and converting power. Several who embraced religion at the Maryland Camp-meetings, are now upon the walls of Zion, preaching the everlasting Gospel of Prince Immanuel; and eternity will only bring to light the amount of good which has been accomplished at these meetings. As brother Winebrenner, from the commencement of the Uniontown Church, has, from year to year, attended many of her Protracted meetings, and the most of her Camp-meetings, I think, if called upon, would bear evidence to the above; and also give his testimony in favor of Camp-meetings, Woods-meetings, and every protracted effort to promote the cause of God. To these protracted efforts the Churches in Maryland, as well as elsewhere, may attribute their prosperity.

In conclusion I would say, as the Church has kept no record of past events, that in writing the fore-going sketch, I have been entirely dependent upon what I could glean from the recollection of those, my aged brethren, who have lived to see the year 1850. These brethren, who have borne the heat and burden of the day, will soon be called hence; but God grant, (if time continues,) before fifty more years shall have passed away, that instead of one, there may be an hundred, and instead of ten, there may be a thousand, who, to the exclusion of all human creeds, shall take the Word of the Lord as their rule of faith and practice, and who in all things shall endeavor to comply with its Divine requirements, is the prayer of the writer. C. PRICE.

Uniontown, Feb. 15, 1850.

My Last about the "Query."

Mr. Editor:—

Brother Hurley asks: "Is baptism legal when administered by unqualified hands?" and answers the question by saying: "No man, whether layman or clergyman, who is unbaptized, has a right to administer the rite of baptism." In ordinary cases I would agree with him; but he has based the strongest point in his "Query" on an extraordinary case, to wit: a number of persons in a far off country, being converted by simply reading the Bible; after which they demand to be baptized, when there is no baptized minister there, nor within many hundreds of miles. The point to decide here is, would it be better to let those persons all live and die unbaptized, than that one of their number should baptize the rest? Brother H. says yes—and I say yes too, except it happen that there should be one among the converts, whom God should call to preach the Gospel, in which case I say, that man would, under those extraordinary circumstances, have a right to administer baptism. To destroy this conclusion in my mind, brother H. must prove that Luther and Wesley, with many others of the Reformers, (men he dares not say were not called and blessed of God in the ministry,) were all ungodly pretenders, and unqualified ministers, simply because they were not immersed by an immersed immerser.

He calls on me to prove by Scripture what I here think would be acceptable to God.—When he asks a Scriptural question I will answer him according to Scripture. When I tell him that all things must have a beginning; and that, as his extraordinary case pre-supposes the impossibility of his California brethren being baptized for a long time, perhaps not at all while they lived; and that, if in that case the Lord should raise up one of their number to preach the Gospel, he, although not baptized, would be justified, in my opinion, in baptizing the rest, and that their baptism would be valid under such providential and extraordinary circumstances: And when I ask him, Who baptized the twelve Apostles, to qualify them to administer valid Christian Baptism? He answers that baptism had its beginning in the days of Christ and his Apostles, and needs not another beginning; and that the Apostles were most assuredly baptized by John.

I did not ask him whether John, the Forerunner, baptized them. I wish to know who baptized them with the Christian Baptism, in order to qualify them to administer valid Christian Baptism? He will surely not say that John's baptism unto repentance was the same baptism Christ commanded the Apostles to administer. Read Acts 19: 1-7, where, under Paul's preaching, twelve men, who had been baptized with John's baptism, were baptized again, in the name of Jesus Christ. John's baptism was not Christian Baptism, and brother H. cannot show where the twelve Apostles were baptized with Christian Baptism. Christ baptized none himself; but as the institution had to have a beginning, and he had all power, his commission to them to preach the Gospel and baptize too (although themselves unbaptized) was all-sufficient to authorize them to go forth to the work. The necessity of the case required it; and although the ordinance was then established, that does not prove that there might not possibly a case occur where another commencement might be required to be made, as in his California brethren case. And I have only said, that if the Lord, in such a case, should it ever occur, would favor those Bible-converts with a ministering servant from among their own number, he would also empower him with authority to baptize; for God has no half-way preachers, men who are permitted to preach the ordinances of the Gospel, but not to administer them—as some churches teach.

As it is barely possible but not probable that such a case will ever occur, I think it is not a Scriptural point. Where converts have opportunities to be baptized it would, of course, be improper and inconsistent for them to teach and administer to others what they refused to obey themselves. The Reformers named above, had probably been sprinkled in infancy, and took that for baptism, consequently, in the view they took of it, they were not inconsistent when they "baptized" others, even if by immersion. In relation to Uzziah, the king, offering incense, that was strictly forbidden to be done by any but the sons of Aaron; and Uzziah, when his heart was proud, he undertook to violate God's command; and when the chief priest, Azariah, withstood him (Uzziah) he was wroth—angry—and then it was that he was struck with the leprosy. My unbaptized Bible-convert, who had no possible chance to be baptized, and who feels the movings of the Spirit to preach the blessed Gospel, breaks no command if he also baptizes. So I think.

In Christian friendship, I am, &c.,
J. F. WEISHAMPEL.

Uniontown Selection.

"They opened their treasures and presented unto him gold."—Matt. 2: 11.

Presenting gold to Jesus is not a new thing. It has been the practice of the benevolent and good in every age. It is what the liberal are now doing by their contributions to support his disciples who go forth to preach the Gospel, although it is feared that some for gold or silver bring copper. David the king dedicated to the Lord thousands of gold. The Queen of Sheba came also with gold. The chief of the fathers gave their thousands to the Lord; and wise men from the east came unto Jesus, not as the manner of some is, leaving their treasures at home, but to fall down and worship him, open their treasures and present unto him gold.

Not to give is to disobey a command which we find recorded on almost every page of the Gospel, and to sin in the same sense as to break the command, thou shalt be baptized; for the same Jesus who has said, thou shalt be baptized, and if I, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet, ye also shall wash one another's feet, has also said, give. Nor has he said or done less to encourage giving than he has to discourage disobedience. Give, he says, and it shall be given unto you good measure, which with us is seven per cent., pressed down, which is eight, shaken together, which is nine, and running over, which is ten. How strange that so many professing to believe the Gospel, will sooner trust their money on a promise from men, of five, six and seven per cent. increase, than on a promise from God of ten. Of all the precepts of God, we do not know that one is more important to the Christian than that which says, give. It is written to meet the supreme selfishness of the natural heart. Regeneration leaves the remains of this selfish nature in us, to be overcome and carried off by obedience to this great and important precept. Not to obey it, therefore, is to foster that wicked spirit.

To give is to imitate our Heavenly Father, who maketh his sun to rise on the just and on the unjust; who giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not: to be like the Saviour, who loved us, and gave himself for us, that we, having by him freely received, might to him freely give, and to manifest our love to God and his people. Those who love in word and tongue only, while their hearts go after their covetousness, are condemned as heartless, worthless hypocrites; but exceeding great and precious promises are made to all who show their love for Christ in their sacrifices and services. The quantity and quality of gifts show the strength of our love.

When we see persons giving cast-off clothing or fragments of food to the poor, we infer that they love them less than they do their own families, to whom they give the best. So when we see one less cheerful, less bountiful, and less constant in presenting his gold, silver or produce to Jesus than in using it for himself, his family or the world, we do not see how the love of God can be in him; for he who gives not his first affection and noblest sacrifices to God, gives nothing.

Obedience to this command promotes our happiness. Who doubts that the wise men were happier after opening their treasures and presenting unto Jesus their gold than they would have been had they only rendered lip service and return. The reason why so many have little or no enjoyment in religion is, that they seldom if ever open their treasures and present unto the Lord gold, silver, or current bank bills. They withhold more than is meet, and it tends to poverty. But liberal souls are made fat. They contribute to the happiness of others, and thus bless themselves. The more benevolent they are, the more they are like God; and the more they are like God, the happier they will be. And yet many are never more wretched than when their preacher or some friend is urging them to give. They will listen with apparent interest to the doctrine of Christ, contend earnestly for Gospel ordinances as they were delivered unto us, safe and sound; but you must not ask them to open their treasures and present unto Jesus that which Paul declares the love of which is the root of all evil. Like one with a broken limb, they can bear to be touched any where and every where save where they need most of all to be touched, and where they must be touched and healed, or go halting to their graves, and be saved as by fire, (suffering loss,) if saved at all.

I leave this selection for those who may read to make the application, greatly desiring that they may abound in this grace also.

SPICER.

Moral Retribution:*
As Evinced by the Analogy of Nature.

(CONTINUED.)

V. MORAL RETRIBUTION PROPER.

It has been seen that physical retribution is a certain and unavoidable result, or, if you please, a dire and unescapable consequence, of physical perversion. Every where so far as can be discovered does this relation hold good. It farther appeared that analogy indicates that intellectual retribution is to be expected as resulting from intellectual perversion, and even that its conditions demand imperatively that such retribution should follow. It has moreover been seen that this indication and demand of analogy find an actual verification in the records of mental experience. In other words, that the violation of intellectual law actually receives a just punishment as certainly as does the violation of natural or physical law.

And this analogical indication and demand was based principally upon the intimate association of mind with matter, and the obvious fact that organized as we now are the former is manifested only through the medium of the latter. Hence they must necessarily act in harmony, and while retribution is confessedly predicated of the one, its opposite, impunity, could not therefore be predicated of the other. But one or the other must be true of all action, and consequently as impunity cannot be affirmed of either, retribution as certainly must be predicable of both. But the same argument as conclusively evinces the demand of moral retribution consequent upon moral perversion, when the still more intimate connection of our moral nature with both our intellectual and physical natures, is considered, and also the still clearer necessity of these as media for the manifestation of moral character. Notoriously moral qualities can be developed only in connection with mental action, and hence only through the medium of physical organism. Another link is thus added to the chain of our argument, and so clear is the connection that if a corresponding manifestation is not found to exist in fact, all our ideas of the unity and fitness of things will be most grossly and manifestly outraged.

But in the inquiry whether moral retribution resulting from moral perversion does actually exist there is no need of being long detained. Universal consciousness, as well as the unmistakeable evidences of every day experience, cries out in language that none can dispute that it does exist. There are indeed theories as various and fancies as wild as is easily conceivable in relation to the manner of its manifestation and its ultimate extent, but all agree that it is retribution. The consciousness that feels the smart not only writhes under it, but invariably perceives, or at least admits, its connection with moral perversion. Here then are two points conceded upon all hands, and from which it is safe to start.—First, suffering, and second, this suffering the result of moral perversion; or, in other words, the consequence of doing wrong.

The next question is, does all wrong doing, or every perversion, merit and demand a consequent retribution or suffering? It will be perceived that the argument for retribution in morals is general, and its application to one perversion is as legitimate as to any other. If therefore it proves moral retribution at all, it proves it as consequent upon any and therefore upon every perversion. And this alone is a sufficient and an unanswerable reply.—But there is another method of determining this point, which perhaps is still more clearly conclusive. Natural Theology always goes, and always must go, upon the supposition of a Deity, infinitely wise, just and good. But it is impossible to reconcile infinite goodness or justice with partiality in the connection of retribution or punishment with perversion or wrong. In fact it is as evident as any thing can be that God cannot be just, humanly speaking, to say nothing of infinite justice and goodness, and yet maintain the relation of wrong and punishment, of perversion and retribution, in some cases and not in all.

Upon this point indeed there is an abundance of the most conclusive and satisfactory evidence. If all other were wanting, man's own instinctive consciousness would be amply convincing. The language of revelation that to the sinner there is a "fearful looking for of judgment," is but the expression of every person's conscience. With the startling vividness of fast hastening reality it causes us to feel, as nothing but conscience can do, that retribution is hastening upon the step of every wrong. And this consciousness is so universal and so powerful that all confess its sway. Nothing is able to evade it or entirely to silence its voice. Seared and callous, and to a great degree insensible, it may become; but extinguished it never is. Hardened though the sinner be, unfeeling wretch though he may have become, until he can wantonly and hellishly gloat over outraged justice, ravished innocence, and insulted but infinite mercy, yet something of this "fearful looking for of judgment"—of coming retribution ever remains. And the conviction of its certainty is not unfrequently perverted to lead him with fiend-like daring to rush more precipitately and hastily upon the consummation that seems so certain and so dire.

And this consciousness, this fore-boding and fore-warning of conscience, it must be confessed, follows the knowledge of all and hence of any wrong. The moment the wrong is perceived, that moment the "fearful looking for" commences, and while the consciousness of the wrong remains the fore-boding continues, without any prospect or rational hope of extinction. Nor is it to be supposed that this consciousness of coming retribution is deceptive. To do so would be to charge the most sacred and cherished element of human existence with falsity and unmitigated diabolism. If human consciousness be false, man himself is a falsity.

These three points being substantiated—suffering, suffering as the result of moral perversion, and that all moral perversion induces suffering—the way is now open to inquire concerning the nature of this suffering.

A. D. W.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

*"The Demand and Demonstration of a Future Retribution, in Natural Theology." REV. G. B. CHEEVER, D. D., in the Biblical Repository for Jan. 1850.

Knowledge and Zeal.

God, our merciful Creator, has given the human race two means by which it may be restored to that position from which it fell in consequence of the transgression of the first parents. These means are, first, the Scriptures, to enlighten the understanding; and secondly, the Holy Spirit, to purify and sanctify the heart. He who would be a Christian, must avail himself of both these means to attain to that desirable station. There are a number of people who depend solely upon the former alone to prepare themselves for another world. Such are what they generally profess to be, poor sinners; but the pity is, unless they also apply for the other means, they will remain poor sinners all the days of their lives, and also in eternity! They know all about religion, but are no doers. They may be compared to a horse that will not draw when in harness: the perfect animal is here; its eyes and limbs are sound, but it will not pull, and just because there is no inward motive to induce it to go along! The well-read professor of religion knows the duties of the Christian; the way of righteousness is clear before him; but his heart not being in the cause, there is no impelling motive to push him along, and he will be lost in spite of his knowledge of the Scriptures.

There is a second class who avail themselves of the second means, but not enough of the first:—I say not enough of the first, because without possessing some knowledge of the truth, they would not and could not be purified and sanctified by the Spirit. They are convinced that they ought to have religion; and they will seek it, and procure it too; but when they have obtained it, they cease to search the Scriptures for further light, and rather depend upon their feelings, or some notions which they inherited from their ancestry, and the certain consequence is that they will soon fall back into sin, from the fact that they do not possess light and knowledge enough to avoid and conquer it. They may be compared to a blind horse, that will run into the harness with great cheer: he is very willing to draw, and will get along right smartly so long as no obstacles present themselves. But as he cannot see his way, he will soon run against a fence or a tree, and be ruined. Paul speaks of such professors when he says, "For I bear them record that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge."—Now this class of individuals labor under a most fatal error. They feel that they are right, and feel that they ought to do this, or do that. If any people of this character shall happen to read this, let me tell them that the days of revelation are pretty much over. Zeal must come through faith in Jesus, but knowledge is derived from the Scriptures. God has there revealed his will, and the rules which ought to govern you. If you lack for knowledge, (and who does not?) read the Bible with prayer, and God will let the light shine into your hearts. He has made nothing in vain; and therefore it is preposterous to think that he gave you the Bible to lay it on the shelf, and that you should request him to let you feel what is right; and that he gave you understandings, and then permit you to let them remain unimproved, while the very life of the mind consists in its expansion.—Knowledge and zeal must go together. One is the locomotive, and the other the steam to propel it. One shows you the way, and the other will give you strength to "resist unto blood, striving against sin." And both together will so establish you in the service of God, "that you be not soon shaken in mind, or be troubled, neither by spirit, nor by word," and they will "let no man deceive you by any means."

H. J. B.

Linglestown, Pa., 1850.

Friendly Questions.

BROTHER J. FLAKE:—

As I recently had the privilege of listening to an address delivered by the Rev. Bishop Erb, of the United Brethren Church, on the qualification of persons admissible to the communion table of their Church, and as I was considerably struck with the latitude he gave, (though in the main the address was good,) I have thought with your permission I would state to the readers of the Advocate one of his positions, and ask two or three pertinent questions, hoping the Bishop, or some one else equally skilled in the usages of said Church, will not think it beneath their notice to consider and answer them through the same medium, i. e. the Church Advocate.

The Bishop stated that no person expelled from another Church for immoral conduct, would be permitted to commune. Now, so far as this prohibition is concerned, it is founded on correct principles; for no immoral persons, whether expelled or not, have a right to the Lord's table. But the questions I propose to the Bishop and his brethren are—

1st. Is this the only ground for a prohibition to the Lord's table?

2d. Would the United Brethren Church expel members for heresy, sedition or insubordination?

3d. If the above sins be sufficient cause for expulsion, after every conciliatory measure has been employed to restore such, would it be right for another Church to receive such to their communion, after such expulsion had taken place?

These questions are respectfully submitted for the consideration of the Rev. Bishop Erb, or any regular minister of the United Brethren Church, by an OBSERVER AND INQUIRER.

THE friendship of some people is like our shadow, keeping close while we walk in the sunshine, but deserts us the moment we enter the shade.

The Hypocrite's Task.

The hypocrite, refusing to comply entirely with the requirements of the Gospel, thinks he will pursue an easier way than the true Christian, by taking upon himself the outward forms, and making a profession of religion. He fancies it will be an easy task for him to convince the world and the Church that he is a Christian, by his outward performances—while at the same time he knows himself not to be in possession of the "pearl of great price," or a regenerated heart. But see how greatly he is mistaken and deceived by the devil. He has to do all the good works of the true disciple of Christ, to keep up the appearance: and this he must do, not because he loves to do it—not because he feels the love of God impel him to do it, but solely to hide his hypocrisy. It goes hard with him to pay money to support a cause he does not love, but only espouses for an impure purpose. But the true Christian gives for the love of giving, and to a cause he sincerely loves above all causes.

Again—The hypocrite has to walk circumspectly or he will soon be detected. This too is hard work. He would like, at times, to give vent to his passions and morbid appetite; but he dares not, lest his cloven foot be seen. So, you see, he has to fight against his evil heart all the while, to conceal his hypocrisy, and all this without the least particle of grace or help of God: such as he offers his children in their trials and troubles. His way is a hard one—harder than the avowed sinner, and harder than the persecuted Christian. The open sinner seeks not to dissemble, and therefore needs no cloak to hide his sins; and the Christian has the sustaining grace of God, and God's Spirit to guide and uphold him. Who would be a hypocrite with all this difference against him, besides the certainty of damnation in the end? "Fearfulness has surprised the hypocrites." "The hope of the hypocrite"—if he has any—"shall perish." J. F. W.

Iowa Again.

North Bend, Johnson Co., Iowa, June 20, 1850.

My good Brother Flake:—

Grace be with you, and peace be multiplied. Having a few leisure moments, I will improve them by writing once more a little about Iowa.

The weather now is very warm, yet pleasant. The Prairie is all decked over with her beautiful green summer mantle. All around us are droves of horses and colts, flocks of sheep and herds of swine, pasturing at their leisure. The fields in general are richly spread over with Fall Wheat, Rye, Spring Wheat, Oats, and Corn, all promising an abundant harvest. Husbandmen all around are busy cultivating the Corn. Two days ago there were within two miles of my dwelling, five teams in operation breaking Prairie.—Some have five and six yoke of oxen in one team: those break daily from 10 to 12 acres per day:—one of them is now breaking for me. Within 15 months time there were entered about 3000 acres of land in our settlement, within four or five miles distance.—Buildings are going on in almost every direction. Mechanics are busy. Seven or eight buildings have been raised since some time in March last. Six more are making preparations to put up between this and next fall.

Of the brotherhood there were none emigrated to our "Bend," but brother Jos. Orris, formerly of Lisburn, Cumberland county, Pa., and brother Samuel Watsabaugh, brother-in-law to Elder David Kyle. Inasmuch as time is precious to the farmer, and nights are short, I must be brief—so farewell.

M. F. SNAVELY.

A Sectarian Spirit.

Is there a body of believers organized any where in the world, who have not a sectarian spirit among them to a greater or less degree? I think not. We often hear persons calling others sects and sectarians, conveying the idea that they are not sectarian themselves. This is probably in most cases a mistaken view of their own hearts. It is altogether natural that we should have a preference for those who are in communion with us; and were the Church of Christ what and as she ought to be, it would be necessary for her members to have a good warm sectarian spirit. Don't be startled, kind reader! I mean if the people of God were all one—all united together, they must needs have a corresponding love for and attachment to each other; just as strong as we now have for the members of our own favorite denominations. We should then be the Sect of Christ or God, and all the rest of the accountable family of man would be the Sect of the world or the evil one—and we should then want as little to do with the ways of the wicked sect as we now sometimes want to have to do with our neighbors of other churches. It may as well be owned up to, that all have a sectarian spirit—and where it is founded on the love of the true doctrine of Christ and his disciples, but not mixed with hatred, it is not sin.

J. F. W.

York County Camp-meeting.

Shelly's Island, July 24, 1850.

Dear Brother Flake:

There has sprung up a Camp-meeting spirit in the brethren and sisters of York county, though after the time of meeting for the Camp-meeting Committee. We trust they will bear with us for coming out now. We contemplate holding one on the lower end of York county, about one mile from Newberry, on the road leading from Newberry to M. Crull's, and about one and a half miles from the river, on the land of Tacy Keister, to commence on Friday, the 16th of August.

We wish to hold a union Camp-meeting. We invite all that can come with their tabernacles, far and wide, from Bainbridge, and Elizabethtown, Middletown, Highspire, and elsewhere, to come to the help of the Lord. We also hope to see a goodly number of our preaching brethren in attendance.

The brethren will meet on Saturday, August 10th, to prepare the ground. No huckstering allowed. MICHAEL SHELLY,

In behalf of the Church.

Death by Drowning.

On the 25th of June, at Lockport, Wayne county, Indiana, Henry Austin, eldest son of Wm. and Elizabeth Booth, aged 9 years and 24 days. Funeral services by brother Beaherrel, a Methodist minister.

Sleep on, my dear son, till the last trumpet sound,
To call forth the dead that sleep under ground;
When they who in Jesus have fallen asleep,
Come forth, quick as thought, to meet Christ in the air.

WM. BOOTH.

July 4, 1850.

A Query.

Brother Flake:—

Will you, or some of your courteous patrons, please and give a satisfactory answer to the following Query, and remove a difficulty from my mind, (and probably from the minds of some of your readers:)

Query.—If an individual has been converted and immersed, and after all this, falls entirely back into sin; and again turns from his backsliding to God, is his baptism, after his second conversion, valid, as though he had never fallen back? If it is, how doth it appear so?

This query has not been propounded for the sake of cavilling, but to gain information.

Yours, affectionately,

A. SNYDER.

Matamoras, Pa., July, 1850.

Letter from Brother S. B. Howard.

Bainbridge, Pa., July —, 1850.

Brother Flake:—

In compliance with the request of my father, I present to you, for publication in the Advocate, a synopsis of his letter lately received from Joilett, Will county, Illinois: the object of which is, to acquaint the Churches generally, and the ministerial brethren especially, with the favorable and inviting fields for missionary labor in some sections of the Western country. My father goes on to say:—

"I left home about five weeks ago—came on to Toledo, Ohio—preached twice to very large and attentive congregations, and no doubt from the interest manifested could establish a very large Church there. The people seemed anxious to have me tarry still longer; but, wishing to see my children in Michigan and Illinois, and also having started on an exploring expedition, to search out ground for future operations, I was obliged to decline their kind solicitations.

"From thence I came on to Adrian, Michigan, where I remained two weeks, preaching constantly to large congregations. The Baptist Church there, to which you formerly belonged, had just received 199 members by immersion. From there I came on to Chicago—obtained the use of the City Hall from the Mayor and Council, and continued five days, preaching to good congregations. I wish brothers Winebrenner and Harn were here to assist in a protracted effort—much good might be accomplished. Since then I have visited Lockport, Joilett, Stars Grove, &c., &c., where I not only found children according to the flesh, but also many whom "I had begotten in Christ Jesus through the Gospel"—many from Nova Scotia and York State.

"There is indeed a fine opening in this section for the planting of Churches of God; and now is the time to strike! It appears to me there will never be a more favorable opportunity.

"The country is most delightful, and so far transcends my highest expectations that language is inadequate to express my delight.—The rolling Prairies, from 5 and 10, to 15 and 20 miles in length and breadth, spotted with beautiful groves, and refreshed with crystal streams, enriched and beautified by the diligent and untiring hands of Western yeomen, and the innumerable flocks and herds swarming the untenanted and seemingly unlimited common, all conspire to make one fancy themselves, if not in the promised land, yet in a land of promise, flowing with an abundance of milk, if not quite so much honey.

"Tell brothers Winebrenner and Harn thro' the Advocate to write to me, and direct to Joilett, Will county, Illinois. I feel desirous to know where they are."

BENJAMIN HOWARD,
per S. B. HOWARD.

Letter from Brother David Shriner.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio, July 4, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I write you these few lines to inform you that I am still trying to blow the gospel trumpet in this Western world, endeavoring to invite poor sinners home to God. While travelling through these Western woods, I find some of my Father's children, who are still striving to make their way to that rest that remains for the people of God. Although we frequently meet in cabin-houses, yet we find the Lord with us, and that to bless. We still beg an interest in the prayers of all God's people. No more at present.

I remain yours in the Lord,

DAVID SHRINER.

OBITUARY OF Sister JANE CLELLAND.

Died, on the 30th of June, 1850, at Pisgah, Pa., of Pulmonary Consumption, sister Jane Clelland, consort of brother James Clelland, aged 44 years, 5 months and 23 days.

It thus becomes my painful duty to record the departure of one of earth's noblest spirits. Sister Clelland embraced the Saviour in the morning of life. Seventeen years ago she cast in her lot with the Church of God at Pisgah, Perry county, Pa., which, by emigration, apostacy and death, has become almost extinct. In it she lived and died. She was one of its purest spirits and brightest ornaments, living so devoted to her Master's cause, that her praise was in all the Churches of God in this region. She was confined to her room for one year, during which time she evinced all the patience and resignation of a deeply devoted child of God. She frequently told me that there was but one thing that could induce her to stay here, (was it optional with her,) viz: to take care of her children, eight in number, some of which are very tender in years; but she felt conscious that the Lord would provide. The nearer she approached the verge of eternity, the stronger became her desire to be with Christ, which was far better. She now sleeps in Jesus. She left an example to her husband, children, and all who knew her, worthy of imitation. Oh! how calm and how peaceful her release. How precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints. Oh! let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like hers.

Her mortal remains were committed to the dust in the Lutheran burying-ground, connected with the Mount Pisgah church, followed by a large concourse of weeping friends. The occasion was improved with a discourse by the writer, from 1 Cor. 15: 26. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."

J. H. HURLEY.

Landisburg, Pa., July 23, 1850.

OBITUARY OF Sister LUCY ANN HINNY.

Died, at Mechanicsburg, Cumberland county, Pa., on the morning of the 5th inst., of Pulmonary Consumption, sister Lucy Ann Hinny, aged 22 years, 5 months and 29 days.

The subject of this notice was born January

7th, 1828, and in her infancy brought into the family of her grand-parents, brother and sister Hinny. By them she was called Lucy Ann. Afterward she adopted the name in full, and called herself Lucy Ann Hinny.

She embraced the religion of Christ at the age of 14 years. Soon afterward she was baptized, professing her faith in the burial and resurrection of her Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. She identified herself with the Church of God at Mechanicsburg, of which she continued a zealous and consistent member until death ended her earthly pilgrimage, in the triumphs of a living faith.

Sister Lucy was very dutiful and affectionate from her childhood, and appeared to be beloved by all who knew her. She was especially beloved by her grand-parents, with whom she lived, and they looked up to her for comfort and solace in their declining years.

In the death of our beloved sister, the family, the Church, the Sabbath-school, and the Bible-class, have lost a pious and devoted member. But we trust our loss is her eternal gain. Such is human life. The young, the middle-aged, and the aged, must all die. Oh! may we all prepare for that solemn event, so that we may be ready, like our sister, to enter into the marriage supper of the Lamb.

The following hymn was sung at her funeral:

1. "My father calls me to his arms,
And willingly I go:
With cheerfulness I bid farewell,
To every thing below.

2. My tender parents, kind and dear,
I bid farewell to you;
Though nature feels, and I can find,
'Tis hard to say adieu.

3. My friends and kindred loved me much,
Ye hold me near your heart;
And I still feel that I can love,
And find it hard to part.

4. But do not weep or grieve for me,
You know I must go home:
I was upon a visit here,
And now I must return.

5. Now I rejoice to leave this world
Of sorrow, sin and pain;
I know I'm washed in Jesus' blood,
And shall a crown obtain."

J. HAIFLEIGH.

Mechanicsburg, July 8, 1850.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

The Great Fire in Philadelphia.

PARTICULARS OF THE DISASTER.

The Philadelphia Bulletin of Thursday evening, the 11th ult., gives the following particulars:

The greatest fire known in Philadelphia for years, occurred on Tuesday. It broke out at a quarter past four o'clock, in the upper part of the large store house on the south side of Water street, below Vine, owned by John Brock, grocery and commission merchant. The part of the building where the fire originated was occupied by Gordon & Burger, flour and hay merchants. The flames spread with rapidity, and the firemen and an immense crowd of people were soon assembled. Suddenly a terrific explosion took place in the building, destroying the building, causing a great panic among the crowd, and disastrous loss of lives. This explosion, which was understood to be from a quantity of saltpetre stored in the building, was followed by a number of other explosions of more or less violence. The consternation among the people, the rushing of firemen, shrieks and groans of women and children, the crashing of timbers, the rush of horses and drays, and the fall of timbers, bricks, &c., made a most frightful scene. A great number of persons who were standing on the wharf, either leaped in or were blown into the river. Most of these were rescued, but it is believed that three men and several boys were drowned, and there may have been many more.

This frightful scene diverted the attention of the people and the labors of the firemen, and the flames began to spread with fearful rapidity. A large girder, blown from the scene of explosion, fell upon a house in Front street. Other timbers in flames were blown upon other buildings, speedily setting fire to them and spreading the conflagration. The Vigilant Engine was working in front of the scene of explosion, and was considerably injured and for a time disabled.

The scene become now magnificent, though appalling. The flames, aided by a strong wind, spread to the West and North. The buildings were most of them old, though substantial, and the currents of flame among the courts and alleys were fearful. The firemen were some time in recovering their places, and many persons were frightened from the scene by the recent explosion and the wild rumors circulating that other buildings contained powder and other explosive matter. In a little while, all the buildings along the wharf, from the commencement of the fire up to Vine street, and West, across Water and Front streets to Second, and up Second to Vine, were a mass of flame. The buildings comprised many of them fine warehouses, as well as a large number of good dwellings on Front and Second, New and Vine streets, numerous buildings on Water street, occupied by great numbers of poor families, and many other dwellings in the alleys and courts that abound in that vicinity.

The fire raged till past midnight, and towards morning it was checked, but not until it had destroyed all the property in the following limits—from the wharf below to Vine street, west across Water and Front to Second, up Second to Callowhill, down Callowhill to the river, including several houses on the north side of Callowhill, and five ware-houses on the wharf above Callowhill, thence down the wharf to the place of beginning.

THE HOUSES DESTROYED.

It is almost impossible to estimate the number of houses destroyed, the ground being so cut up by courts and alleys, which were all thickly populated. An approximate estimate, makes the whole number in all the streets, alleys and courts, three hundred and fifty, which we think will not be far from correct. Many of them, however, were very narrow, inferior buildings.

THE KILLED, WOUNDED AND MISSING.

After the most diligent inquiry, we have been unable to obtain a complete list of the killed, wounded and missing. From all the information in regard to the most melancholy part of the story of yesterday's disaster, we feel safe in stating the number as follows—killed 50, wounded 100, drowned 9, missing 17. Total 176.

☞ President FILLMORE's daughter, aged about eighteen years, is engaged in the honorable employment of teacher in a public school in Buffalo.

The New Cabinet.—After various surmises and numberless arrangements of the Cabinet by the newspapers, it has at last been formed by the President, and consists as follows:

Secretary of State—Dan'l Webster, of Mass.
Secretary of Treasury—Mr. Corwin, of Oh.
Secretary of Interior—Mr. Pearce, of Md.
Secretary of War—Mr. Bates, of Missouri.
Secretary of Navy—Mr. Graham, of N. C.
Postmaster General—Mr. Hall, of N. Y.
Attorney General—Mr. Crittenden, of Ky.

This is considered a strong Whig Cabinet, being composed of three Northern and four Southern men. It is said that the exclusion of Pennsylvania from the Cabinet does not please the delegation from that State, but, if the men appointed are unobjectionable in other respects, this displeasure will soon give place to a better feeling. The appointment of two such men as Mr. Webster and Mr. Crittenden, both moderate men and both deeply impressed with the value of the Union, will give force and dignity to the Cabinet, and create a confidence in the public mind which, in the present condition of national affairs, may lead to the best results.

Professor Webster's Death Warrant Signed.—Prof. Webster is said to have been fully prepared for the decision of the Executive Council—at least, when he learned it from the evening papers, he did not appear to be disappointed. His wife and three daughters; also, Mr. Sohier, one of his counsel, had an interview with him in jail yesterday.

It is understood that Professor Webster had expressed a wish that if he were to be executed, an early day might be fixed; and that his family might be kept in ignorance of the time. For a long time the family have abstained from reading any newspaper whatever.

The prisoner was visited this morning by High Sheriff Eveleth, who found him calm and apparently resigned. Professor Webster had probably long before abandoned all hope of the favorable action of the Governor and Council. His Excellency, the Governor, has affixed his signature to the "Death Warrant," which has been duly transmitted to the High Sheriff. Boston Transcript, Saturday, July 20.

Crossing the Atlantic in Five Days!—The citizens of Portland, Me., have petitioned their Legislature to ascertain the most practicable route for a Railroad from Bangor in the direction of St. John, New Brunswick, to some good harbor at Nova Scotia or Cape Breton, best fitted for a terminus for a line of trans-Atlantic navigation. From Cape Canso, Nova Scotia, to Galway Bay, in Ireland, the distance is said to be 2,000 miles. Assuming the speed of steam vessels to be 17 miles an hour, the ocean will thus be crossed in five days time.

Accident.—As the morning train on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad was passing over a small bridge, five miles below Wrightsville, the bridge gave way, and the engine and tank were precipitated into the stream below. We are sorry to add that the engineer, Mr. Charles Duncan, was drowned.

☞ The York Gazette says:—From every section of the County we have the most cheering accounts of the Harvest—a finer and more productive crop was never gathered than will be housed this season by the farmers of York county. Fruit, in all its varieties, will be abundant, and every thing indicates plenty and prosperity.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LAST ILLNESS AND DEATH OF GEN. ZACHARY TAYLOR, PRESIDENT OF THE U. STATES.

[Correspondence of the Phila. Evening Bulletin.]

WASHINGTON, July 10, 1850.

The capital is shrouded in mourning. President Taylor is no more. He breathed his last at thirty-five minutes past 10 o'clock yesterday evening, and lies in state this morning at the executive mansion, surrounded by his grief-stricken and afflicted family. It is impossible to convey to you in words the effect the appalling news had upon the minds of all classes here, and the same sympathy will be manifested by all classes elsewhere. Few men, irrespective of his exalted station, as President of the United States, have borne with them higher claims to a nation's sorrow, and few, whether in his day or ages past, have achieved mightier triumphs to render that name immortal.

HIS LAST ILLNESS, &C.

I yesterday stated that his indisposition began on the Fourth. On the morning of that day he was, to all appearances, sound in health, and in excellent spirits. In company with his family, and several of the heads of departments, he attended at the National Monument, to hear Mr. Foote's Independence oration, and even up to five o'clock exhibited no symptoms of illness. However, while upon the ground, he partook freely of water; and then, after considerable exercise in walking, and exposure to the sun, he drove home. Arrived at the mansion, he "felt," as he expressed himself to Dr. Weatherspoon, "very hungry," and without reflecting that he was in an unfit condition to indulge freely in fruits, &c., he called for some refreshments, and ate heartily of cherries and wild berries, which he washed down with copious draughts of iced milk and water. At dinner, he applied himself again to the cherries, against the remonstrances of Dr. Weatherspoon, and in an hour was seized by cramps, which soon took the form of cholera-morbus. His physician prescribed the usual remedies, but for a time he resisted, deeming the attack only temporary, and that it would yield finally to his naturally strong constitution. Towards midnight, instead of relief, the attack increased in violence, and threatened desperate results, if not speedily arrested. He continued in this condition, without much change, until the evening of the 6th. It was then deemed advisable to call in other physicians. Accordingly, Messrs. Hall and Coolidge were invited, and promptly responded; but they thought it farther advisable to send for the assitance of Dr. Wood, of Baltimore. That gentleman attended immediately, and in the same cars came Colonel Taylor, the brother of the General, and his family, who had likewise been telegraphed for. By this time, (the morning of the 8th,) the disease had made rapid encroachments on his frame; but by the united skill of these practitioners, the visible stages of the cholera-morbus were soon after checked. However, fever ensued; and from a remittent character, it took the form of typhoid. Anxiety now began to manifest itself, not only among the exalted patient's family, but among the physicians themselves. His chances of life hung upon a thread.

Meanwhile, there were other causes, besides merely eating and drinking, that operated fatally upon his system. To his medical attendant on the 8th he said, "I should not be surprised if this would terminate in my death. I did not expect to encounter what has beset me since my elevation to the Presidency. God knows that I have endeavored to fulfil what I conceived an honest duty. But I have been misrepresented. My motives have been misconstrued, and my feelings most grossly outraged." He alluded doubtless to the slavery question, and the manner in which he had variously been assailed. Even the sanctity of his sick chamber had been invaded by certain Southern ultraists, who came to warn him, that unless he took some necessary step to protect the South, they would vote a resolution of censure on his conduct in the Galphin business. I repeat merely what I know to be true. On the 5th, Messrs. Stephens and Toombs waited upon him as a committee appointed by an ultra caucus, to remonstrate upon the same subject; and according to facts since developed, the inverview concluded with a threat similar to the above. It was not until after his illness of the 4th, and the conference of the 5th, that the mind of the President seemed so sadly oppressed, and which called forth the remarks just given. From this time forward, his mental sufferings were equal to his physical.

But to proceed. Toward the evening of the 8th, the chronic type of dysentery which had set in, disappeared, and vomiting ensued. Dr. Joubron, of Philadelphia, who is eminent in these branches of treatment, was telegraphed, and a reply received from him that he would arrive last evening; but alas! too late to be of service.

The condition of the patient was now in its critical point. The sick chamber was restored to solemn silence, attendants placed on the outside, and none permitted to enter except the physicians. The family of the President, with Colonel Bliss, and other relatives of the deceased, occupied a room adjoining, where they remained overwhelmed with grief, and refusing even the indulgence of necessary repose. Bulletins were hourly sent out, to inform the masses of the changes observable in the patient; but these so slightly varied for the better, that all hope of his safety was dispelled at 11 o'clock. From that period until daylight, the utmost anxiety prevailed.

The ninth dawned, but gloom still surrounded the Executive mansion. Thousands began to flood the avenues leading thither, and throughout the day a messenger was kept posted at the main door to answer the interrogatories that were incessantly poured upon him. At 10 o'clock, A. M., a report circulated that the President had rallied—at 1, P. M., that he was dead. The consternation created by the latter rumor was happily relieved by an official bulletin at half-past three, that the crisis had been passed, and that he was then beyond immediate danger. Bells rang for joy, and even the boys in the streets lit bonfires, and shouted in childish gratulation. The stream now to the White House was greater than ever, but about seven in the evening the pall of gloom again shrouded all faces, for it was announced that the illustrious hero was dying.

I will not attempt to describe the commotion that ensued. Mrs. Taylor thrice fainted from excess of apprehensions, and Colonel Bliss, who had never shed a tear, perhaps, on the battle plain, wept like an infant. At five—two hours previous—the physicians refused to administer any more medicine—considering his case hopeless, and in the hands of God. The Heads of Departments, corporate authorities of the city, diplomatic body, and officers of the army and navy, paid their respects often during the day, and seemed to entertain lively feelings of solicitude for his safety. Everything that could contribute to the comfort of the sick thenceforward, was extended; but the sands of life had run out, and his hours were numbered.

An nine, the vomiting partially ceased, as all pain had disappeared about four in the afternoon. But the system had wasted under the shock, and gradually sunk beyond recovery. Green matter was thrown from his stomach at intervals until twenty minutes past ten—that peculiar coloration of bile that indicates the dissolution of patients thus seized. At thirty-five minutes past ten, his wife, and other members of his family, were called to his bedside, to receive his last earthly adieu—a farewell that the stoutest could not gaze on without a tear. It must be remembered that his was a domestic life; and his beloved partner, ignorant as himself of those fashionable formulas which sunder the husband from the wife, felt for the first time the loneliness of a bereaved heart, and understood nothing of that rigid discipline that would have dictated to her, "Go and weep in solitude—society decrees it." Her abandonment and grief were truly heart-piercing.

THE LAST MOMENTS.

At a few minutes past ten, as I have said, it became apparent that the soul of the hero and conqueror was about taking its rest. The medical yielded to the spiritual agent, whose office it was to prepare for the King of Terrors. But there was nothing in the conduct of the sufferer to indicate that he feared the mortal leap. In the secret communion of his heart with heaven, who can say that he died not a Christian? After prayer, he seemed refreshed, and called for a glass of water. It was given him, and he drank sparingly. He then inquired of Dr. Weatherspoon how long he thought he would live, to which the latter replied, "I hope, General, for many years," but, thinking this a useless deception, he added, "I fear not many hours." "I know it," was the response; then, after musing a moment, he asked for his family. They were sent for, and soon entered. The interview was indescribably affecting—Mrs. Taylor prostrating herself at the bedside, and her children clinging around her with sobs and groans expressive of their agony. The pain, which afflicted the patient in the side of his chest, ceased; and attended by other symptoms of ease, it was thought he might endure till morning. But he himself knew better, and so declared in a quite audible voice. He was asked whether he was comfortable. "Very," he replied, "but the storm in passing has swept away the trunk." Finally he adverted to the subject of his previous broodings—the slavery question—and observed, "I am about to die—I expect the summons soon—I have endeavored to discharge all the official duties faithfully—I regret nothing, but am sorry that I am about to leave my friends." These were his last audible words. He essayed to speak to his wife a few moments before his demise, but his voice failed him. Dr. Weatherspoon administered a stimulus, but it was powerless in reviving the functions. The soul of the hero had fled:

"The lightnings may flash, and the thunder may rattle,
He heeds not, he hears not, he's free from all pain;
He sleeps his last sleep, he has fought his last battle.
No sound can awake him to glory again."

Congestion of the stomach and brain began at half-past eight o'clock, so that no earthly power could stay the fatal result which has plunged the nation in mourning. The unwearied attention of his medical advisers deserved credit, and their skill is unquestionable. It is believed, however, that had the mind of the President not been laboring under embarrassment and affliction, proceeding from causes named, the disease could have been checked, and his life saved. But now that he is gone, it is vain to speculate. One succeeds him, whose sensitiveness is not quite so keen, because intimate with all the trials of politics, and therefore possessing fortitude sufficient to withstand them.

Those surrounding the dying President at the moment, were his own family, including Col. Bliss, Col. Taylor and family, Jefferson Davis and family, Vice President Fillmore, several Senators and Members, several members of the diplomatic corps, the Cabinet, Benton, Hale, Wood, Coolidge, and Weatherspoon; and a number of intimate friends. Without the mansion, the grounds were literally covered with an immense multitude, who continued to linger in groups until after midnight, scarce crediting the intelligence, though officially announced.

General Taylor died without a struggle. It was a kind of sinking into eternity, without feeling its pain, or experiencing its horrors. When all was over, the chamber was cleared, until the undertakers had concluded their duties. The body was encased in ice, and ordered to remain where it was until this morning, when it was finally robed for the grave, and laid out in state in the East Room. Thus ended the melancholy siege of disease against the strong bulwark of nature.

ACTION OF THE CABINET.

The Cabinet, immediately after the death of the President, held an informal meeting, at which a paper was drawn up, and signed by the members, in which his decease was set forth, and officially communicated to Mr. Fillmore, as his constitutional successor. Mr. F., in return, thanked them for their courtesy, and in a brief epistle, deplored the event that had just taken place. He further invited them to a council this morning, for the purpose of executing such measures, as under the circumstances appeared advisable. These proceedings terminated the night.

SIGNS OF MOURNING TO-DAY.

At sunrise, this morning, the national colors, shrouded in black, were disclosed at half-mast. All the public offices were closed, and arrayed in the same sable colors, even to the national monument. The Executive mansion was literally covered with black, and the badge was worn on the housings of the horses attached to the Secretary's carriages. Business of all kinds was suspended, and a stream of living objects kept pouring into the President's grounds, and besieged the edifice until as late as 11 o'clock. From the War and Navy and State Departments, orders were transmitted to stations abroad, communicating the awful tidings, and directing appropriate honors in consequence. The Executive mansion was open until 2, P. M., during which time the public availed themselves of the opportunity to visit the remains.—They were contained in one of Fisk and Raymond's metallic coffins, encased by a plain mahogany coffin, and exposed on a bier in the East room. The body is greatly emaciated, but the lineaments of the face are preserved tolerably perfect. It is proposed to embalm the remains; but the consent of Mrs. Taylor has not yet been obtained. It is presumed, however, that she will raise no objections—the General himself never having said or expressed aught against the practice.

Perhaps the death of Washington did not inspire more real sorrow and regret than that of President Taylor. Every face wears a mournful shade, and none are so poor in charity as to deny him the tribute of a sigh. The churches commenced ringing their bells last night, and have kept up the melancholy concert ever since. Groups beset the corners of the streets, and not a passing vehicle but what contains a countenance of grief. The Mayor of the city has ordered appropriate honors, and truly, it may be said, we live "with the Willow and Cypress waving around us."

PROCEEDINGS IN THE TWO HOUSES.

At 11 o'clock the Senate was called to order by Secretary Dickens, who stated he had received a letter from Mr. Fillmore, late Vice President of the United States, enclosing a communication to the Senate, which he would read. The letter was simply an announcement that he had been called upon to exercise the duties of President of the United States, and that he would be ready to take the oath of office, in the Hall of Representatives, at 12 o'clock, M. After the reading of the letter, a committee was appointed, in conjunction with a committee from the House, to receive the President, and to escort him to the Chamber in conformity with the above. This done, the Senate took a recess until 12 o'clock.

The House also met at 11, and passed similar proceedings. At 12 the Senate, as a body, appeared at the bar of the Chamber, and took seats in the area front of the Speaker's chair. In a few minutes the President was announced, who entered, leaning upon Mr. Soule on his right, and Mr. Winthrop of the House on his left. Behind him followed Judge Cranch, of the United States District Court, and after him came Gen. Taylor's Cabinet. The President, passing up to the Clerk's tribune, accompanied by Judge Cranch, took the Bible, and in a clear, distinct tone of voice, declared, "I, Millard Fillmore, do solemnly swear, that as President of the United States, I will protect, defend, and observe the Constitution of the United States, and so help me God;" and then immediately left the Hall, the Cabinet following in the order described. The Senate next proceeded to its Chamber, where beautiful eulogies were delivered by Messrs. Webster, Cass, Downs, King, and others.—That by Mr. Webster was deeply impressive, and a splendid production of oratory. The Senate then adjourned.

In the House, eulogies were delivered by Messrs. Conrad, Winthrop, Baker, Bayly, Hilliard, J. A. King, M'Lane and Marshall. The House then also adjourned, after appointing a committee consisting of thirteen, to co-operate with a Senate committee of three, to prepare and conduct the funeral obsequies of the deceased. This latter ceremony will take place on Saturday.

REVERENCE.—Reverence God's name, and never use it thoughtlessly—God's book, and bow to its decisions—God's house, and frequent it prayerfully, punctually, and constantly—a brother's character, and vindicate it if truth will allow—the acts and sayings of the wise and good, and endeavor to imitate them.

POETRY.

THE PARABLE OF THE SOWER.

BY M. J. BEYERLE, M. D.

The language of the following poem might have been rendered more poetical, but the writer preferred to preserve, as much as possible, the simple language of the Scriptures.

Behold, a man went forth to sow,
And as he cast his seed
Some fell upon the hardened road,
On which the fowls did feed.

And other seed fell on the stones,
Where not much soil was found,
And soon it sprung up unto life,
Since earth did not abound:

But when the sun, in majesty,
Poured down his scorching ray,
The rootless plants upon the stones
Soon withered away.

Some of the sower's seed did fall
Among the thorn and tare:
The thorns sprung up:—the seed soon died
For want of light and air.

Some other of this precious seed
Fell into fertile earth,
From which good and abundant fruit
Was in due time brought forth.

THE MORAL.

If any fail to understand
The word of life they hear,
The wicked one will come, and soon
The seed will disappear.

But others hear the word of life,
And drink it with delight,
Yet as there is no root nor ground,
Its doom will be to blight:

When persecutions show themselves,
Or sorrows once commence,
(As ev'ry child of God will have,)
This seed will take offence.

He, also, that receiveth the seed
Among the thorns and tares,
Will hear, but, ah! the word is choked
By wealth and worldly cares.

But he that gets the precious seed
Into a fertile ground,
Is he that hears and understands,
And fruit will soon abound.

Linglestown, Pa., 1849.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 17th of July, 1850, by Elder T. Strohm, Mr. BENJAMIN H. LINGLE, of Linglestown, Dauphin county, to Miss MATILDA WEAVER, of Lehigh county, Pa.

On the 2d of July, 1850, by Elder D. Kyle, Mr. JACOB HEAGY to Miss CATHARINE SHIMER, all of Martinsburg, Blair county, Pa.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—On the 28th of June, 1850, at the residence of her father, near Bucyrus, Crawford county, Ohio, of fever, MARIAH, eldest daughter of brother Jacob aud sister Margaret Shroll, aged 12 years, 2 months and 10 days.

Brother and sister Shroll have lost a promising child; but we trust their loss is her gain. Funeral discourse by the writer, from John 5: 25, 28, 29. DAVID SHRINER.

At his residence, in Fairview township, York county, Pa., on the morning of the 6th ult., brother JOHN BARTEN, aged 47 years, 11 months and 25 days.

Thus has been taken from our midst a worthy member of the Church of God. He was confined to his house for about four months. His disease was of a pulmonary nature. He bore it with patience, was sensible to his last, and calmly fell asleep in Jesus. He has left a wife and six children (four sons and two daughters) to mourn his loss; but their loss doubtless is his eternal gain. Funeral services by the writer, from Job 14: 14.

July 8, 1850. M. M. UTLI.

Departed this life, on the 10th of July, 1850, in Wooster, Ohio, Mrs. CHARLOTTE S., wife of Julian Spink, and daughter of the late Jacob Winebrenner, aged 29 years, 2 months and 10 days.

She died after an illess of a few hours, and left a husband and two children to mourn their loss.

On the 15th of July, 1850, in Bridgeport, Cumberland county, Pa., Mrs. MARY WILLS, aged upwards of 70 years.

Funeral services by Elder J. J. Miller, from 2 Peter 3: 14.

In Harrisburg, on the 23d of July, 1850, CATHARINE ANN, infant daughter of Jacob and Catharine Walters, aged 2 months and 23 days.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

East Pennsylvania Camp-meetings.

1. A Camp-meeting for Dauphin Circuit, to commence on the 19th of August, on the land of brother John Felty, about four miles from Harrisburg, and three from Linglestown. The preachers and brethren are invited to attend.

2. A Camp meeting for Landisburg Circuit, to commence on Tuesday, August, 27th, on the old camp-ground in Germany, about four miles from Landisburg. The preachers and brethren are invited to attend.

3. A Camp-meeting or a Woods-meeting will be held near Churchtown, to commence on Saturday, August 10th. All the preachers and brethren are invited.

A Camp-meeting will be held by the Church of God, near Newburg, Cumberland county, Pa., commencing on Friday, the 16th of August. The brethren from the surrounding Churches are invited to attend, and as many as can will please bring tents and encamp with us. The preaching brethren also, far and near, are invited to attend.

E. H. THOMAS.

A Camp-meeting for Broad Top Circuit will commence on the 23d of August, to be held near Mr. John Hoover's, on Broad Top. The preachers and brethren are invited to attend.

The followinging Camp-meetings will be held on the Schuylkill Circuit, viz:

One in Mahantungo Valley, on the land of brother George Hepler, commencing on Monday, the 12th of August next.

The second will be held at brother George Kimmel's, one and a half miles east of Orwigsburg, commencing on Monday, the 26th of August.

The German preachers are all invited to attend the above Camp-meetings.

J. KELLER.

West Pennsylvania Camp-meetings.

The following Camp-meetings will be held within the bounds of the West Pennsylvania Eldership, viz:

One in Marshall county, Virginia, commencing on the 9th of August.

One in Brush Valley, Indiana county, Pa., commencing on the 22d of August.

One in Irvin township, Venango county, Pa., commencing on the 5th of September.

Brothers Winebrenner and Harn will be in attendance at the last meeting.

Also, a Protracted meeting at Bethany, Westmoreland county, Pa., commencing on the 20th of September.

Brothers Winebrenner and Harn will attend. By order of the Committee.

J. M. KLEIN.

Camp-meetings in Ohio.

1, One in the bounds of the Chester Church, Chester township, Wayne county, commencing on the 15th of August.

2. One in Summit county, near East Liberty, commencing on the 22d of August.

3. One on the old camp-ground, one and a half miles West of Reedsburg, Ashland county, commencing on the 29th of August.

Indiana Camp-meeting.

A Camp-meeting will be held in the bounds of the Church in Decalb county, in the neighborhood of brother Joseph Walters', five miles southeast of Auburn, commencing on the 23d of August.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—	WHEAT,	per barrel,	$4	62½	a 4	75
Do.	RYE,	do. - -	2	50	a 2	50
Do.	CORN,	do. - -	2	37½	a 2	37½
GRAIN—	WHEAT,	per bushel,		95	a 1	00
Do.	RYE,	do. - -		56	a	56
Do.	CORN,	do. - -		45	a	50
Do.	OATS,	do. - -		36	a	36
Do.	BARLEY,	do. - -		60	a	65
SEEDS—	CLOVER,	do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do.	TIMOTHY,	do. - -	2	25	a 2	50
Do.	FLAX,	do. - -	1	05	a 1	25
BEEF, per cwt.		- - - -	5	00	a 5	50
PORK, do.		- - - - -	5	00	a 5	25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -		7½	a	19
BUTTER, do.		- - - - -		10	a	10
LARD, do.		- - - - -		8	a	8
TALLOW, do.		- - - - -		8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.				6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - - -		10	a	10
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -		56	a	62½
ONIONS,	do.	- - -		75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - - -	1	00	a 1	12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1	25	a 1	30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -		37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - - -		30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - - -	1	20	a 1	20
HAY, per ton,		- - - - - -	10	00	*a*10	00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	4	00	a 4	00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—	WHEAT,	per barrel,	$5	12½	a 5	25
Do.	RYE,	do. -	3	00	a 3	00
Do.	CORN,	do. - -	3	00	a 3	00
GRAIN—	WHEAT,	per bushel,	1	15	a 1	20
Do.	RYE,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	CORN,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	OATS,	do. - -		43	a	43
Do.	BARLEY,	do. - -		65	a	68
SEEDS—	CLOVER,	do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do.	TIMOTHY,	do. - -	2	75	a 3	00
Do.	FLAX,	do. - -	1	35	a 1	40
BEEF, per cwt.,		- - -	7	00	a 8	75
PORK, do.		- - - - -	7	00	a 7	25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

THE Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo decimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

Missionary Pledges.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, -	-	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	-	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	-	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	-	-	10 00
Jacob Miller, -	-	-	10 00
James Miller,	-	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	-	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	-	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	-	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	-	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	-	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	-	-	5 00
James Casey,	-	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of ALL the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. AUGUST 15, 1850. NUMBER 8.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fifteen.

Names	Am't paid.	Names.	Am't paid.
Anderson Richard	$2 25	Koch Jacob	$1 25
Attucks Peter S	1 25	Lux Henry	1 00
Ash Josiah	1 25	Miller David F	2 00
Andrews A A	1 00	McCroskey Henry	1 25
Bolton Emily G	1 00	McClintic James	1 00
Bender Elizabeth	1 00	Millard Isaac	75
Rauders Wm	1 00	Mountz Jacob	1 25
Buffington Solomon	1 00	Mentzger Peter	62
Cumbler Wm	1 25	McCartney John	1 00
Conner Lavinia	1 00	Miller James	1 25
Dietrich Isaac	1 00	Neidig Jonathan	1 00
Fasig Wm	2 10	Oren Jesse	1 00
Fasig Henry	1 35	Pence Wm	1 00
Fasig Christian	1 35	Ramberger Simon	2 50
Gher Mathias	1 25	Ritzbaugh Ann	1 25
Gier Samuel	1 25	Soule Jacob	1 00
Hecht John	1 25	Stubbs Wm	2 50
Hollinger Geo	1 00	Sweenar Jonas	1 00
Hollar Henry C	1 00	Slough Elizabeth	1 00
Hicks Amos	75	Wilson Robert	1 00
Hunsecker John Z	1 00	Whitnight Edwin H	1 25
Kauffman John S	1 00	Wagoner Joseph	1 00

Camp-meeting near Churchtown, Cumberland County, Penn'a.

Instead of the Woods-meeting, there will be held (the Lord permitting) a Camp-meeting near the village of Churchtown, commencing Friday, August 23d.

The brethren far and near are invited to bring their tents—also all the preachers who can make it convenient are invited to attend. Boarding can be had at or near the camp.

☞ Those who are indebted to brother W. for the Advocate, or for books, will confer a favor on him, and his family, by remitting what they owe. Do it quickly.—Editor pro tem.

☞ This is the Camp-meeting month, in which many set up their tents for a few days in the woods, and employing their time in solemn religious worship, endeavor to bring their souls nearer to the Lord, and to heaven.—Many unbelievers and sinners have at these gatherings in the woods been awakened and renewed—the backslider has been reclaimed, and the weary pilgrim strengthened and encouraged.

The Doomed Man.

There is a time, we know not when,
A point, we know not where,
That marks the destiny of men,
To glory or despair.

There is a line, by us unseen,
That crosses every path;
The hidden boundary between
God's patience and his wrath.

To pass that limit is to die,
To die as if by stealth;
It does not quench the beaming eye,
Or pale the glow of health.

The conscience may be still at ease,
The spirits light and gay;
That which is pleasing still may please,
And care be thrust away.

But on that forehead God has set
Indelibly a mark,
Unseen by man, for man as yet
Is blind and in the dark.

And yet the doomed man's path below
Like Eden may have bloomed;
He did not, does not, will not know
Or feel that he is doomed.

He knows, he feels that all is well,
And every fear is calmed;
He lives, he dies, he wakes in hell,
Not only doomed, but damned.

Oh! where is this mysterious bourne,
By which our path is crossed;
Beyond which God himself has sworn,
That he who goes is lost!

How far may we go on in sin!
How long will God forbear!
Where does hope end, and where begin
The confines of despair!

An answer from the skies is sent:
"Ye that from God depart!
While it is called to-day, repent,
And harden not your heart."

I do not know who is the author of the foregoing impressive and solemn lines. They have been attributed to one of the Professors at Princeton College, and seem to partake of the stern and fearful views belonging to that school of Theology. I am not sure that the doctrine of these verses is altogether correct—and yet possibly it may be true in fact. The dealings of the Lord are wise and merciful, whether we understand them or not.

Doctor Adam Clarke held that the whole of human life is a state of probation, in any part of which a man might turn from sin unto the Lord. He however carried his Arminian views very far. The extremes of theology hardly can be sustained by Holy Scripture, and while there is encouragement for us to labor until a sinner's last moment to bring him to repentance, yet there are fearful warnings concerning those who neglect their souls' salvation. Reader, think of this, and yield at once to God. J. F.

Chapter of Miscellaneous Items.

No. 1.

Iowa City, July 15, 1850.

Dear Brother Flake:

We are now here in the far West, more than 1000 miles from home and our loved ones there, by the over-land route. We arrived in this city on Saturday last. Yesterday we preached in the North Bend settlement, about eight miles from the city, in the fore and afternoon, and at night in the Baptist house in this place. The brethren here and in the Bend are all well and in good spirits.

I had thought of sending you another number or parcel of my journal from this place, but as you have already received more, perhaps, than you can find room for at present, I shall send you in this letter a column or two of miscellaneous items, and the journal in my next.

The Season.—The spring was very dry throughout the West. In most places they had no rain for six, seven and eight weeks. The summer months, thus far, have been more seasonable. There have been some fine rains latterly.

The Crops.—These are short, but reasonably good. The Wheat will yield a fair average crop. The Hay and Oats crops will be short in most places. The Corn and Potato crops may yet turn out pretty well.

The Roads.—These, on the whole, are unusually good this summer thus far, the weather being dry. But, O! the miserable Corduroys, or Cross-ways, over the sloughs: these are vanity and vexation of spirit. Yet, we made out to get over them all without much damage, though not without joltings terrible.

The Land.—This is cheap and good. The soil, generally, is rich and fertile. The prices of lands vary, in proportion to the quality, situation and extent of improvements. In Indiana, Illinois and Iowa, improved farms, of the best quality, can be bought from five to twenty dollars per acre. Government and unimproved lands can be had from one to five dollars.

The Markets.—Owing to sundry causes, the prices for grain and other products have been unusually high. Flour is six and seven dollars a barrel. Corn one dollar a bushel; and Oats 50 and 75 cents.

Wages.—Mechanical and other employments are ample, and wages high. Day laborers get from 75 cents to a dollar a day—and mechanics of all kinds receive better wages than in the East. This, therefore, is the land for the industrious poor.

Health of the Country.—The general health of the people, throughout the Western country, has been very good. The Measles and Cholera prevail, to some extent, in a few places. The latter chiefly in the towns and cities situated along the rivers.

The state of Religion.—This, on the whole, is rather in statu quo. There are but few revivals in progress among the people. Yet, the people respect religion, and turn out well to preaching. We have had good congregations.

The Sects.—These exist throughout the length and breadth of this land, and like those in the East, they hold and propagate their various errors and peculiarities with an ardor and zeal worthy of a better cause. The encouragement given to, and the almost universal custom of sinner membership, is one of the worst features of the whole craft. When will the sects learn to see the folly and hurt of this baneful practice!

The Church of God.—Elements of the Church are scattered far and wide through this beautiful country; but they are, in many places, like sheep without a shepherd. The time, however, has come when something more efficient will and must be done. The fields are now white for the harvest, and the sickle must be thrust in. In some places there are fine prosperous churches. More of this anon.

Yours in Christian love,
JOHN WINEBRENNER.

☞ The Sabbath-school at North Bend, near Iowa City, may look for a Library of Sabbath-school Books, which was sent on to me from the American Sunday School Union in Philadelphia, and which I have forwarded on toward its destination, packed in a box, and marked, "M. F. Snavely, near Iowa City." It has a long route by Railroad—Canal—Steamboats—Wagon—but I hope it will come safe to hand, and be a blessing to the boys and girls dwelling in the Prairies of Iowa. I do not know who pays for it—possibly it may be a donation—if so, be thankful, and do what you can, to help on with the work of God, that in some small measure "the wilderness may rejoice and blossom like the rose."

Western Tour.---No. 5.

Iowa City, July 15, 1850.

JOURNAL OF THE SEVENTH AND EIGHTH WEEKS.

July 1st.—Having crossed over Lake Michigan, as stated before, and so gained a day's travel, we intended to take the Northern route from this to Mount Carroll, by way of Richmond, in Henry county, where brother Geo. Mentzer lives; thence to Rockford, in Winnebago county, where brother S. A. Brumbaugh resides; thence to Freeport, in Stevenson county, where brother Stubbs formerly lived; and thence to Mount Carroll. But, in consequence of the heavy rain on Sunday night, we were advised to take the Southern or Dickson road, and so pass the wet Prairie around Chicago on the Plank road leading to Napiersville. We accordingly did so. When we got to Napiersville, we inquired for H. Gable, formerly of Lancaster county, Pa., with whom we intended to lodge. But, finding he had left his family at Napiersville and gone to California, we passed on about six miles further, and stayed over night with a Mr. Strong, a respectable farmer, from New England.

Here we were informed that a great many had left that part of Illinois for California; and among them a great number of heads of families, as well as young men. How foolish and sinful it seems to be, for men of families to leave their wives and children, and undertake the long, expensive and hazardous journey to California, in quest of a little gold dust. Christian men, especially whose great business it is to lay up treasure in heaven, and not on the earth, ought by all means to resist the temptation to go in search of such sordid gain, at so great a sacrifice.

Napiersville is the seat of justice of Dupage county, and is a smart little place, situated in a fine country, about 30 miles from Chicago.

July 2d.—We resumed our journey and passed on through Aurora, on the Fox river, in the direction of Syracuse, and in sight of Sycamore, the county town of Decalb county. We stayed over night at Union Grove, one mile from Syracuse. There are large rolling Prairies, skirted and dotted over with small strips of groves, or timber lands, through that section of the State. But, a large portion of the land is yet unimproved and unentered.—The soil is good, and the improved lands produce well.

July 3d.—We passed over a very large Prairie, some twelve miles, without meeting a single house; then passing a small grove we arrived in a sparsely settled neighborhood, where we fed and took dinner. In the afternoon we entered the Rock River settlement—crossed the river at Oregon City—passed on through the city a few miles and stopped over night with Jos. Wagoner, formerly of Washington county, Md. Here we were well received and hospitably treated. There is a large settlement of Marylanders in that part of Ogle county. The land is excellent, and a good part of it well improved. Crops good.

July 4th.—This being the glorious anniversary of our National Independence, the people here and there turned out, according to the time-honored custom of American citizens, to celebrate the day, some politically, some morally, and some religiously. We, however, travelled on through Mount Morris to brother Phillips', formerly from Broad Fording, in Washington county, Md. He has a beautiful farm, on a handsome Prairie, with a fine spring of water in his yard. He and his family were much pleased to see us, and treated us with much kindness. After dinner we set out across an open and trackless Prairie, to brother James Miller's, with whom we stayed over night. Brother M. and family live pretty much alone, on a large, open and handsome Prairie, where they had a fine crop growing, with no fence or enclosure of any kind, and seem to be happy and contented.—They gave us a very cordial reception, and entertained us courteously.

July 5th.—Brother Miller took his horse and rode with us a few miles, to put us on the road across a wide and splendid Prairie, to Cherry Grove, where we stopped with brother Strickler and dined. Brother S. and family emigrated from Welsh Run, Franklin county, Pa., and seems to be happy and prosperous in his new home at the aforesaid place. After having fed and dined, and enjoyed a pleasant interview with them, we went on to Mount Carroll and stopped with our old friend and acquaintance, David Emmert. With him and his kind family, and among the friendly people and acquaintances of Mount Carroll, we spent several days very pleasantly.

July 6th.—We visited among our acquaintances, dined with Dr. A. Hostetter, and took supper with brother Irvin, formerly of Fayetteville, Pa. In the evening we commenced a series of meetings in the Court House. The congregation was good, considering the hot weather and busy season. Some brethren had gathered in from the country.

July 7th.—This was the Lord's-day; and I might perhaps add, the great day of the feast in Mount Carroll. The people gathered in from all quarters, so that the Court House was thronged all day, during the public services. There were four sermons preached that day—one in the morning, two in the afternoon, and one again at night. The congregations were solemn, feeling and attentive. I think there are some indications for good in that place. But there are some adverse influences there, which will require supernatural power to annihilate, viz: Infidelity and Swedenborgism. Yet, God can even destroy these false principles, and make grace to abound where sin and irreligion has abounded. O! that he may hasten the glad day!

July 8th.—We visited among our friends, dined with Dr. John Hostetter, and took supper with his brother-in-law, Mr. Haldeman. In the evening we had preaching again in the Court House. The audience was again large and solemn, and two persons requested to be prayed for. May the Lord make them the first fruits of a glorious revival!

Mount Carroll is the county town of Carroll county, and is a place of considerable business. The people are kind, industrious and humane. They treated us, during our sojourn among them, with marked attention and commendable courtesy. May the Lord reward them for their love and kindness.

July 9th.—Tuesday, the second day of the eighth week, we left our friends at Mount Carroll, and went to brother Jacob Miller's, in Whiteside county. On our way we called and took dinner with Joseph Gorgas, one of our old friends from Cumberland county, Pa. He owns a large and beautiful farm, on the road leading from Mount Carroll to Dixon. Joseph was very glad to see us, and treated us kindly. After dinner we proceeded on to brother Miller's. We found his family at home and all well, but he himself was absent on a journey to his old home in the East. We tarried with them over night, and found them, as in former days, in old Maryland, full of love and hospitality.

July 10th.—We travelled on down along the Rock River through Sterling, the county town of Whiteside county; then through Como, Lyndon, Little Rock, &c., to the Fording Inn, where we tarried over night.

July 11th.—We resumed our journey down the Rock River to Mr. Shrom's, (brother to David,) in Rock Island county, where we fed our horses and took dinner. Whilst there we had a heavy shower of rain, which was much needed, there having been little or no rain, in that region, for two months previous. Yet the crops looked pretty well, and the people were beginning to harvest. There is a great deal of fine country all along through the Rock River Valley. Improved land can be had at 5, 10 and 12 dollars per acre. Government land, of the best quality, at $1 25. After the rain, in the afternoon, we travelled on two miles further, when we reached the great father of rivers, the Mississippi. We took down on its banks about eight miles, to Stevenson, (or Rock Island,) the seat of justice of the county bearing the same name. This is a handsome and smart town, containing a population of some 3000 or upwards. Here we crossed the river to Davenport, the county town of Scott county, Iowa. This town is a fine looking place, and has a population of about 1800. Having landed on the Iowa shore a little before night, we concluded to go on five miles further, to a place called Rockingham; but finding we could neither get Oats or Corn for our horses there, we went on one mile further, to Mr. Bankers's, a Pennsylvanian, who formerly lived near Middletown, in Dauphin county, Pa.,—and likewise, a time, near Elizabethtown, Lancaster county. With him we stayed over night, and were used well.

July 12th.—Started down the river for Muscatine, (alias Bloomington,) where we arrived about 2 o'clock, P. M. Here we met with a number of former friends and brethren from Pennsylvania. Among these were the Hersheys and Neidigs. Benjamin, Isaac and Jonathan Neidig reside there, and are doing well. After stopping and visiting among them a few hours, we took supper with brother Isaac and then went on to brother Abraham Funk's, with whom we tarried over night. Brothers Funk and Bond live together on a fine farm, about three miles from Muscatine, on the road leading to Iowa City. With all their bad luck and misfortunes, which befell them and others, on their way out, on board of the Belle of the West, they have, nevertheless, been able and lucky in buying a handsome and cheap farm. We hope they will do well, and maintain their integrity as members of the Church of God.

Muscatine is the seat of justice of Muscatine county, and is a thrifty business place. The city is favorably located in a great bend of the river, which gives it a central proximity to the country, and makes it the trading out-let of a great portion of Iowa. The site or ground upon which the city is built, is rather unsightly, being rugged and hilly; but the buildings are generally good, and business of all kinds very active. The public buildings, such as the Court House, several churches and school-houses, are spacious and costly. There are some 15 or 20 stores, several steam Saw-mills, and one Grist-mill, which manufactures, or is capable of manufacturing, 500 barrels of flour per day. Muscatine is destined to become, at no distant day, a place of considerable note.

July 13th.—We took leave of brothers Bond, Funk and family, and started for Iowa City and North Bend. The country between Muscatine and Iowa City is but thinly inhabited, except along Cedar river and the Groves. The open broad Prairies lying between the two points, are mostly uninhabited. We arrived in Iowa City some time in the afternoon—took supper with brother Brechtel and family, and then started for brother Snavely's, in North Bend, where we arrived about 10 o'clock at night. We came in upon them somewhat like a thief in the night, unexpectedly and unlooked for. Yet, being informed who we were, they received us gladly and treated us kindly.

July 14th.—We preached twice in a neighboring School-house, in the morning and in the afternoon. The congregations were good and the people solemn and feeling. North Bend is a very pretty neighborhood, and is filled up mostly with Pennsylvanians. There is a Church of God there, consisting of some 20 members or upwards. The brethren and acquaintances, residing there, were nearly all out at meeting, and seemed well and hearty. We felt glad to see them, and they seemed glad to see and hear us. But we were all sorry because we had to part so soon. Having an appointment in the Baptist Meeting-house in Iowa City, in the evening, we were obliged to leave them after the afternoon service. The Lord bless the Church and people of North Bend.

The congregation in Iowa City was large and attentive. The Baptist Church there is small, but they have a good house. Indeed, the most of the public buildings in the city are extra good.

The Capitol is a fine looking building, situated in a public square, on elevated ground, in the midst of the city, and is built of handsome white lime-stone. The building is two story high, 60 feet in width and 120 in length, with a well proportioned cupalo, of good taste and finish. The offices and committee rooms are on the first floor, and the halls on the second.

The city proper is handsomely situated and well laid out, but the buildings, with few exceptions, are quite ordinary. The population I should judge to be some 20-odd hundred. A number of Pennsylvanians and some Harrisburgers live here. Wm. Crum, Berryhill and others, formerly of Harrisburg, have gone to California, with thousands and tens of thousands from these Western States. The love of money, how strong, and how dangerous!

J. W. & G. U. H.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

The Local Preacher.

After you have enumerated a long list of the various orders of the clergy in Christian Churches, you at last come down to the foot of the list, and there you will find a class of gap-men—men who are a sort of foot-ball for every body—men who generally support themselves and families by some secular business—men who stand ready, generally, at any moment to be sent to fill any gap occasioned by either the sickness, laziness, or any other hindering circumstance connected with the pastor in charge of the station or circuit—I mean the poor Local Preacher.

From some cause or other the Local Preacher has no particular charge. He may not be so situated that he can devote his entire time to the labors of the ministry—business, family, ill health, or some other cause may forbid it; or, his talents may not be quite as good as some others, yet so good as to secure him license to preach. Under these circumstances he, like Paul, makes tents, to pay his way through this world, and preaches freely a free Gospel, free of expense to the hearer. For this labor of love he is rewarded in this life after the following manner. But perhaps you had better not read it.

The poor Local Preacher. The first thing that he is rewarded with (of men) is that of being looked down upon by some of his brethren in the ministry, who may be filling stations or serving circuits, with a cold indifference and sort of contempt. This is the case often with young men in the ministry, who feel thus towards, and speak of the Local Preachers, within the bounds of their charge, in very light or perhaps depreciating terms; while, if the facts were sometimes known, the local man may be in every respect the better of the two. If any young preacher should read this, I hope he will examine himself, and see whether he has not often been guilty of this base conduct. Young man, know thyself.

Another of the bitter cups he has to drink is, that the people, among whom the Local Preacher lives and labors, whenever opportunities offer, having caught the spirit of the regular preacher, (above mentioned,) they too depreciate and treat with contempt his labors of love. When the pastor is sick or absent, and no stranger can be had to fill his place, then he is called up to preach. The word goes out that ———, the Local Preacher, will preach the next appointment. Now listen to the talk: A says, I shan't go to hear him; I know all he can tell me. B exclaims, O! I can't bear to sit fifteen minutes under his preaching! C thinks the church might just as well be kept shut as open for his preaching. D, trying to think of all the imperfections of the man, concludes that he has no confidence in him and won't hear him. E goes to church, but when the text is read he thinks the preacher can't preach from that text; and, instead of praying ardently that God might help him, he leans his head back or forward, and goes to sleep. F keeps awake, and watches every movement and word, to find all the faults he can, that he may take the preacher to an account after sermon, and reward him with a string of uncharitable criticisms. G goes home from service dissatisfied, and thinks the church is now nearly broken up on account of the, perhaps, unpolished preacher's discourse. All these, and others of the same class, get to talking the matter about, and at last it reaches the poor Local Preacher's ears. What are his feelings! What would be yours under similar circumstances! He preaches for nothing and finds himself; he does the best he can, and stands ready to keep up an unbroken chain of operations of the church; and for this disinterested work he receives such thanks—such encouragement—such a reward.

Again. The Local Preacher feels it just as much his duty to preach as the stationed or the itinerant preacher; and when he is so situated that he cannot leave his home and go abroad, where his labors are highly appreciated; and when he is under the charge of a selfish, illiberal preacher, who puts a lock upon his brother's mouth; then, should he, under such circumstances, complain that he has no liberties given him to exercise; why then he is set down for a froward, vain, officious, conceited man, and is told that if he can't be head all the time he is dissatisfied; and a hundred other hard things are said against him to put him down. This is a part of his reward, received from some pastors and people.

Is it to be wondered at, that the Local Preacher, under such discouraging circumstances, should be so disheartened, that if he does undertake to preach, he should not have any liberty and freedom of speech? No.—Look at him. He stands before a people who profess to have come to hear the word of God; but he knows they have come prejudiced against him, looking upon him with indifference and contempt. Is this treatment in accordance with the Apostle Paul's instructions, to give those who labor in word and doctrine double honor? What if he is a Local Preacher? why he is entitled to just as much respect as other preachers; and as he labors from no other motive than to do good, at his own expense, free of charge, he is deserving of a consideration that others have no claim to. O! how ungrateful such conduct! how unkind! how unchristian!

It is not necessary for me to admit that some objections to the labors of some Local Preachers may be well founded, for the guilty disrespectors of the preachers will have prepared their minds with all the uncharitable arguments they can to withstand the effects of this defensive epistle. They will leave no stone unturned to justify themselves in their wicked course toward God's disinterested, volunteer, and free laborers. I have only to add, that such had better consider what they are doing—God says: "Whatsoever ye do to one of these, my disciples, ye do it unto me." I write partly from experience and partly from long observation; and I know that but very few Local Preachers can be found who have not experienced the same kind of treatment.—Brethren, let us try to bear up, and look for a better reward, from the Captain of our salvation, who sent us to preach in his name. He is no respector of persons.

A LOCAL PREACHER.

Duties of Women.

Want of intelligence on our part, we are fully convinced, is not owing to a want of natural abilities. For God created us rational and intelligent; and also gave us reasoning powers, and the same capacity of intellect which he gave to man. Why, then, should we, to whom God hath entrusted the same talents and abilities, wilfully neglect to improve them, and still abide in the tents of ignorance? Nay; but let us arise and throw off the mantle of indolence and neglect, and look to our interest, privilege and calling, and from henceforth try to improve our time and talents, remembering that ignorance is a blank sheet, on which we may write, but error is a scribbled one, which must first be crased. It is a lamentable fact that many a poor female has been seduced into the grossest error respecting this subject, having been erroneously taught, probably from infancy, to believe that the station or calling of a female does not demand much intelligence, and consequently wilfully neglect to improve the talents committed to their care, or to accomplish the end for which God in his wisdom designed them. This, with many other erronenus ideas and principles, many have imbibed from the teaching of their parents, and the negligent and indifferent examples which they set for their children to imitate: and those principles which are inculcated whilst in youth, we see them manifest themselves throughout all the paths of life.

Seeing, therefore, that very often the happiness or woe much depends upon the examples parents set, and the instructions they impart, it is highly important that parents fear God, in order to give suitable and beneficial instructions—that so soon as the mind is susceptible of improvement, parents should use their utmost exertions to inculcate the principles of piety contained in the Gospel of Christ, ever keeping in view the admonition which the wise man has given, "To train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Again, "Cast thy bread upon the waters, and thou shalt find it after many days hence." This admonition should sink deep into the heart of every mother. They are to be brought up in the way they should go. God has given us the rule—the Bible: it contains the commandment; it points out both the duty of parents and children; the obligations which one owes to another. Therefore children should be taught to read God's word whilst young; and parents should never neglect to explain to their children the meaning or design of that Book, and likewise that God is the author:—that He, as the Omnipotent ruler and governor of heaven and earth, sustains and supports all things that do exist, and upon Him we are dependant for the preservation of our existence day by day. The volume of nature is also a very useful book, and should be pointed out to children. It however contains many mysteries which we cannot fathom; but many of its beauties can be comprehended, and should be contemplated and explained. By pursuing this course, children will get their curiosities excited and their minds drawn out after useful knowledge. One amongst the many important duties is, that parents should not neglect to pray with their children, both night and morning; and when Sabbath morning comes they should be sent to Sabbath-school, if one is convenient, and not suffer them to run all the day long after their own fanciful amusements, and thus violate God's holy day.

We have frequently seen mothers doat upon their daughters, and bestow all the vanity upon them which their carnal appetites seemed to crave, without reflecting that they are setting a snare to entrap their daughters, and are pointing a most woful dagger to their own poor hearts. Let us consider the great responsibility we are under to God for the rearage and training of our children; for, as the twig is bent the tree will naturally incline. Whenever we see an evil propensity or inclination manifest itself, curb it when young.

Should mothers not have the pleasure of seeing the first fruit of their labor in this life, let them not be discouraged, but consider that the bread cast upon the waters may be found after many days hence. And if your daughters have been lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, and have refused to adhere to your admonitions, and you have gently glided down the steeps of time with declining years to the silent mansions of the tomb, then, whilst the whistling winds, with pitiless fury, shall blow over your lonesome and snow-covered grave, if not now, then, perhaps, after revolving years, when you have returned to your mother dust, perhaps your silent grave will speak in tones of thunder to their guilty souls, and bring them back to God to pursue the ways of wisdom and intelligence. Therefore let us not be discouraged, but diligently explain and point out the path of duty to them, knowing that the path of duty is the path of safety. For there is no trait in the human character so potential for weal or wo as firmness of purpose. It is wonderful to see what miracles a resolute and unyielding spirit will achieve. Before its irresistible energy the most formidable obstacles become as cob-web barriers in its path. Difficulties, the terror of which causes the pampered daughters of luxury to shrink back with dismay, provoke from the woman of lofty determinations only a smile. Indeed, all nature teems with examples to show what wonders may be accomplished by resolute perseverance and patient toil.

It is not because things appear difficult that we dare not undertake them, but it is all for a want of resolution and perseverance. Let us, then, be bold in spirit, and indulge no doubts, for doubts are traitors. In the practical pursuit of our high aim, let us never lose sight of it in the slightest instance, but always be found walking in wisdom's ways, and strive to set examples for the rising generations that may be worthy of imitation. For a child in a new world learns something every day. His eye is quick to observe, and his memory active in storing up. His ear is greedy to hear, and his mind plastic as soft wax. Beware, then, that he hears what is good, and is not fed on evil maxims; for the seeds of early instructions are dropped into the deepest furrows. That which custom has sanctioned always seems right. Therefore give them good precept and example. These will form his character.

ISUPHENA BIGHAM.

Uniontown Selection.---No. 2.

"It is my conviction," says a writer in an English periodical, "that more will have to be done through the press than by any other means. Lecturing and preaching are great things, but they are not the greatest. They can do something which the press cannot do, but the press can do much which they cannot do. Printed leaves can go everywhere. They never blush—know no fear—never stammer—never stick fast—never tire—never die. They can be multiplied without end by the press. Books and tracts can travel at little expense. They want nothing to eat. They require no lodgings. They can run up and down like the angels of God, blessing all, giving to all and asking no gifts in return. You can print them of all sizes, on all subjects, in all places, and at all hours. They can talk to one as well as a multitude, and to a multitude as well as one. They require no public room to tell their story in. They can tell it in the kitchen or the shop, the parlor or the closet, in the railway carriage or in the omnibus, on the broad highway or in the foot-path through the fields; and they dread no noisy or tumultuous interruptions. They take no notice of scoffs, or jeers, or taunts of noisy folly or malignant rage. They bear all things, suffer all things, and take harm for nothing. They can talk even when the noise is so great as to drown all other voices, and they stop when they are bid, or at least when they are done. No one can betray them into hasty or random expressions. And they will wait men's time, and suit themselves to men's occasions and convenience. They will break off at any point, and begin at any moment where they broke off. And though they will not always answer questions, they will tell their story twice or thrice or four times over, if you wish them. And they can be made to speak on every subject. They can, in short, be made vehicles of all truth, the teachers and reformers of all classes, the regenerators and benefactors of all lands."

We want our friends to give this subject their attention. We feel persuaded that the importance of the press, as a means of spreading simple Gospel truth, is too much undervalued by the ministers and people of the Church of God. Were it not so, would there not be provided for, and have tracts published and sent abroad, on such subjects as would be a blessing to the Churches and to the community?

If some of our sharp-shooters, who fire through the Advocate, would, in place of exchanging shots at each other, turn their field-pieces upon the enemies of God and the Church, would it not effect more good?—Doubtless, in order to the accomplishment of any good, it is all important that there be peace and union within the household of faith, for a house or a kingdom divided against itself cannot stand. SPICER.

Query: Who may Baptize?

LANDISBURG, Pa., Aug. 1, 1850.

DEAR BROTHER FLAKE:—

THE Advocate, bearing date of to-day, has come to hand, in which I perceive that the lean solution of my baptism query, as given by Elder J. F. Weishampel, has finally breathed its last. You will therefore indulge me once more in giving it a parting word.

You perceive that the affirmative does not suit my friend. He soon gets out of breath. To deny is easy, but to prove goes hard. I expected something in the shape of an argument: but your readers have heard the head and front of his proof. He has nowhere produced a "thus saith the Lord"—one preeedent from the Bible in proof of his position, consequently has left me nothing to answer.—But, by way of a parting word, and in order to elucidate my position more fully, I appeal once more to the law and testimony. The commission given by our Saviour to his Apostles, confines baptism and preaching to them and to those of their successors ordained after them to the ministerial office. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them," &c., &c. Matt. 28: 19, 20. We perceive that the commission given by the Founder and Head of the Church, invests the Apostles with the most important and responsible office ever conferred upon man. They were authorized to appoint others equally qualified to the same office.—Now, it is a principle universally recognized, that where an office is established, and certain duties specified, that no one but he who has been properly appointed to fill that office, can discharge any of its duties. This principle is recognized by all civil government. By way of illustration, suppose brother Weishampel, in a flight of phantasy, would imagine that he is a jurist, and come here to our County Court and take the seat of the Judge, although for a time vacant. What, I ask, would be the consequence? Why, in the first place, his acts would all be pronounced null and void. Not a single citizen would be bound to observe them. And in the second place, he would be punished as a violator of the laws of the Commonwealth—a usurper of authority, &c. Yet, there is no law forbidding him to do what we suppose him to have done. The very fact of such offices existing, with certain specified duties assigned to those that fill them, is a prohibition to all other persons from interfering, as in the case of Uzziah, who invaded the priest's office, to burn incense, not being consecrated to that purpose.

The same principle must be recognized in the Church or Kingdom of Christ. The sacred office of the ministry has been established by Him, for the building up of the Church and to administer her ordinances. They are invested with important duties pertaining to their office, on the proper discharge of which depend both the purity and prosperity, if not the existence of the Church. These duties are connected with the office, and most solemnly enjoined upon those that fill it. Is it not, then, as clear as a sunbeam, according to the universally admitted principle laid down, that the Great Head of the Church intended that the discharge of these duties should be confined to those to whom they were committed, viz: the office-bearers. Now, sir, the very fact of Christ's appointing the office, and men to fill it, with the solemn command to those invested with it to preach and baptize, as well as to exercise in all the sacred functions of the Gospel ministry, constitutes a law against lay baptism, or the rite being performed by unqualified hands. As in civil government, so in the Church of Christ: he who, without being invested with the office, presumes to exercise its functions, performs acts null and void, and makes himself a transgressor of the laws of high Heaven. Or, does brother W. mean to say that the King of Saints was less wise in his legislation than civil legislators are, who, in order to preserve the union and dignity of the nation, assigned to each man his proper office. It would be an aspersion upon the character of the Great Law-giver, who wills that both the purity and the dignity of the Church should be vindicated, preserved and maintained; although brother W. thinks otherwise. But his theory has had its day. It has been suicidal to itself. It has breathed its last. Yours, fraternally,

J. H. HURLEY.

"A Sectarian Spirit."---Strictures.

MR. EDITOR:—

IN looking over the 7th number of the Church Advocate, I saw a communication from the pen of J. F. W., entitled "A Sectarian Spirit." By your permission, I wish to make a few remarks, and correct a few things which appear erroneous to my mind, at least.

In the first place he asks: "Is there a body of believers organized anywhere in the world, who have not a sectarian spirit?" He thinks not. This may be; but does that make it right in the sight of the Lord? I trow not. Men are disposed to judge others by their own feelings in these things.

In the second place he says: "It is altogether natural that we should have a preferenee for those who are in communion with us; and were the Church of Christ what and as she ought to be, it would be necessary for her members to have a good warm sectarian spirit." He speaks of something that is not in existence, "a good sectarian spirit." A sectarian spirit is from the devil, and I am sure nothing good comes from him.

In the next place, he makes the terms, preference and sectarian spirit, synonymous, which is not the fact, in my humble opinion. We all have our preferences. This arises out of various circumstances, and is not materially wrong if kept in proper bounds; but a sectarian spirit is contrary to the spirit and teaching of the Gospel of Christ. I agree with your correspondent, that if all the people of God were united, they must needs have a corresponding love and attachment to each other. This is the holy bond that unites the happy spirits in the upper sanctuary. Why should it not unite kindred spirits together here? "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." John 13: 34.

J. F. W. thinks that if the people of God were all united in one Church, they would then be the "Sect of Christ." A strange idea indeed. The term sect literally means a part split or cut off from the main body, &c. Now, if we are one body, as Paul says, and that in Christ, I ask, from what other body can we be split or cut off? Which we must be, if we are a sect, according to the etymology of the word.

I have made these few remarks, not for the sake of controversy, (for I am an enemy to controversy, especially such as we have had for some time past,) but because I think such things need correction.

Yours, respectfully, ALPHA.

Cumberland Co., Pa., Aug. 2, 1850.

Sabbath-schools Recommended.

DEARLY BELOVED BROTHER FLAKE—

THE Sabbath-school, though opposed by a few, and thank God, only a few, has proved itself to be good, and very good too. I, with thousands besides, believe it to produce great good. It is, I believe, a nursery in the great field of nature, where flowers are cultivated for the garden or Church of God. Many eminent worthies have risen in the Sabbath-school, that have adorned the Church of God, and been very useful, that perhaps never would have risen had it been otherwise, and at their death date their first impressions for good to the institution of Sabbath-schools. In Sabbath-schools the teaching and books are all adapted to the young and tender minds of children.

Here I might try to answer some frivolous and lame objections that are made to Sabbath-schools. One objection is, that there is no authority for it in the Bible. When we ask them what authority they have for Camp-meetings, they tell us that the Bible gives us authority to hold meetings, and that Camp-meeting is also a meeting. I wonder where they find the Bible bidding them to hold meetings, so called by name. I think if they search closely, they will find few places that the Bible calls an assembly of people to worship God by the name of meeting. So that we cannot know by the name of an assembly the nature or object of that assemblage. So if they will have the name meeting to be Scriptural, call it Sabbath-school childrens' meeting, and they have it in their own title.

But again: Another objection is, that the Bible commands parents to train up their children in the way they should go, and when they are old they will not depart from it. But if they would carefully examine this passage, they would find no mention of parents raising up their children any more than of guardians or Sabbath-school teachers raising them up.

Again: They say, as we read in Ephesians 6: 4, that parents are to raise their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Here, I believe, is as much allusion to our example as our teaching by word, to raise them up in the right way. But the only infallible rule for us to judge by, of the validity of institutions, is to inquire what is the good effect produced by them, or the good fruit growing on them. I know of no bad fruit growing on or out of Sabbath-schools, when rightly conducted; and if the fruit be good, the tree of course must be good.

Likewise, another objection is, that we often have to take unconverted people for teachers of classes. The first remedy for this would naturally be, that these objectors or opposers should, of course, come and do their duty, and teach the classes, so as not to put the friends of Sabbath-schools to the necessity of taking the unregenerate for teachers. But more than this: Have we no good right to choose the unregenerate for teachers? Has not God chosen in the same way things to appearance inadequate? Did God choose a turtle dove or pigeon to carry bread and meat to his Prophet? No, to the contrary, a raven, that the excellency might be of God, and not of that winged fowl. As the Apostle expresses himself, "We have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency might be of God, and not of us." But we believe that teachers are in the same sense taught as the scholars, and many have been bettered, themselves being judges, and many more may be profited thereby. May God grant it may be the case.

For my part, I would be afraid to oppose an institution of this kind, for fear I might be found fighting against God, and his good cause. Consider, you that oppose Sabbath-schools, what good you are doing—setting yourselves against wise and good men in that which God has sanctioned and blest—lest you find yourselves on the rear in duty. For, I believe that the love of God constrains a rightly instructed mind and heart, if impressed aright, to love both saints and sinners, and especially children. Talk not of parents doing the whole work of teaching and training, for many parents are yet unconverted; and because they are so, and do not teach their children aright, shall we that have the light of the Spirit of God, refuse to teach such dear children? May God, the author of the Sabbath and Sabbath-schools, help and assist us in doing our duty. No more at present.

I remain yours in love,

ISAAC MILLARD.

Brotherly Love among Preachers.

IT is said of singers that they are the most jealous class of beings of our race—consequently they frequently are known to hate each other. And if you would judge the conduct of some preachers towards others, you would think jealousy moved them to pursue a very different course than is pursued when brotherly love exists. How often do we hear them speak lightly and disparagingly of one another! How often do we find disputes and misunderstandings among them! and very often the cause is jealousy, lest one be more popular than the other, or get a few dollars more than his brother! Men who ought to be examples to the flocks over which they are appointed shepherds, fall out by the way, and while they stop to quarrel, the wolf comes and devours the sheep. What an awful account will such men have to give for their want of fidelity and stability. "Let brotherly love continue;" yes, "be kindly affectioned one toward another," "each one esteeming the other greater than himself;" and let the flocks see, that neither money, honor, nor anything else can sever the tie of brotherly love among you, who ought to be lights to the world and the Church.

SYMPATHY.

Letter from Brother George Schroll.

Macon County, Ill., June 27, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

As I have promised a goodly number of my brethren and old acquaintances a letter through the Church Advocate, I now state to you that we are all well at present, hoping that these lines may find you all enjoying the same blessing. Also, stating to you a little about our journey to the far West.

We left Pennsylvania on the last day of April, on our journey to the West, and arrived in Illinois, with my brother, on the 28th of May. We all stood the journey well, but I was unfortunate in losing two horses on the road. My expenses on the journey were, as near as I can tell, fifty-seven dollars, beside the loss of my horses. Yet, we are well satisfied with the country. I expect some of our brethren have been looking for a letter before this time. Brethren, you must excuse me for my delay, as I was looking round for some time for a location for us, but have found none yet, as land is somewhat higher than I expected it would be. Grain is high at present, on account of the crops failing last season; but the Wheat crops are good at present. The Wheat crop is almost fit to cut. The Corn crop looks promising at present, although the weather has been very dry; but we have reason to believe that drought does not affect this country as much as the East.

But we must confess that we feel the loss of our well beloved brethren and sisters in the East, as religion runs at a low ebb at present here. We have been three times at preaching since we live in this new country. We heard one of the old-fashioned sermons last night, by an old Baptist preacher, which revived us considerably. We think if some of our good brethren in the ministry would venture to come out here to the West, they would find large fields open here to labor, and we verily believe that many of them could do more good here than in the East; and we do not doubt they would not be long here till they would perhaps get a better support than some do in the East. We do not say this in the way of boasting; but we must say that the people in this new country, as far as we have yet been, far exceed the most of people in the East for conduct and behaviour at places of religious worship. But I would say, brethren, if you come to this country, you must not look for as convenient places of worship as you generally have in the East, as the country is new and but few meeting-houses. The preaching is generally in school-houses or private houses.

We invite the brethren in the ministry, who visit this country, to pay us a visit, and send us an appointment through the Advocate. We would be very glad to see them. If you wish to find us, we live in Macon county, Illinois, four miles west of Decatur. We still feel encouraged to make our way from earth to glory. Brethren, pray for us.

Yours in the bonds of love,

GEORGE SCHROLL.

The life of a pious clergyman is visible rhetoric.—Hooker.

OBITUARY OF Bro. FREDERICK HOOVER.

Dien, on the 23d day of April, 1850, brother Frederick Hoover, of South Middleton township, Cumberland county, Pa., aged 73 years, 1 month and 18 days.

My kind, affectionate and indulgent father was a pious, devout and God-fearing man. To this he gave ocular demonstrations by a godly walk and chaste conversation through a long and extensive career of eminent usefulness, from an early age to a high advanced stage in life; and even down to his very last moments, he glorified God through the atonement of our blessed Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, for the glorious victory over death, hell and the grave vouchsafed to the unwavering, faithful and dying Christian. He embraced religion when he was about the age of twenty years, in Derry township, Dauphin county, Pa., about fifty-three years ago. His out-set in Christianity was peculiar, on account of scarcely any religious instruction being afforded to the mourner in Zion, pertaining to the new birth, a thorough renovation and change of heart. Thus he prevailed with God to meet his holy favor and Divine approbation, or die in the conquest, and from that day to the day of his death, he was truly a worthy example, inherent of all the Christian graces set forth in the ever-blessed Gospel of the Son of God.

His heart was ever open to the dispensation of the necessary means requisite for the advancement of the glorious cause of our Divine Lord and Master; in support of the Gospel, and contributing to the support of its ministers and people, under various and diversified emergencies; to the alleviation of suffering, privation and distress visible in many forms.

His house was ever a happy retreat from the furious storms and adverse winds of a perverse and gain-saying generation, and to the welcome resort and cheerful entertainment of the wayfaring man, of the Christian pilgrim from earth to heaven on his journey through this thorny maze. But more especially was his house a frequent and much sought for home of the forlorn, destitute, (and almost despairing,) persecuted and much despised ministers of the Gospel. [Blessed, yea, ever blessed, is that man who has a heart to feel, eyes to weep, and a bosom to yearn with inward emotions of sympathy, compassion, and God-like pity, on the poor and disconsolate ambassadors of Jesus.]

His mansion was not only the preachers' home, but also the frequent house of God, and the gate of heaven, to many weary souls, in the promulgation of the Gospel of the unadulterated Word of God. He delighted much in the worship of God, and in the observance of his holy ordinances, was frequently in attendance at Camp-meetings, and other protracted meetings; besides, the holy Sabbath-day was observed by a strict attendance at the house of God.

His Christian experience was remarkable, for the exhortations and admonitions of his family, and especially in calling them invariably around the family altar for worship, in the morning and evening, where he would pray and supplicate the throne of sovereign mercy, in behalf of his much beloved family, for their temporal and eternal welfare. And as his days began to draw to a close, and even to his last moments, he was exhorting his strictly pious and God-fearing companion, and all his children, to prove faithful and meet him in heaven, whither he was going! And while they were weeping around his bed-side, he told them not to weep, that he would soon be free from pain.

Thus he fell asleep in Jesus, his departure being most triumphant. He left a wife and seven children, to mourn the loss of a very kind, loving husband and father. But while they mourn his sudden departure, they all appear to be fully resolved to meet him again, upon the sunny banks of final deliverance, with palms of victory in his hands and a crown of rejoicing on his devoted and venerable head. His funeral was attended by a large concourse of people and weeping friends, and the occasion was improved by Elder J. C. Seabrooks, from Heb. 10: 19–23. Truly it was a solemn and long to be remembered time. We thus met to pay our last tribute of respect to one who was much beloved and highly esteemed by kindred, friends and neighbors. But, blessed be God, they mourn not as those who have no hope, but with the blessed assurance that their irreparable loss is his ceaseless and eternal gain; and while we still remain on earth, he is doubtless an inmate of Heaven.

Death came to our aged sire and worn,
  And whispered—follow me;
Away to the bright, celestial bourne,
  I have come to summon thee.

From all time's sorrow, and pain, and strife,
  I bring thee sweet release;
Thou shalt drink of the cup of eternal life,
  Whose waters are joy and peace.

The angel smiled on our true sire there,
  And the light of his radiant wing,
Silvered the threads of his snowy hair,
  Just stirred by the breeze of spring..

And he breathed in accents soft and clear,
  Thou'lt find when earth's chain is riven,
That the joy and light of ages here,
  Make an endless bliss in Heaven.

MY FATHER.

My father was a parent kind,
  And loved his children dear;
And when his hour of death drew nigh,
  We shed full many tear.
We wept, but not in bitterness,
  For well we knew that he Enjoyed throughout the shadowy vale,
  The smile of Deity.

He had a pleasant word for all
  Who came within his way;
A smile was ever on his face—
  A kind, benignant ray.
Whene'er he roamed he made him friends,
  Of high or low degree;
The charming birthright that he owned,
  Was sterling integrity.

Resignment to his pilgrimage,
  Upon his latter years:
We marked with grief his failing strength,
  And turned to hide our tears.
At length an angel messenger,
  Commissioned from the sky,
Approached my father with a smile,
  And bore his soul on high.

We laid him in a quiet grave,
  A rural, soft retreat,
And turned our faces from the spot,
  With slow, unwilling feet.
We raised a graven monument,
  Above his humble sod:—
My father was a holy man,
  The noblest work of God.

SAMUEL M. HOOVER.

Carlisle, Pa., July 24, 1850.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

The California Trail—Cholera on the Plains.

The St. Louis Republican publishes a number of letters from the Plains, chronicling the progress of the trains to California. We make the following extracts:

Sunday, June 9, 1850.

110 Miles West of Fort Kearney.

We left Fort Kearney on Monday evening, (June 3,) about 3 o'clock, and had proceeded about three miles, when one of those prairie thunder storms broke upon us and we were forced to halt for the night, completely drenched, no wood, and obliged to retire, with a cold smack, to our lodgings upon the cold and wet ground. It continued raining all night, with violent wind and most terrific thunder, for a new country. About 12 o'clock two of our largest tents yielded to the wind, and a portion of one landed upon a mule, which so frightened him that a general stampede ensued.

The next morning we got off in good season, and that day reached Plum Creek, and found several trains awaiting a fall in the creek, to enable a safe ford. At this point we were unfortunate enough to lose one of our party, (Lucius C. Mason,) the particulars of which I wrote you on the 6th, and sent the letter by a gentleman on his return, who promised to mail it at St. Joseph. Hall's train were also encamped a few miles from us, and also lost a man—young Allen. Since then, until to-day, we have had good weather and good roads; but we have witnessed most horrible havoc of that dread disease, the Cholera. That disease broke out about the same time in every train that was in Plum Creek Valley from the 1st to the 7th of June. I have endeavored to ascertain all the particulars, but in a great many instances I saw graves with not even a name left, and in others the name only given. Up to this time I have counted forty graves, in sixty miles travel, and we have passed several trains where from one to six were sick, and probably two-thirds of them are dead ere this.

The following particulars were given me by a gentleman who overtook us yesterday, and I have every reason to believe them true, although he neglected to state everything of interest. He states, on the 7th, about 15 miles west of Plum Creek, he found a small train of three wagons, about a half mile from the main road, and but one man able to sit up; that there were originally twelve men in the train, but six were already dead and buried; four were dying of Cholera, one had the measles, and the other well, but so fatigued from nursing, that he could scarcely stand.

Now, Messrs. Editors, you will please call on Dr. McDowell, and others who contend that Cholera is contagious, and who also believe the disease is caused from a lack of electricity in the air, and ask them to account for this disease breaking out in some fifty or one hundred trains, about the same time, in the centre of a vast prairie, at least a thousand miles from any city, and immediately following severe thunder storms. And bear in mind, the trains in which the disease first disappeared were from healthy counties—Cedar, Ray, &c.—and only two of the trains were from St. Louis, (ours and Hall's.) and we had left St. Louis before a single case had occurred, more than a month ago. It strikes me that the doctrine that Cholera is contagious is fully exploded, and that it is merely infectious.

Since Mr. Mason's death we have had some few cases, but Dr. Knox soon checked them, and now every man, woman and child in our train enjoy the best of health.

SUNDAY, June 15, 1850.

240 MILES WEST OF FORT KEARNAY.

During the past week we have witnessed a great amount of sickness and distress in different trains. In fact, I have not yet heard of a train that has escaped sickness, and in nearly all the monster Death has taken one or more victims. To give you some idea of the sickness on the Plains this year, I will only mention a few cases that have come under my own personal observation. I visited a train on Tuesday last. Of the 17 men composing it, 16 were sick. Another train I passed buried seven at one time, five or six more sick, and one dying as I passed. In two instances I have passed trains where all but one had died. In one instance I saw at an encampment one tent left standing and another 'struck,' but lying on the ground; also a barrel of crackers, several blankets, six or eight pairs of boots, hats, coats, shirts, &c., &c., and near by five graves. It was a sad spectacle.

Several gentlemen have passed us who left Fort Kearney four days after we did, and one has counted 150 graves, but he neglected to take names. From all I can learn I have no doubt that at least 250 emigrants have died within the last 15 days between here and Plum Creek.

FORT LARAMIE, June 17, 1850.

The heavy tide of California emigration is passing this post at this time. About 10,000 have passed within the last four or five days. The whole number registered here as having passed this spring stand as follows:

Men, - - -	30,934	Horses, - -	10,880
Women, - -	430	Mules, - -	6,471
Children, - -	503	Oxen, - - -	18,233
Wagons, - -	7,113

The registration is in the main correct, as the officers take great pains in endeavoring to make it correct, though some trains have passed without registering their names. As near as I have been able to estimate the numbers, I think one-half the emigration is from the State of Missouri.

Jerome & Co.'s train, from your city, passed here on the 15th inst. Alexander & Hall's train, also from St. Louis, passed here to-day.

There have been some cases of severe diarrhea, and a few deaths in several of the larger trains. It is not the Cholera, as some of the emigrants assert it to be. The physicians say it is brought on mostly by drinking too much water and exposure, such as wading rivers and creeks, and change of habits of life.

The grass on a portion of the route has been very scarce, especially between the crossing of the South or Loupe Fork of the Platte and Chimney Rock. Horses, mules and oxen suffered for the want of food. Stock from Missouri suffered less than from other portions of the Union, for the reason, I suppose, they had not travelled so far as the others and were less tired.

☞ In Ohio most of the peach trees are really breaking down with the abundance of the fruit. The apples are nearly as abundant; the fruit crop appears to be everywhere good. What prospers the wheat is generally good for fruit. As to wheat there is no diminution of the good accounts received from every quarter.

The Pennsylvania Railroad.—The Pittsburg Gazette, alluding to the state and prospects of this great work, gives some facts relative to its progress, which are interesting. The line from Philadelphia to Huntingdon is in exeellent order, and doing a good business. From Huntingdon to Hollidaysburg the line will be finished probably by the 15th of September next. There is, therefore, a certainty that by the first of October there will be continuous railroad communication from Philadelphia to Johnstown, using the Portage Railroad across the mountains, which is in good order. This will render but one transhipment necessary, at Johnstown. From Johnstown west to Bolivar, some 22 miles, the work will be finished early next season, and to the Monastery, in Westmoreland county, some time next summer.—This brings the road into connection with the southern turnpike. It is contemplated, also, to build a branch from the line to Blairsville, and it is highly probable that it will be done next season. This will connect the line with the northern turnpike. It is not probable that the line will be entirely finished to Pittsburg, so as to be in continuons use, before the spring of 1852. This is owing to the very heavy work in Westmoreland county. The Gazette says:

"But by the means of the Canal to Johnstown, we may expect to do a good business this coming fall, and, by means of the canal and the two turnpikes, a heavier business the fall succeeding.

"We presume, however, that the line from this city to Turtle Creek will be finished this fall, or by next spring.

"Eight miles of the mountain section, commencing at Johnstown and going east, have been put under contract. All the work on the western end of the line is being performed in the most satisfactory and durable manner, the streams being crossed by stone arched bridges, and every pains taken to make the work a credit to the State. It will, doubtless, be one of the very best railroads ever built in the country."

Singular Case.—The following, which we take from the Louisville Journal, shows how much the mind has to do in producing, or warding off cholera attacks. Great depression of spirits and fear are strong predisposing causes of the disease. They invite attacks, as every well informed physician knows. Firmness and cheerfulness are great preventives, and should be constantly cultivated:—On Tuesday, the wife of a man named Jacques, in the lower part of the city, was attacked by cholera. Dr. Knight was called in, and by his direction, Jacques went for medicine. On his return, he inquired anxiously of the Doctor how his wife was. He was informed that she was in a collapsed state and could not possibly live. Thereupon he calmly took out his watch, and, handing it to his brother, said: "My wife is going to die, and I cannot live without her; I shall die too."—He seemed in perfect health at the time, but all the symptoms of cholera made their appearance immediately, and he died in three hours.

The Cholera in Cincinnati.—CINCINNATI, Aug. 5—The Board of Health report, for the twenty-four hours ending last evening, sixty interments, of which ten were from Cholera, and 31 children under five years of age.

Wonderful Preservation—A Noble Lad.—On Friday, a lad about 13 years of age, was driving his mother, (Mrs. Humphry,) and five small children, with the nurse, and when at the lake, this side of Torryburn, the horse rushed into the water, the bank being very steep, and they were all engulphed beyond their depth. The mother, with her infant in her arms, supporting herself for an instant, but sank, when feeling her foot touching something, by exertion she rose to the surface, and grasped a branch held out by some men who providentially by this time were present. The lad seized two of his sisters, but finding them too heavy called for help, when a plank being thrust out, he was dragged on shore, he being the only one who could swim.

He again struck out, and seeing another of his sisters in the wagon, at the bottom of the lake, went down and caught her by the bonnet, and rescued her in time, though she was insensible, to preserve life. One more child was still floating on the water, supported by its clothes; the noble boy again dashed in and succeeded in restoring his fourth one by his courage and exertions. The nurse was saved by grasping a stick held out by the men on shore. Thus, a lad thirteen years of age, save the lives of four children. What a reflection for after life! A couragcous and spirited youth, truly. The horse was drowned.—St. Johns (N. B.) News, July 29th.

Sad Accident by Lightning.—CHESTER, Delaware Co., Aug. 4, 1850.—MESSRS. EDITORS: A lamentable accident occurred in Aston township, in this county, yesterday, at 4 o'clock. A dwelling-house, on the tenure of John Cook, at which a vendue was being held, was struck by lightning, and three pessons were instantly killed and a number wounded. The names of the killed are Mrs. R. Dutton, wife of Jonathan Dutton; her son, Nathan, a young man recently married, and a Richard P. Slaughter, an industrious young man, a carpenter by trade, who leaves a wife and two children. John McCoy, who was standing by Dutton at the time of his death, was struck in the back. The electric fluid passed down both his legs, taking off the skin all the way down, and tearing his shoes into fragments. A sad calamity has befallen the families of the deceased individuals, and much sympathy is felt for them.—Ledger.

The Cholera in Pittsburg.—PITTSBURG, Aug. 5.—The prevalence of the Cholera in this city is beginning to create much alarm. From some unexplained cause we have no sanitory committee to report a correct list of deaths, though the cholera is evidently increasing. An undertaker told me this morning that there were as many as 30 interments on Sunday, (yesterday.) This is perhaps a slight exaggeration.—The fatality appears to be confined principally among the Germans and poorer classes. The intemperate use of vegetables is the principal cause. There are now six feet water in the channel.

☞ A planing machine has been invented in St. Louis, which, the Republican says, is destined to supersede all others. With one-fifth of the power required to propel Woodsworth's machine, it will turn out, planed on both sides, tongued and groved, ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY per minute.

Crops in Western New York.—The editor of the Albany Evening Journal, who has lately taken a trip to Rochester, says:

"Never has the teeming earth yielded her treasure with a more bountiful hand. Never did 'seed time and harvest' promise more abundant reward to the husbandman. Onondaga, Cayuga, Seneca, Ontario and Monroe are in a truly high and palmy condition. The growing crops, of every description, are healthy and vigorous. Fruit promises to be excellent and plentiful.—Ontario and Monroe resemble the richest and best cultivated portions of England and Belgium. We have never seen, in that portion of our State, so many acres promising a larger yield of better wheat. This wheat, ripening early, invited the cradlers several days since, and, blessed with good harvest weather, most of the crop has already been secured.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE following notice of Prof. Finney's labors in London, will be read with interest by his numerous friends in this country. We trust it will elicit much prayer for the blessing of God upon the great work to which Bro. Finney has so exclusively and earnestly devoted himself. The artiele is taken from the "British Banner," an able religious paper, of London, and one of the principal organs of the British Congregationalists.—Oberlin Evangelist.

REV. C. G. FINNEY.

"Some six weeks back, we intimated that arrangements were made for a visit of the Rev. Mr. Finney to the metropolis, and that he would on the 12th of last month, commence a course of services at the Tabernacle. In a subsequent notice, we also gave a slight sketch of that gentleman's history and labors in the land of his nativity, the United States. To meet the extreme difficulty of making any great impression upon the Metropolitan population, it was deemed expedient to pioneer his way, not so much in the city generally, as in the immediate neighborhood of the chapel in which he was to commence his evangelical efforts. In some cases, it is not very difficult to gather together a vast number of those whom Mr. Jay properly designates "religious vagabonds," the chaff of professors, itinerant hunters after new things and new men, who are carried about from place to place by the ever-flowing, ever-changing currents of novelty. To bring such people under the influenee of a pungent, searching and powerful ministration of the word, is, doubtless, a point of no inconsiderable moment; but this class are among the most hopeless hearers on the face of the earth; they may be amused, moved, and led to utter the loudest strains in the praise of the idol of the hour; but, in general, the matter ends there. Conversion amongst this class is very rare.—They are one Great Ear, which is never satisfied with hearing, while their heart is shrivelled into a muscle, bloodless and impassive! It was considered that if much good was to be done by the visit of Mr. Finney, new ground, as far as possible, must be broken up, and the great question was, how to do this. As one of the best of the various means available, some eight or nine thousand copies of a copious Address were circulated by a body of the young men of the congregation on the morning and afternoon of the previous Lord's-day.

"Mr. Finney began on the 12th, according to arrangement; and from that time to the present he has gone on regularly preaching in the Tabernacle, Lord's-day morning and evening, and on the evenings of Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday. As we understand many of our readers are looking for some intimation on the subject of the acceptance with which he may have met, we have pleasure in intimating that from the first, the attendances have been very great on all occasions, both on Sabbath and week days. Sabbath-day audiences in houses with large regular churches and congregations are but an inferior test; the true test is the week-night meetings in this great, busy, and dissipated metropolis, which it is always difficult to move by any spiritual instrumentality, whatever be its originality or power.

"As to the ministrations of the Rev. Mr. Finney, suffice it to say, in general, that their merits are very great. It is enough, meanwhile, to remark, that there is every reason to anticipate from his services great spiritual good. It is too early to affirm any thing special, or to report individual cases. For the first time, last Sunday, he requested parties desiring to be further and more specifically addressed, on the breaking up of the congregation to repair to the great adjoining school-room, when probably from seven to eight hundred persons were speedily congregated. It is not meant that, in the strict sense of the word, these individuals were convinced and avowed penitents, but the fact showed, at any rate, that there was a sufficient measure of interest felt to lead them, after one very lengthened service in an oppressively crowded house, to repair to another. It was also obvious, there were many who, at least for the moment, were pierced with the arrow of conviction. Time will tell the real character of the incipient movement. We rejoice to say, that appearances are to a very high degree encouraging.

"It may be proper to correct a mistake, which we regret to find somewhat general, more especially among the leading ministers and leading men of many of the churches, a number of whom heard Mr. Finney at the outset. On that occasion, it was felt, lamented, and noised abroad, that there was no gospel in his ministration. It has grieved us to find that very much has been made of this report. We, therefore, rejoice in being able to meet it with a statement, which, we doubt not, will prove satisfactory to those who are interested in the case.

It must, then, be conceded, that Mr. Finney has his peculiarities—peculiarities very strongly marked both as to his manner of address, and the matter with which he opens his Commission. Avowedly, at the outset, his object is not so much to pour gospel truth on those who have been already saturated with it, and who are slumbering or dead under it, as to awake the sleepers—to quicken the dead—to drive the Churches from the rut of their formality—to prompt reflection—to work conviction—to excite a sense of short-comings, guilt, weakness, and insufficiency for any great spiritual service in the salvation of the world. Such is the object, and his instrumentality is of a corresponding character. It is rousing and lacerating in a very high degree; but, having done this, he preaches the Gospel in all its length and breadth of grace and privilege. This he has done in the Tabernacle with a power that we have never seen surpassed in that pulpit—a pulpit which has been graced by nearly all the first ministers of the by-gone and of the present generation. On this ground, therefore, there need be no solicitude. At the request of the London Christian Instruction Society, Mr. Finney preached a special sermon to the visiters, last Wednesday evening, and we hesitate not to say, that never before were the claims of the city brought before that body with such vividness, such vigor, such fidelity, and power. So great was the interest, and so copious the subject, as it presented itself to his mind, that, after having preached an hour and a half, he was requested by the Secretaries to continue the subject, a request with which he at once complied, and, accordingly, he will resume it this evening.

We, in our previous notice respecting Mr. Finney, made a mistake, or rather we had been misinformed, when we stated that he had his expenses guaranteed to and from the United States, by a gentleman in England; it is not so; that excellent person simply pressed his acceptance of £50 towards that object.

We cannot close without making a communication which may save much trouble to others as well as to Mr. Finney. He is continually assailed by applications to attend this meeting or that, to preach for this object and the other, in the city, and in the suburbs, and in the country. Of course, the answer in every case, is a negative. His hands at present are so full, and he is so borne down by the oppressive labors of the sphere he occupies, that any addition is out of the question. He has come to England for the performance of multifarious labor, but for one special object from which nothing can detach him; and to that object he is giving himself with an uniformity, a devotion, and an energy, which leave neither time nor thought for anything else.

A fortnight back, Mr. Finney presented us with a written notice for the Banner to this effect, which, however, we withheld, deeming it better that the statement should come directly from ourselves.

1800 AND 1850—THE CONTRAST.

Since the commencement of the present century not far from 2,000 missionaries have been sent forth to different heathen countries, and upwards of seven thousand native assistants have been employed in teaching and preaching the gospel; about four thousand churches have been organized, whose aggregate members amount to very nearly or quite two hundred and fifty thousand, and three thousand missionary schools have been established embracing two hundred and fifty thousand children. And all this where fifty years ago, there was not a single school, nor a single scholar, a single church, nor a single convert, a single missionary, nor a single native assistant, to be found.

At the commencement of the present century it is computed that there were in the whole world about 4,000,000, copies of the Bible, where as now there are more than 30,000,000. Then the scriptures had been published in less than fifty languages, now they exist in nearly two hundred languages and dialects! Then they were accessible in languages spoken by about 200,000,000, now in tongues and dialects spoken by 500,000,000!

Fifty years ago, not a dollar was given through any of the channels referred to in this review, expressly for the object of sending the living preacher to the heathen, now considerably more than two millions of dollars is contributed annually to the Foreign Missionary Societies alone.

Within the same period whole islands and groups of islands, inhabited by the lowest savages in the North and South Pacific, have been Christianized; the work of illumination has begun in some of the darkest parts of Africa; China with its teeming millions, has been thrown open to our labors; India throughout all its borders has become fully accessible, while in Turkey, where but lately the government visited with instant death all apostates from the national faith, the principle of religious liberty is now interwoven with the fundamental laws of the Empire!

The past half century has been marked by such improvements in science and arts as are stupendous in themselves, and well adapted, as they are by Providence designed, to be subsidiary to the still more stupendous moral and religious enterprise achieved, or in prospect.

Fifty years ago we had no steam-ships traversing either ocean or river; no railroads binding the different sections of our extended country together, and making the inhabitants of its extreme borders next-door neighbor; no telegraphic wires upon which to send living and burning thoughts flying through the air with lightning speed. There has also been going forward a new distribution of political power in the world, so that at this moment more than one-half of the population of the globe is subject to Christian governments, and full one-half of those fall to Protestant powers! Nor are we yet able to speak of the final results of the late upheavings of the masses in Europe, now temporarily quieted by external pressure; though who can doubt the connection between these widely extended movements and the ultimate establishment of truth and justice in the world. Journal of Missions.

WONDERS OF THE ATMOSPHERE.

There is, in a late number of the London Quarterly, a well written and instructive article on Humboldt's Kosmos, from which we copy the following description of the wonders of the atmosphere:

"The atmosphere rises above us with its cathedral dome arching toward the heavens, of which it is the most familiar synonyme and symbol. It floats around us like that grand object which the Apostle John saw in his vision, 'a sea of glass like unto crystal.' So massive is it, that when it begins to stir, it tosses about great ships like playthings, and sweeps cities and forests like snow-flakes to destruction before it; and yet it is so mobile, that we have lived years in it before we can be persuaded that it exists at all, and the great bulk of mankind never realize the truth that they are bathed in an ocean of air. Its weight is so enormous, that iron shivers before it like glass; yet a soap ball sails through it with impunity, and the thinnest insect waves it aside with its wing. It ministers lavishly to all the senses. We touch it not, but it touches us. Its warm south winds bring back color to the pale face of the invalid; its cool west winds refresh the fevered brow, and make the blood mantle in our cheeks; even its north blast braces into new vigor, and hardens the children of our rugged climate.

The eye is indebted to it for all the magnificence of sunrise, the full brightness of mid-day, and the clouds that cradle near the setting sun. But for it, the rainbow would want its 'triumphant arch,' and the winds would not send their fleecy messengers on errands round the heavens; the cold either would not shed snow feathers on the earth, nor would drops of dew gather on the flowers; the kindly rain would never fall, nor hail storms nor fog diversify the face of the sky. Our naked globe would turn its tanned and unshadowed forehead to the sun, and one dreary monotonous blaze of light and heat dazzle and burn up all things.

Were there no atmosphere, the evening sun would in a moment set, and without warning plunge the earth in darkness.—But the air keeps in her hand a sheath of his rays, and lets them slip but slowly through her fingers, so that the shadows of evening are gathered by degrees, and the flowers have time to bow their heads, and each creature space to find a place of rest and to nestle to repose. In the morning the garish sun would at once bound forth from the bosom of night, and blaze above the horizon; but the air watches for his coming, and sends at first but one little ray to announce his approach, and then another, and by and by a handful, and so gently draws aside the curtain of night, and slowly lets the light fall on the face of the sleeping earth, till her eyelids open, and like man, she goeth forth again to her labor till the evening."

THE MISSIONARY'S DEATH-BED.

The gospel of Christ is not only the missionary's comfort in the house of his pilgrimage, but his support and joy as he crosses the Jordan. Mr. Medhurst describes, in a very affecting manner, the closing hours of Rev. Benjamin Southwell, of the London Missionary Society, who died October 5th, 1849, at Sanghai, China. He says:—"With glowing rapture he repeated the whole of the beautiful hymn, 'Jerusalem, my happy home;' and so excited was he in his gladness that, feeble as his voice was, he sang one of the verses to a tune with which he was familiar. Even when sleeping, blissful dreams visited his pillow, which, in a continued stream of words, lasting about forty minutes, he described to those about his bedside as full of the most ecstatic views of heaven, of the preciousness of Christ, of the conviction of that much as he felt he had sinned, Christ regarded him as one of his own, to whom were destined the fullness of joy, even perpetual pleasures."

A NOBLE BOY.

A touching incident occurred recently at a steamboat sinking, in the Missouri river, near St. Louis. Among the persons who were swept overboard were a woman, and a boy about twelve years of age. A man on the steamer seeing the boy, buffeting the waves just beyond the boat, threw him a rope, and called to him to take hold of it. The little fellow replied—"Never mind me—I can swim—save mamma." They were both rescued. Such a boy, in now-a-days of selfishness, should swell his parents' hearts with pride.

SEEK the Lord and his face continually; let this be the business of your life and strength; and let all things be subservient and in order to this. You cannot find nor behold the face of God but in Christ; therefore labor to know God in Christ—which the Scripture makes the sum of all, even life eternal.—Cromwell.

POETRY.

CAST IN THY MITE.

He who gives but little from his store,
If little be his means,
Treads on as far the heavenward shore,
As he who gives ten times the more,
If ten times more his gains.
He may be useful here who would,
And walk within a zone of light;
There is a treasury of good—
Cast in thy mite!

Thou mayst not have one piece of gold
To bless the poor man's palm;
But angels will with joy behold,
If thou hast words that can be told,
His troubled heart to calm;
For kind words are as honied streams,
And he, the walker of the sod,
Who gives them to his brother, seems
A messenger from God!

There are abuses deep and loud—
Hoarse voices shrieking "Bread!'
Yes, there are noble spirits bowed
And forms that flit among the dead.
Crush but one atom of abuse—
Stay but one particle of sin—
Thy God will sanctify the use
Of all thy powers therein.

And if thy brother weaker be,
If folly mark his path;
If thou art from that folly free,
If knowledge clingeth unto thee,
Give not contempt nor wrath;
But from the garner of thy worth,
And from thy store of truth and light,
To serve thy brother's wants on earth,
Cast in thy mite!

BLESS GOD FOR RAIN.

BY GEO. W. BUNGAY.

"Bless God for Rain," the good man said,
And wiped away a grateful tear—
That we may have our daily bread,
He drops a shower upon us here.
Our Father, Thou who dwell'st in heaven,
We thank Thee for the pearly shower,
The blessed present Thou hast given
To man and beast and bird and flower.

The dusty earth, with lips apart,
Looked up where rolled an orb of flame,
As though a prayer came from its heart
For Rain to come; and lo, it came.
The Indian corn with silken plume,
And flowers with tiny pitchers filled,
Send up their praise of sweet perfume,
For precious drops the clouds distilled.

The modest grass is fresh and green—
The brooklet swells in songs again;
Methinks an angel wing is seen
In every cloud that brings us Rain.
There is a rainbow in the sky,
Upon the arch where tempests trod:
God wrote it ere the world was dry—
It is the autograph of God.

Up where the heavy thunders rolled,
And clouds on fire were swept along,
The sun rides in a car of gold,
And soaring larks dissolve in song.
The rills that gush from mountains rude
Flow trickling to the verdant base—
Just like the tears of gratitude
That often stain a good man's face.

Great King of Peace, deign now to bless;
The windows of the sky unbar;
Shower down the rain of Righteousness,
And wash away the stain of War;
And let the radiant bow of Love
In beauty mark our moral sky,
Like that fair sign unrolled above,
But not like it to fade and die.

THE TREASURE IN THE FIELD.

A man while going o'er a field,
In which a treasure was concealed,
Perceived the gem:—he hid it well,
And, filled with joy, he went to sell
All that he had, then bought the field
Which did such worthy treasure yield.

H. J. B.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun.
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 14th of July, 1850, by Elder Jacob Keller, at the house of Elder John Hepler, Mr. Daniel Snyder to Miss Magdalena Hepler, both of Mahantungo Valley, Schuylkill county, Pa.

On the 25th of July, 1850, by the Rev. J. F. Mesick, Mr. Henry Barkneys, of Swatara township, to Miss Margaret Wonnemacher, of Londonderry township, Dauphin county, Pa.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

The following Protracted Meetings are to be held, Providence permitting, on the Matamoras and Juniatta Circuit, viz:

One in the Red Hill Bethel, near brother William Kumbler's, opposite Newport, Perry county, to commence on the 6th of September.

One at Matamoras, Dauphin county, to commence on the 13th of September.

One near brother Joseph Cameron's, in Turkey Valley, Juniatta county, to commence on the 27th of September.

One near brother John Grubb's, in Wild-cat Valley, Perry county, to commence on the 11th of October.

We do most earnestly solicit the preaching brethren to attend the above meetings.

A. Snyder,
Preacher in Charge.

East Pennsylvania Camp-meetings.

1. A Camp-meeting for Dauphin Circuit, to commence on the 19th of August, on the land of brother John Felty, about four miles from Harrisburg, and three from Linglestown. The preachers and brethren are invited to attend.

2. A Camp meeting for Landisburg Circuit, to commence on Tuesday, August, 27th, on the old camp-ground in Germany, about four miles from Landisburg. The preachers and brethren are invited to attend.

A Camp-meeting will be held on the lower end of York county, about one mile from Newberr,, and about one and a half miles from the river, on the land of Tacy Keister, commencing on Friday, the 16th of August.

A Camp-meeting for Broad Top Circuit will commence on the 23d of August, to be held near Mr. John Hoover's, on Broad Top. The preachers and brethren are invited to attend.

A Camp-meeting will be held at brother Geo. Kimmel's, one and a half miles east of Orwigsburg, Schuylkill county, commencing on Monday, the 26th of August.

The German preachers are all invited to attend the above Camp-meeting.

J. Keller.

West Pennsylvania Camp-meetings.

The following Camp-meetings will be held within the bounds of the West Pennsylvania Eldership, viz:

One in Brush Valley, Indiana county, Pa., commencing on the 22d of August.

One in Irvin township, Venango county, Pa., commencing on the 5th of September.

Brothers Winebrenner and Harn will be in attendance at the last meeting.

Also, a Protracted meeting at Bethany, Westmoreland county, Pa., commencing on the 20th of September.

Brothers Winebrenner and Harn will attend.

By order of the Committee.
J. M. Klein.

Camp-meetings in Ohio.

1. One in Summit county, near East Liberty, commencing on the 22d of August.

2. One on the old camp-ground, one and a half miles West of Reedsburg, Ashland county, commencing on the 29th of August.

Indiana Camp-meeting.

A Camp-meeting will be held in the bounds of the Church in Decalb county, in the neighborhood of brother Joseph Walters', five miles southeast of Auburn, commencing on the 23d of August.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4	62½	a 4 75
Do.	Rye,	do.	2	50	a 2 50
Do.	Corn,	do.	2	37½	a 2 37½
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				95	a 1 00
Do.	Rye,	do.		56	a 56
Do.	Corn,	do.		45	a 50
Do.	Oats,	do.		36	a 36
Do.	Barley,	do.		60	a 65
SEEDS—Clover,		do.	3	50	a 3 50
Do.	Timothy,	do.	2	25	a 2 50
Do.	Flax,	do.	1	05	a 1 25
BEEF, per cwt.			5	00	a 5 50
PORK,	do.		5	00	a 5 25
HAMS, per pound,				7½	a 19
BUTTER,	do.			10	a 10
LARD,	do.			8	a 8
TALLOW,	do.			8	a 10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.				6	a 7
EGGS, per dozen,				10	a 10
POTATOES, per bushel,				56	a 62½
ONIONS,	do.			75	a 87½
APPLES,	do.		1	00	a 1 12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1	25	a 1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,				37½	a 45
WOOL,	do.			30	a 50
SALT, per sack,			1	20	a 1 20
HAY, per ton,			10	00	a10 00
PLASTER, per ton,			4	00	a 4 00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$5	12½	a 5 25
Do.	Rye,	do.	3	00	a 3 00
Do.	Corn,	do.	3	00	a 3 00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1	15	a 1 20
Do.	Rye,	do.		65	a 65
Do.	Corn,	do.		65	a 65
Do.	Oats,	do.		43	a 43
Do.	Barley,	do.		65	a 68
SEEDS—Clover,		do.	3	50	a 3 50
Do.	Timothy,	do.	2	75	a 3 00
Do.	Flax,	do.	1	35	a 1 40
BEEF, per cwt.,			7	00	a 8 75
PORK,	do.		7	00	a 7 25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in duo decimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

Missionary Pledges.

We, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller,	- - -	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	- - -	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	- - -	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	- - -	-	10 00
Jacob Miller,	- - -	-	10 00
James Miller,	- - -	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh,	- - -	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	- - -	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	- - -	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich,	- -	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz,	- -	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	- -	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	- -	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	- -	-	5 00
James Casey,	- -	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits,

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. SEPTEMBER 2, 1850. NUMBER 9.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

☞ Read the strange account in another page concerning the "Mysterious Knockings."

☞ The acknowledgement of monies received on the Advocate will be continued in next number.

☞ Those who are indebted to brother W. for the Advocate, or for books, will confer a favor on him, and his family, by remitting what they owe. Do it quickly.--Editor pro tem.

☞ The Camp-meeting five miles above Harrisburg is going on pleasantly and profitably. A number of the preachers are there, and will I hope give us an account of the meeting from first to last. Our Harrisburg Church has six tents there, and form one large family, all sitting round the same table under the trees. May it be a blessing to their souls.

I remember when they used to sing at the Camp-meetings below Philadelphia,--

"This night our souls have caught new fire,
We feel that heaven is drawing nigher."

J. F.

"The Summer is Ended."---J. F.

Very warm and very pleasant have been these summer days. It has also been a fruitful season. Seed time and harvest--summer and winter have come on with wonderful regularity, and go to show that there is a hand Divine that turns the wheels of nature, making every thing subservient to the convenience and comfort of man.

The whole year, and every day thereof, belongs unto the Lord, and to those who have received grace from above, it is no hardship to spend the whole year round in the worship and service of the God in whom they trust, and who is to be supremely loved. Such as these have spent these pleasant summer days in trying to live to God--in resisting sin--and seeking for a greater conformity to the image of the Saviour.

And with some it will be the last summer they will see on earth. The rose and lily may bloom again---the fields and trees again be clothed in green--but their eyes will be gazing on the strange beauties of the land which seems now very far off--but yet can be quickly reached.

"There everlasting spring abides,
And never withering flowers;
Death like a narrow sea divides,
This heavenly land from ours."

———"And we are not saved."

So said the Israelites of old on one occasion, and so it is with some who might be numbered among the spiritual Israel of God--but they would not.

A Sabbath-School at Camp-Meeting.—J. F.

"Sow in the morn thy seed,
At eve hold not thy hand;
To doubt and fear give thou no heed,
Broad cast it round the land."

Yesterday I was at the Camp-meeting about five miles above Harrisburg. We found it in a very pleasant piece of woods—a large congregation (for the place) was gathered, the morning services had commenced, and one of the young brethren (brother Howard) was preaching. They had sitting in front of the stand a large number of children, comprising the Sabbath-school of the neighboring village. There they were in the early morning of life—a number of boys and girls—listening to a discourse addressed to children and parents and all.

After the sermon brother Keller followed with a plain and feeling address, in the course of which he related an account of a little girl, and her mother, in Ohio, which was very affecting, and which I wish he would write out in the same words he told it, and send it to me.

When he was done, the writer spoke a little while from the words of the Egyptian princess to the mother of Moses, when the child was found in the little ark of bulrushes, lying in the brink of the river Nile. She said, "Take this child away and nurse it for me, and I will pay thee thy wages." Exodus 2: 9.

The Lord says to every father and mother—"take it"—a gift to thee, from the Lord—"take it" thankfully. Take "this child." To be sure it is only a child--but it has a precious soul, and this soul may expand, and brighten, and live in blessedness through everlasting years, if it can be prepared therefor in this mortal life. It must be renewed and sanctified.

Therefore take this child and nurse it for me. It is the Lord's property, and you are to nurse it for Him. Do it all the good you can as to the body, and bring it up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Talk to the child of the things of God--teach it to pray, saying "Our Father"--let it join with you every day in family worship, and go with you every Sabbath to the house of prayer, and also to the Sabbath-school. Encourage the child to learn verses from the Scriptures, and also the sweet and solemn Hymns and Songs of Zion. And let your daily walk in holiness and love be an example that your child may follow.

"And I will give thee thy wages." You may not have your reward here, but may have care, and toil, and be none the richer in worldly things. You perhaps will not die rich in silver, and gold, or houses and lands. But suppose your children follow you to Paradise, and after a while you, and they, form a part of that great family whose names are written in heaven—this will be your wages.

"Then when the glorious end,
The day of God is come;
The angel reapers shall descend,
And heaven sing harvest home."

Western Tour.---No. 6.

Indianopolis, Indiana, July 31, 1850.

JOURNAL OF THE NINTH AND TENTH WEEKS.

Monday, July 15th.—Visited the Capitol in Iowa City, and some old friends and acquaintances. Received a letter from my daughter Ellen, at Wooster, Ohio. Left for Columbus City, in Louisa county, where we arrived in the evening, and stopped with Wesley W. Garner, formerly of Carroll county, Md., who entertained us with great kindness. We come down on the Iowa river road, where we passed through a very handsome and fertile country. There are some splendid Groves and Prairies along this river, on both sides of it; and a great deal of the land can still be had at government price, $1 25 per acre.

July 16th.—We left Columbus City and started for Mount Pleasant, the county town of Henry county. After passing over several large Prairies, and through a heavy rain and thunder storm, we arrived there in the evening and stayed over night with brother Joseph Barton, who lives near the town. We had intended to preach there that evening, but arrived too late to get out an appointment.—There was a revival in that neighborhood last winter, and a goodly number were converted. The young converts and Church there seem to be doing well. We deeply regretted the want of time to stop and preach for the Church and people in that place. We felt particularly anxious to see brothers Scott, Zentmyer and others, but were obliged to come away without seeing them, having some appointments to meet in Illinois.

Mount Pleasant is quite a fine looking town, containing, I suppose, some five or six hundred inhabitants. A Plank Road is being made from this place to Burlington, on the Mississippi, a distance of 28 miles. They have excellent crops this season through that part of Iowa, the weather having been very seasonable.

July 17th.—Started for Burlington—had a wet, heavy road, but a pleasant day. Arrived at Burlington in the evening and stopped with brother Mellinger, formerly of Millerstown, Lebanon county, Pa. Brother M. has bought property in Burlington, and intends to make that his home. There are several other brethren living in that city and neighborhood, who would be glad to have preaching from some of the preachers of the Church of God in Iowa.

The city of Burlington is one of the largest and finest places in the State of Iowa. Its location is not very handsome, but it is rapidly increasing, and is a place of great business. Its public buildings are large and commodious, and the houses generally are neat and substantial.

The Cholera had been quite bad there for about two weeks, but was abating when we were there. About 1000 of the inhabitants had fled from the city into the country, to escape the desolation of this dreadful scourge.

July 18th.—We left Burlington about noon, crossed the Mississippi, and took the direct road towards Peoria, through New Lancaster, Burlock, Abington, Harrisonville, Uniontown, Farmington, Trivoli, &c. The first night we stayed at New Lancaster, 20 miles from Burlington. The land-lord at whose house we stayed over night, like many other foolish people, had left his wife and children and gone to California in quest of gold. May the Lord have mercy on him and forgive him his folly.

July 19th.—Leaving New Lancaster, we crossed a large and fine Prairie, in the direction of Butwick. Here we saw more Prairie Hens than in any other part of the West.—They were quite numerous along this road. This day we passed through an exceedingly fine country—saw the best Corn and largest herds of cattle in all our route. In one place I counted about 200 head of cattle grazing on the Prairie. We stopped over night with a Universalist, near Uniontown, in Knox county. With that gentleman we had a sharp controversy till about 11 o'clock at night. In that neighborhood and about Farmington, we understood, there were a good many Univernalists. What a pity that this false doctrine is spreading so far and wide through our happy and beloved country, and shedding its blighting and withering influence over the hearts and minds of so many of our beloved countrymen. O! that truth and pure religion may soon prevail over error and vice of every form, and bless our goodly land from North to South, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific!

July 20th.—We started early, passed on through Sterling to Trivoli, where we fed and took breakfast. After breakfast we set out for Peoria, where we arrived early in the afternoon. Our old friend and brother, Daniel Brestel, and his kind family, received us with open arms, and with them we went in and out during our abode there. Here, also, we had the pleasure of seeing several more old friends, brethren and acquaintances. Among them we may mention brother Christian Long and family, brother Geo. Miller, son of Jacob Miller's; also, sister A. Howard, E. Slough, Joseph Keller and family, Mr. McClure and others, formerly of Harrisburg Pa. Brother Brestel, according to our request, had given out preaching for us, on Saturday evening and on Sabbath. For Sabbath he had procnred the use of both the Methodist and Baptist Meeting-houses. We accordingly preached three times in the Methodist, and twice in the Baptist Church. The congregations were large and attentive. General Reily, the celebrated lecturer on Temperance, also happened to arrive in the city the same day we did. We heard him lecture twice on Sabbath; once in the street, and once in the Court House. All the friends of Temperance who have ever heard the General lecture, will always be glad to hear him again. He is truly a master workman in the Temperance cause, who needeth not to be ashamed, because he rightly divideth the words of truth and soberness, so as to make them tell on the minds of liqnor dealers and drinkers, like nails driven in a sure place. May the Lord speed him in his labor of love!

The city of Peoria is the seat of justice of Peoria county, Illinois, and is a large and beautiful place. It is situated on the West bank of the Illinois river, about 200 miles above St. Louis, by water, and 160 by land. It is surronnded by an exeeedingly fine, rich and fertile country, which makes it a place of very considerable business. It is, also, one of the handsomest towns in the Western States. I wish we had a good missionary there.

Monday, July 22d.—We took leave of the brethren at Peoria, and started for Springfield, the capital of Illinois. We travelled that day through a remarkably fine country, about 45 miles, to a small town called Middletown, where we stayed over night.

July 23d.—Started for Springfield, where we arrived about noon.—Stopped at the City Hotel. Inquired for Daniel Barns and John H. Manawether. The latter we fonnd, but the former had left, abont a year ago, and now resides at Jacksonville, in Morgan county. Here we intended to remain till next day, but after looking ronnd for several hours, and viewing the city, pnblic buildings, &c., we agreed to travel a piece further, in the cool of the evening. We accordingly did so, and put up at a house of entertainment kept by a Mr. Geiger, about 11 miles east from Springfield.

The city of Springfield is quite a good looking place, situated on a fine Prairie, and contains about 6,000 inhabitants. The Capitol is a large and handsome edifice, built of white lime-stone, and is situated in the centre of a public square, in the midst of the city. It is a two story building, 90 by 140 feet in size, with a dome in the centre. The offices and committee rooms are on the first floor, and the halls on the second. The interior of the building is not yet entirely finished, but they are working at it, and expect to get it all finished by next summer. The offices and committee rooms are finished, and the halls partly, so that they can be occupied. The external architecture and appearance of the building is pretty good, but the internal plan and arrangement is rather inferior and unskilful.

The Court House and Bank of Illinois are two handsome buildings, situated on the north-east corner of the public square. The Bank is defunct.

July 24th.—Started early and went to Mt. Auburn, a distance of 12 miles: there we fed and took breakfast. After breakfast we crossed a large and handsome Prairie, said to contain 40,000 acres, and owned by one man in Philadelphia. The same gentleman, we were told, owns several other large tracts, amounting in all to 150,000 acres. This wretched system of land speculations, and land monopolies, is all wrong, in my judgment, and ought to be arrested and put down by statute law.

Some four miles south of Decatur, in Macon county, we passed the residence of brother George Schroll, from York county, Pa., but did not know it till in the evening, seven miles off where he lives. There we stopped over night, with a gentleman by the name of Edward Edwards--a clever and good host—and where we heard about brother G. Schroll, and many other York county folks, who all live through that part of Macon county. Land through there is good and cheap. Brother S. has bought a farm of 240 acres for $1600, with 100 acres under improvement, and 40 acres of timber. Government lands can yet be had at the usnal price in that region.

July 25th.—We pursued our journey Eastward, in sight of Sullivan, the seat of justice of Moultrie county, to a village called Nelson, where we fed and dined: then went on to Charleston, the county town of Cole county, where we stayed over night. Charleston is a pretty place. The country around there, however, is only ordinary.

July 26th.—Set out for Martinsville, on the National road, in Clark county, where we arrived about 2 o'clock, P. M. Stopped with brother Rupp, formerly of Jefferson, Wayne county, Ohio. With him and family we remained till next day, and were kindly treated. Brother Rupp has a pretty farm of 80 acres, which he bought for $150. Land is very cheap in that neighborhood, though a little too heavily timbered to open a farm without much toil and expense.

July 27th.—Went over to brother H. Fasig's, who lives about a mile from brother Rupp's. They were all glad to see us and entertained us with much kindness. In the evening we held meeting in Martinsville, in the Methodist meeting-house.

Sabbath, July 28th, we held a Woods-meeting, at brother Wm. Fasig's. We preached in the morning, afternoon and evening. The congregations were good and quite attentive to the word. There is a small Church of God in that neighborhood, numbering some twenty-odd members. They seem to be doing well.

I hope, if possible, that provision will be made for the supply of the Church and people of Clark county, Illinois. There is a fine band of brethren in that region, and if a wise and faithful minister is sent there, he will be sustained. It is said there is a great field open through that country, and that a large and fine circuit could soon be formed. Perhaps we might spare one of our good brethren from the East, to labor in the vineyard there, provided the Indiana Eldership find themselves unable to provide a man for that destitute field. Who will say, "Here am I, send me?"

J. W. & G. U. H.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

SKETCH

OF A

DEBATE ON BAPTISM,

BETWEEN

J. KELLER AND A. OWEN;

Held at Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 19th, 20th, 21st, 22d and 23d of February, 1850.

REPORTED BY W. E. DRAKE,

For the Church Advocate and Religious Telescope.

SECOND DAY'S DEBATE.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 20.

J. KELLER'S NINTH SPEECH.

BROTHER KELLER said—Brother Owen has referred to Cyprian concerning a man who was sprinkled when lying on a sick bed.—Now, I recollect reading that there was some objection raised afterwards as to his baptism. If his baptism was valid Scriptnral baptism, and all understood it so, why had the council to decide? If I were sprinkled in my infancy, and afterwards felt the Divine influence operating upon me and moving me to go and preach the Gospel to the people, and simply because I was sprinkled, and some members of the Church were not willing to listen to me—if that sprinkling was valid withal—why should I go to a council to decide whether my baptism was valid or not? If, as my opponent says, sprinkling was a common practice in the days of the Apostles, why call a council to declare whether that kind of baptism was valid, or not? Strange idea, indeed! If immersion has been in use from the days of the Apostles to the present day, why, I repeat, take the opinion of a council whether the baptism be valid or not, when I deem it my duty to preach? Brother Owen says he does not know what we would do with a man who was sick and not baptized—whether we would sprinkle him, or not. I can tell him that if a man were sick and had the renovating influence of the Holy Spirit, and had the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, what we would do with him. And, I suppose he does know; but he simply intimated this for the purpose of qnizzing me, or something of that sort. I may be wrong, and if so, beg his pardon.

[Here brother K. related two instances of sick persons, coming under his knowledge, who, being sick, and desiring to be baptized, were taken from their beds and immersed, and afterwards recovered.]

This (said he) is what we do under the circumstances. We cannot break the Divine command in order to conform to that which may be advisable in the sight of men.—We deny that christening was in common use in the third century. But, supposing that was the case, is that a proof that christening is baptism? Why does not the gentleman show, if he can, that it was the practice of John the Baptist, of Christ the Messiah, and of the twelve Apostles, to sprinkle? Can it be shown that they ever sprinkled a single man, woman, or child? Will he do it? No; he has never made the attempt, and he won't do it if this discussion were to last for twenty years. I would just state here what I purpose to read, and shall endorse as setting forth my views of the subject. I contend that it degrades the God-head by saying it is a material substance. When the Spirit is said to be poured out, it is a figurative expression. And farther to explain this, I would again quote from Carson. With respect to Acts 2: 17; 11: 15, 16, he says:

"The gift of the Spirit is spoken of under the figure of pouring and shedding forth, but the pouring and shedding forth are not called baptism. The gift of the Spirit may be spoken of under any mode of the figurative object. But there is no MODE in the operation of the Spirit. The likeness of the figure is always in the effects. The gift of the Spirit is spoken of under all the modes of the motion of water. Does this imply, that any one of these motions is the same as the other? Or, that there is any real motion of the Spirit like that of water? Moses says, 'My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew.' Is the dropping of rain the same figure with the distilling of dew? And is there any likeness in mode, between doctrine and the thing referred to?"

A. OWEN'S NINTH REPLY.

BROTHER OWEN, after noticing the points touched by his opponent, said, my friend does not admit that sprinkling is valid baptism, and he would rather take an individual from a sick bed and immerse him in water, than resort to a harmless and equally efficacious and valid mode of baptism by sprinkling. He wants me to prove a case of sprinkling; but has he proved a case of immersion in the Scriptnre? He came here to prove that precise thing. I came not to prove sprinkling positively. But, as I cannot give a "Thus saith the Lord" for sprinkle or ponr, they say any thing short of immersion is not baptism. He says that Noah was enveloped. He certainly was not enveloped in water. The ark was snnk deep into the water, 11 or 12 feet, but the greater part of it was above the surface. Does my opponent believe he was immersed in the ark?

KELLER.—Yes; he was surrounded by the ark, just as we are by this house.

OWEN.—How was Noah plunging in the ark? My opponent is still hard run, and still he holds on. There was then not real, but figurative baptism. What is the emblem?

KELLER.—Carson says, real but not literal baptism.

OWEN.—It is a figurative baptism, that is certain. You know John says, "I baptize you with water, but he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost." Now, the term baptizo being a verb, is action. He says it is a specific action. It must be confined to dip. I say—not so. But, then, suppose we allow it is a specific action, baptism means a specific action. Now, if action is to be the gift of the Holy Spirit—what is it? Carson says, it cannot be pouring, bnt it is said it was ponring—that it was given by pouring. Well, this action of pouring is a figure. That is the action in the case. In this way they were baptized—that is certain. John says, "He shall baptize you."—What kind of action is it? Why, he says there is no real, but only a figurative representation? Well, the history says, it is "pouring out;" but Carson says it is to immerse. The figure is sprinkling or pouring, instead of immersion. He quoted from Carson, and I could not get the quotation concerning baptism and sanctification. If my opponent will lend me the book, I will try and find out the figure. Carson says:—[See the quotation at close of brother Keller's ninth speech.]

Carson says there is no resemblance between pouring water and the gift of the Holy Spirit. Here he directly contradicts inspiration—for it is chosen as the emblem—for, the pouring out of the Spirit of God is called baptism. There Carson is ignorant of inspiration. Now, if I am below, and water falls upon me, it falls on my head. Well, it falls upon those receiving it, and it is illustrated very well by being called baptism.

I will now bring forward the case of Origen, the most learned of the Christian fathers. His language is as follows:

"How came you to think that Elias, when he should come, would baptize, who did not, in Ahab's time, baptize the wood upon the altar, which was to be washed before it was burnt, by the Lord's appearing in fire? But he ordered the priests to do that; not once only, but says, Do it the second time: and they did it the second time: and, Do it the third time; and they did it the third time. He, therefore, that did not himself baptize then, but assigned that work to others, how was he likely to baptize, when he, according to Malachi's prophecy, should come."

Now mark, the wood was baptized upon the altar.—Origen calls that baptism. "And he put the wood in order, and cut the bullock in pieces, and laid him on the wood, and said, Fill four barrels with water, and pour it on the burnt sacrifice, and on the wood," &c.

Now, here is a baptism, mark you, and Origen calls it a baptism, that is done by pouring. The action is, the pouring of water upon wood. It does not say the altar was baptized; but this will still come out in the same way,—the water did not cover the altar, it only filled the trench around it. "And Elijah took twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, unto whom the word of the Lord came, saying, Israel shall be thy name: and with the stones he built an altar in the name of the Lord: and he made a trench about the altar, as great as would contain two measures of seed. And he put the wood in order, and cut the bullock in pieces, and laid him on the wood, and said, Fill four barrels with water, and pour it on the wood. And he said, Do it the second time. And they did it the second thime. And he said, do it the third time. And they did it the third time. And the water ran round about the altar; and he filled the trench also with water." And so the trench was full of water. Origen says, the altar was baptized. Baptized—with what? What was the action in this baptism? It is said, it was pouring. Now, can we believe it if Carson were to get up? This man was one of the Greek fathers, and well understood his native tongue. He did not understand immersion as meaning baptizo, for he used that word himself for pour. Carson and others make it immerse, and immerse exclusively. But most of the modern critics say, it means to pour in this case.

Prayer by brother SWARTZ.

THIRD DAY'S DEBATE.

THURSDAY, Feb. 21.

Prayer by brother ———.

J. KELLER'S TENTH SPEECH.

BROTHER KELLER said—Gentlemen Moderators: Before I proceed to answer some of the remarks that my opponent made yesterday, First, I ask whether the testimony of a single writer of the first or second century records the fact that pouring or sprinkling were ever practised as a mode or action of baptism. Second, whether a single, solitary case of baptism was ever performed by any, or either of these ways. Third, I ask emphatically for one passage or text in the New Testament where the word rantizo, to sprinkle, or chee, to pour, is used in reference to the ordinance of baptism. Fourth, I have shown that the literal import of the word baptizo is to immerse, and the derivative, baptisma, is immersion. This fact I have corroborated by the testimony of the Greek Church, and by a number of the Fathers, and by the testimony of modern authorities, eminent for Greek learning, on both sides of the question. Now, if my opponent will furnish me with one-half as much proof from the same source in favor of his mode of baptizing by sprinkling, or pouring, under the circumstances, I will compromise the question with him. But, if he cannot find and produce one-half of the testimony in favor of his position that I have given in proof of mine, then I hope that he will do me the honor, and candor, and credit to yield to me justice. I have frequently asked my opponent the day before yesterday, and yesterday also, what baptism meant. He yesterday said that it meant the application of water in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Then, first, if this be true, I ask, did Naaman apply water in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost? Second, if this is the case, when Josephus speaks of the ship being baptized, I would ask whether water was applied in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost?

The gentleman said that the ancients are not with me in immersing those that are on sick beds. I would simply ask if the ancients are with him on Episcopacy? I contend that Noah and his family were saved by the ark, as we are saved figuratively by baptism. As eight sonls were saved in the ark, so baptism will save us, as the figure. And it was therefore necessary that they should go into the ark before they could be thus saved; so it was necessary that we should get into baptism before Christ could figuratively (as its anti-type) save us. If I take a candidate down to the water this afternoon, my doing so does not make it baptism; but the act that follows after I am in the water is baptism. And is not this the case under your consideration? The gentleman referred to the 3rd chapter of Matthew to show you that John told the people that when Christ should come, he would baptize them with the Holy Ghost and with fire. Now, in that passage in the original, you find the word baptizo, but in Joel not baptizo, but ekkeo. Is it not strange that Joel should have forgotten to make the matter plain? I set out to prove that immersion only is baptism.—[Mr. Keller here recapitulated almost every authority he had produced during the present discussion to sustain his position, and he commented, as he proceeded, as he had hitherto done, upon the testimony adduced by his opponent.] I say that brother Owen has no positive proof to sustain the position he has taken in reference to pouring and sprinkling. It is presumptive evidence alone. Now, I want positive proof. I call for it. Whitby says that immersion was practised over 1300 years; and I think sprinkling was first introduced into France, and made its way across the channel into England.

A. OWEN'S TENTH REPLY.

BROTHER OWEN.—I wish to know from the gentleman whether he has adduced an argument on Romans vi.

KELLER.—I wish to know what you mean?

OWEN.—I wish to know whether I am to answer the burial argument, as the witnesses he has quoted, viz: Wall, Tennyson, Whitby, &c., are all connected with the argument?

KELLER.—Do as you think proper.

OWEN.—I will answer the burial argument, and the witnesses he produces on the Pedo-baptist side will be attended to. I will remark that a Pedo-baptist is one who believes in infant baptism. He may be then an immersionist as some of these, at least, which he has quoted, were. He quoted Wall. We shall give Wall another face after a time, but not just now. Mr. O. here took a general review of the arguments and authorities advanced on the part of his opponent, and then he proceeded to say—Now, I will give a lexicon he has quoted with great favor. Bretschneider—Properly often to dip, often to wash. This lexicographer does not say properly to dip, and then figuratively to wash. No such thing. And then, again, he says, simply to wash, to cleanse, used in the New Testament. And, here is another one I never gave before.

Snedat defined baptizo not only to sink, to plunge, to immerse, but to wash, cleanse, purify, &c. Now, there I have proved by one of his own lexicographers that the meaning of the word baptizo is not only to dip properly, but to wash properly. He cannot contradict this lexicon, and they are all the same in amount, but not so plain. If, then, I know that cleanse and wash is the proper meaning, how is he going to prove that immersion is the only proper word? You will see the object he had in view: he wanted to prove that baptizo means immersion exclusively. He next quotes a number of commentators, Pedo-baptists who were favorable to immersion. I shall bring in those same individuals in favor of our manner of pouring, or immersion. In connexion with my first speech, I told him to produce, as he had come for that purpose, a warrant, a "Thus saith the Lord" for immersion. Bear that in mind. He has made a strong effort out of this argument; and I said it was particularly proper that he should discard all human authority and go to the Bible exclusively. I think it proper my opponent should give us a "Thus saith the Lord." He should have given us the language of our Lord Jesus Christ, and given us the word "Immerse" only. Has he done it? He has not—you know he has not. He brought up the language of our Saviour, "Go teach all nations," &c., and the burial of Christ, but I wanted him to show me by the Bible where one man was immersed. Then I said give me an example in the New Testament where a man was immersed in water. Don't you infer him in, but give us one put in, and then we would acknowledge that we had lost our cause. If they can find one man immersed and put him in fairly, we will give it up. And this I ask of a man who says the doctrine is as clearly taught as Christ's death. I asked him to produce testimony that one of the Pedo-baptists he had cited was ever immersed.—And how do you think he answered that? Why, he brought up some testimony to prove that sprinkling was only instituted about the twelfth century.

KELLER.—I beg your pardon, as a general thing.

OWEN.—Did you not bring it up to prove that it was introduced by Pope Stephen?

KELLER.—As a general thing.

OWEN.—But I brought this up to show there was sprinkling in the case of Cyprian and the sixty-six Bishops, and that it was called valid baptism. Hence I proved that sprinkling was earlier than the twelfth century. My opponent wants to make the world believe that the Pedo-baptists he has quoted were on his side. They were in favor of immersion, as we are, but not as the exclusive mode of baptism. If there was one man, let him be brought up. The case might have been this: the Church of England immersed infants, and it may be that some Pedo-baptists have been immersed. But does that meet my demand at all? I want my opponent to show that they believed in the doctrine. I want them to show their faith by their works, but they have not done it. He has not yet proved that baptism is immersion. He has yet to do it, and as long as he fails to do that, he fails to sustain himself. Mr. O. here, again, cited the celebrated case of Origen, Now, if there should be such a quotation from Carson, it sweeps their ground from under them. He is their favorite Baptist author. But I will give you another quotation from Carson; and, mark you, this Carson is the man they have read so much from in regard to baptism. He contends that baptizo always means to immerse. He acknowledges that all the lexicographers and commentators (Slicer, p. 24,) are against him. Is not that the very thing? And still he sets himself up against all commentators and lexicons! That is the man who has made the beautiful remarks upon spiritual baptism. My opponent has quoted Professor Stuart with much admiration, as being on his side. Now, I want to show what this Professor thought of Carson:

"As this critic, Carson,—[We have not this quotation at hand.]

I will not reply. As to these small matters, I shall not notice them any longer.

J. KELLER'S ELEVENTH SPEECH.

BROTHER KELLER.—The gentleman has repeatedly made it ring in your ears, almost like a trumpet, that I have come here to show that immersion was exclusively the action of baptism. Has he given one translation for 1800 years to prove that the word baptizo had ever been translated sprinkle or pour? I have told the congregation frequently that if you immerse any one, they will get wet. The gentleman has proved it himself. He has shown how Naaman was washed. He dipped himself seven times, &c.

OWEN.—What was the original of wash? It was not baptizo.

KELLER.—No, he (Elijah) bid Naaman to go and wash, and he did it by dipping himself. My opponent still wants me to show from the Bible that every one was immersed, or buried. Well, I have shown it—I have established the point. I have walked up like a man and met the question fairly and unshrinkingly, and I think successfully. But of that the community will judge, and all I care for is, that I have a conscience void of offence.

I shall now turn your attention to the baptism of the Holy Ghost. My opponent made quite a display on this point. He thinks Carson and myself are against Peter. I hope, however, to be able to show you that myself,

Carson, and Peter are harmonious. My opponent told you, yesterday, in the course of the debate, that he could not furnish positive proof of pour or sprinkle. How does he conclude that the argument in relation to the Holy Ghost is pouring, when his proof is only presumptive! It is not so clearly proved that baptism really means, in its proper sense, pour. I want him to come and prove his position—to lay his corner stone before he attempts to build. I desire him to show that baptism is pouring, and then when he has done it, let him build his house. If he can give one rational argument that the pouring out of the Holy Ghost is what is meant by the baptism thereof, I will surrender the whole discussion of the first question, and proceed to discuss the second. I have repeatedly endeavored to enforce the fact, which I have proved, and that is, that the literal import of a word must guide its figurative meaning. I contend that a word which defines another, will translate it. John, indeed, says, I pour ye all in water, but Christ shall pour ye all in the Holy Ghost. Christ says, John, indeed, poured you in water, but ye shall be poured with, or in the Lord, or in the Holy Ghost not many days hence. Bear in mind, it was the disciples to be poured in the Spirit in this case. I shall baptize or pour ye. Why, I ask, does my opponent make choice of the action or mode, as he calls it, of baptism, which represents the communication of the Spirit, but in one way? He says that Peter declares that the out-pouring of the Spirit on the day of Pentecost was a fulfilment of the prophesy of Joel. No one denies it. We say the Spirit was figuratively poured out.—But, was Joel's prophesy the only one fulfilled on that memorable occasion? No. Our Saviour's, also, that it should be a well of water springing up; that it should be a river of living water flowing out of them, and that they should be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence, was also fulfilled. Now, methinks if there were rivers of living waters, they might have been plunged with all their souls into them.

I say to you again, I believe, and you believe, and the gentleman before me believes, the moral man was buried, submerged, overwhelmed in the gracious influence of the Spirit in order to their sanctification. This we all believe. We do not believe the Holy Spirit touched but one part of the body—the upper part. I will let you see that I am not singular in the position I have taken. I refer you to numbers of my opponent's side of the house. I know that he will find fault with me for pursuing this course; but, I am going to show you that a few Pedo-baptist friends go with me, and that I am not alone on the subject. Here, I quote a few Pedo-baptists in support of my position:

[We have not the quotations at hand.]

A. OWEN'S ELEVENTH REPLY.

Brother Owen.—The first demand my friend makes upon me is, to show one person in the first or second century that was sprinkled. To this I would reply, show me one that was immersed.

Keller.—I have done it.

Owen.—I can prove that the first immersion was in the third century. Now, I wonder if it is not in his place to show that a man was immersed in the first or second. If he can show evidence to the contrary, he is welcome. He also asks for the passage in the New Testament where rantinzo is used in reference to baptism. This, perhaps, I cannot do; I do not know that I can. It is not necessary to my case at all. He says that Christian Baptism is taught in the New Testament as clearly as the death of Christ. Now, I wish him to show me one passage in that book where the word baptizo is translated immerse, or to dip, and nothing else. If he cannot, he loses his cause. And, if they should be able to find such a passage, I will produce a translator who translates the word to read by sprinkle. He says the ancients are not with us on Episcopacy. I did not claim them; but he claims the ancients to be with him, therefore he ought to show them. I can, however, show that some of them were with us on baptism. Mr. O. again went over the subject of typical baptism in relation to Noah, his family, and the ark, and then he noticed Mr. Keller's observation that (he) I had said I had no positive proof for sprinkling. I am candid enough to admit it. And I replied that he had no positive proof for immersion being the exclusive mode. He knows it, and it is not. If he fails to prove his position, then mine is established, for it shows there are other terms than immersion. But, I say there is as much proof for sprinkling as immersion.—Mr. O. next referred to Athanasius and Clemens, of Alexandria, and Origen, as to the meaning of the word baptizo.

Keller.—Did Origen say that the wood was baptized by pouring?

Owen.—Yes, Sir. I will refer to the passage. [Reads it.]

Keller.—Father Origen lived nearly 200 years after the Saviour. Now, the gentleman does not see that the wood could have had water poured on it, and be baptized; and Origen has not told us of pouring of water on the wood, but he says the wood was baptized. I think I could see distinctly how a number of barrels of water may be poured on one after another, so as to immerse them till the whole are buried in the water. My opponent has not attempted to prove to you what the size or height of the altar was, or whether the wood was not in the concavity of the altar. Twelve barrels of water would have been amply sufficient to immerse the wood. Don't you think so? But, it is only said by Origen that the wood was baptized, or immersed. If any gentleman can get twelve barrels of water on his candidate for baptism, he will be pretty well buried in water. This was an extravagant figure of Origen. He was well aware of the literal meaning of the word being immersion. Now, after using such a figure as that, would any one be so ignorant as to consider it any thing else but to dip? Mr. K. then proceeded to speak of Carson and Rice in regard to the word bapto, and as to the one or the other having made an erroneous quotation. He next entered upon his third argument in favor of immersion, basing it upon Matt. 3: 5, 6, viz: "Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins." He contended, as before, that Christian Baptism is immersion, and he quoted in support of his opinion that of Mr. Tomlinson; but before concluding his argument, his time expired.

Brother Owen, after reverting to numerous points in various arguments, pro and con, and re-stating, or contradicting, or both, the questions in issue, said—I believe, in all candor, that this case of Origen, with the Greek quotations I have given, sweeps my opponent entirely off his feet. Origen was a Greek and understood his own language, and in giving a description of this case of Elias, he uses the term baptize, and he uses it in a literal sense, and the action was pour. [Here brother O. read the extract from Rice and Campbell's debate.] Now, do you suppose that the trench was higher than the altar, and the water ran over the altar, and the trench was filled. Then, it being done, he called upon his God, and fire came down and sucked up the water. Therefore, you see there was no immersion; and the very action of pouring Origen calls baptism.

The gentleman said that Origen made use of an extravagant figure. Not at all. Was the water not really poured? The fact is, my opponent is hard run, and is figuring about, and this extract from Origen sweeps away his whole superstructure. He has come up here to prove that baptism means only to immerse; now does this case not sweep that position away, supposing that you believe with him? Can you believe that Origen was ignorant of his own language, and he lived when it was a living language? I cannot think so. [Here Mr. O. enumerated several works in his possession to sustain his position.]

Keller.—My Bible (said he) shows that John baptized in Jordan, and yet my opponent hunts up authorities to show that I am incorrect. And he proves it by saying that I went to a set of sprinklers to prove my position. I thought he would prove himself to be a Universalist, and he has. He is worse than a Universalist. I hope it is an error of his head and not of his heart. Now, can it be believed that John would take all these people to the river Jordan to sprinkle them in it, when he could with a quart or two of water have sprinkled the whole of them? It is altogether improbable. Why should he take all these people from their daily occupations, and travel with them a distance of many miles to baptize them, when the ceremony could be performed at home and in infinitely less time? Besides, the pool of Bethesda was in the city, and it could have been resorted to. I hope my worthy opponent will confess that he did not wish to make the impression anywhere that John did not baptize in Jordan.

Owen.—He says I contradicted the Scriptures. I deny it. I only try to explain them. They are made up of terms, the meaning of which I tried to explain. I take up propositions, translated from the Greek, try to show their meaning, and that it is impossible to prove that John was in Jordan. Here is Watson, Scott, Henry, Clarke, Dearborn, Dwight, Dick, all of them pious men, and some learned, and every one take the same ground. Will my opponent dare to get up and say that any one of these men deny the Scriptures? The whole Pedo-baptist school believe that doctrine, and they have given reason to believe it. Now I wish to say that my belief is that immersion, pouring, and sprinkling are all modes of baptism, and if my brethren are dissatisfied, they can just name it, and I can get a home elsewhere. Let my opponent point me to a passage where it is said John immersed one man. He thought it would be a ridiculous thing for John to take a crowd into Jordan, and sprinkle them.

Prayer by brother G. U. Harn.

The Christian minister should endeavor to turn the eyes of every one of his hearers upon themselves.—Hall.

General Conference

Of the Free-will Baptist Denomination.

This body is composed of delegates from all the Yearly Meetings or Annual Conferences in the denomination, and assembles triennially. Its next session occurs during the present year, and will convene at the city of Providence, R. I., on the first Tuesday of October. From the favorable location, and the character of the topics which it is expected will then be discussed, it is anticipated that the session will be one of more than ordinary interest. It is earnestly hoped that several of the brethren of the "Church of God" will attend; and they will undoubtedly be received with the utmost cordiality and Christian regard.

The Anniversaries of our several benevolent Associations will be held in connection with the Conference, when the Annual Reports of their respective Secretaries will be read, and a number of Addresses delivered in relation to several objects contemplated. Among these objects are those of Sabbath Schools, Missions, (Home and Foreign,) Education, Anti-Slavery, and the like. These exercises never fail of eliciting a very great degree of interest, and it is expected that at this session this will be very much heightened by the presence of Rev. Amos Sutton, for some twenty years a missionary from the English General Baptists to the Hindoos. Brother Sutton is now in this country.

Though,—except so far as excluding from membership in its own body,—our General Conference has only advisory power; yet the condition, wants, peculiarities, and resources of the denomination all come under review; and each contributes considerable to the interest of the occasion. A meeting will also be held to consider the propriety of issuing a Quarterly Review. With all these conspiring elements of interest, with a number of others, it is no wonder that the session of our General Conference is contemplated with considerable anxiety and earnest anticipation.

An engagement will probably be made with the Stonington line from New York to Providence, by which persons attending the Conference will be charged but half the usual fare. Any one by saying that he is going to the Free-will Baptist General Conference, and paying the usual fare for a single trip, ($3,00,) will receive a ticket by which he can return free. I trust this will induce several of the brethren to attend.

The appointment of brethren Winebrenner and Harn as corresponding messengers to the General Conference was announced in the Morning Star of June 19th ult., by the publication in its columns of the following:

"'THE CHURCH OF GOD.'

Deputation to our General Conference.

"The readers of the Star will probably remember an account which some time since was given in its columns of a people styling themselves 'The Church of God.' That account represented them as nearly if not entirely agreeing with the Free-will Baptists in doctrine, and only differing in some minor points of usage and ecclesiastical polity.—These differences were perhaps sufficiently explained at that time."

"Last fall the writer enjoyed the privilege of attending the 'East Pa. Eldership' of that people, which is by far the largest Annual Eldership in the body. There are four or five other Elderships, scattered over West Pa., Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa; but all together probably do not embrace so many communicants as the East Pa. Eldership alone. These Elderships, it will be remembered, correspond very nearly to our Yearly Meetings or Annual Conferences, except that there is no body corresponding with our Quarterly Meetings, and the travelling ministers are members ex officio."

"The session was a very interesting one, and was held at the village of Washington, in Lancaster county, Pa. Among other matters, a special committee of correspondence was appointed, which subsequently reported the following, which was unanimously adopted:"

"WHEREAS, There seems to be a similarity between our sentiments and those of the Free-will Baptist donomination, and inasmuch as Christian acquaintance and intercouse tend to strengthen the bonds of Christian fellowship—an object in the highest degree desirable by all the followers of Christ—Therefore,

Resolved, That we send two corresponding messengers to the next General Conference of that denomination, to promote the above named objects, by an interchange of Christian views, and the offices of Christian fraternity; and that brothers JOHN WINEBRENNER and GEORGE U. HARN be those messengers."

"It is almost superfluous to add that there is a very friendly feeling toward us as a denomination, and many of their ministers have expressed a wish that the two bodies might ultimately become one. In all, they number some ten or twelve thousand members. It may not be improper to add that the reason why these brethren are sent from an Annual instead of their General Eldership, is simply because their General Eldership does not hold another session until after our General Conference. At its last session, they were not sufficiently acquainted with our denomination to desire it."

Brethren Winebrenner and Harn, no doubt, will be received by our Conference and people in the same spirit of love and fraternity with which they come.

A. D. WILLIAMS."

This article was accompanied by the following responding notice by Bro. Burr, the editor of the Star:

"It will be seen by a communication from Bro. Williams, in another column, that our brethren of the denomination called 'The Church of God' have appointed a deputation to our next General Conference. They will meet with a hearty reception, we doubt not."

This response is but the expression of the universal feeling on the subject. Any of the brethren who may attend will be heartily and cordially greeted. Shall we not see a number of them?

A. D. W.

Baptismal Query Again.

AUGUST 20, 1850.

BROTHER FLAKE:—

AFTER accepting my compliments, you will please indulge me in the use of a short space in your columns. It has been very seldom that I have occupied any portion of them to a like purpose; but, the turn of the late discussion between our ex-editor, Elder J. F. Weishampel, and our excellent YOUNG Elder, J. H. Hurley, has induced me to offer a few thoughts for the reflection of both.

First, I heartily coincide with the former in his conclusions, as to the validity of baptism in the case he supposes; but not in his premises, nor some of his admissions, before he arrives at his conclusions. With the admissions he has made, what other conclusions could any lover of law and order in the kingdom of God arrive at? But, I beg the privilege of dissenting from the views both take of the point from which they start. On this I understand them to be agreed--of one mind, and yet they do not advance two steps a piece ere they are perfectly antipodes!

Brother Hurley, in his last, says, "The commission given by our Saviour to his Apostles confines baptism and preaching to them and to those of their successors ordained after them to the ministerial office." Again, says he, "They were authorized to appoint others equally qualified to the same office." Now, I ask,—

I. Where is the proof that the commission (so called) delegates authority exclusively to Apostles and their successors to teach and baptize? Where is the proof that it was more to them than the hundred and twenty endued with power on the memorable Pentecost to speak forth the wonderful works of God? Or the five hundred brethren who saw him at one time (most likely his ascension) after his resurrection? Sir, I think the whole grounds are here assumed that the commission was to the Apostles as such.

II. In that commission, where is the "Thus saith the Lord" that the Apostles were to appoint their successors in office? Or, in the language of our worthy young Elder, "Others equally qualified to the same office?" Was Saul of Tarsus, although an Apostle, appointed by them? He truly had the SIGNS of an APOSTLE.

III. If that commission was a delegation to Apostles and their "successors in office" exclusively, where is the man who dares to appropriate the authority delegated in it to himself, unless he can prove his appointment by Apostles? If that commission was to them and their successors in office exclusively, then he is an Uzziah who presumes to invest himself with the habiliments of the Priest's office, unless he can prove that the special grace of God has flowed from the hands of the Apostles or their successors in office, through the reprobate elbows and fingers of a thousand Judases, upon his skull, however fractured it may be; or, has received that appointment by some other regular mode of succession.

IV. Again, if the authority to baptize is indissolubly or inseparably connected with the inalienable functions of Apostolic office, how could Paul say, "Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the Gospel?" Was preaching and baptizing inseparably connected here?

V. But, in the last place, for the present, if the validity of baptism depends on the qualifications of the administrator, as declared in this strange CANON of our esteemed brother, viz: Apostolic succession and Apostolic immersion, I ask for the proof of a legal baptism in the world since the longest lifed Apostle stepped his last foot-step on this sin cursed earth. Can there ever be one, without the resurreetion of Apostles or a new commission from Christ to restore it? Upon that principle, where is the Christian that dares to say, "My baptism is legal?" Surely our young Elder cannot! I cannot!! Nor do I believe the senior can, who takes similar grounds, at least in part. What a new moral change would these sentiments, generally adopted, introduce into the present distraction of the theological world!!!

Sir, Apostolic successors are those who act as did Apostles. Follow us, said they, as we follow Christ. This is true Apostolic succession, although a people never saw an Apostle, or one of their self-constituted successors in office.

With the greatest esteem for both of the contending brethren, I am your brother in affiictions, THEOPHORUS.

CHOOSE rather to teach than to charm, to convert than to be admired, to force tears rather than applause. Give up every thing to secure the salvation of your hearers.—Gilbert.

Letter from Brother Benj. Howard.

CHICAGO, Illinois, July 30, 1850.

DEAR BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

I HEREBY take the liberty to drop a few lines for the Advocate, that the brethren may know my whereabouts and what I am doing.

After my return home and tarrying a few weeks, I started for the West. I stopped in Toledo, Ohio, and preached to large congregations in that city. The people gave great attention, and were exceedingly anxious that I should tarry, or that some of the preachers of the Church of God should come there. They concluded that we were on the right ground as to name and order.

I then proceeded to Adrian, in Michigan. The Baptists had just concluded a protracted meeting, and had immersed 199 converts. I tarried here and preached about two weeks, and was very kindly received and helped after a godly sort. Here I found my eldest daughter and her husband, whom I had not seen for many years, in the enjoyment of religion; also, their eldest daughter had been converted and baptized.

From thence I proceeded on to Chicago, in Illinois, and was kindly received by the Mayor and Common Council of the city, and granted the free use of the City Hall, which would contain about 1500 people. I tarried here about two weeks and preached, though my congregations were small in this place. I found the people here quite under a sectarian influence. However, towards the last the people began to come out more and the congregations to inerease.

I then left and pursued my journey by Packet to Lockport, 32 miles, where I found some old acquaintances; and from thence to Joilett, six miles, another village, where I obtained the Court House and left appointments for the next Sabbath. Then proceeded to Stark Grove, 12 miles—found my two daughters and their families well.

Here I was so delighted with the country, that I purchased a small farm and went to work and broke up five acres of Prairie, for wheat—more ploughing than I had done before in 30 years. I finally have engaged a man to sow and fence it, and after next Sabbath shall be on my way home. I expect to call on my way in Ohio and attend the Camp-meetings, and shall probably visit Pennsylvania and Maryland this fall and winter for the last time, as I find a great field open in this country. I shall, the Lord willing, bring on my family in the spring, and make my home the rest of my days in Illinois.

I have preached but little since I left Chicago, except three times each Sabbath, as it has been a busy time, and people are engaged through the week. I have not attempted to establish any Church, and concluded that I would not till I could come on and attend to it, although there are in one neighborhood here nine that I baptized in Nova Scotia.—The prospects here are good, and I have no doubt that if I could stay, and had one or two good preachers here of the right stamp, free from sectarian shackles, we might see a powerful work. In Lockport the Baptist preacher, brother Ingmire, kindly received me and invited me to preach for him; but the others were so much afraid of water that they done what they could to prevent, and finally some of them told brother Ingmire that I was a Winebrennerian, and that the Winebrennerians in Indiana broke up one of their meetings, stoned the meeting-house, broke the windows, &c., &c. But still my congregations are large and increasing, and I am sorry to leave; but, then, I am compelled to at present, as money is scarce here at present, and I have a family to support; and besides, I must raise money to move on in the spring, and my travelling expenses are considerable.

Had I known where to have found brothers Winebrenner and Harn, I should have tried to get them to come here to Chicago or Joilett, to hold a protracted meeting.

Finally, I must conclude by saying that there is a great field for laborers in this country, and I hope that our rich brethren down East and South will think of it, and pray the Lord of the harvest to send out some faithful laborers into the harvest, and not forget in the meantime to supply them and their families with plenty of bread and cheese. With good will to all the Churches of God scattered abroad, I remain yours truly,

BENJ. HOWARD.

P. S.—I remember with gratitude the kindness of the brethren in Pennsylvania and Maryland. May the Lord bless and prosper them.

B. H.

Letter from Brother William Bond.

MUSCATINE, Iowa, July 29, 1850.

BROTHER FLAKE:—

I TAKE my pen in hand to drop a few lines for the Advocate, and likewise congratulate you as editor and preacher at Harrisburg.

Thank God, this still finds us in good health, hoping that this blessing may likewise attend our brethren and friends at Harrisburg. Although death is in the land, yet in this part of the country it has been in general healthy. But in the small towns along the river that dreadful disease, the Cholera, has been hurrying mortals from time into eternity. With the poet we may say—

"How careful, then, ought I to live,
With what religious fear,
Who such a strict account must give,
For my behaviour here."

On the 12th of this month brothers Winebrenner and G. U. Harn paid us a visit, and we were truly glad to see them. They stayed over night with us, and next morning started for Iowa City. We hope that the blessing of God may go with them, and that much grace may attend the word that is spoken by them.

The place where we are now living I like pretty well. The soil of this country is good. All I have to complain is, I have not the privilege of worshipping as I had in Pennsylvania. We live between three and four miles from Muscatine, and there is very seldom any preaching in the country. Likewise, I feel the loss of a Sabbath-school here, and I hope that the brethren and sisters in Harrisburg are still engaged in the good work of the Sabbath-school. May the Lord bless them for their labor of love. Please to give my best respects to the friends and brethren in general.

Fraternally, WILLIAM BOND.

Uniontown Camp-meeting.

A Camp-meeting will be held on the Uniontown Circuit, on the land of brother Benjamin Bennet, one mile west of Waterloo, commencing on Friday, the 13th of September.

Preachers and people are respectfully invited to attend.

J. C. OWENS.

Michigan Standing Committee.

The Standing Committee of the Michigan Eldership of the "Church of God" met at brother Kilmer's Mill July 27th, 1850.

It was agreed that the time of holding the Michigan Eldership be extended from the third Monday in October to the 11th of November, so as to allow time to attend the Indiana Eldership. A. B. SLYTER,

On behalf of the Committee.

TO A. B. SLYTER.

There is two dollars credited to you in No. 4 of the Advocate.—Your letter was received by brother W.—(Editor pro tem)

Extract of a Letter from Brother Samuel Scott.

Trenton, Henry County, Iowa, July 29, 1850.

Brother Flake:—

We understand that brothers Winebrenner and Harn passed through Henry county, Iowa, a few days ago, consequently a few had the pleasure of seeing them pass along the road. "As for these men, we wot not what is become of them." We hope they are well, and on their journey Eastward.

We are still endeavoring to blow the Gospel trumpet. Peace and harmony exists in the Churches generally. Sinners are getting harder and harder, the harvest is great, and the laborers are few.

The people here are done gathering the harvest. The crops are good, for which we feel thankful to the great fountain of all our blessings. Pray for us.—Amen.

Yours, fraternally,

SAMUEL SCOTT.

Letter from Brother J. Stomm.

Hinkletown, Pa., Aug. 20, 1850.

Brother Flake:—

I drop a few lines for the Advocate, to let you and the friends know that we are still trying to work for the Lord. Since brother Keller left us, a few have been converted, and our meetings are good. Myself and brother Sandoe are trying to preach to the people as well as we know how. The circuit preachers cannot find Hinkletown any more. Well, brethren, if you think you are doing your duty, then be it so. The Lord has been with us hitherto.

Our Sabbath-school is doing well. Some of our young men and young women are taking an active part in the school; and with all the discouragement and persecution we meet, we feel to go on and stand in the defence of the Gospel. I remain yours, &c.,

J. STOMM.

OBITUARY OF GEORGE SIPE.

Died, at his residence, in Lewisberry, York county, Pa., Mr. George Sipe, son of Philip Sipe, and intermarried with Anna Hickernell, in the 26th year of his age.

He took his bed in the beginning of March last, from a bleeding of the lungs, which resulted in the Consumption, and brought him to his death on the 23d day of June. His body was conveyed to the house appointed for all living now on earth, and a funeral discourse was delivered by Elder Jacob Kister, and a short exhortation by the writer, from Exodus 32: 23, "Who is on the Lord's side?" to a large and very attentive congregation.

Mr. Sipe had a lengthy tour of affliction, but he bore it with Christian patience. During his sickness he strove to make his calling and election sure, by seeking the pardon and forgiveness of his sins, and finding an interest in our Immanuel's blood; which it is to be hoped he sought not in vain. I asked him a few days before his death if he felt prepared to die and go to rest; to which he replied, "I believe I'll go to heaven when I die;" and with this hope he fell into the long sleep of death, without a struggle or a groan. He left his dear companion and two sweet little children to mourn his irreparable loss, with many other relatives and friends, who mourn not as those who have no hope. May the Lord sanctify this afflicting Providence to the good of all his friends, and the people of Lewisberry in general, is my sincere paryer to God.

JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

OBITUARY OF CAROLINE M. SINGISER.

Died, on the 27th of July, 1850, at Mechanicsbug, Cumberland county, Pa., sister Caroline M., consort of brother Andrew Singiser, aged 21 years, 9 months and 26 days.

It has fallen to my lot to record the death of one of God's dear children. Sister Singiser embraced religion about six years ago; but, as is the case with too many, grew cold in the service of her God. Last fall or winter, at a meeting held at Churchtown, she sought and found renewing grace.—At which time if I mistake not, her husband was happily converted to God. At our protracted meeting at Mechanicsburg last spring, she united with the Church. But, alas! she is gone. How inscrutable are the ways of Providence!

When the time of her dissolution drew near, and her physician had given her up, she told her husband she desired a blessing before she died, and asked him to pray for her. He did so. She realized her desire and said she was now ready to go. Sister Singiser was a tender and an affectionate companion, and a pious and devoted Christian. In her death we have another exhibition of the power and reality of the religion of the Bible. "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his."

Her mortal remains were consigned to their mother dust on Sabbath afternoon, followed by a large concourse of weeping friends. Funeral services by Elder E. H. Thomas.

J. HAIFLEIGH.

Shiremanstown, Pa., Aug. 17, 1850.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Death by Drowning.—The Rev. Mr. Chesney, of the Baltimore Conference, while bathing in the James River, near Fincastle, Va., on the 15th ult., was seized with cramp, and drowned before assistance could reach him. Mr. Chesney was formerly a journeyman printer. He served his apprenticeship in the Baltimore Patriot office. He studied divinity a few years ago while engaged in printing.

Religious Benevolence.—From 1810 to 1848, inclusive, twenty-five millions, six hundred and sixty-eight thousand, five hundred and seventy-seven dollars have been contributed in the United States for Bible, Missionary, and other evangelical objects of benevolence, and of this sum $5,547,080 have been contributed to the American Board of Missions for Foreign Missions.

Restoring and Preserving the Sight.—A friend who had read the following valuable item of information, but who had forgotten which way "to rub his eyes," for loss of sight by age, requested us to republish the process. It is as follows:

For near sightedness, close the eyes and press the fingers gently, from the nose, outward, across the eyes. This flattens the pupil, and thus lengthens or extends the angle of vision. This should be done several times a day, till short sightedness is overcome.

For loss of sight by age, such as require magnifying glasses, pass the fingers or towel from the outer corner of the eyes inwardly, above and below the eyeballs, pressing gently against them. This rounds them up, and preserves or restores the sight.

It has been already said that this is nothing new. The venerable John Quincy Adams preserved his sight in this way, in full vigor to the day of his death. He told Lawyer Ford of Lancaster, who wore glasses, that if he would manipulate his eyes with his fingers, from their external angles inwardly, he would soon be able to dispense with glasses. Ford tried it, and soon restored his sight perfectly, and has since preserved it by the continuance of this practice.—Pennsylvanian.

Death by Lightning.—During another severe thunder storm, on Sunday week last, three or four barns in the vicinity of Carlisle were struck by lightning and consumed with all their contents. The house of Mr. Abraham Seavers, of Dickinson township, was also struck by lightning, and instantly killed his son, who was sitting on the porch. The house was uninjured. The barns which were consumed, belonging to Mr. Johnson Martin, Mr. Fleming, and Samuel Clarke, all near Churchtown.

Certain Cure for Summer Complaint.—One pint of new milk, one stick of cinnamon, three tablespoons of fresh mutton tallow, melted, one tablespoon of starch. Boil to half a pint. To be taken at one or two doses, as the stomach will bear. It will be more palatable if taken warm. The above never has failed to cure, even when given over by the physician. Very many instances of children teething have been cured of the bowel complaint by using this remedy.—By a Lady.

Fact for the Thoughtful.—The whole number of persons convicted of crimes in the State of New York from 1840 to 1848, inclusive, was 27,947. Of these, 1,182 were returned as having received a "common education;" 415 as having a "tolerably good education," and 128 only as "well educated." Of the remaining 26,225, about half were able merely to read and write; the residue were destitute of any education whatever.

Death of a Minister.—The Boston Traveller says that the Rev. Edward L. Parker, of Londonderry, N. H., dropped dead in the street on Sunday afternoon. He had preached three times on that day, and dropped dead in the street on returning from the third service.

New York Dairies.—There are 1,000,000 milch cows in New York, which on an average yield $20 per year. The gross value of the dairy product for the State is estimated at $5,000,000 per year.

Population of California.—The present population of California is estimated at 121,000, of which number 35,000 are foreigners, and 71,000 Americans. The whole number who have returned by the mail steamers from April 1, 1849, to June 1, 1850, is 3172.

Prisons at Naples.—There are in the prisons at Naples, at present, no less than 40,000 political prisoners; and the opinion is, that, from the crowded state of the jails, the greater number of these persons will go mad, become idiots, or die.

MISCELLANEOUS.

From the Lutheran Observer.

THE MYSTERIOUS KNOCKINGS.

The Rev. Dr. Phelps, of Stratford, to the Editor of the N. Y. Observer.

Messrs. Editors: Public attention has been called of late to certain strange manifestations which have been denominated "Mysterious Knockings." They first began to attract attention in the city of Rochester, between two and three years ago. Since that time, similar manifestations have been in the cities of Auburn, Syracuse, and in other places in Western New York, and recently in Ohio, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts. For several weeks past, something of the same character has been witnessed at my house. It commenced on the 10th of March last, and continued, with slight interruption, from two to three months. For the first five or six weeks, no communications were made that we could understand; but the phenomena consisted in the moving of articles of furniture in a manner that could not be accounted for. Knives, forks, spoons, nails, blocks of wood, &c., were thrown in different directions about the house.—They were seen to move from places and in directions which made it certain that no visible power existed by which the motion could be produced. For days and weeks together, I watched these strange movements with all the care and caution and close attention which I could bestow. I witnessed them hundreds and hundreds of times, and I know that in hundreds of instances they took place when there was no visible power by which the motion could have been produced. Scores of persons of the first standing in the community, whose education, general intelligence, candor, veracity, and sound judgment, none will question, were requested to witness the phenomena, and, if possible, help us to a solution of the mystery. But as yet no such solution has been obtained. The idea that the whole was a "trick of the children"—an idea which some of the papers have endeavored with great zeal to promulgate, is to every one who is acquainted with the facts, as stupid as it is false and injurious. The statement, too, which some of the papers have reiterated so often, that "the mystery was found out," is, I regret to say, untrue. With the most thorough investigation which I have been able to bestow upon it, aided by gentlemen of the best talents, intelligence, and sound judgment, in this, and many neighboring towns, the cause of this strange phenomena remains yet undiscovered.

About the middle of April, a gentleman who was spending the night at my house, proposed to try the method of interrogation which had been adopted in Western New York, and to our utter amazement, a series of responses was returned, from which the inference was irresistible that they must be produced by a being which possessed intelligence. For several weeks communications were made in this way relating almost wholly to a matter in which certain members of the family are supposed to have an interest; at the same time the other manifestations continued, and very great annoyance was experienced. The mode of communication was by some persons repeating the alphabet, and the letters of the word to be uttered were indicated by a rap from some invisible agent. I tried, by all the methods I could devise, to find what the power was by which the rapping was produced. I have heard it hundreds of times, and have done my best to ascertain the cause; but as yet I have not succeeded. I have been often asked if I believed it was the work of spirits. I have as often replied that I do not know what it is. I have never seen a spirit, and I do not know what a spirit could do if it would, or what it would do if it could.—The facts, however, are of such a nature and have transpired under such circumstances as to render the idea of trick or designed deception wholly inadmissible. Still, however, I have become fully satisfied that no reliance whatever is to be placed on these communications, either as a source of valuable information, or as a means of acquiring truth. I speak of what has transpired at my house, and I have the fullest confidence, that if it is the work of spirits, it is the work of wicked spirits. Indeed they profess to be wicked spirits in a state of torment, seeking a mitigation of their torment, by redressing the wrongs of which they were guilty in life. I have watched the progress of this matter with great care, and have done the best in my power to learn what these strange things mean; and although I have not yet been able to ascertain the cause, I am satisfied that their communications are wholly worthless. They are often contradictory—often prove false—frequently trifling and nonsensical, and more in character with what might be expected of a company of loafers on a spree, than with what might be expected from spirits returned from the world of retribution, to "tell the secrets of their prison-house."

Similar manifestations are now being made in many other parts of the country. According to information which I suppose to be authentic, they are witnessed in from 160 to 200 different places, they are said to advance ideas on the doctrines of religion, wholly at variance with the teachings of the Bible, and subversive of many essential truths which the Bible reveals. Under an impression that whatever is communicated by a spirit must of course be true, many persons are receiving these communications as the truth of God—as a new revelation from the spirit world. But it should be remembered that there is no proof that what purports to be a revelation from spirits, is the work of spirits at all. The most that can be said is, that we do not yet know how or by whom these communications are made. If they are made by spirits, we have no proof that they are good spirits. The presumption is, that they are bad spirits—lying spirits. At my house they often accused each other of lying—contradicted at one time what they affirmed at another,—inflicted injury on property in the most wanton manner, and have given throughout conclusive evidence that the discipline of hell which they profess to have experienced for several years, has as yet been wholly ineffectual in improving their characters, and qualifying them for the "higher sphere," for which many suppose that the discipline after death is a preparation.

I cannot now say to what conclusions future developments may lead me, but my present impression is, that the whole thing, so far as the transactions in this place are concerned, is to be set down among those devices of Satan, by which he is promoting his work of destroying souls; and my chief object in this communication to the public at this time is, to caution all who would avoid error, against trusting to these pretended revelations. I have had a better opportunity than most men to witness them and to judge of their claims, and I have full confidence that the opinions I have expressed will be found correct. I will merely add, that for some weeks past these annoyances at my house have been subsiding, and now, as I hope, have ceased altogether. Yours, respectfully,

ELIAKIM PHELPS.

Stratford, June 20, 1850.

Rev. Abel Stevens, of Zion's Herald, Boston, devotes a column in his last paper to the "mysterious knockings." We give a portion of his article:

These "knockings," it will be observed are, as has been remarked, very like those which at first disturbed but afterwards amused the Wesley family for a time.—There is, however, one marked difference, for the latter were accompanied by visible motions; tables, chairs, &c., were put into violent agitation, and Mr. Samuel Wesley (the father of John) was severely thrust about at times by the invisible power.—These New York reports present no such phenomena, so far as we have read, and as for the Rochester case, we confess to not having had curiosity enough to read a line about it, editor though we be.

While at the late New York East Conference we, however, met with a testimony which quite "dumb-fumbled" us. We had been dining with our friend, Dr. ——, of New Haven, in company with Rev. Mr. Perry, of New York city, the President of our University, and other friends of sound heads and good discretion—they must excuse us for mentioning them, for in these cases witnesses are necessary.—After dinner a member of the Conference of unquestionable standing and of ripe understanding, called in casually. This brother is now in an important station in New York city; we forbear to give his name, lest we should contribute to the anoyance which he assured us he had already endured incessantly for some weeks, from the inquisitive curiosity of his friends; our readers must, therefore, be contented with the names of our witnesses instead of his. He had been an eye witness as well as an ear witness of the marvels at Stratford, Connecticut, which we found had produced quite a sensation in New Haven, and indeed throughout the State. Incredulous about them, but excited by the prevailing interest, he visited Stratford, and spent a few days and nights in the mansion of the Rev. Dr. Phelps, the locale of the "spirits." During his stay he witnessed marvels which we should like some of our astute readers to explain. He avowed to the company that he saw a knife descend from the ceiling on to a table, injuring the arm of a child, without any evidence whence it came, though the article was recognized by the family as belonging to them. He saw a large iron poker rise from the hearth, and describing a regular curve over the heads of the company, descend on the opposite side of the room; he attempted to reach it in its passage, but failed, and on picking it up instanter, found nothing attached to it or any thing else by which the motion could have been produced. He saw a large piece of wood perform the same antic; and at last so many articles were in similar motion from all sides as to put the heads of the company in brisk exercise at dodging them. These oddities occurred in broad day-light, when the deception could cetainly not be great, and they occurred in the house of a venerable clergyman, where we should hardly expect to find such deception. Meanwhile the "knockings" were abundant on the walls, tables, &c.

These phenomena occurred at intervals. The family retired to rest, and our visiter was accommodated with a chamber. He examined it thoroughly, closets, beds, &c., leaving, as he believed, no possibility of interruption to his rest from any trick or contrivance. He also kept a light burning. Now a man alone at night in a reputedly haunted house will feel rather "so-so-ish," whatever may be his nerve, so that if our friend had told us, as his experience of that night, some marvels which were capable of being referred to his dreams or waking imagination, we should have so explained them, but there was outright actuality, or at least activity, about the delusion, if such you choose to call it, that "nonplusses" us. He had laid down but a short time before he heard loud noises, as if a cannon ball had been rolling along the floor of the hall which extended through the first story of the mansion; soon after these noises were in the upper and correspondent hall, into which his chamber opened, and in a short time ringing raps were made against his door. He got up, and taking the light approached the door carefully, intending to open it suddenly and surprise the disturber, whether of this world or the other world; but as he put his hand to the door it was violently thrust open upon him, sending him quite peremptorily into the chamber; recovering himself he passed out, closing the door, when lo, the violent rappings were on its inner side, and thus they were reversed repeatedly as he passed in or out.

When these noises had ceased, he sat down on his bedside, with peculiar thoughts no doubt; but he had not sat there long when the rappings were heard loudly on the outer side of the head-board of his bed. He seized his light and began to examine it, determined now to detect the trick, but as he looked on one side the noise rang out on the other, and vice versa until the whole board was in vibration. Meanwhile his closest scrutiny could detect nothing by which the strange effect could be produced. The family of course were aroused by these disturbances. Other phenomena ensued of a still stranger character, among which was a communication from the ghostly agent to the Rev. Dr. Phelps, in the presence of our visiter, by the alphabetic knockings described in the New York case. We forbear any description of the other wonders of the night, as they would occupy too much room. Stratford being but a few minutes ride by railway from New Haven, our curiosity prompted us to visit the family of Dr. Phelps, in company with Messrs. Perry and W. McKendree Bangs—though the "knockings" were reported to have ceased. At the village we were joined by the Methodist preacher of the town, who had witnessed the wonders. We found the family living in apparently opulent circumstances, intelligent, refined and Christian. Arriving early we joined the venerable Doctor in his family devotions, and afterwards heard his accounts of these strange scenes, and was showed over his elegant mansion. We found a considerable amount of dilapidation of both the furniture and the house; we noticed that every pane of glass in one window of the good Doctor's chamber was repaired with pasted paper, except one that was fractured, and another window was in scarcely better condition. Wash-stands, bed-steads, &c., had been bruised and shaken by violent collisions, produced, he assured us, by some invisible means. One of his children, a small boy, had been sent into the country to escape the malice of the "spirits," which seemed apparently directed against him. His symptoms were very similar to those ascribed by the New Testament to demoniacal possessions; he would rush involuntarily into the fire, wells, &c.

Our friend above mentioned assured us that during his stay in the family, the little fellow had been taken out of a well into which he said he was pressed he knew not by what power.

Dr. Phelps seemed to be a gentleman of education and good sense; he said the communications of the "spirits" by the "alphabetic raps" imported in substance, that a person whom he once well knew, and who had wronged his family, wished to direct him so as to secure the reparation of the wrong, and that, in the attempt, he was beset by other and evil spirits which wished to prevent him. The communications were often broken by blasphemous and interloped sentences, as if from a second respondent, and these were again followed by earnest assurances that such interruptions were from besetting and malicious spirits, which were determined to frustrate the design of the first respondent. The Doctor assured us he had himself had full conversation with the principal agent, and that in reply to distinct questions he had been informed that the spirit was and always would be miserable, but that the rectification of the alleged wrong would mitigate its sufferings.

Dr. Phelps's theory of these strange occurrences is, that they are actual manifestations from the spiritual world, but are the work of the devil; are not reliable in any revelation they may pretend to make, but are designed especially by their fantastic and puerile attributes, to bring ridicule upon sacred things and unsettle the minds of men respecting the real revelation of God.

For ourselves we are frank to say that we believe the testimony of our New York brother referred to, as confidently as if we had witnessed the facts he alleges; but we cannot pretend to explain these facts: under ordinary circumstances we should unhesitatingly ascribe them to some sort of trickery. But the evidence against this supposition, it must be confessed, is extraordinary, though not absolutely insurmountable. As it is we leave the matter to our readers; the papers of New York are just now full of it, and we have chosen to entertain the curiosity of our readers by our own say on the queer subject.

VALUABLE TESTIMONY.—It was said by a great man that "the chief mistake of the world and the greatest bar to the happiness and well-being of mankind, rich and poor is thinking that all the money we are possessed of is our own."

POETRY.

"Those that Seek Me Early, shall Find Me."

Now, while every prospect cheers—
Now, while in thy youthful years;
Ere the treacherous snares of sin
Lure thy feet, and draw thee in,
Hear the Gospel's warning tone;
Give thy heart to God alone.

Leave your sports and earthly toys,
Seek for more substantial joys;
Listen now to wisdom's voice,
Early make her ways your choice;
Bear this precept still in mind—
"Seek me early, you shall find."

Hast thou in thy youthful days,
Sought in pleasure's giddy maze,
Earthly pleasures that must fade?
Joys that death will soon invade?
Hast thou an immortal mind—
Seek thy Savior, seek and find.

Now is the accepted time,
Seek the Lord while in your prime;
Give to him your youthful days—
Spend them now in prayer and praise;
On the heart this precept bind—
"Seek me early, ye shall find."

Time with you is speeding fast,
Youthful days will soon be past;—
Will you give to God your prime?
Will you seek the Lord in time?
Seek the joys for you designed—
"Seek him early, you shall find."

BE GENTLE WITH THY WIFE.

Be gentle! for you little know
How many trials rise:
Although to thee they may be small,
To her of giant size.

Be gentle! though perchance that lip
May speak a murmuring tone,
That heart may beat with kindness yet,
And joy to be thine own.

Be gentle! weary hours of pain
'Tis woman's lot to bear;
Then yield her what support thou canst,
And all her sorrows share.

Be gentle! for the noblest hearts
At times may have some grief,
And even in a pettish word
May seek to find relief.

Be gentle! for unkindness now
May rouse an angry storm,
That all the after years of life
In vain may strive to calm.

Be gentle! none are perfect—
Thou'rt dearer far than life,
Then, husband, and still forbear
Be gentle to thy wife.

THE BIBLE.

BY GAIUS PENN.

To light the way to worlds on high,
And bring the great salvation nigh,
This HOLY BOOK is given;
The Life, the truth, the grace divine,
Through all its pages beam and shine,
To guide the soul to heaven.

Though earth is but a darksome way,
And life the conflict of a day,
Through storms and tempests driven;
Yet here's a chart and compass found,
And here's the Gospel's joyful sound
Inviting us to heaven.

Were earth the final lot of man,
And all this life, this little span,
This Word had not been given;
He had no need of truth so bright,
Whose sun goes down in endless night,
Without one ray from heaven.

Man has a soul—his race begun
Shall through eternal ages run,
And whilst 'tis onward driven,
Without this light, that soul shall know
Nor peace nor happiness below,
Nor joy nor bliss in heaven.

But who this heavenly treasure prize,
May read their title to the skies,
With all their sins forgiven;—
And when their lamp no longer burns,
When their own dust to dust returns,
May find a home in heaven.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 8th of August, 1850, by Elder David Maxwell, Mr. WASHINGTON ORTS to Miss MALINDA MILLS, both of York county, Penn'a.

On the 18th of August, 1850, by Elder J. J. Miller, Mr. GEORGE DANNER, of Harrisburg, Dauphin county, to Miss SARAH WITTMAN, of Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 15th of August, 1850, by Elder C. Price, Mr. AUGUSTUS LONGSDRUFF to Miss CATHARINE SHAREN, both of Bainbridge, Lancaster county, Pa.

On the 22d of August, by the same, Mr. SAMUEL KENDIG, of Conoy township, to Miss ANN GROVE, of Bainbridge, Lancaster county, Penn'a.

On the 20th of August, at Lancaster by Wm. Johnson, V. D. M., Mr. JOHN M. JOHNSON to Miss JANE E. CUNNINGHAM, both of Lancaster Pa.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—At his father's residence, near Harrisburg, on the 12th of August, 1850, SAMUEL ELY, aged 12 years, 7 months, 2 weeks and 2 days.

In Philadelphia, on the morning of the 14th ult., MATILDA ARMSTRONG, wife of Allen Armstrong, and daughter of David Winebrenner, in the 25th year of her age.

On the 6th of August, 1850, LAURA, infant daughter of A. B. and Jane Slyter, aged 1 month and 23 days.

Farewell, dearest LAURA, thou art fled from this world of woe to the regions of the blest. Funeral service by Elder Farnham, from Job 14: 14. JANE SLYTER.

At her father's residence, near Lewisberry, York county, Pa., of a stroke of the Palsy, ELCETTA JANE KILMORE, daughter of David Kilmore, in the 12th year of her age.

This young girl was well and dead in a few hours, in the morning of her days. She was no professor of religion, so far as I know, in her healthy days, but what she has done for her salvation in the few afflicted hours she lived, I leave with God, who only knows. A funeral sermon was delivered by the writer, on Sabbath, the 28th of July, to a large and weeping congregation, and her remains were buried in Crissinger's grave-yard, there to rest until the morning of the resurrection.

In early life she passed away,
Her feeble body now decays;
But in judgment she will stand,
Either to dwell on Canaan's land,
Or sink to rise and live no more,
Far beyond this mortal shore.
May her death a warning be,
That old and young their doom may see,
And strive to gain fair Cannan's shore,
Where Christians meet to part no more.

JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

The following Protracted Meetings are to be held, Providence permitting, on the Matamoras and Juniatta Circuit, viz:

One in the Red Hill Bethel, near brother William Kumbler's, opposite Newport, Perry county, to commence on the 6th of September.

One at Matamoras, Dauphin county, to commence on the 13th of September.

One near brother Joseph Cameron's, in Turkey Valley, Juniatta county, to commence on the 22d of September.

One near brother John Grubb's, in Wild-cat Valley, Perry county, to commence on the 11th of October.

We do most earnestly solicit the preaching brethren to attend the above meetings.

A. SNYDER,
Preacher in Charge.

A Camp-meeting will be held in Irvin township, Venango county, Pa., commencing on the 5th of September.

Brothers Winebrenner and Harn will be in attendance at the last meeting.

Also, a Protracted meeting at Bethany, Westmoreland county, Pa., commencing on the 20th of September.

Brothers Winebrenner and Harn will attend. By order of the Committee.

J. M. KLEIN.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—WHEAT,	per barrel,		$4	75	a 4	75
Do. RYE,	do. - -		2	50	a 2	50
Do. CORN,	do. - -		2	37½	a 2	37½
GRAIN—WHEAT,	per bushel,			95	a 1	00
Do. RYE,	do. - -			56	a	56
Do. CORN,	do. - -			45	a	50
Do. OATS,	do. - -			36	a	36
Do. BARLEY,	do. - -			60	a	65
SEEDS—CLOVER,	do. - -		3	50	a 3	50
Do. TIMOTHY,	do. - -		2	25	a 2	50
Do. FLAX,	do. - -		1	05	a 1	25
BEEF,	per cwt. - - -		5	00	a 5	50
PORK,	do. - - - -		5	00	a 5	25
HAMS,	per pound, - - -			7½	a	19
BUTTER,	do. - - - -			10	a	10
LARD,	do. - - - - -			8	a	8
TALLOW,	do. - - - - -			8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried)	per lb.			6	a	7
EGGS,	per dozen, - - - -			10	a	10
POTATOES,	per bushel, - -			56	a	62½
ONIONS,	do. - -			75	a	87½
APPLES,	do. - - - -		1	00	a 1	12½
PEACHES, (Dried)	per bush.		1	25	a 1	30
FEATHERS,	per pound, - -			37½	a	45
WOOL,	do. - - -			30	a	50
SALT,	per sack, - - - -		1	20	a 1	20
HAY,	per ton, - - - - -		10	00	*a*10	00
PLASTER,	per ton, - - -		4	00	a 4	00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—WHEAT,	per barrel,		$5	12½	a 5	25
Do. RYE,	do. -		3	00	a 3	00
Do. CORN,	do. - -		3	00	a 3	00
GRAIN—WHEAT,	per bushel,		1	15	a 1	20
Do. RYE,	do. - -			65	a	65
Do. CORN,	do. - -			65	a	65
Do. OATS,	do. - -			43	a	43
Do. BARLEY,	do. - -			65	a	68
SEEDS—CLOVER,	do. - -		3	50	a 3	50
Do. TIMOTHY,	do. - -		2	75	a 3	00
Do. FLAX,	do. - -		1	35	a 1	40
BEEF,	per cwt., - -		7	00	a 8	75
PORK,	do. - - - - -		7	00	a 7	25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

THE Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion,

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo decimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

Missionary Pledges.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, -	-	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	-	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	-	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	-	-	10 00
Jacob Miller, -	-	-	10 00
James Miller,	-	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	-	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	-	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	-	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	-	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	-	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	-	-	5 00
James Casey,	-	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of ALL the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. SEPTEMBER 16, 1850. NUMBER 10.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance. - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fifteen.

Names	Am't paid.	Names.	Am't paid.
Altman Lewis	$1 00	Lehman Michael	$1 25
Barton Aaron	84	Lower David	75
Berkert Jacob	1 00	McDowell Joseph	31
Benedict John	1 25	Metzger Geo	1 00
Chana E	1 00	Markley Geo B	2 50
Correll Joseph	1 25	Myers John	1 00
Crumling John	1 25	Metzler Thomas	1 00
Cramer Michael	1 25	Meyers Susan	1 00
Doersh Geo L	2 00	Norris Hugh	1 50
Dickerhoof Israel	1 00	Peters John	75
Fasig Samuel	2 50	Snader Levi B	1 00
Gingerich D C	1 00	Stoner Christian	1 00
Gerverich Joseph	1 25	Spencer David	2 00
Green Harvey	1 00	Sprout Elizabeth	1 00
Gross Solomon	1 00	Turner John W	1 00
Gross Mary	1 00	Utz John	1 00
Garman John	1 00	Wright John F	85
Gross Daniel F	1 25	Wagner John	62
Heffner Geo (in full)	2 00	Willman Jonas	1 00
Kindig Emanuel	1 00	Wert James	1 00
Keplinger James W	1 00	Weekline John	1 00

☞ To our Correspondents.—Write—Write—Write.

☞ "The Religious Telescope," published weekly by "the Church of the United Brethren in Christ," comes out this week in a large folio sheet, and in a handsome form and type.

It is printed at Circleville, Ohio, and is edited by one of the late Bishops of the United Brethren, William Hanby.

We hope it may be very useful in its enlarged form, among the Brethren, and at large in the vineyard of the Lord.

By Divine permission the Elderships of the "Church of God" will meet this year as follows:

The East Pennsylvania Eldership will hold its yearly meeting at Churchtown, Cumberland county, Pa., commencing on Wednesday, October sixteenth.

Brother James Mackey is to preach the opening discourse—or brother J. Keller.

[The brethren will remember to raise a missionary collection in every Church.]

The Ohio Eldership will hold its yearly meeting in the Sugar Creek Bethel, Holmes county, Ohio, near brother John Beidler's, commencing on Monday, the fourteenth of October.

The West Pennsylvania Eldership will hold its yearly meeting at Fiatville, Lawrence county, Pa., commencing on Wednesday, October twenty-third.

The Indiana Eldership will hold its yearly meeting in Jackson township, Decalb county, Indiana, commencing on Monday, October twenty-first.

The Iowa Eldership will hold its yearly meeting in North Bend, Johnson county, Iowa, commencing on Monday, October seventh.

The Michigan Eldership will hold its yearly meeting in the town of Gaines, in the Hamman settlement, commencing on Monday, November eleventh.

The Yearly Meeting.—We call it the Eldership—others call it the Conference—the Presbytery—and other names. Well be it so. If it is the Annual gathering of those who love our Lord Jesus Christ, may grace and peace be with them.

All our Preachers are members of the Eldership, because they are preachers of the Gospel, and so it ought to be. Their bounden duty is not only to preach, but to take the oversight of the flock, and whoever hinders their doing so, is doing wrong. Every preacher is an Elder—a Shepherd—a Guide.

Every preacher is an Elder in the Church to which he belongs, although he may not be the preacher in charge. There always must be some to take the lead in every society. This belongs to those we call the Pastors. But every preacher has a joint concern in the work of the Lord, and should be treated as a fellow-laborer, and have a place in the Church session or council.

There may be some inferior in gifts—or learning—or younger in years—or in the ministry—but all should have their proper place—and their share of the work.

J. FLAKE.

Steep your sermons in your hearts before you preach them.—Felton.

Thoughts on Several Things.---J. F.

A good Sign.—When any one loves the worship of God, and is found frequently in the house of prayer, it is a sign for good. There is a strangely attractive power in the Gospel, whether it be the preaching or the reading—the prayers or the hymns. Whoever therefore will come within the reach of these gracious influences, can hardly avoid feeling their power, and if he will only yield thereto, repentance unto life—faith in Jesus—and love to God, and to his ways, will be his experience. If the worship and service of God be a burden to you here, will you ever take delight therein when mortal life has passed, and everlasting years roll on?

Titles among Preachers.—There are two titles which might be used innocently, when you write to a preacher. The first is that of Brother. This is the word used by Saint Peter, who says, "our beloved brother Paul." Is not this better than Reverend, or Elder?

The second is that of V. D. M., which is a Latin phrase, but means in English, "Minister of the Word of God." Is not this better than D. D.?

Camp-meetings.—I did not get to more than one of our meetings in the woods, and that for only one day. They tell me that several of these have been attended with gracious influences from the Lord, in the conversion of precious souls. If so, some will remember them as long as life continues. To some no doubt they have been seasons of reviving and quickening, in leading their souls nearer to the Lord, and heavenly things. Let these henceforth be diligent and faithful in every Christian duty.

Sabbath Morning, Sept. 1.---J. F.

"For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."--2 Cor. 5: 1.

"We know"—Not all men—not the unbelieving Greeks at Corinth, who gloried in their fanciful and poetical religion, with their splendid temples dedicated to the worship of idols, all unholy like themselves.

Nor those among the Jewish people whose minds were blinded, and their hearts hardened, by unbelief and sin. The true light—even Christ Jesus—must shine into the soul of man, dispersing the dark clouds of error in doctrine, and feeling, and practice—and bringing down that soul in true humility and penitence before its God, even as Paul had found in his own experience.

But the true believer wherever found in the wide world may say with Paul, "We know"—that which is hidden from the unbelieving, and disobedient, however learned in science and philosophy. This knowledge, the Indian, or the African may have, as well as the white man—it is the happy privilege of all who have the true faith of Christ crucified—and Christ risen from the dead. How great the advantage to have the heavenly light to shine within.

What did Paul and his brethren know? They knew that the mortal body is not the man, but only the tabernacle or tent in which the soul dwells for a while. A tent or tabernacle is a temporary dwelling which may be quickly taken down—and so it is with these mortal bodies..

These tabernacles will be taken down, or dissolved again to dust. Why? because of sin—we know that we have sinned—we feel the justice of the doom—and dare not murmur at our lot.

Paul expected to die; he says, "the time of my departure is at hand." Peter expected to die; and uses nearly the same fignre, saying, "Knowing that I must shortly put off this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Jesus Christ hath shewed me." These Apostles did not expect to live in this world until the second coming of the Saviour, but they expected to put off this tabernacle—to depart this mortal life, in the time, and under the circumstances, pleasing to the Providence of God.

So it was with George Whitfield, he said, "he was immortal till his work was done." He died in the fulness of his usefulness, with an Asthmatic affection, or difficulty of breathing. He lies buried at Newburyport, Mass. So it was with John Wesley, he prayed that he might not live to be helpless, and he retained his strength until the last, though in his eighty-eighth year. His last words were, "the best of all is, God is with us."

The true Christian doctrine appears to be, that the soul is the man, and dwells in the body, as in a tent or tabernacle. Therefore, when the tent is taken down, the soul that dwelt therein may still live, and be happy, or miserable. It carries with it through the last hours of life, and beyond this mortal state, the same intellectual and moral qualities it here possessed. It goes to the place in the vast expanse around us for which it is prepared.

The soul may find itself in "Hades," and like the rich man of whom our Saviour speaks, may find itself unhappy. Or like the poor man Lazarus, it may be carried by angels into the region of peace, where Abraham and the saints are found.

There is a place in the heavens around us, which is called Paradise, to which Paul was once taken on a short visit, even while in this mortal life, whether in the body, or out of the body, he could not tell. To that happy place the soul wings its way, and puts on a spiritual and immortal body, with which it comes forth in the resurrection of the just. The spirits of just men made perfect are there. An innumerable multitude of angels are there. And there the soul that is forgiven and sanctified, finds its way after it is released from the mortal body. It has a home, "a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

How can this be known? We have not seen that spiritual body, nor that holy city in the heavenly world. "Eye hath not seen—nor ear heard," and the imagination cannot paint the picture; but God has revealed these things by his spirit. Whoever then, has true and living faith in Jesus, and the word which he has spoken, may look forward in humble hope and assurance, that when he dies on earth, he shall depart to a better home. Being "absent from the body, but present with the Lord;" and having a part and lot, in "the rest which remains for the people of God."

"We know, by faith we know,
If this vile house of clay,
This tabernacle sink below,
In ruinous decay;
We have a house above,
Not made by mortal hands;
And firm as our Redeemer's love,
The heavenly fabric stands."

Western Tour.---No. 7.

Dayton, August 5, 1850.

JOURNAL OF THE 11TH AND 12TH WEEKS.

Monday, July 29th.—We left our friends and brethren at Martinsville and started for Indianopolis. The national road being graded in most places where it was necessary, and kept in pretty good order, we got along quite speedily. We passed through Marshall, the county town of Clark county, Illinois, then through Terre Haute, the seat of justice of Vigo county, Indiana, to a small town called Williamston, where we stayed over night.

Terre Haute is quite a handsome and brisk place. It lies on the east bank of the Wabash River, and the surrounding country is very pretty. The steamboat navigation on the Wabash, the Wabash and Erie Canal, and the great Central Railroad, all combine to inspire the belief that Terre Haute is destined to make a large and flourishing place. Its present population is somewhere about 5,000.

July 30th.—Resuming our journey, we passed through Harmony, Putnamsville, and other places, as far as Belleville, in Hendricks county, where we tarried over night at the Belleville Hotel. The country all along through which we passed that day, is pretty good, but exceedingly heavy timbered. The Corn crops are very light, the season having been unusually dry.

July 31st.—Continued our tour Eastward; and after passing through Plainfield, Bridger, &c., we arrived at Indianopolis, about 10 o'clock, A. M. After having our horses put up at the Palmer House, we called on some of our old friends and acquaintances. Among the rest, we called at the residence of brother John McFarland's, formerly of Middletown, Pa. Not finding him or his wife at home—he having gone to Oregon, and she being out on a visit—we next went in search of sister Bobbs and her daughter. But, not finding either of them at home—they also being out on a visit—we then called on Dr. Bobbs and family, whom we found at home and in the enjoyment of good health. We also called on Mr. Graydon, and had the pleasure of seeing Mr. Welshhance and others, who formerly resided in Harrisburg.

Indianopolis is the capital of Indiana. It has a population of about 10,000. The country around the city is handsome, fertile and well improved. The city is handsomely laid out and is rapidly improving. The houses generally are neat and substantial, and the public buildings are numerous, handsome and costly.

The Indiana Lunatic Asylum is a splendid edifice, situated near the national road, about two miles west of the city. It is built of bricks, five stories high, and of capacious dimensions. The Deaf and Dumb Asylum is also an elegant building, four stories high, and is located between the National and Cincinnati roads, two miles east of the city.

The Capitol, or State House, stands in the centre of a public square, on the west side of the city. It is a two story building, 75 by 150 in dimensions, with a cupola in the centre of proportionable size. The internal plan and arrangements are similar to that of the Illinois and Iowa Capitols, but rather inferior to either. The Cholera had just broken out in the city when we were there. There had occurred about 10 deaths of that disease, within a few days. Otherwise, and as a general thing, Indianopolis is considered a very healthy place.

Not finding our friends at home, and having a chain of appointments ahead, we concluded to journey a piece further. So, after dining at the Palmer House, we left there and went as far as Greenfield, where we stayed over night with a gentleman by the name of Templin, who treated us very kindly.

August 1st.—Leaving Greenfield, we continued Eastward, on the national road, through several towns and villages, as far as Dublin, where we stayed over night with brother John H. Leebrick and family. They are pleasantly situated, in a fine country and handsome village. They were all well and quite glad to see us; but, unhappily, sister Leebrick was from home, so that we did not get to see her. The disappointment in not seeing her and sister Bobbs and daughter, I felt more sensibly and regretted more sincerely than almost any thing else that happened us on our tour, they being among my earliest and best friends in Pennsylvania. I regret, also, that we had to pass brother Wm. Booth and family, who reside some seven or eight miles south of brother Leebrick's, because of an appointment next day at Euphema, 38 miles from Dublin.

August 2d.—Took leave of brother Leebrick and family, and started for brother Matthew Megrew's, at Euphema, where we safely arrived in the evening, and preached to a large congregation in the Lutheran Bethel. We passed through a very fine country and several handsome towns and villages; such as Cambridge, Germantown, Centreville, Richmond, &c. Wayne county, Indiana, is, on the whole, the best looking country we saw anywhere in the State of Indiana. The land is first-rate, and in a good state of cultivation. The country is healthy and well watered, and the people industrious, moral and intelligent.

August 3d.—Set out for Dayton, and on the way we visited sundry old friends and brethren. First, we went to West Baltimore to see brother Benj. Fritchey and family. Then to Union, to see Mr. Eby and family, and Boyer and family. Thence to Harrisburg, to see sister Herr, formerly Mrs. Mull, of Shippensburg. We found all these old acquaintances well and in good cheer, but destitute of preaching by the ministers of the Church of God.—We hope brother T. Hickernell will make it his business to call on all these and other brethren, scattered abroad through the Miami Valley, and preach for them. In the evening we entered the city of Dayton, and stopped with brother J. H. Achey and family, who received us cordially and entertained us kindly during our abode there.

August 4th.—This being a pleasant Lord's-day morning, I started early and went to Miamiesburg, a distance of 10 miles, to meet my appointments, and brother Harn went to his appointments, in the United Brethren meeting-house, near brothers Shopp's and Hickes', about one mile from the city. I preached twice at Miamiesburg on Sabbath, once in the Methodist, and once in the German Reformed and Lutheran meeting-house. The congregations were large and very attentive. I put up with my cousin, Christian Winebrenner, who resides there, and who treated me very courteously.

August 5th.—I remained at Miamiesburg and preached again at night, to a good congregation, in the Methodist meeting-house.—After writing and mailing several letters, I visited round among some old friends from Pennsylvania, and took supper with Adam Miller and family, formerly of Millerstown, Lebanon county, Pa. Here, also, I met with sister Engle and brother Cormond and family, from the same place. They are all anxious to have the true doctrine preached among them, and some of them want brother A. Snyder to come out and labor with them in the Gospel.

Miamiesburg is a handsome town, with somewhere about 1000 inhabitants, situated on the east bank of the Miami river, 40 miles above Cincinnati. The canal and turnpike leading to Cincinnati both pass through it.—The surrounding country is handsome, highly improved and exceedingly fertile. There is a large quantity of tobacco raised along the Miami bottoms. A good many Pennsylvanians are settled through that country. The people are clever, liberal and anxious for the truth.

August 6th.—I left Miamiesburg and returned to Dayton. Brother Achey and family received me with their accustomed cordiality. Wrote and mailed several letters. Preached to a large congregation, in the Methodist meeting-house, at candle-light. Saw a number of former acquaintances and brethren after preaching.

Dayton is a beautiful city, and a great business place. Its streets are unusually wide—its public buildings numerous and elegant. The Court House is a splendid edifice, all of solid stone, except the doors and windows. Its cost will be upwards of $100,000. The Mad river affords extensive water power in this city. Hence, there are all kinds of Mills, Manufactories, and Machine-shops erected along the canal, and on the east side of the city. Dayton is rapidly improving, and is supposed to contain between 12 and 13,000 inhabitants. The Cholera carried off some 250 of its citizens last year. This year it is healthy thus far, and as a general thing it is considered a healthy place.

(Columbus, Ohio.)

August 7th.—We left Dayton and went to Addison, a distance of 24 miles, where we preached in the Presbyterian meeting-house, to a large and attentive congregation. Addison, (alias Christiansburg,) is in Clark county, near to which brothers David Strock, James Wiley, Robert Nelson and other Pennsylvania friends reside. There was a little revival in that neighborhood last winter, under the labors of brother Thos. Hickernell. Brethren Brown, Reese, Asken and others were over to meeting from Hiattsville, on the canal, a distance of 13 or 14 miles. Here were, also, some five or six preachers in attendance; a few of whom, it was said, were much pleased, and the rest displeased, with the doctrine. The excitement in town ran high next day, whether for good or evil, time will show. We preached what we believe to be the truth, and all we ask of the people is, that they judge, as wise men, whether what we preached is in accordance with the "law and testimony." Brother Thos. Hickernell met us here.

August 8th.—We left Addison, after dining with brother ——— and family, and went on to brother David Kinsinger's, a few miles south-east of Urbana, the county town of Champain county. Here we held meeting in the Baptist meeting-house, and had the pleasure of seeing brothers A. Switzer and family and S. Marker and family. They are both doing well, and seem to be much pleased with Ohio.

August 9th.—Went to Marysville, the county town of Union county, and stopped with brother Pattamer and family, formerly of Dauphin county, Pa. Here we had an appointment made for preaching, at candle-light, in the Methodist meeting-house. But, on going to the house at the appointed time, we found it locked and the people standing at the door. Upon inquiring into the cause of this movement, we were informed that we were not Methodists, and therefore the house would not be opened for us.

O! Methodism, how art thou fallen! Time was when Methodists were greatly persecuted and shut out of houses and neighborhoods by others: now they begin, in return, to persecute, revile and shut out the ministers and people of the Church of God. These things ought not so to be. The persecuted ought not to turn persecutors. Howbeit, they are not all gone out of the way. In some places they treated us very kindly—with marked respect and attention. The Lord bless them for it, and also pardon the wrong doers.

On motion of some one in the crowd, it was agreed to go to the Court House and hold the meeting there. We did so, and had a time long to be remembered. Brother P. and family will now, no doubt, return to the Church where they were born, and from whence they went out. May the Lord soon raise up a people there for his name, who, like the primitive Christians, shall be anti-sectarian and anti-persecuting in character!

August 10th.—From Marysville we went to Clintonville, four miles north of Columbus. Here we assisted brother Hickernell in holding a two-day's meeting. The Methodists there showed themselves more noble than those in Marysville, in giving us the use of their meeting-house, and a pretty general hearing too. The Lord bless them for their kindness.

In Clintonville there is a Church of God, consisting of about 20 members. Brothers T. Hickernell and Wm. Adams preach for them alternately. Brothers A. Young and J. Ferguson, from Perry county, Pa., reside there. These old and beloved brethren, together with the whole Church there, seem to be doing well. We spent a few days very pleasantly among them, preaching for them on Saturday evening, three times on the Lord's-day, and again on Monday evening. The congregations were pretty good, and the people paid strict attention to the word.

Brothers Young, Ferguson, Smith, Reader and others, showed us much love and kindness. May their reward be on high!

August 12th.—Wrote several letters, and then took a ride to Columbus, brothers Young and Ferguson being with us. We went to the city on the new and elegant Plank road leading from Columbus through Clintonville and Worthington, up towards Delaware. The first place we visited was the State's Prison. Mr. Duey, the Steward, had us conveyed, by the politeness of Mr. Hayden, through the whole Institution. The building and work-shops are very extensive, and admirably arranged.—There are about 380 prisoners in the Institution at this time—all males except seme seven or eight. The articles which they manufacture are numerous and of the best quality. The saddle-tree and bone making business is the most extensive. They turn out about $60,000 worth of work, in the aggregate, annually; the profits on which will be, perhaps, not less than $20,000. There is room for 700 convicts, but they seldom have over 500 inmates. The Cholera was very fatal among the prisoners last year—cutting off upwards of a hundred of them in a short time—this year it is healthy in the prison, but very sickly in the city. The Cholera and other diseases have prevailed to an alarming extent. Numbers have died, and some six or seven thousand of the inhabitants had fled to the country and country villages. Columbus is quite a handsome place, and contains a population of some 15,000 souls.

We also visited the Institution for the blind and the Lunatic Asylum. They are both located a short distance east of the city, and are fine and splendid buildings. The former Institution has, at present, 60 pupils, and the latter 335 inmates or patients. These are noble, humane and benevolent Institutions, which are highly creditable to the State of Ohio.

The new State House, now in course of erection, will be a large, costly and magnificent edifice. It is built on a public square, in the centre of the city, and is 184 by 304 feet in dimensions. Like the Capitols of Illinois and Iowa, it is built of handsome white limestone, two stories high, with the public offices and committee rooms on the first, and the Legislative halls on the second floor. It is about half way up to the second story. The cost of the building is estimated at $,1000,000.

There are a few scattered members of the Church of God in this city, who ought to have stated preaching; and, no doubt, the Church of God would soon gather up and increase in Columbus. J. W. & G. U. H.

Don't Waste.—Waste nothing! A crumb of bread may keep life in a starving bird. A large and useful volume has been all written with one quill from the wing of a goose; and an inch or two of writing paper has served for a dispatch to save an army from falling into the enemy's power. Waste nothing. "Gather up the fragments, that nothing be lost."

Religion Diffusive.—True religion will show its influence in every part of our conduct; it is like the sap of a living tree, which penetrates the most distant boughs.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

Moral Retribution:*
As Evinced by the Analogy of Nature.

(CONTINUED.)

VI. Nature of Moral Retribution.

It has been seen that Dr. Cheever regards Memory and Remorse as the principal if not the only elements of Moral Retribution. But memory, very evidently, can have no retributive force only as it keeps before the mind that which excites or increases remorse, or some other painful emotion; and therefore, according to the Dr.'s own theory, is not so much an element as a condition of retribution. Memory is a mere presever and conveyor of thought, and seems to have little or no regard either to the painful or pleasant character of that which is committed to its care. And how remorse is any more retributive in its character than fear, shame, and a number of other kindred emotions, which result from a consciousness of guilt, it is not so easy to perceive. This much however is true, that they all sustain the same relation to moral perversion; and hence remorse, as one of the most prominent, may legitimately be taken as a type of all the rest.

These emotions seems to sustain the same relation to moral perversion that bodily pain does to physical perversion. But in the latter case the resulting pain is easily perceived to be at most but a small part of the retribution. If a finger were consumed the pain which the fire would cause would by no means constitute all the retribution. When the pain had exerted its full force and had ceased altogether, by far the most important part of the retribution would yet remain—the loss of the finger.—Compared with this, the pain were of very little consequence. So when remorse, or any or all of the emotions of which it is regarded the type, has inflicted its severest penalties upon the moral nature, is there not still a retribution beyond this almost infinitely more appalling?—an injury or a loss to the very moral constitution of man, compared with which remorse sinks into insignificance?

The drunkard and the libertine, notwithstanding the keenest pangs of remorse that they ever experience, are still overwhelmed with a moral degradation—a retribution that evidently denies them the full measure of manliness. And not only is this the most emphatic decision of society, but that decision is fully endorsed by their own consciousness. They cannot look upon a virtuous man and feel themselves his equal. Not merely because they feel the stings of remorse, but because they are conscious of lacking that which goes to constitute true and ennobled humanity.—And who that has any adequate perception of moral character does not see in this a moral retribution, compared with which remorse is insignificant indeed! Is it not transcendently more retributive thus to lose some of those affections which most nearly ally man to his Maker than to endure remorse however pungent?

There is therefore a very palpable mistake in making retribution to consist merely in remorse, or even in regarding this as the chief or characteristic element of retribution. To do so would be to rob retribution of by far the greater part of its appalling dreadfulness, and thus to remove the most effective barriers that God has thrown around vice.

It is even questionable whether remorse and its kindred emotions should have much to do in making up our estimate of retribution.—That they are incidental to retribution, and that there is an element of vindictive suffering in them, is clearly apparent. But the idea of retribution demands a certain penalty, and one also that is invariably commensnrate with the enormity of the offence. That this is not the case with remorse in this world is evicent. It is notorious that the repetition of offences steels the heart to the susceptibility of remorse. It must therefore be confessed that unless some sins are vastly overpaid on the score of remorse, the great majority receive almost absolutely nothing in comparison with their enormity. Remorse is thus found to decrease with the increase of moral obliquity; and hence it is seen that the higher developments of remorse is always and only connected with the less degree of moral obliquity. The eminently pious man very evidently experiences far more remorse for a compartively trivial misdemeanor than does the hardened villian for the most flagitious crimes.

It may be said however that remorse in another world will fully compensate for the very evident disparity in this It is undoubtedly true that the discrepancy between retribution and wrong in this world will be equipoised by the awards of the next,—aside of course from the effects of the atonement. But it is not so certain that the equipoising element is to be found only or principally in remorse. It does not seem to be sufficiently evident to form the basis of our ideas of the certainty and appalling dreadfulness of retribution, and hence to prove an adeqnate dissuasive from sin. For it is palpable that remorse is only incidental to our moral nature; because it is never felt aside from the action of the moral sentiments. Again, it is confessed upon all hands that death does not affect any of the inherent characteristics of our moral natures. These in another world will be precisely what they are here.

And this, analogy, if it teaches anything, most clearly evinces. The dissolution of inert matter destroys no characteristic of its elementary existence. The gasses and other elements of which it was composed, exist and exert after dissolution precisely the same properties that they did before their dissolution. The only difference is that before dissolution they exerted these properties in combination—after dissolution, separately. Not only is the same thing apparent in the decay of vegetable existence, but the vegetable principle never fails to produce after its kind; thus showing that though dissolved, its elementary principles are neither destroyed or changed. The crawling worm becomes a brilliant butterfly, and seems for a moment to destroy the analogy; but see! it has produced a worm again, identical with its pristine self. The same elementary vitality which gave character to its being was all the while wrapped up in the habiliments of the butterfly.

If therefore any conclusion at all is deducible from this, it is that after death the moral nature remains possessed of the same characteristics which it possessed here, and that it will be affected in precisely the same way.—Hence if remorse does not invariably follow wrong, if it is here actually found to decrease with the increase of depravity, what else is to be expected in the coming world? If by hardening the heart it may be steeled against remorse, what is there in another world that can obviate the results of such a hardening? What will soften the heart, and give it those moral sentiments whose action is essential to the feeling of remorse? If remorse depended merely on an intellectual knowledge the case might be different; but even here men do wrong when they know, intellectually, the enormity of the wrong, and yet do not feel remorse. But remorse depends upon a moral appreciation of purity which is very near akin to that purity itself, and which the morally depraved do not feel, and from the very nature of the case cannot feel. It is a fact as evident as it can well be that every act of wrong tends to obliterate in the moral character of the wrong doer this moral appreciation of purity. To restore him this so that he might feel the pangs of remorse, so far from being a retribution, would be to restore him to his former degree of purity—would be in fact to prevent the retribution due to his subsequent enormities.

To recapitulate. Remorse, so far as it goes, is a consequence of moral perversion, and hence can be entirely avoided by moral uprightness; but it is rather incidental to moral retribution than that retribution itself. This reaches far deeper among the elements of man's enjoyment. It takes away the capacity of enjoyment without which there can be no bliss. It transforms the moral powers from being Godlike to being Satanic. And this is as infinitely more appalling than mere remorse as in the comparison of the value of our physical powers, the loss of the finger is more dreadful than the pain which accompanied it.—Thus, though the villain may or may not feel remorse, though he may even rejoice that he is a villain; yet in either case his own consciousness unequivocally tells him that beyond all that remorse has inflicted or can inflict, there is a sense of inherent moral degradation transcendently more dreadful and retributive.

Some may object that the Bible represents the suffering of the impenitent to consist very largely at least of remorse. This is really foreign to the discussion, yet it cannot be that nature and Revelation are inharmonious; and hence the objection may properly receive a brief consideration. It is replied:

1. The suffering—weeping, wailing, and the like—which the Bible represents as connected with the punishment of the finally impenitent, does not necessarily imply the presence of remorse. Suffering of the severest kind may evidently be experienced without experiencing remorse. To be sure the Rich Man desired that his brethren might not come to his place of torment, but along with this desire he does not express any remorse for his own covetousness which brought that torment upon him. For anything that appears in that narrative, if he could have returned to earth he would have been a covetous rioter still.

2. Many expressions might be expressive of remorse as connected with the punishment of sin, without implying that all or even a very large part, or even any at all, was the direct retribution for sin. There might still be an infinitude of retribution beside.

3. The perpetration of the sufferings threatened in the Bible, is inconsistent with our actual experience of remorse. It may be avoided, or eventually become inoperative, and that too without expiating the wrong, or reforming the individual; and hence as we only know it, it could not be a perpetual retribution; nor one according to our deeds.

---

*"The Demand and Demonstration of a Future Retribution in Natural Theology." Rev. G. B. Cheever, D.D., in the Biblical Repository for Jan. 1850.

4. Satan is never represented as feeling remorse, but on the contrary as glorying as well as persevering in his opposition to God; and the final punishment or retribution of the impenitent is represented as being that "prepared for the Devil and his angels." Hence if his punishment does not consist in remorse, neither can theirs. A. D. W.

(TO BE CONCLUDED.)

Baptismal Query Again.

LANDISBURG, Sept. 8, 1850.

BROTHER FLAKE, DEAR SIR:—

ONCE more I beg the indulgence of a short space in your columns, in order to notice your ambush, Theophorus, who has assailed me from behind his paper rampart. Permit me first to say, that it is neither brave nor magnanimous for such a geni, and one so well drilled in the tactics of controversy as Theophorus is, to pounce upon one so small as myself and swallow me at one mouthful.—But, whilst I admit that I have not got breath enough left to reply, yet, like Jonah, being swallowed alive, I will come up again and gather strength enough to give a parting word at least.

Theophorus, after conferring some encomiums on me and my worthy opponent, proceeds in systematic order to dissect and (to his own satisfaction) refute my position.

First, Theophorus asks: Where is the proof that the rite of baptism is to be administered only by Bishops or Elders? Is it delegated to them in the commission—or was it more to them than to the one hundred and twenty that were endued with power—or the five hundred who saw him at once? Now, sir, the question is not whether regularly ordained Elders or Bishops may baptize; for my opponents both admit that they may. But the question is, Does the power delegated in the commission extend beyond the bounds of the clerical order? They affirm and I deny, consequently the burden of proof devolves upon them.—But, to the astonishment of all, they ask me to prove a negative. The only rational conclusion at which we can arrive is, that the fact of Christ's instituting the order of the ministry excludes all others. The commission gives it to them. And if my friend Theophorus cannot find Scripture authorizing laymen to baptize, why, then it is without authority, and consequently not valid. Now, sir, if one lay-member has a right to administer the rite of baptism, why, then all have a right, without distinction of sex—old women and little girls and boys, if they are old enough to be disciples of Christ, as well as men. Here you perceive that the position occupied by brother Theophorus will drive him into all the extremes of Catholicism; for the old mother church is the only church that will acknowledge the validity of old woman's baptism, and they only in extreme cases. But, because there were men and women among the hundred and twenty on the day of Pentecost, he concludes that men and women all have a right to baptize, and yet professes to be fond of law and order in the kingdom of Christ. Is it not diverting!

Secondly: He calls for proof, or a "Thus saith the Lord," that the Apostles were to appoint their successors in office. In answer to this question I refer to one instance where they did appoint one; or, in the language of the inspired writer, ordained one to take part of this ministry, viz: Matthias, as you will find by a reference to the first chapter of Acts. Again, he asks, "Was Saul of Tarsus appointed by them?" I answer, he was made an Apostle by a special commission given by Christ from heaven, and then recognized by the Apostles as one of their number. But the question in debate is not Apostolic succession, or whether a regular train of succession from the Apostles is essential to ordination; but whether unbaptized laymen have a right to baptize others.

Thirdly: He asks, "If that commission was a delegation to the Apostles and their successors in office exclusively, where is the man that dares to appropriate that delegated authority to himself?" I answer, that there are two essential pre-requisites to a valid ordination, viz: First, a Divine call or a move by the Holy Spirit. And secondly, a public recognition by those who were ministers before him. Hence we perceive that those who are the successors are not those who have received the special grace through the elbows and fingers of Judas', as Theophorus may think, but those who, like Paul, are called of God; for, says Paul: "No man taketh this honor to himself except he be called of God, and recognized by the Presbytery, and permitted by them as such." Such, then, are the Apostolic successors who, by Divine right, do as they did. Such, and such only, have a right to administer the rite of baptism; for Theophorus admits that they who follow the Apostles as they followed Christ are their successors.

Fourthly: Theophorus asks if to baptize is inseparably connected with the functions of the ministerial office, how Paul could say, "Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the Gospel," Now, sir, Paul evidently understood his commission, and his business too; therefore he first preached, then baptized: consequently the only legitimate conclusion is, that Christ sent him not to baptize only, but to preach and baptize.

Fifthly, and lastly, Theophorus asks, "If the validity of baptism depends on the qualifications of the administrator, as declared in this strange canon, viz: Apostolic succession and Apostolic immersion, where is there a legal baptism in the world? Or where is the Christian who can say, my baptism is legal?" Why, according to his own admission, as well as my theory, those who are immersed by a minister called of God and recognized by the Eldership, are legally baptized. If they are believers in Christ, buried with Paul by baptism into death, raised with him and walk in newness of life, they are they who can say, my baptism is valid. They are they who have a right to the tree of life. They are the legal subjects of the kingdom of Christ. Apostolic successors, then are such ministers who walk in the steps of their Master; and valid baptism is administered only by them.

Having thus reviewed your ambush correspondent, who, unsolicited, has volunteered his services, I conclude, hoping that by the next time he will come to light, so that the public may know who he is. Come, brother, don't be ashamed to give your name to your production. However, men love darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil.

Yours, as ever,

J. H. HURLEY.

Let your life be a commentary on your sermons.—Lamont.

Christian Love.

THERE is a degree of sweetness and beauty contained in this sentiment not easily excelled. Its merits, however, are too much lost sight of by the great mass, not only of non-professors, but of professors of religion. The social principle of Christianity, it is to be regretted, has been operating upon a small scale in the world, up to the present time. What a sad reflection, that its progress has hitherto been so slow. But, blessed be God, the time is coming (and perhaps not far distant) when all His children shall be united into one fold, and under one Shepherd; and when the smiling angel of love shall beam forth from every face. This principle not only possesses great intrinsic value, but the mere utterance of its name is calculated to convey a softening influence to the thoughtful mind, and to afford a solace to the wayfaring Christian.

Love is a theme much dwelt upon in the Scriptures, and is made to form such an important part in the Christian religion, that its absence must prove fatal to the interests of salvation. As a worthy example of true love, behold our Saviour, the blessed Son of God, who left the shining courts of heaven and came into this world of sin and degradation, became incarnate, was mocked and scoffed at, endured the ignominious death of the cross, was buried and rose again, for the purpose of rescuing mankind, who are but insignificant worms of the dust, from that eternal death and destruction from the presence of God, which they so justly merited. And He has commanded, that as he so loved us, that he freely offered up his life as a ransom for our souls, that we should also continue in his love. And again he says: "This is my commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you."

The Apostle PAUL says: "I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."—Rom. 8: 38, 39. And if you are rooted and grounded in this love, you need fear nothing, but your salvation is sure, and your reward shall be a crown of unfading glory.

"In Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision; but faith which worketh by love."—Gal. 5: 6. Here, again, as in numerous other instances, love is held forth as a requisite part of religion. O, then, gird on "the beautiful breast-plate of love," that you may fight a good and successful warfare against the great enemy of souls!

Again, PAUL says: "Let brotherly love continue."—Heb. 13: 1. We are not only to love our God and Saviour, but one another. It is the duty of the Christian to love all men, even those who hate him, but especially those of the household of faith. There ought to be perfect unity and harmony among all the children of God, as belonging to one family. But let us look at the real state of things. Alas! what a degree of prejudice and bitterness exists between a large portion of the members of different denominations; yea, and even among those of the same Church. They treat each other coldly, and not unfrequently, when passing one another, instead of greeting with smiles of kindness and love, turn aside their faces with a frown and air of bitterness. "The fruit of the Spirit is love;" (Gal. 5: 22,) but how dwelleth the Spirit in the hearts of such persons? O, that mankind would remember and practise what the poet says:

"Let love through all your actions run,
And all your words be mild."

Then would the world be divested of much of its dreariness, sorrow, and trouble, and things bloom with fresh beauty and loveliness.

Finally, "Love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself;" which is the sum and substance of all godliness.—God is our Creator, and He has made of one blood all nations that dwell upon the earth; therefore we should recognise and respect the image of God, and a human brother in every man, of whatever clime, color, or condition.

A. FRIESE.

Newburg Camp-meeting.

CHURCHTOWN, Sept. 5, 1850.

BROTHER FLAKE:—

AGREEABLY to your request, I herein send you a short account of the two Camp-meetings held by the Churches of God on my Circuit the past month.

The first was held on the ground of Mr. W. McIlvaine, who kindly allowed us the privilege on condition we would pray for him. The grove is situated about three-fourths of a mile north-west of Newburg. It commenced on the 16th ult.

Thirteen good tents, beside a boarding-tent, were erected on the ground—ten by members of the Church at Newburg, two from Orrstown, and one from Shippensburg.

Religious services commenced on Friday evening, by public preaching, and continued regularly until the following Wednesday morning, one sermon excepted, on account of rain.

The preachers in attenance were brothers Jas. Mackey, Josiah H. Hurley, Jas. Werner, D. A. L. Laverty, Jos. Strawbridge and myself; and Elders West and Miles, of the Baptist denomination—all of whom preached or spoke publicly to the people.

The weather, up to Monday afternoon, was favorable. The preaching and public addresses were marked with spirit, point and energy. The prayer and experience meetings also were warm and spiritual, and expressive of deep feeling and dependence on Divine agency. The meeting, upon the whole, was more than ordinarily good. Some 20 souls are judged to have professed salvation by grace through faith, during the meeting. Of these converts, several are children of parents who are members of the Church of God, and several belonging to the larger classes of the Sabbath-school at Newburg.

In conclusion, I hope and trust that the fruits of this meeting will be gathered in heaven at the last day.

Churchtown Camp-meeting.

OUR second Camp was held at Churchtown, close alongside the village, commencing on the 23d, on the ground of Mr. Leidig, for which privilege, beside our prayers, we had to pay him 20 dollars.

About 14 tents, all board but one, of the very best class, were erected:—13 of these were occupied by families belonging to the Church at Churchtown, and one from Mechanicsburg.

The number of preachers present was between 12 and 20, a large proportion of which, however, did not make their appearance until Monday and Monday evening. The weather on Friday and Saturday was fair. On Saturday night and Sabbath morning we had heavy rains. This, however, proved rather a blessing, as a large concourse of rabble and "lewd fellows of the baser sort," infatuated by the spirit of the Devil and the spirit of Alcohol, and sent out by old Lucifer and one of his best aids, the Tavern-keeper alias Rum-seller, were disposed to give us much trouble. But, the Providence of God, by sending rain, overruled the whole to his own glory and the peace of his people. Through the balance of the time we had good weather.

The preaching, though good, I thought not quite as pointed and practical as at Newburg. But it was also owned and blessed of the Lord; and with other means used, it became the power of God to the salvation of many precious and blood-bought souls. There were some special indications of good as early as Saturday evening; but it was not until about Monday evening that the work of conviction and conversion was so powerfully manifested. From this time on to the close of the Camp on Wednesday morning, the work went on with increasing power; and it was with reluctance that several of the tent-holders would agree to break up the Camp at the appointed time—and some too who were equally reluctant in the first instance to have a Camp.

We however agreed to adjourn to the Bethel, where our meetings have been kept up ever since, and we hope may be for many days to come. The number of professed converts I cannot yet exactly tell, but I think I am not out of the way in estimating them at twenty during the Camp, and as many since in the Bethel. A few were baptized at the close of the Camp, and united in church-fellowship.—Next Sabbath is set apart for baptism and communion at this place, and Sabbath a week at Newburg; at which time I hope and trust, at both these places, many who have found peace will show their faith by obeying Christ in these symbols. Many others are still under conviction in this place, and more or less are out every night for prayers.

In conclusion, I would say, these Camp-meetings have done much for these two Churches, viz: Churchtown and Newburg, beside the conversion of sinners. It has kindled up the latent sparks of grace that were almost extinguised in many hearts, and imparted a zeal and ardor to the Churches in the good cause that nothing else probably but Camp-meeting would have done. It was with great difficulty that these Camps were gotten up, but all now rejoice that they were held—and some who could, but would not, tent out, repent heartily for their neglect.

I close with the prayer that God may waken up the old Camp-meeting spirit in all the Churches of the saints, promising at some future time, if spared, analyzing some of the new-fashioned objections to Camp-meetings, through the columns of the Advocate.

Yours, fraternally,

E. H. THOMAS.

Germany Camp-meeting.

PERRY COUNTY, Pa., Sept. 3, 1850.

BROTHER FLAKE:—

PURSUANT to previous notice, the Camp-meeting for Landisburg Circuit commenced on the 27th of August, in Little Germany, and closed on the 2d of September. This meeting was small—there were but eight tents—yet, for the most part, the congregations were good and very attentive, which was a period of seven days, viz: from Tuesday until the next Monday. The preachers in attendance were H. Wingert, J. F. Weishampel, Wm. Johnston, S. Bigham, A. Snyder, H. Soule, W. Clay, and J. H. Hurley, preacher in charge.

The meeting was opened on Tuesday evening, with a discourse by Elder S. Bigham, from 1 Peter 4: 7. Wednesday 10 o'clock, brother Snyder delivered a discourse from John 5: 39. Afternoon preaching by brother Bigham, from Rev. 7: 6. At night brother Hurley preached from Luke 1: 68, 69. Thursday, 10 o'clock, brother Weishampel preached on the subject of faith, from Hebrews 11: 1. Two o'clock preaching by Elder Johnston, from 1 Peter 1: 3, 4, 5. At night Elder Bigham preached from Acts 20: 24. Friday, 10 o'clock, brother Weishampel preached from Isa. 33: 13, 14. Afternoon preaching by Elder Snyder, in German, from John 9: 35. In the evening Elder Johnston preached from Acts 11: 26, after which we attended to the ordinances of the Lord's house. It was truly a solemn time. Saturday morning Elder Bigham preached from Matt. 2: 2. Two o'clock preaching by brother Soule, from Luke 19: 41, 42. In the evening Elder Weishampel preached from Matt. 25: 46—subject, fire and brimstone.—Sabbath morning, ten o'clock, preaching by brother Hurley, from 1 John 3: 2—subject, nature, evidences and blessings of the Divine sonship of the believer in Christ. Afternoon sermon by brother Johnston, from Psa. 84: 11. In the evening preaching by Elder Snyder, from Jonah 3: 9.

The preaching, upon the whole, throughout was plain, pointed and practical on the Gospel order. The preachers all pulled well together. The meeting, upon the whole, was good; the result of which was, about half a score were converted, two baptized, and others will follow on next Sabbath. May the Lord replenish the seed sown there, and cause it to germinate, spring up and bring forth fruit to the honor and glory of God, even unto eternal life.

On Monday morning we separated, in all probability never to meet again until at the throne of God. Solemn thought—serious consideration! Oh! may we be kept by the power of God through faith until that day, when parting shall be no more.

WHAREHITE.

OBITUARY OF Sister MARY ANN MYERS.

DIED, near Newburg, Cumberland county, Pa., of Pulmonary Consumption, Sister MARY ANN MYERS, aged 17 years, 10 months and 12 days.

Thus, in the very spring-time of life, was this beautiful flower nipped by the frost of death, before full time was allotted it to bloom.

Mary Ann was the third daughter of the late brother Jacob Myers, deceased, by a second marriage. Her mother was called away by the hand of death when she was at the tender age of six years. This loss, however, was, as far as possible, made up by the third marriage of her father, to Miss Susanna Hampshire, to whom Mary Ann became as tenderly attached as to her own mother. Blessed with a natural kind disposition and even temperament, under the fostering care of her adopted mother, and pious example of a devoted father, mother and two elder sisters, Mary Ann was everything that was amiable and lovely, as far as these qualities could shine forth in an unregenerate heart. Though predisposed to pulmonary disease, which she probably inherited, it was not until within a year that her friends became much alarmed at her condition, nor until within three months of her decease could they believe that her dissolution was so near. But, when fairly rooted, this insidious disease, as usual, made rapid strides upon her feeble constitution.

Her last illness she bore with great fortitude, resignation and patience, especially the last few weeks, after she obtained the knowledge of salvation by the remission of sins; which blessing she obtained by faith in the blood of the Saviour a few weeks previous to her decease. Her last days and hours were really the hours of Christ's triumph in her soul over the the powers of darkness. Such overflowing gratitude—such unshaken faith—such animating hope—such over-powering and overwhelming love to God and for immortal souls, I have seldom witnessed in the experience of the aged saints. Such was her triumph, that no one, however tenderly they loved her, can wish her back to this suffering world.

On the 18th of August, 1850, (while our Camp-meeting was in progress,) about half-past one o'clock, A. M., she sweetly slept in Jesus—leaving to mourn her loss, her beloved mother, two sisters, one brother and brother-in-law.

On the 19th her mortal remains were deposited in the grave-yard of the Bethel at Newburg, and a funeral discourse delivered by the writer, on the camp-ground, to a large assembly of weeping friends, associates and acquaintances, from the 88th Psalm and 8th verse.

E. H. THOMAS.

Newburg, Sept. 3, 1850.

To the Preachers.

BROTHER FLAKE:—

DURING our late Camp-meeting, several of the preachers of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, in consultation, authorized me to issue a call for the ministers of this Eldership to meet one day previous to the meeting of the Eldership, to form an association to meet Quarterly, for the mutual edification and instruction of each other. The object principally, I suppose, will be the mental and spiritual improvement of the ministry of the Church of God.

All who are thus disposed, will please meet at Churchtown, at the Bethel, at 10 o'clock, A. M., on Tuesday, October 15th, the day previous to the meeting of the Eldership.

E. H. THOMAS.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Particulars of the Flood—Freshet at Reading.

The Reading Democrat, of Saturday, is filled with the particulars of the destruction by the flood of Monday, the 2d ult., which has brought ruin upon many of the inhabitants, stripping them of dwelling-houses, furniture, and property of every description, and leaving them at once homeless and penniless:

Many thrilling scenes of peril were witnessed by the crowd which thronged the streets touching upon the flood, and many acts of heroism were performed which are worthy of lasting gratitude and honor. One boat was manned by Mr. William Seitzinger and William Moyer, who contended bravely with the destructive element, and succeeded in bringing safely to land many persons, men, women and children, who would otherwise have found a watery grave. In one of their perilous trips they passed the house of Mr. Michael Sands, in Front street, between Franklin and Chesnut, containing Mr. Sands, his wife and four children. The house was beginning to totter, as they passed it, but their boat was already full, and they could but take an infant child on board with them. This was scarcely done, before the house fell with a great crash, precipitating the three remaining children into the water, and it is supposed they were immediately drowned. Mr. Sands was carried some distance down the stream, where he grasped a tree, and held fast until a boat came to his rescue. His wife floated away on a bed, was carried over the big dam, and there, sad to relate, she was drowned, in spite of repeated efforts made to save her. Her dead body was found on Tuesday evening, deeply imbedded in mud and rubbish, in Mr. Goodhart's corn field, six miles below town. The bodies of the children had not been recovered at the time we wrote.

The family of Mr. B. Graff, Water street, between Penn and Franklin, were in their house until a late hour on Monday afternoon, when they were rescued by some intrepid men in a boat which approacbed the house amid the most imminent danger. An attempt to save Mr. Graff's family was made in the morning, by Mr. Daniel Byerle and Henry R. Boyer, but upon approaching the house, their boat struck so violently as to capsize it, and they were both tossed into the turpid stream. They succeeded in clambering upon the roof of a stable close by, but had scarcely gained foot-hold when it was torn from its foundation, and carried down the river. They immediately stripped off their clothing, and, awaiting a favorable point in the water's course, plunged into it, and swam for the shore, which they were fortunate enough to reach, though nearly exhausted.

Three men were confined in the storehouse of Frees & Kissinger, on South Water street, when a portion of the Penn Bridge gave way. It dashed against the storebouse, and overthrew it in an instant. The men jumped into the water, and were carried a considerable distance down the stream, amidst the floating fragments, but at length were providentially rescued.

The Schuylkill Haven Map, of Wednesday, says of the flood in that quarter:

So quick came the flood upon us that many barely escaped with their lives, while Mrs. O'Connor was carried away and drowned. The particulars connected with her death are distressing. The house is situated by the railroad, but near the river; the husband saw the wave coming, and rushing to the house, secured the children, and warned the deceased to run for her life; she, however, continued on the flat endeavoring to coax a pig out of danger, when the wave came and for a moment overwhelmed her. When she rose upon the surface she lifted her hands imploringly to her husband and brother upon the bank, and screamed for help; a second surge came dashing on, and she sunk to rise no more. Her body was recovered the next day, it having floated on the flat below town. Another woman was seen passing with the current, with her head above water, but fast between two logs; and another with a babe in her arms, clinging to a bundle of hay; the frail support, however, was sufficient until she came to the dam at this place, where she sunk beneath the waves. Another passed so near the shore that a ten feet pole would have saved her, but she was not seen until right upon us, and it were worse than madness to spring in the river to save her. Others are reported to have floated by, but these we have thought were the best authenticated.

The Philadelphia Ledger says:

The rise of the waters was so sudden that many families were unable to escape, and were swept off by the flood. More than fifty lives between this city and Berwick, Columbia county, have been sacrificed by this catastrophe. At Reading eleven lives were lost.—At Tamaqua thirty-one persons were drowned.

At Berwick, Columbia county, twenty-one persons lost their lives. Two houses belonging to Geo. Metsler, at Nescopeck Forge, containing about 20 persons, were swept half a mile down the creek; only two men were saved. The houses lodged among some trees, and were dashed to pieces. At Young & Jones' Mt. Heekley Forge twelve persons were drowned.

Last Moments and Execution of Prof. Webster.

Boston, August 30, 1850.

Professor Webster, after his family left him last night, as he confidently alleged, in pefect unconsciousness of his coming fate, was searched and placed in a new cell, in order to prevent any attempted suicide.

Dr. Putnam left him at 9 o'clock last night, and from that time till 12, he passed the time in devotional conversation with his watchers. At 12 he fell into a short doze, but did not sleep heavily—awaking at times and conversing—he spoke of his impending fate with fortitude and resignation, and seemed quite grateful that the time of his death had been kept from his family.

At the various noises of the dawning of a new day he seemed to be somewhat agitated, but sooned regained his composure.

By advices, he breakfasted upon tea, with bread, inviting the officers to partake with him, and furnishing them with bread.

He made the preparations for ascending the scaffold with firmness.

About three hundred persons were admitted to the jail yard, and the house tops and windows adjoining the jail were crowded with persons--among whom were many ladies.—The streets near the jail were also crowded, but not densely.

At 9 o'clock this morning the last religious ceremonies were commenced by Dr. Putnam, consisting of a fervent prayer. He invoked the presence of the spirit and grace of God for him, so soon to die. He prayed that the prisoner's repentance might be accepted, and that he might be prepared to meet death.

He prayed for the prisoner's family, that the consolation of God's presence and grace might be theirs, that when their time of death should have come they might meet the prisoner in Heaven, where there would be no severing of the ties of affection. Also, for the family of the murdered man. He prayed for the Sheriff, his assistants generally, and for the officers of the law generally, and for the witnesses, and for all persons. About twenty minutes past nine, the prisoner was brought out to die.—After the prayer the prisoner's arms were pinioned, and with a firm step he marched to the gallows by the side of Dr. Putnam. His face was as fleshy as when he was arrested, though of a deathly palor. His look was that of one who had committed deadly sin, and was about to pay for it with his life.

While the Sheriff was reading the death warrant Webster was conversing with Mr. Putnam apparently with unusual earnestness; at the conclusion his legs were then pinioned and the rope placed about his neck, which caused his face to blush.

There were evident signs of suppressed powerful feeling. The black cap was placed on his head, the Sheriff proclaimed with a loud voice that he was about to do execution on the body of John W. Webster, for the murder of Dr. G. Parkman.

The commencement of the approach of death caused a movement of the body of the prisoner, whose face was hid from view. The spring was touched, and, with a fall of nearly eight feet, the murderer of Dr. Parkman was launched into Eternity. He died apparently with scarcely a struggle.

At 20 minutes before 10 o'clock, the Sheriff performed his sad office, and Prof. Webster paid the forfeit of his crime. He died penitent and without a struggle.

The body, after remaining suspended for half an hour, was taken down and examined; life was found to be extinct, and it was placed in a jail coffin, for transmission to Cambridge.

The Boston Transcript says in reference to the Petition and Confession of Dr. Webster, that there seems to be a decided misapprehension in the public mind in regard to the circumstances, which resulted in the juxtaposition of these documents before the public, producing an impression which facts did not altogether warrant. The petition was written by Mrs. Webster, and signed by the prisoner, after great urging on her part, and because he was not prepared to confess his crime to her, she not entertaining even a suspicion of his guilt.

This petition was withdrawn by the prisoner before there had been any action upon it by the Governor and Council. We think, therefore, it should have been regarded as belonging exclusively to Dr. Webster. Its appearance in print simultaneously with that of the confession, produced of course a most prejudicial effect on the public mind. We mention these facts, not because we think there can be any palliation of the prisoner's conduct, but simply to correct misapprehension.

MISCELLANEOUS.

From the Southern Christian Advocate

BISHOP ASBURY AND PUNCH.

A Tale of 1788.

Mr. Editor,—From a recent notice in your paper, I find that the life of the venerable Asbury is about to be published. A call has been made upon persons acquainted with any interesting passages in his history, to make them known through your columns. I wish you, therefore, to publish the following facts, some of which came under my own observation a few years since.

In the year 1788, as Bishop Asbury was on his way to the city of Charleston, S. C., in passing through the Parish of St. ——'s, he chanced to fall in with a colored man, belonging to Col. W——, whose name was Punch. When the bishop drove up, he was sitting on the bank of a creek, fishing, and carelessly whistling a jig tune. His character had been bad; he was wholly irreligious, probably not knowing what the term religion meant; and had been addicted to running away. The bishop stopped his horse when he reached him, and entered into conversation with him. He immediately asked Punch if he ever prayed. To this the reply was, "No, sir." With that the bishop alighted, secured his horse, and seated himself beside the negro, who was by this time considerably alarmed, commenced speaking earnestly and kindly to him on the subject of his soul's salvation. He told him of the danger of sin; of the shortness of life; of the dreadful judgment day; pointed out to him in few words the Gospel way of salvation by faith in Jesus Christ; and entreated him to repent and call upon God for merey. By this time Punch became greatly affected. Tears, one after another began to steal down his swarthy cheeks. The bishop then sung the verses of that beautiful hymn, commencing with the words—prayed with Punch; bade him an affectionate farewell and saw and heard no more of him for twenty or twenty-five years.—After this time Punch obtained leave to visit him, and came sixty or seventy miles on foot to Charleston during Bishop Asbury's last visit to the city. What a meeting must that have been!

"Plunged in a gulf of dark despair;"

But to resume the thread of our narrative. After the bishop left him, Punch, filled with a new and soul-stirring train of thoughts, drew up his fishing line, and set out homeward. The Spirit of all grace was at work in the depth of this poor black man's soul; and to use his own language, when afterward relating the scene, "I been tink 'fore I got home Punch be gone to hell." However, he faithfully followed the directions of his spiritual instructor; and gave himself to earnest and continual prayer for the pardon of his sins, until after a few days he was brought happily to "the knowledge of salvation by the remission of his sins, through faith in Christ." Blessed economy of Gospel salvation, which reaches in its adaptation to human nature, the lowest, the farthest gone from light and life:—which, by the accompanying energies of its spiritual power, render vital and efficacious the passing words of Christian instruction by which this benighted child of Africa was pointed to the "Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world!"

No man could be expected to keep all these things concealed in his bosom.—Forthwith Punch began to talk about the soul, salvation, and the hope of heaven, to his fellow servants. It was a strange tale to them, but not an idle tale. Many became thoughtful about their souls; and resorted frequently to Punch for instruction as to what they should do to be saved.—The little leaven worked. One and another praying to God for light and merey, were brought to know Christ, in the manifestation of the Spirit; the circle widened until crowds would gather around the cabin doors of Punch for religious conversation and prayers.

All this of course could not pass without the notice of the overseer, who felt himself called on to put down "this way." Being thus restricted, Punch could only speak privately and in his own house to a few of his friends who were awakened to the interests of their souls. One night he heard the overseer call him, as a few had met in his house for prayer. He went out, anticipating rough consequences; but to his astonishment he found the overseer prostrate on the ground, crying to God for mercy on his soul. "Punch," said he, "will you pray for me?" Punch did so; and as he used to relate the circumstance afterward, he said, "I cry, I pray, I shout, I beg; de Lord hear; presently de obersheer he rise; he trow he arms round me; he tank God; and den, he tank Punch." This overseer shortly afterward joined the Church, became an exhorter, and after some time a preacher!

Thus the way of this faithful negro was opened to more extensive usefulness among his fellows: and for several years he continued as he had begun, exhorting and encouraging all around him to serve God.—After some years his master died. In the settlement of the estate, Punch became the property of Col. A. of the Parish of A. Thus he was providentially thrown into a new field: and into it he carried the same "blameless walk and conversation," and the same desire to do good to the souls of his fellow-servants. In 1836, at the special solicitation of the highly respectable planters of that particular section of country, a missionary was sent to their plantations from the South Carolina conference. The writer of this article was honored with the appointment. On my reaching the plantation where Punch lived, I found between two and three hundred persons under his spiritual supervision, who had been gathered into a kind of society; many of whom, upon further acquaintance, I found to be truly pious and consistent. I was much interested on my first visit to the old veteran. Just before I reached his house, I met a herdsman, and asked him if there was any preacher on the plantation. "O yes, mossa, de old bushup lib here!" Said I, is he a good preacher? "O yes," was the reply, "he word burn we heart." He showed me the house. I knocked at the door, and heard approaching footsteps, and the sound of a cane upon the floor. The door opened, and I saw before me, leaning upon a staff, a hoary-headed black man, with palsied limbs, but a smiling face. He looked at me a moment in silence; then raising his hands and eyes to heaven, he said, "Now, Lord, lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation!" I was confused. He asked me to take a seat, and I found in the following remarks the reason of his exclamation. Said he, "I have many children in this place. I have felt for some time past that my end was nigh. I have looked around to see who might take my place when I am gone. I could find none. I felt unwilling to die, and leave them so, and have been praying to God to send some one to take care of them. The Lord has sent you, my child; I am now ready to go." Tears coursed freely down his time-shriveled, yet smiling face. I was overwhelmed.

This interview gave me much encouragement. He had heard of the application for a missionary; and only wanted to live long enough to see his face. After this I had several interviews with him, from which I learned his early history. I always found him contented and happy. In a short time afterward he was taken ill, and lingered a few days. One Sabbath morning he told me he should die that day. He addressed affecting words to the people that crowded around his dying bed; the burden of his remarks—the theme of his soul was—"Now, Lord, lettest thou thy servant depart in peace!" He applied these words to himself, and continued his address to the last moment; and death gently stole his spirit away while saying—"Let thy servant depart in peace—let—let—let!"

His mistress sent for me to preach his funeral sermon. The corpse was decently shrouded, and the coffin was carried to the house of worship. I looked upon the face of the cold clay. The departed spirit had left the impress of heaven upon it. Could I be at a loss for a text? I read out of the Gospel, "Now, Lord, lettest thou thy servant depart in peace."

What a field for reflection does this account open before my mind! How all-comprising, world-redeeming are the energies of Gospel grace. Here was a poor, unlettered, outcast negro, of bad character, dug out of the ruins of sin; washed, redeemed, disenthralled; made respectable; made obedient to his master; contented with the lot assigned him by Providence; made an instrument of good to hundreds,—is it saying too much, looking to remote consequences, to add—thousands: and at last gathering up his feet in peaceful death, and carried from the lowly condition of a rice field slave "by the angels into Abraham's bosom!" Is any achievement in the world too difficult for such a Gospel?

Again; what a lesson does this whole history afford to Asbury's sons? Calumny has attempted to blacken the character of that great and good man. But behold him, a true successor of the apostles, "instant in season, and out of season;" halting on his journey to converse with and pray for, an unknown black man; preaching, with what glorious success let the foregoing account attest, "Jesus and him crucified" in the highways and hedges! What a glorious harvest sprung up from that handful of seed, dropped casually by the way side!

May we, to whom the providence of God has so signally opened a door to the colored population of this country, "be instant in season and out of season," ready to improve every occasion of doing good to the souls of our fellow men, bought with the precious blood of Christ and on their way to the doom of an endless eternity.

T. H.

REMARKABLE CONVERSION OF A JEW.

A poor student of the University of Leipsic having occasion to undertake a journey to his distant friends, was in want of money for that purpose. He therefore was induced to go to a Jew and pawn his Hebrew Bible and Greek Testament.—The latter contained the Greek and German text in opposite columns. The Jew, who was a learned man, little as he valued this book, was, however, prevailed upon to give the student half a rix dollar for it. During the absence of the student he undertook to read it through, with a view to confirm his mind in enmity against Jesus, to ridicule his person in the synagogue, and to be the better prepared to testify his zeal for the Jewish faith. His wife and children were not permitted to see the book; he was determined to read alone, as a sworn enemy of Jesus, and to discover the falsehood of the Christian religion in all its parts. As the student was absent for about seven weeks, the Jew had sufficient leisure to perform his task. As he proceeded to read, his surprise increased, and a sacred awe pervaded him. In reading some impressive passages, he could scarcely refrain from exclaiming, "O, that Jesus were my Saviour?" Having completed the reading, he was astonished at himself, and exeeedingly perplexed that in spite of his earnest desire to find fuel in the New Testament for the increase of his burning enmity against Jesus, he had discovered nothing deserving of hatred, but on the contrary much that was great, sublime and heavenly. At length he charged himself with silly simplicity and blind folly, and resolved to open the book no more. In this resolution he persisted some days. But the consolatory and heavenly instructions which he had read, and which had left an indelible impression upon his mind, and the glorious prospect of life eternal which had opened before him, did not suffer him to resist either day or night, and he resolved to read the New Testament a second time, fully determined to be more careful in ascertaining that Jesus and his apostles had justly deserved the hatred of all Jews in all ages.

Again, however, he was unable to discover anything that was absurd, or which bore the stamp of falsehood; but much wisdom, inexpressible comfort for an afflicted mind, and a hope of immortality, which seemed to rescue him from that dreadful anxiety with which the thoughts of futurity had often filled him. Still he could not divest himself of his prejudices, but read the New Testament the third time, with the following resolution; "If I discover nothing the third time, why Jesus and his apostles, and their doctrine, should be hated by the Jews, I will become a Christian; but if my wish in first opening the book is now gratified, I will forever detest the Christian religion."

During the third reading of the history of Jesus, his doctrines and promises, he could not refrain from tears; his soul was affeeted in a manner which no pen can describe. Now he was quite overcome; the love of the most holy and most lovely filled his very soul. Being fully determined to become a Christian, he went without delay and made his desire known to a Christian minister. The student returned from his journey, and brought the borrowed money, with interest, to redeem his two books.—The Jew asked him if he would sell the Testament. The student was unwilling to part with it, but after some persuasion, yielded.

"What do you demand for it?" asked the Jew. "A rix dollar will satisfy me," was the reply. The Jew opened a chest, and laid down one hundred louis-d'ors.—"Take that," said he, "and gladly will I pay more if you desire it. And if at any time I can be of use to you, only apply to me, and I will be your friend to the utmost of my power." The student was surprised, and supposed that the Jew made sport of him. But the latter related to him what change of mind had heen wrought in him by reading the New Testament, and upbraided him with setting so little value on that precious book, and said, "Never will I part with this book; and you will oblige me by accepting the money." From that time he became a sincere Christian.—Jewish Advocate.

REVIVAL INTELLIGENCE.

Revival in Summer.—It has been believed that, for some reason, revivals of religion must be confined to the winter months mainly. And there can be no question that circumstances are more favorable in winter than in summer, for every social and public movement that requires leisure, long evenings, and some degree of fixedness in the residence of those who are to be affeeted by it. But this view is undoubtedly held to an exaggerated degree. And as faets are the foundation of theories, it is interesting to learn that there is at present a very delightful manifestation of Divine grace to the inhabitants of Middlebury, Vt. The work began, we believe, in New Haven, the neighboring town, where as many as seventy persons regard themselves as recently renewed by the Spirit of God. For some weeks the pastor of the church in Middlebury was encouraged to hold special meetings for instruction, exhortation and prayer. In these he was assisted by his father, Rev. Mr. Coe, of New York, Dr. Labaree, and the venerable ex-pastor, Dr. Merril, whose interest for his former floek appears to be unabated. Several members of the College have been hopefully eonverted. Two weeks ago Mr. Kirk, of this city, was requested to go and assist the pastor. His labors, we learn, were blessed in giving an increased development to the work of grace.—Puritan Recorder.

"MANY DIE AS SUDDEN; NOT AS SAFE."

On the 26th of June last, a young man, a student of the Oglethorpe University in Georgia, was killed by lighting A writer in the N. Y. Evangelist says of him:

"He was converted in this place (Marathon,) some six or seven years since; united with the church here, eommenced his studies in the Homer Academy, in 1845, with a view of entering the ministry; but being without means of supporting himself in procuring an edueation, he enlisted in the labor of colportage under the direction of the American Tract Society. His field was appointed him in Alabama, where, on account of his great acceptableness and success in labors directed to promote the spiritual good of those with whom he associated, friends came around him, and liberally offered to meet the expenses of his education, and help him forward into the ministry; the work which he had never ceased to desire since his conversion.—Hence, on the first of June last he was admitted into the Institution above named. But only a few weeks was he to be there. And the same stroke that felled him dead, felled also the Rev. Mr. McCutehen, who roomed with him.

They had arisen in the morning, prayed together as usual, and left the College arm in arm under one umbrella (it was raining at the time) to go to their boarding-place, but God had proposed here to meet them with the fatal thunder-bolt, and take them to himself. Together they prayed—together they walked—and together their happy spirits were taken to the skies.

The piety of the young brother whose name stands at the head of this article, was well matured for his age. He looked forward to the work of the ministry with great delight. His whole soul was full of it. He longed to bear the tidings of Jesus' love to his dying fellow-men. Nor did he wait to be regularly in the ministry before he could do this; as a Christian, he could and did make himself pre-eminently useful. His friends, the church, and the world, have much occasion to regret his early removal. But the Lord needeth him for some higher purpose, and all earthly claims must be relinquished."

THE DOWNWARD COURSE OF SIN.

1. Men enter and initiate themselves in vicious praetice by smaller sins. Heinous sins are too alarming for the conscience of a young sinner, and therefore he only ventures upon such as are smaller, at first.—Every particular kind of vice creeps in this gradual manner.

2. Having onee begun in the way of sin, he ventures upon something greater and more daring. His courage grows with his experienee. Now, sins of a deeper dye do not look so frightful as before. Custom makes everything familiar. No person who once breaks over the limits of a clear conscience knows where he shall stop.

3. Open sins soon throw a men into the hands of ungodly companions. Open sins determine his eharacter, and give him a place with the ungodly. He shuns the society of good men, because their presence is a restraint, and their example a reproof to him. There are none with whom he can associate but the ungodly.

4. In the next stage, the sinner begins to feel the force of habit and invcterate custom; he becomes rooted and settled in an evil way. Those who have been long habituated to any sin, how hopeless is their reform! One single act of sin seems nothing; but one after another imperceptibly strengthens the dispositions and enslaves the unhappy eriminal beyond the hope of recovery.

5. The next stage in a sinner's eourse is to lose the sense of shame, and sin boldly and openly. So long as shame remains, it is a great drawback. But it is an evidence of an uncommon height of impiety, when natural shame is gone.

6. Another stage in a sinner's progress is to harden himself so far as to sin without remorse of conscience. The frequent repetition of sin stupifies the conscience. They, as it were, weary it out, and drive it to despair. It ceases all its reproofs, and, like a frequently discouraged friend, suffers the infatuated sinner to take his course. And hence,

7. Hardened sinners often come to boast and glory in their wickedness. It is something to be beyond shame; but it is still more to glory in wickedness, and esteem it honorable. Glorious ambition indeed!

8. Not content with being wicked themselves, they use all their arts and influence to make others wicked also. They are zealous in sinning, and industrious in the promotion of the infernal cause. They extinguish the fear of God in others, and laugh down their own conscientious scruples. And now,

9. To close the scene, those who have thus hardened themselves, are given up of God to judicial blindness of mind and hardness of heart. They are marked out as vessels of wrath fitted to destruction. This is the consequence of their obstinacy. They are devoted to the judgment they deserve.

Reader! view it with terror.

Dr. Witherspoon.

CONTRIBUTION.

There is something about the practical operation of the system usually adopted, that is highly unreasonable and unchristian. One man whose annual income exceeds his expenses say $200, contributes $10 to the support of the ministry; another, perhaps, by incessant toil, by frugality and strict economy, finds himself at the elose of the year just one dollar better off than at its beginning. Well, he is expected of course to do something for the support of the Gospel, and he himself acknowledges the duty, and hands over the dollar to the collector. Nobody thinks anything of it, not even the ten dollar man for a moment suspects that his neighbor has done more than his duty. Surely one hundred sermons must have been worth to him one dollar, which is only a cent a piece! Very profound reasoning all this, very! Now admitting that this poor man only did his duty in giving all his neat income to the eause of Christ, show us if you can by what just rule of action, either human or divine, the other man is not under the same or even stronger obligation to contribute to the same cause, $200. Let there be no dodging, no shuffling, all ye tight-fisted from Dan to Beer-Sheba show eause, if cause there be, why the above reasoning is not sound and legitimate. Oh covetousness, what a fell demon thou art! How dost thou turn the brain, and harden the heart! More hereafter.—Morning Star.

THE ANXIOUS BURMAN.

You remember the ease of the anxious Burman. "What must I do to expiate my guilt?" he cried. "Walk four hundred miles, with the point of a spike piercing through each of your sandals!" was the reply of his priestly teacher. We shudder at the eruelty. But the untaught man knew no other way, and the guilt was urgent. It was pressing upon him like an armed man; and guilt is hard to bear—harder than bodily pain. He began the journey. He travelled over many a mile. Each step was marked with blood, and foreed a groan. He reached at length a spreading tree, beneath whose shade a Christian missionary was telling of the cross. He paused. He listened. They were strange words, most wonderful words; but guilt helped him to understand them. "Ah!" he eried, "that is just what I want!" and throwing from him the instruments of torture, he became a disciple. It was not a mere impulse. It was no transient gush of sympathy. It was rather a strong and abiding conviction. The glorious truth flashed upon his reason, as well as beamed upon his heart, that the cross would meet the appalling exigencies of guilt.—Rev. W. Lord, D. D.

POETRY.

From Burritt's Citizen.

THE CHRISTIAN'S DEATH SONG.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.—Ps. xxiii: 4.

Oh! meet me in the valley,
When heart and flesh shall fail!
And softly, safely lead me on,
Until within the vail;
Then faith shall turn to gladness,
To find myself with Thee!
And trembling hope shall realize
Her full felicity.

Angels shall gather round me—
And joyous greeting give,
To sinners brought from sinful earth,
With them to love and live!
But angels shall be silent,
While dearer spirits press
To mingle with my gushing joy
Their calmer happiness.

And meekly shall they bear me,
Through that bright company,
Towards the brighter throne of Him
Who died to welcome me!
No further guidance needing,
Together shall we bend,
And bless the grace that loving once,
Hath loved us to the end.

Oh! meet me in the valley,
When heart and flesh shall fail!
And softly, safely lead me on,
Until within the vail;
And Saviour! deal as kindly,
With those I leave behind,
Till each shall in our heavenly home,
As sweet a welcome find.

From the Evangelical Messenger.

DEATH OF A CHILD.

If you'll attend, my friends, a while,
I'll tell the story of a child;
She was about eight years of age,
When lo! she left this earthly stage.
One day she ventured to a place
Where Christians met to seek God's grace,
The Lord was pleased to let her see
That sin would lead to misery;
She then began to weep and cry,
And sought for mercy from on high.
But when her wicked father came,
He forced her home to his great shame;
But she continued praying still,
Which did her friends with anger fill;
Her father and her mother too,
United strove her to undo.
At length she prayed that God would come,
And call her suff'ring spirit home;
But whilst upon her dying bed
She called her friends—and thus she said,
You tried to lead my soul to hell,
But now, O parents, fare you well;
O mother, must I see you stand
With all the damned at God's left hand!
How can I bear to hear you cry,
And roam in hell eternally!
Her sisters too she bade adieu,
I soon shall cease to pray for you,
O do forsake your sinful ways,
Cease from your dance, and sport, and plays.
A little while she talked and prayed,
Then clapped her hands and smiling said—
"I hear sweet angels round me sing,
I see my Saviour, Friend, and King!
Yonder I see my Saviour stand,
With crowns of bliss in his right hand.
O, that I could this moment die,'
I'd rise and shout above the sky!"
And now she reigns in Paradise,
Her Jesus wipes her weeping eyes;
For shining angels bore her soul
Up where eternal ages roll!

THE USES OF SORROW.

On, grieve not for the early dead,
Whom God himself hath taken;
But deck with flowers each holy bed,—
Nor deem thyself forsaken,
When, one by one, they fall away,
Who were to thee as summer day.

Weep for the babes of guilt, who sleep
With scanty rags stretched o'er them,
On the dark road, the downward steep
Of misery; while before them
Looms out afar the dreadful tree,
And solemn, sad eternity!

Nor weep alone; but when to Heaven
The cords of sorrow bind thee,
Let kindest help to such be given,
As God shall teach to find thee;
And for the sake of those above,
Do deeds of Wisdom, Mercy, Love.

The child that sickened on thy knee,
Thou weeping Christian mother,
Had learned in this world, lispingly,
Words suited for another.
Oh, dost thou think, with pitying mind,
On untaught infants left behind?

Dickens' Household Words.

AT EVENING TIME IT SHALL BE LIGHT.

Though earth-born shadows now may shroud
Thy thorny path a while,
God's blessed word can part each cloud,
And bid the sunshine smile.
Only believe, in living faith,
His love and power divine;
And ere thy sun shall set in death,
His light shall round thee shine!

When tempest clouds are dark and high,
His bow of love and peace
Shines sweetly in the vaulted sky,
Betokening storms shall cease!
Hold on thy way, with hope unchilled;
By faith and not by sight:
And thou shalt own His word fulfilled—
At eve it shall be light! Barton.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 3d inst., by Elder T. Strohm, Elder J. Haifleigh, of Cumberland county, to Miss Elizabeth Moyer, of Annville, Lebanon county, Pa.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—In this place, on the 26th ult., Thomas G. Jones, aged 12 years, 8 months and 18 days.

On the 14th ult., Mrs. Judith Oves, consort of the late Abraham Oves, formerly of this place, in the 60th year of her age.

On the 25th ult., Mrs. Martha Boas, wife of Wm. D. Boas. Esq., of this place.

In West Hanover, Dauphin county, Pa., David, son of brother David and Mary Seabold, aged 1 year, 5 months and 16 days.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

Providence permitting, a protracted meeting will be held at Lisburn, Cumberland county, Pa., commencing on Saturday evening, the 5th of October. The brethren in the ministry and the public generally are invited to attend.

J. Haifleigh.

The following Protracted Meetings are to be held, Providence permitting, on the Matamoras and Juniatta Circuit, viz:

One near brother Joseph Cameron's, in Turkey Valley, Juniatta county, to commence on the 22d of September.

One near brother John Grubb's, in Wild-cat Valley, Perry county, to commence on the 11th of October.

We do most earnestly solicit the preaching brethren to attend the above meetings.

A. Snyder,
Preacher in Charge.

Also, a Protracted meeting at Bethany, Westmoreland county, Pa., commencing on the 20th of September.

Brothers Winebrenner and Harn will attend. J. M. Klein.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4	50	a 4	62½
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	2	50	a 2	50
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	2	37½	a 2	37½
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				93	a	96
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		56	a	56
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		45	a	50
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		28	a	30
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		60	a	65
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2	00	a 2	25
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1	12	a 1	12
BEEF, per cwt.		- - -	5	00	a 5	50
PORK, do.		- - -	5	00	a 5	25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -		8	a	11
BUTTER, do.		- - -		12½	a	15
LARD, do.		- - -		8	a	8
TALLOW, do.		- - -		8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.				6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - -		12	a	12
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -		56	a	62½
ONIONS,	do.	- -		75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -	1	00	a 1	12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1	25	a 1	30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -		37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -		30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -	1	30	a 1	30
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -	10	00	*a*10	00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	4	00	a 4	00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$5	00	a 5	12½
Do.	Rye,	do. -	3	00	a 3	00
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	3	00	a 3	00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1	05	a 1	10
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		38	a	42
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		65	a	68
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2	50	a 2	62
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1	40	a 1	50
BEEF, per cwt.,		- -	7	00	a 8	75
PORK, do.		- - - - -	7	00	a 7	25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion,

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo decimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

Missionary Pledges.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, -	-	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	-	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	-	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	-	-	10 00
Jacob Miller, -	-	-	10 00
James Miller,	-	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	-	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	-	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	-	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	-	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	-	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	-	-	5 00
James Casey,	-	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.
JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. OCTOBER 1, 1850. NUMBER 11.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

☞ Brother William Vance's Post-office Address is Parrish, Desmoines county, Iowa.

Delegates to the General Eldership.

The Annual Elderships of the Church of God in the U. S., will remember that the General Eldership will hold a triennial meeting next spring, in Pittsburg, Pa.; accordingly it will be their duty to appoint delegates at their respective meetings this fall.

By Divine permission the Elderships of the "Church of God" will meet this year as follows:

The East Pennsylvania Eldership will hold its yearly meeting at Churchtown, Cumberland county, Pa., commencing on Wednesday, October sixteenth.

Brother James Mackey is to preach the opening discourse—or brother J. Keller.

[The brethren will remember to raise a missionary collection in every Church.]

The Ohio Eldership will hold its yearly meeting in the Sugar Creek Bethel, Holmes county, Ohio, near brother John Beidler's, commencing on Monday, the fourteenth of October.

The West Pennsylvania Eldership will hold its yearly meeting at Fiatville, Lawrence county, Pa., commencing on Wednesday, October twenty-third.

The Indiana Eldership will hold its yearly meeting in Jackson township, Decalb county, Indiana, commencing on Monday, October twenty-first.

The Iowa Eldership will hold its yearly meeting in North Bend, Johnson county, Iowa, commencing on Monday, October seventh.

The Michigan Eldership will hold its yearly meeting in the town of Gaines, in the Hamman settlement, commencing on Monday, November eleventh.

Sabbath Evening, Sept. 22.---J. F.

"Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein; for the time is at hand."—Rev. 1: 3.

In the book of Revelation of St. John, there are some things that are very hard to understand; and yet although we may not understand, we should not reject them on that account. There are also some things that are plain and easy, especially the first part of the book, and the last part.

"Blessed is he that readeth"—therefore it is in the order of the providence of God that every one should learn to read. Every child must be taught to read—whether it be the children of the rich or the poor man—and even those who are already grown up, let them try to learn to read the Holy Scriptures.

"And they that hear"—If any cannot read let them listen to the reading of others—and those who can read to aged parents, and those around them, will be doing a good work, and will not lose their reward. Distribute Bibles and Tracts everywhere.

Hear these words preached whenever you can. Keep not away from the sound of the preacher's voice if he be a man of God. Do not say I will listen only to the learned, or the eloquent and gifted, but remember that the bread of life, and waters of salvation, are sweet to the soul, if they even come through the servants of Christ of very humble attainments.

"The words of this prophecy." To prophesy is to speak and teach the things of God, whether it be the foretelling of future events, or no. And in this revelation we have both. The blessed doctrine of Christ crucified, and Christ risen from the dead, is here set forth in words that burn, in the first chapter. Therefore read it—and preach it—and tell it to every man, that Christ Jesus died for our sins, and rose again for our justification.

But it is a prophecy, for it foretells things which have not yet come to pass. "Behold he cometh." The second advent of the Saviour we are taught to look for—all the Apostles and primitive Christians believed in his coming again—it is part of "the faith once delivered to the saints." He went away in the clouds of heaven—and in like manner he will come again. "Behold he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him." In his glorious and immortal body, surrounded by the holy angels, and all the saints who have died in the faith and fear and love of God. "Behold he cometh"—keep looking.

We know not when he comes—but we are to keep the words of this prophecy always in our memory, and in our hearts. As we wait and look for the return of an absent friend, so we are to love the appearing of the blessed Saviour. All these holy doctrines are to dwell in our thoughts, and to be in our prayers, and hymns, and preaching, and conversation.—And our lives on earth among our fellow-men are to be devoted to him in whom we believe, and for whose coming and kingdom we wait and pray.

"For the time is at hand." It is the latter days of the world in which we live, and soon the keeping of a Sabbath—"the rest which remains for the people of God" will begin. "The time is at hand"—the restlessness and changes of nations, and the wonderful improvements of the age in knowledge and science and art, and the anxious desire for bettering the condition of mankind—all make us feel and think that the better day is near at hand. It will come in storm, and fire, and judgment, lasting for a little while, and then the clouds break away and the sunshine of an everlasting day begins.

Lights and Shadows.---No. 3.

BY J. FLAKE.

This world is not all bright, nor is it altogether shade. There are some pleasant days in our life's history, though they may be few and far between—like angel's visits. Let us be thankful that although it is not heaven—neither is it hell. And if there is health and strength, and food and raiment, then there is cause for more abundant thankfulness.

"The pity of the Lord,
To those who fear his name,
Is such as tender parents feel,
He knows our feeble frame."

Some time since I preached from these words, "See that ye refuse not him that speaketh."—Heb. 12: 25—the whole verse. The infidel says that God never spake to man on earth—but reason says it is likely that He did—and faith says that He has spoken in former ages, and still speaks—though all do not hear. The Lord spake gloriously when He gave the law of the ten commands to Israel—and more gloriously when his only begotten Son enlarged, and explained, that law on earth. The Lord still speaks by his Holy Spirit from heaven, which is given to every true minister, and every true believer.

One young man came forward at the close to obtain an interest in the prayers of the brethren. It must be trying to the pride of human nature thus to come and kneel in presence of a congregation as a penitent. Yet many have thus found deliverance at the foot of the cross.

Repentance is a great blessing—it is God alone that gives repentance. Men will not repent until God calls and draws them, and they may then yield. It is a turning to God with sorrow for our sins. And he who has this humble and contrite heart will gladly receive Christ Jesus as his Saviour, and trust alone in his great sacrifice on the cross to obtain forgiveness of sins. Wherever therefore I see the signs of true repentance I think that all will be well.

Dying in the Lord.---J. F.

Last Sabbath morning I was sent for to visit a poor woman who, after three months illness, was dying with the Consumption. In great weakness and affliction of body, she was still able to speak, and the mind was clear though the body was in ruins.

A year or two ago, she through grace, made the good confession, of repentance toward God, and faith in Jesus Christ. And now she had come down to the end of her journey, and was passing through the valley of the shadow of death, and she held fast her faith and hope in Christ, and in peace with God, and peace with all around, was leaving earthly friends, and going to join the great multitude who have departed trusting in one Saviour, and in his all-sufficient sacrifice for sin—his power—his willingness to save. I spoke to her, and prayed with her, commending her to Him whose love is an everlasting love. She died the same evening, aged 45 years.

Her name was Rebecca Carroll, and she was a member of the Church of God in the village of Highspire, where she is buried.

Yesterday I attended her funeral, and spoke from the words of Saint Paul—"That we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge, to lay hold upon the hope set before us."—Hebrews, 6th chapter.

September 25, 1850.

☞ A new edition of a Lexicon of the Dakota language (an Indian tribe near Lake Superior) has just been completed by missionaries to that tribe. It contains upwards of fifteen thousand words. Near thirteen years or more of labor have been expended upon it.

"Arise and Depart."---J. F.

Many are sick—some die. When you are sick, or otherwise afflicted in body, try to humble yourself before God, and consider whether you have not done wrong in any way, that this chastisement has come upon you. Make confession to the Lord, and if needful, to any one you may have injured, or grieved. Also make restitution, and repair injuries where it can be done.

Obtain the help of a good physician. Send for the pious and devoted brethren, and let them offer up prayer in your behalf, in the name—the all prevailing name—of Christ Jesus, the great and merciful High Priest of our profession.

And the prayer of faith may save the sick—and the Lord may raise him up—and if he have committed sins they shall be forgiven him. It was so in early Christian days, and may be so now.

Or perhaps the Lord intends to remove you from this world of trial and sorrow. Do not murmur—humbly submit—you must go some time—perhaps this is the best time. Therefore commit soul and body into the gracious hands of a compassionate God and Saviour, who does all things well. "Whom the Lord loves, he chastens."

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

Moral Retribution:*
As Evinced by the Analogy of Nature.

(CONCLUDED.)

VII. EXTENT OF MORAL RETRIBUTION.

NOTHING is more apparent than that in this world suffering is not always commensurate with criminality. Theories and sophistry are of no avail in support of any conflicting opinion. The fact is so plain and palpable that men will not—cannot be blinded in relation to it. Everywhere, in every department of human action, the good often suffer extremely while the wicked escape comparatively unaffected. It follows therefore if suffering be retribution, it must be experienced in another world, or the Deity is to be charged with the most monstrous injustice, in inflicting upon some men vastly more punishment than their crimes deserve.

It has been said that conscience unobserved actually in all cases inflicts suffering commensurate with criminality; and therefore that whatever may appear to be true men nevertheless really do suffer in this world according to their crimes. But this most positively and flatly contradicts the experience of every body. As has been seen, and as every one knows, remorse is felt more keenly by the comparatively good man for a trivial offence than by the villain for the most flagitious crimes.—Indeed the sophistry of the objection is so shallow as scarcely to deserve notice. Moreover no man can utter it without uttering what he cannot fail to know is an unqualified falsity—without exhibiting a recklessness, which, if it be not attended with the keenest remorse, is itself sufficient evidence of the falsity of the objection.

And if retribution does not consist merely in remorse and its kindred emotions, and if it is to be regarded as striking still deeper into our moral nature, still the fact is scarcely less palpable that retribution is not always or generally commensurate with wrong, in the present world. He who should commit a great wrong upon the very threshhold of the future world, very clearly would not in this world suffer so much, nor so much proportionally, for that wrong as he who should commit that wrong in early life—long ere he came to the grave. So then whichever view is adopted, we are driven to the conclusion that retribution extends to the future world. And as we go into another world with the same capacities for moral suffering or enjoyment, it hence is to be inferred that moral retribution must be in a future world in kind what it is here.—Hence the character of retribution here affords correct data from which to conclude what will be its extent hereafter.

In relation to future retribution only four suppositions seem possible:—Either that something extraneous will ultimately destroy or prevent its influence, or it possesses a redeeming or restorative influence in itself, or it must be capable of exhaustion and therefore eventually cease because its force is spent, or else it must be endless.

As to the first three it is to be remarked that it is presumptuous and dangerous to place any reliance upon them, or any of them, unless absolutely free from all doubt. It is unsafe to depend upon any proposition concerning which a reasonable doubt can be predicated, where the falsity of the proposition involves one in irremediable consequences. If true, a belief in their falsity will not in the least increase their dreadfulness; but if false, a belief in their truthfulness would involve one in all the dread consequences of the opposite. In such a case the exercise of the simplest axioms or maxims of common sense not only dictate the safe path, but also at the same time give us no insignificant or illusive indication of the side upon which truth is to be found: for truth is always safe—error never.

How external influences can be expected to prevent retribution in a future world when they do not in the present it is not so easy to perceive. No combination of extraneous circumstances in this world has ever been known to avert or even restrict retribution, and hence it is preposterous to infer that such a thing is to be expected in a future world. Moreover such influence in order to be effective must necessarily be so adapted as to affect our capacities for enjoyment as well as suffering; and hence would be as likely to prevent our enjoyment as to avert or mitigate retribution. By proving too much, therefore, the argument proves nothing.

And few will presume to affirm that retribution possesses a restorative influence. As well expect the tumbling of the rock from the mountain's brow to restore it to its primitive location—that the retribution consequent upon consuming the finger will restore the finger—that disease will produce health instead of paving the way for disease again—that death tends to restore life—that error promotes truth or tends to restore to it—that wrong-doing tends to innocence—as to suppose that retribution tends to restore to holiness and happiness! Remorse even does not restore the purity that was lost by the wrong. When its keenest pangs have been experienced, there is still a consciousness of guilt quite as great as ever. All of retribution that man ever suffers here still leave him with the same consciousness of guilt. Wrong throws the whole moral machinery into confusion and hurries its action off in a wrong direction; and there is as little probability of its adjusting itself and recovering from the shock as there is when once on the wrong track and in motion, the steam engine will restore itself to its proper position.

The third supposition is entirely fallacious without assuming that retribution is entirely unconnected with the wrong or perversion, which in fact is its cause. Otherwise it evidently cannot cease until the perversion itself is removed. In other words if retribution is the effect of perversion then it cannot be exhausted until the perversion is remedied, and all its effects, so that it should become as if it never had been. Such a result is averse to all our experience, and contrary to every analogy; and is even actually inconceivable—for it is impossible to conceive how a thing can be as though it never had been when there is not only a knowledge that it has been, but a consciousness of evil results flowing from it. Experience and analogy both teach that instead of wearing itself out, retribution continually gains new force and activity.—Give a steam engine machinery as durable and a steam chest as exhaustless as are the characteristics and energies of the moral nature of man, and set it going and few would have much hopes of its exhaustion—even on the wrong track. So retribution ever goes on and on continually developing itself in new strength and forms and indicating new and more fatal perversions.

Nature then indicates no boundaries to the idea of retribution. It, like Revelation, imparts a fearful looking for of judgment; and points every wrong-doer to a sentence that seems but a counterpart of that appalling declaration of the Bible that "the soul that sinneth it shall die." It meets the infidel not only in confirmation of the truthfulness of Revelation as a whole, as is admirably shown by Butler in his Analogy, but it also confirms one of the most important of its individual doctrines.—No man can hope to sin with impunity without shutting his convictions to all the analogies of nature, nor even to think of avoiding the appalling dreadfulness of retribution.

But this article, and with it the entire discussion, must be brought to a close. Many points have been dwelt upon too briefly, and others have been omitted altogether; but if the attention of the thinking few has been elicited to the subject, the writer's time and the editor's space have not been employed entirely in vain. The writer is aware that a different topic, treated in a less abstruse manner, and appeals rather to the sensibilities than the reason, would have been more grateful to many of the readers of the Advocate; but he is also aware that what is the most grateful is not always the most wholesome.

A. D. W.

*"The Demand and Demonstration of a Future Retribution in Natural Theology." REV. G. B. CHEEVER, D. D., in the Biblical Repository for Jan. 1850.

Humility.

WE find in reading the Scriptures of Divine truth, that the principle of humility should characterize every true and obedient child of God. It is a principle which our Saviour and his Apostles taught. Job, the servant of God, was reminded of the propriety of this principle by Eliphaz, the Temanite, saying, "When men are cast down, there is a lifting up, and he shall save the humble."—Job 22: 29. It is also said in Luke 18: 14, "Every one that exalteth himself shall be abased, but he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." It is said by Peter "that God resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble," and then he commands his brethren therefore "to humble themselves under the mighty hand of God."—Peter 5: 5, 6. Moreover, Solomon, the wise man, said "that God hates six things; yea, seven are an abomination to him," and one out of the seven is a proud look; and in the 8th and 13th of Proverbs it is said that "they who fear the Lord hate evil, pride and arrogancy." But oh! how widely different it is with professors of religion in this our day and generation. Lord save us from Satan's snares: for I fear many of us have forsaken the fountain of living waters, and have fallen in love with some of our little idol gods, to serve and worship them, which we have once thrown away and given to the moles and bats; or, like Jehu, manifest great zeal for the Lord in destroying Ahab's seventy sons, and throwing down their altars, and breaking up their idol worship, and not willing to confess and forsake his own sins; and like Saul, when God spake to him through Samuel, the Prophet, that he should hearken to the will of the Lord, and go and destroy Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they had; but, like a goodly number of professors of the present day, spare the king and the best of the flock, in order to offer unto the Lord; all of which manifestly declared the pride of his heart in disobeying and rejecting the command of God.

So it is with some of our dear brethren and sisters, when they are admonished to deny themselves of this soul-destroying monster, namely: PRIDE. They say, like Saul did to Samuel, "We have obeyed the commandment of the Lord." But, like Samuel, I would ask and say: "What meaneth, then, this bleating of the sheep, and this lowing of the oxen?" So, then, if the voice of the Lord had been obeyed, there would have been no bleating of sheep in the camp of Israel in this case; neither would there be any necessity of seeing such a display of extravagance in dress as can be seen at the present day; neither would such make themselves transgressors of the law of God in building up again the things which they once destroyed. I have long seen it to be an unfavorable mark, particularly in the young convert. When he first starts in the cause of God, he dresses plain. He looks as if old things had passed away, and walks as if he was on the way to heaven. He loves the house of God—he loves to hear the plain truth of God preached and practiced. See how they manifest their love and humility to one another in coming to the prayer-meetings, and so on. But mark them, if you please, when they get cold in religion, how soon they are inclined to put on a little more of a fashionable dress, and a little more costly too.—Presently you see a few more ruffles and tight lacing, neat and tight shoes, and well blackened. I have thought that some of the good brethren spend as much of the Lord's money in keeping their shoes and boots in extraordinary style, just for one year, as would supply the wants of some of our poor widows or sick neighbors for at least one month out of twelve. Then look up to the head, behold the ears and hands, and you see them ornamented and decorated with all the unbecoming and unscriptural yet fashionable things of the day.

Oh! what a pity that the devil should gain such ascendency over God's dear children, by his sleight and cunning craftiness, to lead both men and women to make shipwreck of faith and of a good conscience, and oftentimes proves their ultimate ruin. My brethren and sisters, and all who love our Jesus, does not the above prove that we should always be humble, not only in spirit, as some have vainly supposed, and indeed preached from the sacred desk, but also presenting our bodies a living sacrifice, wholly acceptable unto God, and not to be conformed to this world, which evidently means the many unscriptural and unchristian-like customs and fashions so prevalent at the present day? Is it not when Christians are truly humble before the Lord, and are willing to become anything or nothing for Christ's sake, when we both feel and demonstrate it by external appearance, by letting our moderation be made known to all men; or, like the Apostle Paul, when he said "he would rather eat no meat whilst the world stood if it offended one of his brethren?" Oh! for a more abundant supply of such a heavenly spirit and disposition like Paul had when he spoke these words, and that we through the Spirit may mortify the affections and lusts of the flesh, to make a full and entire surrender of ourselves and all we have to God, and then he has said he will lift us up, in point of privilege, seeing that we are exalted, to enjoy the love of God shed abroad in our hearts. So, then, we see, according to the language of Micah, the prophet of God, what he requires at our hands, namely: "To deal justly and love mercy, and to walk humbly before the Lord."

"Know ye not that they which run in a race run all; but one receiveth the prize. So run that ye may obtain." L. F.

Frizzelleburg, Md., Aug. 30, 1850.

Infant Baptism.

Brother J. Flake:—

In No. 4 of the present volume of the Religious Telescope, I saw a communication from the Rev. H. Kumler, Jr., in which he seems to be very much excited, in consequence of a sermon which Elder J. Winebrenner preached in the West. In the first place, the Rev. Kumler endeavors to make the impression that baptism came in the room of circumcision; but this he finds up-hill work. I wish, however, he would give us a "Thus saith the Lord." Brother Kumler, give us a passage of Scripture as proof for that doctrine.

Secondly: He says, "Now as circumcision was the sign and seal of the Abrahamic covenant, even so is Christian Baptism the sign and seal of the second or New Testament organization." Now, he refers for proof to Acts 2: 38, 39. Astonishing—what proof! What does that passage prove? Why, that the Holy Ghost is promised to us and our believing children, and as many as the Lord shall call; but not that baptism is the sign and seal of the covenant, as the Rev. K. wishes to have it. I think brother Kumler must try and find some better proof than the above. But I think, also, he had some doubts himself on the subject, from the fact that he says, "If baptism is not the outward badge or seal," &c., "please tell me what is the outward seal and badge of Christianity." If brother Kumler is willing to receive testimony from the Messiah, we shall point him to the badge of true Christianity. See, brother Kumler, John 13: 35. "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." Love, then, is the badge of true Christianity, and not baptism. You have failed in proving your point, brother K. You must try again.

"But once more," says brother Kumler, "if baptism is the signing of God's second covenant on our part, why is there so much backwardness in consenting to sign and seal this gracious bargain?" &c. Now, I would ask brother Kumler where, in all the Scriptures, is baptism called a signing or sealing? Does brother K. think that the people will believe all his assertions without proof? If he does, he is mistaken.

Again: He sets out to prove Infant Baptism; but before he comes far, he undertakes to show the necessity of believers attending to baptism, or, as he has it, signing the second covenant. He says, "Now any believer of the covenant and its visible badge, baptism, who still disobeys or neglects God's order, is the loser perhaps to an untimely extent." Now, if this be truth, why is it that the ministers of their Church preach so little about baptism? For it is a known fact that they preach twenty sermons in our part of the country without saying any thing about baptism, which, if neglected, "will be an untimely loss." And, strange to tell, after all, when Elder John Winebrenner comes to the West, and preaches up the duty of "signing God's covenant," as brother K. gives it, then he brings him out in public print—I suppose for saying the people must be baptized immediately, as he says in his note. O, consistency, thou art a jewel!

It seems, however, that Elder J. Winebrenner did not unbaptize brother Kumler for the first time. He says, "For the last year, and prior, I have been unbaptized I know not how often." I would simply signify to brother Kumler how he can avoid this getting unbaptized so frequently; and that is, by going down into the water and being baptized with the English.

In the next place the Rev. K. wishes to satisfy the friends of immersion that he is baptized. And how does he try to do this? Why, by saying that he is "one of the members of some nation." Strange proof, indeed! Is not every unconverted man a member of some nation, and to whom God made promises too? But, brother K. ought to recollect that all the promises are made on conditions. For instance, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," &c. But, the best proof brother K. has for his baptism is A. Clark, Watson, Robinson's Calmet, Smucker, and the Comprehensive Com., and especially Curtz on Infant Baptism, from which he says, "I have satisfied myself." Indeed, I think Bro. K. is easy to satisfy. Why did he not bring up for proof John the Baptist, Christ the Head of the Church, and his twelve Apostles? Ah, the reason is obvious. He knows well enough that they are all against him on the subject. If brother K. writes again on the same subject, let him bring up those witnesses I have referred to, and they will settle the controversy at once.

After all, brother K. seems to be bad off in the West. He says, between this and Stillwater, on examination, there is no water deep enough to immerse. Strange, indeed, no water deep enough to immerse. Why not do as did the people of Jerusalem and Judea, go where there is water deep enough to immerse?

Now, before I close, let me ask brother K. a few questions; and the first is, Where were the three thousand baptized by pouring, as you say in your communication? Secondly, Who poured them in baptism? And lastly; How long is it since they were poured in baptism?

Yours, an advocate of truth,

JACOB KELLER.

Dauphin Camp-meeting.

Linglestown, Sept. 16, 1850.

Brother Flake:—

I herein send you a short account of the Camp-meeting held by the Churches of God on my Circuit. It was held on the ground of brother John Felty, who kindly gave us the grove, situated about three miles west of Linglestown, and commenced on the 19th of August. Twenty-four tents, besides a boarding-tent, were erected on the ground. On Monday evening, the first evening of our Camp, it being rainy, we commenced our public exercises in a tent, when a German discourse was delivered by brother F. Hartman, after which two souls presented themselves as subjects for prayer. Thus our meeting commenced by public preaching, and continued regularly until the following Monday morning.

The preachers in attendance were brothers D. Maxwell, J. H. Hurley, J. Haifleigh, Thos. Strohm, J. Keller, S. Crawford, A. Snyder, W. McFadden, F. Hartman, W. Johnson and myself, and Elder S. B. Howard, of the Free-will Baptist denomination, with some others, (brothers J. Flake, J. J. Miller, &c.,) who did not continue with us during the meeting, all of whom preached or spoke publicly to the people.

The preaching and public addresses were marked with spirit and energy. The prayer and experience meetings were good and spiritual, expressive of deep feeling. On the whole, the meeting was a good one. Some 18 or 19 souls professed to have been converted to God, 14 were baptized, 13 received into church-fellowship, and many more felt the power of truth, though not willing to yield, but said, "Go thy way till a more convenient season."

In conclusion I would say, our Camp-meeting has done much for us all around, although we had some labor, and a good deal of urging, till we succeeded it getting them out; but they were very glad when they got there. Others felt as though they were almost lost on account of their disobedience, and made promises for time to come. My prayer to God is, that he may so revive his work at our Camp-meetings that we may have old-fashioned Camp-meetings. And may God especially fire our hearts on the subject of revivals. In looking over the columns of the Advocate, I was glad to find a promise by one of our elder brethren of analyzing some of the new-fashioned objections to Camp-meetings. May God cause a resurrection of the spirit on the subject!

Yours, as ever,

SIMON FLEEGAL.

Camp-meeting in Indiana County.

Grass-hill, Sept. 9, 1850.

Dear Brother Flake:—

At the request of the brethren, I take up my pen to let you and the readers of the Advocate know how we are getting along in the good old way.

We commenced a Camp-meeting on the 27th of August and closed on the 4th of September. In the midst of discouragements and disappointments, we set forward with 12 tents and 15 families, with Elder Joseph Glenn, our present Pastor, and Elder William Davis, and pitched in the grove belonging to John Angle. When we got fixed up, the brethren began to preach the Word very plain, pointed, practical and encouraging. The brethren took courage, and were revived in the spirit of their mind; and, bless God, the powers of darkness gave way. On Thursday evening we had five penitents forward, some of whom obtained pardon. The next evening we had nine, and on Saturday evening 12. On Sabbath it was very rainy: however, we had a tolerable congregation; but on account of the rain, we had to keep meeting in tents prepared for the purpose. There were quite a number of seekers, and the interest still increasing. Several were happily converted, among whom was a man who had occupied a place among a people entitled the "Christian Connexion" as a preacher. He is now reclaimed and received into fellowship among us, and he will no doubt be very useful if he keeps humble. O! that God would raise up men of ability to labor in word and doctrine faithfully.

On Monday we repaired to the water, and brother Glenn baptized four converts according to the ancient mode; and, bless God, He was there to own His ordinance, and saints rejoiced, while some felt the heavy lashes of a guilty conscience for not obeying the Lord in baptism. In the evening we attended to Feet-washing, (not heart-washing, as some of the Sectarians in our neighborhood want to have it.) However, before we attended to the ordinances, brother Glenn delivered a short address, from Rev. 14: 12.—"Here are they that keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus." He showed the identical characters that act in the language of the text, and in conclusion he hoped that no one would be so unkind as to go and say, as some have, that we say it is only us that keep the commands of God and faith of Jesus, when we give every Christian the same liberty; and our obeying the commands of God does not prevent them from obeying also, unless they think God wants sheep of different names and marks. But if they go in for Bible religion, they must come out on union principles; and when we invited them, it was to do a "Thus saith the Lord," and if they did not, the fault is in them and not in us.

But, to conclude—our meeting continued to grow better, and mourners were out night and day, at every opportunity. We had a time somewhat similar to our first Camp-meeting. We had remarkable good order during the whole time. The result of our meeting was, about 15 were converted, mostly promising young men, nine baptized, and others will follow soon. May God carry on his work in this country. Brother Davis has left us, and Bro. Glenn is holding meetings wherever he can. On the 14th he is going to try a hard place. May God give success.

Yours, in love.

GEO. BARKSTRESSER.

To the Preachers.

Brother Flake:—

During our late Camp-meeting, several of the preachers of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, in consultation, authorized me to issue a call for the ministers of this Eldership to meet one day previous to the meeting of the Eldership, to form an association to meet Quarterly, for the mutual edification and instruction of each other. The object principally, I suppose, will be the mental and spiritual improvement of the ministry of the Church of God.

All who are thus disposed, will please meet at Churchtown, at the Bethel, at 10 o'clock, A. M., on Tuesday, October 15th, the day previous to the meeting of the Eldership.

E. H. THOMAS.

Schuylkill County Camp-meeting.

AUBURN, Sept. 21, 1850.

BROTHER J. FLAKE:—

OUR Camp-meeting in Schuylkill county commenced on the 26th of August. The number of tents was 18. The preachers present were Elders T. Strohm, F. Hartman, S. Fleagle, Geo. Petry, J. Hepler and myself.—The preaching was plain and powerful—the effect glorious. The number of converts 25—some say 27—and nine were baptized and received into church-fellowship. The meeting left a good impression on the community, as far as I can learn.

The last week I spent in Lehigh county. During my stay in that county eight were out to be prayed for—three professed faith in the Messiah, and five were baptized. The prospects in Lehigh are good. Pray for us.

Yours, in love,

JACOB KELLER.

OBITUARY OF Sister ELIZABETH ELCOCK.

DIED, on the 9th of September, 1850, near Siddenstown, York county, Pa., Sister ELIZABETH ELCOCK, wife of brother Joseph Elcock.

Sister Elcock complained for a considerable time of her health. A short time before her death, she became affected with the Dropsy, which caused her departure. On the evening of the 8th, at 9 o'clock, she bowed her knees with us around the family altar, when her voice was heard in prayer for the last time. In the morning, at 3 o'clock, her spirit left the body without a struggle. Her last words were, "Lord Jesus receive me."

In the death of our sister the community has lost a good and kind neighbor, and the Church a faithful member, who maintained her integrity to the end. Her children have lost a kind and affectionate mother, as well as her husband an affectionate companion. But we trust while we sustain this irreparable loss, heaven has gained a new inhabitant.

Sister Elcock embraced religion at Andersonstown about six years ago, and remained a faithful member of the Church of God until the Master said, "It is enough, come up higher."

All the days of her pilgrimage were thirty-three years, one month and twenty-two days.

On Tuesday, the 10th of September, her remains were conveyed to the grave-yard at the Siddenstown Bethel, where they were interred A funeral discourse was delivered on the occasion by the writer, from Amos 4: 12, followed with an exhortation by brother Plowman, to a large and solemn congregation.

Thus in life she passed away,
Her feeble body now decays;
But in judgment she will stand,
And rise to dwell on Canaan's land.

SIMON FLEEGAL.

OBITUARY OF Bro. ABR'M BAMBERGER.

[COMMUNICATED BY REQUEST.]

DIED, on the 31st of October, 1849, near Linglestown, Dauphin county, Pa., Brother ABRAHAM BAMBERGER, at an advanced age.

Father Bamberger was one of the earliest members of the Church of God in Dauphin county. For many years his house was open for the reception of the ministers of Christ. His family was a place of resort for the faithful. His heart, his hands and his purse were ever open to administer to the wants of the necessitous, and to promote the cause of God, to which he so closely adhered for many long years; during which period he adorned the doctrine of God by an upright walk and chaste conversation. But, after having arrived at a ripe old age, having done the work of his generation, borne the fruits of Christian usefulness, and answered the designs of his Heavenly Father, he was wafted home by the angelic convoy to the Paradise of God, to partake of his great reward. He has died to all below, but lives in the regions of immortality. His remains sleep in the burying-ground of God's people at Linglestown, while his spirit doubtless lives in glory, awaiting the consummation of the period when soul and body shall be re-united, to possess eternal bliss and celebrate eternal praise. H.

Dauphin Co. Camp-meeting, Aug. 23, 1850.

Notice.

THE Elders of the several local Churches on the Cumberland Circuit are hereby requested to meet at Shiremanstown on Saturday, the 12th of October, at two o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of appointing delegates to the next Annual Eldership. Punctual attendance is requested.

J. C. SEABROOKS,
J. HAIFLEIGH.

September 23, 1850.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Free Church of Scotland.

In the August number of the Home and Foreign Record of the Free Church a summary is given, from which it appears that this Church, as a Church, "is carrying out more fully than perhaps any other Church on earth, all the Schemes which are fitted to promote the edification of the body of Christ, and the evangelization of the world, at home and abroad. Other churches are engaged in the noblest Christian enterprises; and many evangelistic efforts, while not made by churches as such, are vigorously prosecuted by portions of the best of their ministers and members, who have voluntarily associated themselves in the character of religious societies, for the sake of furthering these objects. But the Free Church is conducting all sorts of Scriptural movements in her proper character, with the whole force of her organization, as a Church. She has her Church, School, and Manse Building Schemes, covering Scotland with churches, schools, and manses. She has her Sustentation Fund, furnishing the main support of the pastors of her seven hundred flocks, her fund for those that are disabled through age and infirmity, and her funds for the widows and orphans that her departed ministers have left behind them. She has her Collegiate Institutions, for thoroughly training hundreds of students for the ministry, and her plan for endowing, and placing on a footing of permanent safety, efficiency and comfort, an adequate theological education. She has her Education Scheme, for training in her admirable normal schools, and supplying and assisting to support, hundreds of the best and most efficient teachers which the country contains; while her Scheme is ready to be wrought in unison with, or as a part of, any other Scheme or Schemes that are likely to further the Christian education of all the children of the land. She has also her Sabbath-schools, with their thousands of teachers, and greatly more than one hundred thousand scholars. She has her Home Mission and Church Extension Scheme —planting preaching stations, and fostering them into ministerial charges; and ready, as means and opportunity are furnished, to penetrate with evangelistic labors the mass of heathenism at our doors. She has also her Committees for exposing prevailing errors, for checking intemperance, and for promoting the sanctification of the Sabbath. She has her Scheme for providing gospel privileges for the highlands, whose interesting people cleave to her in crowds for the ordinances of grace. She has her plans for assisting in the evangelization of Ireland, and for keeping up correspondence and intercourse with other churches. She has her Colonial and Continental Scheme, for providing the ordinances of the gospel for our countrymen in all the British Colonies, and for sending the light of salvation to darkened districts of the continent of Europe and adjoining islands, in which more or fewer of our countrymen dwell. She has her Jewish Mission so replete in its past history with tokens of God's wonderfully favoring providence, and effectual, enriching blessing. And to crown all, besides her interesting Mission to Africa, she has her noble India Mission, training thousands of gifted Hindoos in such secular and scriptural knowledge as is serving to subvert in their minds the false religion of their country, to plant conviction of the truth of Christianity, and, in the case of not a few, to make them, through Divine mercy, partakers of regenerating grace; so that already the mighty fabric of idolatry in that land begins to shake to its foundations, its adherents are forced to feel that its doom is sealed, and the prospect is not an imaginary or a distant one, of seeing it laid prostrate before the ark of the living God. All these and other Christian enterprises are conducted, not by private associations of her ministers and members, but by committees and agencies, appointed, authorized, directed, and controlled by her as a Church. No other Church has, so far as we know, such a complete system of organized and effective Schemes and plans in operation, for fulfilling all the purposes for which the Church of Christ exists."

THE MORMONS.—Mr. Mackay has written for the London Morning Chronicle, a full and interesting account of the Mormons, a large number of whom are constantly emigrating to this country from England. He says that the Mormons boast of having an emigration fund of three and a half tons of California gold.—Dr. Mackay saw and mixed much with these enthusiastics in Liverpool. He was introduced to one of their priests, who evinced the most friendly feeling, finding that he was the author of a piece of poetry which is in high favor amongst them.

It seems that during the last ten years, the emigration of Mormons from England has been nearly 14,000, and that during the last year it amounted to 2500—chiefly farmers and mechanics of a superior class, from Lancashire, Yorkshire, Wales, and the southern parts of Scotland. "The growth of Mahomedanism," Dr. Mackay says, "rapid as it was, is not to be compared with the rise and growth of Mormonism."—Presbyterian.

VIRGINIA VALLEY CROPS.—The Winchester Virginian says the wheat, as far as threshed, promises a better yield, and better quality, than at any one time anticipated. The timely rains have improved the corn, though it will still be considerably under an average crop in Frederick and the counties adjoining.

American Bible Society.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Managers of the American Bible Society was held at the Bible Society's House, on the 5th ult. Appropriate resolutions were adopted on the death of Isaac Carow, Esq., who, from the organization, has been a member of the Board of Managers, and for nine years one of the Society's Vice-Presidents. Nine new auxiliary societies were recognized; namely, three in Arkansas, and in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, New York and Texas one each. Grants of books were made to different parts of the U. States, and to foreign countries. The books called for and granted were in the Italian, French, Portuguese, Spanish, German and Danish languages, as well as in the English. Grants were also made to the Pittsburg Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and to the Society for meliorating the condition of the Jews. Interesting communications were read from New Mexico, California, and Oregon; and also from Jaffna, acknowledging the receipt of the Society's appropriation, and saying that it is expected that the new version of the Tamul Scriptures will be printed in October; another from the Rev. Dr. Perkins, of Oroomiah, with a specimen sheet of the ancient and modern Syriac version of the Bible, now in course of preparation for the Nestorians. A letter was read also from the banks of the Euphrates, showing the happy effects of the circulation of the Bible in those regions.

BAPTISM OF A CLERGYMAN OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.—The Bath Journal says:—"On Sunday week, Rev. C. Chapman, A. M., late Chaplain of Tresco and Bryer, in the Scilly Isles, was publicly baptized by immersion, at the Counterslip Chapel, Bristol. The Rev. gentleman has for some time publicly professed the principles of the Baptists, and for the last three Sundays had occupied the pulpit at the Baptist Chapel, at Keynsham.

☞ The remains of a giant are reported by the Elizabethtown (Ky.) Register to have been lately discovered in the sands of Rolling Fork, a tributary of the Ohio river, some 12 miles from Elizabethtown. They consist of a thigh bone six times the size of an ordinary man's thigh, and a collar bone in like proportion. There is said to be no doubt of their being the relics of a human being, and a physician who examined them thinks the height of the person must have been ten or twelve feet.

☞ Information is wanted of a young woman named Catharine Flick, aged about 20 years, who left the family of Mr. Isaac Lykens, at Springfield Furnace, in December, 1848, or January, 1849, who has not since been heard from. Any information respecting her will be thankfully received by her afflicted parents at Collinsville, Blair county, Pa.

GEO. FLICK.

Editors throughout the State will confer a great favor by noticing the above.

☞ Professor Page has made a report to the Secretary of the Navy, giving an outline of his experiments in the application of electro-magnetism as a motive power. He says the power is peculiarly fitted for purposes of navigation if it can be made subservient, and a trial upon a scale of one hundred horse power seems to be the only mode of arriving at a definite conclusion upon this point.

Population of Milwaukie.—The census of Milwaukie shows a population of twenty thousand and twenty-six. In 1834, only sixteen years ago, Solomon Juneau was the sole white male inhabitant of the town. In the spring of that year the first frame building was put up there. Even in 1840, but ten years ago, Milwaukie could only number 1700 inhabitants.

Apples on a Grape Vine.—Mr. Nice, of Pottsville, grows a grape vine twined around an apple tree. The vine has for years borne blossoms but no fruit. This year fruit appears, which, externally is apple, with its down, its flush, its tufted crowns, &c., internally the pulpy texture is more grape than apple, but the seed and capsular tegument favor the apple.

Death of the Ex-King of France.—The Telegraph has announced the death of Louis Phillppe, one of the most remarkable men of the age, and one whose life is connected with the most important events in the history of France. He died on the 26th of August, in England, where he was living—in exile, in the 73d year of his age.

☞ Captain Taggart made another successful ascension with his self-propelling balloon, on Monday afternoon, from Lowell, Mass., ascending to a great height. After floating in different directions for about two hours, he landed at Wilmington. He propels his balloon in the course desired by working a crank, which puts in motion the necessary paddles or fans.

Bishop Bascom.—We regret to learn that this eminent orator and divine died at Louisville, Lord's-day, the 8th ult. As a popular speaker, Bishop B. had few equals in this country. His talents as a writer were also of a superior order. His demise is a serious loss to the Methodist Church.

Severe Winters.—Grant Thorburn, in writing to the New York Observer, says, that fifty years ago the winters were more severe and much longer than now. On the first of September, 1798, snow began to fall; that snow lay on the street till April 15, 1799.

California Gold.—The gold shipped from California, since the discovery of the mines, is estimated at about 50,000,000; more than one-half of which has come to the United States. The last news gives promise that there is "plenty more of the same sort left."

Number of Jews.—The whole number of Jews in the world is estimated by Isaac De Costa to be between five and seven millions—nearly as great as when in their glory in Palestine.

Discovery of Gold in Indiana.—Gold has been discovered on the banks of Sugar Creek, Crawfordsville, Indiana. One man washed out two hundred dollars worth in a few days.

Schuylkill County.—Orwigsburg has a population of 909, in 1840, 779; St. Clair has 2019, in 1840, 605; Blythe township has a population of 440.

☞ President Mahon, of Oberlin Institute, recently presented his resignation to the Board of Trustees, and it was accepted.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Slip from the Missionary Magazine for Oct.

DEATH OF REV. DR. JUDSON.

The mournful, but not wholly unexpected intelligence has reached us that the Rev. Adoniram Judson, D. D., the senior missionary of the Union, died at sea, April 12, 1850, in the sixty-second year of his age. The intelligence was communicated by Mr. T. S. Ranney, in a letter dated, Mauritius, June 18, whose narrative we have somewhat condensed, but omitting no material fact.

It will be recollected that our last information left Dr. Judson on board the French barque, Aristide Marie, bound for the Isle of Bourbon, with the reluctant assent of his friends, his physician having recommended such a voyage as the only possible means of restoration. It being desirable to get to sea as soon as possible, application was made to the Commissioner of the Provinces to permit the barque to be towed out of the river by the steamer Proserpine, which was that morning to proceed southward with troops. Permission was granted, and on Wednesday, April 3, by the kindness of Capt. Lawford, commandant of artillery, a palanquin and bearers, took Dr. Judson, then too weak to stand, and carried him on board. There they learned with surprise and sorrow, that the steamer would not take them in tow. The commander of the troops claimed that while employed as military transport, the vessel was not subject to the Commissioner's order, and on the ground that it might endanger the lives of the soldiers, declined to comply with it. The consequence of this collision of authorities was, that instead of getting to sea in twenty-four hours, they were five days in reaching Amherst, and it was six days before the pilot left the vessel. How much was thus lost it is impossible to conjecture.

The delay permitted Mrs. Judson, (who would gladly have accompanied her husband, though at the hazard of her life, if he had consented,) and Mr. Stilson and Mrs. Stevens, to visit him repeatedly, and administer to his comfort. He bore the fatigue of embarkation very well, and on Thursday took more refreshment than for several days previous. This gave hope of a favorable change, but on Friday he was not as well, and his two Burman assistants, Ko En and Ko Sway Doke, disciples of many years' standing, who remained on board till the pilot left the vessel, requested that he might be taken back to Maulmain. They were confident he was near his end and could not endure the thought of his burial in the ocean: they wanted his grave to be made where they and the other disciples could look upon it. But any attempt to do this would have proved fatal, and there was no choice but to fulfill their original purpose, Mr. Stilson reminding the affectionate disciples of the death and unknown burial place of Moses.

On Saturday, he was perceptibly weaker. Such was his pain that he said he would willingly die—if he could. On Sunday, being more calm and free from pain, he conversed more freely and at length than he had been able to, describing somewhat minutely the causes of his pain. He said that no one could conceive the intensity of his sufferings. Death would have been a glad relief. The idea of death caused no peculiar emotion of either fear or transport. His mind was so affected by suffering that he could not think or even pray. Nay, he could not think of his wife and family.—He had bitter sorrow in parting with them at first; but in Mrs. Judson's subsequent visits, speech had been almost denied him, and when they parted, the day before, perhaps the last time on earth, it was without a word, and almost without a thought, so entirely had pain absorbed every faculty. Yet he felt he had nothing to complain of. He knew it was the will of God, and therefore right. Alluding to the swelling of his feet, he said, "The natives are frightened when they see this. They regard it as a sure sign of approaching death, but I do not; I have talked with the doctor about this, and have myself remarked, at different times, the swelling and subsiding. I still feel that there is so much of life in me that I shall recover."

On Monday, the 6th, at half past three o'clock, P. M., the pilot, with the two assistants above named, and Moung Shway Moung, of the Amherst church, left the ship. At the request of Dr. Judson, Mr. Ranney wrote to Mrs. J. his opinion of himself, that "he went out to sea with a strong feeling that he should recover." But on the same day the violence of his pains returned, and his left side was swollen much, from which he gained partial relief. On Tuesday morning, the Tennasserim coast being yet visible, they enjoyed a fresh and invigorating breeze, but a violent thunner-storm came on, followed by a calm. For a short time, Dr. J. suffered less pain, but a hiccough increased upon him. He said, "This hiccough is killing me: can you think of anything to do for it?" He afterwards slept considerably, and took some slight refreshment, but in the afternoon a new symptom appeared which continued to the last,—frequent vomiting and an inability to retain anything upon his stomach.

During the night and the next day the weather was exceedingly hot. Dr. Judson refused all nourishment and inclined to sleep, probably on account of the laudanum and ether administered. He said he should weary them but little longer. The captain gave several prescriptions without effect, on which he said, "It is of little consequence. I do not wish any one to think I died because all was not done that could be done for me. Medicine is of no use. The disease will take its course." While suffering the acute pain, which invariably preceded vomiting, he said, "Oh that I could die at once and go immediately into Paradise, where there is no pain!"

In the evening of Wednesday, as Mr. Ranney was sitting by his bedside, he said, "I am glad you are here. I do not feel so abandoned. You are my only kindred now, the only one on board who loves Christ, I mean, and it is a great comfort to have one near me who loves Christ." "I hope," said Mr. R., "you feel that Christ is now near, sustaining you." "Oh, yes!" he replied. "It is all right there. I believe He gives me just so much pain and suffering as is necessary to fit me to die,—to make me submissive to his will." The captain, (who spoke but little English, but took unwearied pains to make himself understood by a frequent resort to a French and English Dictionary, and was a pattern of kindness and benevolence,) offered another prescription, but Dr. Judson thanked him and declined. He spoke of the invigorating influence of the wind, and expressed a fear that they would lose it during the night, which proved true.—After midnight there was a dead calm, and a very oppressive atmosphere. At two o'clock his breathing became very difficult, but after vomiting he breathed more freely.

On Thursday morning his eyes had a dull appearance, remained half closed while sleeping, and seemed glassy and deathlike. His stomach rejected all refreshment. At ten and twelve o'clock he took some ether, which he said did him good. After vomiting, with the suffering that preceded it, he said, "Oh, how few there are who suffer such great torment,—who die so hard!" During all the night his sufferings increased, so that it was inexpressibly painful to behold his agony,—sometimes calling for water, which gave relief only while he was drinking it, to be followed by the pain of ejecting it. At midnight he said his fever had returned. His extremities were cold, his head hot,—it was the fever of death. His weakness was such that he now seldom spoke, except to indicate some want, which he more frequently did by signs.

During the forenoon of Friday, the 12th, his countenance was that of a dying man. About noon he showed some aberration of mind, but it was only transient. At three o'clock he said in Burmese to Poonapah, a native servant, "It is done, I am going." Shortly after he made a sign with his hand downwards, which was not understood;—drawing Mr. Ranney's ear close to his mouth, he said convulsively, "Brother Ranney will you bury me! bury me!—quick! quick!" These words were perhaps prompted by the thought of burial in the sea crossing his mind. Mr. Ranney here being called out for a moment, Dr. Judson spoke to the servant in English and also in Burmese, of Mrs. Judson, bidding him "take care of poor mistress," and at fifteen minutes past four o'clock he breathed his last. "His death." says Mr. Ranney, "was like falling to sleep. Not the movement of a muscle was perceptible, and the moment of the going out of life was indicated only by his ceasing to breathe. A gentle pressure of the hand, growing more and more feeble as life waned, showed the peacefulness of the spirit about to take its homeward flight."

It was first determined to keep the body for burial on Saturday, but they were admonished of the necessity of immediate preparations. A strong plank coffin soon received the body, several buckets of sand were poured in to make it sink, and at 8 o'clock, P. M., the crew assembled; the larboard port was opened, and in perfect silence, broken only by the voice of the captain, the remains were committed to the deep, in latitude 13 deg. north, longitude 93 deg. east, nine days after their embarkation at Maulmain, and scarcely three days out of sight of the mountains of Burmah.

We have not the space, nor is this the appropriate occasion, fitly to review the long career of Christian heroism, which a wise Providence has thus closed. When looking only to one side of it,—the long banishment from home and country, the toils, anxieties, sufferings, and bereavements that darkened its whole progress, the unspeakable, lonely agony of its closing scenes, the silent burial and nameless tomb,—its aspect seems cheerless and forbidding. But when the sea shall give up its dead, and the undying results of this life are made visible in the sight of the risen nations, these will but heighten the glory with which it is arrayed. Even now, to the dimmer vision of faith, so pure is the radiance investing it, that a visible ascent through the opening heavens could have added little to our conception of the fulness of joy with which the departing saint entered into rest through the chambers of the deep.

Mr. Ranney arrived at Mauritius June 15th, and hoped to return to Calcutta in season for the August steamer, which would take him to Maulmain by the 19th of the month, then, probably, to give Dr. Judson's family, and the mission, the first intelligence of their bereavement.

[The following remarks were written on the death of Dr. Judson before receiving the above.—Christian Chronicle.]

We are pained to learn that this great and good man is no more. He left his family and labors in Maulmain, in consequence of prostration of health, for a voyage at sea some months ago, in the hope of regaining it, but in a few days after his embarkation, he yielded to the disease, and fell a prey to the destroyer. His wife and children he left behind, and was accompanied by one missionary only to sympathize and console him in his expiring hours.—He was buried in the sea, and thus this "sublime man" has received a "most sublime burial," over which the swelling billows will continue to roll in their majesty till the morning of the resurrection, when the ocean shall give up its dead at the sound of the archangels trump.

There is no man in the nineteenth century who has done the same amount of good to the lost and perishing. His heroic sufferings for Christ, his unwearied toils in making a language, and translating the Bible into it, for millions on millions of benighted heathen of the present and coming generations, his labors as pastor of a native church, and his teachings of the Bible to train native preachers for the great work of the gospel ministry, all these go to mark him as the missionary of all, as the benefactor of his race, and as the favored of the Lord. He did wait all the days of his appointed time, as he triumphantly exclaimed on the Island of St. Helena, when he deposited the remains of his wife, and was faithful till death. He is now with her spirit and the spirit of her who sleeps beneath the Hopia tree in Amherst, and in heaven together shall forever recount the scenes enacted on Burman shores, and rejoice over the sacrifices they made in honor of the great sacrifice of the world. The heathen will meet "Jesus Christ's man" no more, but they will hear of him, and cherish his memory while time lasts. Though dead, and reposing on the bed of the ocean, yet he will speak with an eloquence by his example and deeds, while its waters dash on the shores of India.—The sea-weed may be his shroud, the coral his monument, and the mountain wave his mound, still there is no grave any where more honorable and sacred.

Following in the steps of his Master, and like Him going about and doing good as object and motive enough, his crown in the kingdom of glory shall infinitely outdazzle all the diadems of earth. Who would not live such a life, die such a death, and go to such a reward? In the firmament of glory he shall shine forever as a star of the first magnitude in the same constellation of Paul, Whitfield and Carey.—His loss to his family, to the heathen, and to the world at large, seems irreparable. May God sustain and comfort that lonely widow who so recently left this city for a home in that dark land, and be a father to those fatherless children who are found on both continents, and are separated by the waste of waters which stretch out between them. May his mantle fall on some man of God who shall take his place, and carry out the work he so successfully began.—May his spirit of self-denial and sacrifice for his Master diffuse itself into the whole Christian church, and then speedily will the heathen world be given to Christ, and the uttermost parts of the earth for a possession.

The death of this widely-known and eminently devoted Missionary is announced in letters by the Hibernia to have taken place on the 12th of April, on board of the French brig Aristide, bound to the Isle of Bourbon, in which he had taken passage for the benefit of his health. His remains were committed to the deep on the evening of his death. For some time past the health of Dr. Judson, which had been seriously impaired for several years, has been known to be in an alarming state, and the news of his decease accordingly will not come as an unlooked for blow upon his wide circle of friends. Dr. Judson was the son of Rev. Adoniram Judson, a Congregational Clergyman in Plymouth county, Mass. He received his collegiate education at Brown University, with the original intention of pursuing the profession of the law, but experiencing a great change in his religious views soon after his graduation, he entered the Theological Seminary at Andover. During his residence at this institution, a profound interest in Foreign Missions was awakened among the students, which resulted in his determination to devote his life to the missionary service. Leaving his native land, among the first Missionaries sent forth by the American Board, in company with Samuel Nevill, Luther Rice, and Samuel Nott, he arrived in Calcutta, in 1812. In consequence of studies during the voyage, he was led to change his opinions on the subject of baptism, and a short time after his landing, received the rite of immersion from the hands of one of the English missionaries resident at Calcutta. His Sermon on that occasion, which produced a deep impression on the religious world, is a master-piece of logical argument, Scriptural research and grave eloquence. After connecting himself with the Baptist denomination, he selected the Burman empire as the seat of his future labors—at which post he has remained, with scarcely an interval of relaxation, for nearly forty years. His efforts and sufferings in the prosecution of his mission are well known. He was a man of high and resolute courage, of remarkable self-reliance, of more than common mental ability and of devotion to the performance of his duty, almost without a parallel in modern times. He had all the elements of a hero in his composition, and whoever would look for a rare specimen of a life consecrated to noble, ideal aims, inspired with an elevated and almost romantic self-devotion, and daily exercising a valiant energy more difficult of attainment than that which animates the soldier amid the smoke of battle, must contemplate the strange and beautiful history of the lion-hearted missionary of Burmah.—New York Tribune.

My Own.—A little heathen child was inquired of by her teacher, if there was anything which she could call her own. She hesitated a moment, and looking up very humbly, replied, "I think there is." "What is it," asked the teacher. "I think, said she, that my sins are my own."

STRANGE INCIDENTS ATTENDING A DEATH.

Under this head the Christian Register relates the following remarkable incident. We do not think it improper to state that the individual referred to is the late Mr. Greigg, who was lost at Gloucester, Friday, August 16th, 1850, by the capsizing of a boat in a squall. It was at Gloucester, also, on the day previous to this casualty, that his adventure with the robin occurred; and it was at Brighton, in our neighborhood, that his family met with a similar adventure.—Boston Transcript.

The following is a statement of facts as they occurred—as simple and short as we can make them. It would be easy to give wide play to sentiment and fancy, in connection with so striking and unusual an occurrence. Superstition might attach to it irrational fears, or hopes as groundless. We confess we hardly know what to do with events like these ourselves—breaking in, as they do, upon the settled order of our experience, and startling us with some new exception to the common course of our observations. They evidently belong to no system of distinct and intelligible communication from the other world to this. It is not easy to imagine a satisfactory plan of spiritual disclosures to which they would be harmoniously adjusted. In that sense they teach nothing, and yet to us they appear capable—all inexplicable and exceptionable as they clearly are, and though we cannot take the first step towards interpreting them—they appear capable of leaving us more pure, more reverential, and more believing than they find us. We rejoice in a religion which does not exclude from its subordinate confirmations the vaguest and most unintelligible mysteries, nor forbid even creatures less than human to be humble and dumb witnesses to its spiritual promises.

A gentleman, with some friends, was lately rambling over the rocks, near the water, in one of our sea-shore towns. His attention was presently attracted by a robin, full grown, and apparently quite unhurt, running in his path, flitting about his feet, and, contrary to the proverbially shy instinct of that bird, keeping very near him. He took it up in his hands, fondled it, patted its feathers, and, after showing it to the party and remarking on its singular tameness, tossed it into the air. The next day, this gentleman, having put out from the adjacent beach in a boat, with four others, for a sail—on his return, and when within sight of land, by the capsizing of the boat, or a sudden leak sprung in her, was drowned with all his companions. His body was recovered, and a few days afterwards was buried, in a cemetery some twenty or thirty miles distant from the scene of the disaster.

The day after the burial, the grave was visited by his wife and daughter. As they approached the spot, they were in hesitation for a moment,—not being familiar with the place,—which, of several new-made graves, was the one they were seeking. At this instant a tame but sprightly robin ran on the ground before them, and stood by them before the grave of the husband and father. One of them took it up and caressed it, and after some remark about the singularity of its conduct, let it go—when it flew down, alighted on the raised mound over the grave, and laid itself close to the earth. The daughter immediately took it up again, and it was dead.

TEACH THE CHILDREN HYMNS.

There is a chord in every human soul which is touched by poetry: hence the magical power of ballads, national songs, and religious hymns. Listen to the snatches of popular ditties which you hear in the streets from passers-by, after you have gone to bed, and you will own that metre and music have avenues to human souls, and consequently that they should be largely employed in religion. There is reason to believe, that versified truth has peculiar force upon the common mind; as it is certain that it affords aid to the memory. Luther and the other reformers felt this, and hence arose the wonderfully rich collection of hymns in the German language, to which there is perhaps nothing comparable on earth. To this stock Luther himself contributed much. He was aided by Hans Sachs, the poetical shoe-maker. In a later period came Paul Gerhardt, the greatest hymn-writer of Germany, if not of the world. Wherever there are pious Germans, you find them with their beloved hymn-books; and from frequent use, they generally know great numbers of these hymns by heart.

It is an error to confine children to the learning of children's hymns, because, when they become older, these will have lost much of their fitness. Why should we not fill our children's minds with the choicest evangelical hymns in the language? These they will remember after we are dead and gone. They should not merely be learned once, and then left for others, but repeated again and again, and sung over, in order to fix them in the memory, and to lay a basis for the most lasting associations. The old words, and the old tune, come back on us with indescribable tenderness. Let the pious mother, when causing her boy to learn some sacred song, say to herself,—"Perhaps, years hence, my son will remember the saving truth of this hymn, as having been taught him by his mother.—American Messenger.

RESPECT FOR THE SABBATH.

In a biographical sketch of the Rev. Chas. G. Somers, an eminent Baptist clergyman of New York, but who came to that city from Europe a poor boy, we have the following pleasing illustration of attachment to the Sabbath, when he was in the employ of John Jacob Astor, who, it appears, was not a respector of religion:—

"He had been about a year connected with this house, when it happened to be for Mr. A.'s interest to send a swift schooner with a valuable cargo to the Mediterranean, to run by the British guns at the straits of Gibraltar, this country being then at war with England. It was ten o'clock on Saturday evening, as all hands connected with the house were busily employed in getting the papers of the schooner ready, that Mr. Astor, whose desk stood opposite to Somers', suddenly looking up and addressing him by his given name, said—"Well, Charley, I suppose you will come down to-morrow morning and help off with the schooner?" Charley looked up in return, but said not a word. It was a trying moment for him.—On the one hand, he felt that it would be wrong "to do any manner of work" on the Sabbath, and yet he was confident that a refusal in the emergency would be followed by his "walking papers" on Monday. He paused but a moment, and replied: "Mr. Astor, I cannot come down to-morrow, for it is God's day, and I will do no man's work on that day." It was a trying moment; but great was his relief when Mr. Astor laughingly turned to another clerk and said, "Well, well, David, I'm glad we've got one Christian amonget us. Well, Charley, you go to church to-morrow and pray for us, and the rest of us will come down and get off the schooner." A week had not elapsed before Mr. A. came to Somers with an order that he should be ready in twenty-four hours for a two months' journey of importance."

A SPIRITUAL MINISTRY.

The people who enjoy the ministrations of a truly spiritually-minded pastor, have a blessing, the value of which they are in but little danger of over-estimating. There is a worth in spirituality for which no greatness of natural or acquired abilities can compensate. Learning and abilities are qualities much more easily attained, and much more easily judged of. Piety does not lie on the surface; it is developed by the life. But its possession is the best guaranty for that intellectual growth for which piety is too often sacrificed. The man of piety will grow in knowledge; his very piety supplies the most impulsive and sustaining motives in the universe for labor and study. The richer his experiences in grace, the broader and brighter the fields of knowledge which will open before him, to invite to higher and higher attainments. But if he be not learned or philosophical, he has in his spirituality, a source of power far surpassing the utmost scope of influence that learning ever supplied. Preaching, in Protestant countries, must respect the heads of people; but after all, in any congregation of immortal men who have souls to save, and sins to be forgiven, to affect the heart is the preacher's chief business. The difficulty in the way of the gospel, is not so much the want of knowledge, as of feeling. The preacher's desideratum is not so much the power to instruct, as to move; light is needed, but warmth and life are more wanted. Piety which emits its electric fire from heart to heart, that gathers and wields the pathos and thrill of eternity, gets hold of the moral susceptibilities of the soul, and rouses its latent powers to the mighty business of salvation.—N. Y. Evangelist.

SMALL SWEET COURTESIES OF LIFE.

I want to tell you a secret. The way to make yourself pleasing to others, is to show that you care for them. The whole world is like the miller at Mansfield, "who cared for nobody—no, not he—because nobody cared for him." And the world will serve you so, if you give them the same cause. Let every one, therefore, see that you care for them, by showing them, what Sterne so happily calls, "the small sweet courtesies in which there is no parade; whose voice is too still to tease, and which manifest themselves by tender and affectionate looks, and little kind acts of attention—giving others the preference in every little enjoyment at the table, in the field, walking, sitting, and standing." This is the spirit that gives to your time of life, and to your sex, its sweetest charms. It constitutes the sum total of the witchcraft of woman. Let the world see that your first care is for yourself, and you will spread the solitude of the Upas tree around you, in the same way, by the emanation of a poison which kills all the juices of affection in its neighborhood. Such a girl may be admired for her understanding and accomplishments, but she never will be beloved.

The seeds of love can never grow but under the warm and genial influence of kind feelings and affectionate manners.—Vivacity goes a great way in young persons. It calls attention to her who displays it; and, if it then be found associated with a generous sensibility, its execution is irresistible.

On the contrary if it be found in alliance with a cold, haughty, selfish heart, it produces no further effect, than an adverse one. Attend to this my daughter. It flows from a heart that feels for you all the anxiety a parent can feel, and not without hope which constitutes the parent's highest happiness—may God protect and bless you.

Your affectionate Father,
WILLIAM WIRT.

From the Knickerbocker for November.

THE OLD EARTH.

Old Mother Earth is wan and pale,
Her face is wrinkled sore;
Her locks are blanched, her heart is cold,
Her garments stiff with gore;
With furrow'd brow and dim, sad eyes,
With trembling steps and slow,
She marks the course that first she trod,
Six thousand years ago!

The Earth is old, the Earth is cold,
She shivers and complains;
How many Winters fierce and chill,
Have racked her limbs with pains!
Drear tempests, lightning, flood and flame,
Have scarred her visage so,
That scarce we deem she shone so fair
Six thousand years ago!

Yet comely was the youthful earth,
And lightly tripped along
To music from a starry choir,
Whose sweet celestial song
Through Nature's temple echoed wild,
And soft as streamlets' flow,
While sister spheres rejoiced through her
Six thousand years ago!

And many happy children there
Upon her breast reclined,
The young Earth smiled with aspect fair,
The heavens were bright and kind;
The azure cope above her head
In love seemed bending low;
O happy was the youthful Earth
Six thousand years ago!

Alas! those children of the Earth
With hate began to burn,
And Murder stained her beauteous robe,
And bade the young Earth mourn.
And ages, heavy ages still
Have bowed with gathering woe
The form of her whose life was joy
Six thousand years ago!

Old Earth! dear Earth! thy tender heart
Bewails thy chosen ones;
Thou look'st upon the myriad graves
That hide their gathered bones;
For them by day and night, thy tears
Unceasingly must flow;
Death chilled the fountain head of life
Six thousand years ago!

Old Earth! old Earth! above thy head
The heavens are dark and chill,
The sun looks coldly on thee now,
The stars shine pale and still;
No more the heavenly symphonies
Through list'ning ether flow,
Which swelled upon creation's ear
Six thousand years ago!

Weep not in bitter grief, O earth!
Weep not in hopelessness!
From out the heavens a "still small voice"
Whispers returning peace;
Thy tears are precious in the sight
Of one who marks their flow,
Who purposes of mercy formed
Six thousand years ago!

Thy days of grief are numbered all;
Their sum will soon be told!
The joy of youth, the smile of God,
Shall bless thee as of old!
Shall shed a purer, holier light
Upon thy peaceful brow,
Than beamed upon thy morning hour
Six thousand years ago!

Thy chosen ones shall live again,
A countless tearless throng,
To wake creation's voice anew,
And swell the choral song.
Go, earth! go wipe thy falling tears,
Forget thy heavy wo;
Hope died not with thy first-born sons,
Six thousand years ago!

Williamstown, Mass.

DEATH-BEDS.

What an expressive proof of God's intolerance of sin, is the awfulness of death. If he, indeed, felt our guilt as little as we feel our danger—if his displeasure was a thing as slight and as gentle as our alarm—why so dreadful a visitation upon our species as death? A thing unknown to angels, and from which the whole of sentient nature shrinks as at the approach of most unnatural violence. If God be as much at peace with the world as the world is at peaceful complacency with itself, why keep up so hard and so hostile a dispensation against it? Or if sin be of as trivial account in the estimation of heaven as it is in the estimation of human society, how should it have brought down such a vengeance upon earth, as to have smitten it with a plague of mortality throughout its borders, and swept off to the hideousness of the grave, all the life and beauty and intelligence of its successive generations? That surely is no trifle, which has turned this bright and blooming world into a vast sepulchral abode for men of all ages. Its moaning death-beds, and its weeping families, and its marred and broken companionships—these are all emphatic testimonies of God's hatred of moral evil; for that sin brought all this calamity upon the world, is a principle announced to us in Scripture—and it is the only principle which resolves to us the mystery of death. And when the Scripture announces that after death cometh the judgment, oh, let us not give in to the treacherous imagination, that He who has made such full exhibitions of severity in the one, will but in the other manifest and indulge his tenderness. And let us be very sure, that, as death is to every unrepentant sinner but the beginning of his sorrows, so judgment will be to him a second death.—Chalmers.

A pious Scotch minister, being asked by a friend during his last illness, whether he thought himself dying, answered, "Really, friend, I care not whether I am or not; for if I die, I shall be with God; if I live, he will be with me."

GETHSEMANE.

Lieut. Lynch of the United States Exploring expedition to the river Jordan and the Red Sea in 1848, visited the garden of Gethsemane about the middle of May.—He says:—

"The clover upon the ground was in bloom, and altogether, the garden, in its aspect and associations, was better calculated than any place I know to soothe a troubled spirit. Eight venerable trees, isolated from the smaller and less imposing ones which skirt the path of the Mount of Olives, form a consecrated grove. High above on either hand, towers a lofty mountain, with the deep yawning chasm of Jehosaphat between them. Crowning one of them is Jerusalem, a living city; on the slope on the other is the great Jewish cemetery, a city of the dead. Each tree in this grove, cankered and gnarled and furrowed by age, yet beautiful and impressive in its decay, is a living monument of the affecting scenes that have taken place beneath and around it. The olive perpetuates itself, and from the root of the dying parent stem, the young tree springs into existence. These are accounted one thousand years old. Under those of the preceding growth, therefore, the Saviour was wont to rest; and one of the present may mark the very spot where he knelt, and prayed and wept. No caviling doubt can find entrance here. The geographical boundaries are too distinct and clear for an instant's hesitation. Here the Christian, forgetful of the present, and absorbed in the past, can resign himself to sad, yet soothing meditation. The few purple and crimson flowers, growing about the roots of the trees, will give ample food for contemplation; for they tell of the suffering and ensanguined death of the Redeemer."

HEAVEN.

To that state all the pious on earth are tending; and if there is a law from whose operations none are exempt, which irresistibly conveys to darkness and to dust, there is another not less certain, not less powerful, which conducts their spirits to the abodes of bliss, to the bosom of their Father and their God. The wheels of nature were not made to roll backward; every thing presses on towards eternity; from the birth of time an impetuous current has set in, which bears all the sons of men towards that interminable ocean.—Meanwhile heaven is attracting to itself whatever is congenial to its nature, is enriching itself by the spoils of earth, and collecting within its capacious bosom whatever is pure, permanent and divine, leaving nothing for the last fire to consume but the objects and the slaves of concupiscence; while every thing which grace has prepared and beautified, shall be gathered and selected from the ruins of the world to adorn that eternal city, which hath no need of the sun, neither the moon to shine in it, for the glory of God doth enlighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof.—Let us obey the voice that calls us thither; let us seek the things that are above, and no longer cleave to a world which must shortly perish, and which we must shortly quit, while we neglect to prepare for that in which we are invited to dwell forever.

Robert Hall.

A Happy Change.—A Camp-meeting was held on the 4th of July on the far-famed battle-field of San Jacinto, Texas.

POETRY.

HYMN.

BY JOHN NEWTON, OF ENGLAND.

1. Sometimes a light surprises
The Christian while he sings;
It is the Lord that rises,
With healing in his wings.
When comforts are declining,
He grants the soul again,
A season of clear shining,
To cheer it after rain.

2. Set free from present sorrow,
We cheerfully can say,
Let even the unknown to-morrow
Bring with it what it may;
It can bring with it nothing
But he can bear us through,
For he who clothes the lilies,
Will clothe his people too.

3. Beneath the spreading Heavens
No creature but is fed;
And he who feeds the ravens,
Will give his children bread.
In holy contemplation
Our God we will adore,
We'll praise him for his riches,
And for his bounteous store.

4. Though the vine and fig-tree neither
Their wanted fruit should bear,
Though all the fields should wither,
Nor flocks, nor herds be there;
Yet God the same abiding,
His praise shall tune my voice,
And whilst in him confiding,
I cannot but rejoice.

'T IS GOOD TO LIVE.

A THANKSGIVING.

I thank Thee, Father, that I live!
I thank Thee for these gifts of thine—
For bending skies of heavenly blue,
And stars divine;

For this green earth, where wild sweet airs
Like freest spirits, joyous stray—
For winding streams, and trees, and flowers,
By the way.

But more I than k Thee for true hearts
That bear sweet gifts of love to me,
Whom mine enfolds, and feels that this
Is love of Thee.

Warm from the spirits spread around
An atmosphere serene—divine—
Magnetical, like golden haze,
Encircling mine.

To-day I bless Thee most for power—
It draws me, Father, nearest Thee—
To love all thine, e'en though they give
No love to me.

In stillness deep I walked a land
Where spirit-forms my footsteps greet,
And beauteous thoughts—an angel band
Chant low and sweet.

Drear hours I know will darkly come,
Like April days of cloud and rain;
But thus must hearts, like wintry fields,
Grow green again.

I thank Thee, Father, that I live!
Though wailings fill this earth of thine;
To labor for thy suffering ones
Is joy divine.

And even I, so weak and poor,
May bear some word of life from Thee:
A beam of hope may reach some heart,
Even through me.

"MOTHER, SING JERUSALEM."

THE LAST WORDS OF A BEAUTIFUL BOY WHO DIED AT BOSTON A FEW YEARS SINCE.

A child laid in a twilight room,
With pallid, waxen face;
A little child, whose tide of life
Had nearly run its race.

Most holy robes the angels brought,
By holy spirits given,
Ready to wrap the child in them,
And carry him to heaven.

And shining wings, with clasps of light,
Two shining wings they bore,
To fasten on the seraph child,
Soon as the strife was o'er.

Perchance their beauty made him think
Of some harmonious word,
That often from his mother's lips
The dying one had heard.

It might be, for he whispered low,
"Sing, mother, sing," and smiled.
The worn one knelt beside the couch:
"What shall I sing my child?"

"Jerusalem, my happy home,"
The gasping boy replied,
And sadly sweet the clear notes rang
Upon the even-tide:

"Jerusalem, my happy home,
Name ever dear to me!
When shall my labors have an end
In joy, and peace, and thee?"

And on she sang, while breaking hearts
Beat slow, unequal time:
They felt the passing of the soul
With that triumphal chime.

"Oh! when, thou city of my God,
Shall I thy courts ascend?"
They saw the shadows of the grave
With his sweet beauty blend.

"Why should I shrink at pain or wo,
Or feel at death dismay?"
She ceased—the angels bore the child
To realms of endless day.

Olive Branch.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 15th of August, 1850, by Elder Simon Fleagle, at the house of Bro. John Shartzer, Mr. Michael Straw to Miss Margaret Shartzer, both of Fishing Creek Valley, Dauphin county, Pa.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

From the Religious Telescope.

[BY REQUEST.]

DIED—At his residence in Allen county, Ia., July 15th, 1850, John Mayberry, aged 58 years.

Father Mayberry was born in Pennsylvania, emigrated to Ohio, and from thence to Indiana, where he lived till his death. He embraced religion many years since, and was for a number of years a worthy member of the United Brethren in Christ, during which time he manifested a spirit of devotion and self-denial. Although much afflicted, he was resigned to the Divine will. He died of the sinking chills, and though sick but a few days, immediately before death he suffered much. But his last pain is endured—his last trial over—his last battle fought, and the victory won; and we trust he rests in heaven. His relatives mourn his death, but not as those without hope.—The funeral sermon was preached by Bro. Isaac Clark, of the M. E. Church—a neighbor and friend of the deceased, who has since "fallen asleep in Christ." "The righteous hath hope in his death." Wm. Miller.

Cedar Creek, Aug. 22, 1850.

In Hamdon township, Cumberland county, Pa., Moses, son of brother John and Mary Bruce, aged 8 years, 8 months and 8 days.

Funeral services by Elder D. Maxwell.

On the 25th of September, 1850, Joseph Henry, son of J. H. and Frances Wagner, aged 7 months and 8 days.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

A protracted meeting will commence at Lewisberry, York county, Pa., on Friday evening, the 4th of October.

Another will commence on Friday evening, the 11th of October, at Siddensburg, York county, Pa. Brothers Abraham Snyder, Simon Fleagle and J. Hickernell are expected to assist in these meetings.

John A. Plowman.

Providence permitting, a protracted meeting will be held at Lisburn, Cumberland county, Pa., commencing on Saturday evening, the 5th of October. The brethren in the ministry and the public generally are invited to attend.

J. Haifleigh.

One near brother John Grubb's, in Wild-cat Valley, Perry county, to commence on the 11th of October.

We do most earnestly solicit the preaching brethren to attend the above meeting.

A. Snyder,
Preacher in Charge.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4	37½	a 4	62½
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	2	50	a 2	50
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	2	37½	a 2	37½
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				90	a	95
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		50	a	50
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		45	a	50
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		28	a	28
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		60	a	65
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2	00	a 2	25
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1	12	a 1	12
BEEF, per cwt.		- - -	5	00	a 5	50
PORK, do.		- - - -	5	00	a 5	25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -		8	a	11
BUTTER, do.		- - - -		12½	a	15
LARD, do.		- - - -		8	a	8
TALLOW, do.		- - - -		8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.				6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - - -		12	a	12
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -		56	a	62½
ONIONS,	do.	- -		75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -	1	00	a 1	12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1	25	a 1	30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -		37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -		30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -	1	30	a 1	30
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -	10	00	*a*10	00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	4	00	a 4	00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4	87½	a 5	12½
Do.	Rye,	do. -	3	00	a 3	00
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	3	00	a 3	00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1	00	a 1	05
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		33	a	35
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		65	a	68
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2	50	a 2	62
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1	40	a 1	50
BEEF, per cwt.,		- -	7	00	a 8	75
PORK,	do.	- - - - -	7	00	a 7	25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in duo decimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

Missionary Pledges.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, -	-	- -	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	-	- -	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	-	- -	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	-	- -	10 00
Jacob Miller, -	-	- -	10 00
James Miller,	-	- -	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	-	- -	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	-	- -	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	-	- -	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	-	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	-	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	-	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	-	- -	5 00
James Casey,	-	- -	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. OCTOBER 15, 1850. NUMBER 12.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fifteen.

Names	Am't paid.	Names.	Am't. paid.
Anglemyer Adam vol 14	$ 50	Miller John H	1 00
Do Do vol 15	1 50	Miller Christian S	1 00
Do Do vol 16	1 00	Mumper John vols 14 & 15	3 00
Bishop Christian	1 00	Morrison Alex	1 50
Bolander Jonathan	1 00	Menely A	1 25
Calvin Samuel	50	Millinger Samuel	1 00
Comp Henry	2 00	Nelson Chas F	50
Cramer B A	1 00	Rohrer David	1 25
Druckenbrodt Samuel	50	Ross Ayres vols 13 & 15	3 00
Fink Geo	1 00	Shultz Samuel E	2 00
Funk John & David	1 50	Slaybury Josiah	1 00
Fleagle Simon	50	Smith Valentine	1 00
Himmelreich John	1 00	Snyder John	1 25
Ilelsey Henry vols 15 & 16	2 25	Unger Benj	50
Hickernell Thomas	75	Umstead Joel vols 13 & 15	3 00
Hatfleigh Jesse	50	Warehime Geo vol 14	1 50
Hoyer John	2 00	Whisler John	75
Kniseley Peter	1 25	Yard Rufus	1 00
Latshaw John	1 00	Zearing Martin	2 00
Latshaw Benj vol 14	1 50

☞ Several communications crowded out in this number will be inserted in the next.

☞ Our brethren have returned from their Western tour, but a part of their Journal was lost on the way, but has been found, and when it comes to hand it will be continued in the Advocate as heretofore unto the end. The Journal is of value as giving much information with regard to the brethren scattered through the West, and by their relatives and friends east of the mountains must have been read with much satisfaction. The travellers returned in good health and good spirits.

Lights and Shadows.---No. 4.---J. F.

"Dust to its narrow house beneath,
Soul to its place on high."

Saint Paul did not hesitate to avow himself a Pharisee. A large part of the Jewish people were of this class, and although too much bigoted and formal, yet they held strongly to the law and the prophets—to the whole of the divine revelation given to their fathers.

They held especially to the hope of a future life, the resurrection of the dead, which the Sadducees, another sect among the Jews, but smaller in number, denied. So it is even in our day. At a meeting of the Israelites in Albany, a few days ago, one of their distinguished preachers from Charleston, distinctly rejected the doctrine of the resurrection. But the great majority of the Israelites of the present age are Pharisees, and hold fast to the orthodox faith as their fathers did.

And as to the spiritual Israel—those who are in Christ Jesus—they always believed, and looked upward toward their heavenly home. "Our conversation," or home, said Paul, "is in heaven, from whence we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus." He had the advantage of his pious brethren of the natural seed of Israel, for he believed more than ever they believed, and had far clearer views than they, for he had superior light, not merely that of Moses and the prophets, but that of Jesus the true light, who came himself from heaven.

A pious minister was asked by a visitor at his house, how many children he had—he answered four. At the table the visitor noticed there were only two children present, and, enquired where are the other two? The father solemnly looking upward replied, they are in heaven. This is the comfort of Christianity, which brightens the prospect as we pass on our journey, and tells us that our friends who died in the Lord, are safer and happier than we who are still toiling along.

John Wesley said, that we should not give up the evidence we have of another and spiritual world around us, which is derived from the occasional appearance of the spirits of the departed. There may be many fanciful and delusive reports of supernatural things; these we should not credit—but where there are well attested accounts that a spiritual world is around us, and not far off, let us consider it as corroborating what Christianity teaches us to hope for, and be to us an incentive to watchfulness and holy diligence to make our calling and election sure.

The well known and well beloved Baptist missionary, Adoniram Judson, has died at sea, and been buried in the ocean, while the soul that loved and labored for Christ has gone to its place on high, where they gather from the east and west.

Mr. Judson for near forty years has labored among the people in the East Indies, in spreading the gospel. Like Paul he went while a young man among the heathen to preach salvation by faith in a crucified Saviour, and labored faithfully in the translation and spread of the Holy Scriptures, and in every way to save the souls living in those ancient and civilized lands. The heathen called him "Jesus Christ's man," and so he was—his disciple and servant to the end.

He has gone, after a well spent life in the labor of love on heathen ground—and others yet toil on to raise up churches for the Lord, from among the Burmans and the Hindoos. The life of Mr. Judson is a strange romantic story, which will be read by young and old, and shows that the word of the Saviour still holds good that He will be with his ministers and people even to the end of the world. May many more faithful missionaries be raised up in the providence of God, to take the place of the departed, and spread the light every where before the end shall come.

The World around us.---J. F.

This is the day on which the people of Pennsylvania, and some other States, give their voice for who shall rule or serve them. This is republicanism—which is for us at least the best form of government, and suits our people scattered far and wide over this continent. It has worked wonderful well from the beginning, when Washington and his fellow patriots set the wheels in motion—it works well at present, and we hope it will continue to do well until the day when Christ the Lord will return, and set up his kingdom here on earth, as well as in heaven. In the meantime, let us endeavor to obtain the best laws we can from our legislators for the good of the whole nation, and also try to have honest, and conscientious, and fearless men, to execute those laws.

The Union.—Congress has adjourned, and have done some good during their session of ten months. They have admitted California with its free constitution—provided governments for the territories of New Mexico and Utah—agreed to pay Texas ten millions for part of the territory she claimed, and thus far have given general satisfaction to the moderate and reasonable part of the nation—but not exactly pleasing the ultras of the North or of the South. They have also passed the fugitive slave bill, which bears very hard on the colored people in the free States, and is exceedingly unpleasant to the white people of the States who hate slavery, and do not feel free to aid in helping to send back to bondage, the poor fugitive who has fled to free soil for refuge, and perhaps has gathered a family around him, and is living like a freeman in comfort, by the labor of his hands. Let us hope that the Union is safe, and that God's gracious providence will still preserve to us the blessings connected with free institutions, and do away speedily with all that is oppressive and unjust.

The Eldership.---J. Flake.

The Yearly Meeting of the Preachers and brethren is at hand. The object is, to promote the best interests of the Church, and to spread true religion among our fellow-men every where. Therefore mutual consultation, and arrangement of the work is necessary, so that every part of the field may be supplied—no part neglected.

The Eldership is to guard the doctrine of Christ, so that nothing but the truth, as it is in Jesus, be preached by its preachers, and that the whole truth be set forth. The divinely constituted ministry, are the divinely authorized expounders of the word of God; and therefore they should seek for, and enjoy a large measure of the gift and blessing of the Holy Spirit. They must be spiritual men—their hearts right toward God, and in the possession of that true faith which justifies and sanctifies the soul. The Presbytery or Eldership is the Church, from which especially, should shine out the truth in doctrine—and innocence and zeal in life and manners.

O that the preachers had more confidence in each other, and more of that charity and love that thinketh no evil, but hopeth all things, and endureth all things. O that the churches could regard and feel for the preachers as their brethren and leaders and guides in the way to heaven, and speak and act toward them as such.

The Work of the Ministry.---J. F.

Remember, the work of a preacher is not merely to preach so many times, but to save all the souls you can, and with all your might to build them up in holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord. Therefore you will have need for all the knowledge and wisdom you can obtain, by reading, and study—by conversation with the wise and good—by meditation and prayer. You will need all the grace you can obtain from the Lord for the work in which you are engaged—grace to be humble and chaste, and to overcome selfishness—grace to bear patiently for Christ's sake, the ingratitude and slights you may meet with.

Endeavor always to have some employment—never be idle—never be triflingly employed, but remember that you especially are called to do good to the souls and the bodies of men. Have something profitable to read or to write. Go round visiting, and converse with seriousness, and before you leave the family ask leave to pray with them. Especially visit the sick, and deal faithfully with them—go and see them without waiting for an invitation.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

SKETCH
OF A
DEBATE ON BAPTISM,
BETWEEN
J. KELLER AND A. OWEN;

Held at Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 19th, 20th, 21st, 22d and 23d of February, 1850.

REPORTED BY W. E. DRAKE,
For the Church Advocate and Religious Telescope.

FRIDAY, Feb. 22.

Prayer by Dr. EARHART.

KELLER.—I have proved that baptizo means to dip, and nothing else in its literal sense, and to wash in the case of Naaman. My opponent has admitted that fact. I have proved it by the lexicons, seconded by the most noted Professors and Scholars, Luther, Calvin, Anthon, and a host of others, all Pedo-baptists, except Anthon. I have shown that no lexicon for 1800 years has given the meaning of baptizo as sprinkling or pouring. Therefore my argument is unanswerable. My second argument was from the commentators, and they all agree that to baptize means to dip, plunge, or immerse. Here are Whitby's comments on the New Testament. And what does he say?—[Reads.]

So much for Episcopal and Pedo-baptist clergymen on that subject.—Mr. K. again went at length into the argument to prove what, in his opinion, constitutes baptism, and to show that his opponent had not proved his side of the question. He then added—Mosheim was a Lutheran minister. I ask, what does he say? He said—"In this century baptism—[Reads.]

I will now read from Schlegel, the translator of Mosheim:—"This is the second century—[Reads.]—Geary, Professor Neander, of Germany, &c.—[Reads.]

Mr. Keller then concluded his remarks by saying: I have stood here to defend the truth of the God of Heaven, and all I wish is fair-play—justice. All I desire is, what belongs to me. And, when I have concluded my part of this discussion, I leave the decision of the question in the hands of this worthy and highly respectable audience, who will judge whether my opponent, or myself is right.

Brother OWEN replied at some length, going over most of the grounds assumed and testimony offered by himself and opponent during this protracted discussion.—My opponent (said he) has got courageous. He said that I placed my belief on presumption. What has he done? Nothing more. Now, I ask, if it is fair to bring such a charge against me as that I am an infidel? I never should say he was an infidel, although I could not approve of the doctrine he has brought forward. I asked him to show me a case of immersion, when he commenced reading Mosheim, who expresses his belief that immersion was first practised. But I on the contrary, showed that Tertullian is the first proof we have of it. It is true Mosheim believed it, but I say it cannot be shown. I can prove that pouring existed quite as early as immersion. Now, I shall proceed to notice the gentleman's great burial argument, Rom. vi. 1, 2, &c. "What shall we say then? Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound? God forbid. How shall we, that are dead to sin, live any longer therein? Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall also be in the likness of his resurrection."

Now, the doctrine they advance in relation to this portion of Scripture is, that there is a comparison instituted between Christ's burial and the mode of baptism. That is, Christ was buried, so we must also be buried in baptism to be buried with him. And their doctrine is that baptism is designed to show forth the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

I have, then, a few observations to make on the subject. First, there are difficulties in the way of the interpretation of the Scriptures. I say this doctrine is nowhere taught in the Scriptures, save in these two passages, (Rom. 6: 1-5, and Col. 2: 12.) And here it is not taught, as we shall presently show. Baptism is never spoken of as being the representation of the resurrection and burial of Christ, in the language of the Saviour while upon earth. In all the allusions to baptism through all the Acts of the Apostles not a single reference is made to the resurrection of Jesus Christ. It has no representation whatever. The Apostle Paul never so understood baptism. He could not, because he was different in his own baptism. The Apostle, in the 9th chapter of Acts of the Apostles, says, "Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins," &c.

Then, I say the Saviour never gave the language quoted by the brother, such a representation.—If it was never spoken of in any other of the Epistles, and if the Apostle was taught that it stood for sanctification, and is nowhere taught that it stood for resurrection—how can he so teach?

But, again, they acknowledge that the Lord's Supper was instituted to represent the suffering and death of Christ; and they say that Baptism was instituted to represent the burial of Christ. Now, you will see a history of the case given in the Acts, in which it is set forth they were baptized, and the adults, Saul himself and Philip. Would it not be strange, indeed, ——— show the burial and resurrection of Christ before suffering! But here it is clear from this fact that it was not so represented; it was not designed to represent the burial and resurrection of Jesus Christ.—But if this term "burial" refers to the mode of baptism, there are a variety of other figures here made use of, which should certainly give us an idea of the same thing. For instance, it is said—"Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life." Then, another figure. Now, if the term "burial" signifies "immersion," what does "planting" mean? That is only partial immersion. "Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin."

Now, if the term "burial" refers to the mode of baptism, and also the term "planting," then the term "crucify" must also refer to it. If there is a resemblance between the burial of Christ and baptism, there is between nailing to the cross and the mode of baptism. If these several terms have but one meaning and representation, I should like to know the resemblance between a man crucified and a man dipped in the water. But suppose we would allow that there is such a comparison here, where is the resemblance! What resemblance is there between putting a man suddenly under water and raising him up again, and taking the Saviour's lifeless body and putting it in a niche and rolling a stone against it! There is none whatever. What work they make by carrying out this resemblance.

Mr. Winebrenner says, "That a burial and resurrection is represented by baptism, seems quite clear from Rom. vi. 4., Col. ii. 12." Now listen: "Now as none can be properly said to be buried, unless put under ground, or covered over with earth; so none can be properly said to be baptized, but such who are immersed, or put under water, as nothing short of this can be a representation of the burial and resurrection of Christ, and ours with him. And as a corpse cannot be properly said to be buried, when only a little earth or dust is sprinkled or poured on it; so neither can a person be properly said to be baptized, when only a little water is sprinkled or poured on the face.'"

If this is brother Keller's definition of the burial of Christ, he was not buried at all.—Christ was not covered with earth; then, according to Mr. Winebrenner, he never was buried, because he requires that the candidate for baptism shall be put under water, just as much so as that Christ was covered with earth, in his opinion. You see, therefore, the resemblance will not hold out. He fails altogether in instituting a comparison. I shall now quote from Rice and Watson:—[Reads.]

Here there is not the most distant allusion to baptism. He (Watson) is writing on sanctification. Baptism is just brought in as a sign, or inward washing.—[Reads from Watson's Theology.]

Here we have a man (Keller) who said the Pedo-baptists kept their people in ignorance, and I invited him to come and prove it. He came and he gave us three arguments, two outside and one inside of the Bible.

[Here brother Owen's time expired.]—And thus ended the discussion of this part of the subject.

Baptismal Query Again.

SEPTEMBER 20, 1850.

DEAR BROTHER FLAKE:—

THOUGH "unsolicited" I may be, I shall solicit your forbearance again, for a little season. This I will do, and hold myself not altogether a "volunteer;" for, in brother Hurley's first letter he says, "Will you or some one of your co-editors, or some of your contributors, furnish us with an answer to the above" questions? I, sir, have been a "contributor" for years.

II. The mystery about my real cognomen gives no little pain. With a martial air I am told I have neither bravery nor generosity. The reply I shall make to this is, I sought not to display either; but was in the pursuit of truth—it was my object. I cannot see how the knowledge of my real name would adumbrate that, or give weight to anything I may have written. And, indeed, this silly clamour and useless war waged against anonymous correspondents, appears to me far less generous and brave. I shall, therefore, notwithstanding my good brother considers it a mark of an "evil doer," prefer to gratify my own opinion, till he present a more substantial reason for divulging my real name. I trust it is responsible, and will be forth-coming when needed.

III. Indeed, if I have done nothing more, I have furnished diversion for, and have excited the risibles of my grave opponent. I surely did not design "diverting" him, and am yet ignorant that I have given real cause for levity. The cause all lies in himself. His very fertile imagination created a phantom of an old decrepit sister baptizing, called it a layman's baptism, and then set me up as its apologist. Indeed, sir, if there is anything diverting, it does appear to me that it is the creature of his fevered fancy. However, the little "drilling" I have had in the "tactics of controversy," has taught me that one of those tactics is, when one is unable to answer argument, a laugh will hide it. This is the real position of my brother. But I hope, in future, to have no cause to notice such irrelevant matter.

IV. In the very first attempt to reply to my arguments, he has entirely misrepresented me, by giving a spurious quotation as mine. I said nothing about "Bishops and Elders." My words are "Apostles and their successors;" and no one need mistake that I employ the term "successors" as I borrowed it from my brother's application. He then proceeds to stoutly insist that the burden of proof lies upon my shoulders, because I admit that baptism is valid when performed by a Bishop or Elder. He has nothing to prove. Ah! nothing to prove, indeed!! Sir, you have everything to prove, in order to sustain your position. Does the mere concession of an opponent in debate, when confined to a particular case, prove the position of the first, when maintained on entire different principles? If it does, this, to me, is a new law in logic. Did I ever admit that Bishops, in virtue of their office, were the administrators of baptism! Elder Hurley, from the beginning, has assumed this position. It is for him to prove. It is essential to his position. When he brings his proof, I will produce the opposite, from the Bible. It is only on the grounds of the theory I am advocating that I ever admitted that a baptism administered by a Bishop or Elder is valid. But, to show the weakness of my brother a little farther, I will now say, he cannot prove a single baptism was performed under the Christian dispensation by a Bishop or Elder. Do it, my brother, if you can; but it will not prove your position.

V. Again: Our brother says, "The fact of Christ's instituting the order of the ministry excludes all others. The commission gives it to them." Prove it, will you? Did the commission exclude others from teaching? Read Acts 2: 18, "And on my servants and on my hand-maidens will I pour out in those days of my Spirit; and they shall prophecy." Read, again, Acts 8: 4, "Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word." "For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God."—Heb. 5: 12. Were they all Bishops, and was the first part, and by far the most important part, of the Apostolic commission confined to "Apostles and their successors in OFFICE?" If not, why should baptism be?

VI. But our brother appears amazed that the sisters, little boys and little girls should be permitted to baptize. Who ever advocated such a theory? This is a stereotyped argument in the mouth of the advocates of official grace, and as a matter of course it had to come out at some time or place, and as well here as anywhere else. Now, does brother Hurley deny that "laymen" may lead a prayer-meeting, or class-meeting, when Bishops are not present? Does he deny that "laymen" may announce the expulsion of an apostate, when there is no Bishop to do it? Does he deny that "laymen" may wash the feet of the disciples? No; some Bishops would prefer that "laymen" act as administrators altogether in this last mentioned duty. Well, now, suppose I would insist that brother Hurley wanted the little boys and dear little girls all into this work, would he not think queer of me?—Would he not conclude that "brother Theophorus" studied logic in a queer school?

But after all, dear brother, take the whole rope to yourself, and how much worse a job would they do than your regularly ordained Bishops have done? Could they do more than to take up into their arms all the little fretting, crying, or slumbering babies they could find, and say, John, Thomas, Mary, or Elizabeth, I baptize thee? Now, you may say you don't advocate such folly. Well, but your Bishops, clothed with official grace, have done so. Or does the fact of their being Bishops make the farce less farcical?

VII. To my second argument he replies, there is one instance when "they did appoint one:" i. e. a successor. Where is it said the Apostles did any such thing? It is said they (who? why the whole 120) prayed, and said, Thou, Lord, which knowest the hearts of all, show whether of these two thou hast chosen, (ordained.) And they gave forth their lots; and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was numbered with the eleven Apostles. Was he a successor or a co-ordinate rather? The text says, "That he may take part of this ministry and apostleship, from which Judas by transgression fell." Again, "must one be ordained." Is this proof that they ordained successors? But "Paul was made an Apostle by special commission, and then recognized as one of their number." Yes, several years after.—When he had preached boldly in Damascus, till the Damascenes run him off into Arabia, where he was engaged in proselyting the sons of Ishmael, but dared not to baptize them, for he had not obtained ecclesiastical ordination yet!! He was then a licentiate on probation, without ordination!!! Who believes it? I don't—a word of it.

"But," says our brother, "the question in debate is not Apostolic succession." Now, sir, I insist that this is an essential part of the very point at issue. The very first question he asked was, "Does the validity of the ordinance of Christian Baptism depend upon the ecclesiastical qualifications of the administrator?" This he has ever since affirmed. The second is but a different form of the same question. Now, in different instances he has told us what that qualification is. First, they were to be appointed by Apostles. "They," says he, "were authorized to appoint others equally qualified to the same office." This is surely Apostolic succession. But his second qualification is, "First, a Divine call or a move by the Holy Spirit. And secondly, a recognition by those who were ministers before him." Who were they that were ministers before us, by whom we have been recognized? Were they ordained by those who were ministers before them? or by laymen? Were these recognizers sprinkled or baptized? What if you were baptized by a Bishop, if he was ordained and baptized by a layman, or if he was not ordained at all, and only rantized, what is the result of your system of official grace? Why, for aught we know to the contrary, we have every one been baptized by unqualified ecclesiastical hands. But it is not enough for my brother that one should be ecclesiastically ordained, but that he should also be immersed. For he says, "No man, whether layman or clergyman, who is unbaptized, has a right to administer the rite of baptism; for this would be degrading the ordinance." From this we may learn, although he may have a Pedo-Baptist ordination from the "ministers who lived before," still, if not baptized himself, and that too by an ordained Baptist, who can trace his baptism and ordination to a ministry before him, all, all is invalid! I then repeat the question, who can say his baptism is valid? There lives not the man who can!!!

But this is not all. Brother Hurley again says, "Our salvation is suspended on certain conditions, viz: A genuine repentance, a living faith, and a valid baptism." Again, he says' "Christ has imposed two conditions of membership," (but three of salvation,) "viz: A credible profession of faith and baptism," (doubtless valid.) "And where either of these is lacking, a man cannot be a legal subject of the kingdom of Christ." Surely, then, we dare not go outside of the kingdom to get ecclesiastically ordained administrators of the laws of the kingdom.

Now, since I have so clearly proven that laymen may have ordained and baptized us all, for aught we know to the contrary, is it not sheer folly to spend time and breath in such a useless enterprise as that pursued by those who plead for that long exploded theory of Apostolic succession? Indeed, the theory is just as diversified as the advocates themselves. The High Church Episcopalian insists that the line of succession must run through Canterbury; but, as some American Puseyites can't reconcile the conflicting facts that rantizo means baptizo, they have insisted that there is no Scriptural baptism in the Protestant Church; nor can there be any except by shipping a Bishop to Constantinople, and there getting him dipped by a Greek Priest. Well, from all that I can gather from brother Hurley, he should be classed with this school of successorships.

Then, again, some silly Baptists—for surely they are only the silly ones—declare that unless the administrator has had Baptist hands, or some other kind, imposed on his head, no clergyman can administer a valid immersion.

Now, I don't believe a word in such nonsense. It is no part of my Bible.

Nor will it do to say that that is only a legal baptism when administered by a Bishop who has been appointed by a Church; for, that Church may not have been baptized at the time, or baptized by a layman unordained.

But to leave this point of the argument, I will add: It is an axiom in logic, THAT WHEN THE LEGITIMATE RESULTS OF A PROPOSITION TEND TO ABSURDITY, IT IS SELF-EVIDENTLY FALSE. Such is the above case advocated by brother Hurley.

VIII. In which of Paul's epistles did brother Hurley read the following quotation? "No man taketh this honor to himself except he be called of God, and recognized by the Presbytery, and permitted by them as such." Probably his memory was treacherous, and he has quoted it from the "THIRD EPISTLE OF PETER." I have read that Epistle somewhere, once in my life, and do not know but the quotation is verbatim from it. If so, it is all right!!!

IX. Sir, the "legitimate conclusion" is just what Paul says, that Christ did not send him to baptize, therefore baptism is not inseparably connected with the Apostolic functions. Paul administered baptism, as thousands of others administered it; not because it belonged to Apostolic office, but to the kingdom of Christ. It was suitable and "lovely" for him to do it, and therefore he performed his duty; but thanked God that circumstances had made it his duty to immerse but few of them himself, seeing that they were such schismatics. Now, as Paul baptized but few of them, and many believed and were baptized, who did it?

X. In reply to my last argument, brother Hurley makes great capital of my admission that Bishops' baptism would be valid. Indeed, if there is anything "diverting," it is in this shufflery. And yet to me it is painful. I cannot see but that our dear brother felt the force of this argument, and has attempted no answer to it. Yet he evades an answer, by crying out that I admitted it a valid baptism, when performed by a Bishop or Elder. Yes, I have, and do again; but not on the grounds of his theory. I reiterate the call for a valid baptism to be found on earth, if his theory is true. I challenge him and all the learning he can parade since the time John left earth and went to heaven.

XI. But I now proceed to give a few instances where baptism was performed by persons who were neither Apostles, nor Bishops or Elders. This I do, not that I do not think my arguments already given unanswerable and conclusive, but to cast additional light on the subject. We read in Acts 8th chapter: "And at that time there was a great persecution against the Church which was at Jerusalem; and they" (the members of the Church) "were scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the Apostles. Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word."—Again, 11: 19.—"Now they which were scattered abroad upon the persecution that rose about Stephen, travelled as far as Phenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to none but unto the Jews only. And some of them were men of Cyprus and Cyrene, which, when they were come to Antioch, spake unto the Grecians, preaching the Lord Jesus. And the hand of the Lord was with them: and a great number believed, and turned unto the Lord." Were they baptized? If not, they were not in the kingdom, according to brother Hurley. If baptized, who were the administrators—official or unofficial members of the Church? Doubtless the latter.

I here add a very correct remark of that profound scholar, clear-headed and shrewd reasoner, Dr. Carson. "If the converts made by the brethren scattered by the persecution, at the death of Stephen, were baptized at all, they must have been baptized by unofficial brethren. That Puseyism, which is now so general, even among dissenters, has not a vestige of authority in the practice of the first Churches. Every man has a right to preach the Gospel, which is a higher privilege than baptizing; and every Christian man has a right to baptize believers."—p. 335. Now, that the exercise of this right is prudent and virtuous under all circumstances, is another question.—Philip baptized the Samaritans and the Ethiopian eunuch, and yet he was only a deacon of the Church. Paul was baptized by Ananias, who was only a "certain disciple." Now, I hope my dear brother will consider these arguments well before he again makes such sweeping declarations. This I say, even if he has given me his "parting word."

Truly and fraternally,

THEOPHORUS.

Divine Forbearance.

"And Abraham drew near, and said, Wilt thou also destroy the righteous with the wicked? Peradventure there be fifty righteous within the city: wilt thou also destroy and not spare the place for the fifty righteous that are therein? That be far from thee to do after this manner, to slay the righteous with the wicked: and that the righteous should be as the wicked, that be far from thee: Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right? And the Lord said, If I find in Sodom fifty righteous within the city, then I will spare all the place for their sakes." GENESIS 18: 23-26.

THESE and the following verses, in a very remarkable manner demonstrate, on the one hand, the mercy of the Almighty, and the benevolent disposition of this amiable Patriarch on the other. We are first struck with the tender arguments of Abraham, and then with the yielding kindness of the long-suffering Omnipotent. Wilt thou not spare the place, O, Father! says the petitioner, for the sake of fifty upright characters? Far be it from charity and from benevolence, like thine, to do after this unequal manner: far be it from thee to blend the fates of the virtuous with those of the wicked: far be it from the universal Judge, who weigheth all things in the even balance, to do amiss, or to deal unfairly. The answers of the Deity are uncommonly affectionate, and consistent with the goodness of the God-head. If I find (said he) fifty righteous within the city, then I will spare all the place for their sakes. But, alas! Abraham, who knew the wickedness of Sodom, as well as the mercy of the power whom he addressed, was obliged to go farther. Behold now, I have taken upon me, poor and imperfect creature as I am, a compound of dust and ashes, to speak before the God of nature; I tremble at thy presence, and yet I approach thee: Peradventure there shall lack five of the fifty righteous, thou wilt not be extremely minute to mark what is wanting; nor can it be in thy all-wise and benignant nature to destroy all the city for lack only of five. To this the reply was agreeable to the wishes of the Patriarch; for the Deity declared he would spare the city for the sake of forty and five. And thus the matter went on, requesting on the one hand and granting on the other, till the Lord of forgiveness promised to suspend the stroke of destruction for the sake of only ten.

Perhaps the forbearance of Heaven to the children of men was never more finely and beautifully illustrated than in this instance; and when we consider it, we shall the less wonder at the little interruptions and stops that are frequently put to the general impiety of the present times. It is our grand complaint that we live in an age almost exceeding all others in point of degeneracy—that it now would appear to be worse than what it was in the days of old, and that, consequently, it is a matter of astonishment that the Creator does not for these reasons destroy what he has made, and hurry on in wrath the dissolution of all things. But the history of mankind evinces that in the earliest periods the vices and fashions as generally prevailed as at present—that murder, envy, drunkenness, and blasphemy, &c., and every other error, as powerfully tyrannized over the human heart as at this very hour. Though, perhaps, we may have made some innovations in iniquity it is doing the same bad things with more art, with more cunning, with more fashion, or with more refinement.

Infinite, indeed, must be the mercy which both at the beginning and now keeps and preserves us from the vengeance of Heaven; and the enemies of every age have been of sufficient magnitude to provoke the punishment, and to exercise the utmost kindness of the Deity. What, for instance, must be the sensations of eternal perfection at the sight of all that variety of crime perpetrated in a single day within the precincts of our large and noted cities? What must He, who comprehends at one view all the actions and transactions of the whole world, feel as He surveys that astonishing mass of mischief, fraud, malignity, blasphemy and wickedness committed constantly beneath His all-searching and all-penetrating eye? Mercy is certainly Gon's distinguished attribute. Amongst men we call him a good and forgiving man who passeth over with impunity some petty affront or injury in social life. The parent is esteemed amiable who pardons an offending child; and to resist giving blow for blow, when the temptation to re-criminate is fairly open, is thought to be the sublimest effort of human excellence. But if all things derive consequence from comparison, how do these venial virtues dwindle when we place them near those of the Omnipotent! Notwithstanding the thousand insults that are daily directed by man against his Maker, how very seldom his right arm is raised to destroy; and even when impiety, with the strides of a giant, towers onward and upward toward the throne of God, with what superior mildness and majesty He closes His eye upon the audacity, as unwilling to see what His justice must have punished. Amidst His greatness He sits enshrined, continuing to dispense a blessing where a curse is frequently deserved, and in the very moment that man is murmuring at His holy regulations and the dispensations of Divine Providence. Notwithstanding all this, with how much kindness and benevolence does He still continue and persist in bestowing even his richest bounties, till even the worst complainer is dumb, confounded, silenced, and ashamed. Well then, indeed, may we exclaim, with a universal voice of truth and sincerity, "Blessed be the name of the Lord, for his mercy endureth forever."

Mercy alone can meet my case,
For mercy, Lord, I cry;
Jesus, Redeemer, show thy face
In mercy, from on high.

I remain yours, in the kingdom and patience of our Divine Lord and Master,

SAMUEL M. HOOVER.

Carlisle, Sept. 24, 1850.

Visit to the General Conference.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 5, 1850.

Brother Flake:—

Leaving you in Harrisburg at a quarter past seven, A. M., Tuesday, I reached this on Friday, at precisely three, A. M.; having spent the first night in Lancaster and the second in Philadelphia.

This is a manufacturing place, of not very considerable note on that account, but chiefly sustained by men of wealth, who reside here, but carry on extensive commercial operations elesewhere. It lies on the head of Narraganset Bay, numbers about 45,000 inhabitants, and is the reputed capital of this State; but, as the session of the R. I. Legislature is on the itinerant system, no one place can be properly designated as its capital. The State has no State House, and her Legislature meets at five different places.

The General Conference is now in session, in the repnted Roger Williams' Church, on Burgess street. Very soon after my arriving in Conference, on Friday morning, the Chair, Rev. Martin Cheney, announced me as a delegate from the Church of God; whereupon brother A. D. Williams rose and introduced me to Conference, following it with a few appropos remarks. Conference then very promptly and politely voted me an invitation to take a seat and participate with them in their deliberations. I, of course, responded with an acknowledgment of the kindness and honor conferred upon me, read my authority for, and the object of my mission; which latter I understood to be three-fold, viz:

I. To encourage similarity of sentiment between the Free-will Baptist and the Churches of God.

II. To cultivate Christian acquaintance.

III. To strengthen "the bonds of Christian fellowship, by an interchange of Christian views, and the offices of Christian fraternity." As speedily as possible I adverted to our name, history, numbers, doctrines, feelings toward all Christians, and especially those who so nearly accord with our own views of the word of life, closing with an invitation that the G. C. appoint a couple of corresponding messengers to our next G. E., to meet in Pittsburg next May. At my close, this request was referred to their committee on Correspondence. As the question of Slavery is a prominent subject of agitation among the F. Baptists in the North and East, especially at this time, and not only among them, but among nearly all ranks and classes, I concluded it was not an improper occasion to refer to our real position thereupon. I stated, the location of the Churches of God, being chiefly not far distant from Mason & Dixon's Line, where less excitement exists on the subject, than in the extremes of North and South, we had had but little discussion on the subject, in comparison with other denominations. At this point I read the resolutions of the General Eldership, stating so far as I could tell, these presented the sentiment of the ministers and churches generally. The resolutions referred to are as follows:

Whereas, It is the duty of the ministers of God to testify against sin in every form and place,—Therefore,

Resolved, That it is the unequivocal and decided opinion of this General Eldership of the Church of God, that the system of involuntary slavery, as it exists in the United States of North America, is a flagrant violation of the natural, unalienable and most precious rights of man, and utterly inconsistent with the spirit, laws and profession of the Christian religion.

Resolved, That we feel ourselves authorized by the highest authority, and called upon by the strongest ties and obligations, to caution our brethren in the Church of God, against supporting and countenancing, either directly or indirectly, the said iniquitous institution of involuntary slavery; and should any of our ministers or members ever become guilty of this great and crying sin, we do most earnestly and religiously recommend and advise, that all such be excommunicated, or cast out of the church, and denied the right of Christian fellowship among us.

They were greeted with much enthusiasm in different sections of the Conference room. You will, however, permit me to remark, that, although I endorse the sentiments contained in these resolutions, yet I never understood them to advise the Churches of God to withhold the hand of fellowship from, or disconnect themselves with a brother, merely on the ground that he sustains the relation of master to a slave.

There has been much discussion already in Conference on this exciting topic, and will be much more, as Monday afternoon has been especially set apart for that purpose. Indeed, I scarcely wonder at it, when the late Congress has just passed one of the most oppressive acts, relative to it, that has ever characterized the legislation of our nation. That law virtually binds every Northern citizen, should need require, to render assistance to the master in the re-capture of his absconding slave. Now, I need not say that a grosser violation of the rights of conscience could never be perpetrated, and every feeling of human nature calls aloud for its immediate and unconditional repeal. For the sake of future reference, I give the law.—[See a synopsis of the Fugitive Slave Bill in the News Department.]

I have been credibly informed that there are not less than 500 fugitive slaves in this city, at this time, and many of them in prosperous and wealthy circumstances, having married and brought up families here. It is also currently stated that a posse of slave catchers are now watching around town, and even about the door of the temple of sacred worship, rendered so sacred by the memory of Roger Williams, who, for conscience sake, fled to Providence plantations for religious liberty; and are seeking to re-capture a half-blood, who appears to be half Indian and half negro, reputed to be a runaway slave, and is daily seated in the gallery of the Conference room. To give you a still more vivid idea of the excitement here, I will also state that the colored population of the place have armed themselves for resistance to the point. Even a regular preacher, I learn, is heavily armed. I herewith, also, send you a copy of resolutions passed by them at a public meeting held here.—[See them in the News Department.]—At this time I have no remarks to offer, as to merits or demerits, but present them for the importance of their facts.

Much regret is manifested by many members of Conference, that Elder Winebrenner is not in company with me. Indeed, I more than ever regret it myself.

The remaining portion of the forenoon session was chiefly consumed in listening to the reports of Elders J. Woodman and Eli Noyes, the former of Lawrence, Mass., and the latter pastor of Roger William's Church of this place, and author of a very popular work, entitled "A Hebrew Reader," who were appointed at a former session of the General Conference as a delegation to the General Baptists of England. They expressed themselves quite gratified, and also edified, with the cordial and Christian reception they met among the General Baptists of that country.

Elder Noyes was pretty pointed in his description of the drunkenness, profanity and obscenity tolerated and practiced on board of British steamers; and, also, upon the intolerant and shameful bigotry in not permitting any religious services on board but that of the Established Church. This merits a just and indignant rebuke from the Americans, and, at once, should American patronage be withheld from all such insulting despotism.

An exciting and somewhat interesting debate is now in progress, touching a question of the polity of the Free-will Baptist Church. I may turn your attention more particularly to this in future. You shall hear from me again, in a few days, Providence permitting.

Fraternally, G. U. HARN.

Who thinks to deceive God, has already deceived himself.

A REPORT
Of Several Protracted Meetings.

Protracted Meeting near Brother Kumbler's, Perry County, Pa.

This meeting, according to previous notice, given in the Church Advocate, commenced on the 6th of September, and continued until the 11th. The preachers in attendance were S. Bigham, H. L. Soule and myself. On Friday evening I preached, from John 3: 14. On Saturday evening brother Soule preached, from Daniel 6: 10. On Sunday morning brother Bigham preached, from Prov. 1: 28-30.—Immediately after him I preached, from Matt. 19: 27; after which we repaired to the Juniatta river, and buried three happy believers in the rolling stream by baptism. In the evening brother Bigham preached again, from 2 Cor. 5: 20, and six came out to be prayed for, three of whom were made the happy subjects of God's saving grace. On Monday morning brother Soule preached, from Gen. 3: 13; after which we again proceeded to the river and baptized those three converts that were blessed the evening before. This was doing like converts done in the days of the Apostles. When the Ethiopian Eunuch believed, the first step he made in his Christian progress was, to be baptized. Thus it was the case with Lydia and her household, and the Jailor and his household. In the evening I preached, from Matt. 11: 12. Several came out to be prayed for, and one found the pearl of great price. On Tuesday evening we attended to the ordinances of God's house—Feet-washing and the Lord's Supper. We had a glorious time.—Several came out again to be prayed for, and one found peace. On Wednesday evening brother Bigham preached. Two came out, but none found peace. On Thursday morning one more was baptized.

Thus, during this meeting, five were hopefully converted, seven were baptized, and since the meeting closed, six were taken into church-fellowship.

Protracted Meeting in Matamoras, Dauphin County, Pa.

This meeting commenced on the 13th of September, and lasted until the 16th. The preachers present were Elders W. G. Coulter, S. Fleagle, J. H. Hurley, J. A. Plowman, F. Hartman, S. Bigham and A. Snyder. On Friday evening brother Coulter preached, from Phil. 5th chapter. On Saturday afternoon I preached, from John 3: 18. In the evening brother Plowman preached, from Acts 26: 18. On Sunday morning brother Fleagle preached, from Num. 14: 2-4. Brother Hartman followed in the German language, from John 5: 40. Brother Hurley preached in the evening, from Phil. 3: 20. On Monday morning brother Bigham preached, from Psa. 127: 3. In the evening he preached again, from Matt. 2: 2. On Tuesday morning two were baptized and taken into church-fellowship. During this meeting the preaching, without exception, was plain, pointed and spiritual.

Woods-meeting in Turkey Valley.

This meeting commenced on the 20th of September, and continned until the 23d. The preachers in attendance here were, A. Snyder—But here we must stop enumerating the preachers in regular standing in the Eldership, from the fact that there were no more there. What reason they have for not attending is unknown to me: but I suppose some are afraid to go into the bills and mountains to seek the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

Notwithstanding, there were a few more preachers there, viz: B. Huffert, J. Hazelett and M. M. Utley.

On Friday evening I preached, from Psa. 85: 5. On Saturday afternoon I preached again, from Luke 7: 11–15. The congregations were small, but attentive. In the evening I preached, from Jonah 3; 9, to a large and attentive congregation. On Sunday morning the people gathered in from all directions, both far and near. Brother Huffert preached, from Amos 4: 12. I followed in the German language, from Matt. 6: 20. In the evening brother Hazelett preached, from Rom. 13: 11.

This evening the conduct of the wicked was shameful, the greater part being, as I suppose, intoxicated. One of the devil's slaughter-houses being near the place, they kept up a continual running to and fro: and some, to save the trouble of going so often, got their bottles filled, and brought King Alcohol to the meeting. Notwithstanding there were many that behaved themselves in this brute-like manner, there still were some that conducted themselves like gentlemen and ladies.

On Monday evening we attended to the ordinances of God's house, and the people of God were greatly revived. To God be all the glory.

During this meeting Providence favored us with excellent weather. A. SNYDER.

Matamoras, Dauphin Co., Sept. 26, 1850.

N. B.—The protracted meeting in Wild-cat Valley, Perry county, has been changed from the 11th of October to the 25th. A. S.

York County Camp-meeting.

Dear Brother Flake:—

Our meeting commenced, according to appointment, on the 16th of August. The opening sermon was preached by brother J. Hickernell, from Rom. 10: 1, followed by myself. The good Lord accompanied the word to the hearts of his children.

The next morning, at 10 o'clock, preaching by brother Clay, from John 3: 16, followed by brother Weishampel. At two o'clock preaching by brother Maxwell, from Rom. 6: 23, followed by brother Ross. The Lord truly was with us, in the building up of Zion. At candle-light preaching by brother Hickernell, from Luke 11: 21, 22, followed by brother McFadden. The Lord blessed the word. Several presented themselves as seekers, and four found peace.

Sabbath morning preaching by brother Swartz, from Rom. 1: 16, followed by brother McFadden. It was an edifying and soul-cheering season. Two o'clock preaching by brother Hickernell, from Heb. 11: 7, followed by brother Kister; and truly it was good to be there. In the evening brother McFadden preached, from Gen. 6: 22, followed by brother Hickernell. The Lord accompanied the word to the hearts of the people. Ten came forward as seekers, and four found peace.—Monday morning preaching by brother Weishampel, in German, from John 3: 9, followed by brother Enterline. At two o'clock preaching by brother Crawford, from 2 Chron. 12: 25. In the evening preaching by brother Plowman, from Proverbs. Tuesday, on account of the inclemency of the weather, we had no preaching, but had prayer-meeting in the tents, which had a good effect in the salvation of some souls. Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, met at the stand, for the purpose of giving the parting hand; at which time five brethren and four sisters received the hand of fellowship.

The conversions at the Camp-meeting amounted to about 15 souls, and since that the meeting has been kept up in the Bethels at Smoketown and Newberry, which has resulted in the conversion of 15 more.—Therefore the Lord has done great things for York county, whereof we are truly glad, and are looking up for still better days; and our prayer is that the good Lord may carry on the well begun work from shore to shore.

Yours, with respect and esteem,

JAMES F. MACHLAN.

Letter from Brother J. M. Klein.

Wesley, Venango Co., Pa.
Sept. 18, 1850.

Brother Flake:—

Having just returned from Virginia, I shall give you a small sketch of my journey.

I left home on the 5th day of August, in Fell & Allen's line of stages, and arrived safe in Pittsburg on the morning of the 6th. Went and took breakfast with a friend of the Methodist Church, after which he accompanied me through the city. After looking round for some time, I bade him adieu and went in search of a boat bound down the river. The boats lying at the wharf were numerous, the river being in a low stage. Many of the large boats were undergoing repairs, preparing for a better stage of water and an increase of freight. This was remarkably scarce. Nothing was doing on the wharf worth noticing. But one boat among the vast number was preparing to go down stream, as far as I went. The Captain was not on board, being confined to a bed of sickness in the city. However, she loaded what little freight she could get, and left about one o'clock in the afternoon, bound for Zanesville, under the care of the first Clerk. The Ohio (which is her name) is a good boat, and well fitted out, for one of her kind. Her crew is civil—both Clerks in particular are gentlemanly in their manners and deportment. Her lower deck was strewed with fresh lime, as a preventative of Cholera. This fell destroyer has again fastened on many along the river. Even Pittsburg lost many of its inhabitants. The deaths in 24 hours, of Cholera and Diarrhœa, were as many as 60 in number. These, however, were abating somewhat after the late heavy thunder-gusts, in which the people of these regions have shared to the improvement of health.

Last season Birmingham suffered greatly by the Cholera. This season it escaped, and Pittsburg is visited. Oh! that this people may learn to know and reverence Him who has visted them with these scourges, no doubt to bring them to reflect.

The Ohio had on board but few passengers. One of them had a slight attack of Cholera, and several of Dysentery—none, however, fatal, as yet, when I left the boat, which was on the morning of the 8th. I landed at Smith's wood-yard, two miles below the mouth of Fish Creek. Those having occasion to enter their names for that place, had better be careful, as there are other landings of the name of Smith.

By father Smith and family I was kindly received and well treated. Father Smith is an Elder of the Church of God in that place, and a man of good standing in the community. After breakfast, and some conversation on the subject of the meeting, I was taken on horseback by his sons 10 miles up Fish Creek, to the place where the Camp-meeting was held. This is truly a hill country—perhaps more so than the hill country of Judea.

The encampment was situated in the bottoms of Boman Run, with a hill towering to a great height on either side, and equally so in the rear. I thought we were well fortified as to hills, had it not been for the large lime-stone rocks, which some of the folks in those parts apprehended would be rolled down upon them from the surrounding hills. The meeting was appointed to commence on the 9th, but did not commence until the 10th, in the evening. The number of tents was small, owing, perhaps, in part, to the meeting being too early in the season, and partly to a want of will to tent out, and in part to the sickness among the people.

Camp-meetings in that country meet with a great deal of opposition from Formalists, Universalists, and Infidels, which abound in those hills. Some that profess discipleship with Christ, speak wickedly of Camp-meetings. Others had never seen a Camp-meeting, and had come to see what it looked like. So, upon the whole, we had quite a large crowd of people on the Lord's-day; amongst which were some of all kinds—those that hold human beings as stock not excepted—and a few of those unfortunate enough to be in bondage among the rest. Having somewhat kind masters, they are permitted to go to meeting.

Nothing special took place during the meeting. The preaching was plain and practical, and the order good, with little exception. A few ill-disposed persons from a distance, one of them a lawyer's son, made some noise outside the encampment. These will be punished with the law. One of the grand jurors present took their names, and will return them before the grand jury. This is made the duty of jurors in Virginia by law, and the first business in Court. So it ought to be in every State. I think that the brethren ought to be careful at the first meetings that they hold, and establish good order at first; for a Camp-meeting with bad order is not a very pleasant place, at least not to me.

The meeting closed on Tuesday, the 14th, with a good deal of solemnity. During this meeting I formed an agreeable acquaintance with a number of persons. I conversed freely with one of the candidates for the convention, a slave-holder.

On the 16th I embarked for Pittsburg, on board of the steamboat Camden, Capt. Dillon. She is a small stern-wheel boat, with her cabin on the lower deck. The accommodations are not so good as on some larger boats, but the officers are pious men. Captain Dillon is a Methodist, but very liberal in his views. He is repairing the boat, and should any of the brethren go down the river, I think I would recommend him to them. He has some sympathy for travelling preachers. But there is no sympathy for swearing or drinking on the boat. Yours, in the bond of fellowship,

J. M. KLEIN.

Letter from Bro. Thos. Hickernell.

Dayton, Ohio, Sept. 17, 1850.

Indiana Camp-meeting.

Brother Flake:—

I would embrace the present opportunity to inform you concerning our trip to the Indiana Camp-meeting. I left home with my family on the 20th of August, about one hour before sun-down, and stayed over night with brother Christian Rice. On the 21st we drove 30 miles, and stayed over night with our old friend Croup, in the State of Indiana. On the 22d we went 30 miles further, and stopped at father Mayberry's, Decalb county. The roads through Fort Wayne were worse than I had been accustomed to see them at this season of the year, originating from heavy and continuous rains. When we came to father Mayberry's I expected to have an evening's talk with him; but, alas! he had gone to his long home. His companion and son were sick when we arrived there, but were getting better.

On the 23d we started for the Camp, and arrived there in the evening—the roads muddy and streams high, which made our travelling somewhat difficult. The congregations were large during the Camp, for a woody country. The ministers present were as follows: Brothers J. Martin, Geo. Thomas, J. Blickenstaff, Bartlett and the writer. On Saturday evening two were forward to be prayed for, and one professed hope in Christ. This was the only conversion we had during the Camp. The weather was damp and hard on delicate constitutions, and some got discouraged and left with their tents. The experience meetings on the ground were good, and a good feeling existed under preaching. The Camp broke up on Tuesday morning, in the usual way, by giving the parting hand, which was attended with weeping mixed with joy and rejoicing.

On the 28th I left for Mayberry's, and preached there that night—found them still getting better. On the 29th we went to Whitley county, and stayed over night at brother Young's. The next day I preached twice in that neighborhood. Brother Thomas being with me, followed me in exhortation. We had quite interesting meetings. The little Church there appears to be doing well. May the Lord prosper them.

On the 30th we started for home—travelled 35 miles that day, and stayed over night with an old gentleman by the name of Rice, a member of the M. E. Church. The day following being the Lord's-day, we tarried and preached twice, and put up with brother Croup, 13 miles south-east of Fort Wayne. On the next day we travelled up the St. Mary's river, and stayed over night with brother Joshua Chilcoat, formerly from Morrison's Cove, Pa.

On the 3d of September I arrived at home again with my family. September 3d, in the forenoon, I was taken sick with something like a bilious intermittent fever. My wife attended on me till noon, and then she was taken sick. In a few days following my youngest child was taken sick, and then my oldest child was also taken sick. Through these afflictions I failed attending some six appointments. My two children were still poorly when I left home.

Yesterday, the 16th of September, I tried to get to an appointment at Piermont, Preble county, but failed. When I started I thought I had only 35 miles to go, but instead of that it was 40. I stopped in a town called Salem, and stayed over night with a family from Mount Joy, Pa., by the name of Hubley.—Sister Hubley is a sister to sister Eshleman at Pittsburg. They are all well.

This evening I preach near Dayton. My mind is somewhat disturbed in consequence of the affiictions at home. But man is born to trouble, and I don't know but what I have my share of it. My mind is still made up to go over the mountains next spring on a visit, if I live and nothing prevents.

Yours truly,
THOS. HICKERNELL.

Letter from Brother J. M. Klein.

WESLEY, Venango Co., Pa., Sept. 23, 1850.

BROTHER FLAKE:—

IN the 10th number of the Advocate, I saw a call or proposal to the preachers of the East to meet one day previous to the next Eldership, to form an association to meet afterwards at stated times, for mental and spiritual improvement. This I would highly approve of, if it can be got up successfully: for I think that a meeting with my brethren in the ministry, at stated times, for mutual improvement, would be gratifying to me, and no doubt edifying to all who would thus meet. Will the preachers of Western Pennsylvania try to adopt this plan, or one of a similar nature! Think of it, till the next Eldership.

The West Pennsylvania Eldership will be held in the Union Bethel of the Church of God at Fiatville, Lawrence county, Pa., commencing on the *———, at 10 o'clock, A. M. It is hoped that the members of the Eldership will turn out to a man, and that the Churches will represent themselves by their proper representatives. There will be a large amount of business to be transacted, and some of vital importance. There are several preachers expected from other denominations. Will brother Hickernell be in attendance on that occasion? I hope he will; for he knows our situation: and he knows also that charity ought to begin at home.

THE ROUTES OF THE SEVERAL PREACHERS.

The Preachers and Elders from Virginia and Southern Ohio, will leave the Ohio river at Beaver Point, and take the Erie and Beaver Canal to Newcastle; and from thence they will have seven miles to Fiatville, by land. Those coming from Pittsburg, by land, will pass through Harmony, Portersville and Harlemsburg. From the latter it is nine miles to Fiatville. Or else by Slippery Rock church and Newcastle. Brothers Harvey Wheaton, Jos. Cuvert and and Samuel Weston are appointed a committee of arrangements, upon whom the members of the Eldership, and others, will call for entertainment, and they will be conducted to their several places of lodging.—Brother Wheaton resides in the village, and brother Weston at the Bethel.

Are the preachers of the Eldership making an effort to get the collections lifted for the Eldership fund? This matter ought not to be neglected. Make the effort, and call on all the church members, and others; for all ought to give according as the Lord has prospered them; and then bring the liberality of the people to the Eldership.

J. M. KLEIN,
On behalf of the Standing Committee.

P. S.—There is a gracious work of grace going on in this place. Since the Camp some few have experienced saving grace, and the work is still going on. Last night nine or ten were at the altar of prayer, and several were freed from the power of sin through faith in Christ the Lord. I had to make some disappointments last week, sinners begging me not to close the meeting. God permitting, I shall keep up the meeting yet all this week.

J. M. K.

*The time is altered to Wednesday, November 20th, by request of brothers Logue and Wertz.—EDITOR pro tem.

[THE following letter should have been published in the summer, but it is not too late now.—EDITOR pro tem.]

Letter from Brother B. Obér.

MARSHALL COUNTY, VIRGINIA.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

I TAKE up my pen to drop a few lines for the readers of the Advocate, which you may publish, if you please, for the encouragement of the friends of Zion.

I held a meeting about 11 miles from Elizabethtown, which commenced on the 26th of April. Preached in the evening to an attentive congregation. On Saturday I preached again to a small number. In the evening I spoke to a large congregation. On Sabbath I preached on Church policy. In the evening I tryed to persuade sinners to come to God. A few presented themselves at the altar of prayer, but none found peace. After I dismissed the congregation, I was very unkindly treated by a preacher who called himself a Disciple. He asserted that I had preached falsehoods, by inviting men to get on their knees and show signs of repentance, and in saying that they could receive remission of sins before baptism. I told him I did not wish to be disturbed. I then left, thinking all would be over. I preached again in the neighborhood the next day. After the discourse a school teacher of the same denomination impeached me for including them in my prayer and misrepresenting them. I asked him whether I had specified any denomination. He answered no; but said he knew who I meant when I prayed the Lord to have mercy on the hypocrite and formal professor, who outwardly appear like whited sepulchres, but inwardly they are full of rottenness. So much for a guilty conscience. The answer of this prayer was fully as unexpected to me as the deliverance of the Apostle Peter to those who prayed for his deliverance when in prison, when they were informed that he was at the door: for the individual called upon some of his brethren whether they did not take it to themselves. They answered in the affirmative. Thus conviction was manifested at heart. But the sad consequence was, like the old Pharisees, he took the floor to try to defend himself, and to substantiate the doctrine of baptismal regeneration. After he had spoken about half an hour, I rose and replied to the dogmas he advanced. After my reply he was determined to speak again. This I did not submit to, inasmuch as I wished to labor for the conversion of souls. He insisted on a discussion. I at last agreed to meet him the next day, and take half an hour each to speak. Accordingly we met at 12 o'clock. My opponent took the floor, and spent the half hour in telling the same story he had told the day before. I then replied to his discourse, and before I was half through he tried to interrupt, but was immediately called to order. The result was, my opponent left the house in a passion.

In the evening I preached again to a large congregation,—gave an invitation,—six presented themselves as subjects of prayer, and several found peace. The next day we met again,—gave an invitation, and eight presented themselves as candidates for baptism. We then went to the water and buried them by baptism, according to the ancient mode. After we returned to the house we gave an invitation for church-fellowship; after which 15 united together in church-fellowship, agreeing to take the Bible for their Discipline. We continued the meeting a few days longer. The result of the meeting, on the whole, was, the baptism of 16, and the organization of a Church of 21 members. May the Lord keep these brethren and sisters faithful to their journey's end, and add to their number daily such as shall be saved. I remain yours, in the bonds of the Gospel,

B. OBER.

[THIS letter also should have appeared sooner. Brother Wertz will please excuse the delay.—EDITOR pro tem.]

Letter from Brother D. Wertz.

MARSHALL COUNTY, VIRGINIA.

DEAR BROTHER J. FLAKE:—

BROTHER OBER and myself preached to this Church (Woodlands) on the 14th of the present month—administered the ordinances, and a few found it to be good to obey God in all his commands. One came out to seek the pardon of sin. Some of the members of this Church have been called away by death, young and promising to us and the cause of religion. A few have turned out stony-ground disciples, and have gone back to work out their own destruction. Notwithstanding, we have it to say, that there are still a goodly number who are determined to sustain the cause of truth and a Christian character. May they soon see the day of a great reformation.

I have preached most of my time, the past three months, in Ohio, and Brook and Hancock counties, Virginia. There is wealth, intelligence and improvement to a good extent, but not much of what we call true religion. The Church of God is a new thing, and it sounds strange to them to learn that God has a Church, i. e. by name. I have preached near West Liberty every two weeks, on the principles and primitive order of the Church of God, to large, attentive and respectable congregations. What the result will be, time will show by-and-by.

The ordinances and practices of the Church are believed and not much spoken against; but when we come to bring them in force, it is likely popular feeling and sects will oppose and disobey God. In this I wish to be disappointed.

Presbyterians, Methodists and Disciples compose the religious community. The latter are at the fountain-head of the reformation of A. Campbell. I was in Bethany on the 4th of July, and saw the performance of a number of graduates and young men of Bethany College. They spoke on different subjects, and in different tongues. A. C. is a fine looking old gentleman. He spoke with a good feeling, and to a good purpose, to the young men of his College, in bidding farewell to a number of his learners. The solemnity, tears and feeling manifested by the President, teachers, and young men about going to their homes in different parts, was a proof of their regard and attachment to one another.

I would be glad if the Church of God would soon be able and willing to erect an Institution of some kind, to prepare young men for a good station in life, and particularly for the ministry of the Gospel. My own time for such a course is past; but I would say to others, if I have to go on a lame horse in my station, do you get a sound one, and I will do the best I can, putting whip and spur to it:—if lame, keep going.

Now may peace, mercy and grace be with all those that love our common Lord and Saviour in truth. Yours, in love,

D. WERTZ.

Letter from Brother A. B. Slyter.

MIDDLEVILLE, Berry Co., Michigan, Sept. 30, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

I TAKE the present opportunity to drop a few lines for the Advocate. I am now at home, having just returned from my circuit.

We commenced our Camp-meeting under rather unfavorable circumstances, it being rainy and sickly. We commenced on the 29th of August, and continued until Monday morning. There were five tents, and some contained from four to five families. We had very good meetings, especially on Sabbath evening. Professors were revived, and several reclaimed. One experienced religion after the Camp-meeting closed.

I lately held a protracted meeting with the Church in West James. The Church was much revived—one forward for prayers, and several united in church-fellowship.

Yours, respectfully,
A. B. SLYTER.

N. B.—I should like to have brother Benj. Howard stop and preach for us as he passes through Michigan. Come to Middleville, Berry county, and there inquire for me. I live close by. A. B. S.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Meeting of Colored Citizens.

At a public mass meeting of the colored citizens of Providence, R. I., held in Hoppin's Hall, on Monday evening, September 23d, relative to the fugitive slave bill, the following resolutions were presented and adopted:

Whereas, we, the colored inhabitants of this country, have been shamefully oppressed by this nation's despotic legislation from its formation, causeless—therefore,

Resolved, That we, the citizens of Providence, R. I., in view of the fugitive slave bill, do, from this time henceforth, pledge to sacrifice our lives and our all upon the altar of protection to our wives, our children, and our fellow sufferers in common with us.

Whereas, our fathers bore their breast firmly to the howling storm of British artillery, and struggled with the peril of the Revolution manfully and patriotically for all the true glory of which this country should ever boast—

Resolved, That we have an undoubted and inherent right to unrestrained liberty, and the pursuit of happiness anywhere on this vast domain, the foundations of which were laid through the blood and energies of our fathers, who, according to General Washington's own words, fought with unflinching bravery in the darkest hour of '76. for an asylum truly democratic in all its character.

Resolved, That we believe that the moral and executive power of Rhode Island is too democratic to practice or submit to an enactment so inhuman and disgraceful.

Resolved, That we look to the great moral arm of Rhode Island as a refuge from the storm which now threatens our social habitations, with lamentations beyond endurance.

Resolved, That we consider the action of Congress, in the passage of the fugitive slave bill, unworthy of the age, and an abiding disgrace upon that body.

Resolved, That the act is unconstitutional, from the fact of its destroying the rights guaranteed to each State by the Constitution, namely—securing to each and every person within their limits life and property.

Resolved, That we, upon mature consideration, believe it to be our duty to God, ourselves, our children, and three millions of our brethren that are in bonds, at any hour of day or night, that a slaveholder, or his agent, shall come within the limits of the State of Rhode Island for the purpose of retaking runaway slaves, that we will use every means that nature or art may place into our hands to deprive him of his object.

Resolved, That we who have escaped from chains, fetters, and the slave driver's lash, are determined not to go back again, but have adopted the inestimable motto—Liberty or Death.

Resolved, That these resolutions be referred to a committee of three for publication, and with instructions to transmit copies of them to the Governor and the members of Congress from this State.

E. Scott, Sherman Marrs, John Banks, } Committee of Publication.

The New York Tribune.—The New York Tribune is now in its tenth year. It has a corps of twelve editors and reporters, thirty-seven printers, two proof-readers, thirteen press-men, engineers and other laborers in the press-room, four permanent correspondents in Europe, three at Washington, two in Canada, two in California, one in Mexico, one in Havana, one in Central America, beside others in various cities of the United States. Its entire force, including carriers, &c., is 130 persons. The issues of the paper are 18,600 daily, 41,400 weekly, 1,700 semi-weekly, 3,300 for California, 500 for Europe, making in all 160,200 sheets weekly, and 8,334,400 annually. It consumes seven tons and a half of paper weekly, and 150 lbs. of ink.

Consecration of the First Fruits.—A missionary at Honolulu, Sandwich Islands, writes that a member of his church brought him four parcels of gold dust, amounting to $40, as an offering to the cause of Christ. On going with four men to California he had engaged with them that all the gold obtained by the first day's labor should be consecrated to the Lord, and this was the result. It was forwarded to the treasurer of the American Board of Foreign Missions. Would that all Christians, whether gold diggers or not, had such a spirit.—Morning Star.

The Bible in Karen.—The missionaries in Burmah report that the translation of the Bible into this language will soon be through the press, and be accessible to the thousands of this wonderful people who, a few years past, have been converted by hundreds. This is the long looked for law of the true God which, their tradition reports, has been lost, but was to be found again. May the Divine Spirit write it on their hearts till this whole nation feel its power.

[Christian Chronicle.

Synopsis of the Fugitive Slave Bill.

1. For the appointment of commissioners by the United States' Courts in the States and Territories, whose duty it shall be to hear the demands and grant certificates to the claimants of fugitive slaves of their apprehension.

2. Commissioners shall appoint assistants to execute their duties in the counties, and shall all of them have power to summon the "posse comitatus" to their aid.

3. Testimony of claimant or agent to be prima facie evidence against ths fugitives, whose evidence is not to be taken; and upon a hearing before any magistrate, justice of the peace, U. S. Judge, commissioner or assistant, upon the testimony of the claimant or agent, the fugitive is to be delivered up.

4. Persons hindering the execution of the law to be fined $500 and imprisoned six months, and on conviction or trial, having caused the escape of the fugitive, to be fined $1,000, subject to recovery by law.

5. Prescribes the fees to marshals, and deputies, and clerks of the U. S. Courts, &c., for their services under this act.

6. Additional persons provided for to assist, if necessary, in the reclamation and transportation to his master of a fugitive, and their compensation defined.

7. It is provided that a certificate shall be given from one State or Territory, for the pursuit of a fugitive and his recapture, in another State or Territory.

8. It is provided that when a marshal or his deputy permit the escape of a fugitive from the possession, they shall be amenable to the value of the slave; and for default of duty in his capture, amenable to a fine of $1,000.

Peace Congress at Frankfort.

About two thousand persons convened in Frankfort to deliberate on the Peace Question. Of this number three hundred were Englishmen, one hundred Americans, fifty Belgians, about the same number of Germans, and the remainder Frenchmen and other Europeans. Six resolutions formed the subjects of discussion during the three days session of the Convention.

Hon. Thomas M. Day, of Hartford, Ct., who was a member of this Congress, writes:—

"Time and space would fail me to trace the whole debate, or even to collect the bon mots. Suffice it to say, that the Congress was kept up in full and spirited style to a late hour of the third day; that they agreed to meet next year in London, at the time of the great industrial exhibition in 1851; and that they dissolved the meeting, amidst hearty cheers for the city of Frankfort, the presiding officers, and above all for Germany, free and united.

The speakers used the French and English languages mainly, but occasionally the guttural tones of the German were heard. These men are not beating the air, you may rest assured; solid good has resulted, and will continue to result, from their efforts. True it is, that the pecuniary embarrassments of the great governments of Europe are the most reliable of peace makers and peace keepers."—C. Chron.

New Vein of Coal.—A vein of Bituminous Coal has been discovered in Brandon, Vermont.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SCENE IN A HEBREW FAMILY.

The following interesting extract from the work of a recent traveller in the Holy Land may serve to show the literal manner in which the Jews still observe some of the precepts of the Law:—

"The family of a Rabbi assembled in solemn conclave in the principal room of the house. In front of the divan, at the upper end of the apartment, a square table was placed, covered with a strange-looking table-cloth, which was embroidered in colours, on a white ground, with Hebrew letters, a prospect of the Temple of Solomon, and some trees and figures. A silver lamp of a peculiar form was hanging from the ceiling, and all the Hebrews, servants and maids, were seated on the divans, clothed in sumptuous raiment, excepting the lower servants, who were standing near the door at the lower end of the room.—When all was ready, a little boy was brought in, and placed in the middle of the room by his nurse; and, after sundry injunctions from one of the Jewesses, the child lifted up its voice, and said to his grand-father, who occupied the seat of honor, "What mean the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgment, which the Lord our God hath commanded you?"

"Then the old man answered before them all, "We were Pharaoh's bond-men in Egypt, and the Lord brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand. And the Lord showed signs and wonders, great and sore, upon Egypt, upon Pharaoh, and upon all his household, before our eyes.—And he brought us out from thence, that he might bring us in, to give us the land, which he sware unto our fathers," etc., following literally the text of the 20th and following verse of Deuteronomy, 6th and 7th chapters.

"It was interesting to witness such a ceremony as this, still practised by the fallen descendants of the chosen race, whose victorious armies trampled on the necks of the ancient possessors of the land of Israel, and to hear these few trembling people, huddled together in the innermost recesses of a half-ruined house, recounting the mighty deeds of their ancestors, whose legions were irresistible, for they were led by the God of battles."

How characteristic is this little incident of the "people that dwell alone, and are not reckoned among the nations"—sifted "among all nations, as corn is sifted in a sieve," yet so that "not the least grain shall fall upon the earth"—because He that scattered will yet gather them! Living witnesses to the truth of Scripture history—striking memorials of the fulfilment of Scripture prophecy—sure pledges, consequently, of all that remains yet unfulfilled. There they are—linking the earliest with the latest periods of this world's history. Look at them, unlearned reader, and say whether you want any other fact or argument to convince you that the Bible is God's own inspired word—the "Scripture which cannot be broken."—Christian Monthly Penny Magazine.

As a man is under God, the master of his own fortune, so he is the master of his own mind. The Creator has so constituted the human intellect that it can only grow by its own action: it will certainly and necessarily grow. Every man must, therefore, educate himself: his book and teacher are but helps.

THE "CRAZY ANGEL."

We notice by the Southern papers that Miss Dix is still persevering in her work of true philanthrophy, in waking up the minds of the public in behalf of the insane. She is now at the capital of Alabama, beseeching the Legislature to erect a State Lunatic Asylum for the unfortunate in that State. It will be recollected that she was in this State a few years since, on the same charitable errand. The seeds thus sown among us have since germinated. Steps are now taking for one within our borders.

Nine years ago we had the pleasure of spending an evening with her. She then said if her life was spared she intended to beseech every State where there is no asylum for the insane, for the erection of one. Seven States since then, through her instrumentality and perseverance, have erected asylums.

While on this subject, we take occasion to relate an anecdote in relation to one in Rhode Island. As both of the parties are now dead to whom we allude, it is too good to be lost.

Nicholas Brown, of Providence, R. I., was a great friend to all charitable institutions. There was no insane hospital in that State. Miss Dix visited him for the purpose of getting him enlisted for the erection of one. After much persuasion she committed him to the project, with the promise of making a liberal subscription.

Mr. Brown loved to draw the coppers from Cyrus Butler's huge purse. He would give away a thousand at any time for a charitable purpose, provided a like amount could be obtained from his friend B., a millionaire, who was a noted miser. Mr. Brown headed the subscription with $30,000, and interlined the paper, stating that the institution was to take the name of the largest subscriber. He thought in that way he would entrap his friend Butler for a larger sum than he had put down. He succeeded.

Miss Dix repeatedly called on Mr. Butler, but he kept constantly putting her off, without using his pen. She had learned his character and determined to importune the old bachelor until she obtained a noble sum. One day she called on him at his counting-room when several were waiting their turn to do business. As she went in, Mr. B. was somewhat out of humor. He was disputing an item of some ten cents in a carpenter's account. She gently tapped him on the shoulder and laid the subscription before him. He seized his pen and wrote, "C. Butler, $40,000."—Handing her the paper he said, "So much for Brown's introduction of the crazy angel to me!" Thirty thousand was afterwards subscribed by the citizens of Providence. Mr. Butler died the past year, leaving an estate of $4,000,000 to his niece, Mrs. Duncan. With all this immense wealth, he left no lasting monument to his memory but the Butler Insane Hospital, and that was done while he was in a pet about a ten cent charge by his carpenter.—Detroit Tribune.

The world is a great inn on the road to eternity, to which thou art travelling.—Thou art attended by this world's goods, as servants, belonging to the inn, and when thou goest away, they will convey thee to the door, but must return to wait on other strangers, as they did on thee.

Knowledge is better than riches.

POETRY.

From the Dollar Newspaper.

THE CHANT OF THE CHERUBIM.

"Holy! Holy!"
Listen to the Seraph cry,
Sounding through the upper sky,
Praising Him who reigns on high—
"Holy!"

Holy is the Lord our King,
Then to Him your tributes bring,
And His mighty power sing—
"Holy!"

Listen to the angel band,
Shouting in yon Heaven land,
With the harpsichord in hand—
"Holy!"

Praise the One who died for thee
On the rugged cursed tree,
By the hill of Calvary—
"Holy!"

Unto Him let mortals pray,
Unto Him shout every lay,
Till the final Judgment Day!
"Holy!"

J. F. W., JR.

Baltimore, Md., 1850.

A SPIRITUAL SONG.

1. My brethren, I have found,
A way that doth abound,
With fruits of sweetest manna:
The more I eat, I find,
The more I am inclined,
To sing and shout hosanna.

Chorus.

My soul doth long to go,
Where I shall fully know,
The glories of my Saviour:
And as I pass along,
I'll sing the Christian song,
I hope to live forever.

2. Perhaps you think I'm wild,
Or simple as a child—
I am a child of glory:
Born lately from above,
My heart is full of love,
O! hear me tell the story.

3. My brethren, can you say,
That you are on the way—
Are on the way to glory?
I care not for your name,
Religion is the same,
If you're a child of Glory.

ALL CAN DO SOMETHING.

A little boy, brim full of fun,
Running as hard as he could run,
Plunged in a pond, head over heels,
Among the fishes and silver eels.
His elder brother caught his hand,
And brought him safely back to land;
The second grasped his floating cap;
His sister cried at his mishap;
And all directly homeward came,
Dreading to hear their father's blame;
His kindness laid their fears at rest,
They told the truth,—and truth is best.

He heard their talk, then, smiling, said
(Patting the first upon the head,)
"Your courage saved your drowning brother,
Receive this book; and now another
I give the second for his aid;
But what for you, my little maid?
You nothing did—you only cried;
And yet your right is not denied;
You little did—but that was good—
Your little was, just what you could;
To you an equal gift is shared,
Your kind desire I now reward."

Thus, Christians, help poor dying souls
With all the means your power controls
Stretch forth the hand, some burden bear
Or raise your heart in fervent prayer;
The Lord of men, the God most high,
Approves you if you only cry.

Rugged School Magazine.

LINES

Addressed to Brother J. Haifleigh, on the day of his Marriage.

BY H. J. B.

May this life, while here you tarry
In a world of hope and fear,
Give you all its joys and pleasures,
All that man calls near and dear.
Should a cloud of shade surround you,
Or a tear suffuse your eye,—
'Tis not to last: pray do not heed it—
Have your trust beyond the sky.

May the Lord, the kind Protector,
Shepherd of his feeble flock,
Guide you, that you ever wander
Humbly like a summer's brook;
Let not storming trials move you
Like the tempest moves the sea;
Ever calm, yet firm as heaven
Let your hope in Jesus be!

When once death shall rend asunder
Ev'ry thread that binds your soul
To this world of care and trouble,
World of pain and world of dole;
May His goodness, ever flowing
On as while on earth we stay,
Brigten more, and make you happy
In yon realms of endless day!

Linglestown, Pa., 1850.

"In each event of life how clear
Thy ruling hand I see,
Each blessing to my soul most dear,
Because conferred by Thee.

"In every joy that crowns my days,
In every pain I bear,
My heart shall find delight in praise,
Or seek relief in prayer."

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 1st inst., by Elder J. Haifleigh, Mr. John M. Templin to Mrs. Sarah Miller, both of Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—On the 29th of September, 1850, at White-hill, Cumberland county, Pa., Eber Andrew Gher, son of brother David and sister Gher, aged 7 years and 21 days.

Funeral services by Elder J. J. Miller.

In this borough, on Friday morning, September 27th, Sarah Updegraff, wife of Jacob Updegraff, in the 64th year of her age.

Departed this life early on the first of October, Mrs. Sarah Hutton, of Baltimore, aged about 73 years.

She died at the residence of her son-in-law, brother J. J. Miller, near the Railroad Bridge, in Cumberland county, and was buried near the Bethel in Bowman's neighborhood. She was a worthy woman, and of the Quaker persuasion, but in the habit of attending the meetings of the brethren.

Discourse and prayer by the writer from Heb. 6: 18—"That we might have strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold on the hope set before us."

J. Flake.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

West Pennsylvania Eldership.

The time of meeting is postponed until Wednesday, November 20th, by request of brothers E. Logue and D. Wertz.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

By Divine permission, the following protracted meetings will be held on the Cumberland Circuit, viz:

One at Cowen's School-house, Fishing Creek Valley, Perry county, Penn'a., commencing on Saturday evening, the 2d of November.

One at the Bethel near Shepherdstown, Cumberland county, commencing on Saturday evening the 16th of November.

The brethren in the ministry and the public generally are invited to attend.

A protracted meeting will be held at New-Market, York county, Pa., commencing on Friday, the 8th of November.

One at More's School-house, York county, commencing on Friday, the 15th of November.

Preachers and brethren generally are invited to attend. John A. Plowman.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4 25	a	4 37½
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	2 50	a	2 50
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	2 37½	a	2 37½
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			90	a	95
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	50	a	50
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	45	a	50
Do.	Oats,	do. - -	28	a	28
Do.	Barley,	do. - -	60	a	65
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	3 50	a	3 50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2 00	a	2 25
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1 12	a	1 12
BEEF, per cwt.		- - -	5 00	a	5 50
PORK, do.		- - - -	5 00	a	5 25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -	8	a	11
BUTTER, do.		- - - -	12½	a	15
LARD, do.		- - - -	8	a	8
TALLOW, do.		- - - -	8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.			6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - - -	12	a	12
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -	50	a	50
ONIONS,	do.	- - -	75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - - -	1 00	a	1 12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1 25	a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -	37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -	30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -	1 35	a	1 35
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -	10 00	a	10 00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	4 00	a	4 00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4 75	a	5 00
Do.	Rye,	do. -	3 00	a	3 00
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	3 00	a	3 00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1 00	a	1 05
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	65	a	65
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	65	a	65
Do.	Oats,	do. - -	33	a	35
Do.	Barley,	do. - -	65	a	68
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	3 50	a	3 50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2 50	a	2 62
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1 40	a	1 50
BEEF, per cwt.,		- -	7 00	a	8 75
PORK, do.		- - - - -	7 00	a	7 25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion,

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo decimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

Missionary Pledges.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner, -	paid	$10 00
William Reichart, -	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, - - - -		10 00
J. H. Hurley, - - -		5 00
Geo. U. Harn, - - -		5 00
M. F. Snavely, - - -		10 00
Jacob Miller, - - - -		10 00
James Miller, - - -		5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, - - -		5 00
Thomas Strohm, - - -		5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe, - - -		5 00
Abraham Sherich, - -	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, - - -		5 00
A Liberal Brother, - -		20 00
A Liberal Sister, - -	paid	2 00
David Strickler, - - -		5 00
James Casey, - - -		5 00
Samuel M. Hoover, -	paid	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. NOVEMBER 1, 1850. NUMBER 13.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

DITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

Christian Fellowship.---J. F.

To be in fellowship with the people of God is a great duty, and a great blessing. So it was in ancient Israel. To be shut out from the congregation was a very heavy penalty on the transgressor.

In our day the children of the kingdom are scattered through many lands--and through many different religious communities. But the real members of the flock of Christ—those who are regenerate--wherever these are met with, they are our brethren, the children of the same family, and going with us to the same everlasting home in heaven. From these then we dare not separate ourselves--we dare not deny them, nor call them by opprobrious names.

We should look around where we can find the most good for our souls--and where we can do the greatest good to the souls and bodies of our fellow-men, and then, whether our worldly interest be promoted, or hindered by the association, we should live and labor in the vineyard of the Lord, and in the fellowship of the saints. Thus they did at Jerusalem, in the first Christian Church, after the memorable day of Pentecost, "They continued steadfastly in the Apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread and in prayers."

A VISIT TO THE Late Yearly Meeting at Churchtown.

BY J. FLAKE.

I WALKED fourteen miles on Monday to attend the Yearly Meeting of the brethren at Churchtown, who had been already several days in session. I crossed the Railroad Bridge at Harrisburgh at nine o'clock, and walked on first eight miles to Mechanicsburgh, thinking I might find some one going from there with wagon or carriage. When there, I called on our dear friends, brother and sister Hinny, but found the brethren who had been there were already gone. With their well known hospitality they gave me dinner, and then tried to find me a way of riding over to the meeting, but being unsuccessful, I set off again on foot six miles further. It was a pleasant day—I felt pretty well in body, and glad of the ability and freedom of travelling in the old primitive style—which after all is a very good way, though the locomotive and cars may outstrip you in the race.

When I came to the place of meeting at Churchtown I found the brethren in full session, in a new and very convenient meeting-house, which I had not yet had the pleasure of being in, not having visited the neighborhood for several years. Bro. McFadden was Chairman—Brothers Harn and Haifleigh were Clerks, and all around were the elder and the younger brethren, whose friendly faces it was a privilege to see. Among the rest were Mackey, Winebrenner,—Ross, Rife,—Keller, Owens,—Thomas, Swartz, and others, beside the younger branches of the Eldership tree. May they all find their way to the general Assembly, and Church of the first born, whose names are written in Heaven.

They were glad to see me, though I came late; many shook hands—some kissed me in ancient style. Well, I love to be at the meetings of the saints for a few days, but when they go beyond a week I get tired—at this meeting I had only three days to stay.

They had taken up a good deal of the time of two days before I arrived in a debate with regard to the exciting question of slavery—not that any allow it right—but some were more stringent in their opposition to allowing fellowship to a slaveholder than others were. I had not the benefit of listening to the debate, nor the temptation to take part therein, but have the satisfaction of knowing that more or less of the speakers have shrewd heads, as well as honest hearts, and ready tongues. So that question was over, and was not taken up again while I was present. The whole body goes against the unjust and anti-christian practice of slavery.

The name of every preacher is called, whether present or absent, and an account required as to what they have been doing through the year, and if any are found faulty they are censured—happily there was not much difficulty this year—none were expelled, and very few censured.

The evening of Monday was appointed for celebrating the holy communion, previous to which it is the custom to "wash one another's feet"—after the example of the Saviour and disciples at their last supper before he suffered,—

"For in that night He was betrayed,
He for us all a pattern laid;
Soon as his supper he did eat,
He rose and washed his brethren's feet."

I was requested to take the lead in the solemn services of the evening, and although I was tired with my long walk, yet I felt like endeavoring to do so. So the Eldership and congregation having assembled at seven o'clock, I gave out that sweet hymn commencing—

"Jesus, the Saviour of my soul,
Be thou my heart's delight--"

and then after prayer, and another hymn, I read the last chapter of Hebrews and took the first four words of the tenth verse—"We have an altar"—for a text, and spoke therefrom for a short time. After which the solemn services proceeded in the usual manner, and closed with a prayer-meeting for penitent souls seeking the Lord.

On Tuesday evening there was a Missionary meeting, to endeavor to raise up a missionary feeling in behalf of the West. Several of the brethren addressed the meeting, and there seems a general desire to do more than heretofore to send out preachers to labor in the Western States, and to raise money to sustain them in their labors of love. The Eldership appointed two of their number (J. Flake and J. F. Weishampel) to go through all their bounds, and do their best to kindle a missionary feeling, and solicit contributions for missionaries, to the West especially. So then, dear Christian people, we shall call on those of you who are in prosperous circumstances, to give in proportion as the Lord has prospered you, and those who are poor to give a little, along with their earnest prayers for the good work.

Through the West where the brethren are scattered and settled, they call for preachers to deal out the bread of life to them, and as many around as can be brought to listen. Lift up your eyes--the fields are white unto the harvest--O gather in the precious souls before they die in sin.

Wednesday was the last day of the meeting, and three sessions were held--the brethren were asking leave of absence, and it was time to hasten to a close. In the morning session there was an interesting debate with respect to advising the preachers and all the members of our churches to avoid the use of tobacco.—The advice goes forth—will it be heeded? We shall see.

The Stationing Committee had been for several days considering and arranging the appointments for next year, and by evening they were ready to report--but it is generally left to about the last. In the evening session the delegates to the General Eldership were chosen by ballot—it meets next May. Bro. John Hickernell preached up-stairs to the congregation, while the Eldership met below in the basement story of the meeting-house, and went on to finish all their business, until after ten o'clock, when the appointments of the preachers were announced. Any one has the privilege of making objections, and consequently some few alterations were made, and then the arrangements made by the Stationing Committee were adopted.

Thanks were voted to the Speaker and Clerks for their services--and also to the brethren and friends who had so kindly and hospitably entertained us during our meeting in Churchtown. By this time it was about eleven o'clock, and being in the chair I gave out the words of the solemn doxology,

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow"—which was sung, and then after prayer, the Yearly Meeting for 1850 was ended.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

JOURNAL

OF THE

Twenty-first East Penn'a. Eldership.

Pursuant to adjournment, the East Pennsylvania Eldership of the Church of God met in the Bethel at Churchtown, Cumberland county, Pa., on Wednesday, the 16th of October, A. D., 1850.

Bro. James Mackey preached the opening sermon, from 1 Tim. 5: 22.—"Lay hands suddenly on no man, neither be partaker of other men's sins: keep thyself pure,"

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Met at 2 o'clock, P. M., when the meeting was opened by Bro. J. Winebrenner, by reading, singing and praying.

On motion, brothers Mooney and Deshiri were appointed to constitute the body: whereupon the following brethren were found to be in attendance, viz:

STATIONS.

Lancaster—A. Swartz.
Middletown—Wm. Mooney.
Harrisburg—G. U. Hann.
Shippensburg and Orrstown—James Mackey.
Baltimore—Wm. McFadden.

CIRCUITS.

Lancaster—T. Strohm and C. Price.
Lehigh and Schuylkill—J. Keller.
Dauphin—S. Fleagle.
Matamoras and Juniatta—A. Snyder.
Landisburg—J. H. Hurley.
Cumberland, Upper—Edward H. Thomas—J. Brandt, ruling elder.
Cumberland, Lower—J. C. Seabrooks and J. Haifleigh.
York——— ———.
Uniontown—J. C. Owens.
Washington and Fayetteville—T. H. Deshiri.
Broad-Top—A. J. Fenton.
Morrison's Cove—D. Kyle.
Advocate Office——— ———.

Missionaries Present.

J. F. Weishampel, Wm. Johnston, F. Hartman, G. Petre, H. L. Soule, Wm. Clay, S. M. Hoover, B. Fleagle, S. Crawford, John Winebrenner and E. Logue.

On motion, the meeting was organized by electing brother McFADDEN Speaker, and G. U. Harn and J. Haifleigh Clerks.

Rules of Order.

On motion, the following rules of order were adopted, viz:

1. The Eldership shall hold two sessions per diem—a fore and afternoon session: the forenoon session shall commence at 8 o'clock, and close at half-past 11; the afternoon session shall commence at half-past 1, and close at half-past 4 o'clock.

2. Each session shall be opened and closed with religious worship.

3. The Speaker and Clerks shall preside and conduct the business, according to the usage of deliberative bodies.

4. Ministers belonging to the Eldership, and Elders sent as delegates by the churches, alone shall be entitled to a vote.

5. The order of business shall be transacted as follows, to wit:

1. Items of unfinished business.

2. New items of business of a general character.

3. Reports of the ministers and examination of their character.

4. Hearing and deciding on applications for license.

5. Miscellaneous items.

6. Stationing the preachers.

7. All persons speaking on any motion or question before the Eldership, shall rise and address the Speaker, confine themselves to the subject under consideration, never speak longer than half an hour at any one time, nor more than twice on the same question, except to explain, without permission.

8. All questions shall be decided by a plurality of votes, and all voting shall be done viva voce, except when otherwise called for. When the yeas and nays are taken, they shall be entered on the Journal; but they shall be taken on no question whatever, except when called for by one-fourth of the members.

9. When a motion is pending before the Eldership, no other shall be in order, unless it be to amend, strike out, postpone, or adjourn.

10. Any decision of the Speaker, other than when he gives the casting vote, shall be subject to an appeal to the Eldership.

On motion of J. Winebrenner, the following committees were appointed by the Speaker:

1. A committee on Arrangements, consisting of brothers E. H. Thomas, J. Brandt and J. C. Seabrooks.

2. A committee on Journals, consisting of brothers D. Kyle, T. H. Deshiri, and T. Strohm.

3. A committee on Education, consisting of brothers Winebrenner, Harn and J. Keller.

4. A committee on Overtures, consisting of brothers Hurley, Crawford and Owens.

5. A committee on Finances, consisting of brothers S. Fleagle, J. F. Weishampel and C. Price.

On motion, the following committees were appointed by ballot:

1. A committee on Licensing, consisting of brothers Mackey, Winebrenner and Thomas.

2. A Standing Committee, consisting of brothers Swartz, Winebrenner and Thomas.

3. A Stationing Committee, consisting of brothers Winebrenner, Mackey, Thomas, Keller and Swartz.

4. A Board of Missions, consisting of Bros. Hinny, Thomas, and Swartz.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by brother S. Crawford.

THURSDAY MORNING.

Session opened by brother G. U. Harn. Journal of yesterday read and corrected.

Brother Maxwell appeared and took his seat.

The committee on Journals were called upon to report. Not being prepared to report, new items of business of a general character were taken up.

On motion of brother G. U. Harn,

1*st. Resolved*, That a committee of twelve be appointed by this Eldership, who shall meet in Harrisburg, Pa., on ———, the —— day of ——, for the purpose of taking into consideration the expediency, necessity and feasibility of selecting a site and erect, rent, or purchasing a suitable building or buildings in which to commence an Institution of Education, and that they be instructed to report through the Church Advocate as soon as practicable.

Referred to the committee on Education.

2*d. Resolved*, That this Eldership recommend to all Christians speaking the English language, the propriety of appointing a World's Convention, for the purpose of presenting a new and improved version of the whole Bible into said language.

Referred to a special committee, consisting of J. Winebrenner, A. Swartz and J. Keller.

3*d. Resolved*, That the time has arrived for the Churches of God to take some efficient measures to sustain a missionary or missionaries in heathen lands; also, in the States of Illinois and Iowa.

Referred to a special committee, consisting of brothers Thomas, Hurley and Crawford.

4*th. Resolved*, That we advise all Churches of God to require all their members removing into other neighborhoods, to take letters of recommendation, and that they present them to the Churches where they locate or sojourn. Adopted.

The committee on Overtures reported:—

1. A letter from W. G. Coulter, to be read in connection with his report. Referred to the Eldership.

2. A letter from Uniontown, giving a favorable report of brother Owens, and asking his re-appointment another year. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

3. A letter from Frizzlesburg, on the same subject. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

4. A letter from Orwigsburg, giving a good report of brother Keller, and requests his re-appointment another year as their preacher. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

5. A letter from Washington, Pa., giving a favorable report of brother Price, and asks his re-appointment. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

6. A letter from Bainbridge, giving a favorable report of brothers Price and Strohm—requesting a continuance of Bro. Price another year. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

7. A letter from Elizabethtown, giving a favorable report of brothers Price and Strohm—asking the appointment of brothers Price and Clay—a part of which is to be read before the Eldership.

8. A letter from Mount Joy, giving a favorable report of brother Price, and asking his re-appointment another year. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

9. A letter from Martinsburg, giving a favorable report of brother Kyle, requesting his re-appointment another year; if not him, then brothers Hurley or Harn. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

10. A letter from Stonerstown, giving a good report of brother Fenton, asking his re-appointment. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

11. A letter from Broad-Top and Sidlinghill Gap, on the same subject. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by brother Owens.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Opened by brother Maxwell.

On motion of brother J. Keller, brother John Hickernell, of the West Pennsylvania Eldership, was invited to take a seat as a member of this body.

Brother John Stomm appeared and took his seat.

Report of the Committee on Journals.

Your committee find the following items of unfinished business on the last Journal, viz:

1. A committee of Correspondence to the General Conference of the Free-will Baptist Church. Committee are brothers Winebrenner and Harn.

Brother Winebrenner stated that the meeting of the Eldership came too near the meeting of the General Conference, and the press of business prevented his attendance.

On motion, he was excused.

Brother Harn reported: That he visited the General Conference of the Free-will Baptist Church, held in Providence, R. I., and was very cordially received by that body. That by a unanimous resolution he was invited to take a seat and participate in their deliberations. That he proceeded to read his credentials expressing the object of his visit, which he understood to be three-fold: 1. The encouragement of similarity of sentiment. 2. The cultivation of Christian acquaintance. 3. The strengthening of the bonds of Christian fellowship, with the ultimate object of Christian union between the Free-will Baptist and the Churches of God. He adverted to the name, history, number, doctrines, polity and feelings of the Churches he represented, toward all Christians, and in particular the Free-will Baptists; and in connection read the resolutions of the General Eldership on the subject of slavery; giving also a short account of the practice and views of the Churches in relation to that subject, and an expression of his own: that the bare relation of master to slave should not debar from Christian-fellowship in all cases. These facts were, in the main, responded to with marks of approbation—excepting, however, those on slavery; but all were treated with Christian courtesy. He concluded with a request that a delegation be sent to our next General Eldership in Pittsburg, to be held next May.—Whereupon the following preamble and resolution were adopted:

"Whereas, a denomination of Christians called the Church of God, situated mostly in Pennsylvania, but extending into several other States, and entertaining doctrinal views similar to ours, though differing somewhat from our church polity: And whereas, there appears to be a very friendly and fraternal feeling on their part toward our denomination, they having appointed two corresponding messengers to this body, in order to obtain a better acquaintance and interchange of religious views, and strengthening the bonds of Christian affection and fellowship—therefore,

Resolved, That we most cordially and cheerfully reciprocate the feelings expressed by those brethren, and heartily welcome their corresponding messenger, Elder G. U. Harn. Also, that we reciprocate their courteous treatment by appointing our brother, George H. Ball, as corresponding messenger to the General Eldership of that connexion.

SILAS CURTIS,
Secretary of General Conference."

Brother Thomas moved that his report be adopted. Whereupon brother Swartz moved to amend it by adopting the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, Bro. G. U. Harn represented before the General Conference of the Free-will Baptists, that this body does not hold that the relation between master and slave is a bar to Christian-fellowship—therefore,

Resolved, That we still hold the sentiment that the relation between master and slave, as it exists in this country, is sinful and subversive of Christian equality, and at war with republican liberty.

Resolved, That we disclaim brother Harn's views of slavery, as expressed before said Conference.

On motion of brother Winebrennner, the preamble and second resolution were struck out.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by brother B. Fleagle.

—

FRIDAY MORNING.

Session opened by the Speaker.

Brother Swartz withdrew the remaining resolution. After a lengthy debate between Bros. Swartz, Winebrenner, Harn and others,

On motion of brother Swartz, the yeas and nays were called on the motion for the adoption of the report, and it was negatived by the following vote:

YEAS—Brothers Harn, Mooney, Strohm, Thomas, Hurley, Logue, Owens, Winebrenner, Fenton, Laverty, Stomm, Shaw, Maxwell, Weishampel, Rockafellow, Fosnacht and Brandt—17.

NAYS—Brothers Swartz, McFadden, Price, Snyder, Seabrooks, Haifleigh, Kyle, Keller, Crawford, Hartman, J. J. Miller, Soule, Clay, Johnston, Petre, B. Fleagle, Samuel Fleagle, Hickernell and Deshiri—19.

Brother Harn moved that this action be stricken from the Journal. Not agreed to.

Brother Sam'l Fleagle, delegate from Washington circuit, Md., appeared and took his seat.

Brother John Fosnacht, delegate from Newburg, appeared and took his seat.

Brother J. J. Miller appeared and took his seat.

Brother David Rockafellow, delegate from Mechanicsburg, appeared and took his seat.

Brother Amos Sutton, a minister of the General Baptist body of England, and missionary to Orissa, was introduced by brother Harn to the Chairman, and through him to the Eldership.

On motion of brother Harn, he was invited to take a seat with us as an advisory member.

Brother P. Shaw appeared and took his seat.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by brother Kyle.

—

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Opened by brother Weishampel.

Brother Laverty appeared and took his seat.

On motion, brother Sutton was invited to address this body.

He proceeded to present his thanks for the honor conferred upon him, and gave an account of the history and difference between the Old General Baptists and the New General Baptists of England. He belongs to the latter. They differ with the Old General Baptists on the doctrine of general and particular atonement. The New hold to the general atonement. They are of 70 years' standing, and number 18 thousand members. When numbering but six or seven thousand, they sent the first missionary to India. They have since trebled. Their missionary operations have produced a reflux influence, and spread general intelligence among that body, and raised the standard of piety. We find that it expands our intellects, and gives a better view of what we are all to do. The more we do, the more we determine to do. We have seven missionaries in India and three in China. Becoming acquainted with the Free-will Baptists, I set the matter before that body, 17 years ago. They sent two missionaries to India, and since then sent three more.

The following resolution, offered by brother Weishampel, was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this Eldership present to brother Sutton, from the General Baptist denomination of England, and missionary to India, a copy of the History of all Denominations in the U. States, as a token of friendship toward him.

Report of the Committee on Journals continued.

2. A committee to relieve the Bethels in Baltimore and Millerstown. Laid over till the preachers give in their reports.

3. A committee to ascertain the amount due brother Winebrenner. Referred back to the committee.

4. A committee on the case of Bros. Winebrenner and A. Miller. Report deferred for the present.

5. A committee to audit the account of Geo. McCartney. Deferred for the present.

6. A committee to appoint a Model Camp-meeting. Referred back to the committee.

7. A committee to solicit semi-centenary donations to Eldership fund. Deferred till the preachers give in their reports.

8. A resolution authorizing Joseph Brenneman to secure the deed of the property of sister Booth. Deferred for the present.

9. A special committee on the case of Bro. E. Logue.

The committee reported as follows: That they have considered the charges preferred against brother Logue. Some of them were of little importance, and others of more importance were not substantiated. Your committee could see nothing that would so far militate against his moral or ministerial character as to justify them to withhold his license.

C. PRICE,
A. APPLEE.

Report adopted.

10. Bro. Bolich's case referred to the Standing Committee. Deferred till they report.

11. Brother Barlow's case. Deferred till the Standing Committee report.

12. A resolution that the Eldership attend to the ordinances of Feet-washing and the Lord's Supper.

Resolved, That we attend to them on Monday night.

13. That the members of the Eldership engage in the circulation of brother Bamberger's Journal. Deferred till the preachers report.

14. A committee to draft a Constitution for the government of the Eldership. No report, but referred back to the committee.

The committee on Overtures further reported:

12. A letter from the Church at Woodberry, giving a good report of brother Kyle, and requesting his re-appointment another year.—Referred to the Stationing Committee.

13. A letter from brother Mullenix, giving a report of his labors and asking a renewal of his license. Referred to the Eldership.

14. A letter from Pine Orchard, giving a favorable account of brother Owens, and requesting his re-appointment another year.—Referred to the Stationing Committee.

15. A letter from Rohrersville, Md., giving an unfavorable account of the state of religion on their circuit, and requesting brother Keller or Harn as their preacher another year. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

Reports of the Preachers.

STATIONS.

Brother MOONEY reported: That he has labored since the last yearly meeting for the Church at Mount Joy, and since April for the Church at Middletown. He requests an interest in the prayers of his brethren for his future prosperity and success in the Gospel ministry.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by brother G. U. Harn.

—

SATURDAY MORNING.

Session opened by brother E. H. Thomas.

Journal read and corrected.

Brother Price moved a re-consideration of the vote on the adoption of Bro. Harn's report.

Brother Winebrenner moved that the call for the re-consideration of Bro. Harn's report be indefinitely postponed—carried.

Reports of the Preachers continued.

Brother SWARTZ reported: That he rejoices that the good Providence of God has permitted him to meet with his brethren again. After the last Eldership he returned to his appointment at Middletown. In the winter they held a meeting, when a few professed faith in Christ. On the first of April he removed to Lancaster city, and continued his labors to the present time. That they have lately some appearances for good—four professed conversion. He still asks an interest in the prayers of his brethren.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

Bro. HARN reported: I continued preaching at Harrisburg, with the exception of a two weeks' visit to Philadelphia last Christmas, till the 20th of May. A revival progressed slowly the greater part of the winter. About 65 professed religion, and 50 became members of the Church; but comparatively few got baptized----eight or ten since the Eldership.

Proceeded to the West, and was much pleased to find the western brethren say something MUST be done. When there before, the question was, CAN anything be done? Was also much pleased to find such union, love and peace in the Ohio churches----none of that unhappy discord that existed a few years ago. Lament that this is not the exact state of things in Venango county. Still, the cause is on the advance in West Pennsylvania.

Remained at home but two days and three nights, and then proceeded to General Conference in Providence. In less than five months have travelled about 3,300 miles, and supposed to have been present at meetings where about 50 souls have been converted----though not the fruit of my labors----except in part. I believe the cause is onward and upward. God speed it!

His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother MCFADDEN reported: That he went to Baltimore last spring, according to appointment—found the congregations small and the Church in embarrassed pecuniary circumstances: has made some effort to relieve them—the congregations increasing, &c. He still feels determined to spend and be spent in preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ. He asks an interest in the prayers of his brethren.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

On motion, adjourned till one o'clock this afternoon. Session closed by brother Mooney.

—

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Opened by brother Hurley.

The reports of the preachers resumed.

Brother MACKEY reported: That he took charge of the Churches at Shippensburg and Orrstown last spring, and since then has endeavored to preach for them, and elsewhere. The Churches in his care, he thinks, at present, are looking up. For the last four weeks a revival of religion has been in progress in Shippensburg, resulting, perhaps, in the happy conversion of forty or fifty souls, and is still in progression. It is proper to state that Bro. E. Nevin, of Cleaveland, Ohio, has rendered in this good work essential service. I need say but little respecting my own determinations for the future: they are just what they always were, to labor in the kingdom and patience of Jesus as well and as much as the circumstances of God's Providence will permit. I have brought with me a collection from the Churches, to be paid over to you for missionary purposes.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother Bowser appeared and took his seat.

CIRCUITS.

Brother STROHM reported: That after the last Eldership, held at Washington, he continued, in connection with brother Snyder, on the Dauphin Circuit during the winter. Some 35 or 40 souls were converted to God. In the spring he entered upon his new field of labor, in connection with brother Price, on the Lancaster Circuit. He did not find things as prosperous as he wished; nevertheless, there were some additions to the Church. His feelings toward the Eldership are as they ever have been. He wishes to live and die in fellowship with his brethren.

His report was accepted, license renewed, and he was released from the Lancaster Circuit.

Brother Varner appeared and took his seat.

Brother PRICE reported: That it is with great satisfaction that he, for the eighth time, is permitted to meet with his brethren at their yearly meeting. At the close of our last Eldership I returned to Maryland, where, with some success, I labored until the first of April. My time having then expired, with great reluctance I parted with many to whom I had become strongly attached. On the first of April I moved to Mount Joy. I took charge of the Churches on the Lancaster circuit. My appointments are eight in number. At four of them, namely, Mount Joy, Washington, Bainbridge and Elizabethtown, I have endeavored to preach once in two weeks; to the others once in four weeks. We have not had any conversions yet, but there has been in all the churches an increase of piety and stability. Our congregations are large, and we are all looking for and expect a display of God's power in the conviction and salvation of sinners. The reason I did not go to Hinkletown, and in so doing comply with the request of the Standing Committee, was, because I could not, in justification of myself and the circuit, attend to the appointment.

On motion, adjourned till Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Session closed by the Speaker.

—

MONDAY MORNING.

Session opened by brother Keller. The Journal read and corrected.

On motion of brother Thomas, Bro. Price's report was postponed for the present, for the purpose of hearing brother Fenton's report.

Brother FENTON reported: That he has been laboring on the Broad-Top circuit since last April. Some during that time have been converted and four baptized. Things on the circuit seem to be in a prosperous condition. He asks an interest in the prayers of his brethren and a renewal of his license.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

On motion, brother S. B. Howard, of the Free-will Baptist Church, was invited to take a seat as an advisory member.

Brother Price's case was resumed.

On motion,

Resolved, That his report be accepted and his license renewed, and that he be instructed to attend to the Hinkletown appointment; and that he ought to have attended to it as the Standing Committee directed him.

Brother Haifleigh moved that we now hear brother Laverty's report, and that he have leave of absence. Agreed to.

Brother LAVERTY reported: That during the last year, as usual, he has been fulfilling the two-fold sphere of Teacher and Elder; being arduously engaged during the week as teacher, and on the Sabbath trying to preach the Gospel. He asks an interest in the prayers of the brethren, and likewise a renewal of his license.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother MULLENIX reported by letter: That he has done very little by way of preaching since last April: that he is ashamed that he is a minister and does so little; but says he has only one man to blame, and that is himself; and says that for the future he will try and do more. He asks an interest in the prayers of his brethren.

On motion, his case was laid over for the present.

Brother Utley's report was called for—whereupon letters in the hands of the committee on Overtures were read in connection with his case.

On motion of brother Mackey,

Resolved, That on due consideration of the circumstances, all of which are duly known to brother Utley, this Eldership, in consequence of the acknowledgment of his errors, cheerfully forgive him; but think proper, for the present, to withhold his license, and recommend him to join himself to the Church, and if at any time hereafter we think it advisable, will grant him license.

Brother THOMAS reported: I continued from the last Eldership to preach at Newburg, in connexion with Orrstown, until the first of April. During the winter five or six persons professed religion, were baptized and received into the Church at Orrstown.

On the first of April, according to the arrangement of the Eldership, my connection with the Orrstown Church ceased and commenced with Churchtown. Since that time I have been laboring to the best of my ability among the churches under my charge. The churches at Newburg and Churchtown seem to be looking up. During and since the Camp-meetings, some 60 souls have professed salvation by faith—upwards of fifty have been baptized and received into church-fellowship.

Regarding my feelings, I have enjoyed an unusual degree of spiritual comfort, and have preached with much freedom and satisfaction to myself. My desire is to live, labour and die in this good cause. Pray for me.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother SNYDER reported: That according to the appointment of the Standing Committee, he took charge of the Matamoras and Juniatta circuit, at which time there were six appointments. I have opened several new appointments, so that at present there are 11, viz: Mather's, Millersburg, Baskin's, Matamoras, Millerstown, Grubb's, Ulch's, Kumbler's, Cameron's, Cross-roads and Wild's. Nine have been baptized and eight taken into church-fellowship.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother SEABROOKS reported: That he feels thankful to God that he is permitted to meet with his brethren once more in a yearly meeting, although it is unexpected on his part. During my late sickness I thought I would get home—I feel thankful for the blessing of God so far. The state of religion is pretty good on the circuit. I feel much attached to the brethren on the circuit. My prayer is, that God may raise up more for the glory of his name. He desires an interest in the prayers of his brethren.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother HAFLEIGH reported: That he was grateful to God in being permitted to meet with his brethren in the ministry once more. That since the last Eldership, he continued his labors, in connection with brother Kyle, on the Broad-top and Cove circuit till the first of April—saw a few converted and baptized. Since April has labored, according to appointment, on the East Cumberland circuit. What amount of good has been done, is known to God only. His appointments are as follows, viz: Keller's, Mechanicsburg, Lisburn, Shepherdstown, Shiremanstown, Milltown, Camphill, Renard's, Basehore's Cowen's School-house and Myers' mill. He also received a donation of ten dollars to the Eldership Fund, from brother Joseph Gingrich. He still asks an interest in the prayers of his brethren.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brothers Jas. Machlin and Joseph Elcock, from York county, appeared and took their seats. Brother Jacob Hickernell, of Lisburn, appeared and took his seat.

Brother HURLEY reported: Dear Brethren, in the Providence of God I am permitted to meet with you again, after another year's toil and labor, which to me has truly been a year of prayer for the Great Head of the Church to be with us in all our relations pertaining to His Church and Kingdom here on earth: although I have not been as successful as I wished; but I trust in God that the seed sown may yet germinate, spring up and produce a spiritual crop. After the last yearly meeting I returned to Lancaster, where I continued my labors till spring, during which time I saw a few converted, and baptized a few believers in Christ. In April went to Landisburg and commenced my labors in the field assigned me the present year. I found the condition of the churches bad, owing, no doubt, that they were so shamefully neglected last year by the preachers. I commenced and still continue my labors under very unfavorable circumstances. However, things begin to assume a different aspect. There are indications for good.—Since April I have been blowing the Gospel trumpet, and feel encouraged to go on. I have seen some conversions here, and administered the rite of baptism to four believers on this circuit. I opened several new appointments. I ask an interest in all your prayers. I am with you, brethren, with all my heart—with you I wish to live, labor and die, and with you partake of the great reward. My appointments are Landisburg, Sheaffer's Valley, Oak-Grove Furnace, Sterritt's Gap, Soule's, Germany, Newport, Jacob Miller's, Bloomfield, Barnhisel's School-house and Bilman's School-house.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by brother Laverty.

—

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Opened by brother Johnston.

On motion, it was agreed that brother J. J. Miller should now report.

Brother MILLER reported: That he feels thankful to God that he is once more permitted to meet with his brethren. As it regards his labors in the vineyard of the Lord, he has by the help of God preached 47 times since the last Eldership, but to what effect is known to the Lord. He still feels to labor in the vineyard of the Lord till he shall call him home.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother Miller asked and obtained leave of absence.

Brothers Ross, Keister, Rife and Shelly appeared and took their seats.

Brother LOGUE reported as follows: The Eldership at Orrstown appointed me to the charge of Fayetteville and Washington circuit, Md., last spring a year. I did not solicit the appointment, having promised to return to Iowa and continue my labors there, in case provision was made to sustain me there. But as no provision was made to that effect, I accepted the appointment assigned me by this body. I found the church at Fayetteville, and also the churches of Washington county, in a very discouraging condition. I endeavored to discharge my duty to the best of my ability during the year, excepting the three months I was absent to the West. At Fayetteville the congregations increased, and the state of religion became more encouraging. At Broad-Fording we had a small revival. Last spring I acceded to the call of the brethren west of the mountains; but sickness prevented my going there until the last of July. Since then I have been in Westmoreland county. We have had quite a refreshing. Some 13 or 14 have professed conversion—I have baptized 10. During the last year, as might be expected, my temptations and discouragements have been more than ordinary. However, being tempted, I bear it; being persecuted, I suffer it: and by the help of God, I still feel like continuing in the kingdom and patience of Jesus. I crave an interest in the prayers of all my brethren.

On motion, a committee was appointed on his case—consisting of Bros. Mackey, Winebrenner and Thomas.

On motion,

Resolved, That his case lay over till the committee reports.

Applicants for license were called upon to report themselves; whereupon the following brethren applied and were referred to the Licensing committee: George Sandoe, Samuel Fleagle, John A. Plowman and George Frey.

The committee on Overtures further reported:

16. A letter from Harrisburg. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

17. A letter from the Church in Sheaffer's Valley, giving a good account of Bro. Hurley, and requesting his re-appointment. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

18. A letter from brother Hinkle, to be read in connection with his report.

19. A letter from Baltimore, giving a favorable account of brother McFadden, and requesting his re-appointment another year. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

20. A letter from brother George Frey, requesting a license from this body. Referred to the Licensing committee.

21. A letter from brother Mercer. Referred to the Stationing committee.

Brother ROSS reported. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother VARNER reported. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother KEISTER reported. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother COULTER reported by letter. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother Flake appeared and took his seat.

Brother Ross, Treasurer of the Widow's Fund, reported as follows:

Joseph Ross, Dr.:

To East Penn'a. Eldership, (Widow's Fund.)

1848—Nov. 10. Cash received at Orrstown,	$43 00
Cash from J. Rife,	2 00
1849—Nov. 2. Cash received at Washington,	66 34
Cash Do. Do.	50
Cash Do. Do.	6 00
	$117 84

Cr.

1848—Nov. 21. Cash paid J. Brenneman, for the use of sister Booth, widow of brother Booth, deceased,	$15 00
April 24. Cash Do. Do.	15 00
1849—Nov. 3. Cash Do.	25 00
1850—April —. Cash Do.	20 00
	$75 00
Balance on hand,	$42 84

October 21, 1850.

Joseph Ross, Dr.:

To Board of Missions.

1849—April 4. By one year's interest on funds in my hands,	$21 54
By one year's interest on $50 00,	3 00
1850—Oct. 15. By one year's interest,	24 54
	$49 08
1848—April 14. To cash paid Missionary Board,	$21 54
	$27 54
Nov. 3. Cash paid to Bro. Hinny,	$3 00
Balance,	$24 54
Paid in full to Missionary Board,	$24 54

October 21, 1850.

Brother OWENS reported. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Resolved, That a Missionary meeting be held on Tuesday evening, at 7 o'clock.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by brother Ross.

—

TUESDAY MORNING.

Session opened by brother B. Fleagle.

Brother KYLE reported: That through the grace and mercy of the Lord he is once more permitted to meet with his brethren in an Eldership capacity. He has labored the past year as follows: During last fall and winter on the Broad-top and Cove circuit—some little good has been done. Since April last he labored on the Cove circuit, and is sorry to say that but little good has been done in the way of saving sinners. The brethren and sisters are still faithful in the cause of God, and with them he has pleasure to labor. He is looking forward for better days. He asks an interest in the prayers of his brethren.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother SIMON FLEAGLE reported: That he is thankful in being permitted to meet with his brethren. That he is trying to preach the Gospel in his weak manner. Since the last Eldership he labored, during the winter, in York county—saw some 18 souls converted to God—baptized and added 14 to the church. In April he took charge of the Dauphin circuit, where he saw some 20 souls converted to God; also baptized and added to the church. The appointments are as follows: Forney's school-house, Linglestown, Raysor's, Miller's, Stouffer's, Dauphin, Rockeyville, Highspire, Strock's, and a few occasional appointments. He asks an interest in the prayers of the brethren. His report was accepted and license renewed.

On motion, brother Mullenix's case was resumed. His report was accepted and license renewed.

On motion,

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Eldership, brother Mullenix ought not to censure brothers McFadden and Fleagle, as being a hindrance in his way, and that he ought to have gone to his appointment in York county; and, as a member of the Eldership, it is his duty to attend the meetings in Baltimore, and assist therein; and that the Clerks communicate to brother Mullenix the views of the Eldership.

Brother KELLER reported: Dear brethren, I rejoice that I have the privilege of meeting with you once more in an Eldership capacity. After the last Eldership at Washington, I continued my labors on the Lancaster circuit till spring. During that time I tryed to preach the truth as I understood it—saw some good done, perhaps 20 conversions, and a few baptized. In April I went to Schuylkill circuit, and found a good state of things, and is still good and in a prosperous condition. I held two camp-meetings on the circuit, resulting in good. In Lehigh county the cause is rising—a number have been converted, seven baptized and received into church-fellowship. Brother John Hepler and myself have baptized and received into the church, since last spring, 48. I have labored with a great deal of satisfaction, although I have to labor hard, and too hard for my constitution. Still, I feel a willingness to do all I can for the cause of God. My appointments are as follows: Adamstown, Oley, Moore's, Millerstown, Upper Milford, Skippack, Trexler's, Kutztown, Auburn, Jos. Moyer's, Kimmel's, Schuylkill Haven, Styrewald's, Middleport, Broad Mountain, Sitzinger's, Mahanay, Wagoner's, Hepler's, Fremont, Deer Creek, Pine Grove, Fredericksbug and Annville. Reading also is opened for the reception of the Gospel, and some ready for baptism. I shall preach there after the Eldership—there are a few members of the church there. There are other places where the people wish to have preaching. Brethren, pray for me.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother FLAKE reported as follows: In accordance with the wishes of the Eldership, I have been engaged since the middle of May, in conducting the Church Advocate, as Editor pro tempore. My course therein you are all acquainted with.

I have also been engaged in preaching for the Church at Harrisburg during the same time, supplying the place of the preacher in charge, who was absent on a journey in the West. There has been no special revival, but peace prevailed, and on the whole, the church is in a good state.

My warm feelings of attachment still continue to all true believers every where, and especially to the brethren of this Eldership.

His report was accepted and license renewed.

The members of the Eldership were now called upon to pay their dues into the Widow's Fund.

Names.	Am't. paid.	Names.	Am't. paid.
A Swartz	1 25	T Bean
G U Harn	1 00	F Hartman	1 50
Wm Mooney	1 00	A Appler
Wm McFadden	1 00	J Stomm	1 00
J Mackey	1 00	J Keister	5 00
T Strohm	1 00	P Shaw
C Price	1 00	A Miller
A Snyder	50	J J Miller 2 years	1 75
W H Mullenix		J Hinkle
E H Thomas	1 00	B Mateer
J C Seabrooks		D Maxwell
J Haifleigh	50	H L Soule	50
J H Hurley	50	P Stanton
E Logue	1 00	S Conrod
W G Coulter		I Brady	3 00
J C Owens	1 00	S M Hoover	5 00
A J Fenton		H Wingert
D Kyle	50	J F Weishampel
S Fleagle	1 00	W Clay	50
B Fleagle	1 00	W Johnston	1 00
J Keller	1 50	G Petre	50
J Flake	1 00	H Goings
J Winebrenner	2 90	T H Deshiri	50
W Hinny		Elizab'h Wenger	1 00
S Crawford	50	G Sandoe	50
S Bowser	1 50	J Machlin	50
J Varner	1 00	J B Coover	2 00
D A L Laverty	1 00	M Shelly	1 00
W McElroy		J Gingrich	5 00
S Bigham	75	Samuel Fleagle	50
J Ross	5 00	J Rife	5 00
W McCormick

Whole amount paid in—$64 25.

Bros. Ross, Keister, Rife and Shelly asked and obtained leave of absence.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by brother Bowser.

—

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Opened by brother Clay.

Brother Hinny appeared and took his seat.

Brother BENJ. FLEAGLE reported. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother CLAY reported. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother PETRE reported: That since the last Eldership I have labored, to the best of my abilities, in the Gospel ministry. I have preached about thirty sermons, and attended several camp-meetings. As regards my determinations, I intend to spend and be spent in the cause of God. I ask an interest in your prayers. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother CRAWFORD reported: That he esteemed it a great privilege to be favored to meet with his brethren and give in a brief account of his last year's labor. And first, he would say, that his efforts to do good have been altogether confined to York circuit, in connection with brother Simon Fleagle, and had the pleasure of seeing a few souls converted in the neighborhood where he taught school four months. After this time expired, he then moved to Lancaster city, where he has preached a few times; and for four months past his time has been occupied as an agent for the Lancaster County Bible Society, which has afforded him an opportunity of meeting with his old acquaintances and friends, and holding forth the word of life unto them. And further, he states, that as far as recollection serves him, he has preached about once or twice a week: and as to the good effected through his efforts, it is not for him to say. In conclusion, he would say, that he still loves the principles of the church, and her members; and his purpose in future is, as far as God may give ability, to promote the good cause, and therefore wishes not only the prayers, but all other help that his good brethren can afford. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother SOULE reported. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother HARTMAN reported: That he is thankful to the Lord that he is still permitted to meet with his brethren. Since the last Eldership I have been laboring in the Gospel as much as circumstances would permit, as a home missionary. Since May I am engaged as a Colporteur of the American and Foreign Bible Society. In this capacity I endeavored to talk to the people about their soul's salvation. I preached about 60 sermons. What amount of good has been done, is not for me to say. I still feel to labor in the vineyard of the Lord. I ask an interest in the prayers of the brethren. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother HINNY reported. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother McCORMICK reported through brother Soule. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Whereas, we have learned that brother McCormick preaches very little—therefore,

Resolved, That we advise him to do more for the cause of God in the way of preaching.

Brother BOWSER reported. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother McELROY reported through Bro. Deshiri. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother BIGHAM reported through brother Hurley. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother BEAN reported through Bro. Soule. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother APPLER reported through brother Owens. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother STOMM reported. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother MATEER was heard from. On motion, his report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother MAXWELL reported. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother CONROD reported through brother Deshiri. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother BRADY reported through brother Strohm. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother GOINGS reported through brother Deshiri. He is well spoken of in Williamsport, Md.; and as the colored people there have organized a Church of God, brothers Goings and Stanton are their preachers. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother WM. JOHNSTON reported. His report was adopted and license renewed

Brother DESHIRI reported a very low state of religion on his field of labor, and finds no prospect of getting a support. He asked to be released from the circuit.

His report was adopted, license renewed, and his case further referred to the Stationing Committee, to release and employ him elsewhere, if they can do so.

Brother JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL reported: That his attachment to this body is as strong as ever; that he is fully persuaded that the doctrines, faith and practice of the Church of God is, in all respects, the most in conformity with the New Testament, of all religious denominations of which he has any knowledge; that he feels a deep interest in and desires to see the cause prosper, to the salvation of souls and the glory of God; that he has been more active during the present Eldership year than ever before, in endeavoring to preach the Gospel of peace, and is resolved, by the grace of God, to try to make himself useful wherever he can for the future. He has preached, on an average, about once a week this year; and in his travels had the opportunity to meet with the New Jersey Conference of the Christian Connexion, held in June last, where he was cordially received and treated with much Christian courtesy: And he feels it due to that body to say, that he found a spirit amongst the members which breathed a desire for a union with us. He feels that he can find no probationary home congenial to his convictions on the subject of religion out of the Church of God, and desires to love and be loved by, pray and be prayed for, and labor with his brethren to the end of life, and join them in the everlasting kingdom in ascribing endless praises to Him who hath loved us and gave Himself for us. His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother JOHN HINKLE reported by letter, requesting his connection with this Eldership dissolved. Whereupon it was Resolved, That his report be adopted, and he be released as requested, provided he makes application for membership to the Church at Mechanicsburg.

Brother H. WINGERT reported through brother Hurley. Report accepted and license renewed.

Brother WINEBRENNER reported: From the time of the sitting of the last Eldership till the 20th of May, I acted in the double capacity of editor and general assistant preacher. Since that time I have tried to serve the cause as a volunteer travelling missionary. A Journal of our travels may be found in the Church Advocate. In a few weeks, Deo Volente, I hope to resume the editorial chair. My brethren, I hope, will not forget to labor together in prayer to God for me. His report was accepted and license renewed.

On motion, a committee was appointed to propose to the Eldership some plan to liquidate the debt owing to brother Winebrenner. The committee are brothers Thomas, Mooney and Strohm.

Brother JOHN HICKERNELL made a general report of twelve years, &c.

The committee on brother Logue's case reported as follows:

The committee to whom was referred the difficulties existing between brother Logue and the brethren in Iowa—Report: That your committee deeply regret such occurrences; and inasmuch as your committee cannot possibly at this time reach the necessary evidence to come to a definite adjustment in the case, they therefore recommend that brother Logue and the brethren concerned in Iowa, undertake, as soon as may be possible, to adjust the same.—Adopted.

On motion,

Resolved, That brother Logue's report be adopted and license renewed.

The committee on Licensing recommended the following brethren for license:

Brother SAMUEL FLEAGLE. On motion, a license was granted him.

Brother GEORGE SANDOE was recommended. On motion, a license was granted him.

Brother PLOWMAN's case was referred to the Eldership. On motion, a license was granted him.

The committee not having sufficient knowledge of brother FREY to recommend him for license, therefore recommended that his case be deferred for the present.

On motion,

Resolved, That we now ascertain who will take appointments from the Eldership for next year.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by brother Swartz.

—

TUESDAY EVENING.

Agreeable to a resolution adopted yesterday, the Eldership met this evening for the purpose of holding a missionary meeting, when Bro. G. U. Harn was called to the Chair, and Bro. J. F. Weishampel appointed Secretay.

Brother Harn stated the object of the meeting; after which brother John Winebrenner was called upon to address the meeting, which he did in support first, of Foreign, and second, Home Missions. Among his remarks, he suggested the appointment of a Missionary Preacher, to travel over the grounds of the circuits, to preach missionary sermons, and get subscribers of men, women and children, to be paid annually, to the cause of missions. He also urged the brethren to remember the cause of missions when they made their wills.

Brother Weishampel offered the following resolution, which he prefaced with a few remarks, urging the payment of the debt we owe to God for sending us the Gospel, by furnishing means to send it to others yet in moral darkness:

Resolved, That this Eldership appreciate the visit of brother Amos Sutton, of the Baptist India Mission, and feel a deep interest in the propagation of the Gospel among the natives of that and all other heathen as well as civilized countries; and pray the Great Shepherd and Bishop of souls to call out many missionaries to go out into the world to gather into the fold the lost sheep.—Adopted.

Brother John Hickernell next addressed the meeting upon the necessity of sending forth the missionaries to preach to those who are in moral darkness. Among the remarks he made was the happy argument, that the man who sends the missionary by his means, is the chief instrument in the hands of God in the conversion of souls.

Brother Jacob Keller next addressed the meeting. His remarks were directed toward the calling out of volunteers to go out on missions; whereupon brothers S. Bowser, John Hickernell, Wm. McFadden and Felix Hartman arose and reported themselves willing to enter the missionary field.

Brother E. Logue next addressed the meeting, urging the missionary interests in the far West. He related an anecdote of a brother who appropriated five dollars to be used by a preacher to go to a certain place to labor for souls, which resulted in the converson of many.

Brother E. H. Thomas next addressed the meeting. He urged the cause; and as one inducement to action, he depicted the effect that would be produced by the reports from missionaries of their success. He then offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to suggest a plan by which this Eldership may engage the services and raise the means to employ as many missionaries as the wants of the West may demand, as far as practicable. Adopted.

The committee are Bros. Thomas, Owens and Winebrenner.

Brother A. Swartz next addressed the meeting, reproving the negligent for their neglect.

Brother G. U. Harn then delivered an address, upon the blessed Gospel and its spread. He urged that the Church of Christ is, 1. Essentially a missionary Church—unlike the Jewish nation, which was narrow and contracted in its immediate designs. 2. He then contrasted Paganism with Christianity—Romanism with Protestantism—True Religion with Universalism and false religions of all kinds—the political, social and religious condition of evangelical communities, proved the divinity of their principles, and strongly urged their propagation. 3. The many precious promises given to the Church should stimulate her to action.

Brother Wm. Johnston next addressed the meeting, upon the plans adopted by some churches in raising missionary funds.

Brother Wm. McFadden also addressed the meeting. He urged the preachers, especially the young, to go out and labor, depending upon God for their support, irrespective of missionary funds being raised.

Bro. J. C. Seabrooks made a few remarks, after which the meeting Adjourned.

—

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

Session opened by brother Flake. Journal was read and corrected.

On motion,

Resolved, That the minutes of the missionary meeting of last evening appear on the Journal.

On motion, brother Howard, of the Free-will Baptists, was permitted to make a few remarks.

On motion,

Resolved, That we feel much pleased with the remarks of brother Howard, and express our hearty well wishes for his prosperity in the good cause.

Brother Strawbridge having made no report by letter or otherwise—On motion,

Resolved, That his license be placed in the hands of the Standing Committee.

The case of A. Miller and J. Winebrenner was taken up. The committee on the case reported: That they met three times before they could get the parties together. They met at last, but could come to no understanding, for want of testimony, the parties not producing witnesses on either side.

On motion,

Resolved, That the committee be discharged from the further consideration of the subject, and that another committee be appointed, to investigate and adjust the difficulties.

The committee are W. Mooney, J. Flake and J. Haifleigh.

The committee on Overtures further reported:

22. A letter from the Church at Newberry, giving a favorable account of Bros. Keister and Ross, and asking their continuance another year. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

23. A letter from the Church at River, York county, giving a favorable report of brothers Ross and Keister, and asking their re-appointment; if not them, then brother Swartz, Keller, McFadden, or Maxwell. Referred to the Stationing Committee.

The ladies of Churchtown presented the following memorial:

To the East Pennsylvania Eldership of the Church of God, assembled in Yearly Meeting, at Churchtown, Cumberland county, Pa.

Dear Christian Pastors and Brethren in the Lord:

Your humble petitioners would respectfully beg leave to represent to your honorable body, That from a variety of considerations we are induced to call upon and pray your body to give a public expression upon the subject of the Use of Tobacco as a luxury.

Your memorialists are constrained to believe the use of tobacco to be injurious to the physical constitution of man; and in this view they are sustained by the ablest medical writers and physicians. 2. They believe it to be an unnatural luxury, and contrary to the purity of our nature. 3. They believe the use of it in many instances leads the user to violate the rules of cleanliness and politeness.—4. But, above all, they believe that it incurs a useless waste of time and money, and leads to a pollution of the house of God, and flesh and spirits of men. But your petitioners do not presume to enlighten your Christian minds upon the subject, as we feel assured your honorable body fully comprehend the matter in all its bearings; and we entertain no doubt that you will grant our fervent prayer, by taking such action upon the practice as will have a tendency to remove the evil from amongst us as a Church and people.

Whereupon the following resolution was offered:

Resolved, That this Eldership entertain the opinion expressed by the Ladies of Churchtown, in relation to the use of tobacco as a luxury, and would therefore recommend to each member of this body, and all the members of the churches generally, to abstain from so filthy a practice.

Brother Mackey moved that the whole matter lay on the table. Not agreed to.

A spirited discussion of the matter, in five minute speeches, ensued. Question postponed until afternoon.

Brothers Hartman, Petre and Strohm asked and obtained leave of absence.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by brother Flake.

—

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Opened by brother Johnston.

The pending question of brother Johnston's resolution on the petition of the ladies relative to the use of tobacco, was taken up and adopted.

On motion, the case of brothers Winebrenner and A. Miller was re-considered, in committee of the whole.

Resolved, By this Eldership, that brother A. Miller's license be renewed, on condition he takes back the following charges he made against brother Winebrenner:

1st. That brother Winebrenner was in the fault for all the debts of the Printing Establishment.

2d. For making a statement subsequently, viz: That brother Winebrenner was paid for all his services in the printing establishment.

Your committee on Western Missions beg leave to report: We recommend that Bros. Flake and Maxwell be appointed general missionaries, to travel through the bounds of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, to preach on the subject of Missions, solicit and receive pledges or donations, to be applied to missionary purposes; and that they be advised to call on all the members of the churches, and others who are friendly to the cause of Missions. Adopted.

Your committee to devise ways and means to pay the claims of brother Winebrenner against the Eldership, recommend the following plan:

1st. That the preachers of this Eldership labor to increase the subscription list of the "Church Advocate," and that all the moneys for subscriptions above one thousand be paid to brother Winebrenner on account.

2d. That the committee appointed by the General Eldership, to prepare and publish the Large Hymn-Book, consummate that object as soon as possible.

3d. That the Standing Committee ask of the Board of the Printing Establishment the unpaid subscription list of the Gospel Publisher, to be put into the hands of brother Winebrenner for collection, and the moneys collected be allowed him on account of his debt. Adopted.

On motion,

Resolved, That brother Logue, by his request, be transferred to the West Penn'a. Eldership.

On motion,

Resolved, That the Missionary Board pay the interest on the Baltimore meeting-house

On motion,

Resolved, That we hold a night-session this evening, at half-past six o'clock.

On motion,

Resolved, That we now ballot for delegates to the General Eldership.

On motion of brother Swartz, the above was suspended for the present, and a committee appointed to nominate the said delegates, consisting of J. Winebrenner, J. Flake and Wm. Mooney.

Resolved, That the next session of the Eldership be held at Middletown, Dauphin county, Pa., on the first Wednesday of November, 1851—if the Lord permit.

On motion,

Resolved, That brother Keller preach the opening discourse, and that brother Swartz be his secundus.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by brother Mooney.

—

EVENING SESSION.

Opened by brother Plowman.

The committee to nominate delegates to the General Eldership nominated a number of names, and then by ballot the following brethren were elected:

Teaching Elders—A. Swartz, W. McFadden, J. Winebrenner, J. Flake, E. H. Thomas and G. U. Harn.

Ruling Elders—L. Slingluff, J. S. Gable, J. Rife, A. Hostetter, Joseph Schoch and J. Brenneman.

On motion,

Resolved, That we re-consider the report of the committee on Western Missions, &c.

Brother E. H. Thomas moved that the name of brother Weishampel be substituted in the room of D. Maxwell. Adopted.

On motion,

Resolved, That brother McFadden be appointed to oversee the Baltimore meeting-house, with discretionary power.

Resolved, That we advise brother Joseph Schoch to act as his discretion shall decide, and, if possible, secure the Bethel at Millerstown, Lebanon county, Pa., for the Church.

Resolved, That the preachers in charge of circuits and stations be requested to take up collections for a contingent fund, and pay over the same to Bro. Ross, by the first of January next.

The Standing Committee reported. [Their doings have been published.]

Resolved, That the committee on Education report through the Church Advocate.

The Board of Missions reported as follows:

FROM STATIONS.
Lancaster city,	$7 12
Middletown,	10 28
Shippensburg and Orrstown,	4 00
Harrisburg, (by hands of J. Flake,)	5 85
Baltimore,	2 25
Newburg,	6 00
Churchtown,	6 50
CIRCUITS.
Schuylkill,	18 00
Lancaster,	9 50
East Cumberland,	17 90
Morrison's Cove,	5 11
Broad-Top,	60
Landisburg,	3 31
East York,	6 23
Dauphin,	2 00
Uniontown,	13 25
Interest on Eldership Fund,	24 50
Brother Joseph Gingrich,	5 00
Washington circuit,	2 46
Balance in Treasury of last year,	41 78
	$192 34
Paid to brother Owens last year,	$25 00
Postage,	15

To Wm. McFadden, - - -	75 00
On account of Baltimore Church, -	15 00
	$115 15
Balance, - - - -	$77 10

Resolved, That the committee on the Constitution report through the Advocate. They are brothers Winebrenner, Mooney and Swartz.

Resolved, That the Standing Committee be the Camp-meeting Committee.

Resolved, That brothers Flake and Winebrenner publish the Journal.

Resolved, That we tender our thanks to the Speaker and Clerks, for their faithfulness in discharging the duties of their office: also, to the citizens of Churchtown and vicinity, for their kindness and hospitality toward us during our stay among them.

Report of the Stationing Committee.

STATIONS.

Lancaster—A. Swartz.

Middletown—W. Mooney, to give Harrisburg two Sabbaths in a month.

Harrisburg—J. H. Hurley, to give Middletown two Sabbaths in a month.

Baltimore—W. McFadden—Salary $150.

Shippensburg and Orrstown—James Mackey.

Churchtown & Mechanicsburg—E. H. Thomas, Keller's and Basehore's included.

CIRCUITS.

East Cumberland—J. Haifleigh.

West Cumberland—D. Kyle.

Lancaster Circuit—C. Price and W. Clay.

Dauphin—S. Fleagle.

Schuylkill and Lehigh—J. Keller.

Matamoras and Juniatta—T. Strohm.

York East—D. Maxwell and J. Ross.

York West—J. Keister.

Landisburg—A. Snyder.

Morrison's Cove—S. Bigham.

Broad-Top—A. J. Fenton.

Fayetteville and Washington—W. Johnston.

Uniontown—J. C. Owens and T. M. Deshirl

York, till Spring—John A. Plowman and J. Keister.

Brothers J. Flake and J. F. Weisuampel General Agents to collect funds for missionary purposes.

Brother Weishampel to travel through Maryland; and in Franklin, Perry, Bedford, Huntingdon, Blair, Juniatta, Lebanon, Schuylkill and Berks counties, Pa.

And brother Flake the balance of the boundaries.

On motion,

Resolved, That the report of the Stationing Committee be adopted.

On motion,

Resolved, That we now adjourn. Meeting closed by brother J. Flake.

W. McFADDEN, Speaker.

G. U. Harn, } Clerks.
J. Haifleigh, }

[The following was received from Bro. W., who is absent, after the paper was partly made up, otherwise it would have appeared in its proper place.—Editor pro tem.]

Our Missionary Agents.

At the late meeting of the Eldership at Churchtown, two missionary agents were appointed to canvass the entire bounds of the Eldership, present the claims of Missions to the Churches, and take up pledges, donations and collections in aid of the missionary cause. The brethren appointed to this work are Jacob Flake and John F. Weishampel. They are instructed to commence operations this fall, and to prosecute the business with all possible dispatch, so that we may have funds in hand to employ and send out three missionaries to Illinois and two to Iowa next spring. It is hoped that all the brethren of the Church of God, and all others friendly to the cause of missions, will be free and liberal in their contributions and donations.

J. Winebrenner.

Letter from Brother Wm. Johnston.

Near Gettysburg, Oct. 6, 1850.

Brother Flake:—

The intelligence of souls being born into the kingdom of Jesus is always cheering to the hearts of God's dear children. It is as refreshing as cool water to the thirsty soul. To witness the conversion of sinners unto God is, in my opinion, the most pleasing sight the child of God can be blest with on this side of the grave. And why should it not be so, when there is "joy among the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth?" Oh! how my heart has been made glad—my soul made to rejoice, as I witnessed the humble penitent, and the returning prodigals imploring mercy; and often, before they arose from the mourner's bench, find their load of guilt removed, and their souls made happy through believing on the name of the Lord Jesus. This was especially the case at the different Camp and Protracted meetings which I attended since the middle of August last, where I saw the power of God displayed in the conviction and conversion of a goodly number, who felt it their duty to follow their Lord and Master into his watery grave.

At Linglestown Camp-meeting I witnessed 14 or 15 happy converts publicly profess their faith in the death, burial and resurrection of their blessed Master, by being "buried with him in baptism, in likeness unto his death,"—And as they arose from their watery graves many of them, from the fulness of their hearts, clapped their hands and shouted Glory! Glory! Glory!

At Perry County Camp a number were converted—four disciples were buried with Christ by baptism—and God's dear children were blessed with the refreshing presence of the Lord.

This was also the case at Churchtown Camp-meeting. Here the presence and power of the Lord attended his word—18 or 20 found peace in believing, and some of them were not ashamed to follow their Lord into his liquid grave. The good work here bids fair to continue. Oh! that it may continue until Churchtown becomes famous for the religion of Jesus.

At the Camp at Waterloo, Carroll county, Md., we had a precious time—some were converted—some prodigals returned to their father's house—and four of the happy number were baptized in the "name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Among these was a sister of our beloved brother Harn. Oh! that all her other brothers and sisters may soon follow her example.

At a protracted meeting near Sandy Mount, in the above county, the power of God was present to heal—the Word of God had free course—many of the people received it gladly, and 13 men and women were baptized and added unto the Church, which consisted of but 10 or 12 members previous to this revival. But God in great mercy has visited this people—many more are under deep conviction, who, I trust, will soon be brought into the liberty of God's dear children, and then take up their cross and follow the Lord whithersoever he goes.

Dear brother, thinking that the above brief statements would be acceptable to you, (although you may have had them in other forms,) and also encouraging to the hearts of some of God's dear children, I take the liberty of sending them to you, to dispose of as you may think proper; and believe me, I remain your affectionate brother in Christ,

WM. JOHNSTON.

N. B.—Monday, 7th.—On Saturday evening I addressed a small company who met to hear the Word—we had a precious time—the Lord was present and blessed our souls. Yesterday morning I addressed the Sabbath-school. Great attention was paid by both teachers and scholars, and I think deep impressions were made on the minds of some. In the evening I preached to a serious and solemn assembly. We had a comfortable time, and I think some good was done.

Brother Reaver and his wife, at whose house I stopped, are warm-hearted Christians. May they enjoy the continual presence of the great Head of the Church. W. J.

Letter from Bro. D. A. L. Laverty.

Shippensburg, Oct. 11, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

We have had quite a good work of revival going on for some time past. The work originated thus: Brother E. Nevin, of the New School Presbyterians, who was raised in this place, came in from the West, where he has been laboring successfully for several years, to visit his friends residing here.

After having preached, by request, for the Africans, of this place, he proposed to preach in any house or houses of worship, that might be opened for him, during his stay among us; provided that the Christians, of the different denominations, would unite with him, in making an effort for the salvation of sinners; stating, at the same time, that he had strong faith in the promises of God; and believed that the Lord would revive his work.

Then, as a matter of duty, as well as Christian courtesy, we, as brethren, in connexion with the members of the Methodist E. Church, opened our houses of worship; gave him our hands, and pledged our prayers, and assistance, in this laudable undertaking.

He has been laboring with us every evening, excepting a few, while he was trying to start a work in Chambersburg, and also in our prayer-meetings at six o'clock every morning, for some three weeks, and the result has been, a great revival of religion. As many as 20 persons have professed to have found mercy, and a hope in Christ, in one evening.—The Churches are being revived.—The Africans have caught the influence, and have a revival; so also with the members of other denominations, where their Pastors are opposed to the work.

The Spirit, like the wind, to which it is compared, is beginning to bend the tall trees, and also the more tender flowers of the garden; and we pray that it may continue to blow on, and on, and if the Lord will, until it blow a mighty hurricane; so that the people become converted.

So, probably says some very good brother, you have joined in with the sects, have you? Yes, my good brother, to have sinners converted; and then we shall try to teach them the more excellent way.

Yours in love,

D. A. L. LAVERTY.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE INWARD WITNESS.

A few years after the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock, a good minister who had been driven by persecution from not less than seven places in England, came over to this country. He abode a short time at Weymouth, and finally at Rehoboth—perhaps he was the first settler of this last named place, as the name was given it by him. He was accustomed to record the results of his personal examinations of the state of his heart. One of these entries has been preserved, which we find in a little volume entitled Anecdotes of the Puritans, just published by Mr. Dodd, of New York:

"I find that I love God, and desire to love him more. I find a desire to requite evil with good. I find that I am looking up to God to see him and his hand in all things. I find a greater fear of displeasing God than all the world. I find a love to such Christians as I never saw or received good from. I find a grief when I see the commands of God broken. I find a mourning when I do not find an assurance of God's love. I find a willingness to give God the glory of all my abilities to do good. I find a joy in the company and the conversation of the godly. I find a grief when I perceive it goes ill with Christians. I find a constant love to secret duties. I find a bewailing of such sins as the world cannot accuse me of. I find I constantly choose suffering to avoid sin."

The man who can truly say this of himself, is fitted for earth or heaven. There are test points in this record, very convenient for others to try themselves by.

[Ex. Paper.

EBENEZER ERSKINE'S LAST WORDS.

During the night on which he finished his earthly career, Mrs. Fisher, having come from Glasgow to visit her dying father, was sitting in the apartment where he lay, and engaged in reading. Awakened from a slumber, he said, "What book is that, my dear, you are reading?" "It is your sermon, father," she replied, "on that text, I am the Lord thy God." "O woman," said he then, "that is the best sermon ever I preached." The discourse had proved very refreshing to himself, as well as to many of his hearers. A few minutes after that expression had fallen from his lips, he requested his daughter to bring the table and candle near the bed; and having shut his eyes, and laid his hand under his cheek, he quietly breathed out his soul into the hands of his Redeemer, on the 2nd of June, 1754. Had he lived twenty days longer, he would have finished the seventy-fourth year of his age; and and had he been spared three months more, he would have completed the fifty-first year of his ministry, having resided twenty-eight years at Portmoak, and nearly twenty-three at Stirling.—Life by Dr. Frazer.

POETRY.

ELEGY.

SACRED TO THE REMEMBRANCE OF LUCY A. HINNY.

Beside a rugged garden wall there grew
A tender flower, beautiful in hue;
Bright was the bud arrayed in sky-blue sheen,
Its fragrance sweet, and though almost unseen,
All loved the plant, and near it oft would lean.
A stormy blast swept by against the wall,
And that sweet flower was crushed beneath its fall.
I heard it fall, and Oh! I could have wept
Upon the tomb where that poor violet slept.

A strain of music floated on the air,
Attracting all who heard, it was so rare—
Vibrating gently with a holy tone,
Familiar to angelic ones alone;
The choirs of Heav'n such melody might own.
A little while the sound was wafted o'er,
And then it ceased, and it was heard no more.
Its last sad note awoke in me a sigh,
I sorrowed that such melody should die.

A precious gem is smitten down indeed;
Upon her grave may thrive no tangled weed,
But lovely flowers with their silken leaves
May watch around, and each, like one who grieves,
Bow down its head, while every petal heaves.
And sprights invisible above her grave,
May sing the music that on earth she gave,
For all her life was like that holy strain
We seldom hear and may not hear again.

Upon her pillow, with a faded cheek,
Her youthful form enfeebled, wasted, weak,
She lay in anguish, while beside her bent
Old Age in sorrow, watching most intent—
Their eyes all tearful, and their hearts all rent.
"I'm happy!" with her last expiring breath
She cried, "My Saviour! He has conquered Death!
O look! the angels call!"—she raised her head,
Then fell aback—and they wept o'er the dead!

J. F. W., JR.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 1, 1850.

OH! BLESSED ARE THE DEAD IN CHRIST.

LINES, BY ELIZA MARY HAMILTON.

Oh! blessed are the dead in Christ!
Why will ye mourn for them!
No more the stormy billows here
With weary heart they stem!
No more they struggle here below
To guide, through many a gulf of woe,
Their being's fragile bark—
But harbored in eternal rest,
By far off islands of the blest,
Calm on a sunlit ocean's breast,
Anchor their fearless ark.

Seem they to sleep? 'tis but as sleeps
The seed within the earth,
To burst forth to the brilliant morn
Of a more glorious birth;
Seem they to feel no breath of love
That o'er their icy brow will move
With tearful whispers warm?
'Tis that upon the spirit's ear
All Heavens triumphant music clear
Is bursting where there comes not near
One tone of sorrow's storm!

Oh! give them up to Him whose own
Those dear redeemed ones are!
Lo, on their wakening soul he breaks,
"The bright and morning star!"
His are they now forevermore,—
The mystery and the conflict o'er,
The Eternal city won!
As conquerors let them pass and go
Up from the fight of faith below—
The peace of God at last to know
In kingdoms of the sun!

"Lift up your heads, ye heavenly gates!
Ye everlasting doors give way!"
And let the Lord of glory's train
Throng the bright courts of day!
We follow, too, ye lov'd ones gone!
We follow, faint, but fearless on
To meet you where the Lamb once slain,
Amid his ransom'd church on high
Shall dwell—and wipe from every eye
The tears that, through eternity,
Shall never flow again!

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 3d ult., by John Winebrenuer, V. D. M., Mr. PETER S. ATTICKS, of Harrisburg, to Miss ELIZABETH HENRY, of Northumberland, Pa.

On the 3d ult., by the Rev. J. F. Mesick, Mr. WILLIAM WELLS to Miss CATHARINE DUBES, both of Harrisburg.

On the 10th ult., by the same, Mr. CHAMBERS DUBBS to Miss SUSANNAH ALLEMAN, both of Harrisburg.

On the 17th ult., by the same, Mr. TITUS TAYLOR WORTH, of Lebanon, Pa., to Miss MARY ELLEN, daughter of Joshua M. Wiestling, M. D., of Harrisburg.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED---At Pisgah, Perry county, Pa., of Scarlet-fever, MARY, Daughter of brother John and sister Elizabeth McClintic, aged 3 years, 10 months and 21 days.

Funeral services by the writer, from Isaiah 64: 6.

"This sweet, lovely flower, in the morn of its bloom,
By the strong winds of death hath it faded away:
Dear MARY has gone to her long, happy home,
There to reign with the Saviour in an endless day.

"Then weep not, dear parents, o'er the grave of your love,
Though great your bereavement may be:
Prepare ye to meet her in Heaven above.
Where pain, sorrow and death will ne'er be."

J. H. HURLEY.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

West Pennsylvania Eldership.

The time of meeting is postponed until Wednesday, November 20th, by request of brothers E. Logue and D. Wertz.

Change of an Appointment.

The time of Dedicating the Meeting-house in Boman, Marshall county, Va., is changed from the 24th of November to the first day of December. The meeting will commence on Saturday, the 30th of November.

This change of appointment is made in consequence of changing the time of the meeting of the West Pennsylvania Eldership.

Another meeting will be held in the Meeting-house at the mouth of Fish Creek, Marshall county, Va., to commence on Friday, the 6th of December. E. LOGUE.

Protracted Meetings in Lancaster County.

A special meeting will be held at Bainbridge, commencing on the 8th of November.

One at Elizabethtown, commencing on the 15th of November.

One at Hinkletown, commencing on the 22d of November.

One at Washington, commencing on the 13th of December.

One at Mount Joy, commencing on the 20th of December.

The preachers and brethren are invited to attend all these meetings. C. PRICE.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

By Divine permission, the following protracted meetings will be held on the Cumberland Circuit, viz:

One at Cowen's School-house, Fishing Creek Valley, Perry county, Penn'a., commencing on Saturday evening, the 2d of November.

One at the Bethel near Shepherdstown, Cumberland county, commencing on Saturday evening the 16th of November.

The brethren in the ministry and the public generally are invited to attend.

A protracted meeting will be held at New-Market, York county, Pa., commencing on Friday, the 8th of November.

One at More's School-house, York county, commencing on Friday, the 15th of November.

Preachers and brethren generally are invited to attend. JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

A protracted meeting will be held at Martinsburg, Blair county, Pa., to commence on the 6th of December. D. KYLE.

A protracted meeting will be held at Harrisburg, commencing on Thursday, the 14th of November. G. U. HARN.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—WHEAT,	per barrel,	$4	25	a 4	37½
Do. RYE,	do. - -	2	50	a 2	50
Do. CORN,	do. - -	2	37½	a 2	37½
GRAIN—WHEAT,	per bushel,		90	a	95
Do. RYE,	do. - -		50	a	50
Do. CORN,	do. - -		45	a	50
Do. OATS,	do. - -		31	a	31
Do. BARLEY,	do. - -		60	a	65
SEEDS—CLOVER,	do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do. TIMOTHY,	do. - -	2	00	a 2	25
Do. FLAX,	do. - -	1	12	a 1	12
BEEF, per cwt.	- - -	5	00	a 5	50
PORK, do.	- - - -	5	00	a 5	25
HAMS, per pound,	- - -		8	a	11
BUTTER, do.	- - - -		12½	a	15
LARD, do.	- - - -		8	a	8
TALLOW, do.	- - - -		8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried)	per lb.		6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,	- - - -		12	a	12
POTATOES, per bushel,	- -		50	a	50
ONIONS, do.	- -		75	a	87½
APPLES, do.	- - -	1	00	a 1	12½
PEACHES, (Dried)	per bush.	1	25	a 1	30
FEATHERS, per pound,	- -		37½	a	45
WOOL, do.	- - -		30	a	50
SALT, per sack,	- - - -	1	35	a 1	35
HAY, per ton,	- - - - -	10	00	a 10	00
PLASTER, per ton,	- - -	4	00	a 4	00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—WHEAT,	per barrel,	$4	75	a 5	00
Do. RYE,	do. -	3	00	a 3	00
Do. CORN,	do. - -	3	00	a 3	00
GRAIN—WHEAT,	per bushel,	1	00	a 1	05
Do. RYE,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do. CORN,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do. OATS,	do. - -		33	a	35
Do. BARLEY,	do. - -		65	a	68
SEEDS—CLOVER,	do. - -	3	50	a 3	50
Do. TIMOTHY,	do. - -	2	50	a 2	62
Do. FLAX,	do. - -	1	40	a 1	50
BEEF, per cwt.,	- -	7	00	a 8	75
PORK, do.	- - - - -	7	00	a 7	25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

THE Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo descimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

Missionary Pledges.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner, -	paid	$10 00
William Reichart, -	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, - - - -		10 00
J. H. Hurley, - - -		5 00
Geo. U. Harn, - - -		5 00
M. F. Snavely, - - -		10 00
Jacob Miller, - - - -		10 00
James Miller, - - -		5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, - - -		5 00
Thomas Strohm, - - -		5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe, - - -		5 00
Abraham Sherich, - -	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, - - -		5 00
A Liberal Brother, - -		20 00
A Liberal Sister, - -	paid	2 00
David Strickler, - - -		5 00
James Casey, - - -		5 00
Samuel M. Hoover, -	paid	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of ALL the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 900 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. NOVEMBER 15, 1850. NUMBER 14.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fifteen.

Names	Am't. paid	Names.	Am't paid.
Bear Isaac	$1 25	Immel Michael	$1 50
Dever Richard	1 00	Lenox John	1 00
Elberty Mrs L	1 25	Long Daniel R	5 00
Elmonds Eber	50	Nettig Jacob	1 00
Hamsher Wm	1 00	Patterson C	1 00
Hair Abraham	50	Reeme Daniel	1 25
Hess Joseph	2 00	Sprouts Geo	1 25
Holdon N	50	Strayer Michael	1 25
Howard David	50	Wantz Levi	1 00

Omission.—In the Journal of the late Eldership at Churchtown the name of Bro. Samuel M. Hoover was accidentally omitted. His report was accepted and license renewed.—(Editor pro tem.)

Thanksgiving Day.---J. F.

Governor Johnston, of Pennsylvania, has, by proclamation, appointed Thursday, the twelfth of December, to be observed as a day of Thanksgiving to Almighty God for all His benefits bestowed upon the people of our country through the year. We may all with glad hearts unite in solemn acts of worship on the day appointed, and no doubt will be observed by nearly all who profess and call themselves Christians.

Very likely even the Jews will feel it a privilege to meet in their Synagogues throughout the land for worship, and though exiled far away from the home of their fathers, that anciently flowed with milk and honey, they may yet chant the Psalms of David in a strange land and say—"That the Lord is good, his tender mercies are over all his works—his mercy endureth forever."

South Carolina had her day of Thanksgiving on the 24th of October. The other States, as far as heard from, have appointed the following days:—Maine, December 12; New Hampshire, November 28; Vermont, December 5; Massachusetts, November 28; Connecticut, November 28; New York, December 12; Maryland, November 28; Indiana, November 28; Florida, November 28.

Holy Living.---No. 3.---J. Flake.

"His life is our example."

To live is a serious and solemn thing. To live in evil, and to do evil, is fearful—it were better never to have been born, than to live through everlasting years in sin.

There has been one life on earth that was a pure, and good, and useful life. The Saviour of mankind came into the world in our nature, with all the feelings and passions of a man. He passed through the days of infancy and childhood—of youth and manhood, and in all these conditions has left us a bright example of holy living.

At twelve years old he was found conversing with the wise and learned teachers of the law, hearing them, and asking them questions. But even then, he was subject and obedient to his mother Mary, and to Joseph his reputed father. He lived with them in Nazareth, and no doubt assisted them in the honest and industrious employment of their calling.

To be industrious is a great help to holy living. Keeping the eyes, and hands, and thoughts, employed in innocent and useful work, we cannot think of, or wander after things forbidden. Every one—the young especially—should seek for, and follow an innocent and useful business; and every parent should endeavor to lead his children to love an industrious life, and good employment—but never make your children slaves. There is a time for work—and a time for rest and recreation—but let work, and amusement, or rest, be harmless, and such as can be followed in the fear of God, and seeking for his blessing.

Never be induced by the prospect of gain, or ease, to engage in any injurious, or foolish business. Always consider whether you, or your children, can follow the trade or business, and keep a conscience void of offence. How much better that you should have but a dollar a day, and the peace of God in your house, than ten dollars a day, and find that you are selling your peace of mind, and leading your children into temptation and a snare.

Endeavor to obey the laws of your country in all things; unless any law thereof should unhappily come in conflict with the law of God. Then it is your duty to please God rather than men. Honour and pray for the rulers of the nation.

Pay your just debts. Do not contract debts without a fair prospect of being able to meet your engagements. And even then, you perhaps had better not incur the affliction of being in debt. Pay your creditors if you are able, even though the law of the land might not oblige you so to do. Be just to all.

Never oppress the hireling in his wages. Never screw down the poor working man or woman, the apprentice boy or hired girl, but give them even more than usual, if it be in your power. Be careful to speak the truth in buying or selling, and have regard for the welfare of him with whom you deal, as well as to your own.

Revival Meetings.---J. Flake.

The brethren in Harrisburgh intend, if the Lord permit, to hold a special meeting, commencing November 14th. Whether it will be a revival meeting, who can tell? We can pray that it may be such—we may obtain the preachers we think best fitted for the work—we may, like the Prophet, prophecy to the winds to come and breathe upon the dead that they may live—we may proclaim a fast as perhaps is much needed—but after all—the wind blows where it listeth—the Spirit breathes where it pleases—it is God that giveth the increase. He sends the gracious, melting, moving, overpowering influence—we feel it—we yield thereto—we rejoice therein—we feel that God is near.

O the blessed work that has been going on for a hundred years, since Wesley and Whitfield commenced preaching a living, heart-felt religion, in England. It had been preached and enjoyed before that, especially among the Moravian brethren in Germany—but God raised up special messengers to carry forth his word of life, and we are only following in the footsteps, and spirit, of those who preached salvation by faith, and holiness to the Lord.

The practice of those who were in distress of mind on account of their soul's salvation coming forward, and kneeling at the altar in the churches, and praying there along with God's people for deliverance, is said to have commenced in America about the year 1800. Some say in Philadelphia—Baltimore, and in the West, about the same time. Those were days of power, both East and West of the mountains—the heralds of the cross going forth in the name of the Lord, and the hearts of many melting down like wax before the fire—and where the fire could not melt, then the hammer of the word—the preaching of the law of God, and judgment near, would break down the stubborn will—and they would fall under the power unseen which laid hold upon their conscience, perhaps in an unexpected hour. Then they asked, "What shall I do to be saved?"—then came the answer, "Come to Christ," and it was at the altar, among those who had the power of praying in faith, that the humbled penitent came with his load of sin, and laid himself and his sins at the feet of Jesus, kneeling at the altar, and often went away having found that rest and peace for his soul which Christ Jesus alone can give.

It is a great blessing to be in the spirit of a revival—to be able to preach, and pray, and sing, with the tenderness and solemnity which belongs to such a season. All lightness, and worldliness of mind, and conversation, should be guarded against, and our souls kept awake to hear the voice of the Lord, and feel his power. How unhappy it is to be hard and unfeeling like the rock, while the dews of heavenly grace are falling all around. But there is a divine power and efficiency in the Gospel, and accompanying the means of grace, which is felt by almost every one, more or less, that comes within the reach of a revival meeting.

Then do not stay away from the preaching of the everlasting Gospel—nor from the solemn prayers—but come again and again, for where two or three believing souls, or two or three hundred, are met together, Jesus Christ is in their midst. Do not sing the choruses and hymns that are light and flighty—but such as are weighty, and impressive, and tender in the sentiment and tune. Do not keep up the meetings late at night, for there are many young persons who ought to be at home at a proper hour. Above all, do every thing to the glory of God, in humble dependance on His aid and blessing.

The Days of Zion's Increase.--J. F.

These are the days when the nations which profess and call themselves Christians appear likely to rule the world. The Mahommedan, and the Heathen lands, are yielding to the political sway, and the social institutions, of lands civilized and exalted by Christianity. Shall we rejoice that it is so? I think we may. For heretofore in heathen lands the cruelty and depravity of man has been astonishing.

The Roman Catholic Church also, in England, and in this fair land of liberty, is greatly on the increase. This we may regret as Evangelical Christians, but I would much rather they should increase than Infidelity and Atheism.

It also seems to me that the day of increase for the spiritual Zion is at hand. The day when the Spirit shall be poured out again in large measure on the true Church, before the end of time, and holiness to the Lord distinguish those who are the Elect—the children of the light, and heirs of the everlasting kingdom.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

JOURNAL
OF THE
Fifth Annual Eldership in Indiana.

Agreeably to adjournment, the Annual Eldership of the Church of God in the State of Indiana, met in a School-house near Auburn, Decalb county, Indiana, October 21st, 1850.

Meeting was opened with worship by Bro. Wm. Hood.

On motion, brothers John Martin and Wm. Hood were appointed to constitute the meeting: whereupon the following brethren were found to be in attendance, viz:

Teaching Elders.

Wabash County—Wm. Hood.
Lagrange County—John Martin.
Adams County—Christian Sands.
Mercer County, Ohio—T. Hickernell.
Illinois—John Blickenstaff.
Absentee—Geo. Thomas.

Ruling Elder.—William Framton, Decalb county.

Delegates.—David Howard and J. Woodruff, Milford Church. Brother Comp, Whitley county. Brother Berry, Jackson Church.

On motion, brother JOHN MARTIN was appointed Speaker, and Thos. Hickernell Clerk.

On motion, brother Bartlett was received as an advisory member.

On motion, a committee of three was appointed on Overtures, viz: Brothers Sands, Framton and Comp.

A committee of three on applicants for License was appointed, viz: Wm. Hood, John Martin and T. Hickernell.

The reports of the ministers were then given in.

Brother T. HICKERNELL reported: That he is still trying to preach the Gospel, and that he has labored in several small revivals during the last Eldership year, and baptized some, but does not recollect the number. The prospects on the circuit are tolerable good. His report was adopted.

Brother SANDS reported: That he has been laboring in the Gospel ministry as much as he could during the last Eldership year. He states that he could have preached more extensively provided be had had a horse; and further states, that he labored under great bodily afflictions, which prevented him from travelling a good part of his time. He states that he baptized eight since the last Eldership, and some 20 or 25 embraced religion, some of whom joined the sects. His report was adopted.

Brother Blickenstaff reported: but inasmuch as charges were preferred against him, a committee of five was appointed to investigate those charges, viz: Brothers J. Martin, Sands, Hood, Framton and J. Hickernell.

Brother JOHN MARTIN reported: That he has been preaching according to the best of his ability. He states that he labored in a meeting in the neighborhood where he lives, which lasted four or five weeks. The result of the meeting was, that some 40-odd embraced religion—some were reclaimed from a backslidden state, and three baptized. His report was adopted.

Brother WM. HOOD reported: That he is still trying to preach the Gospel—is not certain that any were converted under his labors, but thinks that some were deeply awakened under his preaching. His report was adopted.

Brother Geo. Thomas was heard from. His report was adopted.

On motion, adjourned to meet at half-past 8 o'clock to-morrow morning. Prayer by Bro. Sands.

TUESDAY MORNING.

Session opened by brother Bartlett.

On motion, inasmuch as brother Bartlett made application for license and wishes to leave, the Eldership then heard his report and granted him license.

The report on brother Blickenstaff's case was heard and accepted. It was then

Resolved, That, inasmuch as brother Blickenstaff resigned his license, in consequence of charges preferred againt him in Illinois, his resignation be accepted.

On motion, a Standing Committee of five was appointed, viz: Wm. Framton, C. Sands, Geo. Thomas, J. Martin and T. Hickernell.

On motion, a Stationing Committee of five was appointed, viz: Brothers Comp, Wm. Hood, Berry, D. Howard and T. Hickernell.

On motion, brother Comp was appointed Treasurer, to receive monies for superannuated ministers.

On motion, brother Menely was re-appointed Book Agent.

On motion, brother T. Hickernell was appointed a delegate to the next session of the General Eldership, to be held at Pittsburg.

On motion,

Resolved, That the Standing Committee meet at brother Comp's, on the third Monday of March next, 1851.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the Stationing Committee report. Their report was as follows:

Lagrange County Circuit—Geo. Thomas.
St. Mary's Circuit—Christian Sands.
Defiance Mission—Otes Bartlett.
General Missionary—T. Hickernell.
Home Missionaries—John Martin and Wm. Hood.

The report was adopted.

On motion, a vote of thanks was tendered to the friends and brethren of Jackson township, for their acts of kindness shown to the Eldership during their session.

On motion, brother T. Hickernell was appointed to preach the opening discourse at the next session of this Eldership.

On motion,

Resolved, That this Eldership now adjourn, to meet at a School-house, in the neighborhood of brother T. Hickernell's, near Mendon, Mercer county, Ohio, on the first Monday of November, 1851.

Prayer by brother Framton.

JOHN MARTIN, Speaker.

Thos. Hickernell, Clerk.

—

Our Eldership is over. We met in peace and friendship, and thus we parted. There are no refractory persons belonging to the Eldership that I know of. How long this may continue time will determine. Our prospects for having more laborers in the field are increasing. My prayer to God is, that his cause may advance, and that we all may keep the unity of the spirit, which is the bond of perfectness. T. HICKERNELL.

SLAVERY,
Eldership and General Conference.

Harrisburg, Oct. 31, 1850.

Brother Flake:—

The hasty vote of the late Eldership on the slavery question, as you are aware, places me before the world and the Churches of God, and especially the Free-will Baptist denomination, in an unenviable predicament. I am there virtually charged, by a bare majority, and several of them the freshmen of the body, with a misrepresentation of facts, concerning which I was as well informed as any member of the Eldership. In refusing to adopt my report of my visit to General Conference, I understand there are but two reasons expressed for that action. These are—

I. My statement of the facts in reference to the relation the Churches of God had sustained to slavery—that they had not made the bare relation of master to slave in all cases a bar to Christian-fellowship. And—

II. The utterance of my own opinion in connection with these facts—that in so doing they had acted wisely, rightly and discreetly. For the expression of this last sentiment, I have been charged on the Eldership floor, as well as elsewhere, with being the abettor of slave-holders, the advocate of slavery as a "divine institution," and not the true friend of the oppressed. This, too, in the face of the facts, that one of the prominent reasons for me leaving my native Maryland was, my dislike to human slavery—the horror I had at the scenes of oppression and abuse I had repeatedly witnessed from childhood up—that, when not over seventeen years of age, I had held a public discussion on the evils of slavery in the midst of slavery and slave-holders, where I was prepared to talk eight hours, and give vent to sentiments which have caused me ever since to be branded with the epithet of Abolitionist and Amalgamationist whenever I visit those regions; but, by giving vent to the same sentiments in an Abolition audience, I am doomed to receive the indelible brand of "Abettor of slave-holders and the advocate of slavery as a divine institution." Well, sir, this world is a great deal like the Frenchman's punch,—there is in it any quantity of contradiction. I have gone farther than this, if possible, and told the slave-holder in his own house, by his own fire-side—the companion of childhood and playmate of my school-days, that I feared the keeping of his slaves would be the ruin of his soul. To another I have written the same, and hope to do the like again. And, yet I am a pro-slaver, simply because I cannot endorse and swallow without mastication the wholesale and sweeping declaration, that no man, in any case, sustaining the relation of master to slave, is fit to be fellowshipped as a Christian. With the history of the first Churches, and the advice of Paul and Peter before my eyes, the martyr's stake would be preferable to such a sentiment. I believe our system of domestic slavery to be politically, socially and morally wrong—a gross violation of natural rights, and far behind the age in which we live. There can be no Christian heart but laments its existence, deplores every advance it makes, and hopes speedily to see the day when the chains of the bondman shall be broken off, whether he shall be removed to a foreign land or remain in our midst. All Churches of God should take the lead in this; induce their converts to provide for the slave's release, and thereby set an example to the State, showing the practical benefits of Christianity to men of all classes. But, sir, I ask, in Christian candor, if the following sentiments either comport with Christianity, or are calculated to better the state of master or slave?

Resolved, That the American Church, as a body, in the sanction and support which it gives to American slavery, by receiving to its communion tables and pulpits, these stealers of men, by allowing its members, unrebuked, to elect slave-holders to the offices of the nation, and promise allegiance to the pro-slavery Constitution of the United States, has proved itself utterly unworthy of the name of Christ, and ought not to be regarded or treated as Christians. That any Church that voluntarily supports that government, whose members vote in it, or are, with their own consent, voted for, is a scandal and libel on truth and goodness, a synagogue of satan, an enemy of righteousness and of God, and as such, should be spurned as the most dangerous and fatal foe of the interests and happiness of man.—[See the Pennsylvania State Abolition Convention, West Chester, October 15.

Now, I wonder how, in order to be consistent, those brethren who boast they are the exclusive friends of the poor slave, can repudiate such unmingled gall and unqualified exclusiveness. But, I wish not at this place to make a defence of my sentiments as advanced on Conference floor. I only ask the right of not being calumniated as the enemy to the slave and the friend alone to his master. In return, I will not say such hard things of my brethren, who glory in the unscriptural name, Abolitionist.

In the next place, as to the history of our practice, I proved before the Eldership, that five or more persons holding slaves had been members of the Churches of God, or fellowshipped and baptized as Christians—that repeatedly Camp-meetings had been held on extensive slave-holders' lands, and they fellowshipped as Christians—that ministers holding slaves had occupied the stands with our preachers—that twelve or fifteen Churches in Maryland and in the edge of Pennsylvania had been in regular communion with those persons—that not until very recently had two persons, the only ones that I ever knew to apply and not suceeed on those grounds, been denied the rite of baptism—that one of those members had attended two sessions of the Eldership in East Pennsylvania, and, though not a member of that body, still fellowshipped as a Christian—that more than thirty of the oldest and ablest of the ministers in Pennsylvania and Maryland had communed at the Lord's table and washed feet with these slave-holding members, and knew them to be such. Some of these brethren acknowledged they had done so—that they now believed they did wrong, but still voted down my report. It was argued these were only isolated cases, and in the face of all these facts, my report is pronounced a misrepresentation.—I cannot tell why; whether it was to give me a "dressing," in the chaste style of a good brother, or to make a show of consistency, in order to reap a share of Abolition applause. If the latter, I must confess for one, I am ambitious of no such notoriety. I love consistency, but it is the consistency of truth. To confess my errors, when the evidence is adduced, is a privilege. And, so I thought our good brethren should have done in order to be consistent. If the Church of God has reformed, let the world know she has confessed her former sins. And if my good Abolitionist brethren, who cry down human names, and yet glory in this, will convince me that Paul never fellowshipped a master who held slaves, in any case, I will make all the repairs I can.

With much reluctance I have written the above account of facts, as a matter of duty to myself and truth, leaving it to the public to judge if I was not authorized to say what I did.

Fraternally,

G. U. HARN.

Children and Parents.

FROM MECHANICSBURG.

"As the twig is bent, the tree will incline."

THERE is something in the above saying worthy of the consideration and attention of every father and mother. It is a universal law in nature that youth is tender and pliable, susceptible of any shape, form or character that care and education may bestow on it.—And the cast or character gotten in youth is rarely effaced by all the heat and frost of time. If the twig or young tree be bent towards the west when young, so it will lean or incline when old—and who will then bend it eastward? If the horse is spoiled in training when young, who will make a faithful creature of him when old? A thousand similar emblems might be adduced here to exemplify or prove the above. Let a child be brought up to disobedience, vicious habits, sinful indulgences, and selfish appetites, will he go IN THE WAY HE SHOULD GO when old? Rarely—very rarely. The impressions received and character formed when young are lasting.—Ask the man of three score and ten, and he will relate things and events that occurred sixty years ago more correctly than those ten years ago. And especially can those instructions and impressions received and examples given at the home fire-side, when he looked up in the parent's face in simplicity and confidence, be fanned into a lively flame of recollection. How all-important, then, is it that parents should attend early to the subject of proper and pious education. But it is much to be lamented that parents have laid aside and forgotten the advice and precept upon this great and important subject—"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."—Prov. xxii. 6.

Is not the parent in a measure resposible for the habits and character of the son? God has given the child into the hands of the parent, as the clay is in the hands of the potter, to give it any form or character he chooses.—And, indeed, upon the parent, especially the mother, much depends what the man will be. Do we not see that the mother has the praise for the character of the great and good man? We might, in proof of this position, cite a number of instances—a few will do—Washington, John Newton and Byron. The mother of Washington said, "A good boy generally makes a good man." She understood the subject, and here we have the secret why "George was always a good boy." He had a mother who instilled into his heart principles and habits that made "a good boy." It is said that John Newton became wicked, and wandered from home. Yet the impressions his mother had made upon his tender mind, in praying with and for her son when a boy, went with him. When mingling in the most dissipated and disgraceful scenes of a sailor's life, in his midnight revelry, he would fancy he felt his mother's soft hand upon his head and pleading with God for her boy. The mother's soft hand went with his head, and her prayers with his heart. And, after the lapse of many guilty years, he became one of the brightest ornaments of the Church of God. Had the mother been remiss in her duty, the son might have wandered on in wickedness to eternity. Byron had, it is said, a character like his mother—it was transferred from the mother to the son. And what an awful career was his—a curse to his fellow-men.

Parents should be careful of the company they let their children get into when young. Where does the child learn to profane the name of his Maker? Where does he get his gambling, and a thousand other habits?—These things may appear but small in the boy; but, it is enough that the seed is sown. The heart is a rich soil for the growth of such things. Many agencies are employed by the powers of darkness to draw the young mind from the way it "should go." Many might be named, but let one suffice:—Circuses are one grand means in the hands of the wicked one to draw the young into sin. A Circus comes along, and every boy and girl wants to see the show—and what shows itself here but things of the most hellish character, suited to the gratification of the young mind. And yet parents, professors of religion too, will let their children go. I know a man who, not long since, was not a little surprized, when coming to his school-room in the morning, and one-third of his pupils absent, because a Circus was in town. Can it be possible that a Circus can have the pre-eminence to the school!—Time and money can be found to go to the Circus:—But, suppose 25 cents should be asked for, to get a book, in order to get the child into a regular class. * * *

Reader, didst thou see anything in the above that appears simple, or too much exaggerated? I would humbly ask, is it not true? Remember, as the twig is bent the tree will incline, or lean; and as the tree leans so it will fall, and as it falls so it will lie. O! that the following Divine precept was written on the mind of every parent, never to be effaced:—"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

J. S. H.

REVIEW OF THE Late Eldership at Churchtown.

THE late Eldership at Churchtown was, doubtless, a very pleasant one. Although much liberty was taken in debate, yet all was conducted so as to give no person offence.—The little difficulties that occurred in the reports of preachers, were all settled on amicable terms, and no expulsion at all took place. This was cheering, and speaks well for the ministry. Who reads the reports, will see that they are unusually cheering as to the general prospects of the good cause. About 450 conversions are reported since the last Eldership, and this estimate is far less than the professions really are.

The meeting was unusually small; owing, I suppose, to the early season at which it was held. Many of the ruling elders, as well as preachers, could not be in attendance at such a busy season. Some suppose that the resolution of last year, "That the ruling elders of the churches have an equal representation with teaching elders of this body," was another cause. On this I cannot say definitely, but think that resolution should be revoked. It does appear to me as though we were working too much like North and South, trying to keep a balance of power. The cause is one, both for ministers and churches. Others, again, suppose that the half per cent. dues to the Eldership funds worked a little against the will of the Elders of Churches sent as messengers. Well, a recommendation of this Eldership for them to call on the Churches that send them, to defray this part of their expenses, will be a relief—it is just and equal. Elders, see that you attend to it next year. Tell the Churches that send you to send it as a bounty. It is one of the best causes.—Preachers have enough to do without making money to support their widows and orphan children when they are no more. Your business is in the world, therefore get the churches to pay your dues, and let yours be a free-will offering. I would also remind the preachers, lest they forget the donations to be solicited for the above fund. And do not forget to call on the absent members of the Eldership for their quota. Some neglected this last year.

The lengthy and rather out of place debate on the Abolition question, absorbed so much time that little could be said or done on the question of Education. The committee on that subject are requested to report through the Advocate. It is to be hoped that it will meet, and report something ere long. This cause demands a greater degree of attention than has been hitherto given, and that attention can only be directed to it by continual agitation. Will the chairman of that committee not call it together shortly?

No part of the session was more interesting than the proceedings relalive to the missionary cause. Those who felt for the speed of the good work in which we are engaged, were especially encouraged to find a spirit awake on the subject that never was so much so before. The appointment of brothers Flake and Weishampel, as general missionary agents, is the best move in that matter we have ever taken. The cause is good, and they are very suitable persons for the work. It is to be hoped that the preachers everywhere will give them the greatest encouragement. Don't tell your congregation, "they can't do much here." Don't tell them so, but take them by the hand and go round with them. Tell the people from your pulpits when they will come and what they are after. Again, don't think this relieves you from taking up your collections as for years past. No, let it give you fresh courage to discharge duty.

But why should not West Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana do something in this matter also? Why look to us to do all in the missionary enterprise? Brethren, do what you can, if it is but a little. Let the brethren in the far West get to work also. God is working with them, and let them work in return.

Also, let the agents ask donations and collections with confidence—faith. You have a right to do it. Agents, preachers and churches, pray over this enterprise. Will not some of the ready scribes of the Advocate devote a chapter or two to the dissemination of general light on Foreign, Domestic and Western Missionary enterprises? Come, brethren, employ your pens as well as your tongues on these themes.

The ministers of the Churches of God should be the most industrious and pushing men, while the Churches should be the most liberal, in proportion to their means, in promoting this interesting cause. Oh, for a more holy and industrious ministry. The more industrious you are, brethren, the more God will work with you, and the more gratification you will have with the suucess you make. Industry dispels despondency and contributes to health.

The resolution advising the Churches to require their members who leave for other neighborhoods, to lift letters and deposite them with the Churches of God where they locate, or the nearest ones to them, is of vital importance. We hope a less loose and unreasonable practice will become general than is now in vogue. Why not join a Church, if twenty-five miles off?

The advice to enlarge the subscription list of the Advocate, should not be forgotten. We also want a weekly instead of a semi-monthly paper. The Advocate, as it now is, is entirely too small to meet the demands of the Church. We would have more and abler writing for it if larger. Then increase its subscription.

The new Hymn-Book has been long talked of, but slow in coming. Will not the committee have a meeting immediately, and say what they have done? Brethren, hardly any thing is more needed in our public services. Try to excel in its arrangement.

The Model Camp-meeting, though neglected last year, will be attended to by the same committee the coming year. Some want it to be held in Maryland.

The very able and courteous petition of the ladies of Churchtown, relative to the sinful abuse of tobacco, and the very proper resolution of the Eldership in answer to it, should be read in all the pulpits throughout the bounds of the Churches. It is certainly grievous and vexatious to have the house of God polluted by this inexcusable and sinful habit. Yea, to have Sisters to refuse having meeting in their houses on that account. Do brethren habituate themselves to the use of this filthy weed to the glory of God? No, they will not say so.—They did not on the Eldership floor—they acted Christian-like there, when not pretending to advocate their filthy habit. Will they now take the advice they helped to give themselves?

Christian brethren, may this be the most prosperous year we have ever had. Let every preacher, Regular or Local, set to, to see what report he can make of conversions and baptisms at the next Yearly Meeting. Some reported no conversions and baptisms this year, but may this never be the case again. All covenant with God to work for the salvation of souls. Work more than you have ever done. You have a great work to do, and but little time to do it in. We should all work like the gearing and wheels of a great mill. There is talent, number, and cause good and great enough, if there was piety and industry in proportion.

Fraternally,

G. U. HARN.

Household Baptism,

EXAMINED BY THE SCRIPTURES.

THE first family that comes under our notice is the family of Cornelius. Here the historian has been so particular in his relation, that our opponents will not stand long to plead for their rite from this passage; for it is said the Holy Ghost fell on all that heard Peter preach, and they spake with tongues. As to this family, it has nothing to do with infants.

The households generally brought forward to prove infant baptism by, are the households of Stephanas, Lydia and the Jailor. A careful examination of each of these houses, will set the matter in a fairer light for understanding, whether they speak for infant or believers' baptism. The household of Stephanas was the first-fruits of Achaia, and they addicted themselves to the ministry of the saints.--1 Cor. 16: 15. Their being first-fruits, discovers that they were the first in Achaia who were converted from Paganism to Christianity, by the preaching of the Gospel. Our opponents cannot deny this explanation. We at once discover how unlikely it is that infants are intended in this household; and especially when Paul says they (the whole house mentioned, as the word THEY is in the plural number,) addicted themselves to the ministry of the saints, viz: they relieved the wants of God's people by giving them such things as they stood in need of. It is not common for infants to give anything. This household has no tongue to speak for infant baptism; but, on the contrary, strongly argues believers' baptism. As they were first-fruits, they were converts; and as they gave to their brethren, it discovers that they loved them, and that is one mark of a Christian. The Saviour says, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

In the next place, let us turn to Lydia's household. What has she to say in behalf of infant baptism? Luke informs us that the Lord opened her heart so that she attended to the things preached by Paul, and after her heart was opened she was baptized and her household.--Acts 16: 14, 15. This passage leaves us to conjecture whether or not there were infants in her house. At most, it is but a weak probability that there might be. We do not think it a safe way to establish an ordinance of the Gospel upon a weak probability. We call it a weak probability, because there are stronger probabilities that there were no infants in her house, she being at such a distance from the place of her abode, Thyatira; and at that time she was at Philippi, carrying on the mercantile business. She would hardly expose her infants in such a long and tedious journey, if she had children. Why is not her husband's name mentioned? The man is the head of the family, where the woman has a husband. The 40th or last verse of that chapter makes it more than probable that there was not an infant in the family; for when Paul and Silas were released from the jail they went into the house of Lydia, and when they had seen the brethren they comforted them and departed. It is very unlikely that Luke would call an infant a brother, for brethren in this place must be understood in a Gospel relation. Neither would infants be in trouble about the Apostles being in jail, as it appears these new converts were, for when they saw them they received comfort. But if infants be in distress, the mother or a good nurse is more likely to give the comfort than an Apostle. Hence you see this passage will not speak for infant baptism. And, let me remark, where the Scripture has no tongue to speak, we should have no ear to hear. In our next we shall see what Luke has to say about the Jailor and his house.

DAVID NEIDIGH, JR.

Reedsburg, Ohio, Oct. 22, 1850.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

The Worth of Hope.

HOPE is truly an anchor to the soul in all time of trouble. Let gloom hang heavily, like a leaden curtain, around the desponding spirit, and despair, with its raven wings, brood its threatening aspect over the head, but if hope has hold of the heart, by means of the cable of faith, still the soul will ride above every lashing surge of grief. Christian brother or sister, what wouldst thou take, in the darkest hour of gloom, for the last lingering ray of hope that flickers in thy breast?—Would kingdoms be an equivalent? Could all the precious treasures of earth reward thee for its loss? Heaven without hope would give no joy—it would be a barren waste!—Hell with it would be transformed into Paradise. Go on, then, as long as thou hast hope, and be thankful. Consider thou hast the richest boon that Heaven can bestow. Hope against Hope, for by hope thou wilt be saved. Hope every day. Hope in times of mid-night gloom as in the rays of noon-day glory. "He that endureth to the end shall be saved." Hope to the end. Let hope abide; not merely pay a transient visit, but permanently reside—yea, "abide," saith Paul.

Penitent sinner, art thou desponding and fearful thy load of guilt will never be removed?—that thy soul is doomed to death and hell?--that cruel destiny has fixed, by fate, thy doleful state beyond recovery? Turn thy eyes within and ask, have I not hope? What would I take for that glimmering spark?—Could worlds purchase it from me? Well, while hope I have, I will trust a dying Saviour's love.

My sins abound, but grace doth much more abound. My soul shall praise for this hope that I have found. If Jesus gave himself for me, will he not freely give me all things? Then let me hope on.

So great, so vast a sacrifice,
May well my hope revive;
If God's own Son thus bleeds and dies,
The sinner SURE MAY LIVE!

G. U. H.

Good News from North Bend, Iowa.

"The Lord hath visited His people."

HAIL, brethren in the Lord, I bring you good tidings. We commenced our protracted meeting on the 5th inst., which has lasted hitherto. This evening I stayed at home to rest myself and draw up a few lines for the "Church Advocate," giving a report of the kind dealings of the Lord in the far West.

Brother Samuel Scott, from Trenton, was with us from Saturday until Wednesday morning, when he left for home. The Lord commenced working before he left us, and since then has worked graciously. I here acknowledge that in the 13 years of my Christian life I never enjoyed myself in the way that I did here at this meeting. Although we have but an humble school-house to worship in, yet the Lord was truly with us in a powerful manner up to the present time. Some 36 have professed saving faith through Jesus Christ.—Glory to God! Among the rest are three of my family—John, Catharine and William Alexander. Among the converts are old men, one in the 75th year of his age—others, men and women, heads of families. For the encouragement of the readers of the Advocate, I will name some more of the converts, viz: three sons of brother John Kepford, John Smalley and wife, and Charlotte Brown; two daughters of brother Joseph Gutshall, Mrs. John Stoner, formerly from Frankford township, Cumberland county, Pa.; E. C. Brandt and wife, from Bedford county, Pa.; two daughters and one son of brother Jonathan Hawk, from Pa.; Jacob Zeller, Pa.; Dr. Jacob Miller's wife and two sons, and himself revived; Martha Greene, Pa., and Daniel Doner's son David. The reason I gave names, I know that these are all known to some of the readers of the Advocate, and therefore encouraging.

On last Sabbath 11 were baptized, and we expect to baptize next Sabbath again. I have came through many revivals, but there were some things connected with this one that excels and exceeds all I ever witnessed before. Here, too, you could see the Methodist, the pious Lutheran and Presbyterian all join in the work. Not too much noise for them—no, verily not. Brother John Stoner, although a Lutheran, could shout as loud and leap as high as any one! The Baptists, too—all one bundle of love—some weeping for joy, others laughing, while others were shouting and leaping. Here you could see the man of 75 and the boy of 14 all alike twining together in one bundle of love. This makes me think of a saying of one of the Prophets, I think Isaiah, "The old and the young shall join together in the dance."

I shall now close for the present on this subject, and say here that a donated Sabbath-school Library, sent to my care from Philadelphia, Pa., has come to hand a few days ago, which is now in my care. Will you please, brother Jacob Flake, to send a copy of the "Church Advocate" containing this acknowledgement to the proper person connected with the Board of the American Sabbath-school Union, at my cost, and as soon as our revival is closed we will meet in a Sabbath-school capacity again, and take measures to report more fully and directly to the Board, &c. More anon.--Amen.

Fraternally yours, in hope of eternal life,
M. F. SNAVELY.

North Bend, Iowa, Oct. 17, 1850.

The Advocate for brother Joseph Orris goes regularly to Iowa City.—EDITOR pro tem.

Questions on Pedo-Rantism.

WILL some believer in Pedo-rantism please reconcile the following facts with that baseless theory? Two persons are born of Pedo-baptist ancestry. The good Lord grants them an infant daughter. They become immersionists in the course of time, and get baptized--their daughter grows up--marries—embraces religion in a revival in progress under a Pedo-baptist minister's labors--wishes to become a member, but not without immersion; nor will the Church permit her without something called baptism, although Pedo-baptists say they are not close communion. The father of the daughter affirms that the lady had been christened in infancy, but the mother says as confidently that she has not. The minister, although a staunch believer in infant baptism, and, that re-baptism is a sin, consents and actually immerses the young lady.

Question 1*st.*—Has or has not the preacher violated the creed or standard of his Church?

Question 2*d.*--Has he or not been guilty of the sin of re-baptism?

Question 3*d.*—Did not the young lady act as a wise Christian; and would she not have been dependant for the knowledge of her religion, so far, at least, as baptism is a part of it, upon the conflicting testimony of others, if she had not gotten immersed? and who could have told whether she was in or out of the "visible Church?"

Questions on Pedo-Rantism—No. 2.

Pedo-baptists are accustomed to christen children on the faith of the parent or parents. Well, here is a family of children from eight days to fifteen years old. The youngest, of course, are baptized on the faith of the parents--a sort of imputed righteousness without faith, an idea never thought of by Paul. But the work of infant conversion goes on, and where is it to stop? Who is to tell where the line of proxy accountability ceases and that of personal commences? H.

The Christian Review,

FOR October, is a very rich and valuable number. After some considerable effort and sacrifice, our regular Baptist brethren have succeeded, we are informed, in getting this work established upon a sure and permanent foundation. The editor, the Rev. S. S. Cutting, is assisted by Prof. Gammell of Brown University, with the advice of the Rev. Drs. W. R. Williams of N. Y., and A. C. Hendrick of Rochester, N. Y. During the volume which this number closes there has been a very manifest and decided improvement in the character of the work and the ability with which it has been conducted. It may now safely be pronounced one of the ablest Religious Quarterlies in the country.

The contents of the present number are:—1. Confessions of Augustine. 2. The Object in Forging the Apostolical Constitutions. 3. Socialism in the United States. 4. Spirit and Form. 5. The Territories of the Pacific. 6. Examination of Josh. 10: 12–15. 7. Philosophic Theology. 8. Sketch of President Taylor. 9. Dr. Johann August Wilhelm Neander. 10. Notices of New Publications—some nineteen in number. A. D. W.

OBITUARIES.

SISTER RYAN, wife of brother Henry Ryan, departed this life, on the 17th of April, 1850.

Sister Ryan left an affectionate husband, a small family of children, and a large circle of connexions, to mourn her departure; but we hope their loss is her infinite gain. Her remains were interred in a grave-yard on his own farm. A short discourse was delivered on the ground, by the writer, to a large number of people.

BROTHER JAMES TRADER also departed this life in the month of April. Brother J. Trader's sickness was supposed to be originally from a cold. During his last illness I visited him several times. He bore his affliction with composure. Brother Trader was a pillar in the Church of God here, but the Lord saw proper to remove him to a higher station. He left a tender companion, one small child, and a large number of friends, to mourn his departure. His funeral discourse was preached in the Woodland meeting-house, by brother D. Wertz, followed by the writer, to a large congregation.

Thus the Church has again lost two of its lively members. May this dispensation of the Providence of God be sanctified to the good of the cause of the Lord in this place.

BROTHER JOHN ECKLES also left this world on the 14th of June, after a long sickness. His ailment is supposed to have been a stroke of the Palsy. Brother Eckles' patience in his affliction was remarkable. I visited him a few days before he died. His mind was composed, and while I prayed with him he shouted praises to God. His time was employed in speaking of heavenly things—he looked upon death with calmness. By these examples we can see that it is not a vain thing to serve the Lord, for the rewards will be realized even in the hour of death. Thus his wife has been bereaved of an affectionate husband, the children of a tender father, the Church in Greene county, Pa., of one of its most zealous members, and the neighborhood of a good citizen.

His funeral sermon was preached in the meeting-house, to a large concourse of people, by the writer, from Job 7: 1.

BENJAMIN OBER.

Marshall Co., Va., June 28, 1850.

OBITUARY OF Sister ELIZA McFERREN.

FAYETTEVILLE, Pa., Oct. 22, 1850.

IT was owing to sickness in my own family that caused me to delay sending the following communication up to this time.

On the 16th of September, at 7 o'clock in the evening, ELIZA MCFERREN, youngest daughter of brother Peter and sister McFerren, both members of the Church of God at this place, departed this life, after a severe illness of several weeks. Her age was 18 years, 10 months and 27 days. She died in peace, having given satisfactory evidence of the fact that Jesus was precious to her, and that she was going home to Him, to be with Him forever and ever. O! what a happy change, when taken from the sorrows of this life to enjoy the pleasures of unfading glory.

On Wednesday, the 18th, her friends and neighbors met at her father's house, at nine o'clock, for the purpose of paying their last tribute of respect to ELIZA. But, alas! she that in days that were gone, was seen to be active and lively, was then silent in death; and those limbs that moved briskly in the service of others, when they were at her father's house, were confined to the narrow limits of the coffin. She was followed by a large concourse of relations and acquaintances to the place of interment. Thence we repaired to a house of worship belonging to the United Brethren in Christ. The funeral sermon was preached by the writer, and was followed with warm exhortations, part in German and part in English, by brothers Price and Byers.

The scene was a solemn one, and the people appeared serious. If any good accrued from the services of that day, I hope that God may have all the glory of it, both in time and eternity. Yours, very respectfully.

WILLIAM McELROY.

OBITUARY OF Sister CATHARINE KECK.

DIED, on the 8th of October, 1850, near Grand-View, Louisa county, Iowa, Sister CATHARINE KECK, wife of Michael Keck, and daughter of brother Henry Wagoner, formerly of Fishing Creek, Dauphin county, Pa.

Sister Keck embraced religion some years ago in Pennsylvania, near Harrisburg, and ever since proved faithful to her heavenly calling. Her illness was short, but severe, which she bore with resignation to the will of her Heavenly Master. It appears there was somewhat of a foresight in this person's death. Her mother paid her a visit a short time before she took sick, and she remarked to her mother that her time upon earth was short, and very short. She took sick a few days after, and the disease could not be arrested even by the most skillful physicians. The evening before her death, being very weak, she called her father to her bed-side, and told him she was going home. He then asked her where her home was. With a feeble hand she pointed upwards and said, up there. All the days of her pilgrimage were 20 years and 11 months. A funeral discourse was delivered on the occasion, by brother Linsey, to a solemn congregation and weeping friends.

She is gone.—she is gone to the land of the blest,
She is gone to the realms where the weary find rest:
Kind angels stood near her when she drew her last breath,
And guided and guarded her spirit through death.

As the flower that bends its weak head to the blast,
And tremblingly waits till its fury is past,
So she bowed her soul to the will of her God,
And kissed in submission the chastening rod.

Farewell, dearest Sister, thy soul was too chaste,
To linger for time on this earth's cheerless waste;
Thou art gone,—thou art gone to thy long last rest,
And taken thy crown with the saints that are blest.

A. H. KAUFFMAN.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

McDonough, the Deceased Millionaire.

The Baltimore Sun says:—The Newark (N. J.) Advertiser has been furnished by a gentleman in that city, formerly a resident of New Orleans, and who was well acquainted with the late John McDonough, the "miser millionaire," (as the Advertiser says,) who lately died in the latter city, with some interesting reminiscences of him. It says:

He resided, for many years in the latter part of his life, in Algiers, a village on the opposite side of the Mississippi to New Orleans, where he cultivated and maintained the strictest habits of industry and economy. His custom was to visit the city daily, and to avoid the expense of the ferry boat, the usual mode of crossing, he kept a small skiff, in which he made his house servants row him over. The foundation of his fortune was laid by the transfer of Louisiana to the United States, when a large tract where New Orleans is now located was acquired by him. The increase in value of this would of itself constituted, at this day, a large fortune. The income of his possession he studiously, and with much good judgment, invested in improved property in the city; and so particular was he in the collection of rents, that he made out, with the most perfect exactness, himself, every bill; and though he had a collector employed, he would never suffer him to append his name to a receipt. He was never known to have a friend call on him except on business, which he would compel him to despatch with all convenient speed, lest his time would be occupied with something that would not result in his pecuniary advantage.

The old gentleman whom he employed to collect his rents, &c., was not even allowed to have his brother call on him, lest, as McDonough alleged, it would cost him an extra meal. His apparel, when in the city, was always neat and clean, but bore the unmistakable evidence of being very ancient. So particular was he to save his clothes from the usual wear, that he has been known frequently to take off his linen on his return from the city and replace it with that which was of less value. The umbrella, which he invariably carried with him, was said to have been found by him during his service in Gen. Jackson's campaign against the Indian tribes. When he put on a new coat it was noticed and made the subject of familiar conversation among business men throughout the city as a matter of astonishment. A few years ago a nephew visited him, and was told he need not repeat his visits, as it was expensive, and he subsequently died in the Charity Hospital, his uncle contributing nothing towards his funeral expenses. On one occasion he applied to the Legislature for the pasaage of an act appointing himself executor of his own estate, by which he intended to save the usual fee of two and a half per cent. to the Probate Court. In answer to his petition the Legislature replied, that if he would make affidavit that he was dead, they would act favorable upon his petition.

Much is said about his liberating his slaves, and an erroneous impression has gone abroad in relation to it. When he purchased one, he at once opened an account with him, charging his cost, expenses of clothing, &c.; and crediting him with the money received for his wages; and when the slave had paid him his first cost, expenses and interest of money, with a fair consideration for risks, &c., he gave him his freedom, provided the Colonization Society would take charge of him.

The above contains many statements, the truth of which we are inclined to doubt—or at least they are donbtless strong exaggerations relative to the course of life of a shrewd and precise business man. With regard to the slaves he manumitted, we had previously learned some of the facts above stated, with the addition that they were learned brick making and brick laying, and manufactured and put up a large number of brick houses in New Orleans. We also have the testimony of the President of the Colonization Society, that he not only manumitted his slaves, but paid their expenses to Liberia, and gave them a good out-fit.

His mode of life was evidently in strong contrast with Southern life generally, but the man who could carry out and perfect such a scheme of philanthropy as that relating to his slaves, making them valuable citizens of Liberia, also giving them instruction and Christian guidance, must have had some warm spots in his heart that would render such a character as is above depicted rather incongruous. His will also indicates something more of philanthropy than such a man could have had, and we doubt not it will be sustained.

A number of the heirs reside in this city, most of whom, with the exception of his sister, have been cut off without a shilling, and we understand that the Hon. Reverdy Johnson, the Hon. John Nelson and J. M. Campbell, Esq., have been retained as counsel by them.

Arrival of Antiquities from Nineveh.—The brigantine Apprentice has arrived in London from Bussoriah, or the river Euphrates, having on board a great quantity of Assyrian antiquities and marbles, consigned to the trustees of the British Museum. Among them are the great bull from Nineveh, with a man's head and dragon's wings, weighing 12 tons, and a lion, sculptured in the same manner, weighing 9 tons. There are also several coffins, containing many curious relics of the matters and usages of Eastern countries regarding the ceremonies observed in burying their dead.

A Family of Ministers.—The Presbyterian Herald says that the Rev. W. W. Martin, a venerable Presbyterian minister, who died on the 30th ult. at Livonia, in Indiana, left behind him two sons, missionaries in China; four sons-in-law, Presbyterian ministers; and one in the Theological Seminary at New Albany, preparing for the missionary work, making eight ministers in one family.

Increase of Baptists in New York and Vicinity.—The New York Recorder contains a statistical account of the number and condition of the Baptist Churches in that city and immediate vicinity, for the years 1840 and 1850, showing an increase of the denomination during the 10 years included. According to the tables thus given, the total number of churches in the city and vicinity, in 1840, was 22; pastors, 17; members, 6,272, of which were in the city proper churches, 17; pastors, 13; members, 5 475. In 1850, the total number of churches is 44; pastors, 42; members, 10,979—in the city proper churches, 30; pastors, 30; members, 8,873.

By this statement it appears that the number of members has increased by a little more than 77 per cent., and the number of churches has been doubled. It will be seen that the increase has been greater in the vicinity than in the city itself.

This account certainly shows a very encouraging state of things, and testifies that the Baptists of New York have not been idle.

Fugitive Slave Romance.—Our readers doubtless remember the story of the escape of a colored man and his wife, named William and Ellen Crafts, from slavery in Georgia, about two years since, by the wife, a woman of very light complexion, disguising herself in male attire, and travelling to the North as a Southern youth, attended by her husband as a slave servant. It appears that is the Crafts for whom a warrant was issued in Boston, on Friday, as a fugitive, and who had been living there ever since his escape, doing business as a cabinet maker. The wife has left the city, but the husband remains.

A Wise Investment.—A Presbyterian lady in Ireland has recenily left, among other handsome legacies, the sum of £30,000 "for the spread of the Gospl in India." She was induced to appropriate it especially to india, because her fortune was derived from that country, through a brother, who held a lucrative office in the British Army. The money it is said, will probably be employed in prompting female education.

MISCELLANEOUS.

GRACE TRIUMPHANT OVER TEMPTATION.

Instances like the following are especially useful for the testimony they bear to the riches and power of sustaining grace, and to the precious influence of consistent Christian example. In reading such accounts it were well to imagine how the scene of struggle would appear to us if we could look behind the external developments and mark the conflicting spiritual agencies---Satan tempting---the Divine Spirit repelling and still sustaining, till triumph closes the strife. Manifestly in this case God was there. This accounts for the victory and for the blessing which succeeded.—Oberlin Evangelist.

"Lord ——— was a man of the world. His pleasures were drawn from his riches, his honors and his friends. His daughter was the idol of his heart. Much had been expended for her education, and well did she repay, in her intellectual endowments, the solicitude of her parents. She was highly accomplished, amiable in her disposition, winning in her manners. They were all strangers to God.

"At length Miss ——— attended a

Methodist meeting in London; was deaply awakened, and soon happily converted.—Now she was delighted in the service of the sanctuary and social meetings. To her the charms of Christianity were overflowing. She frequented those places where she met with congenial minds, animated with similar hopes. She was often found in the house of God.

The change was marked by the fond father with painful solicitude. To see his lovely daughter thus infatuated, was to him an occasion of deep grief, and he resolved to correct her erroneous notions on the subject of real pleasure and business of life. He placed at her disposal large sums of money, hoping she would be induced to go into the fashions and extravagances of others of her birth, and leave the Methodist meetings. But she maintained her integrity. He took her on long journeys, conducted in the most engaging manner, in order to divert her mind from religion; but she still delighted in the Saviour.

"After failing in many projects which he anticipated would be effectual in subduing the religious feelings of his daughter, he introduced her into company under circumstances in which she must either join in the recreation of the party or give offence. Hope lighted up the countenance of this affectionate but misguided father, as he saw this snare about to entangle the object of his solicitude.

It had been arranged among his friends that several young ladies, on the approaching festive occasion should give a song, accompanied by the piano-forte.

"The hour arrived, the party assembled. Several had performed their parts to the great delight of the party, which was in high spirits. Miss ——— was now called on for a song, and many hearts now beat in high hopes of victory. Should she decline, she was disgraced; should she comply, their triumph was complete. This was the moment to seal her fate! With perfect self-possession she took her seat at the piano-forte, ran her fingers over the keys, and commenced playing and singing, in a sweet air, the following words:

'No room for mirth or trifling here,
For worldly hope or worldly fear,
If life so soon is gone;
If now the Judge is at the door,
And all mankind must stand before
Th' inexorable throne!

No matter which my thoughts employ,
A moment's misery or joy:
But O! when both shall end,'
Where shall I find my destined place?
Shall I my everlasting days
With fiends or angels spend?'

"She rose from her seat. The whole party was subdued. Not a word was spoken. Her father wept aloud! One by one they left the house.

"Lord ——— never rested until he became a Christian. He lived an example of Christian benevolence, having given to benevolent Christian enterprises at the time of his death, nearly half a million of dollars."

THE SABBATH BURIAL.

BY MRS. R. S. NICHOLS.

It was morning on the Mississippi—early morning, for the heavy white mists hung around the low shores of Tennessee, completely veiling the whole landscape from view. But as the sun journeyed onward, his strong clear eye pierced the glittering curtain, and with his invisible fingers swept the heavy folds aside. Drawn up close beside the shore, lay a solitary steamer. The fires were smouldering in the furnaces; and though its iron heart still beat regularly and audibly, and unusual silence reigned over the little world there assembled. It is true, it was the Sabbath—the holy Sabbath of God, so desecrated by man. Though Nature, in her solemn forests, and hoary solitudes, and with a thousand eloquent voices, pleads for the tributary reverence which she seems so willing to render, still does man—the rational, thinking being, made in the likeness of his Creator and stamped with the spiritual seal of intellect, refuse to render unto God the things that are his, or even to acknowledge they are due.

The silence that had reigned over that wild shore during the early part of the morning, was suddenly broken by the dull, ringing sound of a hammer; this presently ceased, and there might have been seen entering the principal cabin, two of the rough deck hands, bearing a plain black wooden box which they silently deposited on a table at the farther end. A state-room door was opened, and a little pale form, clad in the every day garments of a child, was brought forth and laid gently within the box. The lid was closed, and again the dull strokes of the hammer rung out sullenly upon the air. The men slowly resumed their burden, and proceeded to the lower deck, followed by the passengers, captain and remainder of the crew. Solemnly they walked, two and two, across a rude plank, thrown from the boat to the shore, and solemnly they paused just within the edge of a wild and lovely wood, where a little mound of dark mould, and a narrow open grave broke upon the view.

It was a beautiful resting place for the pure being, whose agonized spirit had so suddenly fled from a cold world of suffering to the calm dwellings of the blest beyond the stars. The green wood had watched for years the dark waves of the Mississippi, as they rolled turbidly along, or peacefully slept beneath the blue Southern skies; for years the tall trees had lifted their strong arms above the vine-covered trunks of some old patriarchs, who had fallen when they were young. The wild birds had nestled, built nests, and reared their young among the branches, while the gay squirrel dozed gently at noon-day on the soft grass beneath. There, too, often had echo rolled back the shout and the whoop of the red man; but never before had these quiet shades been the lonely witnesses of a Sabbath burial. The young tender leaves seemed to gather more closely together, and to hang tremblingly upon the boughs, while a drowsy murmur, like the far-off echo of a thousand voices, swept softly through the wood. Mournfully and silently the little band lowered the dead to rest; heavily the earth rattled down upon the rude coffin, and then rough, strong hands gathered the luxuriant moss and placed it gently over all. Not a word was spoken, not a prayer uttered; no holy minister of God was there to consecrate the spot, by offering homage to the Deity, or to call down a blessing on the wrung heart of the bereaved mother, who leaned her white cheek on the railing of the guard, and sat there, straining her gaze towards that silent shore, long after the boat had swept onwards in its rapid course. I said, no word was spoken; but when the echo of the noisy steamer had died away, a score of forest voices rung out a merry chorus on the air, as the singers hopped lightly among the branches, that sheltered the new-made grave, and the squirrel that had fled terror-stricken from the footsteps of man, at first peered out slyly from its hiding place, and then stole shyly to the spot, and gazed curiously around. Nor was this all; the golden sunbeams, like a group of glittering, wingless spirits, revelled brightly among the meek blossoms of the wood moss that covered the grave.—As I have said, it was a meet resting place for the innocent-hearted dead—a lovely spot for memory to sit down by, and glance upon the mirror of the past; a sweet picture to rise in the dreams of that young Mother, and when God shall have wiped away her tears, and Time has shed a mellowed influence upon her spirit, she may turn to that hallowed ground, as the weary wanderer turns towards the beacon-star that invites his feet to home and to repose.

A NESTORIAN PASTOR.

The Rev. Mr. Stocking, a missionary among the Nestorians, gives the following account of "John, the first Nesterian pastor" of modern times. The aid now rendered in the work of evangelization abroad by native helpers, constitutes an era in the history of missions. Of this new Nestorian pastor, Mr. Stoeking says:

John, as a spiritual watchman, is unwearied in his labors, often preaching three times a day during the week, and performing other arduous and self-denying duties, going from house to house for religious conversation, visiting the sick, and speaking the word at funerals. We are often constrained to admire the grace of God as developed in his devoted piety, discreet zeal, and indomitable perseverance; and wonder at his ability, even physically, to endure the arduous labors of his office.—Beside the daily religious services in the church, he meets, several evenings in a week, Christians unable to read, and holds a Bible class with them. After reading and explaining a portion of Scripture, he asks them questions on the doctrines, duties or facts, contained in the portion read. In this way his audience is kept wakeful and much interested, and their piety and knowledge are greatly invigorated and strengthened. His spirit and practice may be inferred from his language in public on one occasion, as follows:

"Meet the truth like men, for we shall not cease to pursue you wherever you are, with the sword of the Spirit. If you come to church, you will meet it here. If you stay in your houses, we shall reach you there. If you go to your fields, we shall go after you there. If we find you in the streets, we shall address you, and if you are in your stables, thither also shall we go to reclaim you to God. Since, then, there is no escape for you, meet the truth and yield yourselves to God."

His study is a small chamber, about five feet by eight, entered by a ladder, built of mud and plastered on the inside with the same material mixed with straw, and having two small windows covered with paper instead of glass, to let in the light. On the floor is one coarse woollen rug, with no chair as yet to sit on. His library is neatly arranged on a rude elevated shelf extending from one side to the other, being protected from loose earth and dust which would otherwise fall from above by sheets of paper pasted under the roof; and consists of a copy of the Syriac, Hebrew, and English Bible, with a few volumes of Barnes's Notes, the Comprehensive Commentary, the Scripture Manual, a dictionary and a few other choice books, lent to him, or given him by friends in America. Through these books and the English language, which he has acquired, he derives much valuable assistance in his preparations for his pastoral duties. It having become known to his friends in the village that a table was needed to complete the furniture of the study, there was a voluntary and prompt response to contribute the means to procure one. This is the first study of the first Nestorian pastor, and is likely to introduce a new and striking idea into the minds of Nestorian ecclesiastics in regard to their appropriate calling.

GOD REPRESENTED BY THE POOR.

We find the following impressive passage, illustrating God's design in requiring benevolence of his creatures, in the prize essay of Rev. Dr. Cooke, of Lynn, lately issued by the American Tract Society:

God throws on us his poor, for the purpose of enriching us. He sends the poor, as the representative of himself, and of the cause of his Gospel, out to begging of us, and so, as it were, repeats the act of his humiliation, that the din of their solicitations ever sounding in our ears, and the sighs of a ruined world borne on every breeze, may draw forth from us those benevolent emotions and acts that shall more and more assimilate us to him, "who, though he was rich, yet for our sakes became poor." God takes the place of a man: in his poor he asks, and man bestows; that in bestowing, man may accumulate the true riches—more precious than gold, which perishes. It is God himself who asks; and our enriching with grace is the end for which he asks in the only way in which he could test and exercise our benevolence. For this purpose he must needs ask as a beggar, and not as a king. Should he come to us in regal splendor or heavenly glory, his asking would be a command, which we should not dare disobey; but our giving would be no act of compassion or benevolence. But now he comes to us in the person of his poor—he comes as the king dethroned and dependent—banished from heaven, covered with rags, pining in want—he comes uttering the tale of misery and real suffering, unless we afford relief. And now what we give is given by the promptings of compassion, and from no sordid motives. Here is both a proof and exercise of benevolence. Yet, to enforce his calls, he gives us to know that it is He, that speaks and pleads for compassion through the open wounds and uttered agonies of dying men; and that every donation shall be acknowledged by him in person, when he shall come in the glory of his father, and all the holy angels, and to every one who has exercised compassion on his poor, "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, ye did it unto me." It is not for his good but ours, that he thus beggars himself, and pleads before us.—"Our goodness extends not to him." A wise father often draws out the disposition of his child by bestowing gifts and then soliciting a portion in return, or getting proxies to solicit for him, anxious to open the child's heart to an expansive generosity. So Christ clothes himself in rags, and casts himself on our compassion, for no purpose so much as to give us the reflex benefit of our benevolent acts.

REV. CHARLES WADSWORTH.

A correspondent of the Newark Daily Advertiser writes as follows:

"Just now, Philadelphia has her pulpit 'lion' in the person of the Rev. Charles Wadsworth, of the Arch-street Presbyterian church. He was settled in Troy, N. York, for some seven or eight years, and commenced his labors among our phlegmatic neighbors early last spring. His house is fairly besieged with auditors more than an hour before the commencement of the service. The building will accommodate about fifteen hundred persons. On account of the crowd Mr. Wadsworth enters his pulpit from beneath by a ladder from the basement lecture-room. His person is slender, and his dark eyes, hair, and complexion, have decidedly a Jewish cast. The elements of his popularity are somewhat like those of the gifted Summerfield—a sweet touching voice—warmth of manner, and lively imagination. Wadsworth's style is vastly bolder, his fancy more vivid, and his action more violent than Summerfield's, but in tender pathos and happy introduction of Scripture incident they are strikingly similar. The model on which Wadsworth has founded his rhetoric is the brilliant and imaginative Melvill, of London, though he surpasses in bold imagery his famous model. There is a considerable coincidence in phraseology, but not in thought as we have ever heard. Mr. Wadsworth is too rich to steal. The Astors and Stephen Whitneys are not apt to disturb their neighbor's iron safes, or bank vaults.

The subjects which the Arch street pastor selects for his pulpit discussions are peculiar, and quite out of the usual line. His texts are short, and much interwoven with the woof of his discourse. In illustrating such passages as 'Jesus wept,' and 'watching the dying Saviour,' (Matthew xxxvii. 36,) the plaintive wail of his tremulous voice is singularly subduing and effective. The house is hushed into silence—and like the tones of Coleridge's harp—

"The long loquacious notes,
Over delicious surges sink and rise."

The effect is soothing and melting beyond description. In argumentation Mr. Wadsworth is rapid, unique, and original, often startling his audience, like Dr. Bushnell, with a seeming paradox.

How long his imagination will sustain such adventurous flights, and how long his feeble frame will bear such a pressure it is impossible to conjecture. We cannot but wish him a protracted and useful minstry."

LETTER FROM DR. JUDSON.

Whether the beauty of the style, the appositeness of its figures, the delicacy and affection of the sentiment, the genuine and exalted piety of the writer, on his recent death, attract our attention, the following extract from an old letter will be read with a pleasing but mournful interest.

MAULMAIN, Oct. 21, 1843.

So, the light of your dwelling has gone out, my poor brother, and it is all darkness there, only as you draw down, by faith, some faint gleams of the light of heaven, and coldness has gathered around your hearth-stone—your house is probably desolate—your children scattered, and you a houseless wanderer over the face of the land. We have both tasted of the bitter cups once and again; we have found them bitter, and we have found them sweet too—every cup stirred by the finger of God, becomes sweet to the humble believer.—Do you remember how our late wives, and sister Stevens, and perhaps some others, used to cluster around the well-curb in the Mission compound at the close of the day? I can almost see them sitting there, with their smiling faces, at which I am now writing, as I look out of the window.—Where are our's now? Clustering around the well-curb of the fountain of living water, to which the Lamb of Heaven shows them the way—reposing in the arms of Infinite Love, who wipes away all their tears with his own hands. Let us travel on and look up. We shall soon be there, as sure as I write, or you read these lines. Many a weary step we may yet have to take, but we shall surely get there at last. And the longer and more tedious the way, the sweeter will be our repose.

I am still hard at work on the Dictionary, and will be for a year more, if I live so long: I hope then to get into more congenial employ. However, I would not choose myself—work of all sorts must be done, and it is a great privilege to be allowed to do anything for the King of kings, the Lord of hosts: * * *

Yours ever, A. JUDSON.

THE SABBATH IN GERMANY.

It is well known that the Lord's-day is not observed on the European continent with the same sacredness as in our own country. But we suspect few are aware of the extent to which it is desecrated; that it is considered pre-eminently a day for gaiety and social merriment. A traveller in Germany writes to one of our religious journals, giving the following daguerrotype of a Sabbath in Cologne:

"From morning until a late hour at night, the round of gaiety and amusement was unceasing. The day was one of the brightest and pleasantest of that mild climate, and every one who could escape from the cellar, or the counting-house, or the parlor, hastened out to enjoy it. Every restaurante and Gast-hof, and coffee-garden, was filled with gay parties, and a merry, social crowd poured constantly through all the parks and walks about the city. In the afternoon the dancing-rooms echoed with the quick feet and lively music, and in the evening the theatres and the concerts had the fullest houses of the week. It was evidently one of the merriest days of the year, and the people of Cologne were making the most of it. Churches, at least all the latter part of the day, were apparently voted useless, and the great object seemed to be to have the most enjoyment out of that pleasant holiday."

ORIGIN OF COAL.

The immense beds of bituminous coal found in the valley of the Ohio, fills the mind with wonder. Age after age, successive growths of plants, springing up in the same region, were entombed beneath thick strata of shale to a depth of more than 1,000 feet; while beneath the whole lay the bed of an ocean, floored with fossil salt. Indications of coal are found at intervals across the great valley from the Allegheny to the Rocky Mountains. It is found near the surface in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, and without doubt, may be found beneath the extensive tertiary deposites which form the substratum of the great Prairies in the central and northern parts of the Western States. As low down as New Madrid, on the Mississippi, coal was thrown up from beneath the bed of the river by the great earthquake of 1812—a sufficient proof of its continuation in the most depressed part of the great valley. That the coal is of vegetable origin, no one who has ever read much on the subject, or personally examined the coal-beds, will deny.

Time was when it was considered a peculiar mineral product, formed in the same manner at the same time with the rocks that surround it. The product of its chemical analysis being altogether vegetable, and the artificial formation of coal from wood by Sir James Hall, have silenced all doubts of the subject. The only mystery now is, how such vast quantities of vegetable matter could be accumulated and grown on the spot where they were buried. That they grew in general on the surface now occupied by the coal, appears certain from the perfect state in which the most delicate stems and leaves are preserved. Had they been transported by currents of water, and especially any distance, it is hardly possible that they should not have received more damage. The climate at that period must have been more humid than at present, as many of the plants are of those families which now grow only in tropical climates: and as the laws of nature never change, this may be deemed a correct inference.—Silliman's Journal.

INDECORUM IN WORSHIP.

The eloquence of Dr. Chalmers, in his palmy days, attracted crowds to his preaching through the week, but when the sermon was ended, and the powerful spell was broken, the multitude as if covetous of time, rushed eagerly from the church, without tarrying for the closing services. The biographer of Chalmers, after depicting the effects of his sermon, thus vividly alludes to the final scene:

"And then, the moment the last word was uttered, and followed by the—'let us pray,' there was a scene for which no excuse or palliation can be pleaded but the fact of its having been to many a matter of difficulty, in the morning of a week-day, to accomplish the abstraction of even so much time from business—the closing prayer completely drowned by the hurried rush of large numbers from the aisles and pews to the door; an unseemly scene, without doubt, as if so many had come to the house of God not to worship, but simply to enjoy the fascination of human eloquence."

We have often witnessed a similar disregard to decorum in our own churches. Some, as if impatient of the restraints of worship, are adjusting their dress and putting on their gloves during the last prayer, or while the benediction is pronounced, and hats are eagerly seized, and pew-doors thrown open, as if prizes were offered to successful racers. Such boorishness and irreverence cannot be too severely censured; it betrays either ignorance or impiety. A congregation of worshippers should maintain devoutness, till the service is closed, and retire with quietness and solemnity from the presence of the Lord.

[Christian Chronicle.

UNIVERSALISM—AN ANECDOTE.

We were personally acquainted with all the individuals referred to in the following anecdote.

A young Universalist preacher of commanding eloquence, and very great popularity, was returning home from some "meeting" in Niagara county, N. Y., some years since, in company with his uncle.

During the ride the preacher was more than usually silent; when about half way home he suddenly exclaimed, "Uncle! I'll tell you what I am going to do!" "Well!" said his uncle, "what are you going to do?" "I'm going home, and I'm going to burn every sermon that ever I wrote!" "What are you going to do that for?" asked his uncle in astonishment. "I'm going to do it because it's of no use to preach Universalism. Look at that congregation that we have just left—almost every one of them either drinks or swears—the very worst men in the place; and I have been preaching there now so long, and what good does it do: who has left off drinking or swearing? not one! I don't know whether the doctrine is true or not—I don't believe it is true, and if it is, it ought not to be preached, and I won't preach it!"

The preacher was as good as his word. He never preached another Universalist sermon. Soon after this the present writer became acquainted with him, and we account it a great favor that it was under our ministry that he was brought into the Church, and eventually numbered among her clergy. We have often almost wept over his bright but brief career. His remains now rest in the grave-yard connected with Grace Church, Lockport, in Western New York.—Western Episcopalian.

Munificent Example of Christian Kindness.

A noble-minded merchant in England, who, though not a member of the Free Church, had read with interest the proceedings of the recent General Assembly, has offered to allow the Free Church missionaries and ministers a free passage, when they can avail themselves of it, by any of twelve ships of which he is one of the owners, and which are constantly sailing between this country and distant lands.—The value of this most generous offer is greatly enhanced by the spirit in which it is made. In the letter which intimated his intention, he says—"I beg you will not make it known to any one but those you have to apply to, to inform you. You know that this a changing world. Fortune smiles at one time, and frowns at another. Of late I have been fortunate, and would desire to be thankful for it: but a reverse of fortune may come, and then the world would say, 'Where is your friend of missions now?'" Have we not in this a fulfilment of the promise, "The merchandize of Tyre shall be holiness to the Lord?"

THANK GOD FOR YOUR REASON.

An individual, as he was passing along the streets of London, was accosted by a stranger with the question, "Did you ever thank God for the use of your reason?" "No," was the reply, "I never thought of doing it." "Well, do it quickly," rejoined the stranger, "for I have lost mine." For years after reading the account of the above occurrence, we have no recollection of ever kneeling in prayer without rendering distinct and express thanks to the Father of mercies for the continued possession of this inestimable blessing. Reader, suppose you should be accosted by some spirit from that world on which hope never dawns with the question, Did you ever render suitable thanks to God, that you are not all I am?—what would be your reply? And with what feelings should you subsequently "bow the knee to the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ," would you express the grateful remembrance of the fact, that you are not lost?

POETRY.

Unite my heart to fear thy name.---Ps. lxxxvi. 11.

BY H. J. BEYERLE, M. D.

"Unite my heart to fear thy name"
And do thy holy will,
And start within a vital flame,
An ever-sparkling rill,
To urge me that it be my aim
Thy mandates to fulfil.

This world with her enticing charms,
Has oft besieged my heart,
And roused in me revolting storms,
And threw the poisoned dart,
That I should lift my puny arms
And from thy ways depart.

And Satan, with his piercing eyes,
And all-alluring mien,
Has spared no pains, in angel's guise,
With snares by me unseen,
To make my soul a sacrifice
To wickedness and sin.

Thou, Lord, who art fore'er the same
Unyielding friend of mine,
Thy praise and glory I'll proclaim,
And in thy Kingdom shine:
"Unite my heart to fear thy name,"
And do thy will divine.

Linglestown, Pa., 1850.

From the London Evangelical Magazine.

TO AN AGED CHRISTIAN IN AFFLICTION.

Pilgrim! faint, and worn, and weary,
Soon life's journey will be past;
Though thy path be rough and dreary,
Peace shall crown thy soul at last.

Pilgrim! raise thine eye, though sorrow
Dims it oft with bitter tears;
There's a bright and glorious morrow;
See!—e'en now its dawn appears!

Look! for hope is sweetly blending
With each cloud its beauteous rays,
And thy trials are but tending
To convert thy grief to praise.

Yes; and He who now afflicts thee,
Though he chastens, still he loves;
Full of tenderness and pity,
Ev'ry stroke his mercy proves.

Pilgrim! faint, and worn, and weary,
Lean upon thy Saviour's breast;
He will comfort and sustain thee,
Till thou gain the promised rest.

And, when passing death's dark river,
Banish ev'ry trembling fear:—
One is mighty to deliver,
Thy Redeemer will be near!

A SWARM OF BEES WORTH HAVING.

B patient, B prayerful, B humble, B mild,
B wise as a Solon, B meek as a child;
B studious, B thoughtful, B loving, B kind;
B sure you make matter subservient to mind.
B cautious, B prudent, B trustful, B true,
B courteous to all men, B friendly with few.
B temperate in argument, pleasure, and wine,
B careful of money, of conduct, of time.
B cheerful, B grateful, B hopeful, B firm,
B peaceful, benevolent, willing to learn;
B courageous, B gentle, B liberal, B just,
B aspiring, B humble, because thou art dust;
B penitent, circumspect, sound in the faith,
B active, devoted; B faithful till death.
B honest, B holy, transparent, and pure;
B dependent, B Christ-like, and you'll B secure.

From the Tribune.

MY SISTER'S CHILD.

BY H. H. TICHENOR.

An angel form of heavenly mould,
With sunny features bright and mild,
And yellow locks of sparkling gold,
I heard my sister call her child.

From the first hour I clasped the boy,
My love was boundless, fierce and wild,
My soul was full of sweetest joy,
Whene'er I saw my sister's child.

And all within me seemed to love
This darling spirit undefiled;
I had forgot the God above
In rapture for my sister's child.

Then came disease and racked his frame—
I heard his moanings loud and wild—
And death with his dread summons came
To rob me of my sister's child.

God called the babe—I know not why;
I thought my brain was growing wild;
In Heaven they want a star, thought I,
And they must have my sister's child.

I could not bear to render up
This tender flower, so meek and mild;
Drank to the dregs the bitter cup,
And saw them take my sister's child.

His spirit sweetly passed from earth,
When the fierce storm was raging wild,*
I know in Heaven it brought to birth
An angel—t'was my sister's child.

His voice now echoes through the sky,
With the redeemed and sanctified;
And anthems to the God on high
Are sung by my sister's infant child.

Then I will wait and murmur not,
Until I pass through Death's bleak wild;
I trust it will then be my lot
To meet in Heaven my sister's child.

*He died during the heavy rain, Sunday, August 25, 1850.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—In Conoy township, Lancaster county, Pa., on the 28th of September, 1850, Mary K. Brenneman, aged 1 year, 4 months and 21 days.

At Linglestown, Dauphin county, Pa., on the 31st ult., Jacob Hinkle, aged 2 years, 5 months and 15 days.

At Linglestown, on the 8th ult., Sister Barbara Bonewitz, aged 67 years, 2 months and 28 days. T. Strohm.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

A protracted meeting will be held at Martinsburg, Blair county, Pa., to commence on the 6th of December. D. Kyle.

By Divine permission, the following protracted meetings will be held on the East Cumberland Circuit, viz:

One at the Bethel near Shepherdstown, Cumberland county, commencing on Saturday evening, the 16th of November.

One at the Camp-hill Bethel, commencing on Saturday evening, the 7th of December.

One at Shiremanstown, commencing on Saturday evening, the 21st of December, to continue over Christmas.

The brethren in the ministry and the public generally are invited to attend.

J. Haifleigh.

Providence permitting, a protracted meeting will be held at Linglestown, Dauphin county, Pa., commencing at two o'clock on Saturday, the 30th of November.

Another will be held at Highspire, Dauphin county, Pa., commencing on Saturday evening, the 21st of December.

The brethren in the ministry and public generally are invited to attend.

Simon Fleegal.

Protracted Meetings in Lancaster County.

One at Hinkletown, commencing on the 22d of November.

One at Washington, commencing on the 13th of December.

One at Mount Joy, commencing on the 20th of December.

The preachers and brethren are invited to attend all these meetings. C. Price.

West Pennsylvania Eldership.

The time of meeting is postponed until Wednesday, November 20th, by request of brothers E. Logue and D. Wertz.

Change of an Appointment.

The time of Dedicating the Meeting-house in Boman, Marshall county, Va., is changed from the 24th of November to the first day of December. The meeting will commence on Saturday, the 30th of November.

This change of appointment is made in consequence of changing the time of the meeting of the West Pennsylvania Eldership.

Another meeting will be held in the Meeting-house at the mouth of Fish Creek, Marshall county, Va., to commence on Friday, the 6th of December. E. Logue.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,				$4 37	a	4 62
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		2 50	a	2 50
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		2 37½	a	2 37½
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				93	a	97
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		50	a	50
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		45	a	50
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		33	a	33
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		60	a	65
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -		4 00	a	4 00
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -		2 00	a	2 25
Do.	Flax,	do. - -		1 12	a	1 12
BEEF, per cwt.		- - -		5 00	a	5 50
PORK,	do. -	- - -		5 00	a	5 25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -		8	a	11
BUTTER,	do. -	- - -		15	a	18
LARD,	do. -	- - -		8	a	8
TALLOW,	do. -	- - -		8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.				6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - -		12	a	12
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -		50	a	50
ONIONS,	do.	- -		75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -		1 00	a	1 12½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.				1 25	a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -		37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -		30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -		1 35	a	1 35
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -		10 00	a	10 00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -		4 00	a	4 25

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,				$5 00	a	5 50
Do.	Rye,	do. -		3 00	a	3 00
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		3 00	a	3 00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				1 05	a	1 12
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		68	a	70
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		40	a	42
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		65	a	68
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -		4 00	a	4 00
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -		2 50	a	2 62
Do.	Flax,	do. - -		1 40	a	1 50
BEEF, per cwt.,		- -		7 00	a	8 75
PORK,	do. - - - - -			7 00	a	7 25

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo decimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

Missionary Pledges.

We, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1850, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining two Missionaries, one in Illinois and one in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, -	-	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	-	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	-	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	-	-	10 00
Jacob Miller, -	-	-	10 00
James Miller,	-	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	-	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	-	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	-	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	-	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	-	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	-	-	5 00
James Casey,	-	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00
Susanna Myers,	-	paid	4 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. DECEMBER 2, 1850. NUMBER 15.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

Resumption of the Chair Editorial.

Having returned from our trip to the West, and brother J. Flake having served as editor pro tem. for the space of six months, according to contract, we now again resume the chair editorial of "The Church Advocate," and hope to be able so to conduct the same, as to make it both pleasing and edifying to its numerous readers. The Advocate is gaining favor with the people, and is a welcome messenger to many, and to none more so than to the brethren in the West. We realized this fact more fully than ever, whilst travelling in the Western States, during the past summer. There are many through that country who highly appreciate the Advocate, and would not do without it for more than twice or thrice its subscription price. The same may be said of many in this country. This consideration, together with the fact, that its subscription list is steadily increasing, stimulates us to renewed and persevering toils in conducting this semi-monthly journal. May we not hope that our ready scribes and readers, will continue to sustain us with numerous communications and ready payments?

Our Corresponding Editor.

We would inform the readers of the Advocate that we have engaged the services of brother J. Flake as Corresponding Editor; he may be expected, therefore, to write us some good pieces for the columns of the paper, to collect outstanding dues, and to solicit new subscribers, during the time he is visiting round among the Churches, as general missionary agent.

Missionary Subscriptions.

Some of our brethren and friends will soon be called on, by the Eldership's missionary agents, for subscriptions, or cash contributions, toward the support of missionaries in the far West. We need not less than five missionaries for the West—three for Illinois and two for Iowa. We hope, therefore, our good brethren will try, for once, to help on with this noble cause, with free and liberal subscriptions, to the utmost verge of their several abilities. Among the sects there are men to be found, not a few, who give their fifties and their hundreds of dollars, annually, for the support of missionaries and colporteuers; and if so, is it not right, and is it not time, for the same spirit of benevolence to develope itself among the members of the Church of God? Yes, it is both right and high time, that the whole Church should awake, put forth her energies, and consecrate her gains to the service of the God of the whole earth.

A Request to Define our Position on the Slavery Question.

Pawtucket, R. I., Nov. 16, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

It seems, according to Dr. Sutton's report, that the Eldership were not altogether pleased with brother Harn's position in relation to slavery at our General Conference.

As the matter now stands, it is a subject of considerable solicitude among our brethren to understand clearly your position, and that of the Eldership, concerning this subject. Will you, therefore, favor us with your own views upon it, and also with what you regard the true position of the Eldership in relation to it?

Please address me immediately at Pawtucket, R. I. Faithfully yours in Christ,

A. D. Williams.

Rev. J. Winebrenner.

Position of the Eldership on the Subject of Slavery.

In respect to the Institution of American Slavery, the East Pennsylvania Eldership of the Church of God entertain but one opinion, and that opinion is fairly and fully expressed in the resolutions passed by the General Eldership, held in Pittsburg, Pa., in the year 1845. See Journal of that body.

Touching the "Fugitive Slave Law," the Eldership gave no expression of their feelings or opinion. In our judgment they acted wisely, in leaving this subject to be discussed by our statesmen, rulers and judges of the civil law. Ministers are always best engaged when they give themselves to prayer and the ministry of the word. Nevertheless, they enjoy equal rights with all other citizens, under the Constitution and laws of this land. Hence we blame none for giving their opinion, as to the policy or impolicy—the righteousness or unrighteousness, of this or any other law, provided they do it prudently and dispassionately. But, nearly all the ecclesiastical bodies in the country, who have ventured to say any thing on the subject of this law, have said it with too much feeling and fire. Christians are bound to "let their moderation be known," and to "do nothing rashly." Wrong legislation should never be set aside by resistance. Redress lies in the right of repeal. Good and law-abiding citizens ought to submit and obey all the laws of the land, if they can consistently do it; and if not, they must patiently suffer the penalty consequent upon disobedience. Resistance and evasion of law is criminal, and we have no right to do a criminal act that good may come.

But, on the question, "Is the relation of master to slave a bar to Christian fellowship?" the body is divided—some taking the affirmative, others the negative.

Those who take the negative side of this question, think that the decision of it ought always to be made to turn on the circumstances of the case—that there are mitigating circumstances connected with many cases, which require the exercise of Christian toleration and forbearance, and hence the bare relation of master to slave does not, always under all circumstances, furnish a sufficient bar to Christian fellowship.

But we are happy to say that this difference of opinion has not led to strifes and divisions among ourselves, as unfortunately it has done in other bodies. This mutual love and forbearance is as it ought to be. Mooted questions, about which Christians conscientiously differ, should never divide the Church. Those who err, may and ought to be instructed, reproved and warned according to the directions given in the Bible; but there is no warrant to expel them from the Church, or declare them unworthy of Chistian fellowship, so long as they, in the judgment of charity, may be deemed in favor with God. Christian character is the true Bible test of Christian fellowship. Faults and errors are not all alike sinful and injurious. Some are, in their character, fundamental and essential, and strike, of course, at the very foundations of religion; and these, when embraced, will soon work out the destruction of Christian character. Others are less injurious, and must be tolerated, or the principle of Christian forbearance must be abandoned.

The vote of the Eldership on the adoption of brother Harn's report, as delegate to the Free-will Baptist General Conference, is not fairly and fully a test vote on the question: "Does the relation of master to slave debar from Christian fellowship, in all cases?"—That vote, as it stands on the Journal, involves and decides no principle. It shows nothing but disrespect to brother Harn. If his report contains any thing exceptionable, there was, doubtless, another and better way to have it rectified, than by rejecting the whole report. That action, to say the least of it, was exceedingly uncourteous. It was much regretted by many, and for more reasons than one.

Howbeit, on the aforesaid question there is an honest contrariety of opinion among the brethren of the Eldership; yet, through grace, they have charity to bear with one another, and are neither intolerant nor latitudinarian in faith or practice. "Mittel mass die beste Strasz."

Thanksgiving Day.

Thursday, the 12th inst., has been set apart by the Governor of this State, as a day of general thanksgiving, prayer and praise. We hope it will be duly observed by all the Churches of God in Pennsylvania. We have abundant cause for thankfulness. In the beautiful language of the Governor in his Proclamation, "Peace with all nations has been vouchsafed to our country by the Supreme Dispenser of national blessings. A beneficent Providence has continued His guardian care over the people of this Commonwealth. He has preserved us, under the institutions of free Government, in the quiet and undisturbed enjoyment of civil and religious liberty. He has favored us, with healthful seasons and abundant harvests. Individual happiness rewards the enterprise of the citizen; "The earth is full of the goodness of the Lord." "

In view, then, of all these blessings, is there not abundant cause for thankfulness to Him who watcheth over us as a nation, guards and protects our institutions, and speeds our onward journey to prosperity and greatness!

Revival in North Bend, Iowa.

From another letter written by brother M. F. Snavely, and found in this paper, it will be seen that the revival in North Bend, Johnson county, Iowa, is still in progress. About 50 persons have already made a profession of religion, and a number more are seeking. See the letter referred to.

We are glad to hear of this glorious reformation. We hope it will tend to prepare the way for a missionary or two, by next spring; and also bring out the active zeal and energy of the Churches in Iowa. Where is brother Vance! Why don't the brethren in Iowa get him out on the missionary field!

Journal of Our Western Tour.

We commence anew the publication of the Journal of our tour through the Western States. The loss of our carpet-bag, on our way from the Venango Camp-meeting to Pittsburg, containing our papers, caused a delay in its appearance. Happily, however, we have recovered the bag and all its contents, so that we can now resume and continue its publication. The Journal of the 13th, 14th and 15th weeks will be found in this paper.

Eldership Journals.

The Journals of the Ohio and West Pennsylvania Elderships have not yet come to hand. What is the cause of the delay? We should like to see more regularity and dispatch in this business. The sooner, always, the Journals are published, after the respective Elderships close their sessions, the better.—The Churches and people always feel an anxiety to know how things have been arranged for Zion's welfare.

The Peace Congress.

This assembly, which met at Frankfort-on-the-Maine, commenced its session in St. Paul's Church, on Thursday, August 22d, and closed on Saturday evening. The city authorities voted to appropriate St. Paul's Church (the former Parliament House) for the meeting.—There were about five hundred delegates in attendance—300 English, 100 Americans, and 50 Belgians, about the same number of Germans, and a "liberal sprinkling" of Frenchmen. Dr. Jaup, of Darmstadt, was elected President. Among the prominent speakers were Rev. J. Burnett and Mr. Cobden, of England; Mr. Coquerel and Emile Girardin, of Paris; Elihu Burrit and Mr. Chipple, (colored,) of New York.

Resolutions were passed, condemning the practice of war, in favor of deciding international disputes by arbitration, urging the necessity of national disarmament, and disapproving of loans for defraying war expenses, declaring the principle of non-intervention and the sole right of every nation to regulate its own affairs, and recommending the convocation of a Congress of representatives of various nations, with a view to the formation of a code of international law.

Also, a supplementary resolution against duelling—very suitable for Germany, which of all countries is most given to that senseless practice.—The Congress is to meet next year in London.

The World's Fair.

The great World's Fair in London, in June, 1851, will, doubtless, be a splendid industrial exhibition, altogether worth seeing. It will be something like a World's Museum of inventions, productions and manufactures. All nations are invited to send their manufactures to it; and prizes will be awarded to successful competitors, by as impartial a jury as can be obtained, without distinction of country.

The building, now in course of erection, for the occasion, will cover an area of 18 acres, and cost about a half million of dollars. See a description of it in the News Department.

A company in Boston announce their intention to carry passengers attending the Fair, in splendid first class packets, for the sum of $60, the round trip. This is certainly very reasonable.

Harrisburg Gas Works.

These works will go into operation about the middle of this month. The Halls of the Senate and House of Representatives, and also the public offices, are being fitted up with Gas Fixtures. The most of our public buildings, hotels, stores, work-shops, together with many private residences, in our town, will use the Gas. It is, undoubtedly, altogether the cheapest, safest and best light that can be used.—The price of the fixtures can all be saved in the course of a few years; so that on principles of economy alone, apart from all other advantages and considerations, the public generally should be induced to use the Gas.

Population of Harrisburg.

According to the official census just taken by the U. S. Marshall, the present population of Harrisburg is 8,120.

Western Tour.---No. 8.

Wooster, Wayne Co., Ohio,
August 30, 1850.

JOURNAL OF THE 13TH, 14TH AND 15TH WEEKS.

Monday, August 12th.—This day we spent in Columbus and Clintonville. In the evening we preached and administered the ordinances of Feet-washing and the Lord's Supper, to the Church at Clintonville. We had quite a precious time; and some of the Methodist and Presbyterian brethren united with us.—The Church of God have it in contemplation to build a Bethel, or house of worship. Some of the brethren there can, and I think will, give liberally towards this object. May the Lord prosper them, and greatly multiply their number!

August 13th.—Left Clintonville and set out for Bro. James Eckles', near Eden, in Delaware county. On our way we passed over the Plank-road, through Worthington, Eden, &c., and arrived at brother E.'s towards evening. Here we stayed over night, and found the Livingstons and others, from Cumberland county, Pa., residing round in the neighborhood. Land is both good and cheap in that neighborhood. The brethren in Ohio ought to make that a regular preaching place. Bro. Eckles and family, together with others there, would be glad to have it so.

August 14th.—This was a beautiful morning. After breakfast we took leave of sister Livingston, brother Eckles and family, and started for Mansfield. But having some business with Mrs. E. Zimmerman, in Morrow county, several miles off from the main road, we did not get further than Lexington, in Richland county, where we stayed over night.—Lexington is a smart little village, six miles south-west of Mansfield.

August 15th.—Started early and went to Mansfield for breakfast. After breakfasting at the American Hotel, we resumed our journeyings towards Wooster. We passed on through Haysville and Jeromesville to Reedsburg, where we took dinner and fed; and then went on to Wooster, where we arrived in the evening, and found all our friends and brethren alive, well and hearty, save one dear niece, Charlotte Spink, who was, but is not. She died very suddenly and unexpectedly. The Lord sanctify her removal to her husband and kindred.

We were absent from Wooster, on our tour through the far West, two months, save two days. During this period we travelled about 1700 miles, passed over a great deal of beautiful country, preached in various places to large and attentive congregations, enjoyed many pleasant interviews with old and loving friends and brethren, and were reasonably well and hearty the whole time. We met with some kind brethren and acquaintances in almost every part of the far West. It is surprising what multitudes have emigrated from Pennsylvania and Ohio to the States of Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. A few only, comparatively, however, out of the many scatterd abroad there, had we the pleasure of seeing and preaching to. We heard of many, living in various directions, where we had no time of visiting. Others, again, we knew were living somewhere in the West, but could not ascertain their whereabouts. Did all the brethren who go West take the Church Advocate, and write for the same occasionally, their respective places of residence would become generally known, and they could be easily found by those who travel through the West. Come, brethren, send for the paper, and let us hear from you, through the same, once in a while.

August 16th.—Attended the Chester Camp-meeting, held on the lands of brothers Peter Sherich and Daniel George, about eight miles north-west of Wooster. Here we found a whole-souled army of loving brethren, with 21 tents, gathered together from the surrounding churches and neighborhoods, and all apparently with hearts to feel, and minds to work in the vineyard of the Lord. Here, too, we found a goodly band of the ministers of God, strong and able-bodied, who had come up to the help of the Lord, like so many flames of fire. The meeting commenced and went on with life and power. The Lord seemed to be in the camp, and indications of good were speedily manifested. In the language of the poet—

"The glorious light of Zion,
Commenced to spread around;
And sinners began a flocking,
Into the Gospel tide."

The meeting was opened on Thursday evening, with an appropriate sermon, delivered by brother James Neil. Friday, the day we arrived there, the congregatiens were only ordinary, and the stand was occupied by brothers Murray, Neil and Harn.

August 17th.—This day the people commenced gathering in from far and near, and the preaching was done by Bros. W. Adams, H. Murray and ourself. The day was pleasant—the congregations large—the attention good, and a few souls were born from above.

August 18th.—This being the Lord's-day—and the roads and the weather remarkably fine, the people began gathering up, from all the towns and regions round about, in great multitudes. The congregations this day, it was said, were unusually large and attentive. The stand was occupied, in the morning, by our humble self; in the afternoon by brother G. U. Harn, and in the evening by brother A. Holms. In the afternoon, after preaching, three happy converts were baptized, in the presence of a large concourse of people. In the evening there were several souls happily converted to God, and the Church had a feast on fat things, full of marrow.

August 19th.—This again was a beautiful day, but the congregations were only ordinary. The stand was occupied by brother H. Murray—by ourself, and brother G. U. Harn. But the work of God, this day, broke out with special power—meetings were kept up nearly all day—and some eight or nine souls were hopefully converted.

August 20th.—This was the last but the great day of the meeting. Mourners came out, and prayer-meetings were kept up nearly all day and night, except during preaching and the administration of the ordinances. In the morning and at night, it fell to our lot to preach, and in the afternoon the task was imposed on brother Harn. After preaching, in the afternoon, brother Megrew led down into the water fifteen happy converts, and buried them with Christ in baptism. And in the evening, after preaching, the ordinances of Feet-washing and the Lord's Supper were administered to a large number of the saints of the Most High, who seemed to dwell together as in heavenly places. After that, penitents were invited out; a number presented themselves for prayers; the meeting was kept up all night, and some six or eight persons obtained a saving interest in Jesus Christ.

August 21st.—Soon after breakfast, on the morning of this day, the Camp-meeting was brought to a close, in the usual way. A pretty large congregation had convened, to witness the closing solemnities, and truly it was an impressive, solemn and feeling time. After the meeting closed, we repaired again to the water, and four more happy converts were baptized in the name of the Lord. We then left the camp, returned to Wooster, and had meeting in the evening. One young man was received into church-fellowship.

August 22d.—This morning we left Wooster, in company with brothers A. Megrew and John Huff, for the Summit County Camp-meeting, where we arrived safely in the evening. The meeting was held near East Liberty, about eight miles from Akron, the county town of Summit county. In point of tents the meeting was small, there being only twelve in all. The congregations, however, were good, and highly interesting.

The preachers in attendance, of the Church of God, were Henry Murray, John Beidler, Archibald Megrew, Benjamin Howard, David Keplinger, Moses Coats, Geo. U. Harn and ourself., Then, besides these, there were also a number present belonging to the sects; such as Methodist, German Refermed, Evangelical, United Brethren, &c. How many of these, we had no means of ascertaing; but not less, perhaps, than ten or a dozen.

The first sermon, on Thursday evening, was preached by brother B. Howard.

August 23d.—The day was pleasant—the congregations rather small, but orderly and attentive. The stand was occupied, during this day, by ourself, G. U. Harn and A. Megrew.

August 24th.—This day I was called away from camp, to preach the funeral sermon of Thomas Jefferson Bender, son of Henry Bender, formerly of Lancaster county, Pa.—Mr. Bender resides near Uniontown, Stark county, Ohio. The Dysentery was raging badly in that country, and cutting off young and old. Thomas J. died of it. In the afternoon we returned to camp, and found the congregation much larger than the day previous. Brothers A. Holms, G. U. Harn and B. Howard occupied the stand during that day.

August 25th.—This was a beautiful Lord's-day. The weather was pleasant and the roads good; and hence the people congregated, like at the Cedar Valley camp, the week previous, from far and near; and, on the whole, were better behaved and more attentive than at that meeting. Yet, the congregations were not quite so large as at the Wayne county camp. The stand, this day, was occupied by myself, G. U. Harn and A. Megrew.

August 26th.—This was another fine day. Congregations pretty good, and very attentive. Myself, G. U. Harn and B. Howard filled the stand this day.

August 27th.—This was the last, but not the least of the days of the Summit camp. The morning sun ushered in, under Providence, another fine day—and with the bright and smiling sun, the better light of God's smiling countenance seemed to shine upon us. The preaching was with power—the people were solemn and feeling—the truth triumphed, and the cause was advanced. The ordinance of baptism was administered to five happy souls, in the afternoon, and the ordinances of Feet-washing and the Lord's Supper were administered in the evening. Brother B. Howard, myself and G. U. Harn, did the preaching on this last day of the meeting.

The people of that neighborhood are strongly walled in, with sectarian bulwarks. But the artillery of Gospel truth has, I think, in a great measure, battered down their sectarian refuges, strong-holds and hiding-places, and prepared the people for a rallying on Bible truth and order. Although there were only five conversions, and five persons baptized, during the meeting, yet I cherish a confident hope that there will soon be a glorious reformation in that country.

August 28th.—This morning the Camp-meeting closed, and ministers and people went their way, like the shepherds returned from Bethlehem, "glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen." Luke 2: 20.

In the evening I preached at Dalton, Wayne county, to a large and very attentive congregation. The Church at Dalton has suffered loss, from the same cause that convulsed the Church of God at Mechanicsburg, Pa. And here I learned, for the first time, that the very Diotrephes, who was the main troubler of the Church at Mechanicsburg, was "prating against us with malicious words," or rather, perhaps, "officious words," by means of some half dozen letters addressed to this place about that time. May the Lord give him repentance for these evil deeds.

Bro. Harn preached in Wooster the same evening, and had a good congregation.

August 29th.—Brother I. Whisler conveyed me to Wooster, where we met and found our friends all well. After dining, writing home, and enjoying a social and pleasant interview with our friends, we started to the country, some five or six miles, to visit my nephew, Calvin Winebrenner and family. With them we tarried over night. Calvin had been sick, but was convalescent.

August 30th.—We started for the Reedsburg Camp-meeting, arrived there in safety, and found quite a valiant host of saints mustered into the King's service, and equipped with the panoply of heaven, to fight the battles of the Lord. Of this meeting we can only give a partial account, not being there longer than two days. We left the meeting on Sabbath afternoon, and returned to Wooster, where we preached in the evening, to a crowded house. The Camp, however, was large and good, particularly on Sabbath. In interest and efficiency, it continued to grow, (as we have since learned,) to the time of its close, on Wednesday morning. For years I had an earnest desire to be present at some of the Ohio Camp-meetings, and my heart feels truly grateful to God, for the satisfaction and pleasure it has afforded me, to enjoy this privilege. I feel thankful, also, for the opportunity thus afforded me to renew my acquaintance with old friends and brethren, and to preach among them the glorious Gospel of the blessed God. God grant that the word preached (like seed sown in good ground) may yield a plentiful harvest.

COR. EDITOR'S DEPARTMENT.

Corresponding Editorials.—J. Flake.

After six months residence in Harrisburgh as Pro tem. Editor and Preacher, I quietly took my departure, November 21, taking the evening train to Columbia, where I arrived an hour after dark. I went to a public hotel and took tea, and then enquired where my young friend G. Brown, the Editor of the Columbia Spy, resided. I found his residence, but neither himself nor his wife were in, so I returned to the hotel, and sat down solitary to read and think, when some one came into the room, laid his hand on my shoulder, and said come along and stay with me to-night. It was my friend Bro. Brown, and so I went, and was very kindly received, and entertained, by his amiable wife and family, until the afternoon of the next day. We have no Church in Columbia, but Bro. B. formerly belonged to the flock in Lancaster—he now lives in Columbia, and in his hands the Spy is a very well conducted, interesting and useful paper.

Friday afternoon I went on to Lancaster, and called on my old friends Bro. and Sister Gable, to stay with them a few days, and met with the same hospitality as they have manifested for the ten years past during which I have been acquainted with them. In the evening a Dunker preacher was to preach in the Bethel, which the brethren open to strangers occasionally. The preaching and prayers of these plain people were to me acceptable and edifying. I am rather partial to the Dunker brethren—that is, to those who enjoy and preach the true spiritual, and evangelical faith, and experience of the religion of Jesus, as well as the law which he has given to his followers. I love their plainness, and simplicity, of dress and manners—also the testimony they bear in favor of peace, and against conforming to the world.

The Dunkers appear to me to hold the faith and practice of genuine Christianity, but I rather think they lack the life, and power, and energy which is needed, especially in these last days, when the smiles of the world, as well as its frowns, meet with the soul in its heavenward journey. O for the out-pouring of the Spirit as in days of old.

On Saturday evening a "Hicksite Quaker" preached in the Bethel—which is given now, as formerly, to strangers visiting the town, and having no place for holding meetings. I was not present on Saturday evening, and was told that nothing wrong or injurious was set forth, which is gratifying to me, for I am not by any means partial to Hicksite Quakerism, as a system of religious doctrine. I fear that they err in doctrines that I hold to be of vast importance to the soul's salvation. I feel that the great essentials of faith and life, as taught by our Saviour, and held by the saints of old—for these we must earnestly contend, and hand down to others unadulterated, the same religion for which the martyrs suffered and even died in former days.

On Sabbath morning I listened with pleasure to brother A. Swartz preaching in the Bethel from the words of holy writ, "What is man"—and afterward in exhortation I tried to set forth that God sets a high value on his creature man—that he is mindful of him, and visits him oftentimes in mercy.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

JOURNAL
OF THE Third Annual Iowa Eldership.

The Annual Eldership of the Church of God in Iowa met, agreeably to adjournment, in North Bend, Johnson county, Iowa, on Monday, the 7th of October, 1850.

The meeting was opened by brother Jacob Lininger.

The brethren in attendance were as follows:

Teaching Elders—Michael F. Snavely, Jonathan Hawk and Samuel Scott.

Ruling Elders—J. Hawk and J. McCormick.

The meeting was then organized by electing brother JONATHAN HAWK Speaker, and brother S. Scott Clerk.

Brother J. Lininger made application to become a member of the Eldership, which was granted.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the preachers give in their reports. Whereupon

Brother MICHAEL F. SNAVELY reported as follows: "That under present circumstances, being necessarily much perplexed and embarrassed with worldly cares, to provide for the comfort of his family; being also in a new country, where much improvement is wanted, and being unable to labor much in the ministry, by reason of a lurking of Bronchittis, he had not preached so much as formerly. His aim, however, still is to serve the Lord, and to preach the Gospel as much as his health and circumstances will admit of: although he must acknowledge he has in some degree lost grace, and asks an interest in the prayers of God's people."—His report was adopted and his license renewed.

Brother J. HAWK reported as follows: "That he is determined to serve God as much as ever, and asks an interest in the prayers of his brethren. He says he has preached but little, for want of the English language—Germans being few, and consequently German preaching is little needed. He feels, however, determined to do more in future, by the help of God, and wishes to live and die with the brethren."—His report was adopted and his license renewed.

Brother S. SCOTT reported as follows: "That he feels truly thankful to God that, through His mercy, he has once more been permitted to meet with his much beloved brethren in another Yearly Meeting, to transact business for the cause and Church of the living God. He stated that during the last Eldership year, he has labored in the Gospel ministry as much as his circumstances and feeble body would admit, having to labor with his hands during the working days. He preaches on Saturday nights and Sabbaths at four stated appointments, in regular rotation. Although he has not seen as much fruit of his labors as he desired, yet he blesses God he has seen a little, having witnessed some 17 or 18 conversions, baptized 13, and organized one Church of 15 members. The brethren where he labors are in a good state. Love, union and harmony prevails generally. With regard to his determinations for the future, he still wishes to preach the doctrine of the Bible, and among the dear brethren of the Church of God he hopes to live, labor, and die."—His report was accepted and license renewed.

Brother JACOB LININGER next reported: He stated that he felt thankful to God for the privilege of meeting with his brethren in the ministry, in an Eldership capacity. He said he feels much pleased with this new country; but does not feel so much in his element as when travelling constantly in the ministry. His determination, however, still is to serve God to the best of his abilties. His attachment to his brethren and the cause of God still continues. He asks an interest in the prayers of all his brethren. His report was accepted and his license renewed.

A letter was received from Bro. E. Logue, containing charges against this Eldership and certain of the brethren in Iowa. The letter was read before the Eldership.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That said letter be laid on the table.

Resolved, That this Eldership recommend to the brethren in Iowa the propriety of receiving funds, by voluntary contribution, at such times and in such ways as they in their wisdom may think best, for benevolent purposes.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That brothers J. Hawk, J. Lininger and S. Scott be the Standing Committee for the ensuing year.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That brother S. Scott transcribe the Journal of this meeting and send it on for publication in the Church Advocate.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we adjourn to meet, God willing, at Trenton, Henry county, Iowa, on the second Monday of October, 1851.

Prayer by brother J. McCormick.

JONATHAN HAWK, Speaker.

Samuel Scott, Clerk.

Is Death Painful?

Every living being shrinks instinctively from death. The thought of it brings awe and gloom. But God's law has decreed that all must die. None escape its icy embrace. The pious and impious sicken, die, and meet their rewards either in heaven or hell. Once dead no human power can restore to consciousness or life. All the superior aid of the best medical talent, falls broken before the relentless monster. Infantile innocency, youthful vivacity, staid manhood, and venerable old age, all break the brittle thread of life. Whenever the wisdom of the All-wise Being calls, we must go hence.

But to the question, Is death painful? We incline to the negative opinion. We draw our conclusions from analogy. There is no positive proof of it; for none have re-visited us from the spirit world. We wish, however, to be distinctly understood to mean, that there is no bodily pain in dying. For facts seem to show that it is a pleasant sensation. But we wish to premise that death is terrific to the gay, young, and wicked, because then ends all their shadowy and trifling pleasures, and the fear of God's vengeance brings anguish; but this is the pain of fear, or remorse, and not of the body. Again, to part from kind and affectionate friends, may throw a gloom around the dying couch, especially when weeping, and uncontrollable sympathy is before dying eyes; but here it is the same feeling that we have in parting from friends a short time on earth; namely, the sorrow of parting. Good men when they have been at the threshold of death, have spoken of the pleasantness of it. Such is the testimony of men whose characters during life were unstained, and while here were shining lights in dark places, All will be free to admit the truthfulness of the above, but they may possibly find it difficult to grant that the wicked die so. These mistake God's goodness, and want to compare His wisdom with their ignorance. Does not God send rain and sunshine on both classes? Is not the harvest of the Atheist and Christian equally abundant? Do not the pious and impious sicken and die? And have the godly less pain than the ungodly, under similar circumstances?

In resuscitation from suspended animation, the sensation is described to be first as when we hold our breath, then the sensation is said to be pleasant, and then insensibility begins, and during this state pain cannot be felt.

A violent case of disease occurs, excruciating pains rack the mortal frame, inflamation of a high grade is destroying the organic tissue with surprising rapidity, the virtue of medication is abortive, the imagery of despair is depicted on the countenance; when suddenly all pain ceases, and the friends rejoice and expect a speedy restoration to health.—But all this results from a new condition, mortification or death of the parts involved, and before many hours the patient will softly and gently expire. Death will be particularly easy to the eyes of all, if his mind is free from temporal cares, and ready to meet the judgment; but if impious, the heart must chill at the direful and black prospects in view, and it will be quite natural to find such a person leaving earth with shrieks and lamentations. An eternity of pain is prospective, and who would not lament? An infant does not scream in the dying hour, but sweetly falls asleep.

But if death be a pleasant sensation, and not a painful one, from what cause originates the dreadful death struggle? We see nothing difficult here. While we are free to admit that the early gasping for breath is not delightful, and produces some struggling occasionally, yet much of the appearance of pain is purely automatic. Do not persons afflicted with epilepsy fall, struggle, foam at the mouth, and appear to be in pain, yet on recovery from the paroxysm, say no pain was experienced. Moreover, if a dead body be put under the influence of a powerful current of galvinism, we will get many of the signs of life; the corpse will spring to its feet, the eyes will roll in their sockets, the jaw will move spasmodically, the arms will be tossed about, and the features become distorted, and yet the "vital spark" has fled, and a tenement of inanimate clay only remains. And, of course, no sensation is experienced by the dead body; it acts clearly as an automaton. Nevertheless here are the same movements of the animal system, that are seen in the throes of death.

The writer has often stood by the dying couch, when the "thread of mortal life" was being unwound, yet heard no complaints of bodily suffering; a smile often played around the countenance of the righteous, which indicated pleasure; and if there were woful exclamations, they were from the dying lips of the wicked, the result of the horrid forebodings of the punishment due them in eternity, and not caused by corporeal pain. Sometimes persons leave earth speaking incoherently; here, no doubt, reason has left her throne, under which circumstances any painful expressions should be classed as empty, senseless words.

G. R.

Elizabethtown, Pa., Nov. 20, 1850.

More Good News from Iowa.

THE REVIVAL STILL IN PROGRESS.

My Dear Brother:—

Having been on a preaching expedition some five miles from this, in the Clear Creek settlement, on last night and to-day, (Sabbath,) and being somewhat wearied by my pedestrian journey, I concluded on staying at home this evening, while my family are gone to meeting, and pen a few lines of good news for the readers of the "Church Advocate."

Our meetings are still kept up every night, and, from present appearances, will be continued. The number of converts, together with some backsliders reclaimed, will now number from 48 to 50! The number of believers baptized, 29—the number received into Church-fellowship, up to this afternoon, 14 or 15, and many more will join.

The meeting is held in No. 1 School-house, where we had meeting when you and brother Harn were with us. There are only two young women in all the Bend who do not, as yet, profess religion; and these are both seeking, and have been out to be prayed for.—There are likewise only four young men in the Bend who do not profess religion. The fame of this work of grace has spread from 40 to 70 miles round about. Glory to God!

There are only about 12 houses in all the settlement that are not houses of prayer; and some of these inhabitants are in trouble.

We purpose making an effort, during this winter, to build a house of worship. If we were only a little more fore-handed. Would that the Lord would put it into the hearts of some of our wealthy brethren in the East to send us a blessing, (a piece.) to help us along in this new country. If we could only get $50, we would go on in the name of God to build. We are all willing, but few of us are able. Brethren, can't you feel for us?

We think we can build a Bethel, 30 by 35 feet, in a plain way, with about $500. But, where is even that to come from?—If some of our good-hearted able brethren in the East were here, and would see the anxious people crowding around the door and windows of our humble little School-house, during our revival, and see them climbing in through the windows to get to the mourner's bench, they certainly could not help but out with their five's and ten's, to help us build a larger house for the worship of God, and the accommodation of the people. I know that brethren Ross, and Rife, and E. Shœffer, and Gable, and many more such liberal-hearted men, if they knew our circumstances, could not pass us by unnoticed,—could you, brethren? Do you think you could? I trow you could not.

Were I worth the one-tenth of some of those brethren named, I would build one myself. I know I would, feeling, as I do, on the subject. Finally, farewell. God bless you. Pray for us.—Amen. More anon.

Yours, fraternally,

M. F. SNAVELY.

November 3, 1850.

Union S. S., No. 2, North Bend, Iowa.

Preamble and Resolutions.

Inasmuch as there are now a goodly number of settlers in this new but beautiful far Western country, and there being consequently a number of children, and the parents of the same feeling an interest in their present and eternal welfare; Therefore the great want and need of Sabbath-schools, for the proper instruction of the youthful mind, was seen and felt. On the matter having been maturely reflected upon by us in North Bend, it was finally concluded upon that an effort be made to hold Sabbath-school, which was accordingly done, in an humble way. However, the want of a Library, and the means to procure the same, presented (apparently) an insurmountable difficulty. It was then agreed that Elder M. F. Snavely should make an appeal, through the columns of the Church Advocate, to the brotherhood of the Church of God in the East, for a donated Library. This was done; but through providential interventions we failed in the same. Afterwards, by the advice of an excellent brother, Elder Jacob Flake, an appeal was made to the Board of the American Sabbath-School Union of Philadelphia, Pa., who, after reading and considering our call, felt their bowels of compassion move in our behalf, and forwaded immediately, to the care of Elder M. F. Snavely, near Iowa City, a beautiful and excellent S. S. Library, which was opened and exhibited in our School, this 27th day of October, 1850; after which it was Resolved, That we, the members of the Union S. S., No. 2, in North Bend, Penn township, in the county of Johnson, and State of Iowa, joined by our Sabbath scholars, tender our warmest thanks and heart-felt gratitude to the "Board of managers of the American S. S. Union, of Philadelphia," for the beautiful Library donated to us.

Resolved further, That the Secretary of our Sabbath-school be directed to forward a copy of the preamble and resolutions of this School to the "Board of the A. S. S. U., of Philadelphia," signed, in behalf of the members of this School, by the President and Secretary of the same. A. C. DENISON, President.

M. F. Snavely, Secretary.

To the Children of our Friends.

As I have been appointed one of the Missionary Agents to travel through the Churches of God in Maryland, and those west and northeast of Harrisburg in Pennsylvania—(see notices in last Advocate;) I have decided upon receiving particular Missionary Donations or Gifts in money from all the Children and Young Persons, members of the Church, or friends of the Church. And all moneys got from them will be kept separate from those got of older persons. I design to raise enough money from the children and young people on my ground TO SEND ONE MISSIONARY TO THE WEST! I feel very certain that if the parents will tell their children about this noble undertaking, or get them to read of it, the children will lay up ther pennies and little pieces of silver, and the young women and men will put by their quarter, half or Whole dollars, and have them ready for me when I come. I shall take more delight in collecting this juvenile Missionary Fund than all the other. When I come around to hold the Missionary Meetings, I wish to see all the boys and girls turn out with their money ready, to give it to send a Messionary preacher to the West to preach the good word of God to the people, there where many of them have no preaching.

J. F. WEISHAMPEL,
Missionary Agent.

P. S.—I expect to start about the middle of December, beginning at the Carrolton (or Sandy Monnt) Church, first; and after returning home, then I shall start up through Perry and other Western counties in Pennsylvania.

J. F. W.

Death by Burning.

It becomes my painful duty to record the distressing death of William M. Furgeson, only son of brother John Furgeson, printer of the Advocate, who died on Monday morning, the 25th of November, in consequence of being most distressingly burned the Saturday previous. His age was one year, five months and two weeks.

It appears his mother left him in the room, stepped to the milk-wagon to get some milk, was not gone over a minute and a half, and returned to see her only child wrapped in flames. It is supposed he went to the stove and commenced playing with the fire, and his clothes caught.

This is but another warning of the uncertainty of life, and should be a caution to parents to exercise special watchfulness over the unguarded steps of helpless childhood. Man, in infancy, is of all God's creatures the most helpless and exposed to danger, and when the greatest care and watchfulness is exercised over his thoughtless steps, still he is liable to numberless dangers.

But a Christian parent has the great consolation that a wise and good God permits those things for good both to parents and children. Sometimes for the good of the parents, by letting them see how dependant they are upon the watch-care of a Heavenly Father, and how grateful they should be for His every day guidance. For the good of the little innocents, in that He removes them from the sorrows and ills of this lower world of dangers. He can best take care of them, and for this reason has the best right.

Then dry your tears, dear parents, with the Christian's hope, that He who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not," has taken your gentle boy to the embraces of Himself. So live that you may meet it in a better land, where death shall never grieve the hearts of parents or friends. "Parents and children there shall meet to part no more."

Funeral services by the writer.

G. U. HARN.

The Church of God at Baltimore.

Last Sabbath evening there was a large attendance at public service. Brother McFadden preached an excellent sermon, and Bro. Mullenix closed by exhortation—he having preached in the morning. The Church is beginning to look up. Next Saturday evening we shall commence a protracted meeting.—It is to be hoped that the missionary funds and personal donations spent upon the Church here will ultimately effect what was the design—the conversion of many souls and the raising of a large Church of God in Baltimore. Pray for it, ye friends of God.

Brother McFadden hopes that Brothers S. Fleegal and J. C. Seabrooks will fulfil their promises in relation to the collecting of donations, as soon as possible. J. F. W.

November 11, 1850.

P. S.—The meeting commenced on the 16th of this month has been kept up, and is to be continued as long as there are prospects of good. The congregations are large and very orderly, and the result up to last night is three conversions, two baptisms and three additions to the Church. Elders McFadden, Mullenix and Weishampel are all working in harmony in the good work. J. F. W.

November 25.

Lamentable Occurrence.

Plymouth, Ohio, Nov. 9, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

Elder D. Schriner, on his way to his appointment, on the second of this month, while travelling in his buggy, and a calm still air, about two miles east of Findley, Hancock county, Ohio, a large dead tree, on the side of the road, fell on him,—broke and mangled his leg dreadfully,—broke his buggy, and killed his horse dead on the spot. It is supposed that brother Schriner cannot live. O! pray for him and his distressed family!

Yours, affectionately,

WM. ADAMS.

Letter from Oregon.

Oregon City, June 15, 1850.

Mr. Editor:—

I arrived in Oregon, by way of the overland route, in due course of time after my departure from the States. The road, generally speaking, is excellent. Considering its length and the desert mountainous country through which it passes, I may safely say it is unsurpassed by any natural (and many that have undergone the process of naturalization, as practiced in many sections of the Union) road I ever saw, and probably by any in the world. The first part is fine. The Black Hills are the first serious obstruction, the hard, gravelly ground being very severe on the feet of the cattle. The South Pass is as good a road as the one round the square of your city, and much easier travelled than it at some seasons of the year. The Blue mountains form the next barrier, but are surmounted without much difficulty; and last, though very far from being least, come the Cascade montains. A man can complain, with some show of reason, of his difficulites here; but a little perseverance, and these will also be overcome.—The first object, at the foot of these, that meets the anxious gaze of the weary and care-worn traveller, is a neat log cabin, surrounded with all the necessaries of life; and let him who is similarly situated, who has not laid his eye on a house, or anything bordering on civilization for months, imagine the feelings of the emigrant when he arrives at this point. This journey is long and vexatious, particularly to a man of family. But once over, like everything else, it is soon forgotten or absorbed in the excitement of the present or anxiety for the future.

The country lying west of the Cascade mountains contains all the improvements yet made. Oregon contains about ten thousand inhabitants at the present, most of whom are in the Williamette valley. This valley is divided into smaller valleys and mountains, alternately, or rather large hills, each watered with its own streams. These valleys are high, rolling prairies, interspersed with groves of oak and other timber. The sides of the mountains afford inexhaustible supplies of fir and pine timber, which is within a reasonable distance and easy of access to most parts of the valleys.

Many excellent farms have been made, and present an air of neatness and comfort which rivals most of the best in Illinois. In the upper part of the valley (which is south) stock raising is carried on extensively. The plains, in some sections, present vast herds of them.—They are exceedingly fat, although not fed, much more so than many of the stall-fed cattle in the States. All kinds of stock are raised in abundance, and with one-half the trouble that attends this pursuit in the States. It is the prevailing opinion, however, among farmers, that the grass will eventually fail; indeed those who ought to know, say that it has declined sensibly where large settlements have been made. Should such an event ever occur, so far from the farmer's labor being less it will be greater, than it is in the States. It would, I should think, greatly enhance the labor of the farmer in your State to raise wheat or oats instead of corn, to feed his stock. Owing to the extreme dryness of the summer, corn cannot be cultivated here. In some sections vegetables do exceedingly well, while in others directly the reverse is true.—Bottom lands, or lands that can be irigated, are good for gardens. I have seen some vegetables of enormous size.

At the head waters of the Williamette is a chain of mountains crossing the country from the Cascade to the Coast Range of Mountains. This range separates the Willamette from the Umqua valley. There are but few white persons in it, though it is far superior to this valley as a grain country. I understand quite a party have it in contemplation to commence a settlement there next season. Farther on is the Rogue's river valley. This is the principal gold region of Oregon. It is not of much use for any other purpose, if it be not generally misrepresented. I shall have more to say in regard to the quantity of gold found there, when I have more information.

Until recently, it was supposed there was no valuable country west of the Coast Range. It now appears there is some fine country there, capable of supporting quite a large population. It has not yet been explored. There is some fine country near Astoria, at the mouth of the Columbia, as also on the North.

Upon the whole, Oregon is far from being the terrestrial paradise that letter writers have represented it to be. It is, nevertheless, highly favored by dame Nature. Few countries can boast a greater number of substantial advantages than Oregon, yet it is not entirely free from disadvantages and unpleasant circumstances. It can sport every variety of climate, from almost the tropical regions of the south to the perpetual snows of the north. Not the least among its attractions stands its scenery—beautiful beyond description. From the hills in the neighborhood the lover of the picturesque and grand in nature can behold scenes, spread out in all directions, that cannot fail to awaken the liveliest emotions of wonder and admiration.

Money is plenty, and business improvements and building rapidly going ahead. I have abundant reason to feel that I am near the gold mines. Everything bears exorbitant prices. Provisions are not over abundant, and there is a prospect of a still greater rise. Many Oregon miners are daily returning, and with varied success—from nothing, and worse than nothing, up to handsome fortunes. Oregon has been both injured and benefitted by the discovery of the gold mines, and it is a question whether the good effects will counterbalance the bad. It is generally awarded to the former. While the good effects will be permanent, the bad, or at least the majority, will be but temporary. But of this and other matters more hereafter. J. S.

Letter from Brother J. Myers.

Ashland, Ohio, Oct. 28, 1850.

Dear Brother —

In reading the last number of the Advocate, I find quite a number of letters from the friends of Zion. This is truly refreshing.

Among the many worthy epistles is also that of brother Harn, from Providence, R. I., dated October 5th, 1850. This is especially satisfactory and encouraging; and I do hope the delegation to the F. W. Baptist Church will "encourage similarity of sentiment between us—cultivate Christian acquaintance, and strengthen the bonds of Christian-fellowship," &c.

I was glad to see by brother H.'s letter, that the subject of slavery was not neglected; and that he made the Conference acquainted with the views of that awful curse of our land, involuntary slavery, as expressed by the General Eldership of the Church of God in the United States, held in Pittsburg, Pa., A. D., 1845.—And surely did I rejoice to be informed that the resolutions of said Eldership met with an enthusiastic response in the Conference room.

Further, would I hope, that the sentiments expressed in the resolutions referred to, would find a lasting home in every Church of God, and in the breast of every individual professing to name the name of Jesus Christ. "Let every one that pronounces the sacred name of the Saviour depart from all iniquity."

Some, indeed, did say, and some do still say, that those resolutions are too ultra. But I have charity to opine that some say that unthinkingly; because slavery in the United States is so common, and so identified with the numerous interests concatenated from North to South, and more so, because the blighting, withering curse is legalized; but this by men whose ancestors were probably engaged in stealing those very men and women whose children were subsequently and are still sold at auctions like brutes destitute of immortal souls; that this dreadful sin has lost its deformity, hideousness and monstrosity in the eyes of many. Others, again, I am fully aware, speak against anti-slavery resolutions from sheer wickedness and malice aforethought.

But I can assure you, I was not glad to read brother Harn's language and sentiments regarding those resolutions. His words are thus:—"You will, however, permit me to remark, that although I endorse the sentiments contained in those resolutions, yet I never understood them to advise the Churches of God to withhold the hand of fellowship from, or disconnect themselves with a brother, merely on the ground that he sustains the relation of master to a slave."

What—has brother H. got into the fog? What does he mean? Not withhold fellowship from a brother "merely" because he is master over a slave! What else constitutes slavery than holding a fellow-man in bondage? Holding one fellow-being in the iron jaws of involuntary servitude, is just as much sanctioning the wrong as to hold a plurality. If we give the little finger to the enemy of all good, we might as well give him the whole hand.

Now, I ask brother H., could he call a man by the all-endearing name of brother, a child of the same righteous and merciful God that he professes to be, who sustains the title of master to a poor being created in God's image, but holding him in perpetual bondage? I trow not.

Has that miscreant, who deals in the flesh and blood of his own species—who has a legal right to sell that unfortunate wretch into hopeless bondage—break asunder the marriage tie, dispose of the slave's wife, and turn all the issue of that poor man's body into money to maintain his assumed lordly aristocrary, a claim on Christian fellowship? Let brother H. answer.

There are many things which the compromiser might set forth as apologies for those who get into possession of slaves by inheritance from their fore-fathers, &c.; but the limits of this letter will not admit of rebutting such testimony in palliation of the damning crime of slavery.

Would we give that person the right hand of fellowship, wash his feet, give him the kiss of charity, and commemorate with him the suffering and death of that Saviour who died for Adam's race, without respect to color or complexion, who we knew had been guilty of robbing hen-roosts, or of stealing sheep? No, sir, we would not. Well, then, does not common sense, as well as the teachings of Christianity, tell us that robbing men, and robbing them of their liberty and the proceeds of their sweat and toil, is ten times worse than stealing all the fowls and sheep in all creation.

I have no sympathy for the slave-holder, nor palliation for the sin of him that holds his brother man in bondage, forsooth he did inherit him.

There is too much light in the world. at this time, to suffer such flagrant outrages on the rights of man to pass off without our most serious and earnest animadversions. Such things can no longer be suffered among those who profess to vindicate the rights of Jehovah, by taking the word of life for their rule of faith and practice.

Churches must te-totally veto the crime of slavery, without any compromise whatever; and not only this, but all who wish to enjoy the elective franchise, must likewise veto the "sum of all villainy" at the ballot-box, if they wish to keep their hands clean from the blood of the poor down-trodden slave, although slavery may have been legalized a hundred times. But, mark, by whom has it been legalized? Certainly not by men who acted with "a single eye to the glory of God," and for the good of suffering humanity; but with a rogue's eye, for their own pecuniary interests.

Here is not the place, nor have I the time and space, to detail the withering, blighting effects of slavery, both morally and physically. It is but too well known; consequently it is high time that a line of demarkation be drawn between him that serves God, and him who bows down to the "dark spirit of slavery."

I conclude, therefore, in hopes that brother H. will see the error of his way, and retract what he inadvertenly, I trust, wrote in his letter. Yours, as ever,

J. MYERS.

Letter from Brother A. Megrew.

Wooster, Ohio, Oct. 18, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

This note will inform you that our Yearly Meeting is past. It closed on the evening of the 16th. We had an excellent meeting.—Love and union characterized the meeting all through, and the business was arranged so, I believe, as to give general satisfaction. The ministers all seemed to be in good spirits, and went away apparently much encouraged to preach the Gospel of the blessed Jesus. The cause is on the march in Ohio: and in my humble opinion, is about to take a special rise. The prejudices of the people are giving way, and many are beginning to see and acknowledge that the teaching and practice of the ministers and people of the Church of God is in accordance with Apostolic teaching.—May the guod Lord grant that truth and righteousness may speedily gain the ascendancy and prevail high over all.

Tell brother Harn, for his satisfaction, that he is appointed to the Wooster station, and will be expected by the first of April next, to come and take charge of the Church in Wooster. May the Lord prosper him abundantly, is my sincere desire and ardent prayer.

As for my own part, I have taken no charge for the coming year; having it in contemplation to emigrate (the Lord willing) to the far West, when my charge shall close here next spring, and try to be useful there—in Illinois or Iowa. Yours, &c.

A. MEGREW.

Letter from Bro. Daniel R. Long.

October 20, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I send you five dollars, my dues in full for the Advocate. The Advocate is a welcome visitor to me and my family. It is the only source of comfort that we have springing from the Church. Through the Advocate we learn many things of great interest. Among many things which we have learned through the paper, is your tour to this our Western country. We are glad that you undertook this journey, and visited the brotherhood in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. But we were sorry that you passed us, so that we did not get to see you. When you passed from Burlington, Iowa, to Peoria, of this State, you were within six or seven miles of our place of residence. We live south of Harrisonville. We have lived almost three years and six months in this State. And since we have left Springville, Lancaster county, Pa., we never had the privilege of seeing any of our brethren, much less did we hear any of the ministers of the Church of God preach. We should, therefore, have felt ourselves very happy indeed to have seen yourself and Bro. Harn, and to hear you preach. We trust that if any brother or brethren come to this country, and especially if so near as you have been, they will hunt us up, and we will heartily welcome them.

We have a fine country here, and fine neighbors. I think much good could be done in this place, as well as in many other parts of this Western country. I noticed in one of your letters, that you have a strong desire to have a missionary at Peoria. I would say, that if you should succeed in your Eldership to send a man there to preach the word of life, and he will give us a monthly visit in this place, I will give five dollars towards his support; and I have a brother living in a village called Fairview, 12 miles east of me,—he is no professor of religion, but is a friend to the Church: he told me that if one of our ministers were sent here, he would give five dollars towards his support. Our place of residence is some 40 miles west of Peoria.

We would also be much pleased, if the Lord will, and brother Howard moves to this State by next spring, if he could or would pay us a visit and preach for us. We have a comfortable School-house near at hand, and it is a public one. Preaching is kept up in said house by the M. E. Society. We have had a good sermon to-day, by brother West, from 1 Cor. 16: 13.

If any brother or brethren wish to address me by way of letter, they must direct to Troy Mill P. O., Fulton county, Illinois: or else to Ellisville, of said county, Illnois. I live between the two places, and it is immaterial at which place I am addressed.

Yours, fraternally,

DANIEL R. LONG.

Letter from Brother John H. Chew.

Sandy Mount, Md., Oct. 9, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner: —

I send you a few lines, to inform you and the readers of your valuable paper, that Bro. J. C. Owens organized a Church at this place, and called it the Church of God at Sandy Mount. This, I think, is in accordance with the Scriptures and Apostolic usages.

It is true, the number is small, as yet—only 12. But we thank God for a beginning. Bro. Owens, assisted by brother McFadden and others, held a protracted meeting here, which commenced on the 21st of September, and lasted until October 2d; and it pleased the good Master to visit us with a great refreshing from His presence. The result of the effort was, 10 or 15 professed to find Jesus to be precious to them, 13 followed him into (not at) the water, and were buried with him in baptism, and 13 united with the Church here. To God be all the glory.

This gracious work, with the Gospel preaching, is causing the sectarians to tremble like Felix, and to say, almost thou persuadest me. This is the right way. I say, as Paul said, I would to God that they were not only almost but altogether persuaded to take the way the Saviour has laid down in his will, and become obedient children.

Yours in Christian love,

JOHN H. CHEW.

Letter from Bro. Geo. Sandoe.

Hinkletown, Pa., Nov. 8, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I send you these few lines to express my satisfaction with the acts and doings of the late Yearly Meeting, held at Churchtown, Cumberland county, Pa. There was much to be heard and seen at said meeting which to many, no doubt, was peculiarly gratifying. If there was one thing that occupied my mind more than another, it was the efforts made to advance the missionary cause. I cannot relate my feelings on the night appointed to make the effort, when it was asked, But who will go? I for one felt to say, I will go. But, fearing lest it might appear arrogant on my part, I remained silent. Not because I felt any reluctance to leave my native home, friends and relatives: for if God is on my side, what other friend can I need. His promises to the missionary are great and precious. "There is no one that leaves father and mother, friends or relatives, houses or lands, but shall receive an hundred fold in this life; with fathers and mothers, houses and lands, with persecutions, and in the world to come eternal life." What He has promised He is able to fulfil. I feel to labor in the vineyard of the Lord, while here on earth I stay. I ask an interest in the prayers of all my dear brethren and sisters.

Yours, in Christian fellowship,

GEO. SANDOE.

EXTRACT OF A Letter from Bro. Thos. Hickernell.

Euphema, Ohio, Oct. 8, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

The Lutheran preacher at Euphema replied to you and brother Harn the Sabbath following your visit; and, after making the reply, he stated that no more ministers should preach in that house after this, except they were Lutheran preachers; when a Deacon arose and said, except on funeral occasions. His text was, "Many deceivers are gone out into the world."

"Render honor to whom honor is due." If this will hold good in one case, it will hold good in another. If men or Churches are liberal, they deserve praise. This Paul done when on earth. In this we wish to imitate the Apostle.

The Church at Clintonville, north of Columbus, Ohio, are systematic as well as liberal. Each member subscribes so much for a year. Some three dollars, some five and some eight; and then pay into the church treasury the 12th part of their subscription once a month. Now if all the members on the whole circuit were to do so, those that labor could easily meet demands made upon them as they pass along. But I am sorry to say, that I have understood that some have roundly asserted on this circuit, that they would not help to support preachers, for the present; for they have enough to do to get along themselves. They say, they would sooner not belong to the Church than support the preachers. Well, all I have to say to them is that which Paul had to say to the Corinthians, "He that soweth sparingly shall also reap sparingly."

Yours, &c., THOS. HICKERNELL.

[communicated by request.]

OBITUARY OF Sister C. P. FETTROWE.

Departed this life, in Birmingham, Huntingdon county, Pa., Sister Catharine P. Fettrowe, aged 17 years, 9 months and 29 days.

Sister Catharine was a daughter of George and Catharine Frank, of Oliver township, Perry county, Pa. In December, 1849, she sought the Lord, and found him precious to her soul. On Christmas, in the same month, and in the same year, she was buried with Christ in baptism; and soon after attached herself to the Church of God in Oliver township. In December, 1849, she entered the state of matrimony, with Abraham Fettrowe, and led a Christian and peaceable life. From the time of her conversion to her death, she led an exemplary and pious life; and thus won for herself friends and esteem which will not soon be erased from their minds. In March, 1850, she removed from Perry county to Birmingham, where she died in the triumphs of faith and in hope of a glorious immortality beyond the grave. A. SNYDER.

Matamoras, Nov. 23, 1850.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

The First Premium Ham.—The following is the recipe used by our fellow-citizen, T. E. Hambleton, Esq., in curing the ham which he exhibited at the late Agricultural Fair, and which was awarded the highest premium:

To Cure Maryland Hams.—To every one hundred pounds weight of pork, take 8 pounds of ground alum salt, 2 pounds of brown sugar, 2 ounces saltpetre, one and a half ounces potash, and four gallons of water. Of these form a brine. The meat should be well cooled and dried before being put up, and then suffered to lie one day in a cool place. Then rub each piece with fine salt, and pack the whole down and suffer it to remain some two or three days, according to the weather. The above brine should then be poured into the cask or tub on the side. After being in the brine six weeks, take out the meat, rinse it in cold water, hang up and suffer it to dry for four or five days, or longer, and then smoke some two weeks with hickory wood. Tie up each ham in a linen bag and white-wash the outside.—Baltimore Clipper.

Illustrated Family Christian Almanac for 1851.—The price of the Almanac is 6 cents single copies, 50 cents a dozen, $3 50 a hundred, $30 a thousand. The immense edition alone warrants the publication of an annual at so low a price.

"This beautiful and instructive annual for the coming year, filled with valuable reading and important statistical information, drawn from original sources, is now published. Its excellence and acceptibility are perhaps best shown by the fact, that since it has been prepared by its present editor, its annual sale and circulation have risen from about 70,000 copies to 128,000 in 1848; 192,000 in 1849; and over 300,000 in 1850. Its beautiful engravings alone are worth more than the cost of the work."—Puritan Recorder.

American Board of Foreign Missions.—The receipts for the last year were $251,862, and the expenditures $254,329. Thirteen missionaries have baen sent into the field during the last year. The present number of missions is 24; number of stations, 134; ordained missionaries, 157; whole number sent from this country, 395; whole number connected with the missions 517; number of printing establishments, 12; pages printed last year, 37,644,528; pages printed from the beginning, 822,105,678; number of churches, 85; church members, 25,875; church members added during the year, 1,967; number of seminaries and boarding-schools, 29; pupils in all the schools, 21,730.

California.—There has been a conflict in Sacramento city between the squatters and other citizens, in relation to the right of the ownership of land. The Sheriff and three others were killed, and the Mayor wounded. The riot was quelled. Three boxes of tracts in, the Chinese language, had been received from Canton, for distribution among the Chinese settlers.

The World's Fair.—The building for the exhibition of the industry of all nations in London in May next, is to cover eighteen acres, be 100 feet high, will contain eight miles of tables, 1,200,000 square feet of glass, twenty-four miles of one description of gutter, and 218 miles of sash bar; and in the construction, 4,500 tons of iron will be expended. Two thousand men will soon be at work upon it. The sides and roof of the structure will be chiefly of glass. The cost of the building will be about $500,000, upwards of $300,000 of which has already been obtained by subscription. The exhibition is to be kept open six months, and it is estimated that $120,000 will be derived from the sale of tickets of admission. Eighty thousand square feet of the building are allotted to the United States.

Population of Dayton, Columbus and Cleveland.—

	1840.	1846.	1850.
Columbus,	6,048	10,616	17,656
Cleveland,	6,071	10,135	17,500
Dayton,	6,067	10,192	.....

The Census of Dayton for 1850 is not yet on file.

Substitute for the Koran.—A man by the name of Bab has formed a new religious sect in Persia, and has written a new book to take the place of the Koran. He has already made several thousand proselytes, eighteen of whom have been publicly beheaded by order of the Shah.

Father Matthew.—This distinguished apostle of temperance has succeeded in gaining more than 250,000 signers to the temperance pledge in this country. Of these, 14,000 were obtained during the last month in New Orleans.

Missions of the Assembly Board.—In May, 1850, the stations were 27; the male missionaries, 91; the female, 46; the churches, 17; the communicants, 350; the pupils, 1,781; and the contributions, $126,075.

Fulfilling Scripture.—There is said to be in one of the county jails in Connecticut a little girl, her mother, grand-mother, and great-grand-mother. Thus iniquity is visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generations.

Indulgence to Sin.—The Pope has ordered a universal jubilee, in commemoration of his restoration. It is to last fifteen days, and to carry plenary indulgence of one hundred days to those who observe it.

Population of Williamsburg, N. Y.—The population of this flourishing town, opposite New York city, has increased in ten years, from 5,094 in 1840, to 30,000 in 1850, or about six-fold.

☞ The number of members recieved into the churches at the Sandwich Islands, in 1819, was 1534: and at the close of the year there were 23,102 members in the regular standing.

☞ From China there is a very interesting report to the effect that the emperor is about formally to tolerate Christianity in his dominions.

☞ The opponents of capital punishment say that crime has lessened in Michigan since the abolition of the death penalty there.

☞ The number of Missionaries dispatched from England are: By the Church Missionary Society, 137; Society for converting Jews, 78; for the Propagation of the Gospel in foreign parts, 334; Wesleyan Society, 168; Baptist Society, 100; London Missionary Society, 171; Scotch Churches, 150; various other religious bodies, 100. Total, 1,438.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CURE FOR BURNS AND SCALDS.

We take the following account of hospital treatment of burns, scalds, &c., from a highly interesting paper in the last number of the American Journal of the Medical Science, being the "Notes of Hospital Practice at Bellevue," by D. M. Reese, M. D., resident physician:

Among the most numerous cases brought into the surgical wards of charity hospitals, everywhere, may be reckoned the injuries received by burns and scalds, which, when extensive, are too often fatal. In the treatment of these injuries we have had great experience and uniform success, when the patients were brought in soon after the injury. No fatal case of recent burn or scald has occurred in the hospital, although several have been extensive and severe.—The universal treatment of all such cases is to cover the parts with wheaten flour, thrown over the wounds by a dredging box, which, if thoroughly done, so as to exclude the air, and prevent its temperature from reaching the suffering tissues, will afford instant relief from pain, and allay all that nervous irritation which is the chief source of immediate danger in all cases of extensive burns. We have had opportunity to test this practice in terrible burns occasioned by the explosion of gunpowder, in scalds from the bursting of steam-boilers, in examples of persons while drunk, falling into the fire, and others in which the clothes were burnt off the body by the combustion of spirit gas, &c. In these cases, and in some of them scarcely any portion of the body had escaped—and, in a few of them, the integuments were literally baked, so that extensive and deep seated suppuration and sloughing were inevitable, and had afterward to be endured—the external application of the flour was in the first instance our only remedy, and this was continued for one or more days, while the acute effects of the injury demanded it. The superficial portions of the burn or scald would often heal under this application alone; and the solutions of continuity, more or less deep, which remained open and discharging, were then dressed with lime water and oil, by means of a feather, to which creosota was added if the gramulations were slow, or the sloughs tardy in becoming loose. Under this dressing the more formidable burns have been healed; and even when the face has been evolved, there has been scarcely any considerable deformity. In one of our patients the face being horribly burned by an accidental explosion of gunpowder, the grains of powder having been imbedded in the skin, very great apprehensions were indulged that the discoloration thus produced would permanently disfigure and deform the countenance. But after the persisted application of the flour for three successive days, and until the tumefaction of the face and head had subsided, it was found that, with a few applications of the lime-water dressing, the cicitrization was complete, and even the discoloration was removed.

If this simple remedy were resorted to in the severe scalds sometimes occurring from the explosions of steamboat boilers, &c., there can be little doubt that the fatality of such burns would be very rare; while the popular and mischievous methods of applying raw cotton, oil, molasses, salt, alcohol, spirits of turpentine, sugar of lead water, ice, &c., to extensive and deep burns, are all of them injurious and often destructive to life.

From the Watchman and Reflector.

THE SHORT SERMON.

A minister in one of our large cities had prepared and preached, as he supposed, a most convincing sermon for the especial benefit of an influential member of his congregation, who was known to be of a skeptical turn of mind. The sinner listened, unmoved, to the well-turned sentences, and all the earnest appeals, but his heart was unaffected. On his return from church, he saw a tear trembling in the eye of his little daughter, whom he tenderly loved, and inquired the cause. The child informed him that she was thinking of what her Sabbath-school teacher told her of Jesus Christ.

"And what did she tell you of Jesus Christ, my child?" he asked.

"Why, she said he came down from heaven and died for poor me," and in a moment the tears gushed from eyes that had looked upon the beauties of only seven summers, as in the simplicity of childhood, she added, "Father, should I not love one who has so loved me?"

The proud heart of the skeptic was touched. What the eloquent plea of his minister could not accomplish, the tender sentence of his child had done, and he retired to give vent to his own feelings in a silent but penitent prayer. That evening found him at the praying circle, where with brokenness of spirit, he asked the prayers of God's people. When he came to relate his Christian experience, he gave this incident, and closed his narration by saying, "Under God I owe my conversion to a little child, who first convinced me, by her artless simplicity, that I ought to love one who had so loved me."

The minister, on returning from his meeting, took his sermon and read it over carefully, and said to his family, and to himself, "There is enough of Jesus Christ in this discourse." HOMO.

A BRIGHTER DAY.

A friend who is ready not only to give money, but to wear out in efforts to raise the standard of benevolence, on hearing that an individual had proposed to give $1,000 per annum for colportage, writes, "A brighter day is bursting upon us.—Hundreds of such men are soon to be raised up for this cause and others of kindred character. The time is just at hand, if I do not mistake the signs of the times and the prompting of God's Spirit on my own heart, that thousands of good men of large property will come to the joyful conviction that it is their privilege and duty to consecrate in future, not merely a tithe of their income to the cause of benevolence, but every dollar of it, after supporting their families; feeling that they are to live and make money for the salvation of the world, just as our missionary brethren give their all for this great object. Oh, if only a few such men would set the example, give all their income to Christ and his cause, accompanied with appropriate prayer and action, how soon would multitudes catch the spirit and luxuriate in the blessedness of peopling heaven with redeemed souls. Oh, where is the redeemed sinner who will not be willing to stop accumulating money long enough to convert this world to Christ? After that work is done and we can do nothing better with our money, we will spend it for the luxuries and embellishments of life."—Am. Messenger.

POETRY.

EARTH AND HEAVEN.

I

Earth is groaning, Earth is groaning,
For her Lord and King is longing, longing,
longing, longing,
Earth is groaning, Lord deliverance bring,
Remove the curse, in triumph reign.
How long wilt thou remain away?
How long wilt thou remain away?
Why doth thy ling'ring chariot stay?
How long wilt thou remain away?
Come, come,
To Israel bring the promis'd day.

II

Jesus is coming, Jesus is coming,
Lo the day star bright, is rising, rising, rising, rising!
Jesus is coming with the blazing crowns
For those who walk with him in white.
Oh there is glory, glory now,
Oh there is glory, glory now,
For lo! the heavens seem to bow;
Oh there is glory, glory now.
Lo, lo,
The shaking heavens begin to bow!

III

Oh the glory, Oh the glory,
Of the King of armies coming, coming,
coming, coming,
Oh the glory of the King of kings
In triumph coming down to reign.
Seraphic legions marshalled now,
Seraphic legions marshalled now,
Behold the shaking heavens bow,
Seraphic legions marshalled now.
Lo, lo,
The brilliant glory of his train.

IV

Hear the voices! hear the voices!
That proclaim the Saviour coming, coming,
coming, coming!
Hear the voices,—sweet angelic strains,
In Heaven th' echo loud resounds;
Angelic harpings now in heaven,
Angelic harpings now in heaven,
In sweeping melody are driven.
Angelic harpings now in heaven,
Sound, sound,
"Behold the King of glory comes!"

V

Heaven rejoices—Heaven rejoices,
For the King of kings is coming, coming,
coming, coming,
Heaven rejoices, for the Kings of kings
In radiant glory comes to reign!
Oh Earth be glad, rejoice and sing!
Oh Earth be glad, rejoice and sing!
He comes to reign, thy rightful King!
Oh Earth be glad, rejoice and sing!
Shout, shout,
Glad tidings all the angels bring!

Horses and Carriage for Sale.

The subscribers having performed their tour to the West, now offer their horses and carriage for sale, on reasonable terms.

JOHN WINEBRENNER,
GEO. U. HARN.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Appointments.

December 3d, at Marshall's School-house.
" 4th, Griffith's.
" 5th, Strayley's.
" 6th, Ball Hill's.
" 7th, Cross Roads.
" 8th, New Market—11 o'clock.
" 8th, Mashes' School-house—at candle-light.
" 9th, Cedar Grove.
" 10th, Nauvoo.

JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

Protracted Meetings in Lancaster County.

One at Washington, commencing on the 13th of December.

One at Mount Joy, commencing on the 20th of December.

The preachers and brethren are invited to attend all these meetings. C. PRICE.

Another meeting will be held in the Meeting-house at the mouth of Fish Creek, Marshall county, Va., to commence on Friday, the 6th of December. E. LOGUE.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

A protracted meeting will be held at the Cross Roads School-house, York county, Pa., commencing on Friday evening, the 27th of December.

A protracted meeting will be held at Andersonstown, York county, Pa., to commence on the 1st of January, 1850, at 10 o'clock, A. M., and continue over Sabbath.

Another at Siddensburg, commencing on Saturday, the 17th of January.

The Preachers and brethren are invited to attend. JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

A protracted meeting will be held at Martinsburg, Blair county, Pa., to commence on the 6th of December. D. KYLE.

By Divine permission, the following protracted meetings will be held on the East Cumberland Circuit, viz:

One at the Camp-hill Bethel, commencing on Saturday evening, the 7th of December.

One at Shiremanstown, commencing on Saturday evening, the 21st of December, to continue over Christmas.

The brethren in the ministry and the public generally are invited to attend.

J. HAIFLEIGH.

Another will be held at Highspire, Dauphin county, Pa., commencing on Saturday evening, the 21st of December.

The brethren in the ministry and public generally are invited to attend.

SIMON FLEEGAL.

A protracted meeting will be held at brother Soule's, commencing on the 27th of December.

One at Landisburg, commencing on the 3d of January.

One in the Germany Bethel, commencing on the 10th of January.

The brethren in the ministry, and the public generally, are respectfully invited to attend. J. H. HURLEY.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 30th of April, 1850, by Elder A. Megrew, Mr. JOHN BOWER, of Holmes county, to Miss ELIZABETH PALMER, of Wayne county, Ohio.

On the 12th of May, by the same, Mr. C. H. WHEELER to Miss ORPAH HANON, all of Wayne county, Ohio.

On the 13th of October, by the same, Mr. SAMUEL M. CRAIG, of Wooster, to Miss MATILDA KETTLEWELL, of Wayne county, Ohio.

In October, 1849, by Elder W. Adams, Elder D. WILLIAMS, of Ashland county, to Mrs. CATHARINE HOALTS, of Richland county, Ohio.

On the 17th of November, 1850, by Elder J. A. Plowman, Mr. RANKEN BAILETS to Sister MARY ANN RAMSEY, both of Warington township, York county, Pa.

On the 7th of November, 1850, by Elder A. Holms, Elder ARCHIBALD MEGREW to Miss MARTHA E. HUFF, all of Wayne county, Ohio.

On the 10th of November, 1850, at the house of John Ettinger, in Paul's Valley, Dauphin county, by Elder Abraham Snyder, Mr. JACOB ENSINGER to Miss LOVINA ETTINGER, both of Paul's Valley, Dauphin county, Pa.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—WHEAT, per barrel,			$4 37	a	4 62
Do.	RYE,	do. - -	2 50	a	2 50
Do.	CORN,	do. - -	2 37½	a	2 37½
GRAIN—WHEAT, per bushel,			90	a	95
Do.	RYE,	do. - -	50	a	62
Do.	CORN,	do. - -	45	a	50
Do.	OATS,	do. - -	33	a	33
Do.	BARLEY,	do. - -	60	a	65
SEEDS—CLOVER,		do. - -	4 10	a	4 25
Do.	TIMOTHY,	do. - -	2 00	a	2 25
Do.	FLAX,	do. - -	1 12	a	1 12
BEEF, per cwt.		- - -	5 00	a	5 50
PORK, do. -		- - -	5 00	a	5 25
HAMS, per pound,		- - -	8	a	11
BUTTER, do. -		- - -	15	a	18
LARD, do. -		- - -	8	a	8
TALLOW, do. -		- - -	8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.			6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen, -		- - -	12	a	12
POTATOES, per bushel, -		-	50	a	50
ONIONS,	do.	- -	75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -	37	a	62
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1 25	a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound, -		-	37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -	30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -	1 35	a	1 35
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -	10 00	a	10 00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	4 00	a	4 25

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—WHEAT, per barrel,		$4 87	a	5 50
Do.	RYE,	do. -	3 00	a	3 00
Do.	CORN,	do. - -	3 00	a	3 00
GRAIN—WHEAT, per bushel,		1 05	a	1 12
Do.	RYE,	do. - -	68	a	70
Do.	CORN,	do. - -	65	a	65
Do.	OATS,	do. - -	40	a	42
Do.	BARLEY,	do. - -	65	a	68
SEEDS—CLOVER,		do. - -	4 00	a	4 00
Do.	TIMOTHY,	do. - -	2 50	a	2 62
Do.	FLAX,	do. - -	1 40	a	1 50
BEEF, per cwt.,		- -	7 00	a	8 75
PORK, do.		- - - -	7 00	a	7 25

Another Premium Obtained.

At the Annual Fair of the Maryland Institute which closed, after a four weeks continuance, on the 5th of this month, Weishampel's Revolving Horizontal Grate Coal Stove received another Premium, being the second from the same Institute. The Patent Rights for the States of Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Michigan are for sale. The Patentee would be willing to trade the Right for one or two of these States for good land, improved or unimproved. The purchaser of the Right for a State will be entitled to a set of castings for patterns, and a Stove in complete working order. The Grate of this Stove is adapted to any kind of coal. Now is the right season to procure the Right and Patterns, in time to have them ready to get out your supply of Stoves for next Fall.

Letters addressed (post-paid) to the undersigned, Baltimore, Md., will meet with prompt attention, by myself or Mr. F. A. Uhl, my local agent. J. F. WEISHAMPEL, Patentee.

November 11, 1850.—3t.

Depositories of Our Books.

FOR the convenience of our brethren, and the public generally, we have established Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

GEO. F. GORDON, corner of 12th and Wistar streets, and BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, and LEWIS COLBY, No. 122 Nassau street, New York.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, Baltimore, Md.

JOHN H. CORNELIUS, New Berlin, Union county, Pa.

SPANGLER & BROTHER, Lancaster, Pa.

MARTIN and MENELY, Lagrange county, Indiana.

M. F. SNAVELY, North Bend, Iowa.

☞Those who may want any of our works, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail Prices.
History of Denomination in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries, -	2 00
Wandering Soul, - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament, -	50
German Reference Testament, - -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
German Do., - - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, - -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - - -	25
Harn on Feet-washing, - - -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, - - -	15
Traveller's Guide to the West, - -	50

EVANGELICAL MUSIC,

FOR

CHURCHES AND SINGING SCHOOLS.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us, and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music.

☞ FOR SALE at this office, and at our Depositories. EDITOR.

PROSPECTUS

OF A

New and Highly Interesting Work.

THE Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

OF THE

First One Hundred Ministers

OF THE

Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo descimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

List of Pledges and Contributions.

WE, the undersigned, do hereby severally pledge ourselves to pay to the Board of Missions of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, during the year 1851, the sums annexed to our names, for the purpose of sustaining five Missionaries, three in Illinois and two in Iowa, during the ensuing Eldership year.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, -	- -	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	- -	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	- -	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	- -	-	10 00
Jacob Miller, -	- -	-	10 00
James Miller,	- -	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	- -	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	- -	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	- -	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	- -	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	- -	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	- -	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	- -	-	5 00
James Casey,	- -	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00
Susanna Myers,	- -	paid	4 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;

ENTITLED

History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of ALL the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING

NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. DECEMBER 16, 1850. NUMBER 16.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

Mistakes Corrected.

By some oversight, a few mistakes, or rather omissions, occurred in the last Journal of the East Pennsylvania Eldership; which are hereby corrected.

First, brother S. M. Hoover's report and the renewal of his license, were omitted.

Secondly, brother Henry L. Soule's appointment to the Washington county circuit.

Who is to blame for this inaccuracy, we know not. We hope, however, the faulty will be excused.

New Subscribers and Money Wanted.

We should like to have a long list of good paying new subscribers, as a kind of New Year's gift; and also, the whole amount of money due us on back-standing accounts for Advocate. There are hundreds of dollars outstanding and due us, on the present volume, besides the hundreds still due on former ones. The most of this money, we have no doubt, we are kept lying out of from sheer neglect, not from inability. Such neglect we hold to be a moral wrong, because unjust and unchristian. May we not hope to see it remedied?

Bills for Advocate.

Those indebted for the Church Advocate will please remit to us the amount of their indebtedness, and save us the trouble and expense of sending them bills of back-standing dues. All who neglect to do so, may look for their bills early in January next. Pennsylvania Relief Notes will be taken, but none else under five dollar bills, out of the State.

Thanksgiving Day.

According to the Proclamation of the Governor, and the Yankee-land time-honored custom, our citizen towns-men observed the 12th inst. as a day of general thanksgiving, with commendable decorum and Christian propriety. All kinds of business was suspended, and religious worship held by all the different denominations.

Incendiary Convicted.

The Jury in the case of the Commonwealth vs. Joseph Milliken, tried before our Court of Quarter Sessions, for setting fire to the Clark's Ferry Bridge last summer, rendered a verdict of guilty. The convict is only eighteen years of age, and lived at Clark's Ferry. He is sentenced to three years hard labor in the Dauphin County Prison, and pay costs.

Congress.

In conformity with the Constitution, the 2d Session of the 31st Congress convened at Washington on Monday, the 2d inst., at 12, M.

There were 40 Senators and 170 Representative in attendance.

Mr. ——— was elected President of the Senate, and Mr. Cobb Speaker of the House.

Mr. C. M. Butler, Episcopalian, has been elected Chaplin of the Senate, and Mr. Gurley, Presbyterian, Chaplin of the House.

The Committees are nearly the same as last year.

Report of the Post-Master General.

This document, which was presented to Congress at the opening of its session, recommends a uniform reduction of letter postage—3 cents for every letter when pre-paid, and 5 cents when not pre-paid. A reduction of the postage to Oregon and California, is also recommended—a measure which we regard as exceedingly desirable, inasmuch as the postage to these places is exorbitant. On newspapers, it is recommended, that the uniform postage throughout the country be one cent. Congress, we hope, will accede to these suggestions, forasmuch as the Department can now afford it, having a balance in hand of more than 300,000 dollars.

Report of the Secretary of War.

This report possesses the merit of brevity, and all its suggestions are clothed in as few words as possible. The aggregate of the army is 12,326.

Of the whole number, 7,796 are stationed in or are under orders for Texas, New Mexico, California and Oregon, leaving only 4,530 in all the rest of the States and Territories.

Department of the Interior.

The Report of the Secretary of the Interior is an elaborate document, presenting a full exhibit of the condition and operations of the new department, and the multifarious interests of the Land service.

Of the public lands there were disposed of 5,184,410,91 acres; of which 1,320,902,77 were sold, and 3,405,520,00 located on bounty land warrants. For the three quarters of 1850, the quantity disposed of has been 2,815,366,42 acres; 869,082,32 sold, and 1,520,120,00 located on warrants.

The Secretary urges the importance of a national highway to the Pacific, within our own territory, from the valley of the Mississippi to the Western coast.

The President's Message.

The President's Message was read before both Houses of Congress on the 2d inst., at 12, M.

Our readers will of course refer to the secular papers for this valuable document. It gives a pleasing account of the prosperity of our common country. It seems to have been written in a conciliating spirit, with an honest desire to promote peace and harmony among the citizens of the various States. The decided avowal of opinion respecting the nature of our government by the President, will be pleasing to many.

"Every citizen," he says, "who truly loves the Constitution, and desires its continuance and its blessings, will resolutely and firmly resist any interference in those domestic affairs, which the Constitution has clearly and unequivocally left to the exclusive authority of the States."

Iowa Mission.

We have now the offer of a good and able Missionary to the State of Iowa, provided he can be sustained. Brother A. Megrew agrees to take a missionary appointment under the direction of the Missionary Board of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, upon condition that they will give him a competent support. In order that the Board may be able to make effective and timely arrangements, for the supply of those large and promising missionary fields in Iowa and Illinois, it is desirable that our general missionary agents, J. Flake and J. F. Weishampel, should proceed with their work, as speedily as possible. If we pray and act as we should, we have no doubt God will give us both men and means, for reaping and gathering in the plenteous harvest. Let us all be in earnest, then, and do what we can.

We have changed our Pledge List to a kind of Subscription List, for sustaining missionaries in Illinois and Iowa, and which, we hope, will soon show up a commendable missionary liberality, commensurate to the importance of the work, and more than equal to the zeal of our partizan neighbors. Let us have your names, then, friends and brethren, from all quarters, through our agents or otherwise.

Report of Committee on Education.

The Committee appointed by the late Eldership, on the subject of Education, and instructed to report through the Advocate, beg leave, herewith, to make the following report, viz:

1. They are happy to find, in looking over the Journals of former years, that this highly important subject has been favorably entertained by the Eldership, and earnestly recommended to the careful attention and consideration of all the members of the Church of God. Nevertheless, the subject has not been taken hold of, practically, either hy the Eldership or the Churches generally, as its great and vital importance properly and justly demands; yet, they confidently believe, that there are but few subjects held in higher estimation by a large portion of our brethren, and in which they would more fully, cordially and liberally co-operate, than on the subject of education.—Light in God's light, who would not appreciate?

Although we have not as many educated men among us as, some of the sects around us, yet we are happy to say, that we have never been reproached or troubled by any violent opposition to the subject, from ignorant or erring persons, as has been the case in sectarian denominations. The subject among us has never been otherwise than favorably regarded. And at no time, we venture to say, in the history of the Church, have ministers and people been so ripe and ready for efficient action on the subject, as at present. Besides, the time has come when a great many members of the Churches of God have sons and daughters whom they are disposed to have liberally educated; and hence, if we have no High School—no Literary Institute, or College of our own, to send our children to, our brethren will have no alternative, but to keep them at home, or to send them to some sectarial Institution.

Many of these party Institutions, we allow, are of a high literary order, and we should have no objection to see them patronized, were it not for the fact that religious training is almost entirely neglected by some, and where it is not, its sectarianizing tendency and character greatly depreciates its true value.

What we want, is an Institution, founded on pure and liberal Christianity—untrammelled by the doctrines and commandments of men, and free from the errors and influences of sectarianism. Such an Institution would be a grand palladium of our Christian liberties, and a great moral Ægis against the insidious wiles of Infidelity, Catholicism and hyper Protestant sectarianism.

But, the question will perhaps be asked, Can we establish such an Institution? And if so, where is the best location for it? And which is the best plan? The Committee would briefly reply to these interrogatories by saying,

1st. They believe there are ample means in the Church to accomplish the object; and that suitable efforts is all that is necessary to bring them out.

2d The location of the Institution will depend on circumstances; and should be determined on, after all due consideration, in reference to health, good society, cheapness of living, and facility of access.

3d. The best plan to be pursued is that which will most easily accomplish the object. There are three plans or systems usually pursued in establishing Literary Institutions, viz:

1. The Donation system.
2. The Scholarship system; and
3. The Stock system.

1. The Donation system is that by which Colleges have usually been established, and it is, perhaps, in a wealthy community, where each one "ot his abundance may cast in much," the best method. But this system does not suit us.

2. The Scholarship system is the next general method usually adopted to endow educational Institutions. This is a kind of pre-paid tuition system. A certain amount, paid in advance, gives or secures the privilege of sending one pupil, free of charges for tuition. The price of scholarships vary from $100 to $500, in different Institutions. The inducement held out by this system, is to secure tuition at a very low rate. Our objection to the system is its inequality. It gives the rich an advantage over the poor.

3. The Stock system is the method of raising the requisite funds by the sale of stock, entitling the holders to a regular per-centage from the proceeds. This plan we deem to be decidedly the best, because it gives all a chance to invest capital, according to their means, and so creates an equal and general interest; for the investment of capital seldom fails to create interest.

The Committee therefore respectfully submit the following recommendations, to wit:

1. They earnestly recommend the establishment of a Literary Institution, by the name of "Bethel College."

2: They decidedly prefer and recommend the Stock System, for the establishment of the Institution.

3. They recommend that there be connected with the College a preparatory male and female High School—that the College be equally free for both sexes, and that the whole be under the general patronage of the Church of God, and under the special direction and control of a Faculty and Board of Trustees.

4. They recommend that the Board of Trustees consist of forty persons—two-thirds there. of to be members of the Church of God, and that they be chosen tri-ennially by the stock-holders of the Institution, and the Faculty by the Trustees.

5. They recommend the division of the stock into $10 shares—that all the accredited ministers of the Church of God be authorized agents to sell stock, and that so soon as stock to the amount of ten thousand dollars shall be taken or subscribed for, that then a meeting nf the stock-holders be called, and the Board of Trustees elected.

6. They recommend that the stock be made payable in four annual instalments, and that all persons subscribing 20 shares or upwards, shall be entitled to a scholarship in the male or female High School department, and all persons subscribing 30 shares or upwards, shall be entitled to one perpetual scholarship in either of the High School or Collegiate Departments, and one-half of the regular dividend arising from their stock.

Thus, then, we have briefly presented our views on the subject of a Literary Institution. The proposition is a very important one, and we hope it will be favorably entertained and cordially responded to from Dan to Beersheba.

JOHN WINEBRENNER, GEO. U. HARN, JACOB KELLER, Committee on Education.

COR. EDITON'S DEPARTMENT.

Sabbath Morning Preaching, Dec. 8, at Lancaster.---J. Flake.

"CONSIDER the lilies how they grow: they toil not; they spin not; and yet I say unto you, that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."—Luke 12: 27.

If in crossing a Prairie in the West I behold lying in my path a beautiful watch, and picking it up I see it is gold or silver, and putting it to my ear I find it is going, and a complete and perfect time keeper, marking the hours, and minutes, and seconds of time as they fly away—What do I conclude? Do I think it came there by chance—that it happened to make itself—or do I consider that it is the work of a skilful hand, a mechanic with an intelligent mind, who made it to measure time—who set it a going, and can keep it going. The last would be the conclusion to which a rational man would come. And so we all would judge.

So when our Saviour tells us to "consider the lilies of the field," what is it we learn therefrom?

First. The consideration of this beautiful little flower proves that there is a God. There it is growing in the field or garden. Man did not make it—he may make something artificial to resemble it—but the real is far beyond human skill. There it is, in its beauty and modesty, and shows forth the hand Divine, even as the bright stars of the sky sparkling in the firmament, and moving in solemn silence.

The heavens above declare the power and wisdom of God—the Volcanoes or burning mountains on the surface of the earth tell of the terrors of the Lord—how that the earth is on fire underneath our feet, and perhaps Hell is there, although the transgressor of God's law thinks not of it. These proclaim a Being of infinite power, and wisdom, and holiness.

"Consider the lilies of the field," for they, in part, make known to us the character of the wonderful Being who made them. The purity and beauty in which they bloom was first in the mind of their author, even as the idea, or image, of the picture, or building, is in the mind of the artist, or builder, before his work is wrought. The earth is covered with a carpet of green so pleasant to the eye—and not of red or white to dazzle or blind us. And if God has made the flowers—the lilies—the roses of Sharon—to spring up around our path in the spring and summer, it is that we may look at them, and imbibe the same feelings of purity and loveliness which dwells in Heaven above.

The sublimity—the beauty—the adaptation for happiness of all around on earth, speaks plainly of a Father's love to the children of the dust dwelling on His footstool. Therefore consider the flowers of the field, as well as the sunshine, and running streams, as so many evidences that God is good, and that He has no wish to use His power for the misery or ruin of His creature man. He made the earth at first very good--patterned after Heaven—and will renew it again after awhile, when the curse is done away, so that the new earth shall be fitted for happiness even as the garden of Eden once was, and Paradise is now. Earth will then be like Heaven, and angels and men be the dwellers in both worlds, through everlasting years. "The Lord reigneth, let the earth rejoice."

Secondly, Our Saviour in these words intends to allay the anxious care concerning future things which so many pious people feel.—Human feelings are the same in Pennsylvania now, as in Judea then.

Some are fearful they will come to want. They cannot see where bread to eat, and raiment to wear will come from. They are apprehensive that they may be left to the cold charity of the world in their old age, and perhaps be the tenants of the poor-house, which they naturally shrink from. Even those who now have abundance know how easily it may be lost.

Being anxious and fearful will not prevent misfortune from befalling us. Our property may be lost—our health may fail--old age may find us poorer than in youth. But the Shepherd of Israel still has His watchful eye and ever helping hand over us.

"The birds without barn, or store-house, are fed,
From them let us learn to trust for our bread."

The flowers of the field are clothed in beauty, and we shall have raiment to wear, and a cottage for shelter, though we may not ask for, or wish to have, a palace, or sumptuous apparel. Solomon in all his glory was only exposed to greater danger to his soul.

We all more or less fear the loss of friends—we tremble lest those we love should be taken from us by death. Perhaps none have yet been taken--possibly very few remain of friends and kindred.

But let us consider that they will have to go, and we will have to weep around their graves, whether we are anxious and troubled, or no. Possibly we may have to go first—who can tell--God has in mercy hidden the future from our view. He tries our faith. He breaks away the ties which bind us to the present world. Our dying friends are pioneers who go before us across the river. If they have safely crossed, let us bless God for his mercy vouchsafed unto them in the trying hour, and look forward to see them again after a few more days or years.

Some of us are fearful to die ourselves. But let us think that if God watches over the birds of the air, when they fall dead to the earth, He will be mindful of those who fear His name and trust in His mercy. We have cause to believe that those who are the people of God live till their time is come. That time is, when God sees fit to call them. Therefore be not fearful, but believe.

Endeavor to get all the faith you can—not only for justification—but for full and entire sanctification. Seek for that perfect love which casts out fear—which unites the soul to God in bonds which neither life nor death can break.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

JOURNAL OF THE Fifteenth Eldership in Ohio.

THE Ohio Eldership of the Church of God met, agreeably to adjournment, in the Sugar Creek Bethel, Holmes county, Ohio, on the 14th of October, 1850.

After convening, at 9 o'clock, in the Bethel, an opening discourse was delivered by Bro. A. Megrew, appropriate to the occasion, from the 126th Psalm and 6th verse.

After preaching, adjourned for half an hour.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Convened at one o'clock.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That brother James Neil open the meeting with singing and prayer.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That brothers A. Megrew and H. Murray be appointed to constitute the meeting: whereupon the following Ministers, Elders and Delegates were found in attendance:

Stark County Circuit—HENRY MURRAY, J. M. WEST and MOSES COATS, teaching elders.—HENRY PETRE, ruling elder.

Sugar Creek Circuit—A. HOLMS, JOHN BRIDLER and DAVID KEPLINGER, teaching elders.—J. McCLINTIC, J. BRIDLER, J. HARMON, J. KEPLINGER, J. WEIBLE and J. SHOWALTER, ruling elders.

Wooster Circuit—J. S. McKEE, WM. ADAMS, ISAAC WHISLER, JOHN FUNK, D. SCHROM and P. HARTMAN, teaching elders.—PETER SHERRICH, delegate.

Ashland Circuit—J. NEIL, J. BRIGGLE, D. GILL, and D. NEIDIGH, teaching elders.

Tiffen Circuit—DAVID SCHRINER and LEVI KELLER, teaching elders.

Wooster Station—A. MEGREW, teaching elder. JOHN HUFF, ruling elder.—SAMUEL METZLER and ISAAC TATE, delegates.

Absentees—Daniel Williams, John J. Bear, James Dennis, Henry Rupp and Jacob Myers.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we now proceed to organize, by electing a Speaker and two Clerks, by ballot: whereupon brother WM. ADAMS was elected Speaker, HENRY MURRAY Journalizing Clerk, and J. M. WEST Transcribing Clerk.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That brothers B. Howard, J. Johnston, Wm. Ray, Sheaffer, Gault, Alleshouse and H. Presler be received as advisory members.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we adopt rules for the government of this meeting: whereupon the following rules were adopted:

1. This Eldership shall hold two sessions per day—one in the forenoon, and one in the afternoon. The morning session to open at 8 o'clock, and close at 12 o'clock; and the afternoon session to commence at 1 o'clock, and close at 4 o'clock.

2. Each session shall open and close with singing and prayer.

3. The Speaker and Clerks shall preside and conduct the business of this body, according to the usages of deliberative bodies.

4. Ministers, Elders and Delegates belonging to the Eldership, alone shall be entitled to a vote.

5. The order of business shall be transacted as follows:

1. Items of unfinished business.

2. New items of business of a general character,

3. Reports of the ministers and examination of their character.

4. Hearing and deciding on applicants for license.

5. Miscellaneous business.

6. When a motion is pending before the Eldership no other business shall be in order, unless it be to amend, strike out, postpone or adjourn.

7. All persons speaking on any motion or question before the Eldership, shall rise and address the Speaker, confine their remarks to the subject under consideration, and never speak longer than half an hour at any one time, nor more than twice on the same subject, without permission of the Eldership.

8. Any decision of the Speaker, other than when he gives the casting vote, shall be subject to an appeal to the Eldership.

9. No unnecessary walking or talking, so as to disturb the meeting during the session, will be permitted.

10. No charges shall be brought against any member of this body, except they are previously notified.

11. Stationing the preachers.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That Bro. A. Megrew be requested to prepare the sermon delivered by him before this Eldership, and send it to the Advocate office for publication.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed, by nomination, to examine the Journal of the last year's Eldership, and report the items of unfinished business.—Whereupon brothers A. Megrew, D. Schriner and A. Holms were appointed said committee.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed on Overtures.—Whereupon brothers John Beidler, J. Neil and Isaac Whisler were appointed said committee.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That a committee on Resolutions be appointed, consisting of three.—Whereupon brothers J. Keplinger, Levi Keller and Samuel Metzler were appointed said committee.

The Standing Committee reported. Their report was adopted.

The committee on Journals reported the items of unfinished business. Their report was adopted.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That no member of this body absent himself, without permission.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That a Stationing Committee of seven be appointed, by nomination.—Whereupon brothers A. Megrew, A. Holms, H. Murray, J. Neil, J. Hüff, S. Metzler and P. Sherrich were appointed said committee.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That a Standing Committee of five be appointed, by nomination.—Whereupon the following brethren were appointed said committee, viz: John Beidler, A. Holms, William Adams, A. Megrew and H. Murray.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the Standing Committee constitute the Camp-meeting Committee.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the Standing Committee meet on the first Monday of March, 1851, with the Church at Chester, Wayne county, Ohio.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That brother James Johnston, of the Regular Baptist Society, preach to-night.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That brother Wm. Adams, according to previous appointment, deliver a discourse to-morrow evening, on the life, labors and death of brother Samuel Sherrich.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we now adjourn to meet to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock.

Session closed by the Speaker.

—

TUESDAY MORNING.

Session opened by brother Henry Murray. The Journal of yesterday was read and corrected.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we now hear the report of the preachers.—Whereupon

Brother ABRAHAM HOLMS arose and reported: That he felt grateful for the privilege he enjoyed, in the gracious Providence of God, to meet with his brethren in an Eldership capacity once more; and further stated, that he had been trying to preach the Gospel to the best of his ability—that his labors have been more or less blessed—had witnessed between 30 and 40 conversions, baptized 25, and organized two Churches: that he felt willing, by the grace of God, to continue in the work and service of his Master, and wished to be more useful than hitherto. He also stated his fervent attachment to the principles of the Church and brotherhood, and desires an interest in the prayers of his brethren. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother JAMES NEIL reported: That he felt glad to have the privilege of meeting with his brethren once more in an Eldership meeting; and that, according to appointment, he entered upon his circuit, and endeavored to discharge his duty as a Gospel minister. He also stated that he felt much encouraged to press forward in the service of the Lord—had baptized ten after the Gospel order. He desires an interest in the prayers of his brethren. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother ARCHIBALD MEGREW reported: That he was happy in being permitted to meet with his beloved brethren in an Eldership capacity; that it always afforded him much joy to meet with his dear brethren in the ministry. He resumed his labors in Wooster, after the last Eldership, preaching for the Church in that place every two weeks—laboring, the balance of his time, in other places, as circumstances would admit of, and had the pleasure of seeing many souls converted to God—had some cheering seasons of grace to his own poor soul—baptized about 67 happy believers since the last Yearly Meeting. He commenced his labers on the first of April, according to the appointment of the Eldership last year, with the Churches in Wooster and Moreland, and that he labored during the summer with much satisfaction to himself, and was kindly treated by the brethren of those Churches for whom he labored—felt much attached to them, and deeply interested in their peace and prosperity. Believes they are now in a prosperous state. Expressed his love for and attachment to the brethren of the Church of God; that he had it in contemplation to move to the far West, which caused him much sorrow, because of leaving his dear brethren, with whom he had been preaching the Gospel and worshipping God. He also stated that he wished to live, labor and die with his brethren of the Church of God, and with them he hoped to share an humble place in the Church triumphant in Heaven; for which he begs an interest in the prayers of all his brethren. His reported was adopted and license renewed.

Brother DAVID KEPLINGER reported: That he felt thankful to God for the privilege of meeting with his dear brethren again in a Yearly Meeting. He stated that at the last Yearly Meeting the brethren had granted him a license to preach the Gospel. He had been trying to preach some. He said the past year to him was one of joy and sorrow. Sometimes in preaching he had great enjoyment; at other times sorrow. Still he felt willing, by the grace of God, to continue to preach the Word of the Lord. He felt, moreover, that it was his duty to labor in the vineyard of the Lord. To this end he humbly begged his brethren to pray for him; for with them he is determined to live and die, and with them hoped to share joys that are immortal at God's right hand. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother DAVID SCHRINER reported and said: He was thankful to the Lord that he is once more permitted to meet with his beloved brethren in an Eldership capacity. He loved his brethren and the cause of God, the Church and its doctrines and privileges. In its defence he hoped to spend his time and talents, through the assisting grace of God. He also stated that he had been trying to preach the Gospel to the best of his ability, on the circuit assigned him by the last Eldership. He is happy to say that the brethren seem to live in peace and union, and the prospects are good. He asks an interest in the prayers of all his brethren. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother LEVI W. KELLER reported: That he feels himself happy for the privilege once more to meet with his brethren in an Eldership capacity. His prayer was, before coming to the Eldership, that he might realize a special blessing by coming, and his prayer was truly answered to the joy and comfort of his soul. He stated that he had preached some about home, through the winter. About the first of March started for Pennsylvania—was gone about three months, and preached some twenty sermons. Since his return home he has tried to preach some in different places. The good effected is only known to the Lord. He wishes still to continue in the Gospel ministry with his brethren, and asks an interest in all their prayers. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother J. M. WEST reported: That he feels truly thankful to the Great Head of the Church, that through His mercy he has once more been permitted to assemble together with his much esteemed brethren in an Eldership capacity, to transact business for the cause and Church of the living God—not our Church, as the sects say. He stated that through the year now past, he had been considerably afflicted in body; yet he had enjoyed much peace of mind and many precious seasons of grace. He had tried to preach more than the former year. He had also been holding prayer and class-meetings, and endeavoring to persuade all he could to follow the Lord fully in all things. He feels to rejoice that truth is mighty and is prevailing, and the Church is coming up out of the wilderness, and her light is reflecting even into the enemy's camp; that their banners are lowering and their ensigns tottering. He stated that he loves God, His Church, and all them that love the Lord Jesus in sincerity. He also feels willing to labor with his brethren for its advancement, that in the end with them he may share joys that are immortal at God's right hand. His report was adopted and his license renewed.

Brother JOHN McKEE reported: That he was thankful to God for the privilege he enjoyed of meeting with his brethren in an Eldership capacity. He stated that since the last Yearly Meeting he had preached as much as circumstances would admit, until spring, and then, according to the appointment of the Standing Committee, he commenced his labors on the Wooster circuit, and continued them until July, when he was taken sick, and did not recover until after Camp-meeting; that he then resumed his labors on the circuit, saw a number converted, and baptized ten. He stated that he still desired to labor in the vineyard of the Lord, for the promotion of God's kingdom and the salvation of souls—that he loves his brethren, and with them he desired to live and die, and share joys immortal at God's right hand. He also desires the prayers of all his brethren. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother WILLIAM ADAMS reported and said: He felt thankful to God that he was permitted to meet with his brethren in the fifty-third year of his age in an Eldership capacity. He stated that since the last Eldership he has been trying, in weakness, to preach the Gospel to a dying world, and saw some souls hopefully converted to God, and baptized some—that he preached as much as he consistently could—that he loves his brethren, his God, and the cause of religion: that he intends, by the grace of God, to spend and be spent in the service of God and in the Gospel ministry, and hopes in the end to have a part in the first resurrection. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother JOHN FUNK reported and said: That he was glad to meet with his brethren once more in a Yearly Meeting. He stated that he had preached some, and was trying, by the grace of God, to get to the better world. He loves the cause and people of God, and hopes to live and die with them, and to share joys immortal at God's right hand forever. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother ISAAC WHISLER reported: That he was highly gratified that he could see his brethren in another Eldership meeting. He felt thankful to God for the love and union that appears to characterize our Eldership meeting thus far. He stated that he did not preach as much as he should have done, in consequence of some discouragements he met with. He stated that for the future he felt resolved, by the grace of God, as a minister of the New Testament, to preach the Gospel of the kingdom to his fellow mortals, as much as circumstances will permit, and to the best of his ability. He also requested an interest in the prayers of his brethren, that he might be more useful in the vineyard of the Lord. His report was adopted and license renewed.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we adjourn to meet at one o'clock. Session closed by Bro. A. Megrew.

—

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Session opened by brother David Gill.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we resume the hearing of the reports of ministers.

Brother DAVID SCHROM reported: That he felt himself happy that he was permitted, through Divine Providence, once more to meet with his brethren in an Eldership capacity. He confessed that he had labored but little, consequently he had seen but little good effected through his labors, but hopes for the future to be more diligent and useful than he had been the past year. He requested an interest in the prayers of his brethren. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother DAVID NEIDIGH reported: That he felt happy in God that he had the privilege once more to meet in an Eldership capacity with his dear brethren. He also stated that in the past year he labored as a local minister—he labored to some extent in the South, in preaching and holding protracted meetings. He stated that he saw some 40 souls converted, and baptized 50 believers, according to the Apostolic mode. He stated that it is still his desire to labor with his brethren—to live and die with them, and share joys immortal with them in Heaven. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother JOHN BRIGGLE reported: That he feels happy that he has the privilege once more to meet with his brethren in an Eldership meeting. He stated that he loves his dear brethren, though he did not meet with them in the last Yearly Meeting: it was not because he did not intend to labor with them; for he said he was born in the Church of God, and in it was resolved to labor, live and die, with his beloved brethren. He stated that he had not preached as much, perhaps, as he might have done, if he could preach in the English language; but preaching the German only, his appointments were considerably scattered. However, he feels willing to labor all he can, that in the end he may have a lot among the sanctified. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother M. COATS reported: That he felt thankful to God that in the past year he had come out from under sectarian bondage, and was baptized after the ancient mode of baptism, viz: immersion. Last spring, at the meeting of the Standing Committee, he received a license to preach the Gospel; and, through the grace of God, is privileged to meet with his brethren in an Eldership meeting, for which he felt truly glad in God. He had tried to preach all he reasonably could, had baptized one believer, and had seen some good effected in his own vicinity. To God be all the praise. He wishes to labor, live and die with his brethren, and finally to be raised triumphant with the Church of God. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother HENRY MURRAY reported: That he returned home from the Eldership of 1849, and commenced his labors on his old field of labor, where he has been laboring for the last five years and a half, which has been the whole time of his public ministry—during which time he has seen and enjoyed some glorious seasons, and at the same time passed through some trouble, that was serious and trying in its nature: but he thanks God that he has not as yet been taken captive. He also stated that during the past year he had seen some souls converted—the number of which was about 25, and baptized 16. He still desires to labor with his brethren in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ, even until death. He asks an interest in the prayers of his brethren. His report was adopted and license renewed.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That brothers Thomas Young and John Ferguson, of the Church of God at Clintonville, Franklin county, be received as delegates to this Eldership.

Brother DAVID GILL reported: That he felt thankful to God that he was once more permitted to meet with his brethren. He stated that he had labored as much as he could, since the last Eldership—that he had the pleasure of seeing some converted, and baptized a few, and thereby felt much encouraged to preach the Gospel of Christ. He also stated that he loves his brethren, and with them he wants to live and die, and then reign in Heaven. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother JOHN BEIDLER reported: That after the last Eldership meeting he returned home much encouraged, and set out with renewed zeal in preaching Christ and Him crucified to the people. He assisted in a number of meetings through the course of the winter—saw a goodly number converted—baptized some, and had many precious seasons of grace to his own soul. Early in the spring the hand of the Lord sent severe affliction, and also death, into his family, which caused him much trouble in body and mind; but still he felt willing to trust in God, who does all things well. His designs then appeared frustrated, having several small children left him to take care of and raise. He stated since then he had not preached so much, but still preached what he could. He loves his God, his brethren, and the Church of God; and when his work is done, he expects to have a portion in Heaven with his brethren. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother PETER HARTMAN reported: That he feels thankful to God that he was permitted, once more, to meet with his brethren in an Eldership capacity. He stated that he endeavored, by the help of God, last winter and spring, to preach as much as he could; but during the summer he did not preach much, in consequence of family circumstances.—Lately, however, he has been preaching some; and for the future he was resolved, by the grace of God, to preach all he could, wherever the Lord may open his way. He stated that he loves God, His Church, and its doctrines and commandments—also his brethren, and with them he hopes to live and die. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Absentees.

Brother DANIEL WILLIAMS was heard from, by brother Neil. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother JOHN J. BEAR not heard from.

Brother JAMES DENNIS was heard from, through brother J. M. West. A license was granted him, to be left in the hands of Bros. H. Murray and J. M. West—to be given him, provided they are satified of his good standing.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we attend to the ordinances on to-morrow evening.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the Stationing Committee meet to-morrow evening, at brother John Beidler's.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we have a session to-night, after preaching.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we adjourn to meet this evening. Session closed by brother A. Holms.

—

EVENING SESSION.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we resume the hearing of the reports of ministers.

Brother HENRY RUPP reported through Bro. Adams, by letter. His report was adopted and license renewed.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we now hear applications for license.

Brother MOSES GAULT arose and gave a brief account of his conversion and call to the ministry. Whereupon the Eldership considered it expedient to advise brother Gualt to improve his talents in preaching and exhortation for the coming year, for the better satisfaction of the Eldership. Addressed by the Speaker.

Brother WILLIAM SHAEFFER next arose and gave a brief account of his conversion and call to the ministry. Being considered worthy, a license was granted him. Addressed by brother A. Megrew.

Inasmuch as brother JAMES JOHNSTON, a minister of the Regular Baptist Society, desires to become a member with us, and to receive a license; and whereas he presented his certificate from that body, as a minister in good standing—therefore,

Resolved, That he be admitted as a member of this Eldership, and a license granted him.

Brother RAY, of the Free-will Baptist Society, applied for a union between the Church of God and the Society with whom he labors.

Voted, That the above be laid over till to-morrow.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we adjourn to meet to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock.

Session closed by brother Howard.

—

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

Session opened by brother Ray. The Journal was read and corrected.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we resume the hearing of applicants for license.

Brother BENJAMIN HOWARD arose and gave a brief account of his conversion and call to the ministry—with an experience of some 37 years in the Gospel ministry. He also presented to the Eldership letters of recommendation from several denominations and individuals, testifying of his success and moral character.

Voted, That a license be granted him.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we resume the consideration of brother Ray's request.

After duly considering the spirit manifested by brother Ray, in desiring a union of labor, which may likely bring about a oneness of sentiment—therefore, it was

Resolved, That brothers H. Murray and B. Howard visit them and supply them with preaching until next spring.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we take into consideration the request of brother T. H. Deshiri, made through brother A. Megrew. Whereupon this Eldership consider they have no appointment for brother Deshiri at this time.

Brother SAMUEL SPOHNHAUR made application for license, by brother H. Murray. After his case was examined and considered, it was Resolved, That this Eldership, in their wisdom, think it expedient to advise brother Spohnhaur to improve his talents in preaching and exhortation, until he can meet in person with this body.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the committee on Resolutions report. Whereupon brother A. Megrew handed to the Speaker the following preamble and resolution, viz:

That inasmuch as this body considers it unscriptural to receive unbaptized persons into church-fellowship—therefore,

Resolved, That the ministers of the Eldership of the Church of God in Ohio, teach the Churches not to admit unbaptized persons into the Church.

After a spirited debate between brothers Megrew, Howard, Murray, Holms, and others, the yeas and nays were taken, which resulted as follows: Yeas 15—Nays 9.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we adjourn till 1 o'clock.

Session closed by the Speaker.

—

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Opened by brother D. Neidigh.

Brother JACOB MYERS reported through Bro. J. Neil. His report was adopted and license renewed.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we now ascertain who will travel the coming year.

Whereupon brothers A. Holms, D. Schriner, H. Murray, J. S. McKee, M. Coats, D. Neidigh, D. Keplinger and J. M. West volunteered.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That brother Benjamin Howard travel as a missionary, among the Churches and elsewhere, and if he should not receive a sufficient support, he make the same known to the Standing Committee.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That brother Ray be requested to preach to-night.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we adjourn to meet to-night after preaching. Session closed by brother Whisler.

—

EVENING SESSION.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the Stationing Committee report. Their report was as follows:

Stark County Circuit—J. M. WEST and M. COATS.

Sugar Creek Circuit—HENRY MURRAY and D. KEPLINGER.

Wooster Circuit—A. HOLMS and J. S. MCKEE, including the Moreland and Prairie Churches.

Ashland Circuit—WM. ADAMS and DAVID NEIDIGH, including the Clintonville, Gier and Brownson Churches.

Tiffen Circuit—DAVID SCHRINER.

Wooster Station—G. U. HAHN.

Missionaries to the Western Country—ARCHIBALD MEGREW and JAMES NEIL.

Missionaries—Levi Keller, Isaac Whisler, John Funk, David Schrom, John Briggle, John Beidler, Daniel Williams, John J. Bear, James Dennis, Jacob Myers, Peter Hartman, David Gill, James Johnston, Benjamin Howard and Wm. Shaeffer.

Their report was adopted.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That brother Wm. Adams receive twenty-five dollars out of the missionary fund.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That a Board of Missions be appointed. Whereupon the Board was appointed, and brother A. Holms was appointed President, Samuel Metzler Treasurer, and Peter Hartman Clerk.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the brethren holding missionary subscriptions report their success.

These reported in part.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the Standing Committee, with the old and new Board of Missions, meet at Moreland, Wayne county, Ohio, on the second Saturday of November, 1850, for the purpose of settling with the Board of Missions.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That missionary subscriptions be lodged in the hands of some suitable person in each local Church, and each travelling preacher, and that they be requested to use every proper exertion to collect all they can.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That this Eldership authorize the Board of Missions to get three hundred headings for subscriptions printed, to be paid out of the missionary fund.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we now ascertain when and where to hold our next Yearly Meeting.

Voted, That it be held with the Church at father Stump's School-house, near Bethlehem, Stark county, Ohio, on the third Monday of October, 1851.

A motion was made to re-consider the resolution on receiving unbaptized members into the Church.

Voted, That it be laid on the table.

Resolved, That this Eldership highly disapprobate the habit of travelling or visiting on the Sabbath-day; and therefore they earnestly recommend to the members of this body, and the Churches generaliy, to refrain from the practice, except in cases of necessity.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That it be recommended to the members of this Eldership, to abandon the use of tobacco, and to use their influence to persuade others to do so, except as a medicine.

Resolved, That we tender our thanks to the brethren, sisters and friends of Sugar Creek Church, for their labor of love and hospitality during our stay with them.

Brothers Howard, Johnston, Ray and others, tendered their thanks to the brethren of the Eldership, and others, for the kind reception they had met with.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That brother Benj. Howard preach the opening discourse, the Lord willing, at the next Yearly Meeting.

Resolved, That brother A. Megrew deliver a short address at the close of this Eldership.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That we tender our thanks to the Speaker and Clerks, for the faithful performance of their several duties during the sitting of this Eldership.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the Journal of this Eldership be signed by the Speaker and Clerks, and sent to the Advocate for publication.

Brother A. Megrew addressed the Eldership with a solemn and feeling exhortation.

Resolved, That we now adjourn to meet with the Church at Stump's School-house, on the third Monday of October, 1851.

Closed with prayer by brother D. Schriner.

WM. ADAMS, Speaker.

HENRY MURRAY, Journalizing Clerk.

J. M. WEST, Transcribing Clerk.

JOURNAL
OF THE
Second Eldership in Michigan.

THE second Annual Eldership of the Church of God in Michigan met, according to appointment, at the School-house in the Hammond Settlement, in the Township of Gaines, and adjourned to the house of brother Drake, till half-past 8 o'colck, on Monday morning, November 11th, A. D., 1850.

The meeting was opeued with worship by brother Gillespie.

Brothers Benjamin Farnham and John Kilmer were appointed to constitute the Eldership: whereupon the following brethren were reported to be present, viz:

Teaching Elders—A. B. SLYTER, E. B. GILLESPIE and B. FARNHAM.

Ruling Elders—J. KILMER, Kilmer's Mill; L. CHENEY, West Gaines; and E. CHENEY, of Paris.

Delegates—B. FARNHAM, of Thorn-apple; J. DRAKE, of East Gaines; J. E. WOODS and J. RICE; and D. E. BROWN, of Cascade.

Teaching Elder absent—J. FERDIG.

Resolved, That we now elect a Speaker and Clerk: whereupon brother A. B. SLYTER was elected Speaker. and J. DRAKE Clerk.

Resolved, That the Standing Committee give in their report.

The committee reported as follows:

1. Appointed a Camp-meeting, to wit: To commence August 29th, in the town or township of Caledonia.

2. Adjourned the Eldership from the third Monday of October to the 11th of November, A. D., 1850.

Resolved, That the Eldership adopt the report of the Standing Committee.

Resolved, That we appoint a committee of three on Resolutions: whereupon brothers L. Cheney, B. Farnham and J. Kilmer were appointed said committee.

Resolved, That the ministers now give in their annual reports.

Brother A. B. SLYTER reported: A little over a year ago I came to this State as a missionary, and I commenced preaching as soon as I arrived. There were no Churches here at that time; but the Lord revived his work, and at present there are six Churches. I have preached about one-half of my time since I came—have seen a goodly number converted and reclaimed, and baptized nine. I still feel desirous to continue to preach the Gospel. I ask the prayers of my brethren and sisters, that I may be aided in the discharge of my duty. His report was adopted and his license continued.

Brother E. B. GILLESPIE reported: I came here about a year ago. I think there was one Church organized, at brother J. Kilmer's Mill. I then moved into Kent county, in the bounds of three Churches. I have been trying to preach, and I feel as though my labors have been blessed. I have preached as much as I could, and was kindly received by the people, and feel encouraged still to continue to preach the Gospel. I request an interest in the prayers of the brethren and sisters, that the Lord may still continue to revive his work. His report was adopted and his license continued.

Resolved, That in our opinion, E. B. Gillespie has been wrongfully excluded from the Indiana Eldership, and the Eldership of the State of Michigan feel to hold that Eldership accountable, instead of brother Gillespie; and if they have got any accusation against brother Gillespie, to give him notice of it between this time and the General Eldership, to which body he appeals for a final hearing.

Brother B. FARNHAM reported: Since I have endeavored to preach the Gospel, my labors have been so small, that they are hardly worth mentioning; yet, as I feel that I have been called of God to preach the Gospel, I feel as though I am still willing to try and live in the discharge of my duty as a preacher of the Gospel, and to try and be instrumental in the hands of God in bringing sinners to Christ. I still feel for the advancement of the cause of God. I feel that my labors have been blessed in some degree, and I still feel encouraged to go on in the discharge of my duties in the service of God. His report was adopted and his license continued.

Brother J. FERDIG heard from by letter, and his license continued.

Applicants for license were called for: whereupon brother J. DRAKE arose and gave in his experience, &c., and a license was granted him. Addressed by brother A. B. Slyter.

On motion, adjourned until to-morrow morning at half-past 8 o'clock.

TUESDAY MORNING.

Met according to adjournment. Prayer by brother A. B. Slyter.

Resolved, That the Church of God in Michigan receive none into fellowship who hold slaves, or who belong to secret societies.

Resolved, That we take the Bible alone to be the man of our counsel, and the only rule of faith and practice.

Resolved, That we recommend to our brethren in the bounds of the Michigan Eldership, to observe the first day of January, 1851, as a day of fasting and prayer, for the extension of Christ's kingdom.

Moved and seconded that we now appoint a Standing Committee, consisting of five persons. Agreed to.—Whereupon the following brethren were appointed, viz: L. Cheney, J. Kilmer, B. Farnham, A. B. Slyter and E. Cheney.

Resolved, That a Stationing Committee be appointed, consisting of three persons.—Whereupon brothers L. Cheney, E. Cheney and D. E. Brown were appointed said committee.

Resolved, That this circuit be called the Thorn-apple Circuit.

Resolved, That we now elect a delegate to the General Eldership. Whereupon brother A. B. SLYTER was appointed said delegate.

Resolved, That we ascertain who is willing to travel. Whereupon the following brethren were found willing, viz: A. B. Slyter and E. B. Gillespie.

Resolved, That the Stationing Committee give in their report.

They reported as follows: That Bro. Slyter should take the circuit, and the rest of the brethren be missionaries.

Resolved, That a Camp-meeting be held in the town of Gaines, Kent county, to commence on the last Thursday in August, 1851.

Resolved, That the Standing Committee meet on the 20th day of April next, in the Hammond School-house, in the town of Gaines.

Resolved, That when this Eldrsihip adjourns, it will adjourn to meet again, Deo Volente, in the bounds of the Church at Kilmer's Mill, on the second Monday of November, 1851.

Resolved, That we tender our sincere thanks to brother Drake and wife, and the rest of the brethren in this place, for their hospitality towards us during our meeting.

The Eldership then adjourned. Concluded with prayer by brother B. Farnham.

A. B. SLYTER, Speaker.

JOSIAH DRAKE, Clerk.

An Improper Question.

Can't a man get to heaven without being baptized?

THIS question is propounded almost every day, and with as much confidence as if it was divinely authorized. Is it right to give it a direct answer? My opinion is, not. It is unscriptural and unreasonable, and therefore merits not a direct answer. It amounts to this: I will admit it to be a command of God, and, yet, may I not disobey his commands and be saved. Now, I insist, the Divine Being, in legislating for the government of his kingdom, never contemplated a provision of this kind. He contemplated no such thing as partial obedience being a part of the subjection and homage of his creatures, and therefore made no provision for such a state of things. God intended man to obey him perfectly, therefore wisely gave him no inducement to neglect a single iota of his will. In the plan of man's salvation, our Divine Ruler always has in view a harmonious and entire surrender of all the will of his subject to His own will, as revealed in the law of His empire. His people are all a willing people, and not a constrained people. In their obedience they exhibit their willingness. This holds good in every other religious obligation, as well as baptism. The same right that men have to neglect baptism, and expect God to give countenance to it, they have to neglect other duties enjoined under the sanction of the Divine seal.

"Well, but," says one, "may I not safely and fairly ask, have men never been saved without baptism?" This question is less fair, when stripped of the motive usually had in view in propounding it. If it is intended for simple information, considerably less objection can be had to it: if an inference is to be drawn from the answer, "they have been," that we too may be saved in known disobedience, then is the whole an emanation from an ignorant or corrupt heart, or most commonly both.

But even the question, "Who of our fathers have been saved?" had better be left unanswered. In attempting to answer it, we place ourselves on the judgment seat, alone to be occupied by the Great God, and arrogate the right to say, who has been worthy of Heaven, and who has not? Now, Christ says, "Judge not, that ye be not judged," and if there is a place where this admonition is applicable, it is here. We have the power and right to preach what the Bible says about man's salvation, but to attempt to decide who and how many of those who have lived before us, are worthy of and have gone to Heaven, is beyond our province. We have a right to proclaim, in the most unmistakeable terms, what the word of life commands, and the promises it makes to those who obey, but to presume to promise to any one, in disobedience, is a prerogative never exercised by Christ and His Apostles, nor delegated to any one now living or who has ever lived among men. Indeed, the great day of Judgment may disclose to us the facts of the salvation of numbers we never thought would enter Heaven, and upon the other hand, the damnation of many in whom we placed the most explicit confidence, and thought ought to be saved. God may find cause for such decisions, that we see not. Then let us speculate on these things less, and see that we obey more: then we are certain of salvation. I am of the opinion that human beings can be saved without faith, in certain cases; but is this a license to infidelity in us? Can we be saved without faith!

In many things the professed Christian world has turned right round, to what it was in the first age of Christianity. Then men, anxious to know WHAT their duty was, exclaimed, "Good Master, WHAT good thing must I do to inherit eternal life! Men and brethren, WHAT shall we do? Lord, WHAT wilt thou have me to do? Sirs, WHAT must I do to be saved?" But now these questions are put in an entire different form. They now read, Good Master, what good thing may I NEGLECT, and yet inherit eternal life? Men and brethren, what may we leave UNDONE? Lord, what wilt thou allow me to neglect, and be saved? Sirs, tell me, can't I avoid to do this or that and still be saved! Are these things essential to salvation! Now, all these questions argue a perverted state of the judgment, and, not unfrequently, a most corrupt state of the heart.

Now, is it right for ministers of the Gospel to aid in such an unhallowed theory and practice, when, if carried to the legitimate ultimatum, would result in an entire subversion of the Divine government! This curiosity first led man to violate a positive law in Paradise; and the same curiosity, if countenanced, would lead others of God's intelligent creation to try similar fatal experiments. This experimenting in Divine things, without Divine authority, is a damning delusion, ruinous to inoumerable hosts of God's creatures on earth. May Heaven help us to avoid every approximation towards such a delusive theory.

Fraternally, G. U. HARN.

New Testament Words.---No. I.

DEAR BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

SOMETIME ago, when I was in Harrisburg, I procured one of your "Reference and Pronouncing Testaments;" and I can truly say, it is one of the best "Helps" a young Christian or Minister can have, to enable him to "Search" and understand the New Testament Scriptures. Beside the "References," which are copious, and more judiciously arranged than in any of the Bibles or Testaments in common use, it gives its readers a "Key" to the pronunciation of many words, and proper names, which persons of a limited education and means, can obtain nowhere else at so cheap a rate. Indeed it is my candid opinion, that this TESTATENT should be in the hands of every minister and member of the Church of God. And last, though not least, the "SHORT DICTIONARY AND GAZETTEER," appended to this "Testament," is well calculated to assist the young student in the "study of this Sacred Book." In the "Gazetteer" he will find between fourteen and fifteen hundred of the most IMPORTANT WORDS contained in the New Covenant, (Heb. 12: 24) properly pronounced, defined, and referred to the chapter and verse, where will be found the subject treated of by the sacred penman. This part of the book has been very interesting to me; because, I naturally concluded, that if I can but understand the meaning of the WORD used by the inspired writer, I shall be the better able to understand the subject treated of. With your permission, therefore, I will occasionally take up one of these words, and enlarge upon your definitions, and present them to the readers of the "Advocate," in order to contribute my mite to its useful and interesting pages. It is my intention merely to select a word here and there, as they are alphabetically arranged in the Gazetteer, and to begin with the name,—

AARON.—This word signifies a mountain of strength, praise, or a "teacher." Aaron was of the tribe of Levi, the son of Amram, brother of Moses, the first Jewish High Priest, and a figure of Christ in the following particulars:

1. Aaron was chosen of God, to minister in the Priest's office. Exodus 28: 1—"And take thou unto thee Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him, that he may minister unto me in the Priest's office." So was Christ. Psa. 89: 19—"I have laid help upon one that is mighty; I have exalted one chosen out of the people."

2. Aaron was called of God to the office,—Heb. 5: 4. So was Christ,—Heb. 5: 5.

3. Aaron could speak well, and was thus well qualified for his office,—Exodus 4: 14. Never man spake like Christ, who had the tongue of the learned,—Isa. 50: 4. Psa. 45: 2. John 7: 46.

4. Aaron was merciful and faithful. So was Christ,—Heb. 4: 15—5: 2.

5. Aaron was consecrated and anointed for the office,—Exo. 29: 21—30: 30. So was Christ,—Psa. 45: 7. Isa. 61: 1. Luke 4: 27—10: 38.

6. Aaron was clothed with holy garments, for glory and beauty,—Exo. 28: 2. So was Christ,—Psa. 45: 8. Rev. 1: 13.

7. Aaron offered sacrifice for the sins of the people,—Lev. 16: 21. So did Christ—Heb. 9: 14—10: 12-14.

8. Aaron went into the holiest once every year, to burn incense,—Exo. 30: 6, 7. Christ entered into the holiest of all, to appear in the presence of God for us,—Heb. 9: 12.

9. Aaron was appointed to bless the people,—Num. 6: 23-27. So was Christ,—Acts 3: 26, "Unto you first, God having raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to bless you, in turning away every one of you from his iniquities." Eph. 1: 3.

Although there is a likeness between Aaron and Christ in all these particulars, yet in other things how great the difference! Aaron gave up his Priesthood, and his robes, and died; but Christ lives forever, having an unchangeable Priesthood, and is able to save unto the uttermost all who come unto God through him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for us. Oh! what a merciful and glorious High Priest we have!

Yours truly, WM. JOHNSTON.

REPORT OF
The Ohio Board of Missions.

NOVEMBER 16, 1850.

THE Board of Missions of the Ohio Eldership Missionary and Charity Fund Society of the Church of God in Ohio, beg leave to present the following report:

According to previous appointment, the New Board of Missions met with the Old Board, on the 9th day of November, 1850 at the house of brother S. Meizler, in the bounds of the Church at Moreland, with the Standing Committee, for settlement. There were, however, some of the preachers that made settlement with the Board at our late Eldership.—The others, who had not made settlement, were requested to meet the Board of Missions at the above set time, but they did not make their appearance, except those who composed the Board of Missions and Standing Committee. However, the Board of Missions having a copy of the several subscriptions of Life Members, we found that the condition of the Society is as follows, to wit: Life Members, 85. The amount subscribed by the Life Members is 911 dollars, which bears interest yearly to the Society of 56 dollars and 46 cents. The amount paid in this year, $51 86. The amount not paid in is $32 90.

Brother William Adams received of the missionary fund, by order of the Eldership, $25 00. The Clerk of the Board paid to the printer $3 00, for 300 subscription headings for the Society. The Society has loaned out, on interest, one hundred and five dollars and twenty-five cents.—($105 25.)

We would also give a statement of the circuits which have not paid off their subscriptions. First, Wooster Circuit—subscription in the hands of brother A. Megrew. Due on said subscription for the year 1849, $4 50: and for 1850, $1 80.

Ashland Circuit—subscription in the hands of brother D. Williams. Due on said subscription for the year 1849, $7 80: and for the year 1850, $7 80.

Tiffen Circuit—subscription in the hands of brother W. Adams. Due for the year 1849, $6 45: and for 1850, $4 55.

The Board of Missions would strongly urge it upon those brethren who are in arrears with their subscriptioos, to endeavor to have all collected what is due on their respective subscriptions, for the two past Eldership years, and pay it over to the Treasurer of the Board of Missions without delay.

The brethren who hold subscriptions for the Society, have not been exerting themselves so much in soliciting subscribers, and receiving their yearly payments, the past year, as in the former year: and this being the case, the Eldership have changed their course of proceedure with regard to the subscriptions, so that a leading member of every individual Church, together with all the ministers of the Eldership, shall act as agents in soliciting subscribers for the Society, and receiving their yearly subscriptions and donations.

The Board of Missions would, also, call upon all the travelling and stationed ministers of the Ohio Eldership of the Church of God, to preach at least one sermon on the subject of Missions in every Church, station and appointment throughout all the bounds where they are travelling. This they hope will be attended to some time during the first three months in the year 1851. P. HARTMAN, Clerk of the Board of Missions.

P. S.—The brethren have in progress a protracted meeting in Smithville. It is quite interesting. FIVE or six have found the Lord in the pardon of their sins. P. H.

What is Egotism?

EGOTISM is the fault that some persons have of always speaking of themselves and of what they have done, are doing and intend to do, without appearing to see any good in others, no matter how much they may do. This is a fault, and should be avoided, as it is calculated to injure those who indulge in the practice, and in many instances discourages those who lend a co-operating hand to further the cause the egotist may be engaged in. The Apostle recommends a different course. when he says, "In honor prefer one another," Rom. 12; and "Without preferring (or prejudice) one before another," 1 Tim. 5. If unbecoming preference is repudiated between others, how much more ought we to strive against a vain ambition in ourselves at the expense of others. Let self always be abased and honors given to others; for this is the will of God.

PHILADELPHIA.

Letter from A. Clay.

MIAMIESBURG, Ohio, Nov. 23, 1850.

REV. JOHN WINEBRENNER:

DEAR SIR—I should have written to you sooner, but did not learn of your return home until recently. The few hints given by you on the subject of the Church of God, and the ordinance of baptism, in your several sermons delivered in this village, has caused great sensations among the Churches and Church members here. The Lutherans, German Reformed, and Methodists, each have prevailed on their ministers to deliver addresses on the subject of baptism, and the original organization of the Church of God, exclusively.

The Lutheran minister's position on the subject of baptism is very easily understood. It is as follows: "That it is the initiating ordinance into the Church; that the washing of regeneration takes place at the time and place when the ordinance is administered; and that the physician might, with the same propriety, tell the patient to become whole before medical aid could be applied, than to tell the sinner to be converted before baptism could be administered."

The pastor of the German Reformed Church started out on the original organization of the Church of God, "That it commenced at the Abrahamic covenant where circumcision was introduced; that circumcision was the initiating ordinance into the Church of God, and baptism was introduced in the room of circumcision, consequently it must inevitably be the iniating ordinance into the Church of God."

The Methodist minister's position was, "That baptism was actually necessary, and infants, penitents and believing adults all were proper subjects."

The first two above named were also strong advocates of infant baptism. On the mode we heard nothing yet, but have the promise of a lecture on that subject, by the pastor of the German Reformed Church, as soon as convenient. I want you to send me your two sermons on the subject of baptism.

Very respectfully, yours, A. CLAY.

Letter from J. M. West.

DEAR BRETHER WINEBRENNER:—

OUR Eldership is over. We had truly a very pleasant interview. The teaching Elders were nearly all present, a number of the Elders and Deacons, brethren and sisters, with a number of other friends. We had good preaching, and quite a spiritual time. Love seemed to prevail among the brethren. Some three or four of the preachers talk of going to Iowa, next spring. Brother Megrew has taken to himself a young wife, of 18 years of age, to take with him to the far West, the Lord willing.

We commenced a meeting on the 2d of November, at father Stump's School-house. The preachers present were brothers Howard, Ray, Coats and Murray. We had a good time.—The preaching was plain, pointed and spiritual. Several came forward, asking the prayers of the Church. Two professed to find peace in believing on Christ. Four followed their Saviour into the rolling stream, and came out praising God. Four united with the Church. May the Lord keep them faithful till death. Our meeting lasted over two Sundays. The last evening we attended to the ordinances, and realized the promise of the Saviour. Pray for us. I remain your brother in Christ,

J. M. WEST.

Bethlehem Stark Co., Ohio, 1850.

Mount Sinai.

BY WM. M. H——R.

On Sinai's Mount the Lord of Sabaoth spoke,
While all its top was wreathed in fire and smoke;
The lightnings flashed—illumined all around
The lonesome wilderness and darkened ground.
All o'er its trig tful summit hung a cloud,
From which the tearful thunders uttered loud
Terrific noises o'er the frightened plain,
Which echoed and re-echoed back again.
The trumpet's voices mingled with the sound
Of mighty thunders which shook all the ground:
As from a furnace did the flames arise—
The smoky volume darkened all the skies.
Then Israel trembled and durst not behold
Where lightnings played and fearful thunders roll'd.
Then from the darkness the Almighty spake,
Which made the mountain's firm foundations shake.
Was there not one in that numerous train,
Beneath the mountain—on the desert plain—
Who could ascend the Mount through fire and smoke,
And stay Jehovah's threatened direful stroke?
Their leader did the awful scene behold;
While o'er him lightnings flashed and thunders roll'd.
His frame was paralyzed—his nerves forsook
Their wonted office, and with fear they shook.
When lo! Jehovah from out the cloud did call,
His mighty voice on Moses' ear did fall:
He summoned him where fearful lightnings play'd—
Where God in all his majesty arrayed
Did leave the lifted thunder drop; the sound
Roll'd heavily around, shaking all the ground.
Yet up he rises to the summit, where
Jehovah's lightnings dart and his fire glare:
Behold the vivid lightnings playing round
His frightful pathway as he climbs the ground
Which God Almighty's presence rested o'er;
The like of which was never known before.
There Israel on the awful mountain gazed
While ever and anon the lightnings blazed:
The thunders rumbled o'er the frightened plain,
Which terror sent throughout the wandering train.
The trumpet added, too, its hollow sound,
Frightening still the already frightened ground
A mighty voice from out the sable cloud
Proceeded, more than awful thunder loud:
The thunders answered to the awful sound,
While lightnings flashed in vivid streams around,
It filled the earth, it mounted to the sky,
It said, "THE SOUL THAT SINNETH IT SHALL DIE."

Bloomfield Furnace, Bedford Co., Pa., Nov., 1850.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

New Printing Machine.—The recent invention of Jeptha A. Wilkinson, of Providence, R. I., of a rotary printing machine, different from any other now in use, promises to work a great revolution in printing. The motions of the press are rotary, and the type being placed on cylinders, each print a separate side of the sheet.—The paper is only cut as it comes from the press, being placed on the press for printing in large rolls as it comes from the mills, and as many thousand yards in length as may be desired. The paper being taken from the mill, and of the necessary degree of dampness, is printed, cut off into sheets, and folded by the press, at the rate of 20,000 sheets an hour, requiring only men to place the rollers upon the press and remove the papers as printed, cut, and folded by the machine. Its cost is less than a double cylinder NAPIER press, and it is said to possess great advantage over any other in its effect upon the type.—Baltimore Sun.

☞ The figures expressing the number of the United States have at last been changed. The old "13" is turned round to 31.

Treatment of Scarlet Fever—Important Prescription.—Dr. Lindsly, of Washington, strongly recommends the mode of treatment of scarlet fever resorted to by Dr. Schneeman, physician to the King of Hanover. It is as follows, and exceedingly simple:

TREATMENT OF SCARLET FEVER BY INUNCTION.—From the first day of the illness, and as soon as we are certain of its nature, the patient must be rubbed morning and evening over the whole body with a piece of bacon, in such a manner that, with the exception of the head, a covering of fat is every where applied. In order to make this rubbing-in somewhat easier, it is best to take a piece of bacon the size of the hand, choosing a part still armed with the rind, that we may have a firm grasp. On the soft side of this piece slits are to be made, in order to allow the oozing out of the fat. The rubbing must be thoroughly performed, and not too quickly, in order that the skin may be regularly saturated with the fat. The beneficial results of the application are soon obvious; with a rapidity bordering on magic, all, even the most painful symptoms of the disease are allayed; quiet, sleep, good humor, appetite return, and there remains only the impatience to quit the sick room.

The New Testament in Chinese.—The Protestant Missionaries in China have nearly finished their revision of their translation of the New Testament in that difficult language. A recent letter remarks:—"We have reached the third chapter of John's Revelation, progressing about twenty verses daily. After this book, a final revision will be gone through, carefully comparing our respective copies with each other, and those with the Greek text. This last work will be the most critical and most important part of our whole labors; a part in which I feel an intense interest."

Statistics of the E. M. Church.—The statistics made up from statements returned to the Annual Conference of the Methodists, show that there are in the United States (exclusive of the Methodist Conferences which seceded a few years since at the South) 689,682 members of Methodist churches, 5,420 local and 4,129 travelling preachers. As compared with last year, these returns show an increase of 148 travelling preachers, 266 local preachers, and 27,367 members.

Improvement in Telegraphing.—It is said that the Telegraphic Monopoly in England have purchased the patent of an improved mode of telegraphing, by which all communications are rendered wholly private between the parties interested in and making them. Each correspondent writes his own message, the apparatus being so simplified that any one can operate upon it.

Trade with China.—The trade with China is increasing rapidly. It is stated by advices from California, that vessels are constantly under sail, exchanging products—California, gold and China fabrics. One hundred and fifty thousand dollars have already passed in this way from one house.

Softening Water.—A few ounces of soda will soften a hundred gallons of the hardest water. For washing, it possesses marked superiority over pot or pearl ash, giving a delicate whiteness to the linen, without the slightest injury.

Lebanon Valley Railroad.—The survey of the proposed route of this road is completed through from Harrisburg to Reading. It is to cross the Schuylkill a short distance below Reese's mill in Reading.—Operations for the grading and levelling the road will in a short time be commenced.

☞ JACOB HILL, a colord resident of Fairview township, in York county, Pa., died at his residence near Pinetown, on Thursday last, in the one hundred and eleventh year of his age! He was born in 1740—thirty five years before the Declaration of American Independence.

☞ A new Invention has appeared for the purpose of reefing topsails from the deck. With this admirable contrivance sail can be taken in, and again made, in a short time, without sending a man aloft.—It has been tried on one of the English vessels, and found to answer admirably.

☞ A newspaper is now printed in China, called the Pekin Monitor. It is in the Chinese language, and is the first paper ever published in the celestial empire.

Death of Col. Johnson.—Col. Richard M. Johnson died at Louisville, Ky., on the morning of the 19th of November, at 9 o'clock, after a brief illness.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE TWO GENEALOGIES OF OUR LORD.

Two Evangelists give us two different genealogies of our Lord. Well, that is exactly what we should have anticipated, because it is exactly what the case required. First, Matthew, writing chiefly for the Jews, gives the formal or legal genealogy—showing the line of descent of Joseph, the legal or apparent father of our Lord. Our Lord was to be shown to be legally entitled to "the throne of his father David." And this, as the name of His mother could not appear in the genealogies, must be done by proving the descent of Joseph, the husband of his mother.—Some years after, Luke, writing under St. Paul's directions, and writing for the Gentiles, gives another genealogy, showing our Lord to be actually descended, by his mother, from David and from Abraham. Both of these documents were clearly necessary. Without the first, the Jews would have held the Messiaship to be unproved; without the second, the Gentiles would have regarded the fulfilment of prophecy in his person to have been at least doubtful.—London Ch. Ob.

NECROMANCY.

"When thou art come into the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not learn to do after the abominations of those nations. There shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch, or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer. For all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord: and because of these abominations the Lord thy God doth drive them out from before thee."—Deut 18: 9-12.

A necromancer is, literally, "one that inquires of the dead.", That was one of the abominations of the heathen which God expressly forbid. The necromancers of olden time either talked with the dead, or it was a pretence of theirs. In either case it was forbidden. Would God forbid what they could not do? If they talked with the dead then, they may now. If it was a pretence then, it is now. In either case, it is an abomination that is forbidden. Again: If these rappers are real spirits, they are seducing spirits; for they deny the teachings of the Bible. They teach another Gospel than Paul preached, and are therefore to be shunned.—Advent Herald.

INSTANCES OF DILIGENCE IN READING THE SCRIPTURES.

Timothy knew the Scriptures from a child.

Aquilla and Priscilla were so well acquainted with them, that they were able to instruct the eloquent Apollos, and "expound unto him the way of God more perfectly."

Erasmus, speaking of Jerome, says, "Whoever learned by heart the whole Scriptures, or imbibed or meditated upon them, as he did?"

Tertullian, after his conversion, was engaged night and day reading the Scriptures, and got much of them by heart.

George, the prince of Transylvania, read over the Bible twenty-seven times.

Zuinglius wrote out Paul's Epistles and committed them to memory.

Dr. George used to read fifteen chapters of the Scriptures every day; five in the morning, five after dinner, and five before he went to bed.

Mr. Jeremiah Whitaker usually read all the Epistles in the Greek Testament twice every fortnight.

Joshua Barns is said to have read a small pocket Bible, which he usually carried about him, a hundred and twenty times over.

Mr. Roger Cotton read the whole Bible twelve times a year.

The celebrated Witsius was able to recite almost any passage in almost any language, together with its context; and the criticisms of the best commentators.

Sir Henry Wetton, after his customary public devotions, used to retire to his study, and there spend some hours in reading the Bible.

M. De Renty, a French nobleman, used to read daily three chapters of the Bible, with his head uncovered, and on his bended knees.

The celebrated John Locke, for fourteen or fifteen years, applied himself to the study of the Holy Scriptures, and employed the last period of his life scarcely in any thing else.

It has been the regret of several eminent men, at the close of life, that they had not studied the Scriptures with greater assiduity.—Christian Sentinel.

THE SABBATH.—An aged minister says, "If the Lord were to write special letters to church members in some places, he fears the desecration of the Sabbath would stand prominent on the list of the complaints."

We have long thought the degree of strictness with which christians observe the Lord's-day to sanctify it, is a good test of the depth and sincerity of their piety. Zealous christians are not apt to break the Sabbath.

POETRY.

A Hymn.

I

A home in Heaven, as the sufferer lies
On his bed of pain, and uplifts his eyes
To that bright home, what a joy is given,
With the blessed thought of his home in Heaven.

II

A home in Heaven, when our pleasures fade,
And our wealth and fame in the dust are laid,
And strength decays, and our health is riven,
We are happy still with our home in Heaven.

III

A home in Heaven, when the faint heart bleeds,
By the spirit's stroke of its evil deeds;
Oh, then, what a bliss in the heart forgiven
Does the hope inspire of a home in Heaven!

IV

A home in Heaven, when our friends are fled,
To the cheerless gloom of the mouldering dead;
We wait in hope on the promise given,
We will meet up there in our home in Heaven.

V

A home in Heaven, what a joyful thought,
As the poor man toils in his weary lot;
His heart is afresh with anguish driven
From his home below to his home in Heaven.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

By Divine permission, the following protracted meetings will be held on the East Cumberland Circuit, viz:

One at Shiremanstown, commencing on Saturday evening, the 21st of December, to continue over Christmas.

One at Milltown, commencing on Saturday evening, the 4th of January.

One at Basehore's, commencing on Saturday eveuing, the 11th of January.

One at Mechanicsburg, commencing on Saturday evening, the 18th of January.

The brethren in the ministry and the public generally are invited to attend.

J. Haifleigh.

A protracted meeting will be held at the Cross Roads School-house, York county, Pa., commencing on Friday evening, the 27th of December.

A protracted meeting will be held at Andersonstown, York county, Pa., to commence on the 1st of January, 1850, at 10 o'clock, A. M., and continue over Sabbath.

Another at Siddensburg, commencing on Saturday, the 17th of January.

The Preachers and brethren are invited to attend. John A. Plowman.

A protracted meeting will be held at Mount Joy, commencing on the 20th of December.

The preachers and brethren are invited to attend the above meeting. C. Price.

Another will be held at Highspire, Dauphin county, Pa., commencing on Saturday evening, the 21st of December.

The brethren in the ministry and public generally are invited to attend.

Simon Fleegal.

A protracted meeting will be held at brother Soule's, commencing on the 27th of December.

One at Landisburg, commencing on the 3d of January.

One in the Germany Bethel, commencing on the 10th of January.

The brethren in the ministry, and the public generally, are respectfully invited to attend. J. H. Hurley.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 1st inst., near Milltown, Cumberland county, by G. U. Harn, V. D. M., Mr. John Gensinger, of Fairplay, to Mrs. Caroline A. Leach, of Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 5th inst., by J. Winebrenner, V. D. M., Mr. Henry J. Gable to Miss Elizabeth Sellers, both of Londonderry township, Dauphin county, Pa.

On the 28th ult., by Elder E. H. Thomas, Mr. George Jacoby to Miss Jane Nickey, all of Hopewell township, Cumberland Co., Pa.

On the same, by the same, Mr. John Reuben Diehl to Miss Ann Catharine Ober, all of Newburg, Cumberland county. Pa.

On the 2d inst., by the Rev. W. R. De-Witt, Dr. William J. Henderson, of Philadelphia, to Miss Mary Church, of East Pennsborough, Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 10th inst., by the same, Mr. Michael M. Hoffman to Miss Annie L. Zeigler, both of East Donegal, Lancaster county, Pa.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—In New Cumberland, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 28th of November, 1850, Margaret Brady, consort of John Brady, Jr., aged 22 years, 9 months and 9 days.

Funeral services by Elder J. J. Miller.

In Wormleysburg, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 20th of November, 1850, Mary Kauffman, consort of John Kauffman, aged upwards of 24 years.

Funeral services by Elder J. J. Miller.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,				$4 12	a	4 50
Do.	Rye,	do.	- -	2 50	a	2 50
Do.	Corn,	do.	- -	2 37½	a	2 37½
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				92	a	96
Do.	Rye,	do.	- -	50	a	62
Do.	Corn,	do.	- -	45	a	50
Do.	Oats,	do.	- -	28	a	33
Do.	Barley,	do.	- -	60	a	65
SEEDS—Clover,		do.	- -	4 10	a	4 25
Do.	Timothy,	do.	- -	2 00	a	2 25
Do.	Flax,	do.	- -	1 12	a	1 12
BEEF, per cwt.			- - -	5 00	a	5 50
PORK, do.			- - -	5 00	a	5 25
HAMS, per pound,			- - -	8	a	11
BUTTER, do.			- - -	20	a	25
LARD, do.			- - -	8	a	8
TALLOW, do.			- - -	8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.				6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,			- - - -	15	a	15
POTATOES, per bushel,			- -	50	a	50
ONIONS,		do.	- -	75	a	87½
APPLES,		do.	- - -	37	a	62
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.				1 25	a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,			- -	37½	a	45
WOOL,		do.	- - -	30	a	50
SALT, per sack,			- - - -	1 35	a	1 35
HAY, per ton,			- - - - -	10 00	a	10 00
PLASTER, per ton,			- - -	4 50	a	4 75

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,				$4 75	a	5 25
Do.	Rye,	do.	-	3 00	a	3 00
Do.	Corn,	do.	- -	3 00	a	3 00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				1 05	a	1 12
Do.	Rye,	do.	- -	68	a	70
Do.	Corn,	do.	- -	65	a	65
Do.	Oats,	do.	- -	40	a	42
Do.	Barley,	do.	- -	65	a	68
SEEDS—Clover,		do.	- -	4 00	a	4 00
Do.	Timothy,	do.	- -	2 50	a	2 62
Do.	Flax,	do.	- -	1 40	a	1 50
BEEF, per cwt.,			- -	7 00	a	8 75
PORK, do.			- - - - -	7 00	a	7 25

Horses and Carriage for Sale.

The subscribers having performed their tour to the West, now offer their horses and carriage for sale, on reasonable terms.

John Winebrenner,
Geo. U. Harn.

Depositories of Our Books.

FOR the convenience of our brethren, and the public generally, we have established Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

GEO. F. GORDON, corner of 12th and Wistar streets, and BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, and LEWIS COLBY, No. 122 Nassau street, New York.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, Baltimore, Md.

JOHN H. CORNELIUS, New Berlin, Union county, Pa.

SPANGLER & BROTHER, Lancaster, Pa.

MARTIN and MENELY, Lagrange county, Indiana.

M. F. SNAVELY, North Bend, Iowa.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail Prices.
History of Denomination in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries, -	2 00
Wandering Soul, - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament, -	50
German Reference Testament, - -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
German Do., - - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, - -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - - -	25
Harn on Feet-washing, - - -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, - - -	15
Traveller's Guide to the West, - -	50

EVANGELICAL MUSIC,
FOR
CHURCHES AND SINGING SCHOOLS.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us, and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music.

☞ For sale at this office, and at our Depositories. Editor.

PROSPECTUS
OF A
New and Highly Interesting Work.

The Standing Committee, or Board of Publication of the General Eldership of the Church of God, propose publishing by subscription, a work entitled,

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES
OF THE
First One Hundred Ministers
OF THE
Church of God in North America.

These sketches will comprise a brief account of each minister's birth and education, his conversion and call to the ministry, and his travels, experience, scenes, labors and success therein, from its commencement down to the present time.

Such a work, it is believed, will be highly interesting and useful, both to parents and children, professors and non-professors of religion.

The work will contain some 5 or 600 pages, in deo descimo form, neatly printed and bound, and delivered to subscribers at $1 per copy, payable on the delivery of the book.

MISSIONARY SUBSCRIPTIONS AND DONATIONS,

FOR sustaining five Missionaries in the West—two in Iowa and three in Illinois, during the next Eldership year, commencing with April, 1851, and ending with March, 1852.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, -	- -	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	- -	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	- -	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	- -	-	10 00
Jacob Miller, -	- -	-	10 00
James Miller,	- -	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	- -	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	- -	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	-	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	- -	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	- -	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	- -	-	5 00
James Casey,	- -	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00
Susanna Myers,	- -	paid	4 00
Charles F. Long,	- -	-	5 00
Daniel R. Long,	- -	-	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of all the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. JANUARY 1, 1851. NUMBER 17.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fifteen.

Names	Am't. paid	Names.	Am't paid.
Anderson James	$1 00	Brollgenfritz	$1 00
Baker Israel	1 00	Johnston Wm	1 00
Bolch Michael	87	Johnston James	50
Beelman Geo	1 00	Kyle David	1 00
Bowser Andrew L	1 00	Kreeger Mary Ann	50
Bear Jacob	1 25	Kennedy Geo	50
Bowser Solomon	1 00	Leeds D—Doctor	5
Brandt John	1 25	Mateer Jacob	1 00
Brandt David	2 00	Mohler John	1 00
Bigham Solomon	1 00	Megrew Wm	1 00
Baker Isaac	50	Miller Geo W	1 00
Baker Catharine	50	Nauman Rebecca	1 00
Crever Henry	1 50	Owens John C vol 14	1 00
Christin James	1 50	Park John	1 00
Drumheller John	50	Petre Geo	50
Fenon Andrew J	1 00	Plank Jonathan	1 50
Ferguson Ann	1 00	Raymond Jane	1 00
Ferguson J M	1 25	Reader Wm	2 00
Fickler Samuel	1 00	Rupp David	1 25
Franks Jane	1 00	Raudabaugh Andrew	1 00
Fosnacht John	1 25	Sheader Aaron	1 00
Geese Abraham	1 00	Sherrich Henry	50
Holtz Sarah	1 00	Shaw Ahlram	60
Holms Abraham	1 50	Sheeler Henry	1 00
Hann Benjamin	1 00	Smuller Geo	2 00
Hart Geo	50	Stevick J vol 14	75
Hoover Samuel M	1 00	Taylor John	2 25
Hoover Jacob P	1 00	Thomas Wm H	1 00
Haines Wm	1 00	Young Margaret	1 00

☞ The West Pennsylvania Journal has just come to hand, but too late for this paper.

☞ Revivals are in progress in several places, which we hope to be able to report in detail in our next.

Change of Post-office Address.—Elder Abraham Snyder's Post-office Address, till spring, is Newport, Perry county, Pa.

The New Year.

In the course of revolving years, and in the gracious Providence of God, we are permitted to enter upon the year 1851. This is another New Year. It will come and go, in the flight of time, as other years have done. It may chance to be a happy year for some, and an unlucky one for others. Like as in former years, some will be born, others die—some will get rich, others poor—some will be converted, others backslide—some will rejoice, others weep—some may depart this life and go to heaven, others be driven away in their sins, and cast into hell. But, we trust, that among all the changes and vicissitudes of this mortal life, we shall have many changes from nature to grace, from sin to holiness, and from satan to God. To this end, may God's ministers and people consecrate themselves anew to God, pray and labor earnestly and faithfully for the revival of his work from the river to the ends of the earth.

Our Position on Slavery Re-Defined.

Elder A. D. Williams has come out a volunteer and undertaken to re-define our position, as a Church, on the subject of slavery, To prepare himself for this task, he first wrote to us, as may be seen in the 15th number of the Advocate, and requested us to define our true position on the slavery question; and at the same time, or since then, he has been carrying on a correspondence with some of the "leading brethren of the Eldership," as he styles them, on the same subject. Having thus collected his materials, he comes out, through the "Star," as the true and better exponent of our position on the much agitated and exciting question of American Slavery.

Now, be it known to brother A. D. Williams and all other hyper anti-slavery men and brethren, that we have neither time nor inclination for controversy on the subject of slavery; nevertheless, we claim to know the true position of the Church of God on that subject quite as well as they do down East, and can define it quite as correctly as what he can, or any one of his correspondents. However, we have no objection to him giving us his opinion also. But, in doing so, we want him to confine himself to correct and provable facts.—This, we allege, he has not done in his article contained in the 36th No. of the Star. His "material facts in the case" are far from being so "fairly stated" that no exception can be taken by either party.

In the first place, he reasons like every ultraist, as though general rules and principles never admitted of any exceptions. Take, for instance, the following, viz:

It is and must be a wonderful exercise of "Christian toleration and forbearance" that whatever "is a flagrant violation of the natural, unalienable and most precious rights of man, and utterly inconsistent with the spirit, laws, and profession of the Christian religion," should not "always, under all circumstances, furnish a sufficient bar to Christian fellowship."

Thus he reasons on the resolutions of the General Eldership. Because that body declared the "system of American Slavery" to be utterly inconsistent with the spirit, laws, and profession of the Christian religion, &c., therefore he comes to the sweeping conclusion that they intended to disallow any one, under any circumstances, who bore the relation of master to slave, to be received or retained in the Church, or to be at all entitled to the exercise of Christian forbearance and toleration. Now, I beg leave to say, that those resolutions, "according to their obvious meaning," or according to any ordinary principles of interpretation, will not bear any such constructions. Ultras only will say so.

There are other great evils in the world besides slavery. The General Eldership expressed its views, in relation to some of these, in language quite as strong as in the resolutions on slavery. Instance, the 5th and 6th resolutions on Temperance. They are as follows, to wit:

Resolved, That we consider it inconsistent for professors of Christianity in any way to countenance the traffic in intoxicating drink; and especially to assist the rum-seller to procure a license by signing his petition, which is nothing less than signing the death warrant of some poor enebriate.

Resolved, That we consider the traffic in intoxicating liquors as a drink, always sinful and demoralizing in its results; and that no man is entitled to membership in the Church of God who is engaged in it.

The same things may be said of covetousness, sectarianism, war, &c. Each of these master evils we hold to be "utterly inconsistent with the spirit, laws, and profession of the Christian religion." Peradventure the Free-will Baptists do likewise. If so, will brother Williams and his brethren apply the lash of discipline with as much severity upon these sinners in Zion as upon the slave-holding sinner? Is it true that slave-holders, under all circumstances, are sinners above all men? We say nay—sectarianism, war, &c., are greater evils than slavery. These facts are almost self-evident. At any rate, they are easily demonstrated. I ask, then, does brother Williams hold and teach that there are no mitigating circumstances that will entitle the rum-seller, the covetous man, the sectarian, and the warrior, to the exercise of Christian toleration and forbearance? Do all those who countenance any one of these evils, or rather who have any connection with them, forfeit all their claims to Christian fellowship? If these evils are utterly inconsistent with the spirit, laws, and profession of the Christian religion, (and who will dare to deny it?) then, according to brother W.'s reasoning, strange indeed, that they should not "always, and under all circumstances, furnish a sufficient and an unmistakable bar to Christian fellowship!"

Brother Williams will please define their own position next, and tell us whether down East the evils designated are in vogue, and whether all those connected with them are always, and under all circumstances, expelled from the Church? Mark! The question is not, Whether rum-selling, covetousness, sectarianism and war are evils, and utterly at war with the spirit, laws and profession of Christianity; but, whether there are no extenuating circumstances that will in any case justify the Church in fellowshipping a sectarian, a Christian soldier, or a rum-seller?

But we pass on to notice, in the next place, another statement in brother W.'s article most egregiously fallacious. It is the following:

There are some among them, who interpret these resolutions as merely forbidding those who have already become connected with the denomination from afterwards becoming connected with slavery, and not as affirming that in all cases should a person already a slave-holder be refused membership in the denomination. The principal, if not the only, ones who have openly and decidely taken this position are Messrs. Winebrenner, Harn and Mooney.

Here is a sheer error, with not a particle of the admixture of truth. By what authority does brother Williams give out such a garbled statement of our views? If his "leading men in the Eldership" have led him into this error, he had better exchange his leaders for better ones, before he undertakes the task again of expounding our views to the public.

There are various other blunders and misrepresentations contained in brother W.'s article, which we have no time and space to descant on for the present. We would conclude, therefore, by simply adding, that neither Bro. Williams nor his "most able and influential men," from whose letters he quotes, have by any means given a fair and unexceptional statement of "material facts," so as to present the public with a "true and safe index to the position of the Eldership."

That one "leading minister" used "all his influence to secure votes for the adoption of brother Harn's report on the ground of courtesy"—that he secured a number which could not have been secured any other way—that all who voted against the report, and that some, if not many, who voted for it, do believe that the relation of master to slave is in all cases a bar to Christian fellowship—that Bro. Harn cannot make good his charges against the Churches and the 30 ministers who he thinks have fellowshipped slave-holders—and above all, that brother Harn has a denomination, and that his denomination has changed its position without acknowledging it, &c., are all figments of over-heated minds, without the least iota of proof.

Western Tour.---No. 9.

JOURNAL OF THE 16TH, 17TH AND 18TH WEEKS.

SEPTEMBER 2d.—This morning we took our departure from Wooster, and set out for the Venango Camp. The first day we went to Paris, in Stark county, a distance of 41 miles. By hard driving we reached Massillon by noon, where we dined, and Paris by evening, where we received a hearty reception by Bro. Coats and family, with whom we lodged.

Here, according to appointment, we preached to a respectable congregation, in the Disciples' Meeting-house. Nothing unusual occurred, save a small encounter with one or two hypercritics. No people furnish an equal number of this class of meddlesome busybodies with the Disciples. Howbeit, truth has nothing to fear, and true Christianity never shrinks from investigation or the test of criticism.

September 3d.—We pursued our journey to brother Joseph Anglemyer's, near Columbiana, where we held meeting in the evening. The congregation was good, considering the short notice.

September 4th.—Started for Fiatville, Lawrence county, Pa., where we met with brother J. M. Klein, and preached before the Church in that place in the evening. There is a fine set of brethren at this place. The West Pa. Eldership will be held here this fall.

September 5th.—This day the Venango Camp-meeting commenced. Accordingly we started for the Camp, and got there some time after-night. Here we found some 15 or 16 tabernacles pitched, tenanted by some 20-odd families. The weather was remarkably fine during the whole time of the meeting. The congregations were large and well-behaved, especially on Saturday and Sabbath. Brother Harn and ourself did nearly all the preaching. Some 10 or 15 professed conversion. But, doubtless, many more might have been converted, had it not been for a few Achan's in the Camp.

There is a much better country in this part of Pennsylvania than we were aware of. The Church, also, is more numerous than we knew of; and though we had a few things to regret, yet on the whole we were highly pleased and gratified with our trip to the Venango Church and people.

On Wednesday morning the Camp-meeting broke up, and truly it was a solemn time.—That day we dined with brother Ross—took supper with brother Yard, and then went and stayed over night with brother Ayres, formerly of York county. Brother Ayres and family are among the pioneers of the Church in that country.

September 12th.—Left brother Ayres and family, and started for Evensburg, in Butler county, where we had an appointment to preach in the evening. Our congregation was large and very attentive.

On arriving at brother Berkey's we missed my Carpet-bag. We concluded that it had either been left at brother Ayres', or was stolen from our wagon, on the way; for we could not imagine how else it was possible to lose it. But, by writing back, and instituting a search for it, through our friends, it was ascertained that the bag had neither been left nor stolen, but dropped by some means on the way, for it was discovered in possession of an honest farmer, in the neighborhood of Harrisonville, who alleged that he found it in the road, about two miles below the village. No sooner than it was heard from, Sister Ayres took her horse and went for it, and by paying the small pittance of fifty cents, she recovered it safe and sound, with all its contents. According to instruction, she had it sent on to Pittsburg, from whence it was forwarded by express. This circumstance explains the reason of the delay of our Journal. Sister Ayres, brother Berkey and others, will please accept our thanks, for their kindness in aiding us to recover our lost bag.

September 13th.—From Evensburg we went to Old Harmony, and preached there in the evening. The congregation was large and attentive, but nothing special. Stayed with brother Shontz over night.

September 14th.—We went to Pittsburg, and finding that our appointments were not to begin till Sabbath morning, we passed on, some six miles into the country, and stopped with brother Snyder.

September 15th.—This morning, being the Sabbath of the Lord, we returned to Pittsburg and preached, at 10 o'clock, A. M., in the Protestant Methodist Chapel—at 3 o'clock, P. M., in a Baptist Meeting-house, and at night in a Methodist house, in Allegheny city. On Monday and Tuesday we visited round among old friends and acquaintances.

September 18th.—We left brother Snyder's and went to brother Hess', in Washington county, where we tarried over night.

September 19th.—Went to West Newton, on the Youghigheny—stopped with brother Hecht, and preached in the Methodist Meeting-house, both in English and German.

September 20th.—From thence we proceeded to Bethany, in Westmoreland county, where we joined brothers Logue and Wertz, in holding a protracted meeting. This meeting resulted in the conversion of some ten or twelve precious souls.

On Tuesday, the 24th of September, we took leave of our brethren at Bethany and started for home, where we arrived, in health and safety, on Saturday, the 28th, and found our dear friends well and hearty, and in readiness to welcome us home.

We feel grateful to God for permitting us to perform this long journey to the West, with so much pleasure and satisfaction to ourselves, and we trust, with a good degree of benefit and gratification to the thousands and tens of thousands to whom we were permitted to preach the "good Word of God."

We were absent from home four months and eight days; during which time we travelled about 2500 miles, preached 124 sermons, passed through six States, and 217 cities and towns.

Our travelling expenses amounted to $92 65, and our receipts, in the shape of collections, &c., to $120 75—so that by the time we sell off our team, we shall probably be about whole; having, temporally, neither loss nor gain, except that of wear and tear. Thus, then,

The Lord our help has been,
Our lives He hath prolonged;
Giv'n us on earth to meet again,
With nothing lost or wronged.

We feel much obliged to our numerous friends and brethren, with whom we stopped, for their kind hospitalities, and their marked attentions to our wants and necessities.—Brethren, "Grace be with you all." And now, "To God only wise, be glory through Jesus Christ forever. Amen."

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

Baptismal Query Again.

LANDISBURG, Pa., Nov. 18, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

In the Advocate of the 15th ultimo, I perceive five mortal columns from the pen of Theophorus, alias Elder G. U. Harn, in reply to my last. Mortal they must be, because they are completely suicidal to himself, and have well nigh demolished us to boot. He calls me a Puseyite—a weak minded and silly one; and that my theory is bordering on the absurd. Such, I presume, is a specimen of his celestial courtesy.

Elder Harn would fain make the readers of the Advocate believe that he was no volunteer in this discussion—that he was solicited, &c.; in proof of which he says I solicited the editor, or some of the co-editors or contributors, to answer the query. So I did. That query was first answered by the editor, and after that by one of the contributors. Is he not, then, unsolicited? Does he not, after a discussion of eight months, step forward and virtually say to the editor and to that contributor, stand back, boys—you know nothing at all! I am the man that can do it up brown!

I cannot follow him through his episodes and reply in detail, or stop to argue all the topics introduced into the discussion by Bro. H., but will come directly to the point at issue: and,

I. Examine the testimony adduced in support of his position. And,

II. Show the laxity of his theory, with its attendant absurdities.

I proceed, then, first, to examine his testimony. Bro. Harn (after positively declaring that he has nothing to prove) proceeds to give us the testimony by which he endeavors to support his position. He refers to Acts 8: 4, as the first witness in support of his doctrine of lay baptism—an instance, says he, in which baptism was performed by persons who were neither Apostles, nor Bishops, nor Elders.—After referring to the persecution of the Church at Jerusalem, the word says, "Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word." The word here rendered preaching signifies the telling of good news—which every Christian has a right to do. They therefore went telling the world what great things the Lord had done for them.

But, does Elder Harn believe that the word evangelizomenoi, translated preaching in this instance, means preaching in the official or technical sense of the word? If so, why then the women, as well as the men, became public speakers. This he will not maintain. Yet both were scattered abroad preaching the word. But, after all, there is not a single word said about baptism in all he has quoted here; and besides, the question is, whether baptism is valid when administered by an unbaptized layman? What, then, is this argument worth? Why, absolutely nothing. But, as it is one of the stereotyped arguments of the advocates of the lax and irrational doctrine of lay baptism, it had to come, right or wrong. Yet everybody, except those who use it, can see it proves nothing.

His second argument is gleaned from Acts 11: 19. He cites but one verse—however, he reads three. And what do we learn there? Why, they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word—or at least as far as Phenicia, Cyprus and Antioch—and the hand of the Lord was with them, &c., (21st verse.) And yet here, again, not one word is said about baptizing. But, like his first argument, it is stereotyped, and must be given. In the succeeding verse it is said, "Then tidings of these things came to the ears of the Church which was in Jerusalem: and they sent forth Barnabas, that he should go as far as Antioch." But, says brother Harn, there were none at Jerusalem but the Apostles. Well, be it so: Then they, i. e. the Apostles sent Barnabas as far as Antioch:—and for what purpose?—Why, that they of Antioch might be added to the Lord. For it is said in the 24th verse, that he (Barnabas) was a good man, full of faith and the Holy Ghost, and much people was added unto the Lord. Now, the Apostle Barnabas was doubtless sent to set things in order, and of course to baptize. At any rate, this is more reasonable to suppose, than to suppose that private members did it. But, in the 25th verse it is said, "Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus, for to seek Saul: and when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch." And for what was he thus brought? Why, to help Barnabas to teach the people. But, says brother Harn, "If they were baptized at all, it must have been done by unofficial hands." Well, if so, why was Barnabas and Saul sent for? Were they unofficial ministers?

His third proof is, that Philip baptized the Eunuch and the Samaritans: and he (Philip) was nothing but a Deacon of the Church. I presume that he learned it in the third epistle of Peter, which he informs us he once read in his time. But is it true that Philip was only a Deacon? Who believes it? I don't, neither does brother Harn, or anybody else, for it comes in contact with the Scriptures of truth. We have some information respecting Philip which completely nullifies this argument, in Acts 21: 8. "And the next day we that were of Paul's company departed, and came unto Cesarea; and we entered into the house of Philip the Evangelist, which was one of the seven, and abode with him." He once filled the office of Deacon, it is true. But, that was when he was one of the seven; afterward he was an Evangelist. Now, will brother Harn deny that it was after that, that he went forth preaching and baptizing? I trow not.

Brother Harn's fourth argument in favor of lay baptism is, the fact that Ananias baptized Paul; and he says he was only a certain disciple. In the first place, does that prove that he was not a regular minister? Were not the Apostles called disciples? Although none of the twelve, yet was he not especially commissioned by the God of Heaven? Here, then, you perceive that his own witnesses have been turned against him. He must have been trying to play a splendid hoax upon the readers of the Advocate, or else dreaming some golden dream. But his neighbor cometh in search of him. I come now to notice,

II. The laxity of his theory, with its attendant absurdity. And here I would say, in the language of brother Harn, that it is an axiom in logic, that when the legitimate result of a proposition tends to absurdity, it is self-evidently false. Such is the theory advocated by brother Harn.

Brother Harn has labored very hard, and worked himself into a fever, to prove one of the most absurd theories ever propagated.—But, not being able to find proof in the New Testament in favor of lay baptism, he challenges me to show one single instance where ever the rite was administered by a Bishop, or Elder, under the Christian dispensation.—Surely brother Harn must be hard run. But, to gratify him, I will give him one case. I recollect some very appropriate remarks, made by brother Harn, some eight years ago, on the subject of baptism, in the presence of more than two thousand persons, convened on the banks of the Antetam Creek, in Maryland, at the time that I was baptized: at which time and place he told us that Peter baptized Cornelius and his household, and that Peter also baptized on the day of Pentecost. Now, this same Peter informs us that he is also an Elder. 1 Peter 5: 2. Will this satisfy brother Harn? My weakness, perhaps, is not quite as weak as he has thought. I still insist that Bishops or Elders have the exclusive right to administer the rite of baptism. The commission gives it to them. The fact of Christ's establishing the order of the ministry, excludes all others from exercising the ministerial functions.—What is an ordinance? Why, Elder Harn himself speaks out on this subject in his little book on Feet-washing, page 9, and informs us that it is a secondary or subordinate law. Well, if a law, it must have an administrator, legally qualified and set apart, as well in the code of Zion, as in the statute code. Let us apply it to the law of the land. We will suppose a case. Brother Theophorus imagines himself a constable with an imaginary precept in his hand, from an imaginary justice of the peace. He seizes upon a certain man's property, exposes it at public auction, and although the claim is just, yet is the act legal? No. And why not? Why, because brother Harn is no qualified administrator of that law. The act is null, and the imaginary self-constituted constable is a transgressor, a spoiler of the man's goods. All laws, whether civil or ecclesiastical, must have administrators. Hence, then, we have Harn against Harn—he contradicts himself. What then, is his argument worth? Why, absolutely nothing.

But, he accuses me with the crime of using a stereotyped argument of the Pedoes, with regard to his theory, permitting men, women and children to baptize, a something for which, says he, I never contended. Now, it belongs to his base theory. He cannot get out of it. But he can see the anarchical and absurd tendency of it, therefore he is ashamed of it. He disclaims it; but, sir, I hold him to it. My charge is legal. If lay baptism is recognized in the law of God, why then all the members, whether male or female, are empowered with equal rights and privileges. God is no respecter of persons. It then follows that all have the same right. John, who embraced religion yesterday, at the age of fourteen, baptizes Henry, who, at the age of twelve, professes faith to-day. Henry is fully authorized to immerse Jacob, who professes faith at the age of eleven. Sarah embraces religion at the age of thirteen, and feels herself authorized to baptize Ellen, who professes faith at the age of ten. And who, according to Bro. Harn's theory, has a right to forbid them? Nobody. But, says brother Harn, they may only do it in a case of necessity. So, then: but who is to determine when the necessity of the case demands it? Oh! what a theory!

But, I am pleased to see brother Harn's admission, that although they have a right, the exercise of that right is not always prudent. But, is this true? Is it imprudent to do what God commands us? If so, I confess that I am ignorant of the definition of the term prudence.

If brother Harn's position with regard to lay baptism is true, what anarchy and disorder there would be in the Church of Christ!—There is too much already; but permit every irresponsible man and woman to administer the laws, and it will be far worse still. I, sir, oppose his lame theory, because the Bible, reason and common sense are against it. It is a principle in natural philosophy, that if you remove the cause, the effect must cease.—Then, with the Bible in my hand, I shall oppose all such absurd theories, which strike at all Church organization, like this does; and if all the friends of Zion would do so, anarchy and confusion would be removed, and Zion would lengthen her cords and strengthen her stakes, and with her well disciplined troops, she would go forth, "fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners." May Heaven speed the day when heterodoxy shall fall, and sound Bible doctrine prevail throughout the world.

Yours, as ever,
J. H. HURLEY.

A Moral Essay.

"And Ruth said, Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God: Where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried: the Lord do so to me, and more also, if aught but death part thee and me."—Ruth 1: 16, 17.

THERE never was any thing more happily conceived, or more sweetly told, than the book of Ruth. It seems chiefly designed to exhibit to us a lively and high-colored and richly decorated picturesque of the irresistible power and indescribable force of female friendship and attachment on the one hand, and the weakness of resolution, when opposed by custom, on the other. The general circumstances of this history being uncommonly fine, will evidently speak best for themselves, and will afford proper comments in the progress of studying them. When the famine raged with much severity in her native land, Naomi and her husband, Elimelech, and their two sons, went to sojourn in the country of Moab: but Elimelech died, and Naomi, the widow, was left with two sons. Soon after this, those sons took them wives of the women of Moab. The name of the one was Orpah and the other Ruth.

It came to pass that the young men, their husbands, died also, both of them; and now the poor widow was bereaved of her two sons and her husband.

Unable, therefore, to bear any longer a place in which every scene presented some image of lost endearment, or revived some distracting idea of conjugal or maternal tenderness, she resolved to seek solace from her excessive sorrow by change of residence. (And I would here observe, that none but those who are thus situated, can comprehend its result.) So she arose with her daughters-in-law, Orpah and Ruth, that she might return from the country of Moab.

It presently occurred to the poor woman, as she was journeying on her way, that if she was herself unhappy, it was no testimony of her affection to involve her son's wives in equal calamities; and judging the reception she would be likely to meet in the land of Judah, entering it desolate, unfriended, and unadorned, she paused a moment, and thus pathetically addressed the young widows: Go, my children, each of you return to your mother's house: the Lord deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead, and with me. The Lord grant that ye may find rest, each of you, in the house of your dear deceased husband. Having uttered this short prayer for their happiness, she kissed them, and prepared to depart alone. How true to nature was their reply. They did not pour forth unmeaning compliments of condolence. They did not interchange any idle civilities of sorrow, for their anguish was too sincere for ceremony. Neither did they enter into the parade of promising future interviews, for they spoke not at all. The extreme of grief has at its first surprise, little to do with language; at the most, it burst into short exclamations, as if it would show the impossibility of proceeding: for our alleviation, therefore, in these cases, that power, who to every wound hath provided something wherewith to heal it, gave the comfort of tears; so that the fulness of the sad heart is, in part, discharged by that kindly effusion which Providence has intended as a fountain to relieve the excesses of nature, either in the surplus of misery or transport. They lifted up their voice and wept. After some time passed in this kind of significant silence, they said unto her: Surely we will return with thee unto thy people. Perceiving the design of the daughters, the widow woman, Naomi, again began to dissuade them, and to press their speedy return. She painted the various disasters they would be liable to in her company—told them she had no more sons to give them for husbands—nor even a hut, however uncheery and forlorn, to accommodate them with in her own country; and furthermore, that she had not wherewithal to repose her own weary head upon, if, after the fatigues of travel, she should haply arrive safe.

And now she once more pressed the women in a farewell embrace, whilst she closed her argument with another blessing more melting even than the first. Nay, my daughters, weep not, I entreat you. It grieveth me more for your sakes than my own, that the hand of the Lord hath gone out against me. This was the grand touch-stone. She had now fairly discovered all the horrors of her situation, and showed herself a distressed woman without accommodation, a traveller without any hope of rest at the end of her journey, and withal a disconsolate widow, without any one to take her by the hand and say unto her, Welcome, welcome, thou unfortunate one, welcome again to thine own country; come, come, we congratulate you on your return to your beloved and long sought-for country. The picture was too darkly shaded for Orpah. The dread of poverty, and all its sable catalogue of fierce terrors, struck her at once. She shed the tribute of a few more tears, sacrificed a few more sighs, and thus went her way.

Not so the affectionate Ruth. How excellently marked, and that by a single word, is the conduct of each. Orpah kissed her mother-in-law, but Ruth clave unto her. Orpah kissed her mother-in-law, i. e. she gave her a farewell embrace, wept a moment's sorrow, and left her mother to wander over the domains of the world. But Ruth clave unto her affectionate mother. Struck to the heart at the prospect of seeing her endearing friend and parent no more, and still calling to memory the thousand endearments which had formerly made so precious her society, and even feeling some additional sympathy from being involved in a great calamity which arose from the mischances of one house, and one family, she endured not the idea of her departure. So far otherwise, indeed, that she clave unto her, i. e. clung round her neck, kissed her with zeal and ardor, as if she designed to leave the seal of her very soul impressed on her lips forever. In vain did the noble-minded Naomi exhibit to her the various miseries that were at hand, and against which there was no comfortable provision. In vain did she point to the example of Orpah, her sister. In scorn of such conduct, and to close at once all future dissuasions, she thus declared, to the eternal honor of her sex, the glowing resolutions of her soul: "Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God."

The whole beauty and force of this passage is not seen at once: it is a very free climax, and there is an amazing elegance in the gradations. The full sense implied seems to branch out in this manner: She begins with desiring Naomi to urge the subject of separation no longer, since she has fully and completely made up her mind upon it. This is the first and slightest part. In the next place she unfolds her first design to follow her fortunes, in whatever part of the habitable globe she thinks proper to pursue them. But, not thinking this sufficiently expressive of her affection, she resolves to take up her abode in the same house with her, to lodge under the same roof, however poor, and however destitute, and thus to share the same fate. After this she resolves to know no other people than such as are equally the common friends of both, to enter into no attachments but those which are united by the same tender ties to her dear Naomi, and to form no connections whatever that can in the least derogate from the love she bore to her. For [illegible] attained to these assurances: for she goes on with the same determination, declaring that her very religion shall be the religion of her dear friend and mother—that one faith, one prayer, and one hope shall exhilarate, inspire and animate their constant devotion, and that the God of one shall inevitably be the God of the other. Even this does still not satisfy her, for she next determines not only to go with her the pilgrimage of life, but even attend her beyond the gate of death, to die with her dear Naomi, should it be her Naomi's lot to fall first, and to be buried at last in the same grave; and this she confirmed by an immediate oath of the utmost importance and sanctity among the daughters of Judah, The Lord God do so to me, and more also, if aught but death (she might have said, if death itself) part thee and me.

This love fully flowing animates our hearts,
This love is still abounding, in every place and part:
This love can never be ended, though faith and hope should cease;
This love can never be bounded, but ever will increase.
This love the world knows not, it ever is the same:
This love we want more fervency, to love and receive the Lamb:
This love has us together, and makes us of one soul;
This love is the balm of Gilead, it makes the wounded whole

SAMUEL M. HOOVER.

Carlisle, Pa., Nov. 6, 1850.

Decision.

DECISION has been a striking characteristic of many eminent persons in various ages of the world, and one which has probably done more to exalt them to honor and usefulness, as well as to secure to their names a prominent place on the pages of History, than any other. It has seated them on the pinnacle of fame, and caused their doings to be renowned throughout the world and transmitted to the remotest years of posterity. Decision, or, in other words, firmness and stability of mind, is certainly very essential to man, in order to vouchsafe to him such a passport through this life, as becomes the dignity of a rational and intelligent being, whom his Creator has endowed with faculties and intellectual powers only a little lower than the angels of Heaven. But these blessings and privileges are too commonly neglected, and the "talents" which God has given us, instead of being improved and enlarged, are "hid in the earth," and like the diamond in the mine, covered with rubbish and obscured from the eye; and, consequently, its worth and beauty are never known or beheld. But the object here in view is, to give an idea of decision, and then to show its importance, not merely in all the affairs of this life, and the good results flowing from it; but, more properly, that which concerns our profession, viz: evangelical decision.

First, then, evangelical decision consists in exerting ourselves to arrive at or obtain the truth or certainty of a matter, and then rigidly, firmly, unyieldingly to adhere to it, to advocate and to defend it. But we should examine a subject well, consider its mutual bearings, and be able to behold in it a perfect harmony and agreement with the word of God and the Divine attributes, before we make the decision. We will here adduce a few examples from the Scriptures. When Neduchadnezzer, king of Babylon, issued a decree, commanding all the subjects of his empire to fall down and worship the golden image which he had caused to be made, under the penalty of being cast into a burning fiery furnace, heated seven-fold, there were three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, who were servants of the Most High, and refused to comply with the dangerous decree; being decided to worship none but the God of Heaven. They cared not what the result would be; they determined not to dishonor the name of Jehovah, in order to please men; or preserve their lives and honor. They trusted in Him whom they served, knowing that He was able to deliver. And truly they trusted not in vain; for when they were cast into the furnace, God was in their midst and preserved them, so that after they were left out there was not so much as the smell of fire on their clothes.

Again, there was a Daniel, who was cast into the lions' den under similar circumstances; but the Almighty did not suffer the ferocious beasts to lay hold of him, nor harm him in the least. But when he was taken out and his enemies thrust in, behold! they were torn to pieces instantly, before reaching the bottom of the den.

Paul also, though persecuted in almost every possible way, beaten and cast into prison, held fast to his integrity. When in prison, he and Silas prayed and sang praises to God at midnight, and suddenly all the doors were opened and their bands loosed. This had a good effect; for the same night the jailor and his household believed and were baptized.—Though threatenings and denunciations were heaped upon him wherever he went, yet he ceased not to preach the Gospel, and to proclaim the truth with boldness and decision. Yea, in the midst of his afflictions his language was: "But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself." Acts 20: 24. Many others of this class might be mentioned, such as Moses, Job, Luther, the Martyrs, &c. Hold fast that which is good, and obey God rather than men. This is Christian, this is evangelical decision.

Such decision is necessary to ensure success in any undertaking. We should take a decided stand on the side of truth and right; and though we are persecuted, let us remember "they that would live godly in Christ Jesus must suffer persecution," and "if God be for us, who shall be against us!" All that have exercised decision like this, have found it a benefit, and have known it to have a salutary influence on mankind. Upon the decision of a moment frequently hangs our eternal destiny. Christian, be decided that you will live for God, and endeavor to answer the end of your creation: oh, strive with all your ransomed powers to obtain a crown of immortal glory! And thou, sinner, be entreated to decide quickly, that you will seek salvation, before the day of grace is forever fled. Decide from this time forth to serve the Lord. Delay not a single hour. Procrastination has ruined thousands and tens of thousands. This state of probation will soon be o'er, then why will you still delay! "What thou doest do quickly." Make haste, then, to lay hold of eternal life.

A. FRIESE.

Study.

"I know what study is; it is to toil
Hard through the hours of the sad midnight watch,
At tasks which seem a systematic curse,
And course of bootless penance."

Paul was an educated man, wherefore he was a puissant palladium to the Gospel. That "Knowledge is power," was as clearly known then as it is now. And he was well versed in all the minutiæ of the law and the prophets. He prostrated all his foes, whenever they contended for error, and his influence was widespread and commanding. Paul was brought up at the feet of Gamaliel; in a word, he had applied himself to study. Now, he loved Timothy greatly, and consequently looked to the future welfare and success of him whom he affectionately styles his son: hence he commands him to "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." And the admonition is applicable now. Steam and electricity are making us a rapidly progressive people, and he that neglects study, will soon be left most disgracefully in the back ground.

Judging from some sermons, we are inclined to think, that study is left wholly out of the question by many. At least, their improvement is a mathematical fraction. Not a new idea is added to the little stock of knowledge they set out with, and in a little time, we find them an entire budget of obsolete ideas. Unfit to instruct others, because they have failed to instruct themselves; and others are preferred before them, because they were not diligent in studying. A grand reason that some men do not become more useful and better informed, is their habitual laziness. We have noticed many in this category daily lounging in stores, much to the chagrin and inconvenience of the merchant and his customers; frequently making inappropriate remarks, and vulgar prevarications; conversation pre-eminently calculated to foster irreligion. Would not prudence dictate that they should stay at home, study, and "redeem the time?" Then the community would be edified, and the minister respected. "Be ye wise as serpents, and harmless as doves."

To study requires resolution, dogged resolution, but it soon becomes a fixed habit, and like all other habits, when once established, will not be very easily broken in upon. But to act the drone, is a habit just as readily acquired, and hard to get rid of. We see two men, with similar talents, start forth in life; one determines to study, and daily increases in wisdom and understanding; in fine, he becomes brilliant, and his sermons are captivating, instructive, and solid; the other acts the sluggard, and soon none will hear his discourses, because they are stolid and inane productions, destitute of pith. Application made the difference between them. Arouse, then, ye lazy folks! Gird on the armor of activity, and resolve that since God has given you an intellect, that you will improve it. If you have made an armistice with sloth, break it speedily.

Any man to be useful must be diligent, otherwise he will not make any progress.—But above all, ministers ought to improve most rapidly, forasmuch as they have much time to study. And those that have but one appointment, are reprehensible in the highest degree, if they do not study. They have time, and should not waste it. If, however, a man's talents are but ordinary, and particularly dull in comprehending and analyzing first principles, he has a magnificent opportunity to brighten his rusty ideas on a circuit, for he ought certainly get them in splendid time by re-preaching. Though some have told me, they never could improve a discourse after having once preached it. The reason is, they probably did not try. Ample room is thus given to lop off, add to, and systemize it.—Some minds are fitly compared to a rusty button, they need scouring, and if rubbed well with polishing powder, will shine most brilliantly. Again, others have all their polish outside; touch these gently, or you will expose their foibles and deceptions. G. R.

Elizabethtown, Pa., Dec. 6, 1850.

A little more about the Far West.

November 20, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I did not expect so soon to intrude upon your readers another, perhaps, interesting narrative concerning the Hawk-eye State. But, since my last communication, matters and things have taken a change from what they were last spring. I must confess I spoke somewhat hard of this new country then; but this was all owing to my peculiar circumstances, being unsettled, and withal a little touch of home-sickness. But now I am located on the bluff of the Iowa bottom, near the Iowa River, in a pleasant, healthy and fertile part of the country, in Louisa county. I am now making preparations to engage in the stock raising business. I have lately got through making Prairie hay. This may seem an odd time of the year for hay-making to some of the Eastern folks: but there is a kind of grass here, that the later it is cut the better it is, providing it is got up without frost or rain. I have bought corn for feeding at four dollars per acre, standing in the field. I have also bought the best of corn at 15 cents per bushel, delivered in the crib. And, I am informed that some of the feeders have bought it at 10 cents per bushel, by taking a hundred or more acres on the ground.

Before I proceed farther, I must tell you that we were somewhat disappointed at Grandview this summer. We expected you and brother Harn would have paid us a visit, but we were not so fortunate. We thought that you would certainly strike a straight line from Iowa City to Grand-view, cross the Iowa River at Wapello, and then keep along the Mississippi to Burlington. But by taking the southern route from Iowa City, you missed seeing a beautiful section of country, through Louisa county. At Grand-view you would have met with quite a number of old Pennsylvanians. Amongst whom are brothers Solomon and Henry Wagoner, from Fishing Creek, Dauphin county; brother J. J. Doman and Joseph Martin, from the same place; and last, but not least, our old friend and brother, William Hinkle, from Paul's Valley, Dauphin county.

Now, a few words to our friends and brethren in the East, who contemplate pitching their tents beyond the western waters. Burlington, in Desmoin county, and Muscatine City, in Muscatine county, are the two chief landings on the upper Mississippi, for Iowa. The emigration from Burlington takes back to Henry, Washington and Keokuck counties; and from Muscatine City the emigrants take up to Cedar, Jones, Linn and Johnson counties: thus they miss seeing this great grazing and farming country, in Louisa county, which lies right in the centre; and this is all for not being informed of the landing, lately established at Port Louisa, in said county. Now, friends, we wish you to hold up at Port Louisa, and take a jaunt up the country for five or ten miles, and view the vast rich Prairies yet uncultivated. Remember, friends, this is a river county, and near the market; and better land you cannot find, I care not where you go.—Speculator's, or second-hand land, can be had at three dollars per acre, timber and Prairie. You need not be alarmed at the large Prairies, thinking that there is no timber to fence it. It is true, fencing timber may get scarce in course of time. There is an agent for the Orange-thorn company in Columbus City.—He will plant the thorn at 50 cents per rod, and will guarantee that in three years' time the fence shall turn any kind of stock, from a sucking pig up to an ox. No pay is required until the expiration of the three years. Wire fence can also be erected at 40 cents per rod.

Moreover, friends, as we all know that opposition is the life of trade, therefore we wish some of our speculating friends would come on, and locate at Muscatine City, and some at Port Louisa, and engage in the pork, grain, lumber and dry-goods business. It is for the want of more dealers in the above-named articles, that the interest of the farmer is held in the hands of a few large speculators. We do not begrudge our speculating friends a good living, and a reasonable profit; but we leave it to your honest selves to judge whether 20,000 dollars is not too much for one man to make in the short space of six months. Now, off whom is this money made? Off the farmer. Yes, off the industrious tiller of the soil. Thus, by too few dealing men, the mouth of the ox that thrashes out the corn is kept muzzled. I know men plenty in the East, and I can hardly forbear mentioning their names, who do business with a capital of from four to eight thousand dollars, in crowded places; and at the year's end have a little above a living. How much better would they do by investing their capital on the banks of the Mississippi.

This is a very pleasant fall in Iowa. The weather is mild, and the large fires on the Prairies keep a constant smoke around us. Sometimes it is so thick that it darkens the sun. The river is very low. The steamer Oswego has been ten days out from St. Louis to Muscatine City.

I remain yours respectfully,

A. H. KAUFFMAN.

New Testament Words.---No. 2.

The next word to which I would call the attention of the readers of the Advocate, is the word—

ABBA.—1. This word signifies Father, or willing Father. It is said to he "a Syriac appellation, from the Hebrew word ab, which comes from abba, he was willing ; denoting that a father wills all good to his children." It is evident that Abba means willing, from Christ's prayer concerning the cup, (Mark 14: 36,) where he says, "willing Father, all things are possible to thee." His meaning appears to be this, O! my Father, thou who art willing that that should be done which is best ; if it is thy will, that I should not pass through what is now before me, "save me from this hour;" if not, O! my Father, I submit to thy will ; even to drink the very dregs of this cup.

2. The word Abba is also used to express the manner in which the Apostles prayed. Rom. 8: 15.—"For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear ; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father." Here we see that the Apostle told his brethren that they had received the Spirit of adoption, and that the Spirit of adoption which the saints at Rome had received, was the same Spirit that taught the Apostles to cry, Abba, or willing Father: so that they might easily know whether they had received the Spirit of God, or not.

3. This word is used to show the manner in which the saints at Galatia prayed, having received the Spirit of God to direct them. Gal. 4: 6.—"And because ye are sons, God sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba Father." The Spirit always leads God's children to pray in humble submission to the Divine will.

How pleasing this word appears, as used by our blessed Lord, his Apostles, and his ancient Saints! The Spirit which was given to Christ without measure, led Him to pray Abba, or willing Father! The same Spirit led the Apostles to imitate their Master, and led the saints to imitate Christ and the Apostles ; and the same Spirit now leads real Christians to imitate Christ, the Apostles, and the ancient saints, who in all their prayers said, "Thy will be done on earth, as it is done in Heaven."

Oh! that the same Holy Spirit may lead all the readers of the "Advocate" to "pray without ceasing, and in everything to give thanks," and to live in humble submission to the will of our Divine Master.

Yours truly,

WM. JOHNSTON.

Letter from Chas. F. Long.

Fair-View, Fulton Co., Ill., Nov. 7, 1850.

Mr. Editor :—

I take the privilege to address a few lines to you and the readers of the Church Advocate, (that glorious messenger which brings so much glad tidings to many souls in the West,) to inform our friends in the East of our location, &c., in the West.

We left Springville, Lancaster county, Pa., April 23d, 1849, destined for Copperas Creek Landing, on the Illinois River, in this county; which we safely reached May 11th, in the morning at 5½ o'clock ; and from thence we proceeded into the country, in search of Bro. Daniel Long, and found him and his family all well. They then resided 2½ miles north of Canton, and about 12 miles west of the Illinois River, but have since removed : they now live near a small village called Troy, in this county. His Post-office address is Troy Mill P. O., Fulton county, Illinois. During the summer of 1849, I resided with brother D., and during that time and since I have been permitted to read your paper, the Church Advocate.—Among many other things which I loved to read, I frequently discovered letters from Iowa, with which I was highly pleased, with one exception : He (Mr. S.) in one of his letters represents the waters of Iowa as being very good, and those of Illinois as being very bad. I think the gentleman has gone a little too far in his remarks, by including the whole of those States. I might say the same of Iowa that he has said of Illinois ; but I do not wish to include the whole of those States: I merely wish to let the people in the East know my experience upon this matter.

We have good water in this place ; and last summer I took a tramp to see the country, in company with several other young men, who came with me to this country. We started from this place and travelled westward through McDonough and Hancock counties, to Nauvoo, and found good land and water all the way. At Nauvoo we crossed the Mississippi to Montrose, in Iowa. After leaving Montrose, we soon all got thirsty, and stopped at a house to get a drink ; but lo! the water was so bad that we could hardly drink it. From thence we travelled into Iowa a short distance, and back to the Mississippi at Keokuck. During that time we had bad water all the time, and at some places could not get any water at all. At Keokuck we took a steamboat and came down to Quincy : from thence we travelled home, through Adams, Marquette, Brown and Schuyler counties, and again had good water all the way. I have since also been to Mason, Peoria and Knox counties, and I found good water wherever I travelled in this State. Although I would not attempt to say that the water through the whole State of Illinois is as good as it is in those counties just mentioned; neither would I say that all the water in Iowa is as bad as that which I tasted. As far as I have travelled throughout this country, in my estimation it cannot be excelled in beauty and natural fertility by any part of the United States. And Illinois, with all the remaining portions of the Great West, holds out strong inducements to emigrants from the East ; and I suppose this portion of the West is settling up as fast as any other.

This part of the country has improved very much since I am here. When I first came here, to this place, hundreds and thousands of acres of Prairie lands, which had been laying open and in a state of nature, around this place, and between this place and Canton, which is 10 or 11 miles south-east from here, have been taken up and improved. At present, if I want to go to Canton, I have to angle all the way ; there is not one piece of Prairie open to cross, and the same way all around the country. The country is rapidly improving in buildings, and in almost every thing else. Lumber can now be bought in this place.

To those wishing to emigrate to this country, I would say, you should consider the disadvantages, as well as the advantages, of coming to a new country. Before you leave your native homes for a strange land, consider within yourselves whether you would like to live in a cabin or small house, and be content to live as the people in this country live, until you can make better improvements for yourselves. This I state, because there are so many who come to the West, thinking that this is a country which flows with milk and honey, and make large calculations how good they are going to live and take the world easy; but when they get to the West and find themselves disappointed, then they get sick of the country, and some of them return to the East again. Although game, such as prairie hens, ducks, geese, turkeys, and deer, abound in large numbers, yet you need not expect when you come here that they will come running or flying to you roasted, with knife and fork sticking in them, ready for you to go to work and eat. Nay, verily, without your own exertions you cannot obtain anything in this country any sooner than in the land of your nativity. And what reason have we to think that we can gain either worldly or heavenly treasures in a strange land, or any land, unless we exert ourselves ?

But, to wind up this part of my letter, I would say, Providence has endowed this country with rich and fertile prairies, timber, stone, stone coal, and other minerals, and almost every thing necessary to complete our worldly happiness. He has here also put within our reach heavenly blessings. It is also healthy here. No sickness of any kind prevails. I have not been sick one day ever since I am in this country.

And now, if the poorer class of people from Pennsylvania would come to this country, and exert themselves a little, they could get all these things, or at least such a portion thereof, that each and every one could make themselves comfortable, and this is all that is necessary. When Providence has given us a rich soil, timber, and all the minerals necessary for the improvement thereof, we should be satisfied, and not expect that he should also fence the land, erect buildings and cultivate the soil, for this is allotted unto us. We are commanded "to work and earn our bread by the sweat of our brow." Hence, if we fence these rich Prairies, and plough and sow, the Lord will make them yield; if not an hundred fold, thirty fold, and we will be paid abundantly for our labor. The Lord will not neglect us, if we do our part. This has again been proven, by the abundant crops of wheat and corn we have had this season. But, then, these things are not neglected here, as before stated. New-comers are coming in almost daily, and the land is being improved rapidly.

Lands rate, in this part of the country, at from four to twelve dollars. I have heard of some asking as high as $25 per acre ; but I have not seen any sold higher than $12, since I am here. However, land here is on the increase, and those wishing to purchase, the sooner they come the better, if they wish to buy cheap. Wages, either for mechanics or laboring men, are high here. Carpenters get from $1 25 to $1 50; Masons get from $1 50 to $1 75 and board ; and all other mechanics receive wages in proportion : laboring men receive for their compensation from 62½ cents to $1 00 per day, and for harvesting, &c., from $1 25 to $1 50 per day.

But now let us change the subject, and look for a moment upon the other hand, and see whether religious matters are also improving, or whether they are neglected in this part of God's moral vineyard. In my estimation, religion has been very low in this place for some years past. The citizens of this place are principally from N. Y., (descendants from Hollanders.) Some years ago they erected a large house for religious worship, but no minister of the Gospel is allowed to preach in it, except he belongs to the Dutch Reformed Church ; and I believe their Domini in this place would rather see some of the ministers of their own sect go somewhere else, than to see them come here to preach, for he seems to be afraid that they might be liked better than himself. The M. E. Church have established circuits all around us, and have at last come to town, notwithstanding all the efforts of the old aristocrats to keep them out. They are now building a house of worship, which, it is said, will be open for all religious denominations. This will, therefore, be a suitable stopping place for travelling preachers, who may be travelling through this country. There certainly could be a large field opened in this part of the country, for some minister of the Church of God. Who will be the first to come and preach for us ?

I remain yours, in fellowship,

CHAS. F. LONG.

Letter from T. Hickernell.

Sidney, Ohio, Dec. 14, 1850.

Dear Brother :—

I have been on a visit to Adams county. Indiana, to preach the funeral sermon of brother Christian Sands' son, who departed this life this fall, aged 11 days. But brother Sands did not receive the appointment, having been away to Ohio, on a visit. I tried, however, to improve the time on Sabbath, in preaching, and had three interesting meetings. Brother Sands has been instrumental in establishing several Churches in that region of country, and on the whole is useful, notwithstanding he is despised and persecuted by many. I feel sorry that he has not been treated with more Christian courtesy in our neighborhood. He has not been to see us since last spring, excepting when you and brother Harn came to visit us. He has some warm friends, as well as enemies, in our neighborhood. His staying away throws an additional burden on my shoulders, or the Church would be left without preachihg.

Yours truly,

THOS. HICKERNELL.

Letter from John F. Fox.

Liberty Township, Hancock Co., O., Nov. 17, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner :—

I take up my pen to drop a few lines, to let you and the readers of the Advocate know something about the affairs in the West.

On the 26th of October, our beloved brother David Schriner, preacher in charge of the Tiffen Circuit, met with a very serious accident, as you were informed by brother Adams. The Tiffen Circuit is now without a preacher, hence some provision should be made for it by the Standing Committee of the Ohio Eldership. Brother Schriner is doing pretty well, and we think he will get well again, and keep both his legs, and be able to go and preach again, but not before next spring.

The Ohio Eldership have a fund for missionary purposes, and also for worn out preachers. I wonder whether it would be unconstitutional for the Standing Committee to make provision towards supporting, or defraying, at least, a part of Bro. S.'s expenses ! His loss is about one hundred dollars, besides his expenses, his doctor bill, &c.

If the Eldership can do nothing, I think it is the duty of those Churches who are blessed with much of this world's goods, to do something in this matter. We hope, also, to have some provision made for preaching on this circuit, from this till spring, at which time, perhaps, brother S. can again resume his labors. Brethren, we are here in the West, not overly rich, desiring to serve God—will you consider our case, and do something for us in this matter!

I remain yours, in the bonds of Christian love and affection, JOHN F. FOX.

John Winebrenner.

OBITUARY.

Departed this life, in Uniontown, Carroll county, Md., on the 18th of November, 1850, Daniel Gore, only son of John and Annie Gore, aged 7 years, 2 months and 21 days.

This promising child, like the flower of the field, was of short continuance. His sickness was a brain affection, which, with an unyielding grasp, continued without intermission, until his tender frame yielded submissively to the king of terrors. Thus he passed away in the morning of life.

Weep not for him whose race is run,
His prize is gained, his toil is past;
To him the power of grief is done,
And misery's storm has frowned its last.

Of such as young Daniel was, is the kingdom of heaven. Anticipate, then, the beauty in which he is now encircled—of the inexpressible dignity to which he is advanced—of the perfect security of his enjoyment—of the heavenly company that shall there occupy his unceasing attention.

Oh! how often is the stream of our earthly enjoyment obstructed in its progress! Our sky will often be clouded—the tear will frequently trickle down the cheek, and the feelings of sorrow and anguish will often be excited. But it should be remembered, that under painful circumstances, it is more natural to weep than to smile—it is more natural to mourn than to rejoice, and it is as desirable too—conducing to our growth in grace, and to our advancement in piety and holiness. It is a delightful anticipation, that the period is near, when they that mourn shall be comforted—when they that weep shall rejoice; and the deeply wounded heart shall be trasported with joy on meeting friends who have long been separated by the stroke of death.

Then garlands of immortal joy,
Shall bloom on every head;
While sorrows, sighing, and distress,
Like shadows, all are fled.

J. C. OWENS.

Uniontown, Md., Dec. 19, 1850.

OBITUARIES.

Died, near Siddensburg, York county, Pa., on the 4th day of December, 1850, Sister Margaret Brown, wife of John Brown, and sister of our much beloved brother David Kyle.

Sister Brown was only confined to her bed for about 12 days, with the dysentery or diarrhœa. She suffered not much pain, apparently, but died away gradually. But her soul was happy in the Lord, giving praises to God in the last moments, and rejoicing in hope of eternal life. She left a husband and seven small children, to mourn her departure. But they mourn not as those who are without hope.

Sister Brown arrived to the age of 40 years, 3 months and 9 days.

A funeral discourse was delivered, to a large and attentive congregation, at the Siddensburg Bethel, from 2 Sam. 14: 14, by the writer, and an appropriate exhortation by brother Jacob Hickernell. JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

Died, near Siddensburg, York county, Pa., on the 6th of December, 1850, of scarlet fever, Sister Mary Ann, daughter of James and Martha Shaffer, sister to our much beloved and departed sister Sophia Shaffer, who died August 30th, 1849.

Sister Mary Ann was a kind and tenderhearted young woman, being of a very moral, civil and quiet nature, from her infancy until her death. However, she made no profession of experimental religion until her end was nigh at hand. She told a beloved sister, that if she had religion she should be well. Our sister then exhorted her to seek the Lord, and being prayed for by brother George Dare and others, gave herself up to God; and it is thought by those who saw her end, that she died in peace. Her last words were, "I'm going home to Sophia and to my Jesus. Oh, mother! won't there be a nice little company of us in Heaven when I get there?" In this expression she had reference to the seven other little brothers and sisters that had gone before her to the kingdom. There are now eight of them laying together, side by side, in Filey's grave-yard.

Sister Mary Ann had arrived to the age of 15 years, 6 months and 10 days.

A discourse was delivered at her funeral, by the writer, from Job 14: 14, to a large and truly attentive congregation.

Many friends are brought to shed tears over her early departure, and especially an old and feeble mother, who is now bereaved and deprived of her last and only daughter yet left to comfort her in her old age. She always, like an administering angel, would attend to all her wants, and take care of her mother, like every good child ought to do. Truly her departure is to be lamented, for many and various reasons. But we have only to say, "The will of God be done." We hope that God will sanctify this afflicting dispensation of his Providence to the good of all her friends, and the community in general.

JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Tornado.—A terrific tornado has occurred at Cape Girardeau, Mo., causing great loss of life and destruction of property.—The Baptist and Catholic churches, the Catholic Convent and Telegraph masts are destroyed. The steamer Saranac No. 2, was blown to pieces. The tornado was the most severe which has been experienced in the Mississippi Valley for several years. In Cape Girardeau some 70 or 80 of the finest buildings of importance were demolished.

A Constant Supply of Eggs.—The South Carolinian says, "A neighbor states that hog's lard is the best thing that he can find to mix with the dough to give to give to his hens. He says that one cut of this fat as large as a walnut, will set a hen to laying immediately after she is broken up from setting, and that by feeding them with the fat occasionally, his hens continue laying through the whole winter."

Cholera at New Orleans.—During the week ending November 16th, there were 147 interments at New Orleans, of which 50 were of cholera. The cholera is also at Plaquemine.

Impudent Forgery.—In a catechism in use at Rome and in the vicinity, and which is drilled in the heads of the children, not only is the second commandment infamously omitted because it forbids the worship of images, but the fourth commandment is perverted to read, "Remember to sanctify all the festas of the Church." These festas are accompanied by horse races and lotteries, authorized by the head of the church. Rome has no scruples in altering or mutilating, "adding to" or "taking from" the word of God, notwithstanding the threatenings of the Apocalypse.

Paine's Gas Light.—Mr. Paine gave an exhibition of his newly invented light to the citizens of Worcester a few evenings since, previous to sending an agent to London to introduce the Gas at the World's Fair. The Worcester Tribune says the apparatus was placed on a table in the presence of the company; the light was produced, and the machinery was then taken to pieces in order to convince the spectators that there was no deception about it. Many of the most respectable citizens of Worcester believe Mr. Paine's invention to be a genuine affair, and that hereafter light and heat may be produced from water.

Flying Machine in France.—The French correspondent of the New-Yorker says that the recent experiments of M. Jullien have fully demonstrated the possibility of steering balloons against the wind. On these occasions he has fully succeeded in directing his curious vessel, shaped like a fish, but furnished with wings, in the very teeth of a strong breeze. Jullien is a poor journeyman watch-maker, who has devoted all his energies to the solution of this great problem of the age, ærial navigation—a solution destined to modify, more profoundly than any preceding discovery, all human relations.

Oregon.—There is no portion of the world that holds out to us so many temptations to emigration as Oregon. Its incalculable abundance of natural resources, its pure climate, and its vast fields of enterprise, are enough to inspire all varieties of ambition, and awaken golden dreams in every brain unbenumbed by the chills of age. From the Oregon Spectator of July 25, we learn that Agriculture, what there is of it, is making golden rewards to those who foster it.—P. Rec.

The Chinese.—The Chinese appear to be among the most successful emigrants to California. Economical, industrious and prudent, and well skilled in certain branches of mechanics and manufacture, they are fast increasing in numbers and in respectability. The effect of this emigration may be important upon the Chinese Empire in its present condition, which appears to be one of slow and unwieldly transition.

Old School Presbyterians.—During the past ecclesiastical year, 10,334 members were added to their churches, an average of five to each minister. They have 570 Domestic Missionaries, laboring in 25 States, California, Oregon, &c.

Magnificent Donation.—Mr. Owens, of Manchester, (England,) has bequeathed £100,000 for a College, to be erected at Manchester, in which the system of education is to be the same as that at Cambridge and Oxford.

Temperance Statistics for 1850.—The annual report gives the following:

No. of Divisions in the U. States,	5,563
Members admitted the last year,	109,401
Do. expelled for violating the pledge,	9,705
The same reinstated,	6,130
Whole No. contributing members,	232,123
Cash rec'd during the year,	$749,175 47
Cash paid for benefits,	208,782 55

Convicted.—Mayor Barker, of Pittsburg, was convicted last week, by one of the Allegheny Courts, of "misdemeanor in office." We should suppose that the Pittsburgers have learnt a lesson in this case, from which they will hereafter profit. The idea of electing a convict Mayor of a city, is a "little too much of a good thing."

Congress.—Little or nothing has as yet been accomplished. Some preliminary steps have been taken with respect to the Postage Bill, and most probably a reduction will be made from the present prices. The most amicable feelings seem to prevail among the members, and much good is augured from the fact.

Gold Mines.—Those lately discovered in Venezuela, are attracting many persons from the West India Islands. The yield promises to be more abundant than that of California, and the short distance to the United States and Europe is a great advantage which it has over Eldorado.

Invention.—Among the newest inventions are swimming stockings, acting on the same principle as the webbed feet of aquatic birds. They were tested by one of the members of the British Association, who by their aid swam with ease from New Haven to Leith Harbor, against the tide.

☞ The Legislature of Vermont has prohibited the sale of intoxicating liquors absolutely except for medical, chemical and mechanical purposes.

☞ At a Court held in Bucks county last week, Franklin P. Sellers, editor of a Temperance paper published in Doylestown, was fined $60 and costs for libel.

☞ The amount of property in Chicago, subject to taxation, as appears by the census just taken, amounts to thirteen millions of dollars.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MILLIONS FOR MARS, MITES FOR MESSIAH.

By a volume recently published in London, entitled "The Year Book of Christian Missions," it appears that there are no less than twenty-five large denominational Societies in the several Protestant countries of Europe and America, devoted entirely to Foreign Missions. Of these, nine are found on the Continent, ten in England and Scotland, and six in the United States. The aggregate amount annually expended by these Societies, for the objects of their organization, is estimated in round numbers at £592,000, of which about £32,000 are contributed on the Continent. £460,000 in England and Scotland, and £100,000 in the United States. "The enterprise," says an American writer, "is the offspring of the noblest and most comprehensive form of Christian charity, and though now scarce half a century old even in its oldest operations, it has produced the most magnificent results, and is already beginning to change the destinies of the human race." There is something very encouraging to the Christian in these facts and statements, and there is much therein to suggest reflection and pensive musing. It is not a matter of trivial or commercial estimation to ascertain precisely the dimensions of the "noblest and most comprehensive form of Christian charity," which this late age and generation of the world have produced. It is a fact of sad significance, that this enterprise, which is beginning to change the destinies of the human race, is scarce-half a century old, though the divine command that ordained it was given eighteen centuries ago. Then, the sum total of all the contributions of Protestant Christendom to this enterprise, though liberal and yearly increasing, seems small when compared with the annual contributions of Christian nations to enterprises of an opposite character. For instance, these Christian nations of Europe and America expend every year in preparations for war £300,000,000. This amount when compared with "the most comprehensive form of Christian charity" stands thus:

For preparations for war per day, £548,000. For preaching the gospel of peace to the heathen, £1,640; or to make the comparison more distinct, one pound sterling for preparations for war between Christian nations against one half penny for evangelizing the pagan world and bringing myriads of benighted idolators to bow to the sceptre of the Prince of Peace! Or, millions for Mars and Mites for the Messiah.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

On the subject of the Fugitive Slave Law, Gov, Ford, of Ohio, says:

"It is objectionable, because it makes slavery a National instead of a State institution, by requiring the costs of reclaiming the slave, in some instances to be paid out of the United States' Treasury; because it makes ex parte testimony, taken in another jurisdiction, final and conclusive in cases where its effect may be to enslave a man and his posterity for all time, and commits the decision of this question of civil liberty to officers not selected for their judicial wisdom or experience; because it attempts to compel the citizens of free States to aid in arresting and returning to slavery the man who is only fleeing for liberty, in the same manner as they would rightfully be bound to aid in arresting a man fleeing from justice charged with the commission of a high crime and misdemeanor.

Finally: In relation to the mode of trial, and other particulars, the law is contrary to the genius and spirit of our free institutions, and therefore dangerous to both free and slave States, and consequently ought to be amended or repealed."

A WORD FOR TOBACCO WORMS.

It is unbecoming a minister to smoke the cigar or pipe, and thereby fill the room where he is with the poisonous tobacco smoke; or to chew tobacco, and thereby bedaub the floor, side-wall, stove, or stove-plate, or splash the dirty tobacco juice over the pulpit, which ought to be kept clean, as a sacred desk, from all filthiness. Such conduct is not only extravagant and unbecoming, put it is also unholy and foul, for a man of God. Not only for the man of God, but for every man—no decent man will do it.—Golden Rule.

MILKING COWS.

A New Use of India Rubber.—The new method of milking, which our readers may already have seen something of in the papers, is no joke, but a practical reality. An informant of ours witnessed the operation in the farm-yard of Joseph Fellows, Esq., of Geneva, but a few days since. India rubber bags were drawn over the cows teats which set close enough to exclude the air, in the lower end of which metallic tubes were inserted, closed by taps when the four were adjusted, the taps were withdrawn, and the milk streamed from each teat into the pail, exhausting the whole quantity in the cow's bag, in half the time it would take to milk in the ordinary way. It is a useful invention, against which no valid objection can exist, and will be likely to come into general use. The prime cost of a set—four milkers, we shall have to call them, cannot exceed fifty cents. They are simple, easily and cheaply manufactured; when cows are stalled, it would seem that one man could milk ten in fifteen minutes, if he was supplied with the apparatus for each cow.—Roch. Amer.

WESLEY ON DRESS.

Let me see, before I die, a Methodist congregation, full as plain dressed as a Quaker congregation. Only be more consistent with yourselves. Let your dress be cheap as well as plain. Otherwise you do but trifle with God and me, and your own souls. I pray, let there be no costly silks among you, how grave soever they may be. Let there be no Quaker linen; proverbially so called, for their exquisite fineness: no Brussels lace, no elephantine hats or bonnets, those scandals of female modesty. Be all of a piece, dressed from head to foot, as persons professing godliness; professing to do every thing, small and great, with the single view of pleasing God.

SOMETHING WORTH KNOWING.

It has been ascertained that a small piece of rosin, dipped in a vessel of warm water on the stove, will impart to the atmosphere a peculiarly pleasant and agreeable ordor, exeeedingly beneficial to persons who are afflicted with coughs and colds, as it gives them speedy relief, or at least eases the severity of their coughs. The heat of the water throws off the aroma of the rosin, and supplies the same desideratum as that afforded by a combustion of rosin. We are strongly of the opinion that this method will be preferable to the combustion, because the evaporation is more endurable. The same rosin may be used for a number of weeks.

THE TERM "BROTHER JONOTHAN."

General Washington placed great confidence in the good sense and patriotism of Jonathan Trumbell, who, at an early period of the American revolution, was Governor of the State of Connecticut.—In a certain emergency, when a measure of great importance was under discussion, Washington remarked, "we must consult Brother Jonathan on the subject."—The result of that consultation was favorable. Thus from the constant use of the expression, "We must consult Brother Jonathan," which soon passed from the army to the people at large, we received that appellation which has stuck to us as closely as "John Bull" to the English.

EMOTION AND FAITH.

There are two classes of Christians—those who live chiefly by emotion, and those who live chiefly by faith. The first class, those who live chiefly by emotion, remind one of the ships that move by the outward impulses of the wind operating upon sails. They are often at a dead calm, often out of their course, and sometimes driven back. The other class, those who live chiefly by faith, remind one of the magnificient steamers which cross the Atlantic, and which, setting at defiance all obstacles, advance steadily and swiftly to their destination, through calm and storm, through cold and sunshine.—Upham.

POETRY.

The Land of the Blessed.

BY WM. M. H——R.

Beyond the bounds of earth's domain
There is a fair and flowing plain,
Devoid of sickness—sorrow—pain,
Or semblance of anxiety.
The monster Death has never trod
This glorious region of our God,
Nor lifted his chastening rod,
Afflicting that society.

There richest flowers and fruits abound
All o'er the hills whose tops are crowned
With flowers, emitting fragrance round
That beautiful locality.
There gushing rills whose limpid streams
Are sparkling where luxuriance teems,
While living light forever gleams,
Confirming its reality.

There bands of shining seraphs soar—
The angels sing, while saints before
The throne shout all their troubles o'er
In anthems so melodiously.
There Cherubims with harpsichord
Send richest strains to Christ the Lord,
While heav'nly tunes with one accord
Reverberate harmoniously.

The tree of life whose spreading shade
Was for immortal spirits made,
With healing fruits and leaves arrayed,
Adds to the lovely scenery.
There 'neath its boughs, with harp in hand,
Are spirits gathered in a band,
While all around that heaven-land
Are heard those strains of melody.

Who would not long to have a share
Of joys so exquisite and rare,
And taste those pleasures treasured there
With such Divine munificence?
To realize those glorious scenes
Of fertile vales and splendid greens,
Where not a cloud e'er intervenes,
To hide the throne—Omnipotence.

Bloomfield Furnace, Pa., Nov., 1850.

The Atonement of Christ.

Glory to God! who reigns above,
Who dwells in light, whose name is love,
Ye saints and angels, if ye can,
Declare the love of God to man.

O what can more this love commend,
His dear, his only Son to send,
That man, condemn'd to die, might live,
And God be glorious to forgive!

Messiah's come—with joy behold
The days by prophets long foretold:
Judah, thy royal sceptre's broke;
And time still proves that Jacob spoke.

Daniel, thy weeks are all expir'd,—
The time prophetic seals requir'd;
Cut off for sins, but not his own,
Thy Prince, Messiah, did atone.

We see the prophecies fulfill'd
In Jesus, that most wondrous child;
His birth, his life, his death, combine
To prove his character Divine.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 18th of December, 1850, by J. Winebrenner, V. D. M., Mr. John Shuger to Miss Sarah Fulton, both of Highspire, Dauphin county, Pa.

On the 8th of December, 1850, by Elder J. M. Klein, Mr. Vogan, of Butler county, to Miss Jane Wilson, of Irvine township, Venango county, Pa.

On the 2d of December, by the same, Mr. Samuel Latshaw to Miss Ann Ross, both of Irvine township, Venango county, Pa.

On the 24th ult., in York county, Pa., by the Rev. J. C. Smith, Mr. William Bane to Miss Susan Flinchbach, both of Lancaster county, Penn'a.

On the 24th day of December, 1850, by Elder Samuel M. Hoover, Mr. Barnet Wolf, of Plainfield, to Miss Isabella Dewalt, of Frankford township, Cumberland county, Pa.

On Christmas morning, (25th ult.,) by Dr. F. Hodgson, Rev. James Colder to Miss Ellen Cordelia Winebrenner, both of Harrisburg.

On Tuesday morning, 24th ult., by the Rev. Charles A. Hay, Mr. Daniel Eppley to Miss Anna Maria Heisely, both of Harrisburg.

On the 24th ult., by Rev. J. F. Mesick, Rev. I. C. Porter, Professor of Natural Science in Marshall College, to Miss Susan Kunkel, of this borough.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—On the 23d of October last, Albert Stoner, infant son of Joseph Strock, aged 11 months and 22 days.

On the 17th and 18th of December, 1850, in York county, Pa., of Scarlet fever, Ann Mary and Henry William Petro, son and daughter of John and Nancy Petro, the former aged 4 months and 2 days, and the latter 5 years, 8 months and 19 days.

These two infant children were both consigned to their mother dust in one day. It is a solemn scene where only one is taken from a family by the relentless hand of death, but where two are taken it is more so. It is true, the parents are bereft of their children, but their loss is the childrens' eternal gain.

Funeral services by Elder J. J. Miller, from 1 Sam. 12: 24.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

By Divine permission, the following protracted meetings will be held on the East Cumberland Circuit, viz:

One at Milltown, commencing on Saturday evening, the 4th of January.

One at Basehore's, commencing on Saturday evening, the 11th of January.

One at Mechanicsburg, commencing on Saturday evening, the 18th of January.

The brethren in the ministry and the public generally are invited to attend.

J. Haifleigh.

A protracted meeting will be held at Landisburg, commencing on the 3d of January.

One in the Germany Bethel, commencing on the 10th of January.

The brethren in the ministry, and the public generally, are respectfully invited to attend. J. H. Hurley.

A protracted meeting will be held at Ander-sonstown, York county, Pa., to commence on the 1st of January, 1850, at 10 o'clock, A. M., and continue over Sabbath.

Another at Siddensburg, commencing on Saturday, the 17th of January.

The Preachers and brethren are invited to attend. JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

A protracted meeting will be held at the Red Hill Bethel, near Newport, Perry county, Pa., commencing on Friday evening, the 23d of January. A. SNYDER, Pastor in charge.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—WHEAT, per barrel,				$4 12	a	4 50
Do.	RYE,	do. - -		2 50	a	2 50
Do.	CORN,	do. - -		2 37½	a	2 37½
GRAIN—WHEAT, per bushel,				90	a	90
Do.	RYE,	do. - -		50	a	62
Do.	CORN,	do. - -		45	a	50
Do.	OATS,	do. - -		28	a	33
Do.	BARLEY,	do. - -		60	a	65
SEEDS—CLOVER,		do. - -		4 25	a	4 50
Do.	TIMOTHY,	do. - -		2 00	a	2 25
Do.	FLAX,	do. - -		1 12	a	1 12
BEEF, per cwt.		- - -		5 00	a	5 50
PORK, do.		- - -		5 50	a	5 50
HAMS, per pound,		- - -		8	a	11
BUTTER, do.		- - -		20	a	25
LARD, do.		- - -		8	a	8
TALLOW, do.		- - -		8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.				6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - -		15	a	18
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -		50	a	62
ONIONS,	do.	- -		75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -		37	a	62
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.				1 25	a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -		37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -		30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -		1 50	a	1 50
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -		10 00	a	10 00
PLASTER, per ton.		- - -		4 50	a	4 75

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—WHEAT, per barrel,				$4 75	a	5 25
Do.	RYE,	do. -		3 00	a	3 00
Do.	CORN,	do. - -		3 00	a	3 00
GRAIN—WHEAT, per bushel,				1 05	a	1 12
Do.	RYE,	do. - -		68	a	70
Do.	CORN,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	OATS,	do. - -		40	a	42
Do.	BARLEY,	do. - -		65	a	68
SEEDS—CLOVER,		do. - -		4 75	a	5 00
Do.	TIMOTHY,	do. - -		2 50	a	2 62
Do.	FLAX,	do. - -		1 40	a	1 50
BEEF, per cwt.,		- -		7 00	a	8 75
PORK, do.		- - - - -		7 00	a	7 25

Horses and Carriage for Sale.

THE subscribers having performed their tour to the West, now offer their horses and carriage for sale, on reasonable terms.

JOHN WINEBRENNER,
GEO. U. HAHN.

Another Premium Obtained.

AT the Annual Fair of the Maryland Institute which closed, after a four weeks continuance, on the 5th of this month, Weishampel's Revolving Horizontal Grate Coal Stove received another Premium, being the second from the same Institute. The Patent Rights for the States of Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Michigan are for sale. The Patentee would be willing to trade the Right for one or two of these States for good land, improved or unimproved. The purchaser of the Right for a State will be entitled to a set of castings for patterns, and a Stove in complete working order. The Grate of this Stove is adapted to any kind of coal. Now is the right season to procure the Right and Patterns, in time to have them ready to get out your supply of Stoves for next Fall.

Letters addressed (post-paid) to the undersigned, Baltimore, Md., will meet with prompt attention, by myself or Mr. F. A. Uhl, my local agent. J. F. WEISHAMPEL, Patentee.

November 11, 1850.—3t.

Dr. Christie's
Galvanic Belt, Necklace, Bracelets, and Magnetic Fluid.

THE acknowledged and extraordinary curative powers of these wonderful invigorators is now so generally known and their sales and reputation through the whole country so extensive, that it would seem unnecessary to urge their merits further. But some late circumstances have occurred which render it a matter of duty to the public not to be silent, for while the ephemeral nostrums of the day are compelled by columns of puffing in the Press and swallowed by quarts and gallons by the afflicted, and are found just good for nothing,

Christie's Galvanic & Magnetic Curatives,

have been quietly working their way among the most intelligent and respectable classes, and are constantly achieving cures in an alarming fashion in cases, which have for years baffled all the skill of medicine and all the resources of Science. These diseases are called and in these diseases medicine is of no avail whatever. It never does good, and it often does harm. Syrups, Extracts, Balms, Elixirs, Elixirs, Bitters, Pills, Powders and Pellets of every kind are alike worthless for they weaken the vital energies of the already prostrated system; while under the strengthening, life-giving vitalizing influence of Galvanism as applied by this beautiful discovery, the exhausted patient and weakened sufferer is restored to former health, strength, activity and vigor.

NERVOUS COMPLAINTS,

These remarks relate to such diseases as NEURALGIA, TIC DOLOREUX, BRONCHITIS, PALPITATION of the HEART, WEAKNESS and all FEMALE DISORDERS, such as NERVOUS HEADACHE, LASSITUDE and DESPONDENCY, which are only other names for Nervous Derangement; EPILEPTIC FITS and CONVULSIONS, which are known to result from a non-equilibrium of Electric Influence; NERVOUS TREMORS, DEAFNESS, which is nearly always caused by torpidity of the Auditory Nerves and can always be perfectly cured by Galvanism when the organs is not destroyed; DYSPEPSIA, in its worst forms; PALSY and PARALYSIS, uniformly caused by a deficiency of Nervous Influence; CHRONIC RHEUMATISM, TORPIDITY of the LIVER, PAIN in the SIDE, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION, SPINAL and HIP COMPLAINTS, DEFICIENCY of NERVOUS and PHYSICAL ENERGY, and all those distressing complaints resulting from a DERANGEMENT of the NERVOUS SYSTEM.

In the above prevalent and terrible class of diseases and Nervous Complaints which are much more numerous than is generally imagined—

CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES,
Are an Absolute and Positive Specific.

The BELT is used when the body or system generally is affected; the NECKLACE for complaints of the Throat, as Asthma and Bronchitis, and of the Head; and the BRACELETS for all disorders of the arms and limbs, as Rheumatism, Palsy, Tremors and Spasmodic affections. These articles are simply applied as directed with the MAGNETIC FLUID which accompanies them, and when faithfully used they NEVER FAIL!

☞ The great peculiarity and excellence of the GALVANIC CURATIVES consists in the fact that they arrest and cure disease by Outward Application, in place of the usual method of Drugging and Poisoning the patient till exhausted nature sinks hopelessly under the infliction. They strengthen the whole system, equalize the circulation of the Blood, promote the secretions, invigorate the entire energies, and can never do the slightest harm under any circumstances.

Since their introduction in the United States, only three years since, more than

75,000 PERSONS

including all ages, classes and conditions, among whom were a large number of Ladies, who are peculiarly subject to Nervous Complaints, have been

Entirely and Permanently Cured,

when all hope of relief had been given up, and everything else had been tried in vain! The beneficial results which have uniformly attended their use is confidently stated to be without a parallel in the annals of Medical Science. Clergymen, lawyers and even physicians: ladies of the highest standing: distinguished persons holding elevated official stations: merchants, manufacturers, and mechanics: the poor and the rich alike: often whole families, among all classes, ranks and conditions, have equally been recipients, and have equally acknowledged the wondrous and often unexpected benefits which they have thus received.

☞ Let it be known and remembered that the only Natural Restorative for the Nerves is Galvinism, and that in all Nervous Diseases we should

"Throw Physic to the Dogs."

To illustrate the use of the GALVANIC BELT, suppose the case of a person afflicted with that bane of civilization, DYSPEPSIA, or any other Chronic or Nervous Disorder. In ordinary cases stimulants are taken, which, by their action on the nerves and muscles of the stomach, afford temporary relief, but which leave the patient in a lower state, and with injured faculties, after the action thus excited has ceased. Now compare this with the effect resulting from the application of the GALVANIC BELT. Take a Dyspeptic sufferer, even in the worst symptoms of an attack, and simply buckle the Belt round the Body, using the Magnetic Fluid as directed. In a short period the insensible perspiration will act on the positive element of the Belt, thereby causing a Galvanic circulation which will pass on to the negative, and thence back again to the positive, thus keeping up a continuous Galvanic circulation throughout the system. Thus the most severe cases of Dyspepsia are permanently cured. A few days is amply sufficient to eradicate the disease of years.

MANY THOUSAND
Certificates and Testimonials

from the most intelligent and respectable persons residing in every portion of the United States, could be presented. These are now unnecessary, but a numerous selection embracing many statements of the most extraordinary character, sufficient to convince the most sceptical, may be had of the authorized Agent. The interested are particularly invited to call.

WONDERFUL RESTORATION!
☞ 77 Years Old!!!

Blooming Grove, Orange Co., N. Y., July 26, 1850.

To Dr. A. H. Christie, New York.

Dear Sir—Having been very severely handled by Rheumatism and other diseases, and having been cured in a most remarkable manner by CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC BELT and FLUID, I thought I would give a statement of my case, for the benefit of others. I had the Rheumatism last winter, and my legs swelled very much. My head was also very much afflicted, having so severe a pain over my eyes that I could scarcely see. At the same time, I was troubled by spasms, caused by the pain in my head, I suppose. My hearing had been getting poor for several years from a catarrh, so that in one ear I could scarcely hear at all. Having heard wonderful accounts of Christie's Belt and Fluid, I sent to your store and got them. The Belt was put on, and the Fluid used as directed, and I don't think I have had, after the first night using them, one minute clear pain from that time to this, being six months. The Rheumatism left my body entirely, after wearing the Belt a very short time, probably two weeks. Then I put on a Galvanic Necklace, and had not worn it two weeks, before my head was perfectly well. My hearing in both ears is entirely restored, the pain all gone, my sight is very good for a man of my age, (77 years in August) and I consider myself entirely well, having worked through harvest without the least difficulty. I consider my cure very remarkable, and therefore cheerfully refer to me and CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES to all persons afflicted as I have been. (Signed) PHINEAS TUTHILL

AFFIDAVIT.

State of New York, Newburgh, Orange county, ss: Phineas Tuthill of Blooming Grove, Orange county, N. Y., who is personally known to me as a most respectable citizen and worthy of all confidence, being duly sworn, says, and doth declare that the facts set forth in the above statement in relation to his case, are entirely correct, and that he is now in the enjoyment of good health, caused as he believes by Christie's Galvanic Curatives. PHINEAS TUTHILL

Sworn before me this 26th day of June, 1850.

S. W. EAGER, Justice of the Peace.

Weakness and Nervous Debility!

Dear Sir—I will no longbe without Christie's Galvanic Curatives, immediately. The balm and relief he has given to the commonality and they see at once that he Curatives are constructed upon scientific and philosophical principles and must work. Electually upon the Nervous System in most cases of Nervous Diseases. An estimable young lady in our town was afflicted with extreme Nervous Debility and severe pains in the head and neck. She put some of the Galvanic Belts and Necklace and immediately became sensible of its curative and strengthening powers, and the next day was relieved of the severe pains, and raised from a state of entire nervous prostration to health and strength. I can mention several other cases equally wonderful.

Yours very respectfully, J. B. KNIGHT.

Putnam, Chautauque Co., N. Y., Oct. 1 1850.

☞ No inconvenience attends the use of DR. CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES, and they may be worn by the most delicate and delicate with perfect ease and safety. In many cases the sensation attending their use is highly pleasant and agreeable. They are accompanied by full and plain directions for use. Pamphlets with full particulars may be obtained gratis, of the authorized Agent.

PRICES:

The Galvanic Belt, Three Dollars,
The Galvanic Necklace, Two Dollars.
The Galvanic Bracelets, One Dollar Each.
The Magnetic Fluid, One Dollar.

PARTICULAR CAUTION.

☞ Beware of counterfeits and Worthless Imitations. D. C. MOREHEAD, M. D.,

GENERAL AGENT FOR THE UNITED STATES.
132 Broadway, New York.

☞ For Sale by Dr. W. K. MEHAFFEY, authorized Agent for HARRISBURG, PA.

Jan. 1, 1851.—6m.

Depositories of Our Books.

FOR the convenience of our brethren, and the public generally, we have established Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

GEO. F. GORDON, corner of 12th and Wistar streets, and BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, and LEWIS COLBY, No. 122 Nassau street, New York.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, Baltimore, Md.

JOHN H. CORNELIUS, New Berlin, Union county, Pa.

SPANGLER & BROTHER, Lancaster, Pa.

MARTIN and MENELY, Lagrange county, Indiana.

M. F. SNAVELY, North Bend, Iowa.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail Prices.
History of Denomination in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries, -	2 00
Wandering Soul, - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament, -	50
German Reference Testament, - -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
German Do., - - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, - -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - - -	25
Harn on Feet-washing, - - -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, - - -	15
Traveller's Guide to the West, - -	50

EVANGELICAL MUSIC,
FOR
CHURCHES AND SINGING SCHOOLS.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us, and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music.

☞ FOR SALE at this office, and at our Depositories. EDITOR.

Missionary
SUBSCRIPTIONS AND DONATIONS.

FOR sustaining five Missionaries in the West—two in Iowa and three in Illinois, during the next Ecclesiastical year, commencing with April, 1851, and ending with March, 1852.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller,	- - -		10 00
J. H. Hurley,	- - -		5 00
Geo. U. Hahn,	- - -		5 00
M. F. Snavely,	- - -		10 00
Jacob Miller,	- - -		10 00
James Miller,	- - -		5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh,	- - -		5 00
Thomas Strohm,	- - -		5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	- - -		5 00
Abraham Sherich,	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz,	- - -		5 00
A Liberal Brother,	- - -		20 00
A Liberal Sister,	-	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	- - -		5 00
James Casey,	- - -		5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00
Susanna Myers,	-	paid	4 00
Charles F. Long,	- - -		5 00
Daniel R. Long,	- - -		5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of ALL the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. JANUARY 15, 1851. NUMBER 18.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1·00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

York and Cumberland Railroad.

We are informed upon good authority that this road will be opened for travel in about two weeks.

Our Accounts.

We have commenced sending out our accounts for books and papers. We hope they will be responded to forthwith. Funds are much needed, and our patrons will oblige us very much by sending us our dues.

Should any mistakes occur in making out these bills, we shall be glad to receive notice thereof, and they shall be rectified.

Revival at Stumpstown.

Brother Geo. S. Petri writes that the Lord has given them a refreshing at Fredericksburg, alias Stumpstown, and that nine souls have been happily converted from nature to grace, during the holidays. The Church is much revived and encouraged, and prospects are very promising. Thanks be to God for his goodness and mercy in reviving his cause once more in Old Stumpstown! The Lord fill his children there with joy and the Holy Spirit!

Revival at Mount Joy.

There is quite a pleasant work of grace in progress in the Church of God at Mount Joy, Lancaster county, Pa.

This good work commenced on the Sabbath before Christmas, and has thus far been going on with unabated power and energy.

In the beginning brothers Maxwell, Keller, Mooney and Swartz were present, and assisted brother Price in conducting the meetings; but for the last few weeks brother Mooney has been the chief speaker, the rest having left during the first stage of the meeting.

On the 4th inst. brother Mooney wrote us as follows: "Our meeting in this place is still in progress. From twelve to twenty are still nightly presenting themselves at the altar of prayer. Quite a number have embraced religion. There is every prospect of the meeting going on, as we have crowded houses every night. The people are very attentive, and many are under powerful convictions."

Revival at Shiremanstown.

The Church of God at Shiremanstown is enjoying a glorious refreshing from the presence of the Lord. The revival commenced about Christmas. Some 40-odd souls have been hopefully converted since the commencement of the work. We hope and pray it may continue till many more shall find redemption in the Saviour's blood, even the forgiveness of sins.

Brother Haifleigh, or some one else, will please give us a more detailed account of the rise, progress and extent of this work of grace.

Revivals in other Places.

It is said there are revivals in progress in several other places, to wit: In Uniontown, Md.—Andersonstown, York county—the Cross Roads, &c. We request the brethren to send us short and correct accounts of these various stirs and ingatherings.

Pennsylvania Legislature.

This body assembled at the Capitol on the 7th inst.

At 11 o'clock the House convened and organized by electing Mr. John Cessna, of Bedford, Speaker.

The Senate met at 3 o'clock, P. M., and after five unsuccessful ballots for Speaker, adjourned. On the 8th the Senate had two more ballots, when, on the 7th ballot, Mr. Benjamin Matthias, of Phila., was elected Speaker.

Mr. Wm. Jack, of Westmoreland county, was re-elected Clerk of the House, and Wm. S. Picking, of York county, was appointed Assistant Clerk.

Mr. Samuel W. Pearson, of Somerset, was re-elected Chief Clerk of the Senate.

Questions for the Ohio Brethren.

One of our correspondents has propounded a few practical questions to our brethren in Ohio, touching the object and import of one of the resolutions passed at their late Eldership. These questions will be found in our Contributor's Department, and we hope will be answered by the mover, or some one else of the advocates of that resolution.

Acts & Doings of the Standing Com.

At a meeting of the Standing Committee, the following alterations were made in the appointments for the ensuing year, viz:

Morrison's Cove Circuit—A. Snyder.
Landisburg Circuit—J. J. Miller.
Matamoras and Juniatta Circuit—Wm. Clay.
Lancaster Circuit—H. L. Soule.
Dauphin Circuit—D. Maxwell.
York County Circuit, East and West—S. Fleegal and Jacob Kister.
Fayetteville Station—J. Werner and D. A. L. Laverty.
A. Swartz,
E. H. Thomas,
J. Winebrenner.

Another World's Fair in 1852.

It is proposed to hold another great World's Fair at New York in 1852. This project is gotten up by Messrs. Smith and Draper—the former of Philadelphia, and the latter of New York.

The site or ground selected for this purpose is Governor's Island, in the harbor of New York. The buildings and work for the exhibition are to exceed and eclipse those of the London World's fair. The empire city, it is said, has entered enthusiastically into the undertaking. Both these Fairs will, doubtless, be great affairs, but we venture to predict the last will be first, for foreigners cannot cope with American and Yankey genius.

Illinois and Iowa Missions.

Our readers will find several interesting letters from several brethren in the State of Illinois, giving accounts of the wants and wishes of the brethren and people of that country. We hope to be able to supply both States with able and true missionaries, provided we can raise the means. In order to ascertain this, it is desirable that our agents, brothers Flake and Weishampel, should proceed and do up their agency business as soon as possible. The Missionary Board can make no bona fide contracts till they see and know what the Churches are willing to do in this matter. In the meantime we invite voluntary pledges, to our standing subscription list in the Advocate. Come, brethren, wake up on this important subject. Send us large and liberal subscriptions. Why, in some of the denominations around us, there are Sabbath-schools and individuals to be found who support, out of their own scanty funds, missionaries, both domestic and foreign. Can not, then, the Church of God raise funds enough, by a joint effort, to sustain a few missionaries in the West? If she does not, how can she be guiltless before God?

A Word to Young Converts.

Inasmuch as it has pleased the Great Head of the Church to revive his work afresh, in various places, of late, we wish to say a few words to the young converts.

Feeling, as we do, a parental concern for your future welfare, happiness and prosperity, we beg leave to give you a brief word of advice.

1st. Examine yourselves carefully as to the nature and grounds of your Christian experience. It is your privilege and duty to know whether you are really and truly converted or not. In many, and perhaps most revivals, there are some false and spurious, as well as true and genuine conversions. Between these it is your business to distinguish. By pursuing a right course, you may easily do so. If you are truly and Scripturally converted—born of water and the Spirit, and made new creatures in Christ Jesus, the change will be so great and manifest that you cannot help but know it. And should you have any doubts as to the character of your experience, we would advise you to read the 5th and 6th sermons in our "Popular Treatise on Regeneration," where both the "inconclusive" and "conclusive" marks and evidences of a state of grace are treated on.

2d. "Desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby." All except still-born children need nourishment. And the most suitable nourishment for young converts is the "sincere milk of the word." That is, the inculcation of the simple and plain principles and duties of the Gospel. These will sustain, nourish and invigorate the newly implanted life principle in the soul, just like natural food will sustain natural life. But, then, this Divinely provided nourishment must be "desired." That is, it must be sought for with intense longing. "Blessed are they that do hunger and thirst." Such sheep and lambs Christ's shepherds delight to feed. And when such are properly fed, they never fail to grow thereby. This, be it remembered, is the will of God concerning you. You are required not only to hold fast to that which you have attained to, but also to grow in grace and in the knowledge of Jesus Christ. In order to this,

3d. Give attendance to reading. But let your reading be solid and judicious. Some young converts read too much, others too little.—Those who read Novels, fashionable Magazines, and other similar works of light reading, read too much. Those who read the Bible and Hymn-book only, read too little. Whilst there are many foolish and hurtful books and publications to be avoided, there are also many excellent and useful books and publications, which may be read to advantage. Among the many excellent ones that might be named and recommended, we would only recommend the following:

1. The Young Christian's Guide, by Charles Buck, author of the Theological Dictionary. This work contains ten chapters of suitable directions, cautions and encouragements, highly interesting and valuable to the young convert on his first entrance upon the divine life. For sale at the Advocate office, Price 25cts.

2. Doddridge's Rise and Progress of Religion, &c., is another suitable and valuable book for young beginners in religion.

3. Pike's Guide is another work of great merit, and ought to be read by every young Christian. These and other similar works, if carefully and prayerfully read by beginners in their religious career, would greatly conduce to their stability, intelligence and progress in the ways of God.

4. A well conducted religious paper I would not omit, among other things, to recommend to the attention of young beginners in religion. A regular and weekly perusal of such a paper, will keep them advised of the state and progress of religion throughout the Church and the world. It will make them acquainted with the doctrine and usages of the Church—with her benevolent enterprises and operations, and with her achievements and prospects. In short, it will contribute much to an enlightened and intelligent Christianity; whereas, the neglect of such reading will result in throwing them behind the age, and leave them in gross ignorance of the doings, the signs, and the improvements of the times; not to say anything about the leanness and abridgements of their souls. But another advice I would give is,

4th. Continue instant in prayer. Prayer is the offering up of the heart's adorations and desires to God. This duty is repeatedly and earnestly inculcated in the Scriptures, both by precept and example. The poet says:

"Prayer was appointed to convey,
The blessings God designs to give:
Long as they live should Christians pray,
For only while they pray, they live."

Young converts should make it a point to observe stated seasons of prayer. They should take part in family and social prayer, as well as observe regular and stated seasons of private prayer.

5 h. Equally important is it for young converts who would maintain their integrity and grow in grace, to watch. "What I say to you," said Jesus, "I say to all, watch." Now, to watch aright, we have,

1. Some things to watch against.
2. Some things to watch over; and
3. Some things to watch for.

1. Watch against the world, the flesh, and the devil.

2. Watch over your soul, spirit and body—your thoughts, words and actions—your property, business and best interests.

3. Watch for the teachings of God's Spirit—for the leadings of his Providence—for opportunities to do good; and for the coming of the Son of Man.

6th. Finally, "My beloved brethren, be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord:" and do your endeavors to add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge self-control; and to self-control patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly love; and to brotherly love charity, or universal love. For if ye do these things, ye will never fall; but an entrance will be abundantly given you into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Population of the principal cities in the U. S., according to the census of 1850.

	1850.	1840.
New York,	552,766	312,000
Philadelphia,	409,000	258,000
Baltimore,	169,125	102 000
Boston,	135,000	93,000
New Orleans,	139,000	102,000
Cincinnati,	116,078	46,000
St. Louis,	81,107	16,000
Pittsburg,	84,841	40,000
Brooklyn,	96,725	36,000
Washington,	43,000
Louisville,	42,000
Buffalo,	42,266
Detroit,	21,035
Chicago,	28,209
Milwaukie,	20,035
Reading,	15,821	8,410
Lancaster,	12,382	8,417
Harrisburg,	8,617	5,980

Music Books—Price Reduced.

1. Evangelical Music—Patent Notes—Price five dollars per dozen.
Do. Do. Round Notes—Price four dollars per dozen.
2. History of all Denominations—Portrait Editions—Price two dollars and fifty cents.
3. Reference and Pronouncing Testaments—Price fifty cents.
4. Treatise on Regeneration—Price sixty-two and a half cents.
5. Five Hundred Sketches and Skeletons—Price two dollars and fifty cents.
6. Traveller's Guide to the West—Price fifty cents.
7. Wandering Soul—Price seventy-five cents.
8. Hymn Books, English and German, assorted, at different prices.

☞ For sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER and HICKOK & BARRETT, Harrisburg, Penn'a.

The Governor's Message.

The following is a brief outline of the Annual Message of Governor Johnston to the Legislature of Pennsylvania.

The message opens with a fervent expression of gratitude to the Almighty Father, for the manifold mercies and protecting influences that have marked His dispensations to the people of the Commonwealth during the past year.

The Governor next notices the death of President Taylor, and pays a beautiful and feeling tribute of respect to his exalted character, gallantry and worth.

The condition of the finances of the State is lucidly explained in the message, and as connected therewith, the state of the public works.

A revision and alteration of the Tariff laws, so as to give permanent protection to the industry of the country, is again favorably considered.

The following recommendations are also made:

That the Spring Elections be authorized to be held at the time of the General Election in October, in such counties as may desire the change; that an Agricultural Department be created and united to the State Government; that the apportionment of the State into Congressional Districts be not delayed to the last hour of the session; that the weights and measures in the several counties be again adjusted; that the Geological reports be published in full, and that the Colonial and Revolutionary Records be better preserved from mutilation and accident, and published; that the laws in relation to taverns, ale-houses, &c., be revised; that the tax laws be equalized; that a system of banking based upon State Stocks be tried.

On the subject of Slavery and the Fugitive Slave Law, the duty of Pennsylvania under the Federal Constitution, in regard to both, the Governor is clear, and upholds the long cherished principles of Pennsylvania.

COR. EDITOR'S DEPARTMENT.

John the Baptist and his Lord.

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS.

J. FLAKE.

When the Almighty is about to do some great thing among men He makes it known before-hand to some of his people. So it was before the flood—the Lord revealed to Noah that the day of wrath was at hand.—So it was when Sodom and the cities of the plain were overwhelmed with fire—the Lord told Abraham what he was intending to do. It is likely that every great event in the world's history is known before-hand to some of God's people.

And now when the Son of God was about to visit the abodes of guilty men, it is made known to a few of those who were piously walking with God in the midst of the people of Israel. Zachariah was a priest—and together with his wife Elizabeth, walked in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless. Both were righteous before God, which is much better than to be accounted so merely in the eyes of men. Think what honor was done them in their low estate, by being chosen as the depositories of the glorious intelligence that God was about visiting his people, not in wrath, but in mercy.

Among the angels in heaven is one whose name is Gabriel. Consequently it is likely that they all have their names like we have. Gabriel was sent to speak to Zachariah—that God intended to make him the father of a child, who should be a great prophet, and herald the coming of the Prince of peace.—He was to be filled with the Holy Spirit even from his birth—shewing that a child may be regenerated as well as a man. Therefore pray for your children, and labor for their conversion.

The birth of John was only a short time before that of our blessed Lord. He grew up to be a man of great humility, and sanctity of life, and spirit. When he began to preach in the neighborhood of the river Jordan, the news spread everywhere around, until it is said that Jerusalem, and all Judea, and the region round about, went out to hear him, and were baptized of him in Jordan confessing their sins. He preached the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. He was a bold and faithful witness for the truth, and for holiness; and I think the Baptists of the present day say that John was the first Baptist.

In him was figuratively fulfilled the prophecy of Malachi, that Elijah should first come, before the great and dreadful day of the Lord should come. But I believe that Joseph Wolfe and others hold, that the propheey concerning the sending of Elijah, or Elias, will yet be literally fulfilled, before the coming of the Lord in glory to judge the world. John came as the herald of the Saviour, in the spirit and power of Elias. He preached—he baptized—he cried "Behold the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world." He fulfilled his mission, and then, because he was faithful in reproving Herod the king, he was cast into prison, and to satisfy the revenge of a woman, the partner of Herod's guilt, he was put to death. His disciples buried his body, and then went and told Jesus; and no doubt cleaved unto Him as the only hope of guilty men.

O how much better to have the life and lot of John, and even fill a humble grave as he did, than like the Herods, a guilty family, to live in splendor, and go down to the dust unsanctified, and with all their sins very likely upon their head.

The first Christmas was a day of joy, for the angels sang around the birth place of the Saviour, and every Christmas is, or ought to be, a holy—day, in memory that (as one of the old prayers of the English Church says,) "our Saviour Jesus Christ came to visit us in great humility," and it teaches us, to pray for grace, to "cast off the works of darkness, and put on the armor of light."

Our blessed Lord was to be a King, and so he was descended from the family of David, and from the tribe of Judah. He was not born in Jerusalem, but in the town of Bethlehem, where David's family dwelt, and where the prophet had foretold that the Messiah—the Ruler—should be born.

The Saviour did not come in the beginning of the world, nor in the middle—but in the evening of the world, when more than four thousand years of human life on earth had passed away. When he came the last days commenced, and we have cause to think that we now live at the close of the last days, when a new dispensation is about to burst upon mankind. How strange has been the history of man on earth, for eighteen hundred years, since the Saviour first visited us in great humility. He came to his own people, and preached and labored for their good, going to and fro through the land of Israel, from Galilee in the north, to Jerusalem in the south. He never went beyond the border, for he said that he "was not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." His Apostles were to go to other nations.

The Jewish people rejected their King—the Lord of glory, as the Apostle Jude calls him. They put him to a cruel and shameful death, not knowing that he was to be wounded for our transgressions, and bruised for our iniquities, and that on him was to be laid the sins of all. And as they continued to reject him even after his resurrection from the dead, the Gospel was carried among the Gentiles, and wrath and ruin came on Jerusalem, and the Jewish people.

"Hail to the Lord's anointed,
Great David's greater Son;
Hail in the time appointed,
His reign on earth begun."

Philadelphia, December, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I came to Philadelphia the day before Christmas, and a very pleasant, happy time it seems to be, to the great multitude thronging the great city. May it be a good time to you, and yours, dear brother, and to all the readers of the Advocate, wherever it comes as a welcome visitor, from this city in the East, even to Iowa City in the West. Send me the last three numbers without fail. J. FLAKE.

Simplicity is one of the striking characteristics of real genius.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

JOURNAL
OF THE
Eighth West Pennsylvania Eldership.

Pursuant to adjournment, the West Pennsylvania Eldership of the Church of God met in the Bethel at Fiatville, Lawrence county, Pa., on Wednesday, the 20th of November, A. D., 1850.

The meeting was opened with the usual religious exercises, by brother D. Wertz.

On motion, brothers Ober and Hovis were appointed to constitute the body: whereupon the following brethren were found to be in attendance, viz:

CIRCUITS.

Marshall County, Virginia, Circuit, including Greene county, Pa.—D. Wertz and B. Ober.

Bethany Circuit, including the Bethany, West Newton, Red-stone and Ridge Churches—

Youngstown Circuit, including the Youngstown and Salt Lick Churches—

Indiana Circuit—

Rockland Circuit, Venango County—J. Hovis.

Irvin Township Cirsuit, Venongo County, including the Irvin and Fiatville Churches—J. M. Klein, teaching elder; Samuel Weston and J. F. Clark, ruling elders.

Harmony Circuit, including the Middlesex, Harmony, Slippery Rock and Columbiana, Ohio, Churches—Wm. Davis.

Athens County Circuit, Ohio—

Missionarries Present—J. Hicketnell.

Absentees—E. Logue, W. Vance, A. Osmore, J. A. Dobson, M. W. Cook, S. S. Richmond, Lewis Croft, A. Latshaw, J. Glenn, H. Barkey and C. Cobaugh.

On motion, the meeting was organized by electing brother J. M. KLEIN Speaker, and J. Hovis Clerk.

On motion, the following committees were appointed, viz:

1. A committee on Overtures, consisting of brothers Wertz, Hickernell and Davis.

2. A committee on Journals, consisting of brothers Ober, Weston and Hovis.

3. A committee on Resolutions, consisting of brothers Klein, Ober and Hickernell.

The Standing Committee was called on to report. The committee not being ready, their report was deferred for the present.

On motion,

Resolved, That we now adjourn to meet on to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Session closed by brother J. S. Manning.

—

THURSDAY MORNING.

Session opened by brother Davis. Journal of yesterday was read and corrected.

The Standing Committee reported: That they appointed J. Glenn to the Indiana circuit, in consequence of the failure of S. S. Richmond; and that they appointed three Camp-meetings—one in Marshall county, Virginia, one in Indiana county, and one in Irvin township.

The Committee on Journals reported: Your committee find the following item of unfinished business on the last year's Journal, viz: The case of Munson W. Cook.

Whereas there are various charges preferred against M. W. Cook; and whereas the Eldership has nothing from him officially—therefore,

Resolved, That the Eldership cannot pass his character, nor give him license.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by brother Ober.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Opened by brother J. Hickernell.

A delegation from the Free-will Baptist denomination appeared.

Whereas the Crawford Quarterly Meeting of the Free-will Baptist denomination has sent to this Eldership two delegates, viz: J. S. Manning and Truman Hendricks, expressing the most friendly feelings towards the Church of God, and desiring a more intimate acquaintance and union between the two bodies—therefore,

Resolved, That we receive these brethren with the most friendly feelings, and invite them to take seats with us as advisory members.

Resolved further, That we appoint brothers J. Hickernell and E. Logue as delegates to the Yearly Meeting of the Free-will Baptist denomination, to be held in Greene township, Erie county, Pa., commencing on the 20th of June, 1851.

The committee on Overtures reported: That they received several letters—referred to the Stationing Committee; and also a letter from brothers Dobson, Osmore, Richmond and Cook, containing some business transacted by them at a meeting held by the Chester Church, Athens county, Ohio, on the 19th of September, 1850. Referred to the Eldership.

After a mature investigation of the above proceedings, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

Whereas there appear to be some charges preferred against brothers Dobson, Richmond and Cook—therefore,

Resolved, That we advise them not to take such a hasty step till all things are properly adjusted.

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to hear and investigate the charges brought against brother Dobson.

This committee consists of brothers J. M. Klein, J. Hickernell and E. Logue, and will meet in Irvin township, Venango county, Pa., on the third Saturday of February, 1851. All letters and documents to this committee will be directed to Wesley Post-office, Venango county, Pa.

The committee on Resolutions reported the following preambles and resolutions for the consideration of the Eldership:

Whereas our late Congress has passed an act relative to the recovery of fugitive slaves, which law imposes on us duties subversive to the law of God and our feelings—therefore,

1. Resolved, That we use all possible and legal means for the immediate repeal of the aforesaid Fugitive Slave Law.

2. Resolved, That the Eldership appoint Bro. J. Hickernell to fill the vacancy occasioned by J. M. Klein's resignation of his charge in the Venango Church.

3. Resolved, That brother Wertz take up the appointments at Robstown, McKeesport and Pittsburg.

4. Whereas there stands on the last Journal a resolution that all the preachers lift collections at their various appointments, for Eldership purposes; and whereas there were a large number absent at the last Eldership—therefore,

Resolved, That those absentees be called on by the Eldership to pay over their dues.

5. Whereas it is both Scriptural and right that those who enjoy the blessings of the Gospel and Christianity should pay into the treasury of the Lord according to their several abilities—therefore,

Resolved, That the preachers of this Eldership receive donations and lift collections, and bring the liberalities of the people to the next Eldership, for the purpose of establishing an Eldership fund.

6. Resolved, That brother Davis take up the appointments in Ligonier Valley, Turkey-foot and Salt Lick, in connection with his other appointments.

After due investigation and consideration their report was adopted.

On motion,

Resolved, That we now hear the reports of the preachers.

Brother D. WERTZ reported: That he labored part of the last year as preacher in charge of the Marshall county, Va., Circuit, and since spring as missionary. He had some good meetings, and a small number embraced religion, during the last year of his labor, in different parts. He wishes to go on in the good work, be more useful and live more holy in time to come. His report was adopted and license renewed.

On motion, adjourned. Session closed by the Speaker.

—

FRIDAY MORNING.

Session opened by brother Hovis. Journal of yesterday read and corrected.

Report of preachers continued.

Brother B. OBER reported: That he feels thankful for the privilege of meeting his brethren in an Eldership capacity. When I left the last Yearly Meeting I entered upon my former field of labor. Some good was effected. A Church of seven members was formed, and some few were converted at the different appointments. In the spring I removed to the Marshall county, Va., circuit—commenced my labors on that circuit, according to appointment—travelled continually, and preached 273 times during the Eldership year. Some good has been effected on this circuit. A Church of 22 members was formed on Boman Run, and the prospects on the whole circuit are tolerably good, with but few exceptions. All that is wanted is, more laborers, so that the truth of God may be defended, there being a great deal of infidelity and formality in that country. As regards the future, I still feel determined to labor with my brethren in the ministry, according to the best of my abilities, until the day of my departure. I ask an interest in the prayers of all my brethren. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother LOGUE was heard from through brother Hickernell.

Whereas brother E. Logue now stands on the Journal of the East Pa. Eldership as being transferred to this Eldership—therefore,

Resolved, That he be received as a member of this body.

Brother VANCE was heard from through brother Hickernell, stating that last spring he removed to the State of Iowa, and being at a great distance from the brethren and Eldership in that State, he requests a renewal of his license. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother S. RICHMOND reported by letter.

Whereas Bro. Richmond has not filled his appointments: and whereas he has not given the Eldership a sufficiency of evidence to justify him for not filling said appointments—therefore,

Resolved, That he is blame-worthy for declining to fill his engagements.

Resolved further, That brother Richmond's license be given him as soon as satisfaction can be given to the Standing Committee.

Brother J. HOVIS reported: That he feels himself happy for the privilege of meeting his brethren in another Yearly Meeting. I continued my labors, for the most part of my time, since the last Yearly Meeting, on my old ground. We have had some good meetings: yet religion in that part of the country is rather on the decline; but we still hope and pray for a better day, and that the Great Head of the Church will revive his work again in that place. Pray for me, brethren, that I may become more useful in the vineyard of the Lord. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother J. M. KLEIN reported: That after the last Eldership he returned to his former place of labor, and resumed his labors in the Irvin and Fiatville Churches, together with some few other appointments occasionally,—that the people were exceedingly anxious to know the arrangements for the future, and he therefore embraced the earliest opportunity to let them know of his re-appointment; stating that if the Church was not satisfied, they should address the Standing Committee in proper time. This, however, was neglected on their part. Some time in the winter, it became necessary to enforce the civil authorities against a number of persons rude and disorderly at meeting, among whom were those who were very closely connected with some of the members of the Church. This caused a dissatisfaction on their part, and finally resulted in their expulsion. Soon after this, a certain preacher came into the neighborhood, as he supposes, through their influence, who prated against us with malicious words, saying that the Church of God was a sect—that her government was unscriptural, being Presbyterial, &c. To him some few gave heed, but that he withstood his doctrines. This created still more dissatisfaction, and opposition against him as preacher in charge. He then thought it necessary that something should be done to prevent schism in the Church: he however continued preaching for the Church until the Camp-meeting, when, according to the advice of brethren, and a former proposition of his own, he withdrew his pastoral charge from the Church, but continued preaching in the neighborhood. At a meeting held immediately after Camp, a goodly number were converted and baptized. He states that the Fiatville Church is doing well, and is on the increase. The number of conversions is somewhat upwards of twenty—received into fellowship about fifteen, and baptized about the same number. His determinations for the future are as heretofore, to labor in the Gospel as Providence may open his way,—has some preference as to the ground; but looking at the great want of laborers, thinks that preference may not be for him, it being a mission in the State of New York.—Feels himself at peace with all his brethren in the Eldership, and wishes a renewal of his license. His report was adopted and license renewed.

On motion,

Resolved, That we hear applicants for license.

Whereupon the following brethren were reported to the Eldership, viz: Joseph Anglemyer, E. Jordan, E. Marpool, S. Barnhart and H. Bowman.

On motion, adjourned to meet to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Session closed by brother Wertz.

—

SATURDAY MORNING.

Session opened by brother Hickernell.

The Journal read and corrected.

Report of prenchers continued.

Brother DAVIS reported: That he was glad to meet his brethren in an Eldership for the first time. He stated that he could not fill the appointment assigned him at the last Yearly Meeting, in consequence of sickness in his family. Nevertheless, he had preached as much as he could, considering his circumstances. He organized a Church at Black Lick Furnace, of eighteen members, and one at Cambria Furnace, of nine members. He still feels willing to travel as much as he can, and asks an interest in the prayers of his brethren, that he may be more useful. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother OSMORE reported by letter. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother J. HICKERNELL reported. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother J. GLENN was heard from by Bro. Hickernell. His report was adopted and license renewed.'

Whereas brother Glenn has failed in filling the appointments assigned him by the Standing Committee; and whereas brother Davis has served the above neglected appointments, therefore,

Resolved, That we advise brother Davis to continne his labors with the Church at Brush Valley, and further advise the Church to give half the support to brother Davis.

Brother LEWIS CROFT was heard from, and license granted him.

Brother H. BARKEY reported by letter. His report was adopted and license granted him.

Brother A. LATSHAW reported by letter. His report was adopted and license renewed.

Brother C. COBAUGH reported by letter. His report was adopted and license renewed.

On motion,

Resolved, That we now take up the applicants for license.

Brother J. ANGLEMYER's case was taken up and considered, and a license granted him.

Brother E. MARPOOL's case was considered and a license granted him.

Brother E. JORDAN's case was considered and a license granted him.

Brother S. BARNHART's case was considered and a license granted him.

Brother H. BOWMAN's case was consideraed and a license granted him.

On motion,

Resolved, That we appoint delegates to attend the General Eldership. Whereupon E. Logue and J. Hickernell, teaching elders, and Nicholas Hissong, ruliog elder, were appointed.

On motion,

Resolved, That we appoint a Standing Committee. Whereupon J. Hickernell, E. Logue and B. Ober were appointed.

On motion,

Resolved, That we appoint a Stationing Committee. Whereupon J. Hickernell, J. Hovis and J. M. Klein were appointed.

Whereas brother Davis has been laboring in the canse of God in the past; and whereas he has received little or no support, therefore,

Resolved, That the funds collected by the preachers be applied to his support, which amount was $5 13.

On motion,

Resolved, That the Stationing Committee report. Their report is as follows:

CIRCUITS.

Marshall County, Virginia, Circuit, including Greene county, Pa.—BENJ. OBER and WM. DAVIS.

Westmoreland & Indiana Circuit—J. HICKERNELL and J. A. PLOWMAN.

Venango and Harmony Circuit—E. LOGUE and J. HOVIS.

McKeesport & Pittsburg Mission—D. WERTZ.

New York State Mission—J. M. KLEIN.

Resolved, That we tender our thanks to the Speaker and Clerk, for the faithful performance of the duties of their office; and also to the brethren and citizens of Fiatville, for their kindness and hospitality.

Resolved, That we now adjourn to meet at Bethany, Westmoreland county, Pa., on the third Wednesday of October, 1851—the opening sermon to be preached by Bro. E. Logue, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

J. M. KLEIN, Speaker.

J. HOVIS, Clerk.

New Testament Words.---No. 3.

ABOMINATION is a word frequently used by the New Testament writers; and in order to understand its meaning, we must have recourse to those passages where they make use of it: Thus in Luke 16: 15, we find that it means any thing that is hateful or detestable in the sight of God. It also means pollution, or the cause of pollution: hence we find it used in describing the three following subjects:

1. The Roman army besieging and taking possession of Jerusalem.—Matt. 24: 15. See also Dan. 9: 26, 27. It is thought by many who are acquainted with the prophecies and ancient history, that the abomination spoken of by Daniel and Christ, means two things: 1. The image of a swine laid on the brazen altar, and that of Jupiter Olympius in the temple of Jerusalem, which Antiochus Epiphanes erected to stop the Jews from worshipping in the temple. It is said in Daniel that "he should cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease:" and swine flesh is mentioned by Isaiah with the broth of abominable things. Christ said the abomination would be seen standing in the holy place; and it is likely he had reference to this very thing, so abominable to the Jews, that seeing the heathen form of worship in the temple, they desisted from worshipping in their usual manner.—2. The Roman army which brought the abamination into the temple. The first abomination caused the sacrifice and oblation to cease; but the other (i. e. the army) made desolate. Christ calls it the abomination—Daniel calls it abominations, having reference to these two things. The Roman army was composed of idolators, and they had the images of their idols painted on their ensigns. The Jews detested these people, and looked upon them as an abomination; yet, they burned their splendid temple, destroyed their city, not leaving one stone upon another, and spread desolation through their whole country.

2. This word is used to describe the wickedness of the covetous, hypocritical Pharisees, whose apparent holiness was highly esteemed by the people among whom they lived. But their righteousness was all on the outside, and consisted in long prayers, the giving of alms to be seen of men, —they were very strict in paying tithes, making broad their phylacteries, and attending to their various washings, &c., &c., which was nothing but pollution itself in the sight of God, although so highly esteemed by men. Luke 16: 14, 15.

3. This word is also used to describe the nature of the anti-christian Church of Rome, which for hundreds of years has been upheld by a cruel and tyrannical government, and spreading a baneful influence over the nations of the earth. Rev. 17: 4, 5.—"And upon her forehead was a name written, Mystery, Babylon the Great, the Mother of Harlots and Abominations of the earth." Here we find four words made use of to describe this corrupt community: 1. Mystery, hidden, or in the dark, This means that her Doctrines and Practices cannot bear to be examined by the light of God's Word. 2. Babylon the Great—great confusion of tongues. 3. Mother of Harlots—called in these days the Mother Church, the one from whom all the Sectarians sprung. 4. Abominations of the earth, the seat or nest of every abominable practice, the author of all covetousness, envy, and superstition, which is an abamination in the sight of God.

When the "Man of Sin" (whom the Lord will consnme) shall be destroyed by the brightness of His coming, then this "Mother of Harlots," and many of her children, will pass into oblivion, to be found no more; and the true children of God, which are now scattered abroad, shall be gathered together into one, and there shall be one fold, one Shepherd, one Lord, and His name one. Lord hasten this happy period. WM. JOHNSTON.

Prayer.

PRAYER is one of the great Christian duties. Our Savionr taught his followers how to pray. Let us examine the example given.

"Our Father who art in Heaven, Hallowed be thy name; thy kingdom come; thy will he done on earth as it is in Heaven: give us this day our daily bread; and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil: for thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, forever.—Amen."

Shall a worm of the dust make comments on this Divine production? With reverence we may refer to it as a guide to saint and sinner. It comprehends all that the purest saint could desire, and it encourages the sinner to pray to our common Father. The style is that of perfect simplicity, which all can understand—the plainnes is such that none will mistake, and yet its snblimity is past the imagination of human beings. Neither teacher, preacher, or law-giver, had ever conceived such doctrines: they had never entered the heart of man, and will stand the test of ages as a proof of the Divinity of the Christian religion. Did we say "a proof of the Christian religion?" Yes, the principles embraced in the few sentences of that prayer have in all ages since their delivery carried conviction to the unbeliever and staggered the stoutest infidel. A moment's reflection will convince the reasoner that, if Christianity was heartily embraced, and acted on according to the dictates of the Divine prayer, the earth would be almost a Paradise—the Millennium would be here.

Bnt can we say this prayer sincerely? Here is a trial! "Our Father who art in Heaven, hallowed be thy name." We can say this—it is pleasant to address a Father, a powerful Father, in whom we believe, and we shudder at the unhallowed use of His name. "Thy kingdom come." Can we in sincerity say this? We tremble at the thonght of such an examination—we fear that we cling to earthly things more than to Heavenly, and are not prepared to welcome the Kingdom of Grace. "Thy will be done." Four words—a short sentence—who is prepared to say it? Father, do we pray for thy will to be done, or our own? Is self-will, murmuring and repining removed from our hearts? If so, we are indeed Christians. We ask the reader to examine himself. "Forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us." What will we say to this? It shows the beauty of Christianity. It exceeds all earthly things, and we proudly point to it while the unbeliever speaks of excellent moral laws. We with triumph ask for such a production from the Moralist, the Philosopher, or the Statesman. It is Divine—But it requires a Christian to say it. Do we not wish for a Fatherly forgiveness far different from that which we extend to our fellow-mortals who offend us? Have we no malice, no spleen, no bad feelings lurking in our bosoms when we approach the throne of grace with our petitions? If we have, the beauties of Christianity are not impaired, but we are not sincere Christians, and cannot reasonably expect the benefits arising from true devotional prayers.—"Lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil: for thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory," &c. While we pray we ought to watch lest we fall into temptation; but the power and the glory must be given to our Father in Heaven. Let the righteous ne'er cease to do so.

Guardian Angels.

BY H. J. BEYERLE, M. D.

THE subject of Guardian Angels is looked upon by many of the "wise of this world," as an innocent delusion to which the common people are given. That angels are ministering spirits, is admitted by all Bible-believers; and the instances where angels were sent, by the special command of God, to protect his saints upon earth in danger, and to deliver them from death, are so numerous in the Holy Book, that they cannot have escaped the observation of its most careless readers. But I believe—and though you call it weakness—that the usefulness of angels ranges farther than this—that they exercise a general protective influence over the people of the Lord. What else can we make of passages like these: "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them."—Psa. xxxiv. 7. "For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways: they shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone."—Psa. xci. 11, 12. "Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, that in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven."—Matt. xviii. 10. And the Scriptnres are true? Oh, yes!—How true!—How precious! Is it not natural—and yet how sublime!—that God should have a constant, intermediate, spiritual intercourse betwcen His Church and Heaven! He loves His little flock below, and He spares no pains to draw their affection towards Him. Comparatively speaking, man is but an atom in the vast extent of creation. "When I consider the heavens, the work of thy fingers; the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained; what is man that thou art mindful of him?" And yet, what has He not done for man? He has placed the sun and the moon in the firmament, to smile down upon our earth; and from that earth He has caused the little blade of grass and the gigantic forest tree to spring forth; and at His word the ground, the air, and the water teemed with life,—and all for man! In time of need, He has not failed to arrest the course of nature: water gnshed from the rock in the desert; the sun and the moon stood still in the heavens; diseases were healed with a touch, a word, a look; and even the dead returned unto life!—Yea, "the very hairs of your head are numbered." Verily, He careth for His people. And why should it be extravagant—especially with such testimony before us as we have adduced—to believe that man has his guardian angels? How often, when unseen dangers threatened, may the heavenly protectnrs have impeded the course of misfortune! How often, when the arrow was already shot, may its flight have been arrested before it arrived at its destined mark!

The above was suggested by reading a sweet little poem on "Guardian Angels," by Mrs. Seba Smith. I will here annex it.

No inward pang, no yearning love,
  Is lost to human hearts,
No anguish that the spirit feels,
  When bright-winged hope departs,
Though in the mystery of life
  Discordant power prevail;
That life itself is weariness,
  And sympathy may fail;
Yet all becomes a discipline,
  To lure us to the sky,
And angels bear the good it brings
  With fostering care on high;
Though others, weary of the watch,
  May sink to toil-spent sleep,
And we are left in solitude
  And agony to weep:
Yet they, with ministering zeal,
  The cup of healing bring,
And bear our love and gratitude
  Away on heaven-ward wing;
And thus the inward life is wrought,
  The blending earth and heaven,
The love more earnest in its flow,
  When much has been forgiven.

Linglestown, Pa., 1851.

Questions for the Brethren of Ohio.

Being a constant reader of the Church Advocate, and feeling interested in the matter contained in its columns, especially as it regards the principles, purity and increase of the Church,—and desiring to have a general and perfect knowledge of all that transpires among the holy brotherhood, I beg leave to put a few questions to the brethren of Ohio, respecting a resolution passed by their late Eldership.

The resolution referred to reads as follows:

"Resolved, That the Eldership teach the Churches of God in Ohio, not to receive into membership any but baptized persons."

1. What is the object of this resolution? Is it to bring about a uniformity of action throughout the Churches? Or, is the practice of receiving into Church membership converted persons, before they are baptized, contrary to the law of Christ? If so, we should be pleased to know it.

2. Do they hold that Baptism is the door into the Church, after the manner of some?

3. If it is contrary to the Scriptures to receive into the Church unbaptized believers, is it also wrong to fellowship them in prayer, the Lord's Supper, and in all the ordinances of divine worship?

Will brnther Megrew, or some other one in the Ohio Eldership, answer the above questions, and thereby gratify not a few cnquiring minds? D. R. ROCKAFELLOW.

Mechanicsburg, Cumberland Co., Pa.

A Word to the Young.

BY J. SHOPE, M. D.

It appears to me that the words of the wise man, "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth," are, if possible, more applicable now than they were in his own day and generation.

When we consider that there are at present upwards of nine hundred millions of human beings living in the world, and that the average length of human life is now estimated at thirty years, we find that every second of time that passes takes one soul from time to eternity.

Again: It has been estimated by learned divines, that nine-tenths of all the religious people now living, have embraced the principles of vital piety in the days of their youth. This also agrees with the advice of Solomon, where he says, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

If we take these things into consideration, we can plainly see that youth is the time to act, both temporally and spiritually; and if the youthful days are once neglected, our immortal all is gone, and there is only one chance to ten, should we even live to be old, that it will ever be redeemed.

Come, then, ye young men, and ye fair ones, rnn no longer with the giddy ranks of sin and folly. Now is the acceptable time. Let us be up and doing those things we know are obligatory upon us, lest we should hereafter see that our youthful days are over, the acceptable time ended, and we are not saved.

Gilchristville, Pa., Dec., 1850.

A New Church.

Bloomfield, Pa., Dec. 19, 1850.

Brotner Winebrenner:—

It may be of some interest to the readers of the Advncate, to let them know that light has at last shone into a dark place. This town, although the county seat, has, through some cause or other, hitherto been wholly neglected by our brethren, until some months ago, I made an effort and succeeded in getting up an appointment. And although the place is noted for sectarianism and rowdyism, yet the truth has been made effectual. I preach to large and attentive congregations, and have succeeded in organizing a Church on original principles. Brother Humes is Elder, and brother Sutch Deacon. Thus originated the Church of God in Bloomfield. I pray the Lord that the leaven may work and assimilate its own nature into the meal, until the whole town may be leavened.

Yours as ever,
J. H. HURLEY.

Letter from J. H. Hurley.

Landisburg, Pa., Dec. 20, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

As it is customary in these days for all tourists to give publicity to their own journals, (if you will allow me a small space in the Advocate,) I will proceed to give you, and through you to your readers, some gleanings by the way, which may be of some interest to at least a few.

According to previous arrangement, I left this place on the 4th of December, on horseback, on a trip to Martinsburg, Blair county, Pa., going by way of Multicaulusville to Germantown, and from thence across the mountain to the pleasant village of Concord, where I fed and dined at a hotel; which, by the way, was a pretty hard place. There was quite an exhibition of rum faces, speaking the dialect of hell One poor fellow came the distance of two miles, with a bag of corn on horse-back, and bartered it for a jug of the critter, in my presence. I could not refrain from making a remark, that he should have rather given the corn to the horse, which, from the exhibition of bones, looked as if he ate but little corn. This remark caused him to turn up his strawberry nose at me, and advise me to mind my own business. My stay here was very short. I left the jolly company, all technically expressed, getting blue, and proceeded on my way through Franklin county, passing several pleasant villages, crossing into Huntingdon county, where I was kindly received and entertained by Mr. J. McClain, a respectable farmer, and member of the Presbyterian Church, who welcomed me to his home, after a ride of 42 miles. The Lord reward him for his kindness. From thence I proceeded to Fulton county, a new county, in honor of Robert Fulton, a native of Little Britain, Lancaster county, who made the discovery and application of the power of steam to the vessel. This being a very rainy day, I travelled but twelve miles, and arrived at the very hospitable home of Doctor Moore, and being storm-staid, I was kindly entertained by the Doctor and his kind family for several days. From thence I proceeded to Martinsburg, by way of Newburg, crossing the river at Rough and Ready, a distance of thirty miles. A more unpleasant trip I never endured, in consequence of the rain freezing, and causing an immense coat of ice on the mountains, breaking the timber, and obstructing the road, making it both difficult and dangerous to travel. This evening (Saturday) at half-past four o'clock, I arrived in safety at the pleasant village of Martinsburg, where I met with a very cordial reception by the brethren, who, with their present pastor, brother D. Kyle, had almost despaired of my coming.

During my stay there I was very kindly entertained by brother and sister Slingluff. They took great care of me. I tarried with them ten days. The Lord reward them for all their kindness. This town is situated in one of the most handsome valleys in all creation. The only objection to it is, that it is very cold, this season of the year.

The meeting was commenced by Bro. Kyle before I came, who gave it into my care, thinking, no doubt, like many others, that a new broom sweeps clean. I being a total stranger here, the burden of preaching fell upon me. At this meeting I delivered fifteen discourses. Among that number was one to the Bethel Sabbath-school, one on the ordinance of Christian Baptism, and one on the washing of the saints' feet. The result of this meeting was two conversions, three immersions, and four accessions to the Church.

The brethren there have a very fine Bethel, which, by the way, was literally crammed part of the time. Near the door stands a beautiful marble monument, over the resting place of our lamented young brother Bamberger, former pastor of the Church. My eye caught a glimpse of it while entering the church. Ah! thought I, if there is a place in the world where a young minister of Christ could content himself to die, far away from home and relations, it would be in such a beautiful place, and among such warm-hearted friends, as are here. His burial, at such a sacred spot, is as enviable as the sublime burial of the lamented Judson, who is buried in the deep.

On the morning of the 17th I took my leave of the brethren, returning by way of Stonerstown, Bedford county, crossing Broad-Top by way of Sidling Hill Gap and Ockwick, tarrying over night with brother H. Cramer, and next day, after a ride of some fifty miles, over the mountains, which was a good day's ride, crossing Black-ledge Valley by the Shade Gap and Millwood, and a number of other villages and mountains, I arrived here again in perfect safety. Thanks be to the Lord!

During this trip I enjoyed much that I could not at any other place, and was permitted to soar—not, however, with high-sounding words, or on hobbies, but over some of the most splendid mountains, feasting my eyes on the beautiful landscape, for although nature has put off her verdant mantle, and the cloud-capt peaks are whitened with snow, yet it is a beautiful scenery still. Ah! thought I, this must be a little paradise in the summer season, to soar over such mountains, and now and then to slake the thirst of the traveller, in a hot, sultry day, in the limpid springs that gurgle from the base of the mountains, and to be fanned by the beautiful foliage of the lofty forest, and breathing the pure atmosphere, while the little feathered songsters are hopping from hranch to branch, warbling their notes in praise to their Maker. But old winter is here now, and I would rather be in some other paradise than in that frozen region.—However, even here in these mountains we have very many kind and good-hearted, zealous brethren, who enjoy the life of religion in all its simplicity and power. They are much attached to their pastor, brother A. J. Fenton, who is trying to feed them with the bread of life. May the Lord help him.

Yours as ever,
J. H. HURLEY.

Letter from Bro. John Dash.

Troy Grove, La-Salle Co., Ill.,
Dec. 15, 1850.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

This morning I take up my pen to write a letter, to let you know a little about the cause of God in our Western world.

In 1848 we left Pennsylvania, and on the 3d of June we arrived at Pern, in this State.—Soon after we arrived here, we tried to find out some of the people of the Church of God, but we could not find any. In our three families there are nine of us who belong to the Church of God. There are three different sects out here, viz: the English Presbyterians, and the Episcopal and Protestant Methodists. But we find the good old way is the best.—Accordingly we commenced our prayer-meetings, and worshipped together, and our little band increased to about 16 souls. Old brother Klinfelter and all his relatives; brother Fehler and brother Shawat, with their families, all live here. Bnt they all lament and complain because we have no minister of the Gospel. We appear like a flock of sheep without a shepherd. I have no doubt if we could get a good preacher, a man that can preach both in the English and German language, the cause of God would prosper. Openings for a circuit are now fair. It is just the time now for a preacher to take hold in Pern. Many Pennsylvanians are here, who will help to support a minister of the Church of God in preference to any other. We hope the good brethren of the Church of God in the East will have mercy upon a little flock of Christians in the West, and help us to a minister.

Old brother Christian Klinfelter says you promised to send a preacher when they would write you. He is not good at writing letters, or he would have written you one long before this. But he and all the Church are anxious to have a minister sent us—a single or a married man. We will do our duty, and support him. We think we can afford to keep and support a minister here as well as in Pennsylvania, and a great deal better, because we are all better off in worldly things than we were in Pennsylvania. And surely if Providence has provided and blessed us so richly with earthly goods, why should we not have a good preacher of God's kingdom, and be willing to support him? May God bless his ministers, and send them out here in the West, where a great field is open and ready for them. Don't forget to send us a preacher and some books. The grace of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

Written in behalf of the Church of God at Troy Grove, La-Salle county, Illinois, by JOHN DASH.

Letter from Bro. William Fasig.

MARTINSVILLE, Clark Co., Ill., Dec. 9, 1850.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

I DESIRE to drop a few lines for the Church Advocate, to let the brethren know that we in these Western woods are still trying to go on in the good old way. We have some great refreshings from the presence of the Lord. We have preaching and prayer-meeting; and our houses are sometimes crowded. Brother Rupp and brother Switzer are our preachers. They both exercise in the German language. Brother Cowden preaches sometimes for us in the English language. He is a member of the Methodist Church, but he has great love for the Church and people of God.

We are very glad that the brethren in East Pennsylvania have not forgotten the poor sheep of the Lord's flock in the far West. We are well pleased with the proceedings of the Eldership, and are very glad that they are trying to send missionaries to the West. We pray that the Lord may bless the brethren in these proceedings: and we would say to those that have volunteered to enter the missionary field, don't be discouraged. The Church here is willing to put their shoulders to the wheel, and I hope there are many in Illinois that will throw in their little mite. If a brother comes here, he will find a home. I hope and pray to see the time when the scattered sheep of Illinois will have the privilege of hearing the Gospel preached in its purity.

This is a beautiful country to travel in, especially in the summer season, but not quite so pleasant in the winter. But the winters are not quite so long here as in the North of Ohio, where I formerly lived.

In the year 1832 brother Rupp and I emigrated from Lebanon, Pa., to Wayne county, Ohio, four miles west of Wooster, where we lived six years. While we lived there, we held three Camp-meetings on our land. I well remember when brother Thomas Hickernell and brother Jacob Keller first came to Ohio as missionaries; and O, how powerfully they preached, and the work of the Lord broke out powerfully, and there were many converted to God. Among that number, there were some converted that are now able ministers of the Church of the first-born. O, Lord! bless the brethren and sisters in Wayne county, Ohio.

From there we moved to Richland county, where we lived nine years, and also saw good times, and many sinners converted to God. God bless the brethren and sisters of Richland county! From there we moved to the State of Illinois, (Clark county,) where we intend to spend our days. We would say to our brethren, friends and acquaintances, if they should move to the West, to call and see our country. The land is both good and cheap here. If they should like it, well and good; if not, no harm done. There are roads here that go east and west, north and south. But we would be very glad if some would come and settle here.

Brother Winebrenner, your paper is a welcome visitor to us here in the far West. I hope and pray that it may yet find great success in this State and elsewhere.

My Post-office address is Martinsville, Clark county, Illinois.

Yours, in Christian love,

WILLIAM FASIG.

Letter from Bro. J. M. Klein.

WESLEY, Venango Co., Pa., Dec. 18, 1850.

BROTHER J. WINEBRENNER:—

YOURS of the 4th inst. is before me. It came to hand last Saturday night. Our Journal not being transcribed, I delayed writing till the present.

Our Eldership terminated to the satifaction of all present: at least, the most friendly feelings prevailed during the whole time; and so it ought to be, in my opinion. Children of the same family and brethren in common together, should not wound each other's feelings or do anything rashly.

You will see by the Journal that we had a delegation from the Free-will-Baptists.

I am sorry that the preachers are so slack in attending the Eldership. I think that all the brethren should come together once a year. When brethren meet annually, it proves a kind of annual feast to us.

Bro. Hickernell is laboring here. Things as yet look rather gloomy. I have harbored some hopes that he will succeed in expeiling that disorganizer from the neighborhood; and if so, I think he may succeed in bringing about a better state of things.

Yours truly, J. M. KLEIN.

Letter from Bro. Daniel Graybill.

NEW RUMLEY, Harrison Co., Ohio, Dec. 25, 1850.

DEAR FRIEND:—

I HAVE now set myself down and taken my pen in hand to inform you that we are all well at present, and hope that these few lines will find you also in good health. We looked for you and G. U. Harn to come through this place, but all our hopes were in vain. The people would have liked to see you, and heard you preach. There are none of the Church here but myself and my brother Samuel; and that is one objection I have to this place. The debate between brothers Keller and Owen has been greatly misrepresented here. Please send me the Advocate, that I may show it and correct the reports. Send it to New Rumley, Harrison county, Ohio, and you will much oblige me by so doing. Pray for me.

Yours truly,

DANIEL GRAYBILL.

OBITUARY OF ELIZABETH WILLIAMS.

DIED, at her mother's residence, near Newberry, in Newberry township, York county, Pa., on the 17th day of December, 1850, ELIZABETH WILLIAMS, aged 16 years, 3 months and 5 days.

Her remains were deposited in the silent grave at Newberry, on the 18th. A funeral discourse was delivered on the occasion, by Elder Jacob G. Kisler.

The departed Sister became awakened at the York County Camp-meeting, near Newberry, in August last, but did not profess to have experienced the pardon of her sins until after the Camp-meeting closed. Brother John Hickernell commenced a protracted meeting at the Newberry Meeting-house, where, with many others, she professed to know her sins were all pardoned. She joined the Church of God at that place. In a few weeks after she embraced the religion of Jesus Christ, she became afflicted, and was soon confined to her bed until her death. At different times before her happy spirit took its flight to the Paradise of God, she would break out in ecstacies of joy, exhorting the by-standers, and praising her God in such a way as is beyond my power to describe.

GASPER SHUPP.

Newberry, Pa., Dec. 31, 1850.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

The Coal Trade.—The total supply of Coal sent to market in 1850 amounts to 3,381,202 tons, against 3,235,777 tons in 1849, showing an increase (notwithstanding all the suspensions and injuries done the Canals) of 735,420 tons. The total supply, 3,371,202 tons, at $4 50 per ton, amounts to upwards of $15,170,000. It is estimated that 4,000,000 tons of coal will be sent forward this year. The progress of this trade has indeed been extraordinary. In 1820, thirty years ago, the total supply was only 365 tons. Ten years thereafter, in 1830, it had increased to 174,734 tons. In 1840, the total supply amounted to 867,045 tons, and In 1850, the aggregate was 3,381,202 tons. Since 1820, the total amount brought to market may be stated at 29,030,092 tons. And yet, we may fairly infer that the trade is yet in its infancy. The increase in the time to come, will far outstrip everything of the past. Nay, the probability is, that before many years, the present means of communication and transportation will be found inadequate, and other facilities of the kind will of necessity be provided. The consumption is increasing with the utmost rapidity.—Philadelphia Enquirer.

U. S. Mint Statistics for 1850.—The Philadelphia American is indebted to Edward C. Dale, Esq., Treasurer U. S. Mint, for the annexed statements relative to the operations of the Mint for the year just closed. It will be observed that the receipts of gold have been very large—$33,150,000 in the aggregate, of which amount California contributed $31,500,000, an average upwards of $2,500,00 a month. The coinage in the same period amounts to $28,206,471, of which the gold coinage was $27,756,445 50; silver coinage $409,600; and the copper coinage $7,918,47.

☞ The farmers of Ohio have entered quite extensively into the cultivation of Madder, some of them realizing over $200 per acre.

Immigration for Ten Years.—The following is a list of the number of passengers arrived at New York during the past ten years:

Year.	Passengers.	Vessels.
1841	57,338	2,118
1842	74,949	1,960
1843	46,302	1,832
1844	61,002	2,208
1845	82,960	2,044
1846	115,230	2,289
1847	166,110	3,147
1848	191,909	3,060
1849	221,799	3,237
1850	226,287	3,489
Total,	1,237,885	25,384

Reappearance of the Cholera.—The cholera appears to have broken out almost simultaneously in several points at the South and West. The New Orleans Courier says it has broken out with great fatality in Gainesville, on Pearl River, the first time it ever appeared in the pine woods. It is also reported that the cholera exists to some extent in Franklin Parish, La. The Planters (La.) Banner reports the death of nine negroes, from the same disease, on the plantations in that vicinity. At Selma (Ala.) two persons have died of cholera recently, and near Summerfield, in the same State, a Mr. Glass, Mrs. King, and one of her slaves, have been attacked with the same malady.—Jour. Com.

Remarkable Earthquakes.—The most remarkable earthquakes of modern times are those which destroyed Lima, 1746, and Lisbon, 1755; in the latter, 20,000 persons were killed. It extended from Greenland to Africa and America. A similar fate befel Calabria, in 1783; the province of Caraccas, in South America, in 1612; and Aleppo, in Syria, in 1822. Several earthquakes have taken place quite lately in South America, one particularly dreadful at Lima. The city of Guatemala, also, was nearly destroyed in the spring of 1840, by earthquakes, which continued five days successively.

Charitable City.—The amount annually expended by the Municipal Government of the City of New York for charitable purposes, is upwards of $500,000. Besides this amount, over $400,000 are yearly expended by the various Benevolent Institutions in this city, thus showing that nearly a million of dollars are expended every year, in support of the poor in the City of New York.

Falling of the Horse Shoe Rock.—The Niagara Falls Iris says a portion of the rock at the Horse Shoe Fall, on the Canada side, fell with a tremendous crash a week ago last Tuesday. The part which fell was about ten rods long by four rods wide.

☞ Pennsylvania has a population of 2,300,000, an increase of 576,000 or 33½ per cent. Ohio has 2,200,000, an increase of 670,732 or 42 per cent.

☞ Congress appropriated one million one hundred and sixteen thousand dollars to defray the expenses of taking the census!

☞ The Portland Advertiser gives the official census of Maine for 1850, from which we find that the population of that State is 583,026, being an increase of 81,230 since 1840.

Lowell Manufactures.—There are in Lowell, Mass., twelve manufacturing corporations, with a capital stock of $13,510,000. The number of mills is fifty; spindles, 319,945: looms, 9,985; females employed, 9,560; males employed, 3,744; cotton consumed per week, 653,000 lbs.; wool per week, 69,000 lbs.

Telegraph under Water.—There are three lines of sub-marine telegraph wire in working operation under the Hudson river, four under the Connecticut, two under the Delaware, and eight under Harlem river. All coated with gutta-percha. And one, on O'Reilly's line, under the river at Chicago.

☞ It is stated that the property of the Corporation of Trinity church, New York, is estimated at from twelve to sixteen millions of dollars.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HISTORY OF UTAH.

The whole character of the territory of Utah is singular. Its situation is unlike that of any other section of North America. Its origin and the manner of its settlement no less strange. The name Utah is given to a large extent of territory bounded by California, Oregon, New Mexico, and what was formerly termed the great Western territory. It is of sufficient dimensions to be separated into several States, provided in future ages its population shall warrant it. But many parts of it so partake of a peculiar construction as to render it, for the present at least, uninhabitable. Passes, through precipitous mountains whose tops are covered with snow, and whose sides are but rocks, exist it is true, but they are mostly narrow valleys of the most arid and sterile kind, their surfaces covered with incrustations of bitter salt, and their whole vegetation a giant species of sage, of no earthly use but to be consumed as fuel. In the midst of these icy mountains, through which there is no access but by these passes, arid in summer, and choked with snow for five months of the year, lies a tract of land, elevated some four or five thousand feet above the level of the sea, called the Great Basin, which furnishes the habitable part of the territory. In different parts of this Basin, the Mormons have established their home, probably, at first with the idea that they would be cut off from the world, by the natural difficulties of the contiguous territory, and the peculiarity of their situation. Here they expected to form in secrecy and silence, a great, peculiar, religious Empire; but the stream of California emigration discovered their trail and inundated their principality, and they are now the open, exposed, "Halfway House" to the Pacific.

This basin is some 560 miles in diameter, has its own system of lakes and rivers, and has no known communication whatever with the sea, unless the existence of the whirlpools in the salt Lake, which are reported to be lately discovered, should prove an internal communication with the Pacific, or with some spring or lake in the lower country. In the Northern part of this basin, lies the Great Salt Lake. The waters of this sheet are shallow, so far as explored; though probably its central parts will be found very deep. Its waters are intensely salt, more so than the ocean—three gallons making one gallon of the purest, whitest and finest salt. South East of this lake, shut in by the mountains, lies the Mormon Valley, that contains their capital city, by some called the Great Salt Lake; by others, Mormon City. This valley is 30 miles by 22, connected to another valley which is about 50 miles by 8. These two valleys contain the principal body of the settlers, to the number of twenty thousand. Explorers think that they are capable of supporting a population of a million.

Fifty miles south of the City, is the Utah Lake and Valley. Here lies the city of Provo, on the Provo River. The lake is pure water, eight miles by four, and abounds in fish. There is still another valley one hundred miles farther south, called San Pete, where there is another settlement; and here we find the hieroglyphic ruins, the remains of glazed pottery, &c., that indicates the former existence of the out-laying cities of the Aztec Empire.

The soil of all these valleys is astonishingly productive, though requiring, constantly, artificial irrigation from the mountain streams. The climate is one of the healthiest and the air the purest on the Continent. The neighboring mountains rise to the height of a mile and a half above the valley, and are covered with perpetual snow.

The City is laid out in blocks of ten acres each; eight lots to the block; an acre and a quarter to the lot; the streets eight rods wide; each ten acre block to be surrounded by a stream brought down from the mountains. No two houses front each other; so that, standing in his own door, every man looks into his neighbor's garden. In the City, are four public squares, to be surrounded with shade trees and supplied with fountains.

Such is the delightful place chosen by one of the most peculiar religious sects which Christendom contains. Remote from the exercises of external tyranny; and yet connected to our great empire. Its peculiar locality will prove of immense service as a stopping place for rest, refreshment, and provisions for the army of emigrants, that will. year after year, seek California, or Oregon, by the Southern Pass: and when the great railway is established, it will prove of incalculable benefit as a great Station House on the route.

WASHINTON'S OPINION OF WAR.

War has been the favorite delusion of our world for more than five thousand years; yet have a few among the wise and good of every age discovered its real character, and denounced it as a sin, a curse, and a shame. They may have connived at it, and even lent it their sanction and support; but their good sense constrained them, in moments of sober reflection, to condemn it as a mass of crimes and woes. The world is full of such testimonies against this custom, nor have the better sort of warriors themselves been slow to acknowledge its folly, its guilt, and its evils!

The cause of peace has sometimes been reproached for its supposed condemnation of our Revolutionary War, but it is quite remarkable that some of its chief supporters, its very leaders, came out of that struggle with a deep, settled abhorrence of the custom. I might quote the venerable names of Rush, Franklin, and Jefferson: but I will, for the present, restrict myself to some incidental testimonies of Washington himself against War.

"The more I am acquainted with agricultural affairs," he says, in a letter to a friend in England, "the better I am pleased with them; insomuch that I can nowhere find so much satisfaction as in those innocent and useful pursuits. While indulging these feelings, I am led to reflect, how much more delightful to an undebauched mind, is the task of making improvements on the earth, than all the vain glory that can be acquired from ravaging it by the most uninterrupted career of conquest."

"How pitiful, in the age of reason and religion, is that false ambition which desolates the world with fire and sword for the purpose of conquest and fame, compared to the milder virtues of making our neighbors and our fellow-men as happy as their frail convictions and perishable natures will permit them to be."

Addressing a distinguised friend in Europe, just after his marriage, he says, "While you have been making love under the banner of Hymen, the great personages of the North have been making war under inspiration or rather infatuation of Man. Now, for my part, I conceive you had much the best and wisest of the bargain; for it is certainly more consonant with all the principles of reason and religion to replenish the earth with inhabitants, rather than depopulate it by killing those already in existence. Besides, it is time for knight-errantry and mad heroism to be at an end."

"Your young military men, who want to reap a harvest of laurels, don't care how many seeds of war are sown; but for the sake of humanity, it is devoutly to be wished that the manly employments of agriculture, and the humanizing effects of commerce, should supersede the waste of war, and the ravages of conquest; that swords may be turned into ploughshares, and spears into pruning hooks, as the Scriptures express it, and nations learn war no more."

THE RAPIDS OF JORDAN.

It had been ascertained that the Dead Sea was more than 1,000 feet below the level of the Lake Tiberias. As the distance between the two was but 60 miles, this would give a fall of 20 feet per mile—greater, it was then thought, than any river in the world exhibited. The Mohawk river in America was held to be one of the greatest fall, and that averages not more than four or five feet to the mile; but it is now known that the Sacramento in California has a fall of 2,000 feet in 20 miles, or an average of 100 feet to the mile. It was then, however, thought that such a fall as it seemed necessary to suppose in the case of the Jordan, from the difference of level between the two lakes which it connected, was without example, and as its course was presumed to be tolerably straight, and as it was not known to contain any rapids, an error in the calculation of level between the two lakes was more than suspected. This problem it was left for Lieut. Lynch to set at rest. In the first place the river is full of rapids—the boats plunged down no less than twenty-seven very threatening ones, besides a great number of lesser magnitude; and then, although the direct distance does, as stated, not exceed 60 miles, the course of the river is made at least two hundred miles by the exceedingly tortuous course of its stream. This reduces the fall to not more than six feet in the mile. for which the numerous rapids in the river sufficiently account.

Massachusetts.—The State valuation of property in the State of Massachusetts for the present year, as determined by the Valuation Committee, is $590,531,881. In 1840 it was $229,878,239.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 2d inst, by J. Winebrenner, V. D. M., Mr. Samuel Heisey to Miss Catharine Cassel, both of Dauphin county, Penn'a.

On Saturday, the 28th of December, 1850. by G. U Harn, V. D. M., Mr. John L. Lingle, of Harrisburg, to Miss Rebecca Prowel, of Fishing Creek, York county, Pa.

On the 29th of December, 1850, by Elder P. Shaw, Mr. Andrew Thayer, of York county, to Miss Susan Swiler, of Cumberland county, Penna'.

On the 25th of December, 1850, by Elder J. Haifleigh, Mr. Abraham Albright to Miss Catharine McCartney, both of Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 9th inst., by the same, Mr. Joseph C. Vannasdaln to Miss Isabella Hofflender, all of Cumberland county, Pa.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—On the 27th ult., in this borough, Mrs. Catharine Zerbe, daughter of John Ditto, formerly of Cumberland county, aged 70 years, 8 months and 2 days.

On the 3d of January, 1851, near Siddensburg, York county, Pa., William, son of John and Jane Edelblute, aged 3 years, 6 months and 2 days.

His mortal remains were interred in the Bethel grave-yard in Siddensburg. Funeral sermon preached by the writer, from Job 14: 10.

Also, on the 4th of January, 1851, in Siddensburg, Latimer Alexander Pollinger, aged 2 years and 23 days.

His remains were interred in the grave-yard attached to the Lutheran Meeting-house near Siddensburg. Funeral sermon preached by the writer, from Num. 23: 10.

A. Snyder.

On the night of the 17th of December, 1850, Martha Ann Shaw, aged 2 years, 1 month and 18 days. On the same night, John Shaw, aged 4 years, 10 months and 19 days. On the 7th of January, 1851, Philip Shaw, aged 3 years, 6 months and 6 days.

On Monday, the 6th inst., after a lingering illness, Isaac Keagey, Printer, in the 28th year of his age.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

A protracted meeting will be held at Rockeyville, commencing on Saturday, the 25th of January. Simon Fleegal.

One at Mechanicsburg, commencing on Saturday evening, the 18th of January.

The brethren in the ministry and the public generally are invited to attend.

J. Haifleigh.

Another at Siddensburg, commencing on Saturday, the 17th of January.

The Preachers and brethren are invited to attend. John A. Plowman.

A protracted meeting will be held at the Red Hill Bethel, near Newport, Perry county, Pa., commencing on Friday evening, the 23d of January. A. Snyder, Pastor in charge.

POETRY.

The Better Land.

Alas! my soul, why cling to earth!
A better land's above,
Where life, and light, and beauty dwell,
And every heart is love.

Its beck'ning glories, ever light,
Invite my soul away;
Fain would I quit this world of night
For realms of endless day.

The flowers of that better land,
Are ever fresh and fair:
No parting hands, no sad farewells,
Are ever utter'd there.

O, happy land! the beauties there
Have won this feeble heart;
Fain would I drop this clog of clay,
Glad from this world to part!

My weary feet would softly tread
The streets of Paradise,
Where anthems of redeeming love
To our Immanuel rise.

The dwellers in that better land
No sin nor sorrows know;
They strike their harps, their golden harps,
And living anthems flow!

While hope hangs lingering on my soul
My faith grows strong and bright;
Fain would my wearied pinions rest
In that bright land of light.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4 12	a	4 50
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	2 50	a	2 50
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	2 37½	a	2 37½
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			90	a	90
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	50	a	62
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	45	a	45
Do.	Oats,	do. - -	30	a	32
Do.	Barley,	do. - -	70	a	75
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	4 25	a	4 50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2 00	a	2 25
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1 12	a	1 12
BEEF, per cwt.		- - -	5 00	a	5 50
PORK, do.		- - -	5 50	a	5 50
HAMS, per pound,		- - -	8	a	11
BUTTER, do.		- - -	20	a	25
LARD, do.		- - -	8	a	8
TALLOW, do.		- - -	8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.			6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - -	15	a	18
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -	50	a	62
ONIONS,	do.	- -	75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -	37	a	62
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1 25	a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -	37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -	30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -	1 50	a	1 50
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -	10 00	a	10 00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	5 00	a	5 00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4 75	a	5 25
Do.	Rye,	do. -	3 00	a	3 00
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	3 00	a	3 00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1 05	a	1 12
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	68	a	70
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	65	a	65
Do.	Oats,	do. - -	40	a	42
Do.	Barley,	do. - -	65	a	68
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	4 75	a	5 00
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2 50	a	2 62
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1 40	a	1 50
BEEF, per cwt.,		- -	7 00	a	8 75
PORK, do.		- - - - -	7 00	a	7 25

Horses and Carriage for Sale.

The subscribers having performed their tour to the West, now offer their horses and carriage for sale, on reasonable terms.

John Winebrenner,
Geo. U. Hahn.

Dr. Christie's
Galvanic Belt, Necklace, Bracelets, and Magnetic Fluid.

THE acknowledged and extraordinary curative powers of these wonderful inventions is now so generally known and their sales and reputation throughout the whole country so extensive, that it would seem unnecessary to urge their merits further. But some late circumstances have occurred which render it a matter of duty to the public not to be altogether silent, for while the ephemeral nostrums of the day are trumpeted by columns through the Press and swallowed by quarts and gallons by the afflicted, and are found just good for nothing,

Christie's Galvanic & Magnetic Curatives,

have been quietly working their way among the most intelligent and respectable classes, and are constantly achieving cures in an alarming train of diseases, which have for ages baffled all the aid of medicine and all the resources of Science. These diseases are called and in these diseases medicine is of no avail whatever. It never does good, and it often does harm. Syrups, Extracts, Balms, Balsams, Elixirs, Bitters, Pills, Powders and Potions of every kind are alike worthless, for they weaken the vital energies of the already prostrated system; while under the strengthening, life-giving, vitalizing influence of Galvanism, as applied by this beautiful discovery, the exhausted patient and weakened sufferer is restored to former health, strength, elasticity and vigor.

NERVOUS COMPLAINTS,

These remarks relate to such diseases as NEURALGIA, TIC DOLOREUX, BRONCHITIS, PALPITATION of the HEART, WEAKNESS, and all FEMALE DISORDERS, such as NERVOUS HEADACHE, LASSITUDE and DESPONDENCY, which are only other names for Nervous Derangement; EPILEPTIC FITS and CONVULSIONS, which are known to result from a non-equilibrium of Electric influence; NERVOUS TREMORS, DEAFNESS, which is nearly always caused by torpidity of the Auditory Nerves and can always be perfectly cured by Galvanism when the organ is not destroyed; DYSPEPSIA, in its worst forms; PALSY and PARALYSIS, uniformly caused by a deficiency of Nervous influence; CHRONIC RHEUMATISM, TORPIDITY of the LIVER, PAIN in the SIDE, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION, SPINAL and HIP COMPLAINTS, DEFICIENCY of NERVOUS and PHYSICAL ENERGY, and all those distressing complaints resulting from a DERANGEMENT of the NERVOUS SYSTEM.

In the above prevalent and terrible class of diseases and Nervous Complaints which are much more numerous than is generally imagined—

CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES,
Are an Absolute and Positive Specific.

The BELT is used when the body or system generally is afflicted: the NECKLACE for complaints of the Throat, as Asthma and Bronchitis, and of the Head: and the BRACELETS for all disorders of the arms and limbs, as Rheumatism, Palsy, Tremors and Spasmodic affections. These articles are simply applied as directed with the MAGNETIC FLUID which accompanies them, and when faithfully used they NEVER FAIL!

☞ The great peculiarity and excellence of the GALVANIC CURATIVES consists in the fact that they arrest and cure disease by Outward Application, in place of the usual method of Drugging and Physicing the patient till exhausted nature sinks hopelessly under the infliction. They strengthen the whole system, equalize the circulation of the Blood, promote the secretions, invigorate the entire energies, and can never do the slightest harm under any circumstances.

Since their introduction in the United States, only three years since, more than

75,000 PERSONS

including all ages, classes and conditions, among whom were a large number of Ladies, who are peculiarly subject to Nervous Complaints, have been

Entirely and Permanently Cured,

when all hope of relief had been given up, and everything else had been tried in vain! The beneficial results which have uniformly attended their use is confidently stated to be without a parallel in the annals of Medical Science. Clergymen, lawyers, and even physicians: ladies of the highest standing: distinguished persons holding elevated official stations: merchants, manufacturers, and mechanics: the poor and the rich alike: often whole families, among all classes, ranks and conditions, have equally been recipients, and have equally acknowledged the wondrous and often unexpected benefits which they have thus received.

☞ Let it be known and remembered that the only Natural Restorative for the Nerves is Galvinism, and that in all Nervous Diseases we should

"Throw Physic to the Dogs."

To illustrate the use of the GALVANIC BELT, suppose the case of a person afflicted with that bane of civilization, DYSPEPSIA, or any other Chronic or Nervous Disorder. In ordinary cases stimulants are taken, which, by their action on the nerves and muscles of the stomach, afford temporary relief, but which leave the patient in a lower state, and with injured faculties, after the action thus excited has ceased. Now compare this with the effect resulting from the application of the GALVANIC BELT. Take a Dyspeptic sufferer, even in the worst symptoms of an attack, and simply tie the Belt round the Body, using the Magnetic Fluid as directed. In a short period the insensible perspiration will act on the positive element of the Belt, thereby causing a Galvanic circulation which will pass on to the negative, and thence back again to the positive, thus keeping up a continuous Galvanic circulation throughout the system. Thus the most severe cases of Dyspepsia are permanently cured. A few days is amply sufficient to eradicate the disease of years.

MANY THOUSAND
Certificates and Testimonials

from the most intelligent and respectable persons residing in every portion of the United States, could be presented. These are now unnecessary, but a numerous selection embracing many statements of the most extraordinary character, sufficient to convince the most sceptical, may be had of the authorized Agent. The interested are particularly invited to call.

WONDERFUL RESTORATION!
☞ 77 Years Old!!!

Blooming Grove, Orange Co., N. Y., July 26, 1850.

To Dr. A. H. Christie, New York.

Dear Sir—Having been very severely handled by Rheumatism and other diseases, and having been cured in a most remarkable manner by CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC BELT and FLUID, I thought I would give a statement of my case, for the benefit of others. I had the Rheumatism last winter, and my legs swelled very much. My head was also very much afflicted, having so severe a pain over my eyes that I could scarcely see. At the same time, I was troubled by spasms, caused by the pain in my head, I suppose. My hearing had been getting poor for several years from a catarrh, so that in one ear I could scarcely hear at all. Having heard wonderful accounts of Christie's Belt and Fluid, I sent to your store and got them. The Belt was put on, and the Fluid used as directed, and I don't think I have had, after the first night using them, one minute clear pain from that time to this, being six months. The Rheumatism left my body entirely, after wearing the Belt a very short time, probably two weeks. Then I put on a Galvanic Necklace, and had not worn it two weeks, before my head was perfectly well. My hearing in both ears is entirely restored, the pain all gone, my sight is very good for a man of my age, (77 years in August) and I consider myself entirely well, having worked through harvest without the least difficulty. I consider my cure very remarkable, and therefore do not hesitate to recommend CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES to all persons afflicted as I have been. (Signed) PHINEAS TUTHILL.

AFFIDAVIT.

State of New York, Newburgh, Orange county, ss: Phineas Tuthill of Blooming Grove, Orange county, N. Y., who is personally known to me as a most respectable citizen and worthy of all confidence, being duly sworn deposes and says that the facts, set forth in the above statement in relation to his case, are entirely correct, and that he is now in the enjoyment of good health, caused as he believes by Christie's Galvanic Curatives. PHINEAS TUTHILL.

Sworn before me this 26th day of June, 1850.

S. W. EAGER, Justice of the Peace.

Weakness and Nervous Debility!

Dear Sir—I want another supply of Christie's Galvanic Curatives, immediately. This is an intelligent and reasoning community, and they see at once that the Curatives are constructed upon scientific and philosophical principles and must work effectually upon the Nervous System, in the case of Nervous Diseases. An estimable young lady in our town was afflicted with extreme Nervous Debility and severe pains in the head and neck. She put on one of the Galvanic Belts and Necklace and immediately became sensible of its curative and strengthening powers, and the next day was relieved of the severe pains, and raised from a state of entire nervous prostration to health and strength. I can mention several other cases equally wonderful.

Yours very respectfully, J. B. KNIGHT.
Panama, Chautauque Co., N. Y., Oct. 1, 1850.

☞ No trouble or inconvenience attends the use of DR. CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES, and they may be worn by the most feeble and delicate with perfect ease and safety. In many cases the sensation attending their use is highly pleasant and agreeable. They are accompanied by full and plain directions for use. Pamphlets with full particulars may be obtained gratis, of the authorized Agent.

PRICES:
The Galvanic Belt, Three Dollars,
The Galvanic Necklace, Two Dollars.
The Galvanic Bracelets, One Dollar Each.
The Magnetic Fluid, One Dollar.

PARTICULAR CAUTION.

☞ Beware of counterfeits and Worthless Imitations. D. C. MOREHEAD, M. D.,

GENERAL AGENT FOR THE UNITED STATES,
132 Broadway, New York.

☞ For Sale by Dr. W. K. MEHAFFEY, authorized Agent for Harrisburg, Pa.
Dr. GEO. ROSS, Elizabethtown, Pa.
Jan. 1, 1851.—6m.

Depositories of Our Books.

FOR the convenience of our brethren, and the public generally, we have established Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

GEO. F. GORDON, corner of 12th and Wistar streets, and BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, and LEWIS COLBY, No. 122 Nassau street, New York.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, Baltimore, Md.

JOHN H. CORNELIUS, New Berlin, Union county, Pa.

SPANGLER & BROTHER, Lancaster, Pa.

MARTIN and MENELY, Lagrange county, Indiana.

M. F. SNAVELY, North Bend, Iowa.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail Prices.
History of Denomination in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries, -	2 00
Wandering Soul, - - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament, -	50
German Reference Testament, - -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
German Do., - - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, - -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - - -	25
Harn on Feet-washing, - - -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, - - -	15
Traveller's Guide to the West, - -	50

EVANGELICAL MUSIC,
FOR
CHURCHES AND SINGING SCHOOLS.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us, and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music.

☞ For sale at this office, and at our Depositories. Editor.

Missionary
SUBSCRIPTIONS AND DONATIONS.

FOR sustaining five Missionaries in the West—two in Iowa and three in Illinois, during the next Eldership year, commencing with April, 1851, and ending with March, 1852.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, -	-	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	-	-	5 00
Geo. U. Hahn,	-	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	-	-	10 00
Jacob Miller, -	-	-	10 00
James Miller,	-	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm, -	-	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe, -	-	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	-	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	-	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	-	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	-	-	5 00
James Casey,	-	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00
Susanna Myers,	-	paid	4 00
Charles F. Loug,	-	-	5 00
Daniel R. Long,	-	-	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations,

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of ALL the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by John Winebrenner & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders.) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa. FEBRUARY 15, 1851. NUMBER 19.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

Revival at Bloomfield Furnace.

There is a precious work of grace in progress at Bloomfield Furnace, Huntingdon county, Pa., where brother Andrew J. Fenton is laboring as pastor. He writes under date of the 14th ult. as follows: "This meeting is still in progress. Some 12 or 14 have been converted to God, and others are seeking peace with God."

Our Semi-Bituminous Coal.

The Semi-Bituminous Coal of Dauphin county are said to be the very best for Steam Engines and mechanical purposes. There is a Railroad from Dauphintown up the Stony Creek Valley, to the mines at Coaldale, a distance of 12 miles.

Mr. Collins, the proprietor of the Ocean Steam Ships, has written a letter to the Dauphin and Susquehanna Coal Company, confirming the result of other experiments, which have proved that the Coal from the Dauphin mines is better for Ocean Steam Navigation than any other American Coal. The Company hope to have about 200,000 tons in the market next year.

Gas Works.

The Gas Works in this place are now in successful operation. The Gas was first introduced on Monday, the 13th ult., and the Capitol, the principal hotels, stores, and various other dwellings, were brilliantly lit up with Gas lights. These works are a fine improvement to our town, and will no doubt prove profitable to the stock-holders.

Grace Abounding.

The glorious work of grace at Mount Joy, Lancaster county, is still in progress. On the 13th, 14th and 15th ult. we were there, and tried to help along with the good work. At that time 51 had joined the Church, and some 65 or 70 professed to be converted. Since that time the work has rather increased than diminished.

On the 18th ult., brother Cassel writes as follows: "As I know you feel an interest in the welfare of Zion, I again write to you this morning. Last night the heavens bowed themselves, and they had a Pentecost—a mighty refreshing shower. I could not tell you how many were forward,—everything was full,—but among the number of those happily converted, was Chas. Hershey, the young man that took the carriage away."

This refers to a circumstance that occurred on the Monday that we were there. The young man referred to opposed his brother and sister, and to prevent them from attending meeting, took away the horse and carriage, which they had got ready to come to meeting with.

On the 20th brother Cassel writes again: "The pool at the Bethel is still troubled, and many are nightly stepping in and made whole. C. Hershey gave in his experience yesterday. He says when he took the horse away, seven angels appeared to him, and his departed mother among them. He then cried and wept until the mane of his horse was wet on both sides of his neck. After which an angel and the devil came down to him, with a pair of balances, and he was weighed and found wanting."

On the 21st brother Mooney writes: "The good work of the Lord is still in progress here. The number that have professed religion since you left, is 20 or 25;—18 were forward last night, principally young men."

On the 23d brother Cassel again writes: "Last night there were 15 out to be prayed for—eight new ones and seven of the night before. Eighty have already joined the Church, and over 100 conversions. Besides this, the whole neighborhood is getting awakened.—The Macedonian cry is coming up from Landisville, from Elizabethtown, and from Bainbridge, 'Come over and help.' They all want protracted meetings. The young Englishman went to Bainbridge, and the first night five presented themselves."

Infant Baptism
UNSUPPORTED BY THE BIBLE.

In our Miscellaneous Department the readers of the Advocate will find an interesting account of a meeting in the South, between a Baptist and a Methodist, on the subject of Infant Baptism. The simple facts in the case are these: The Baptist offered a thousand dollars to any one who would furnish one or more texts from the Scriptures, proving the rite of Infant Baptism. The Methodist undertook the task. They accordingly met on Christmas day, and the trial was made before seven men of their own choosing. These persons, acting in the capacity of a jury, having heard the proof texts, and a speech of half an hour from each one of the parties, retired for a little space, and then made the following report, viz:

"We, the Committee on the case of Messrs. Muse and Hays, have decided, that Mr. Hays has failed to prove, by precept or example in Scripture, Infant Baptism.

WM. COLEMAN, Chair. Com."

Now if Infant Baptism is unsupported by the word of God, how does it happen that this unscriptural thing has found so many zealous advocates, and has now got to be so generally practiced? Why, like episcopacy, confirmation, penance, &c., it has got in vogue by force and virtue of the doctrines and commandments of men. No two of the prevailing Pedo-baptist sects can agree as to the reasons for it, the class of infants to whom the ordinance is to be given, or the testimony in support of the practice which ought to be regarded as satisfactory! Various considerations on these points have been seized upon, some by one sect, and some by another. The arguments, however, of each, in favor of their own theory, and against those maintained by their opponents, have clearly shown the systems of all to be wholly baseless. They are ingenious fictions, skilfully wrought sophisms, and are reciprocally contradicted and refuted. For illustration:

Wall, Hammond, and others of that school, claim that Jewish proselyte baptism, is the foundation upon which infant baptism rests.

But Owen, Jennings, and many more, have clearly shown that Jewish proselyte baptism did not exist, until long after the ascension of Christ. And they procced to prove that it is authorized by the covenant with Abraham.

Knatchbull, and his class, derive it by analogy from Jewish circumcision.

Beza, Doddridge, and their associates, insist that children are holy, and must therefore be baptized.

Wesley and others teach that children are unholy, and must be baptized to cleanse them from their defilements.

Burder, Dwight, and their followers, hold that the offspring of sanctified parents bear a peculiar covenant relation to God and the Church, and for this reason they, and no other children, are to be baptized.

Baxter, Henry, and all that class of divines, baptize infants as the means of introducing them into the covenant of grace, and the Church of the Redeemer.

The evangelical divines of the Church of England tell us that "the doctrine of infant baptism is deduced by analogical reasoning, from the statements of Scripture applying more expressly to the case of adult baptism;" but the other class teach that baptism gives regeneration to the infant, and must therefore be administered. Many, however, and those among the most learned and candid, ingeniously confess, that they find no express authority for it, except in "the general spirit of religion." Neander, for example, frankly says, "From the internal feelings of Christianity, which obtained an influence over men's dispositions, the custom of infant baptism proceeded."

J. W. Nevin places the rite of infant baptism on the ground of "a mystical force in the divine character of the Church. With Dr. Neander and others, he admits that it had no existence before the third century, but that the entire genius and faith of the early Church, from the very age of the Apostles, lay in the direction of this practice, and fell towards it with natural gravitation, instead of looking or leaning in any other direction.

Thus contradictory, frivolous, and suicidal, is the reasoning of those who essay to sustain infant baptism as a practice supported by the word of God.

Agricultural Convention.

Pursuant to public notice, the Delegates to the State Agricultural Convention met in this place on Tuesday, the 21st ult. The Convention was well attended, and remained in session two days.

Hon. Geo. W. Woodward was appointed President, sustained by 24 Vice Presidents, and five Secretaries.

A Business Committee of five were appointed.

On motion, the members of the Legislature, the Governor and Heads of Departments were invited to attend the sittings of the Convention.

Mr. J. Ingersoll, from the Committee on Business, reported in favor of establishing a Pennsylvania State Agricultual Society; preparing a Cunstitution and a Memorial to the Legislature, for a charter and an appropriation; and also in favor of introducing instruction on Agriculture into the Common Schools of the State.

The recommendations of the Committee were all adopted.

Judge Hayes, from a Select Committee, reported a Constitution for the organization of a Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society.—The Constitution provides that there shall be an admission fee of not less than one dollar, and an annual contribution of the same amount. Thirty dollars to constitute a life member. The officers to be a President, 24 Vice Presidents—one from each Congressional district—a Treasurer, a Coresponding and a Recording Secretary, a Librarian, an Agricultural Chemist and Geologist, and an Executive Committee, consisting of the above named officers and five others. The Society is to meet annually, on the third Tuesday of January—fifteen members to constitute a quorum to do business.

The Constitution was adopted by a unanimous vote.

A motion was made that all who desired to join the Society, be requested to sign their names to the Constitution, with their Post-offices attached; which was agreed to.

Mr. Hultz moved the Executive Committee be instructed to report a system of by-laws for the better government of the Society, to report at its first annual meeting; which was also agreed to.

The committee on officers made the following report:

President—Hon. Frederick Watts.

Vice Presidents—Peleg B. Savery, Joseph R. Ingersoll, Caleb Cope, James Gowen, John Kennedy, William Stavely, A. R. M'Ilvaine, J. B. Garber, Col. Henry Shubert, Conrad Shimer, Jacob Drumheller, Hon. William Jessup, Jacob Gundy, A. O. Hiester, J. S. Haldeman, P. M'Cown, Jonathan Williams, H. W. Beesup, W. A. Stokes, W. Patterson, Hiram Hultz, Morris Leech, James Miles, David Ralston.

Corresponding Secretary—Dr. Alfred Elwin, of Philadelphia.

Recording Secretary—R. C. Walker, of Allegheny county.

Librarian—Dr. L. Reily, of Dauphin county.

Agricultural Chemist and Geologist—C. B. Trego, of Philadelphia city.

Executive Committee—A. S. Roberts, Philadelphia, John Evans, York, William Bell, Mifflin, Isaac C. M'Kinley, Dauphin, David Mumma, Jr., do.

Treasurer—G. H. Bucher, Cumberland Co.

Mr. Eyre moved that Judge Woodward be an honorary Vice President—agreed to.

The report was then adopted.

Mr. J. R. Ingersoll, from the select committee, reported a memorial to be presented to the Legislature.

On motion, the report was adopted by the Convention, after a very able, appropriate and eloquent address from Judge Woodward.

Mr. J. R. Ingersoll moved the thanks of the Convention be tendered to the members of the House, for the use of their hall, and to the members generally, for the kindness as exhibited during the sitting of the Convention.

Mr. Haldeman offered the following resolution, which was agreed to:

Resolved, That the Recording Secretary of the Society be and he is hereby authorized to cause the publication of the proceedings of the Convention and Constitution, and the address as prepared for submission to the Legislature, in pamphlet form, and to furnish five copies to each member of the Convention, and to each member of the Legislature.

After the transaction of some further business, the Convention adjourned sine die.

☞ The sect of German Catholics founded by John Ronge is now making great progress in Germany.

Temperance Covention.

The State Temperance Convention met in this place on the 23d ult., and continued in session two days. The proceedings were highly interesting, but, as usual, they were carried off by the one-sided Secretaries, to be published in some of the Temperance papers, in a week or two hence, and then sent back to us, to copy. We should be glad to see a stop put to this silly and selfish practice. If these proceedings can do any good, why not let them go to the public in any and every paper that will publish them? We may copy an extract in our next.

COR. EDITOR'S DEPARTMENT.

Our Lot---Our Land---Our Religion.

J. FLAKE.

Dear Brother:—

Great are the advantages of living in the last days of this fleeting world. We stand on an eminence—a hill—with lights flowing in from all around—and look back on the track of time, the world's history of six thousand years, or more. This is the only world we are personally acquainted with—but we have heard that there is another—and a better.

Great are the privileges of living in the goodly land of America—this great confederacy of Republican States—which after all the abuse bestowed upon it by the ultras of North or South, is the most free and prosperous nation on earth, and has more piety and goodness than any other, past or present. Our land is not like France, only republican in name, but it is so to a great extent in reality. The laws of the free States are generally good, because the streams of truth and justice and goodness, flowing from Christianity, have mixed and mingled with man's wisdom, to discourage the evil, and help the good that is found in human life.

Great are the benefits of living in town, or village, for man is formed for society; and although Cowper, the poet, says, "God made the country—and man made the town," yet it was because God gave us reason, and an immortal soul—therefore we have towns, and the social state, to make us more happy than if each was isolated, dwelling alone. Very pleasant are the one and two story houses that are generally found in the smaller towns. Who that has seen the white frames, with green shutters, and trees and flower bushes in front, throughout the Eastern States, but will acknowledge that the Yankee makes himself a pleasant home, though he has only a poor soil, and plenty of stones around for fencing. He also builds School-houses every where—and so do we in good old Pennsylvania.

The people of Pennsylvania can be seen, for instance, in Cumberland county—which is neither the best, nor the worst in the State. You are well acquainted there—so are many of the brethren, and I suppose it is a pretty fair specimen of the whole State. The inhabitants go for things solid, and comfortable, more than things ornamental. The Cumberland Valley is a great thoroughfare for those who travel East and West; and it seems to me to have but few foreigners therein. The people are intelligent, and Carlisle, the county town, is the seat of a fine Institution of learning—Dickinson College. They dwell every man under his own vine and fig-tree—or apple or peach—and none to make him afraid.

The Episcopalian and his house of worship, with its solemn ancient Psalms and prayers—the Presbyterian, with his stern Calvinistic creed—the plain-bearded Dunker, with his path to Heaven leading him to a three-fold Baptism in water—all in the same town, or neighborhood.

There also live in peace, and worship, either in houses dedicated to God—or in the camp in the woods occasionally—the "Methodists," who glory in being the children of that man of God, John Wesley—the "United Brethren," who are the German branch of the same family—and those who call themselves by that holy name, the "Church of God," and who I call "the Brethren." These three last mentioned, preach the same Evangelical doctrine, and in their warm and zealous meetings you may often hear the voice of shouting, and sometimes they leap for joy, when they feel that it is well with their souls, and when the good land which is beyond Jordan heaves in view—and the walls of the city which has foundations, rises up in the distance—and faith tells them that there will be their everlasting home.

Such are the Churches in Pennsylvania, in the nineteenth century; having the same faith, if not exactly the same forms of worship, which the Churches of God in Judea had, in the first age of Christianity.

But you, dear Brother, as well as myself, have moved about a good deal, and we know that true religion is not all in one place, nor in one denomination of people. Glory be to God, they shall come from the East, where the Apostles preached first, and where Judson and Martyn have preached the same Gospel in our day. They shall come from the West, where Brainerd and Asbury have travelled, and preached in the forest, and over hill and valley, as well as in town and city.

"Their bodies, their souls, shall his glory partake,
When the trumpet shall sound, and the nations awake."

Sanctification is a great and blessed work, find it where you may. It is the work of God, and I hold that all who are sanctified will be saved. I think that the great error of our day, is the idea of having a religion which does not purify the heart, and conform the life to that of Christ Jesus. Prayer—Baptism—the Communion—Preaching—all are means leading to this great end; and he whose soul and life is not sanctified while under these means of grace, is in great danger of losing his soul. "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear."

Says one of my brethren, or sisters, I wonder why I have so many trials and afflictions? I have lost my child—my health—my property. Well, perhaps all this was needful to break off your affections from the world—to break down your pride, or self-will, and lead you to submission to God's holy will, and humble trust and confidence in his merciful Providence. I heard the preacher in the Arch Street church, in this city, say, in his sermon last Sabbath, "My rich brother cannot trust in God, he trusts in his bonds and mortgages," and I suppose it may be just as difficult for some of the brethren I know, who live in Cumberland, or Dauphin, or Lancaster counties.

I rejoice to hear of revivals in several places among the brethren. They are greatly needed, even in the Churches. Preach the Judgment near—the Law of God—Heaven and Hell—as well as the strange story of Christ's redeeming love, and forgiveness of sins through his precious sufferings and death.

Very likely the chaff will come in, as well as the wheat; but never mind—save all the souls you can. Preach the best you can—sing and pray with deep solemnity; and remember that after all the means used, it is God's Holy Spirit that awakens, and converts, and sanctifies the soul.

Be not jealous one of another, but rejoice in the good that is done, whoever may be the instruments, and whether it be in your own church or elsewhere. There is one body, and all truly regenerate souls are members thereof. Instead of controversy, which some of you love so dearly—and that about small things—O try to save souls from going down to Hell.

"O may I worthy prove to see,
The saints in full prosperity;
That I the holy choir may join,
And count thy people's triumph mine."

Dear Bro. W.—What you say in your letter of the 15th is fully appreciated by me. I hope the brethren will indulge me with a short sojourn with my friends in my native town during the winter months. I have no home, or dwelling place, like many of you have. My health is very easily broken down by the cold, and my own judgment tells me, that I can better serve the cause after a little while. I will send word to the Church at Middletown when I will visit them. J. FLAKE.

Philadelphia, Jan. 19, 1851.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

REVIEW OF THE Debate between J. Keller & A. Owen.

NO. I.

[This number of brother West's review was written last spring; but owing to our absence during the summer, its publication was delayed.—Editor.]

Shippensburg, Pa. April 9, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I have read that part of the discussion between Bro. Keller and Bro. Owen contained in the Advocate of March 15th and April 1st, and I cannot forbear expressing my pleasure with Bro. Keller's address.

The friends of Infant sprinkling were crying victory so loudly in this country, that we were somewhat fearful that Bro. Keller had not succeeded in presenting the subject properly; but our fears are all given to the winds. The opening of the discussion, and the arrangement, together with his arguments, have given entire satisfaction to the friends of truth in this country.

For my own part, I never read a discussion that opens and proceeds more satisfactorily than this one. Whilst Bro. Keller is applying truth to the subject, Bro. Owen is spending his time in quibbling about matters that in my opinion ought not to have any weight in the minds of inquirers after truth.

I would, therefore, beg leave, through the columns of the Advocate, to give a few thoughts respecting some things he presents in his addresses.

1st. He says that "we (advocates of believers' baptism) have a stereotyped objection to infant baptism, and that is, there is no warrant for it, no express precept." "I think (he adds) we shall be able to show, before this discussion ends, that an express precept is not necessary!" This is certainly an honest confession, that Pedo-baptists do not calculate on proving their doctrine by the Bible; and no doubt Bro. Owen's confession and arguments will harmonize.

2nd. He is very anxious to impress on the minds of the people that "Baptizo" is a term that does not express any definite action, but only a mode—that is, it does not express any act, but only a form or manner of doing a thing.

He says that the primary meaning of the word baptizo is to wash, to cleanse, to color or dye. Well, if that be the primary meaning of it, it certainly cannot mean either to immerse, pour or sprinkle, except, as he says, as a consequence of washing, &c. But this is an absurdity; for washing, coloring, dyeing or cleansing are the natural effects of an action.

The aim of Bro. Owen, and all who hold the same opinion he does, is to attach to the word not any definite action, but let it express every thing that the ingenuity of man can devise. Some may say this is too severe: well, before you decide against us, hear our reason for saying so.

In his second speech he says "that all the lexicographers quoted by Bro. Keller, besides giving "to dip, and to plunge, and immerse," give "to wash," and one of them "to sink." He (Keller) brings forward these lexicographers to prove express action, and that action is baptism;" and after some further comment on Bro. Keller's words, adds, "I prove it is "to sink"—I prove it is not action." Well, then, what does it mean, if baptizo does not express action? Keep this before your mind, reader, that he says that there is no act expressed by our Saviour when he commands the Apostles to baptize: they are to wash, color, dye, cleanse or sink those that are believers in the Lord.

There is certainly no definite action expressed in either of the terms above named by him; and therefore, according to his logic, the people are left without any guide.

I am forcibly reminded by the reasonings of Pedo-baptists, of an expression of Paul, found in 1 Cor. 14: 8, 9.—"For if the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who will prepare himself to the battle? So likewise ye, except ye utter by the tongue words easy to be understood, how shall it be known what is spoken? for ye shall speak into the air." This declaration of the Apostle is strikingly true.

The trumpet was used anciently to regulate the movements of armies, and all the soldiers understood the mind of the commander, by the notes of the trumpet; and it is recorded as a fact, that even the horses used in armies would understand the trumpet, and prepare for battle.* Does the trumpet blown by Bro. Owen give a certain sound? No, it does not. Its notes are very indistinct and uncertain, and the people are taught that any thing is baptism that they think is baptism; and in consequence of being thus taught, one is dipped forwards, another backwards, another is sprinkled, another has water poured on him, another is washed, another is colored, (or at least he ought to be, according to Bro. Owen's interpretation—wonder if ever he colored or washed anybody?) another is cleansed, and another is sunk!

Is not this a state of extreme confusion? Could you find an army, as much confused in their movements as some Pedo-baptist Churches are, they would most certainly be defeated. Does the Gospel give an uncertain sound? No. It is a slander upon its author for any man to say so; notwithstanding he may do it under the pretence of being charitable. The language used by our blessed Lord was plain and clear; and the word used to express the ordinance meant immersion, as all learned men have acknowledged, and the practice of the Greek Church fully proves.

Some have indirectly accused Christ with using words not as they were commonly understood, but differently, and talk about the sacred sense of terms to cover their blunders; but the time will come when men will be ashamed of such conduct.

3rd. Bro. Keller quotes Mark 1: 9 to prove that John baptized in Jordan; and Bro. Owen answers him by challenging him to prove that John baptized in water! Now if Jordan was a river of milk, John baptized in milk; if it was a river of honey, John baptized in honey; but if the Jordan was a river of water, then he baptized in water; and we can prove by Lieutenant Lynch that it is now a river of water. But Bro. Owen says that words change their meaning, and perhaps he may argue that the Jordan is not now what it once was.

4th. He wants Bro. Keller to prove, not that Christ was buried, but that he was buried under ground! Bro. Keller proves by Paul, 1 Cor. 15: 4, that he was buried, and by the Saviour, Matt. 12: 40, that he was three days and three nights in the heart of the earth; yet Bro. Owen says "he was as much above ground as any man in this house," simply because the word ground is not expressly mentioned.

I suppose that if a man was under the Rock of Gibralter, unless there was some ground upon him, he would (in Bro. Owen's opinion) be as much above ground as any person in his own dwelling.

5th. Bro. Owen is greatly amused with the idea, that those who have for years rejected human testimony, now found an argument on such testimony. This, in my opinion, is a mistake. Does Bro. Owen consider that he is receiving human testimony when he reads the English Bible? Or, does he consider that he is presenting human testimony when he quotes from the German Testament? Certainly not. And yet he is well acquainted with the fact, that the Bible was originally written in Hebrew and Greek, and not in English or German.

Now where is the consistency in Bro. Owen charging Bro. Keller with building an argument on human testimony, when proving by learned men the meaning of a word, and Bro. Owen will take a whole book translated by learned men, and call their translation divine testimony!

I could say more, but have written enough for the present. We may continue our review.

Yours fraternally,

EDWARD WEST.

*After the downfall of Napoleon, and the return of the British troops from the Continent, the horses belonging to a regiment of cavalry were turned into a large field to pasture; and whenever the horses heard the trumpet sound, they would form, charge and retreat at the signal given, as regularly as on training day, with their riders on them.

New Testament Words.---No. 4.

ANTI-CHRIST—A Person, Power or System that is against or opposed to Christ, his Church and his government, as it is described in the New Testament. 1 John 2: 18, 22—"And as ye have heard that ANTI-CHRIST shall come, even now are there many ANTI-CHRISTS. He is Anti-Christ that denieth the Father and Son." Chapter 4: 3—"And every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is not of God; and this is the spirit of ANTI-CHRIST, whereof ye have heard that it should come, and even now is already in the world." 2 John 7th verse—"For many deceivers are entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh; this is a deceiver and an ANTI-CHRIST." The same thing is meant by the MAN OF SIN, the son of PERDITION. 2 Thess. 2: 3, 4—"Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and that MAN OF SIN be revealed, the son of perdition; who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God."

Many of the preachers and people of the different opposing and contending SECTS suppose that the Popes or Bishops of Rome are here alone intended; but whatever they may say or think of this matter, it is evident there were many Anti-Christs long before there was a Pope or Bishop in Rome. Therefore the WORD ANTI-CHRIST means a spirit of opposition to the simplicity that is in Christ Jesus our Lord; so that anything contrary to His true character, spirit, doctrine, or law, is nothing less than ANTI-CHRIST. John has described Anti-Christ in the following particulars:

1. Denying the Father, or being opposed to what creation and the Scriptures say of him. All creation and the Scriptures declare that God is good, and that his tender mercies are over all his works: that he is no respecter of persons, but in every nation, he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is accepted of him." Yet many say he is partial, having elected a few from all eternity, and has given them to his Son, and that these, and these only, will be saved.

2. Denying the Son. Disowning his true character as the Son of God; the mediator between God and man; the advocate with the Father. The spirit of Anti-Christ says he is a mere man, and not "God manifest in the flesh"—not "Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace; who gave his life for the world, (not the elect world,) that whosoever believeth on him might not perish, but have everlasting life."

3. There is a spirit which says there never was such a person as Jesus Christ; that all the Christ there is may be found in every man; which they call the "light within." This is also Anti-Christ.

4. Anti-Christ is that which does not allow that Christ is the only Saviour, Lord, and Law-giver; but pleads up for many more laws than he gave, or are recorded in his NEW LAW BOOK.

5. Denying the right of private judgment, setting up any system of doctrine, and code of laws, other than the "perfect Law of Liberty," is Anti-Christ, either at Rome, Constantinople, or among the numerous sects, who do not own Jesus Christ as all in all.

6. Every name, title, office, creed, platform, confession of faith, discipline, or covenant made by men, is in its nature as really Anti-Christ as the superstitions and fooleries of the Church of Rome. When men are taught to read, understand and believe for themselves, instead of being put into leading strings, and taught by others to believe what they do not and cannot understand, then will Anti-Christ or the man of sin be destroyed, and not before.

Oh! that the good Lord would remove the covering from the face of all people, that they might see the glory of God shining in the face of Jesus; for in him all fulness dwells, even the fulness of the God-head bodily. Yes! in him are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, so that from Him, and his Holy Laws, we may derive all that is able to make us wise unto eternal salvation.

Yours truly, WM. JOHNSTON.

N. B.—Last week I was at Uniontown, Md. A glorious revival is going on there. Many have been converted to God—eight were baptized, and a number more will shortly follow their example. At Shiremanstown also a glorious work has been effected. About forty are said to have been converted. I saw seven of them baptized yesterday, and I am confident, from what I heard and seen, that many more will soon follow. W. J.

Shiremanstown, Pa., Jan. 12, 1851.

Generosity of Joseph.

"And when Joseph's brethren saw that their father was dead, they said, Joseph will peradventure hate us, and will certainly requite us all the evil which we did unto him."—Gen. 50: 15.

How natural was this apprehension. Guilt seldom considers the benevolence of others, but dwells upon its own conscious unworthiness; and those who are degraded in their own estimation, have but slight comprehensions of superior characters. Had these brethren but considered and reflected upon the gentle and complacent nature of Joseph, they could never have cherished a fear of this sort. When the matter was told to this tender-hearted brother he wept. Sweet benign spirit! Thou couldst not bear the imputation of cruelty, the bare idea of aught unamiable touched thee to the quick, and from the lips of brethren—it was a wound that smarted through the very soul. What pathetic sentiments are furnished by this answer: Rise, rise, my brethren, fear not. Am I in the place of God! Shall I, man of frailty, presumptuously assume the privilege of judgment? Shall I dare to poise the Omnipotent scale, and criticise on the great plan of universal regulation? Shame upon such conduct! Far be that from me. I turn blushingly away from the cruel and impious thought! Place me not, then, my dear and much beloved friends and brethren, in so improper a situation; clothe me no more in the majesty of Heaven; but think of me as I really am—a man—even an imperfect man like yourselves, incident to failure, and subject to error, and liable to equal infirmities, and only kept from falling by the immediate power and presence of Almighty God,—entirely dependant upon him, as our fathers were. Nor is it meet ye invite forgiveness, since ye have been evidently the instruments of much felicity. God meant it for good; i. e. infinite happiness is adduced from that which appeared, at first, to be evil. Forbear, then, to suspect your brother. So far from touching the minutest hair of your heads with a finger of harm, I will nourish both you and your little ones. Ye may expect—yea, ye may heartily command every instance of affection within my power. Behold, our kind and indulgent father, full of days and of honor, lies sleeping in the silent grave! Think not—oh, think not—Joseph will disturb the sacred ashes, by reviving our childish disagreements. Soft lie his venerable bones, peaceable and undisturbed be his ashes, in the safe protection of the God of Israel. See, my brother, the tear of nature and affection is in my saddened and weeping eye, as I reflect upon thy fears; but I conjure you, in the holy name and fear of my God, to be comforted, to know me better, and never, never suspect me any more—by impeaching my character, and doubting my sincerity. Let this pathetic embrace, in which my warm and melting heart gives vigor to my arms, let this cordial and sympathetic embrace be the touch-stone and seal of eternal confidence, and the endearing and connecting cement of a brother's fondest attachment and tenderness to his brethren.

I do not think we have an image conceived in nature, or expressed in language, more touching to a feeling and sensitive heart, and more congenial and pleasing to a candid, thinking and susceptible mind, than that which is conveyed in the subsequent verse: "And Joseph saw Ephraim's children of the third generation: the children also of Machir, the son of Manasseh, were brought up upon Joseph's knees." We naturally wish happiness, health and long life to great and excellent characters. How pleasing and picturesque, therefore, is the scene here exhibited? He who had been so admirable a son, a parent, a friend, and a brother, at length retiring from the bustles of active life, enjoys the private pleasures of retreat. He amuses himself with domestic concerns, enters into all the relaxing and delicate cares of the cradle, and finds much to soothe and much to solace the decline of his days, amidst the prettiness and the prattle of a nursery of children. Such was his fame, such was his honor, and such was his most excellent name, that he saw his children's children prosper beneath his watchful eye.—Often, no doubt, were the dear little ones fed by his hand, and fostered in his bosom; and as for the children of Machir, they were—gracious Heaven, what a melting idea—they were brought up upon his knees.

But will he prove a friend indeed?
He will, the very friend we need;
The man of Nazareth is he,
With garments dy'd from Calvary.
O! lovely attitude, he stands,
With melting heart and open hands;
O! matchless kindness that he proves,
With matchless, boundless, ceaseless love.

I subscribe myself your humbe aod sincere brother in Christ,

SAMUEL M. HOOVER.

Carlisle, Pa., Jan. 15, 1851.

TO THE Churches of God Scattered Abroad.

Greeting:

Dear Bretnren—Feeling a deep interest in the cause of God, I take the liberty to address you through the Advocate on a particular subject, viz: The Temporal Economy of the Church. That there is, and must of necessity be, such an economy, we will not insult your good sense by undertaking to prove; for this every person of common sense, and who understands the Bible, will readily admit.—But the point is, has God laid down a rule or principle, upon which this is to be carried into effect? Or has our Heavenly Father left this to our feelings, and our fluctuating feelings, to be our guide! If so, the man worth 50 dollars, giving five dollars a year, and the man worth $10,000, giving one cent, stand equally justified before God; and there is no cause of complaint. But not so, if God has laid down a rule of action on this subject, then no person, understanding this law, and refusing to obey it, can be guiltless before God. What, then, is the rule of action laid down in the New Testament for the giving of alms to the poor, and the support of the ministry, and other contingent expenses? We answer by appealing to Paul, the great Apostle to the Gentiles.

First, in regard to alms. Paul, in his 2nd letter to the Corinthians, 8th and 9th chapters, shows as clear as a sun-beam, that these things should be done by equality. In proof of it, he appeals to the Israelites gathering manna in the wilderness.—Exo. 16: 18. He further declares that God will increase their crops, as an inducement to them to do this thing willingly.

In the second place, in regard to the support of the ministry, Paul lays down the same rule, in 1 Cor. 9: 13, 14, by first quoting the law in supporting the priesthood, found in Lev. 5: 7, 11. Also 6: 6, and 27: 2–8, and so on to the end of the chapter. Here we learn that the offerings were to be estimated and equalized, according to their several abilities; and if any were estimated too high, they had the right of appeal, when it was to be rectified. Further, the giving of the one-tenth being the law, shows most emphatically that the order of God under that dispensation was equality and justice, which cut off all occasion of jealousy or murmuring. Now, the Apostle declares, in the 14th verse, "that even so hath the Lord ordained, that they that preach the Gospel, shall live off the Gospel." Hence, if there is any meaning in this language of the Apostle, it is that every member is as much under obligation by the perfect law of liberty, or Gospel of Christ, to sustain the temporal economy of the Church, according to their prosperity, as to pray, or sing, or to do any other command of Jesus Christ, contained in the Gospel.

As the Church of God is composed of beings possessing bodies and spirits, there are of necessity precepts in the Gospel, adapted to both the temporal and spiritual wants; and God has appointed officers in the Church to attend to both, in order, viz: the Elders and Deacons. The Deacons are authorized to attend to the temporalities of the Church. It is their duty to enquire into the circumstances of the members, and see that they attend to it, and that it be done by equality, as near as can be equalized by human beings, according to the law of Christ.

But then the question is, how shall we get at it? Ah! this is the great and difficult question. And where does the difficulty lie? In collecting money for Common Schools, or to support the State or United States Government, there is no difficulty in making an estimate—neither was there in making a fair estimate under the Mosaic economy. And where is the trouble now under the New Covenant? Here seemingly lies the whole trouble. The people have strayed so far from the Apostolic order, and have been so long accustomed to supplanting the law of God, and substituting their feelings as a rule to be governed by, that the moment a word is mentioned in regard to equalizing the subject, the covetous, and close-fisted, who have crept into the Church, raise the hue and cry, bondage! bondage! We want liberty! Oh! that sweet word liberty!—yes, liberty! Paul says you are called to liberty, only use not your liberty for an occasion to the flesh; but by love serve one another. This is the liberty Paul goes for, and not for liberty to serve our own covetous desires.

Dear brethren, we have done well that we have thrown off party names, and creeds, and have returned back to the Apostolic age, to be governed by the New Testament; the only creed Christ ever gave to his Church, for her government; and the only name by which she ever ought to be known. But what does this all signify, if others are ahead of us in educating their ministry, supporting them at home, or raising funds to send them abroad as missionaries? and supporting their poor more on the principle of equality than we do?

Dear brethren, we should never abandon the name Church of God—not submit to a human creed; but then as we have professed to take higher ground than any of the modern sects, we ought to show ourselves worthy of this high calling, or the people will lose confidence in us. Depend upon it, brethren, unless we bestir ourselves, and march up to the light as it shines forth, we shall leave room for salvation to arise from another quarter, and we shall learn that our taking the endearing title "Church of God," and no creed but the New Testament, will not be a safe-guard to us—that another people will not arise and eclipse our glory. The great lack among the Churches on this subject, is owing to the lack among the ministers They do not study this subject as they ought, and coosequently are not prepared to teach them on the subject. Another thing is, they are afraid that they will offend some one. But who is it that they will offend? Is it those that are willing to do their part? No, they would rejoice, for it would lighten their burden; they generally having to pay more than their part by the neglect of others. But some would leave the Church. So much the better—then you would find out who the idolators were that you had in the Church—for none would leave but such as Paul charges with covetousness, which is idolatry. Therefore, Elders and Deacons, I beseech you in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, do your duty; and may the peace of God be with you.—Amen.

B. H.

Self-esteem.

It takes but little astute observation to perceive that the less private worth people have, the more important they appear. In other words, those persoos of whom the world has but a poor and degraded opinion, have, as a general thing, the best opinion of themselves. We were often surprised at their presumption, but had to be charitable enough to let them act and think as they pleased. In all probability, it is for wise purposes that they are so organized. Their own corporeal safety demands it. For we opine, as soon as they get a proper view of themselves, they depreciate and deprecate their littleness, and despondency, insanity or suicide may result.

These individuals merit our sympathy more than our ridicule and aversion. The fault must be attributed to an improper training in youth. It lies at the parent's threshold. There seems to be a cursed system of monopoly and aggrandizement which is at once infused into the ductile minds of youths; and when not backed by the restraining influence of a proper education, its results are deplorable. Ignorance, united with a large share of self-esteem, brutalizes and degrades man.

See some of our young men, and you have this truth exemplified. God created them as other men, but they ape the monkey, and appear walking statuary. Foppery, arbitrary fashion and flirtation are their sole ambition; and whoever does not follow in their wake, is considered behind the age. The cotillion, the bar-room and the gambling saloon are their haunts. They keep late hours, "imbibe" inebriating drinks, and associate with company whose reputation is black as the "mouth of Acheron." With a sprinkling of shrewdness, and pecuniary advantages, they sometimes manage to keep up appearances for a time; but their reputation is "a rope of sand," and, as the house built on the sand, are doomed to a disgraceful fall.

An opposite training would bring a most favorable result. Teach them to abhor the evils of life, however fascinating. That in a free country all are equal. That dress and impudence make the fop. And that an amiable course of conduct, with goodness of heart, "are of great price." And that these temporal allurements are not even ephemeral pleasures, for they bring disease, and misery, and fewness of days. While soberness and piety will provide a clear conscience, good health, great length of days, and a happy hereafter.

G. R.

Elizabethtown, Pa., Dec. 16, 1850.

A few Lines to the Brethren.

Hinkletown, Pa., Jan. 7, 1851.

Brother Winebrenner:—

A few lines for the Advocate. Year after year rolls around and brings us nearer to the opening tomb. We have again entered upon another year. May it not be the last? If so, how diligent ought we to be, in serving God, and in endeavoring to promote the cause of religion, and thereby heighten our own happiness, and the happiness of others.

My young brethren in the ministry, a word to us all. Our elder brethren, many of them, have almost finished their ministration, and will, sooner or later, leave the stand. The care of the Church will fall upon us. Are we ready? Have we fortitude enough to uphold the principles they advocated, let come what will? Are we holy enough to take their places? Will the Lord bless and prosper our labors, as he has in many places theirs?

Let these few remarks sink deep into our every heart. If we are prepared, let us take courage; if not, let us put forth all our strength to become so. Let us ask God to bless us, to make us useful, and to hear the prayers of all who feel an interest in the prosperity of the Church of God.

Yours fraternally, S.

A Short Trip.

According to previous engagements with brothers J. Haifleigh and J. A. Plowman, to asssist in holding several protracted meetings, I started from home on the 20th of December, and went as far as New Buffalo, and stopped at J. Knouff's: he not being at home, I put up at a tavern kept by a Mr. Shæffer, and was treated very well. In the morning, after paying my bill, I proceeded on my journey—came to Harrisburg, and after a short conversation with brother Winebrenner, I went on to Shiremanstown. Being much fatigued, I declined preaching that evening. On the following evening a glorious work of grace commenced, which resulted in the conversion of many precious souls. I remained at this place one week, and preached three times, and was treated very kindly by the brethren. I am glad that the Church at Shiremanstown has once more been revived with the refreshing showers of God's grace.

On the 28th of December I left Shiremanstown and went to the Cross Roads Schoolhouse, to assist brother Plowman in holding a protracted meeting. Preached three times there. Two made a profession and three united with the Church. Here I was also very comfortably entertained. And since I left there, I learned that the work was still going on.

On the 31st I left the Cross Roads and went to Andersonstown, to a protracted meeting. The last evening I was there, there were four mourners. Here also I was very kindly treated by the brethren. I hope brother Plowman will give us a satisfactory account of these meetings.

On the 6th of January I returned to Shiremanstown, and learned that the meeting there was still in progress, and that upwards of 40 had found the Lord precious to their souls.

On the 9th I went to Highspire—visited some of my old friends and acquaintances. Here I also learned that a good work had been going on for some time among the United Brethren, and that between 30 and 40 had got religion, at Neidig's Meeting-house, near Highspire.

On the 10th I left for home, and came as far as Bro. Renard's, in Cumberland county, where I was kindly entertained. In the evening we went to Neidigstown. Here likewise I learned that a revival had been going on among the United Brethren, and that between 25 and 30 had turned to God.

On the 11th I arrived at home, safe and sound, and found the friends all well, with a few exceptions.

In conclusion, I would tender my thanks to all the brethren among whom I have been so kindly entertained. A. SNYDER.

Newport, Perry Co., Pa., Jan. 14, 1851.

SKETCH
Of the Meeting at Shiremanstown.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

"The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad."

Knowing that good news is always cheering to your numerous readers and the friends of Zion generally, therefore I have thought it might be encouraging to give a short sketch of our protracted meeting in this place.

According to previous notice, we commenced a special meeting here on the 21st of December, 1850, which continued until the 12th inst. There were indications for good the first evening of the meeting. The Lord met with his people, and the brethren and sisters seemed to be prepared for the work.

On the third evening of the meeting, after attending to the ordinances of God's house, we gave an invitation to any who wished an interest in the prayers of the Church, to present themselves at the altar of prayer; whereupon three or four presented themselves, one or two of whom obtained salvation.

From that time the meeting increased in interest; so much so, that some nights the altar was crowded with weeping penitents. The result of the meeting is, about forty professed faith in Christ. The subjects of the revival were not only the young or the "weak female," but a goodly number heads of families. Among the mourners was an old man about seventy years of age.

On last Sabbath some of the young converts followed their Lord and Master down into the rolling stream and were baptized according to the ancient mode, and a number gave us the right hand of fellowship. The Church has been very much revived and built up. This meeting has proved a great blessing to the town and neighborhood. On last night we had a prayer-meeting. We had quite a full house. My prayer to the Lord is, that the young converts may prove faithful, and at last gain a crown of life.

To God be all the glory for these visitations of his mercy. Pray for us.

Yours as ever,

J. HAIFLEIGH.

Shiremanstown, Pa., Jan. 17, 1851.

Lucretia Borgia.

The life of Lucretia Borgia was an awful epoch in the history of woman. With the most fascinating beauty, she possessed the spirit of a fiend. The illegitimate daughter of one of the most powerful princes who ever sat upon the Papal chair, she had full scope to wield her power in whatever way she chose. It need not be told again, that she used that fatal gift with tremendous evil effect. In conjunction with her father and brother, it seemed as if opposition could effect nothing against them. No difficulty was too great not be overcome by the Borgias, and no villainy or crime was avoided if necessary to carry any project into execution. Clothed by their sect with the greatest powers, they were felt and feared over the whole world. Theirs was one of the most licentious and wicked courts that ever existed, and but for the powerful religious authority vested in its head, would have been crushed long before it was, by a people satiated and tired of the tyranny and anarchy of corruption.

Lucretia was a being upon whom Nature had lavished many charms;—how unworthy of them did she prove! She changed opinions and attentions as often as the policy of the Pope required it, and assassination put out of the way many of those who stood in opposition to their projects. She was given in marriage to several, but out-lived all her husbands. Romance cannot add any odium to her character,—the truth is too painfully vivid—neither can it invent any accompaniments to her revenge, for the subtle poisons, the adder-like rings, the tinctured goblets, and the dagger's point all attest that as far as invention could there be exercised, was pushed to the utmost extent. J. F. W., Jr.

Baltimore, Md., 1850.

Revival News from Morrison's Cove.

Martinsburg, Pa., Jan. 10, 1851.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I am glad to inform you that the cause of God is prospering in this mountain country. To Him be all the glory.

At our meeting in this place two persons were saved from their sins by faith in Christ, and three baptized. We held a protracted meeting lately at Sarah Furnace, Bedford county, which also resulted in good. We are now holding meeting every night at Bloomfield Furnace. We commenced last Saturday, and up to this time, I think, 10 or 12 have found peace.

The brethren of Martinsburg and Woodberry have been laboring hard for God and souls at these meetings.

We are looking and praying for much good to be done in this Cove this winter.

On the 17th we commence a meeting at Stonerook's School-house. In this neighborhood you attended a Camp-meeting some years since. Pray for us.

Yours, &c., D. KYLE.

Revival News.

On the 7th of December last a protracted meeting commenced in this place, which continued some four weeks, during which time between 25 and 30 professed religion,—17 have been baptized and added to the Church. Our motto here is, 1st. Into the kingdom; 2d. Into the water; and 3d. Into the Church. Indeed, it was a season of great profit, not only to poor sinners, but also to believers, who drank large supplies from the well of salvation. The sound of lamentation and victory was heard afar off, which brought crowds of men and women together, who heard the word of life; and whilst listening, many were smitten down, who cried for mercy, and some found peace. Oh! what is like the Gospel!—we mean the whole Gospel, which is a compound of faith and works. If we expect to succeed in our arduous labors in the Gospel ministry, the whole word must be faithfully preached, without any compromise with men or devils.

The spiritual prospects at Uniontown and the surrounding country, are rather flattering. The cause in old Maryland (through grace) is beginning to look up, which, of course, will gladden the hearts of all Christian ministers and people. J. C. OWENS.

N. B.—T. H. Deshiri is here at work with me. J. C. O.

Uniontown, Md., Jan. 15, 1851.

Letter from Bro. M. Coates.

Paris, Stark Co., Ohio, Jan. 14, 1851.

Beloved Brother Winebrenner:—

Having a few leisure moments, I sit down to drop a few lines for the columns of the Advocate for the first time. Since you visited us, and especially since the Eldership, I have enjoyed some precious seasons of grace, while trying to preach the word of life. I have attended three protracted meetings.

Brothers H. Murray, Ray and myself held a protracted meeting in Columbiana county, about 10 miles east of us. It commenced on the 21st of November, and continued about ten days. We found there a good brother by the name of Swartz, formerly of Cumberland county, Pa. Brother Swartz has remained firm and unshaken in the principles of the doctrine of the Bible. He has been invited time and again to join in with sectarians; but, like a faithful soldier of Christ, he refused the invitations. We had a good meeting there. Some professed to find peace in believing—others were powerfully awakened. I went and preached there on the 14th of December, brother Ray on the 15th, and on the 16th I organized a Church in that place. May God bless the brethren and sisters there with the out-pouring of his Spirit. I think there is a great prospect of doing good in that place. I got four subscribers there for the Church Advocate.

I have visited, within two weeks, several of the Churches south-west of us. The Churches which I visited appear to be in a flourishing condition. I preached at father Stump's on New Year's Eve, and also on New Year's Day. We had a glorious time. The brethren and sisters at Stump's are up and a doing. The Church appears to be in a prosperous condition. May the Lord keep them faithful to the end.

On the evening of the 3d of January I preached for the Church at Showalter's, in Tuscarawas county. I had a good time, and found good brethren and sisters there. May the Lord bless them with persevering grace.

On the evening of the 4th of January I preached at Brandywine School-house. There was quite a good congregation. We had a good time. I found warm-hearted brethren and sisters there.

On Sunday, which was the 5th of January, at 11 o'clock, I preached at Brandywine Meeting-house. I felt somewhat cast down before I commenced preaching, but when I remembered that precious promise in the word of God, which says, "He that puts his trust in me shall not be confounded," I arose and tried to preach from Isa. 3: 10, 11. I felt the presence of God while trying to preach the word of life. As some had requested to be baptized, I gave them an opportunity, and two came forward. But as there was a brother of the Lutheran order to preach there at two o'clock, P. M., I told them that we would wait till after he had preached, and then we would repair to the water. According to promise, we did so, and there were three buried with Christ in baptism. We had a shout in the camp, notwithstanding some said it was too cold. And although we had to cut the ice—glory to God, I think those sisters never will forget that day. I have said, and say it again, that until it gets too cold to serve God, it will not be too cold to be baptized.

January 7th I preached in Canton, Stark county. It was a time of rejoicing. May the Lord bless his children in Canton.

January 12th I preached at the new appointment in Columbiana county, to a large congregation. The brethren there are looking for better times.

We want brother Harn to stop with us in Paris, when he comes out in the spring, and preach for us; for the people are anxious to hear him. We would like to have the appointment published in the Church Advocate.

While I am going through the country, I shall not forget to ask the people whether they take the Church Advocate or not. Brother Winebrenner, I would not do without your paper, not for five times the price of it. I send you seven new subscribers for the Church Advocate. Pray for us.

Yours in Christ, M. COATES.

Letter from Bro. David Neidigh.

Reedsburg, Wayne Co., Ohio, }
Dec. 28, 1850. }

Brother J. Winebrenner:—

I would again resume my pen in order to drop a few lines for the columns of the Church Advocate, and its readers in general.

According to a previous appointment that I had in Upper Sandusky, Wyandot county, Ohio, a distance of about 75 miles, I started on my journey on the 11th inst.—stayed over night with our much beloved brother J. Briggle, two miles west of Ashland, Ashland county, and was very kindly entertained. May God bless them.

Next morning I journeyed on my way westward. In the evening I met our much beloved brother J. Neil, with the Church of God near West Liberty, Richland county. Here we had preaching. The writer held forth from Titus 2: 11. Here the good Lord verified his promises in blessing his people. After the exercises, we were kindly invited home with our good brother Umphry, and were kindly received. May God bless him and family.

Next morning I started for Bucyrus, the county seat of Crawford county. In the evening I put up with our dearly beloved brother Josiah Slayberry. Here we held forth, again, to a small congregation. The reason of its smallness was owing to the few minutes notice. Here we had a pleasant interview with each other. In my humble opinion, if there could be a regular appointment kept up in that place, there might be a people brought together zealous of good works. I hope and pray that our brother and sister in this place will not become discouraged. May the Lord bless them for their kindness shown to me.

Next morning I bade them farewell and started for Upper Sandusky, the place of the meeting--arriving in the afternoon of the 14th of December. I began to inquire for some of the brethren of the Church of God, but no one knew anything of such brethren. However, I knew at the same time that there was a small Church not far from that place. Being a stranger in the place, I made myself known as a minister of the Gospel, and that I had come to that place to hold a protracted meeting. Whereupon I was informed that my meeting was in the Wyandot Mission House. Then I inquired for a man that had recently moved from the East to that place, as I had forgotten his name. They named one by the name of Christian Pisle. I said I was not certain if he was the man or not. At last the gentleman said, Is he a Winebrennerian? I told him I did not know if he was one or no, and by this means I was pointed to his sign over his door. By this time I was introduced to Bro. Pisle, and then taken home to his kind family, and soon got to understand that they were formerly from Leesburg, Cumberland county, Pa. After a pleasant interview of a few hours with each other, we went to the house of worship and found the congregation small. On Sabbath we met again, at the usual hour, and had the pleasure of addressing a good congregation. In the evening a good feeling prevailed. This meeting was continued some eight nights. The congregations were generally small, no doubt owing to the sleet and snow. On the last night (Sabbath) I spoke to the people on Church government, and also organized a Church of 14 members, and called it the "Church of God" in Upper Sandusky, Wyandot county, Ohio. The names of the officers are as follows: Elders—Bros. Christian Pisle and Isaac Hogland. Deacons—Bros. John Hart and George Mickle. Oh! that brotherly love may continue with them, is my prayer.—Amen. Farewell—Do well.

Yours truly, DAVID NEIDIGH, Jr.

Letter from Bro. E. Logue.

Mount Pleasant, Pa., Dec. 28, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

Sir: In reading the minutes of the late Iowa Eldership, it will be seen that I had addressed a letter to that body, which they seen fit to lay on the table. That communication was touching the difficulties between some of the Iowa folks and myself; and in which I gave, to the best extent of my knowledge, as fair a statement, and as moderate a review of the whole matter, as I possibly could, in justice both to myself and those offenders. And I presented complaints against those members of that Eldership who so uncourteously commenced their offensive attack on me through the columns of the paper. And my charge against the Eldership was, for having, in their Eldership of last year, justified those offenders in their abovementioned conduct. It is evident to every one who has noticed those difficulties, (as they have been published in the Advocate,) that the offence originated with those persons in Iowa, several months after I left. And now I am ready to conclude that the disposition to make peace is not yet to be found there.—Howbeit, I have discharged my duty. But since they have so courteously laid my letter on the table, I hereby request them to forward my letter back to me, if they please. I want it. They are at liberty to reserve a copy, but I want the original. It is impossible but offences will come; but what says the Lord of those by whom they come?

Yours, &c., E. LOGUE.

Letter from Bro. Wm. L. Crossman.

Collensville, Ill., Jan. 2, 1851.

Brother J. Winebrenner:—

This is to inform you that I have moved from Cambria county, Pa., to Illinois, and wish that you would please and send my Advocate to Collensville, Mason county, Illinois. We are alone here, and we must have our paper for a preacher. There are Methodists here, but we cannot adhere to their creed, as they don't do the whole will of God.

If any of the brethren are going to Iowa, or anywhere else in the West, they are invited to call and see us. Especially do we invite the ministers that are travelling in Illinois, to come and see us. We live 12 miles from St. Louis, across the river. There is a wide field here for a minister.

Yours respectfully,

WM. L. CROSSMAN.

Letter from Bro. Benj. Howard.

Mogadore, Ohio, Jan. 3, 1851.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

With pleasure I drop a few lines for the Advocate. My only apology for not writing oftener is, that my gift lies in my tongue and not in my pen. I have preached about 60 discourses since our Eldership, in October last, but not with that success that I could have wished: nevertheless, some backsliders have been reclaimed—some sinners converted and baptized. I am now holding an extra meeting in Uniontown, in company with Elders Murray and Ray. There has been but one convert as yet. The congregations are good, but what success we shall have I cannot tell.

Yours truly, BENJ. HOWARD.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Lebanon Valley Railroad.—The Engineers have completed the survey of the route for the road. Total length of the ronte is 56¾ miles, being 4¼ miles longer than the pike between the same places. This added to to the distance from Reading to Philadelphia, makes the whole distance, by this route, from Harrisburg to Philadelphia 114¾, which is 7½ miles longer than the Columbia road. Owing, however, to the advantages of this route, it would be run in much quicker time than the other. The estimated cost of the road is $1,462,576 70.

Railway Intelligence.—Chicago, Ill., Friday, Jan. 2.—The Chicago and Galena Railroad Line have leased to the Michigan Central Company the right to construct the Railroad from Chicago to the Indiana State Line. The connection with Detroit will probably be completed the coming season.

Immigration to the U. S. in 1850.—The Secretary of State has furnished to Congress a statement of the number of immigrants which have arrived at the ports of the United States for the year ending 30th of September, 1850, the general aggregate of which is 315,333, opposed to 299,610 last year. This shows an increase of 15,723, notwithstanding New York has fallen off nearly 14,000. The increase in California has been between 70 and 80,000; but omitting this new State, the decrease has been proportionate with New York throughout the Union. At the rate of 315,000 per annum, the immigration to occur from 1851 to 1861—ten years—would amount to three millions and one-eighth—or equivalent to the white population of the whole south in 1840. It is remarknble too, that of the numbers last year, nearly one-fourth come here prepared to engage in useful branches of industry, with means at hand, and but a moiety of that population denominated paupers.

Message of the Governor of Illinois.—Gov. French sent a message to the Illinois Legislature on the 8th ult. He represents the accruing revenue as more than sufficient to meet the current demands of the Treasury. The public debt of the State, and the canal debt, makes the entire debt $15,626,509. The unsold canal lands are expected to realize $4,000,000. He is in favor of homestead exemption; recommends the acceptance of Holbrook & Co's conditional surrender of charter to build the Central Railroad, and its diposal to the company that offers the best terms. He speaks favorably of the compromise measures, and says that they will be faithfully observed and obeyed, as the only means of restoring and preserving harmony, by the people of Illinois.

Gutzlaff.—This bold, yet humble and self-denying missionary to China, now in Europe, has successively traversed England, Germany, Switzerland, and France, with a view to awaken attention to Chinese evangelization, and obtain young men of living piety and aptness for Oriental studies to follow him into the Celestial Empire. He meets everywhere the kindest reception, awakens the liveliest interest, and several have offered to accompany him back to Asia.

The Cholera.—The Cholera has made fearful havoc among the people of Jamaica. Thousands have been swept away. The distress and suffering in many cases were awful. Nearly every town had been visited, and nearly every family had suffered the loss of one or more members. At the last advices, however, the worst had been experienced, and a hope was indulged that the scourge would speedily disappear.

Severe Law against Dueling.—Annapolis, Md., Jan. 8, 1851.—The State Convention to-day adopted an order in favor of disfranchising all duellists, making death the penalty in cases of fatal results, and giving the property of the survivor to the children of the deceased.

A Giant.—Angus McCaskill, who arrived at Boston on Friday, is a native of Scotland, and has been residing at Cape Breton of late. He is seven feet four and a half inches high in his stockings! and weighs 335 lbs.! He wears a number sixteen boot, and is only nineteen years of age.

☞ The Scientific American says that in less than two years travellers can step into a railroad car at New York, and proceed by an uninterrupted railroad to Galena, on the Mississippi, in Illinois, a distance of 1,200 miles. The links to complete this chain are now being constructed, and the editor adds, that in ten years from the present time, an interior line of railroad will be opened between New York and San Francisco. In the number, length and greatness of rivers, this country exceeds all others, and in a few years our artificial line of communication will far exceed any other country.

Astronomical Discovery.—Mr. Daniel Kirkwood of Pottsville, Penn., has discovered a new law in the periods of rotation of the primary planets. With the aid of this law, he has computed to the satisfaction of some of the most distinguished astronomers in this country, the size and revolutions of the lost planet which had its place between Mars and Jupiter. The discovery will, on account of its importance, it is supposed, cause the name of Kirkwood to be associated with Kepler and Newton as discoverers of the great laws which govern the planetary worlds.

Railroads in the United States.—The total number of miles of railroad in operation in the United States, at the beginning of the present year, was 8,797, which cost to build them, $286,455,078. In N. York, the number of miles of railroad in operation is 1402, at a cost of $56,202,060. Pennsylvania 917 miles, at a cost of $35,401,038. New Jersey 259 miles, costing $8,225,000. In all the New England States there were 2644 miles, costing $96,916,450.

The Sorrowful Tree.—In the Island of Goa, near Bombay, there is a singular vegetable—"the sorrowful tree"—because it only flourishes in the night. At sunset no flowers are to be seen, and yet, half an hour after, it is quite full of them. They yield a sweet smell; but the sun no sooner begins to shine upon them, than some of them fall off, and others close up; and thus it continues flowering in the night the whole year.

The Great Railroad.—Mr. Benton has introduced into Congress a bill for the construction of a Railroad from St. Louis to San Francisco, with lateral branches to Santa Fe and Oregon, by which fifty miles of territory on both sides of the road is appropriated to defray the expenses of its construction. We hope the plan may succeed.

Madness of Wealth.—Jacob Straun, of Jacksonville, Illinois, the wealthiest man in the State, has been taken to a lunatic asylum in Ohio. He has for some time suffered from an aberration of mind, said to have its origin in an incessant desire to accumulate more wealth.

Improvement of New York.—The aggregate number of buildings erected in New York during the past ten years has been 15,409. In 1846 there were 1,910; in 1847, 1,846; in 1848, 1,191; in 1849, 1,695; and in 1850, 1,912.

Indiana.—Indiana State, it is now said, will show a population by the present census of over one million two hundred and fifty thousand, (1,250.000.) This is immense for so young a State.

☞ The New York Tribune has 12 Editors and Reporters, and in all 130 persons employed on it. The weekly expenditures are $2,800. It is owned in 100 shares, the majority of them by the original proprietors, Messrs. Greeley and McElrath, the remainder by five Assistant Editors and five other persons employed in the establishment. The daily issue is over 18,000, and the weekly 41,000.

A New Suspension Bridge.—A bridge is to be suspended across Niagara river, at Lewiston, about seven miles below the falls, which will be one hundred feet longer than the one at Niagara, and when finished, will be the most stupendous work of the kind in the world.

☞ Locomotives were shadowed forth in the Bible, for the fourth verse of the second chapter of Nahum reads:

"The chariots shall rage in the strects: they shall jostle one against another in the broad-ways; they shall seem like torches; they shall run like lightnings."

☞ Five of the millers of St. Louis have volunteered to present Mr. Clay all the flour that he will need for the balance of his life. They have made the first shipment—five barrels each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

From the Christian Index.

A SPLENDID FAILURE UPON INFANT BAPTISM,

By William Hays, local Elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, on Wednesday, the 25th of December, 1850, in the town of Cuthbert, Randolph county, Ga.

CUTHBERT, Oct. 21st, 1850.

Bro. Thomas Muse:

DEAR SIR,—I have been informed that you have stated publicly in several places, that a certain person has offered five hundred dollars, and that you have offered one thousand to any person who will prove from the New Testament the rite of infant baptism, and that several other persons have endorsed the same by publication.

Now, sir, if this information is correct, and you and your coadjutors are honest and sincere, I have appointed the Wednesday before the fourth Sunday in November next, at this place, 10 o'clock, to make proof of the rite. Meet me and notify your friends to be in readiness with the cash. WILLIAM HAYS.

N. B.—Should the time appointed not suit you, inform me what time will.

W. H.

REPLY.

One Thousand Dollars Reward.

I do hereby bind myself, my heirs, my executors, and administrators, to pay the sum of one thousand dollars to any Pedobaptist, who will find in the New Testament one passage of Scripture, affording either precept for, or example of, Infant Baptism. No joke; I am in good earnest, and this notice will enable the finder to recover the amount by law, should I refuse to pay the cash when the above terms have been complied with.

THOMAS MUSE.

Oct. 30th, 1850.

THE CHALLENGE ACCEPTED.

The Rev. William Hays, a local Elder of the Methodist E. Church South, accepts the above offer, and will endeavor to comply with the above requirements. He, therefore, respectfully invites the Rev. Thomas Muse especially, and the people generally, to attend in Cuthbert, on Wednesday the 20th inst., 11 o'clock, at which time and place, the proof will be adduced.

P. S.—As William Hays understands that Dr. Battle, near Eufaula, Ala., offers a reward of five hundred dollars for the same object, he is respectfully invited to attend at Cuthbert on the day specified.

WM. HAYS, Local Elder,
Randolph Co., Ga., Nov. 2, 1850.

The 20th November turned out to be a very wet day, and the parties agreed to meet on Christmas day, and leave the decision to a Committee of seven.

On Christmas day, William Hays, Local Elder of the Methodist E. Church South, Thomas Muse, a Baptist minister of Randolph county, Ga., and the following persons selected as committee, Judge Wm. Coleman, Col. S. B. Smith, Doctor Parker, M. D., Jackson Baldwin, Esq., David Ferguson, J. P., S. Adams, J. P., Mr. —— Kerksie, and a large number of spectators, met in the Methodist Church in Cuthbert.

The Rev. Wm. Hays, Local Elder, (M. E. C. S.) presented the following passages from the New Testament, which were followed by remarks of 30 minutes, and also by T. Muse, and then handed to the above committee, to make a report upon. Matt. 28: 19, 20; Mark 9: 36, 37; Mark 10: 13 to 16; Acts 2: 38 to 40; Rom. 4: 17 to 19; Gal. 3: 25 to 29. After half an hour the committee made the following report:

"We the Committee on the case of Messrs. Muse and Hays have decided, that Mr. Hays has failed to prove by precept or example in Scripture, Infant Baptism." WM. COLEMAN,
Chairman Com.

Dec. 25th, 1850.

RE-VACCINATION.

Medical men are very often asked if one vaccination is sufficient to protect the system, through life, from small-pox—or how often it is necessary to have the operation performed. The late Dr. Fisher, of Boston, for a long time gave attention to this subject, and in January last published, with others, the following propositions, which are supported by numerous statistical facts, and are fully relied upon by the profession:

"1. That one single and perfect vaccination does not, for all time, in all cases, deprive the system of its susceptibility of variolous diseases.

"2. That one or more re-vaccinations do; and that, consequently, a physician should recommend re-vaccination, when questioned as to its necessity.

"3. The system is protected from variolous contagion when it is no longer susceptible of vaccine influence, as tested by re-vaccination."

Every person, therefore, who would be fully protected from small-pox, should be not only once vaccinated, but should have the operation repeated, one or more times, or until the system ceases to be effected by the virus. For most persons one operation would be found sufficient, while others might require several. Re-vaccination, at least once, should always be practiced. If this were the case generally, this dire disease would soon become almost unknown.

POETRY.

Longing for Home.

BY WM. M. H——R.

O LAND of the Bless'd,
By tongue unexpress'd,
How I long thy great beauty to see:
My Jesus to praise
In rapturous lays,
For there is none so glorious as He.

Oh! could I but raise
Thy curtains to gaze
On the exquisite beauties within:
There, there could I see
A beauty-spot free
From the dire contagion of sin.

While wrestling in pray'r,
I seem to be there,
Yet 'tis but a foretaste of love;
Whose fountain so high
O'er-reaches the sky
Reserved in thy realms above.

There God and the Son,
And Spirit in one,
The Angels and Saints them adore;
In rapture so sweet
They fall at his feet
Their Redeemer to praise evermore.

Oh! Jesus I pray
Forbid my delay,
But hasten me onward to thee:
O'er temptation's snares
And all worldly cares
May I more than conqueror be.

Then may I arise
To joys in the skies,
And strike a new harp in thy praise;
And swell the glad song
Of that happy throng
In holy symphonious lays.

O Land of the Bless'd
Where I may find rest
When I have this wilderness pass'd;
With joy to behold
Those beauties untold
And reign with my Saviour at last.

O Brethren arise,
A glorious prize
Of unfading glory is there;
And all who would win
On earth must begin
The conquering ensign to bear.

Bloomfield Furnace, Pa., Jan., 1851.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On New Year's Eve, the 31st of December, 1850, by Elder E. H. Thomas, Mr. JOHN FERTENBAUGH to Miss CATHARINE ANN CRABB, all of Monroe township, Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 12th ult., by the same, Mr. JAMES McMULLEN to Miss ANN B. WELSH, all of Monroe township, Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 4th ult., by Elder Andrew J. Fenton, Mr. PETER OSBURN to Miss ELIZABETH ANDERSON, both of Broad-Top, Huntingdon Co., Pa.

On the 16th ult., by G. U. Harn, V. D. M. Mr. HILARY W. TOLBERT, of Fairview, to Miss ELCETA J. LEWIS, near Milltown, Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 20th of April, 1850, by Elder Jacob G. Kisler, Mr. RICHARD NABS, of Dauphin Co., to Miss ELIZA BURGER, of York county, Pa.

May 26th, 1850, by the same, Mr. JOHN HECK to Miss JOANNA BURGER, both of York county.

July 25th, 1850, by the same, Mr. JOSEPH NAUGHTREPE to Miss ELLEN ZORGER, both of York county.,

September 3d, 1350, by the same, Mr. THOMAS SPANGLER to Miss SARAH FISHER, both of York county.

On the same day, by the same, Mr. JOHN MATHIAS to Miss HENRIETTA REPMAN, both of York county.

September 8th, 1850, by the same, Mr. GEORGE REESER to Miss MARY ANN UPDEGRAFF, both of York county.

September 12th, 1850, by the same, Mr. HENRY ENSMINGER, Jr., to Miss SUSAN ASHENFELTER, both of York county.

November 10th, 1850, by the same, Mr. JOHN SWIGARD to Miss SUSAN NAUGHTREPE, both of York county.

January 19th, 1851, by the same, Mr. GEORGE BUATTON to Miss ELIZABETH KROWE, both of Newberry, York county.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—In Portsmouth, near Middletown, Dauphin county, Pa., on the 11th of January, 1851, REBECCA GEISTWHITE, consort of Urunumas Geistwhite, aged 27 years, 11 months and 9 days.

Sister Geistwhite sought the Lord about three years ago, and found him to be a Saviour to her soul. She continued in his service until she was called home to glory. Her last words were, "Jesus will receive me."—Death was no terror to her. She met him fully resigned. She has left a large circle of friends and relatives to mourn her departure; but their loss is her eternal gain.

Funeral services by Elder J. J. Miller, from Matt. 11: 28.

In this borough, on the 19th ult., ELMIRA STEES, daughter of brother Isaac and sister Stees, aged 6 years, 10 months and 3 days.

On the 24th and 26th of December, 1850, in Dauphin county, Pa., of Scarlet Fever, SARAH REBECCA and MARTHA HICKS, daughters of Samuel and Ann Todd Hicks, the former aged 10 months and 6 days, and the latter 3 years and 5 days.

These two infant children were both consigned to their mother dust in one day, and in one grave. It is a solemn scene where only one is taken from a family by the relentless hand of death; but where two are taken, it is more so. It is true, the parents are bereft of their children; but their loss is the childrens' eternal gain.

Funeral services by Elders Simon Fleegal and Christian Forney.

[From the German Reformed Messenger.]

On the 6th ult., in Mechanicsburg, Pa., ANN CATHATINE, daughter of Rev. J. G. Fritchey, in the 18th year of her age.

We record with emotions of deep-felt grief, the early departure of one so lovely and full of future promise. The deceased was a young lady of more than common promise of mind, which, with her ardent aspirations after intellectual and moral improvement, she did not fail to cultivate.

Her protracted illness she bore with pious submission to the will of God. Though in the spring-tide of youth, when life presents its gayest charms, she was never known to murmur or repine. A few hours before she ceased to breathe, she had her mother and sisters called to her bed and imparted to each separately, a word of advice and admonition, entreating them all to meet her in Heaven. To one she handed her Bible, to another her Hymn-book, and to all the family, severally, she gave some memento of kind remembrance and dying affection. After thanking her parents for their sympathy and love, she bade all around her a last farewell, then exclaimed in accents of more than earthly pathos and sweetness: "I am passing over Jordan." Then turning once more to her weeping friends, she said, "I want you all to meet me in Heaven," and calmly fell asleep on the bosom of her Beloved! K.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4	12	a 4	50
Do.	Rye,	do. - -	2	50	a 2	50
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	2	37½	a 2	37½
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,				87	a	90
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		50	a	62
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		45	a	45
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		32	a	33
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		70	a	75
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	4	00	a 4	50
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2	00	a 2	25
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1	25	a 1	25
BEEF, per cwt.		- - -	5	00	a 5	50
PORK, do.		- - -	5	50	a 5	50
HAMS, per pound,		- - -		8	a	11
BUTTER, do.		- - -		20	a	25
LARD, do.		- - -		8	a	8
TALLOW, do.		- - -		8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.				6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - -		15	a	18
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -		50	a	62
ONIONS,	do.	- -		75	a	87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -		37	a	62
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1	25	a 1	30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -		37½	a	45
WOOL,	do.	- - -		30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - -	1	50	a 1	50
HAY, per ton,		- - - -	10	00	a 10	00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	5	00	a 5	00

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,			$4	75	a 5	25
Do.	Rye,	do. -	3	00	a 3	00
Do.	Corn,	do. - -	3	00	a 3	00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,			1	05	a 1	12
Do.	Rye,	do. - -		68	a	70
Do.	Corn,	do. - -		65	a	65
Do.	Oats,	do. - -		40	a	42
Do.	Barley,	do. - -		65	a	68
SEEDS—Clover,		do. - -	4	75	a 5	00
Do.	Timothy,	do. - -	2	50	a 2	62
Do.	Flax,	do. - -	1	40	a 1	50
BEEF, per cwt.,		- -	7	00	a 8	75
PORK, do.		- - - - -	7	00	a 7	25

Music Books—Price Reduced.

1. Evangelical Music—Patent Notes—Price five dollars per dozen.
Do. Do. Round Notes—Price four dollars per dozen.
2. History of all Denominations—Portrait Editions—Price two dollars and fifty cents.
3. Reference and Pronouncing Testaments—Price fifty cents.
4. Treatise on Regeneration—Price sixty-two and a half cents.
5. Five Hundred Sketches and Skeletons—Price two dollars and fifty cents.
6. Traveller's Guide to the West—Price fifty cents.
7. Wandering Soul—Price seventy-five cents.
8. Hymn Books, English and German, assorted, at different prices.

☞ For sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER and HICKOK & BARRETT, Harrisburg, Penn'a.

Another Premium Obtained.

AT the Annual Fair of the Maryland Institute which closed, after a four weeks continuance, on the 5th of this month, Weishampel's Revolving Horizontal Grate Coal Stove received another Premium, being the second from the same Institute. The Patent Rights for the States of Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Michigan are for sale. The Patentee would be willing to trade the Right for one or two of these States for good land, improved or unimproved. The purchaser of the Right for a State will be entitled to a set of castings for patterns, and a Stove in complete working order. The Grate of this Stove is adapted to any kind of coal. Now is the right season to procure the Right and Patterns, in time to have them ready to get out your supply of Stoves for next Fall.

Letters addressed (post-paid) to the undersigned, Baltimore, Md., will meet with prompt attention, by myself or Mr. F. A. Unl, my local agent. J. F. WEISHAMPEL, Patentee.

November 11, 1850.—3t.

Dr. Christie's
Galvanic Belt, Necklace, Bracelets, and Magnetic Fluid.

THE acknowledged and extraordinary curative powers of these wonderful inventions is now so generally known and their sales and reputation throughout the whole country so extensive, that it would seem unnecessary to urge their merits further. But some late circumstances have occurred which render it a matter of duty to the public not to be altogether silent, for while the ephemeral nostrums of the day are trumpeted by columns through the Press and swallowed by quarts and gallons by the afflicted, and are found just good for nothing,

Christie's Galvanic & Magnetic Curatives,

have been quietly working their way among the most intelligent and respectable classes, and are constantly achieving cures in an alarming train of diseases, which have for ages baffled all the aid of medicine and all the resources of Science. These diseases are called and in these diseases medicine is of no avail whatever. It never does good, and it often does harm. Syrups, Extracts, Balms, Balsams, Elixirs, Bitters, Pills, Powders and Potions of every kind are alike worthless, for they weaken the vital energies of the already prostrated system; while under the strengthening, life-giving vitalizing influence of Galvanism, as applied by this beautiful discovery, the exhausted patient and weakened sufferer is restored to former health, strength, elasticity and vigor.

NERVOUS COMPLAINTS,

These remarks relate to such diseases as NEURALGIA, TIC DOLOREUX, BRONCHITIS, PALPITATION of the HEART, WEAKNESS and all FEMALE DISORDERS, such as NERVOUS HEADACHE LASSITUDE and DESPONDENCY, which are only other names for Nervous Derangement: EPILEPTIC FITS and CONVULSIONS, which are known to result from a non-equilibrium of Electric Influence; NERVOUS TREMORS, DEAFNESS, which is nearly always caused by torpidity of the Auditory Nerves and can always be perfectly cured by Galvanism when the organ is not destroyed; DYSPEPSIA, in its worst forms; PALSY and PARALYSIS, uniformly caused by a deficiency of Nervous influence; CHRONIC RHEUMATISM, TORPIDITY of the LIVER, PAIN in the SIDE, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION, SPINAL and HIP COMPLAINTS, DEFICIENCY of NERVOUS and PHYSICAL ENERGY, and all those distressing complaints resulting from a DERANGEMENT of the NERVOUS SYSTEM

In the above prevalent and terrible class of diseases and Nervous Complaints which are much more numerous than is generally imagined—

CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES,
Are an Absolute and Positive Specific.

The BELT is used when the body or system generally is affected: the NECKLACE for complaints of the Throat, as Asthma and Bronchitis, and of the Head: and the BRACELETS for all disorders of the arms and limbs, as Rheumatism, Palsy, Tremors and Spasmodic affections These articles are simply applied as directed with the MAGNETIC FLUID which accompanies them, and when faithfully used they NEVER FAIL!

☞ The great peculiarity and excellence of the GALVANIC CURATIVES consists in the fact that they arrest and cure disease by Outward Application, in place of the usual method of Drugging and Physicing the patient till exhausted nature sinks hopelessly under the infliction. They strengthen the whole system, equalize the circulation of the Blood, promote the secretions, invigorate the entire energies, and can never do the slightest harm under any circumstances.

Since their introduction in the United States, only three years since, more than

75,000 PERSONS

including all ages, classes and conditions, among whom were a large number of Ladies, who are peculiarly subject to Nervous Complaints, have been

Entirely and Permanently Cured,

when all hope of relief had been given up, and everything else had been tried in vain! The beneficial results which have uniformly attended their use is confidently stated to be without a parallel in the annals of Medical Science. Clergymen, lawyers, and even physicians: ladies of the highest standing: distinguished persons holding elevated official situations: merchants, manufacturers, and mechanics: the poor and the rich alike: often whole families, among all classes, ranks and conditions, have equally been recipients, and have equally acknowledged the wondrous and often unexpected benefits which they have thus received

☞ Let it be known and remembered that the only Natural Restorative for the Nerves is Galvinism, and that in all Nervous Diseases we should

"Throw Physic to the Dogs."

To illustrate the use of the GALVANIC BELT, suppose the case of a person afflicted with that bane of civilization, DYSPEPSIA, or any other Chronic or Nervous Disorder. In ordinary cases stimulants are taken, which, by their action on the nerves and muscles of the stomach, afford temporary relief, but which leave the patient in a lower state, and with injured faculties, after the action thus excited has ceased. Now compare this with the effect resulting from the application of the GALVANIC BELT. Take a Dyspeptic sufferer, even in the worst symptoms of an attack, and simply tie the Belt round the Body, using the Magnetic Fluid as directed. In a short period the insensible perspiration will act on the positive element of the Belt, thereby causing a Galvanic circulation which will pass on to the negative, and thence back again to the positive, thus keeping up a continuous Galvanic circulation throughout the system Thus the most severe cases of Dyspepsia are permanently cured A few days is amply sufficient to eradicate the disease of years.

MANY THOUSAND
Certificates and Testimonials

from the most intelligent and respectable persons residing in every portion of the United States, could be presented. These are now unnecessary, but a numerous selection embracing many statements of the most extraordinary character, sufficient to convince the most sceptical, may be had of the authorized Agent. The interested are particularly invited to call.

WONDERFUL RESTORATION!
☞ 77 Years Old!!!

Blooming Grove, Orange Co, N. Y, July 28, 1850.

To Dr. A. H. Christie, New York.

Dear Sir—Having been very severely handled by Rheumatism and other diseases, and having been cured in a most remarkable manner by CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC BELT and FLUID, I thought I would give a statement of my case, for the benefit of others I had the Rheumatism last winter, and my legs swelled very much. My head was also very much affected, having so severe a pain over my eyes that I could scarcely see At the same time, I was troubled by spasms, caused by the pain in my head, I suppose. My hearing had been getting poor for several years from a catarrh, so that in one ear I could scarcely hear at all. Having heard wonderful accounts of Christie's Belt and Fluid, I sent to your store and got them. The Belt was put on, and the Fluid used as directed, and I don't think I have had, after the first night using them, one minute clear pain from that time to this, being six months. The Rheumatism left my body entirely, after wearing the Belt a very short time, probably two weeks. Then I put on a Galvanic Necklace, and had not worn it two weeks, before my head was perfectly well My hearing in both ears is entirely restored the pain all gone, my sight is very good for a man of my age, (77 years in August) and I consider myself entirely well, having worked through harvest without the least difficulty. I consider my cure very remarkable, and therefore do not hesitate to recommend CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES to all persons afflicted as I have been. (Signed) PHINEAS TUTHILE

AFFIDAVIT

State of New York, Newburgh, Orange county, ss: Phineas Tuthile of Blooming Grove, Orange county N. Y., who is personally known to me as a most respectable citizen and worthy of all confidence, being duly sworn deposes and says that the facts, set forth in the above statement in relation to his case, are entirely correct, and that he is now in the enjoyment of good health, caused as he believes by Christie's Galvanic Curatives PHINEAS TUTHILE

Sworn before me this 28 day of June, 1850.

S. W. EAGER, Justice of the Peace.

Weakness and Nervous Debility!

Dear Sir—I want another supply of Christie's Galvanic Curatives, immediately This is an intelligent and reasoning community, and they see at once that the Curatives are constructed upon scientific and philosophical principles and must work effectually upon the Nervous System in the case of Nervous Diseases. An estimable young lady in our town was afflicted with extreme Nervous Debility and severe pains in the head and neck. She put on one of the Galvanic Belts and Necklace and immediately became sensible of its curative and strengthening powers, and the next day was relieved of the severe pains, and raised from a state of entire nervous prostration to health and strength. I can mention several other cases equally wonderful.

Yours very respectfully, J. B. KNIGHT.

Panama, Chautauque Co, N. Y., Oct. 1, 1850.

☞ No trouble or inconvenience attends the use of DR CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES, and they may be worn by the most feeble and delicate with perfect ease and safety. In many cases the sensation attending their use is highly pleasant and agreeable. They are accompanied by full and plain directions for use Pamphlets with full particulars may be obtained gratis, of the authorized Agent.

PRICES:

The Galvanic Belt, Three Dollars,
The Galvanic Necklace, Two Dollars.
The Galvanic Braeclets, One Dollar Each.
The Magnetic Fluid, One Dollar.

PARTICULAR CAUTION.

☞ Beware of counterfeits and Worthless Imitations. D. C. MOREHEAD, M. D.,

GENERAL AGENT FOR THE UNITED STATES,
132 Broadway, New York.

☞ For Sale by Dr. W. K. MEHAFFEY, authorized Agent for Harrisburg, Pa.
Dr. GEO. ROSS, Elizabethtown, Pa.
Jan 1, 1851.—6m.

Depositories of Our Books.

FOR the convenience of our brethren, and the public generally, we have established Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

GEO. F. GORDON, corner of 12th and Wistar streets, and BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, and LEWIS COLBY, No. 122 Nassau street, New York.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, Baltimore, Md.

JOHN H. CORNELIUS, New Berlin, Union county, Pa.

SPANGLER & BROTHER, Lancaster, Pa.

MARTIN and MENELY, Lagrange county, Indiana.

M. F. SNAVELY, North Bend, Iowa.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail Prices.
History of Denomination in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries, -	2 00
Wandering Soul, - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament, -	50
German Reference Testament, - -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
German Do., - - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, - -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - - -	25
Harn on Feet-washing, - - -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, - - -	15
Traveller's Guide to the West, - -	50

EVANGELICAL MUSIC,

FOR

CHURCHES AND SINGING SCHOOLS.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us, and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music.

☞ FOR SALE at this office, and at our Depositories. EDITOR.

Missionary
SUBSCRIPTIONS AND DONATIONS.

FOR sustaining five Missionaries in the West—two in Iowa and three in Illinois, during the next Eldership year, commencing with April, 1851, and ending with March, 1852.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, - -	-	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley, -	-	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn, -	-	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely, -	-	-	10 00
Jacob Miller, - -	-	-	10 00
James Miller, -	-	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm, -	-	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe, -	-	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	-	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	-	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister, -	-	paid	2 00
David Strickler, -	-	-	5 00
James Casey, -	-	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00
Susanna Myers, -	-	paid	4 00
Charles F. Long, -	-	-	5 00
Daniel R. Long, -	-	-	5 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED

History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of ALL the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FORGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa., FEBRUARY 15, 1851. NUMBER 20.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fifteen.

Names.	Am't. paid	Names.	Am't. paid.
Burkwalter Christiana	$1 00	Keller Jacob	$1 00
Brown Benjamin	1 00	Kintch John vols 15 & 16	2 25
Bussard Joseph	1 00	Lidge Adam	1 00
Brenneman Henry	1 00	Mateer Bailey	1 00
Cassel Jacob E	1 00	Miexell Geo	1 00
Clippinger Solomon	1 00	Markley Daniel vol 16	1 00
Cammack J B	1 50	Meller Jacob	50
Dash John	2 00	Martin Christian	1 00
Deerduff Sarah	1 00	Martin E R	1 00
David Wm	1 00	Naylor Jacob	1 00
Eberly Samuel	1 00	Omit Jacob	1 00
Fetterman Andrew	1 00	Overholser Christian	1 25
Fritchey Dorothy	1 00	Price Carlton	1 00
Getter Geo	1 00	Palmer Daniel	1 50
Gelter Philip	1 00	Ross Henry	1 00
Gilbert James	1 00	Remley Wm	1 00
Heffman Samuel	1 00	Ross Christian	2 00
Hilcher Henry S	1 00	Swartz Geo	1 00
Hower Adam	1 00	Togland Isaac	50
Harris Samuel	2 00	Wagoner Geo	1 00
Herr Benjamin	2 00	Willis John	1 00
Kindig Henry	1 00	Willis Joseph	1 00
Kauffman Aaron	1 00	Walter Margaret	1 00

☞ Hand-bills neatly executed at this office. Charges moderate. ☜

The Law of Oaths.

A Bill has been introduced into the Legislature of Pennsylvania to prohibit unnecessary oaths. It provides that a Jury shall be sworn at the commencement of Courts for the entire term, to try all causes that may be brought before them---that a Constable shall be sworn only once, &c.

Opening of the York & Cum. R. Road.

The first regular train of passenger cars passed over this new Railroad on Friday, the 7th inst. For the present, we learn, that the passenger trains will leave Harrisburg at 8 o'clock, A. M., and 3 o'clock, P. M.

The fare has been fixed at the low rate of 75 cents (including bridge tolls) between York and Harrisburg. Between Harrisburg and Baltimore the fare is $2.25.

Our Old Accounts.

About a year ago, we had our old accounts made out and forwarded to those subscribers who were in arrears, requesting them to settle their bills soon. But, as many of them neglected to attend to this matter, we struck off our list upwards of one hundred names, who were in debt to us for two volumes and upwards. The most of these bills are still due and unpaid. We now, therefore, give notice, that if these accounts are not settled by the first of April next, they will be put in the hands of proper officers for collection. Our circumstances are such, that we cannot afford to lose all these accounts; and if we were even able to bear the loss, we are not willing to bear it, especially where there is ample ability to discharge the same.

More News from Mount Joy.

The great and glorious revival of religion at Mount Joy is still in progress. Brother J. Ross has been laboring there with good success and acceptance, since we left, a few days ago. The following letter from brother J. Server will show how matters and things were moving on about the time he wrote:

"The Lord is still with us in great power. Last night brother Ross preached to the people, and after the conclusion of the same, there were thirteen men and women came forward to the altar to seek salvation. The Lord be praised for the manifestation of his presence among us. This is the seventh week since the revival commenced. Eighty-seven of the converts have joined the Church; about 25 have not as yet came in. I wish you would appoint a time when it would suit you to come and baptize the converts."

Since the above was written, we have had some further accounts, showing that this blessed work is still going on.

February 7th brother J. E. Cassel wrote us a note, stating that the work was still in progress, and that on the night previous there were eleven out to be prayed for.

February 10th brother C. Price writes as follows: "The work of the Lord is still going on, and there are almost daily some added to the Church, such as are saved. Brother Ross has been with us for the last ten days, and has preached eleven times: and the people think that he never preached with such freedom and power as he has since he has been with us."

Since then we have not heard any thing directly.

Our Bills.

We sent our bills, in the last paper, to those persons who are back with their payments for the present volume. We charged them, according to our terms, $1 50 for the volume. A few, and but a few, have sent us, promptly, the amount of their bills. We feel obliged to them for their kindness. We hope the rest will not fail to remit to us, without delay, the amount of their respective bills. We greatly need it, and we shall feel very much pleased and gratified, if they will do us the kindness to pay it over to any one of the preachers, or to the Post-masters where they lift their papers, or else send it on in a letter through the post-office. One dollar and fifty cents can be sent for single letter postage. We shall, then, confidently expect that our patrons will in one of these ways discharge their bills without delay and without fail.

Offer to the Preachers.

Each and every preacher who will send us five new subscribers for the next volume of the Advocate, with the money for the same, shall have his own volume gratis. Now, brethren, go to work, and see whether you cannot earn for yourselves the next volume of the Advocate, in a very short time.

We see from our exchanges, that other papers are greatly aided by the efforts of the preachers. Some send in as many as thirty names and upwards at a time. Effort is the great secret of success. What has not, what cannot be accomplished, by the dint of effort?

The great revivals, in sundry places, will bring into the Church both men and women, who ought to take the paper, and many no doubt will be glad to do so, if they are asked for their names and the money for it, viz: $1 00.

Hence, then, let every one do what he can, in this matter, and we shall be mutually benefitted by the result.

Revival at Mechanicsburg.

The special reign of grace now in progess among the people of Mechanicsburg, commenced about the 22d ult., a few days after the beginning of the protracted meeting on the 18th. The work has been marked with great seriousness and good feeling, and on the whole, is rather gradual and general in its character. The subjects of the work are about an equal number of both sexes, including the aged, the middle aged and the young. There have been some very powerful conversions, embracing several cases of the chief of sinners, each of whom may well sing and say with the Poet,

O! what mercy flows from heaven,
O! what joy and happiness!
Love I much? I've much forgiven;
I'm a miracle of grace.

One good and happy effect of this revival is, the breaking up of shameful rowdyism and Sabbath-breaking, practiced among the young people about Mechanicsburg. But now, thank God, where sin abounded, grace has much more abounded; and those who were once ring-leaders in rowdyism, and in swearing, tearing cliques about the taverns, are now polished trophies of grace, and bold champions for Jesus.

Another happy effect of this revival is, that it has stopped the mouths of disaffected members and sectarians, who have loudly and vauntingly predicted the downfall of the Church. But, thank God, their prophecies have failed, and God is vindicating the cause of his "speckled bird." The unhappy breach occasioned a few years ago, by that sinful schismatic movement growing out of opinionism and intoleration, is fast healing up. Some have already seen and regretted the folly of their course, in leaving the Church, and encouraging schism or division in the body of Christ, and are glad to return again to the flock of God, where they were born and brought up. Would to God! they were all converted from the error of their way, and turned back to their old brethren, and to their former sweet and happy home.

But alas! alas! how treacherous and wavering is the human heart! Who would have thought, ten years ago, that such true yoke-fellows and pillars as they seemed to be at that time, would ever be found building the things they once sought to destroy? Yet so it is, when men begin to strain at gnats, they will soon learn to swallow camels.

Nevertheless, God will never forsake his heritage, but always take care of his own Church and people.

The bush may burn, but can't consume
The work of God's own hand;
Tho' heaven and earth shall pass away,
His word and Church shall stand.

The following extracts from letters received, will show the extent of the work at their respective dates. January 30th brother D. R. Rockafellow writes as follows:

"The meeting is going on every night, and from 15 to 18 are forward for prayers. From present appearances, a number more will seek the Lord. From 16 to 18 have professed pardon, and some ten united with the Church on last Sunday evening.

Brother Wm. Johnston writes on the 31st ult. as follows:

"A good work of grace is going on here.

Previous to last Monday night five were converted. On Monday night fourteen mourners were out—seven were converted. On Tuesday night eighteen were out, four of whom found peace. On Wednesday night there were thirteen out, and three of these were made happy in the Lord. Many more appear very near to the kingdom. O that God may enable them to step in.

I have been laboring here since I saw you, but must leave in a day or two. If it be possible send the Church some help. I have been mostly alone since you left here."

Since the above was written, we have visited there twice or thrice, and assisted in conducting the meetings. When we left there on Monday last, the work was still going on prosperously. Up to that time there had some 40-odd professed religion, and 31 united with the Church. The Lord grant that many more may seek and find redemption in Immanuel's blood, even the forgiveness of sins.

OBITUARY OF Sister SUSAN BRADY.

Died, at her residence, near Washington, Lancaster county, Pa., on the —— day of December last, (date not sent us,) Susan Brady, consort of Elder Israel Brady, aged 39 years, 4 months and 7 days.

Sister Brady embraced religion in the fall of 1833. Shortly afterward she united with the Church of God at Washington, of which she continued an humble and exemplary member until her death. She died sudden, but in peace and triumph; leaving an affectionate husband, seven children, and a large circle of relatives, to deplore her sudden and unexpected departure. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

OBITUARY OF Bro. JOHN M. SMITH.

Died, on the 8th inst., at or near Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., after a short illness, John M. Smith, aged 39 years, 3 months and 18 days.

Brother Smith (alias Maneysmith) was a member of the Church of God for many long years. In former years he was very zealous and useful, being a great singer and a gifted helper in times of revivals and protracted meetings. But he is now gone to receive at the hand of his God and Saviour according to his works.

He has left a wife and —— children to lament his early death. The Lord support them under this painful bereavement.

His funeral services were conducted by brothers E. H. Thomas and J. Haifleigh.

COR. EDITOR'S DEPARTMENT.

The Church--the Truth--the City of God.--No. 1.

J. FLAKE.

Hear the Church. Many eyes from heaven are looking down upon the earth, and of all they here behold there is nothing so pleasant, and so precious, as the Church of God. I use the term in its true and catholic meaning. Not the Greek—nor Roman—the English or the German—but the true Church, those whose names are written in heaven.

Nothing on earth is so needful, and so precious as the Church. Men of literature and science are useful—but unless they are numbered among the children of the light, all their wisdom and fancy, and skill, will be in vain, to make them blest and happy.

I think there has been a true Church on earth in every age. The first parents of mankind were members—so was Abel. In the days that followed, the tares and the wheat grew together, but the wheat generally was found only here and there, while the tares grew plentifully, wherever the human race was scattered.

There was a part of the Church that came out of the land of Egypt, where they had went to sojourn, but became bond-men, even all the family of Jacob. It was afterward for forty years the Church in the wilderness, with Moses for their Prophet and King, and Aaron for their Priest. They had all been under the cloud, and all passed through the sea—they all did eat the Manna that fell like snow every night around their tents. They all drank of the water that gushed out of the rock—the stream following them in all their journey through the deserts of Arabia. The second generation, led by Joshua, passed over Jordan, and entered the promised land. "Who can count the dust of Jacob, and the number of the fourth part of Israel? Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his."

"Behold the people shall dwell alone." The Church has always been a distinct and separate people in the midst of the nations. In the land of Canaan they were hedged in by the law of God, and not permitted to live like the Gentile nations, who knew not the true God.

So it was until the fulness of time came, and "the Sun of righteousness" rose on a guilty world "with healing in his wings." Then the Gospel days began, and the word of the Lord sounded out from Jerusalem. It was no longer Moses, as leader and guide—but a greater, even the only begotten Son of God. It was no longer the family of Aaron for the priesthood—but Jesus the Messiah, made a Priest forever after the order of Melchisedec. Then the sound went forth which had the strange power to draw the hearts of those who heard it to the cross of Christ, and make them members of the Church of God.

"Behold the Saviour of mankind,
Nailed to the shameful tree;
How vast the love that Him inclined,
To bleed and die for thee."

This is the doctrine which has the power to attract, and save the soul, when it feels itself under the holy law of God, and going to the judgment, to which we all hasten—and which is so near at hand. The members of the true Church, hold the true doctrine of Christ crucified. Jesus says, "All that the Father hath given me, shall come to me." Whoever calls upon his name with a humble and contrite heart—this is coming to Christ. Whoever with a true faith is baptized in the water—or eats the bread and drinks of the cup in remembrance of Him—this is coming to Christ.

The Saviour has come, and to him the people gather. There is no other name by which we must be saved. In Him—for he is the seed of Abraham, his son—all the nations of the earth are to be blessed. He is now the elder brother of the family—He belongs to the Church of God—and all who by faith belong to Jesus, are the spiritual children of Abraham.

Saint Paul says that "the Church of God is the pillar and ground of truth." To the Church, and all the true members thereof, is committed the truth of God, as revealed—the truth in doctrine—in experience—in practice. The Church is the depository, the support of true religion in the world. It is not to be hid--but held forth as a lamp—which has oil, and is to let the light shine all around. Every true believer is a pillar to bear up the truth--a lamp to illuminate and cheer a dark world. There is more light now than ever, and there will be more yet.

Some give more light than others---for they may have more knowledge---or more zeal---or more holiness--or more love. But every one, into whose heart the heavenly light has come, and abides there---holds forth to others that which he has received from Christ. Among the flock dwells the Shepherd, in Spirit--if not in body. All know the voice of the Shepherd, and while they listen to that voice and follow him---making his word and life their rule, all is safe.

It is a great comfort to feel that we are in fellowship with the true Saints of God, of every age and nation. To be able to say as they did, "I believe," and feel within our souls the workings of the same Holy Spirit, producing repentance and faith and obedience to the Lord. To be able to overcome bigotry and sectarianism, so as to embrace in love as brethren, all who love our Lord Jesus Christ. Our Saviour said, "Rejoice because your names are written in heaven." It gives great comfort to believe our names are there.

How many must there be to constitute a Church? It may be a thousand---a hundred—ten---and Jesus says, "Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them."

The Ministry is part of the Church—the leading part---the Lord has made it their work, and duty, to take the lead.

Who makes the Ministry? The Lord calls them to the work, and those who are in the work already, receive and ordain them as fellow-laborers. So it was in ancient days, and so it should be now.

We ought to hear the Church. We should try to learn what the true Church has held in every age as to doctrine, and as to life. We ought to hear the Elders---the Ministry---and regard their godly advice or reproofs. Is it not a bad sign that when the Eldership gives advice, or reproof---and even the members of the Eldership, or of the Churches, pay no regard thereto?

I hold fellowship with all the spiritual members of the Church of Christ---scattered as they are like the wheat among the chaff. I try to discriminate, and wherever there is a large measure of spiritual religion, I give the more heed to what they say. I am inclined to think that the brethen of the Oberlin Institute near Cleaveland in Ohio---who publish the Oberlin Evangelist every two weeks---must have more spiritual light than most other bodies, large or small. If their experience, and life, correspond with the doctrine they teach, they must be a good deal like the saints of old. C. J. Finney, and Mahan, are leading men among them. They contend for the enjoyment of the blessing of sanctification---and for every benevolent and good work.

There is a small body of people who call themselves the "Church of God," who are in Pennsylvania chiefly, and in several other States. It is remarkable what good doctrine they hold---the orthodox faith, as held by the Reformers of the sixteenth century. They also will baptize you in the water---and invite you to join in the almost forgotten "washing of the saints' feet." They sing, and pray, and preach very plain, and very warm---and think shouting is allowable, even in these days of trial, while passing through the wilderness---going toward Zion. We ought to hear their testimony for the truth---considering what a holy name they have taken. If you happen to be in Harrisburgh, or Lancaster, or elsewhere, where they have Churches, go and visit them. They publish a paper twice a month called the "Church Advocate," edited by a leading brother, J. Winebrenner---a man of singular gifts, and usefulness in the vineyard. I love to hear and worship with them---and do them all the good I can.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

SKETCH OF A DEBATE ON BAPTISM, BETWEEN J. KELLER AND A. OWEN;

Held at Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 19th, 20th, 21st, 22d and 23d of February, 1850.

REPORTED BY W. E. DRAKE,
For the Church Advocate and Religious Telescope.

Friday, Feb. 22.

A. OWEN'S

FIRST SPEECH ON THE SECOND QUESTION.

Brother Owen said—We now turn a leaf, and enter upon the discussion of another subject—a subject which, if properly considered, is of equal importance to the one just disposed of. It is, as you have heard read, whether infants, according to the Scriptures, are proper subjects of baptism; or, are infants of believing parents subjects of baptism? This, I affirm, and my opponent denies. I shall endeavor to show the ground upon which we as a denomination rest for the recognition of this doctrine. I suppose it is known to most of you what our views are. It is permitted to any that have conscientious scruples on the subject, to forego having their children baptized. We do not compel them to it for the reasons and upon the grounds I shall proceed to state. I know that we have been ridiculed and abused, and called ugly names, because we allow of a choice on the subject of baptism. It has been called a mark of the beast, and many other such derogatory appellations; and, no doubt, there are many in this congregation who entertain strong prejudices against the course we think proper to pursue. All I wish you to do is, to examine the testimony that will be adduced on both sides, and then you will be enabled to distinguish between declamation and exhortation, and sound argument. Some attempt to prove it by showing the identity of the Church,—but I shall commence it where Dr. Rice does. I shall confine myself to pretty near his plan, for I think it is the most lucid and the most simple. I will open the discussion by reading from the 28th chapter of Matthew: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," &c. This is the last command of the Saviour to his Apostles. Upon his portion of the Scriptures we have a few remarks to make. First, we say it is no commission to organize a Church, but to enlarge the Church. The labors of the disciples, in the days of the Saviour, were confined to the Jewish nation. Jesus said he was not come but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. Here is a commission to go out to the Gentiles—to open the gates, to call in the Gentiles—that salvation was to come to them—that it was the design of the Saviour's death that they should be gathered with the Jews, who were really his people. And you will observe that the language of the Saviour does not specify children and adults. It does not say go and baptize adults, or infants. It is true, there is a clause connected with this passage that will be brought up as an objection—that is, "Whosoever believes and is baptized shall be saved." It merely says, "who shall be saved."

But, I say, secondly, that faith and baptism are essentially connected here. Baptism must be connected with faith. Then I say faith and salvation are essentially connected here, and if you make this commission to exclude infants, you exclude infants from Heaven.—Therefore it does not specify the subjects, and clearly because it does not organize the Church. It is simply a commission to enlarge the Church. And, mark you, my opponent may twist and turn the language of the Saviour as he pleases, he cannot essentially connect baptism and faith, for if he does, he shuts infants out of Heaven. If he makes infants unworthy of baptism, it is because they cannot believe.

The third point I make is, in the bringing in of the Gentiles. The disciples were to bring them in by baptizing and teaching. I suppose this my opponent will not deny.—Baptizing and teaching is the work of man. True, there is an inward Spirit of adoption, which is the work of God. Baptizing and teaching is our part, but the Spirit of adoption is the Lord's part. Now, the part given to the Apostles was to baptize and teach. Nor does it say, even in this commission to teach men, that in all cases the teaching is to precede baptism. But this my opponent will contend for; but he cannot find it in the commission. This evidence must be found in some other place and drawn from some other source than here. Circumstances, of course, will regulate this. Infants are baptized before they are taught. Adults must be taught before they are baptized, and also taught afterwards—the same as a school. A disciple is a scholar. A minor is taken without his consent. His parents put him in; but one who is past the days of his childhood cannot go till he is made willing, and taken instruction as a scholar. I repeat, the commission says, disciples are to be made—that the Gentiles are to be brought in by baptism and by teaching. And when we find who has a right to be in the Church, then we can find who has a right to the commission. But, if you bring that passage against infants, you ruin them, because the next clause says, "he that believeth not shall be damned." Now, if my opponent denies it, I will prove by the Scriptures that every one who has a right to be a member of Christ's Church—of the Church of God—has a right to baptism. Then, if that be a fact, every one has a right to membership. The question may here be asked, who has a right to membership in the Church of God? Now, in order to ascertain that right, we must go back to the organization of the Church.

My second position is, that the Church was organized in the days of the family of Abraham, the father of the faithful. The Church of God, according to Rice's definition, is a body of people separate from the world, &c. To this definition the gentleman will have no objection. Now, Clarke's definition is this:—[Reads.]

I will quote, in this connection, Gen. xii. 1, 2, 3, 4—7: "Now the Lord said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show thee: and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing: and I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed. So Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken unto him; and Lot went with him: and Abram was seventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran. And the Lord appeared unto Abram, and said, Unto thy seed will I give this land: and there builded he an altar unto the Lord, who appeared unto him."

These promises are virtually repeated in Genesis xv.; and they are again repeated and ratified by the sign and seal of circumcision in the xvii. chapter of Genesis. And we find that in these three chapters are contained temporal and spiritual promises, or promises of temporal and spiritual blessing, and that circumcision is the sign and seal of both. In short, it is the sign and seal of the covenant of grace, as well as of a spiritual and temporal blessing. There are several promises contained in these chapters that were made to Abram whilst on his way to the land of Canaan. He was told that God would be a God to him and to his seed forever, &c. He makes a contract with his Church, and calls Abram up to give him a promise to do certain things. Now, here is the organization of the Church. The 17th chapter of Genesis shall be referred to hereafter. Then it will be observed that the Church was organized in the family and days of Abram. Now, the question is, who were the members of this Church at its beginning?

My third position is, that believers and their children were recognized—that the right of membership extended to the children as well as the parents. This covenant, between God and Abram, was sealed by the rite of circumcision. I will now quote from Genesis xvii., beginning with verse second and ending with the tenth verse inclusive. The Lord having appeared unto Abram said: "And I will make my covenant between me and thee, and will multiply thee exceedingly. And Abram fell on his face: and God talked with him, saying, As for me, behold, my covenant is with thee, and thou shalt be a father of many nations. Neither shall thy name any more be called Abram, but thy name shall be Abraham; for a father of many nations have I made thee. And I will make thee exceeding fruitful, and I will make nations of thee, and kings shall come out of thee. And I will establish my covenant between me and thee, and thy seed after thee, in their generations, for an everlasting covenant; to be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee. And I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their God. And God said unto Abraham, Thou shalt keep my covenant therefore, thou, and thy seed after thee, in their generations. This is my covenant, which ye shall keep, between me and you, and thy seed after thee; Every man-child among you shall be circumcised."

You know, my friends, that God had just given him promises that he would be a God unto him, and the token of this is circumcision. [Here Mr. Owen quoted Bishop Secker, Doddridge, Whitfield, Wesley, and Whitley, in support of his argument.] It is said, in the 14th verse, that "the uncircumcised man-child, whose flesh of his foreskin is not circumcised, that soul shall be cut off from his people; he hath broken my covenant."

Now, here we have the Church organized, according to the description given, in the days and family of Abraham; and we have examined who were to be the members, and we find that the children enter it with the parents. Abraham himself was circumcised as a seal of righteousness—of the faith which he had. And when he was circumcised, that same rite and seal was extended to his children. Then, the position is taken that believers and their children were admitted into the Church.

J. Keller's first reply.

Brother Keller said—If Abraham and his family got into the Church by circumcision, where was he before his circumcision? Why, he was outside the Church. There is no sophistry about it. The brother has given me to understand that the United Brethren are not compelled to have their children baptized. If, then, the gentleman be correct, the United Brethren are outside the Church. But, I believe better things of the Church: they are not outside the Church.—Mr. K. proceeded to examine the different arguments of his opponent, and then he quoted from Matt. xxviii. 19, 20. "Go ye therefore, teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Why, my opponent will have it that this language means teaching infants, as well as anybody else. "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you," &c. Nothing is said about teaching children, nor were any instructions imparted to the disciples in relation to them. The meaning is this: "Whatsoever I have commanded you, that shall you teach the baptized converts to observe and do." Does that look like teaching infants? Infant sprinkling is not taught in the commission, any more than is infant teaching. Now, suppose I don't understand the commission fully, how shall I find it out? Shall I base my belief upon supposition? Shall I come before this congregation with a budget of presumptions? Shall I tell them that I do not know what belief means? Now, my dear hearers, I am not going to stop at presumptions, but I will go to the Bible and tell you. I want to know what the Saviour meant here when he gave the commission? In order to ascertain that information, shall I go to Pope Pius IX.? Shall I go to the Reformers? Shall I go to the Rock of Plymouth, or where shall I go? Shall I go to history? I may find a clue there to that which I am in search of. I will go straight forward, and I will see how the first ministers understood Christ on the subject. I wish to ascertain how the disciples understood the commission. You recollect that after Christ's resurrection from the dead, he was with them forty days; and there was extraordinary excitement among the people on the day of Pentecost, and they were astonished when Peter commenced preaching. The people then inquired what they should do to be saved, and they were told to be baptized. Now, consider who were the subjects of baptism on the part of the Apostle. Is there a single instance of infant sprinkling in the Bible? "Then they that gladly received the word were baptized." Do infants gladly receive the word when sprinkled? You know what a face they make! The Apostles did not act upon presumptive evidence. The commission specifies and points out their duty, and not a word is said about adults, or infants. The sum and substance of the matter was, that they were to make converts—believers in the Gospel of the living Son of God. And them they were to baptize. But, my opponent says, that this interpretation would keep all the children out of Heaven. He referred you to Abraham's covenant.—What! go all the way to Abraham's little cottage to bring proof to establish that infants were sprinkled! Now, is not this exceedingly strange? And he intimates that if I oppose his position, it will go to show, on my part, that infants never get to Heaven. Where were all the infants before Abraham? for his theory is that all born before him were lost. My opponent thus keeps the whole family of Adam, for thousands of years, out of the Church.

Again, he says, that all Christian people are a willing people. He then goes on to show that whoever has a right to membership, has a right to baptism. Well, what of that? But I ask the gentleman if infants are saved by their baptism, or by what? I should like to know that,—for he has not fully explained himself on that point. I have told you, he said, the Church was organized in Abraham's day. He goes on to show you that God made a contract with Abraham. A contract!—Where does God say he made a contract with him? What does it imply? It makes two parties—both equal parties—the one party having as much right to speak as the other. And, if God made a contract, has Abraham a right to make opposition? Had Abraham any choice, but to put his signature to that contract? He had to put his name to it, or refuse to do it. If my opponent says Abraham had no power, I will prove him a Calvinist. If he says he had, he must prove it from the Scriptures. I thought that when he got into the Scriptures he would give us Scriptural arguments: but he says God made a contract with Abraham. Why not say that Abraham made a contract with God? In my opinion it is quite out of place to say that God made a contract with Abraham. He told us that Abraham and his children are his seed.—Now, I know what the brother intended to do: he intended to show the identity of the two Churches, the Jewish and Christian. If he does that, I shall be prepared to meet him. Do I understand him as intimating that baptizing persons resembles the branding or marking of sheep? He makes disciples first, and teaches them afterwards; that is, he baptizes them in his way, before they have one idea, and then enlightens them.

My beloved friends, this in fact is the course pursued by the Pedo-baptists. You will hear my opponent say that John the Baptist could not have immersed all, and therefore it is likely he took them to the beach and sprinkled it over the people.

I will now refer to a few ideas in the New Testament, which I wish my opponent to examine. I shall go back to the days of John the Baptist. I want him to show me from circumstances connected with John the Baptist, that he attempted baptizing by sprinkling, as the gentleman would have it. I wish to convert you by the truth, not by sophistry. I will read from Matt. iii. 5. Now, there is not a single idea on record that favors infant sprinkling.—[Reads.]

Determination is omnipotent.

Revival News.

Lewisberry, York Co., Pa., Jan. 29, 1851.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

As it is somewhat encouraging to the hearts of the children of God, to hear what the Lord is doing for the children of men in other countries, I have thought it expedient to give you a short account of our protracted meeting at the Cross Roads, Fishing Creek Valley, York county, Pa.

We commenced our meeting on Friday, the 27th of December, continuing it over Sabbath. No special move, however, appeared to be made. We closed and went to Andersonstown, on New Year's day. But the brethren kept up the meeting still, by prayer-meetings, having a few to mourn over their sins. On the following Friday brother Francis Sweeney came after me to Andersonstown, desiring me to come back and continue the meeting. I then left brother A. Snyder and brother Simon Fleagle to carry on the meeting at Andersonstown, and went back to the Cross Roads, and continued preaching from that time till now. Every evening and Sabbath there have been mourners forward. The good work is still going on. Brother James F. Machlan and myself are trying still to hold forth the word of life. Brothers A. Snyder, B. Mateer, S. Fleagle, S. Bowser and M. M. Utley have preached a few sermons for us, during this revival. The Lord reward them for their labor of love.

The subjects of this revival are old and young, male and female. We have a joyful time indeed—a time never to be forgotten by many, especially those who have been converted at this meeting. The old warriors in Immanuel's army have been encouraged very much. But no wonder, when they saw their friends and blood kindred turning to God, singing and shouting the praises of the most high God. Now, instead of hearing the folks going home from meeting howling and yelling like a set of hounds, using all manner of profane language, you can see them linking arms and singing all the way along the road, sometimes shouting and leaping for joy, making the hills and valleys of Fishing Creek ring with hallelujahs and praises to God.

Brother Winebrenner, my feelings to you I can never express. I feel heaven-born and heaven-bound. I have preached 29 sermons for this people, and I am not tired yet. If Heaven contained no greater happiness than our pleasure here has been, since this meeting, it would be worth contending for. What can be more heart-cheering than to see parents and children all bound in one bundle of love, happy on their way to Heaven. The conversions here, I think, will stand—I hope in time and for eternity.

The result of the meeting has been as follows: 40 converted—29 baptized—30 taken into church-fellowship. We always had a glorious time at the water side, while I was burying those happy converts with their Lord and Master in the watery grave. They came out shouting aloud for joy, while many who were still in their sins, were caused to mourn over their desperate condition. May the Lord still continue the work, is my prayer to the Great Head of the Church. Pray for us, dear brother, especially for me, that I may be faithful to God in all my ministerial administrations. To God be everlasting praise, for such a glorious work of grace.

No more at present, but remain your unworthy brother in tribulations until death,

JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

N. B.—The meeting at Andersonstown continued about one week. The brethren and sisters enjoyed themselves well, and five or six were hopefully converted. The Siddensburg meeting was postponed until Saturday, the 1st of February, on account of the revival at the Cross Roads, and the affliction of one of my children, which has since got well.

J. A. P.

Baptism the Door.

Brother Winebrenner:—

The following is a conversation between a minister and his neighbor. Though it be but a conversation, yet it may to many be instructive and interesting.

Neighbor—Good evening, Mr. M———.

Minister—Sir, good evening.

N.—I have come for the purpose of conversing with you on a subject that has of late occupied my mind considerably, and as the priest's lips are to keep knowledge, I expect you can give me the desired information.

M.—I am much pleased, indeed, to have my neighbors visit me for religious conversation and instruction: besides, I am desirous to know what subject has occupied your attention, and in which it would seem you are interested.

N.—Why, sir, it is the subject of church-fellowship. I have for some time had a desire to become a member of the Church, and accordingly expressed it to the Elder of the Church, as I thought him to be the proper officer to receive persons into fellowship; but, to my astonishment, he responded that he could not receive me, because I was not baptized; and really I was not prepared for such an answer.

M.—You was correctly informed. We receive none into fellowship previous to baptism. We do not, however, wish you to infer that we have any objection to your Christian experience, or character: that is all very good. But we teach, that baptism is the first duty of the believer, and fellowship the second. This order, we think, was the order of the primitive Church.

N.—By the primitive Church, I presume, you have reference to the Apostolic Churches, and not the first Churches of God, as found in North America; for it is certain they did not practice your doctrine; and yet those ministers who established them, professed to have occupied Apostolic ground. Hence you must have made a discovery that older and wiser heads could not.

M.—By the primitive Church I mean the Church of God as set up and established on the day of Pentecost. The order then was, 1st. The preaching of the word; 2d. Faith in them that heard it; 3d. Baptism; and 4th. Fellowship.

N.—Last Sabbath I heard you remark, that Noah's ark was a type of the Church, and it is certain that he entered the ark by faith and not by water—that he was saved by water, not out of, but in the ark. Now, according to your figure, baptism is an ordinance in the Church, and not out of it. Again, you have taken the position that the Church originated on the day of Pentecost. This assumption, I think is not feasible, from the fact that it is not in evidence in the New Testament. I take the ground that the Church originated under the personal ministry of Christ. The following texts, I think, will clearly prove it. Matt 19: 28: "Ye which have followed me in the regeneration, shall set upon twelve thrones." Luke 17: 21: "Behold, the kingdom of God is among you." Luke 16: 16: "The Law and the Prophets were until John; since then, the kingdom of God is preached, and men press into it." It is also said, with direct reference to Christ, Heb. 2: 12, "In the midst of the Church will I sing praise unto thee." This prophecy was fulfilled. Matt. 26: 30: "And when they had sung an hymn," &c. Here, then, we have evidence that the Church or kingdom (See Col. 1: 13) existed prior to the day of Pentecost. Once more, if your doctrine be true, then it must follow that the "breaking of the loaf," and the "washing of the saints' feet," were instituted out of the Church. Besides, on your apothasis, that baptism is out of the house, does it not follow that those who are out of the Church enjoy the greatest privileges?

M.—I am not particular as to where the Church originated; but the order of Christian duty was, as stated, Acts 2: 41: "Then they that gladly received his word were baptized;" and then, and not until then, were they added unto them.

N.—It is not said that they were added after baptism—it is merely said, "And the same day were added unto them," &c. The order of a narrative does not always prove that the facts narrated occurred in the same order. See Gen. 2: 3-7. This passage alone would lead us to the conclusion that man was created after the seventh day, which we know was not the fact. There are many similar passages. But your doctrine is, that the Church originated on the day of Pentecost, and that Christian Baptism is the door into the Church. You must then prove that the one hundred and twenty were re-baptized, to sustain your position. Now, as you cannot do this, does it not follow that I have at least one hundred and twenty (120) in the Church, previous to baptism? I shall promise you that as soon as I shall find it my duty to be immersed, I will obey: only give me time and room for examination and reflection; that when I do obey, I may do it voluntarily and understandingly.

M.—You have made a long speech. I would only say in reply, that as none but voluntary and intelligent persons can rightfully obey a Divine command, and as you are not such an one, I presume you are free from the obligation.

N.—Thou hast rightly said, as it regards myself, with reference to the subject before us. I would say, you should not force the kitten's eyes, lest you should injure them. Remember, "Charity suffereth long, and is kind."

M.—I can prove that the Apostles baptized the same hour of the night, upon the immediate profession of faith.

N.—That is not the point at issue. You must prove that they prohibited persons from fellowship on the ground of not having been baptized. You must prove that baptism is the door. In short, you must prove your practice. Until this is done, your doctrine rests on a mere inference, and this is what on other subjects you condemn. Besides, to disfellowship persons on the ground of a mere inference, is uncharitable. Once more, and I shall have done. I shall here introduce a few passages to prove my position. Acts 2: 4-7; chapter 4: 4; chapter 5: 14; chapter 11: 21, and chapter 14: 1. Here we have it, that the Lord added unto the Church daily multitudes, both men and women; and as you cannot prove that they were baptized, previous to membership, my position is sustained. But, before we part, I will leave with you a question, for your consideration till our next interview. It is this: What is the door into the Local Church, and by what act do we enter?

Farewell. AN OBSERVER.

December 18, 1850.

Tale-bearing.

"Where there is no tale-bearer, the strife ceaseth." Prov. 26: 20.

Solomon was a wise man, and by his wisdom he found out that the world would always have a tale to carry, and that there was only one way to suppress it, and that was to dismiss the bearer. He seemed to think, according to his language, that there could be no sufficient means adopted to induce the world to cease from forging tales. That "Satan will find mischief for idle hands," is a saying nearly as old as the hills. Hence Solomon concludes that it only ceaseth where there are none to carry the news. Some people say there is no harm to carry a tale, providing there is no particular harm in it, and providing they charge the one to whom it is communicated not to divulge the secret. But Solomon says it causes strife. This shows that it is harmful. It is so,

1st. Because it causeth deception—for however charged, they will tell.

2d. Because it proves an unfaithful friend. Prov. 11: 13—"A tale-bearer revealeth secrets; but he that is of a faithful spirit concealeth the matter." This seems in unison with the Apostle's language, "Bear one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ."

3d. Because it offends a brother. The wise man says, "A brother offended is harder to be won than a strong city: and their contentions are like the bars of a castle." Our Saviour says, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." If I love him as I do myself, I will surely not carry a petty tale against him. The world is a poor depository. There is an old saying—though old, yet good—"That the man that can't keep his own secret, does ill to get some one to keep it for him." One tells a tale on his brother, and then tells a second not to mention it. He tells a third, &c. At length every person, in this secret way, gets to know it. Then the demon becomes unmasked, and flies on the pinions of the wind.

On eagles wings immortal slanders fly,
While virtuous actions are but born and die.

All tales savor more or less of slander. O, how many have to suffer from the lying tongues of others. "'Twas slander filled her mouth with lying words. Slander, the foulest whelp of sin. The man in whom this spirit entered was undone. His tongue was set on fire of hell—his heart was black as death. His legs were faint with haste to propagate the lie his soul had framed. His pillow was the peace of families destroyed—the sigh of innocence reproached. Yet did he spare his sleep, and hear the clock number the midnight watches. On his bed, devising mischief more, and early rose and made most hellish meals of good men's names. From door to door you might have seen him speed, or placed amidst a group of gapping fools; and whispering in their ears with his foul lips. Peace fled the neighborhood in which he made his haunts; and, like a moral pestilence, before his breath the healthy shoots and blooms of social joy and happiness decayed. Fools only in his company were seen, and those forsaken of God, and to themselves given up.

The prudent shunned his house as a deadly moral plague. And fain would all have shunned him at the day of judgment; but in vain.—They all around him wailed; while on his face, thrown back by injured men, in characters of ever-blushing shame, appeared ten thousand slanders, all his own."

Such is a faint picture of the dreaded monster—from his grasp none are safe. I too, like Solomon, have walked out to see what was practiced under the sun; and I beheld, and lo! a beast arose up from the earth, (grovelling in its nature,) more formidable than Daniel's. The heinousness of its aspect chilled the hearts of all around. The young trembled—the old grew pale—the innocent wept—the virtuous moaned—the sleeping dead moved at its approach—the grave was not sufficient to conceal their virtue from his power.—And as I stood and gazed, I saw the innocent depart, and heard them with a trembling voice pronounce foul slander's name.

How many have been ruined in this way, that might have been an honor to their sex? How many have felt the tales and slander of those that we esteemed as our friends? Instead of following the language of the Apostle, we take a different course—"Do nothing whereby thy brother to offend." Patience and forbearance every man should be possessed of. Conceal the matter. Have patience and I'll pay thee all. These attributes are seldom displayed in our world by one man toward another. Instead of clemency, mercy, and forbearance, we find in the character of mankind, as delineated in the pages of history, the principle of revenge operating more powerfully than almost any other disposition. When we behold a personage, who is possessed of every degree of moral and physical power, for crushing his enemy, yet remaining calm and tranquil, and forbearing to execute deserved punishment, notwithstanding repeated insults and injuries, we are led to admire such qualities, as indicating a certain degree of greatness and benevolence of mind. For this we admire king David, in sparing the life of Saul, at the cave of En-gedi; and afterwards again, when sleeping in a trench at Hachilah. Again, after Saul, his bitter enemy, was slain, he did not wish the news to be carried far and wide, (as some would at this day,) but his language was, "Tell it not in Gath! publish it not in the streets of Askelon!" Why not? "Lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice; lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph." If all possessed the spirit of David, there certainly would be a great change. If we all would say, I won't tell a tale on my brother, lest the wicked triumph, then tale-making, tale-carrying and tale-telling all would cease.

I write this becanse I see and hear so much of it in these degenerate days. Brother can't conceal the faults of his brother, and every little thing is told with a design or intention to injure. I have felt the sting of slander and reproach myself. I dread the dreadful evil.

Yours, &c., HENRY L. SOULE.

The Right Way.

The tide of emigration is flowing rapidly westward. In this flood of folks moving onward as an avalanch, are many members of the Church of God. These locate in distant regions, often far apart from each other. And the result is, that although they were steadfast members of the Church in the East, and once firm opponents to sectarianism, yet they soon contrive to lose their prejudices, and with great elasticity of conscience make themselves at home among other denominations. Is this right? Is it honest? Is it consistent? Is it good policy? We answer emphatically, no. If our cause is right in the East, it is equally so in the West. And we ask, how has the Church spread in any section? Has it not been by standing fast to Bible doctrine, and keeping aloof from the greedy grasp of some persuasions, thus pressing the great truths of the Gospel upon the people. The Church has lost hundreds and thousands of members by this insane and profligate course. It has sapped the moral energy of many Churches, and too often blasted, with fierce indignation, the most brilliant prospects of a future world. This should not be. We hope to see better things hereafter. We expect to see all work, and then the cause will be promulgated far and wide, most rapidly and gloriously. It is the duty of every one to do so.

The History of every Church shows how manfully the first one or two members of a given Church braved the storm of persecution; but they were rewarded, for opposition afterwards lessened, and they fondly viewed the splendid triumph. We take it, that whenever brethren move to other places, and unite with other denominations, that they give a fair show of having been bare hypocrites before. How can any disbeliever in infant sprinkling join a body that practices it? Or how can one commingle with a people so inconsistent as to baptize just as folks want it done?—Truly, it is flinging the Bible aside, to follow after men's whims, and please the people. As well might we go into a thousand other follies, and fancifully dream of Heaven.

Be firm, true, and consistent, and a great reward will be yours, in building up so good a cause. Look around you; see the upward tendency of the truth in places wherein men feel an interest in the cause they advocate, and act upon it. The work still will speed vigorously onward, and the frail power of men cannot stop it. It will sweep prejudices before it as a flood; and spread as a river emptying into the sea. Its power will surpass that of the mighty hurricane, that levels everything before it. G. R.

Elizabethtown, Pa., Jan. 18, 1851,

New Year's Gift.

News from North Bend once more.

Our revival is now ended. It lasted over six weeks. There were from 65 to 70 professing conversion, together with some backsliders reclaimed—33 were baptized, and 23 or 24 united with the "Church of God." There are some more that finally will unite, there being a goodly number who as yet stand neutral. The Church here now numbers about 45 members. I expect to be able, the Lord willing, to find some new snbscribers for the "Church Advocate" by next spring.

Good Editor, we are now stretching (as it were) every nerve in trying to build a Meeting-house. O, that the Lord would open our way! Some of us poor worms have helped to build good and comfortable houses for our Eastern brethren, and paid liberally too, according to our circumstances; but lo! we have none! How will we get one? Well, a house we must have, and a house we will have, if the Lord will. There is one brother here, may be he is worth $300 in all, who subscribed $20, and said, if he cannot pay it in any other way, he will sell one of his oxen! Hear that, ye wealthy brethren in the East! He has only one yoke to farm with. Another one, worth a few hundreds more, with a family of 12, subscribed $50; aud in such ways, with scarcely a knowledge how to ever get such sums paid, we have more than half enough (as we suppose) subscribed to build. Come, brethren, give us a little lift. Build we will, if we live. This is certain, whether we be able or not. If the preachers here are to preach gratuitous, build the houses of worship, and then make rails and post fence and farm for a living for themselves and their large families, and after all this, are looked to, to help support missionaries, this looks to me like hard times being plenty. What think ye?

We are very much in want of books, especially Hymn Books. When will we get them? 1.*

From letters received by some of the brethren, it appears that there will be a considerable ingathering of brethren by next spring, from Huntingdon county, &c. Let them come.

"The Church Anvocate."—The 13th number, (I believe it is,) containing the Journal of the East Pennsylvania Eldership, uever made its appearance. How is this? 2† Brother Jos. Orris never yet received one single copy since he is in Iowa. How comes this? 3‡ Please send us the number containing the Journal of the East Pennsylvania Eldership. We are anxious to see it. 4§

Iowa Legislature.—There is a popular report afloat that the Iowa Legislature passed a law last week against the traffic and sale of intoxicating liquors, as a beverage! This is rather ahead of the East, is it not? I will now stop, my letter being large enough. So farefell. M. F. SNAVELY.

P. S.—Let some brother come to Iowa as a missionary, by all means. My Post-office address is Iowa City. M. F. S.

North Bend, Johnson Co., Iowa, Jan. 1, 1851.

1* We will try and send you some books as soon as the navigation opens in the spring.

2† They were packed and sent as usual. Why they miscarried, we know not.

3‡ Brother Orris' paper is regularly sent with the pack. It must be intercepted in Iowa City.

4§ We cannot supply the whole number. We will send one. Editor.

New Testament Words.---No. 5.

Brother Winebrenner:—

The next word to which I would call the attention of your readers, is

ASP.—This word is found in Rom. 3: 13, and is mentioned but once in the New Testament, where the Apostle says, "The poison of Asps is under their lips." The Asp is a small poisonous serpent, whose bite causes a very speedy but easy death. There are three different species of Asps whose bite or stings are said to prove mortal. The bite of one kind causes people to die with thirst. Another kind causes death by sleep—and another by the loss of blood. When a person is bitten by any of these serpents, he grows blind, with swelling and moderate pain in the stomach; and it is said there is no way for a person to die so easy as by the sting of an Asp, as it throws him into a state of insensibility. The Apostle says of wicked men, "The poison of Asps is under their lips." He does not mean wicked men who live a private life; but such as set themselves up as preachers of the Gospel of Jesus Christ; pretending to be teachers sent from God: having been made by—sent by—and authorized by men, to preach what they call the Gospel! Solomon says, "The lips of the righteous feed many."—Proverbs 10: 21. But the ungodly are not so—their lips kill many. Death is in the power of their tongues.

False, treacherous, or unconverted man-made ministers preach poisonous doctrines, which are dangerous to all who receive them. They have three ways of killing people.—First, by causing a great thirst, by their dry doctrines. Secondly, by preaching them into a state of stupidity—telling them, "We hold the doctrine of baptismal regeneration. The baptized infant is a member of Christ, a child of God, and an inheritor of the kingdom of Heaven!!! And this he is made by a sacrament—a mysterions and inscrutable means of conveying God's grace, the regenerating influence of the Holy Spirit." "Churchman"—Question, "Who gave you that name?" Answer, "My god-fathers and god-mothers in my baptism; wherein I was made a member of Christ, the child of God, and an inheritor of the kingdom of Heaven."—See Catechism. Or perhaps they will tell them that all things were decreed—"That all the people of God were chosen in Christ unto salvation before the foundation of the world." A third way is by putting them to death, right-out; as has been the case in Rome, England, and even in this country. There is no cure for the sting of the Asps; but, blessed be God, there is a sure cure for such as are bitten by those whose mouths are full of the poison of false teaching. If their doctrines cause thirst—the Gospel says, "Ho every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters"—"And whosoever will, let them take of the water of life freely." If their bite causes sleep—the Gospel says, "Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light." If the bite should cause a wound, the Gospel declares "that Christ will bind up the broken-hearted, and heal all such as need a physician."

Oh! that people would fly from such Aspish teachers, and come to Christ, the great Teacher and Physician—

His help he'll freely give,
He makes no hard condition;
'Tis only look and live.

Truly yours, &c.,
WM. JOHNSTON.

REPORT OF THE Standing Com. of the Ohio Eldership.

Sugar Creek, Holmes Co., Ohio.
Jan. 13, 1851.

The Standing Committee of the Ohio Eldership, having been duly informed of the misfortune of our much beloved brother, David Schriner, V. D. M., think it to be the duty of the Church of God in Ohio to do something for his immediate relief. The Committee therefore recommend,

1. That every minister of the Ohio Eldership take up a public collection, at their respective appointments, to defray his expenses.

2. That each minister give notice of said collections, some three weeks previous to the lifting of them.

3. That the case of the afflicted one be fairly presented before the Church and the public. [For particulars, see Church Advocate, No. 17, page 133. Also, in a previous number, in a letter from brother Adams.]

4. That the monies raised be forwarded to brother Schriner, as soon as convenient.

5. That each minister take a note of the amount raised at each collection, and report the same to the Committee, or the Eldership.

O, brethren, remember the poor and the afflicted. "He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth to the Lord; and that which he hath given will the Lord pay him again."—Prov. 19: 17. Now, brethren, if this security is good enough for you, then down with the dough.

J. Beidler,
A. Holms,
H. Murray, } Committee.

Hell.

BY WM. M. H——R.

There is a pit whose gloomy depth profound
Was never fathom'd, and no mortal eye
E'er pierced the dark domain; and there
No cheering voice in soothing accents fell
To mitigate the woes the suffer'rs feel.
All, all is dark, and tho' ever and anon
The awful tempest of the sulphur flames
Terrific flows, while all the hollow deep
Reverberates with mingled cries of wo,
And clanking chains, and lamentable shrieks.
The Devil there in hellish state appears,
Wrapp'd in the billows of eternal fire—
Attended by a train of torturing fiends,
E'er ready at their hellish master's will
To augment those pangs intolerable
Already; yet the full extent of pain
Eternity will only solve. Oh! there
The mourner's cry's unsoothed by Mercy's plea,
And bitter, burning tears forever fall
Unpitied and unnotic'd; prayers too
Are heard, but ah! there is no faith to raise
Them to the holy throne! their piercing sounds
Are buried in the awful lake of fire.
There kings and nobles, vassals lie without Distinction's mark, each alike enduring
That eternal fire. Angels, too, are there,
Who from the shining realms of endless bliss
Were hurl'd to clank their chains in awful hell
Until the Judgment shall be set, when they
With devils and damn'd spirits shall writhe
Forever. Oh! what a hideous mass is there,
From every nation and from every grade,
Reaping the reward of every crime
On earth committed. There are mingled howls
And piereing shrieks, and faithless prayers,
And bitter cursings more hideous made
By gnashing teeth and unending wo.
Despair there reigns, and not one ray of hope
E'er cheered the wretched inmates of that pit.
With torture frantic, in despair they seek
Annihilation—utter death, but oh!
Inscribed upon perdition's walls in fire
Eternity in blazing characters to tell
Their doom is fixed; and while Jehovah lives
'Gainst whom they've sinned, and while the Cherubim
Shall fill the shining courts with melody,
And while the spirits of the just shall shout
Triumphant anthems to their King, shall they Continue to deplore their woes—regaled
With awful goblets of eternal fire.

Bloomfield Furnace, Pa., Jan., 1851.

Letter from Sister Sarah Grove.

Reading Furnace, Pa., Jan. 26, 1851.

Dear Brother:—

Enclosed you will find two dollars towards the support of those missionaries that are going to the West, for which you will please give me credit in the list. By your permission, I will copy a few lines for the columns of the Acvocate.

UNCERTAINTY OF LIFE—IMPORTANCE OF RELIGION.

Reader, you who are now young and healthy, and perhaps calculating on what you may be, and do, and possess, and enjoy through a long series of years; but do not forget, that in the midst of life we are in death, and that the body of many a youth, who a year ago was as blooming and vigorous as ours, now lies beneath the clods of the valleys. Therefore, "Boast not thyself of to-morrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth." "What are our lives? even as a vapor that appeareth for a little while, and then vanisheth away." "For that ye ought to say, if the Lord will, we shall live, and do this or that." Now, seeing that life is so uncertain, and that at any moment death may be so near, while you are concerned to acquire what may be useful to you in future life, above all things do not neglect what is necessary to your safety and happiness when you die. Let not all your cares and thoughts be spent upon what you shall eat, and drink, and wear, or upon any worldly good, but ask with deep solemnity of spirit, what must I do to be saved? Your heart, if it has not been changed by the power of Divine grace, is full of enmity against God. You do not love to obey God, nor think as he thinks, nor choose what he approves." "The carnal mind is enmity against God, for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. So, then, they that are in the flesh, cannot please God'" Think, dear young reader, of the precious privileges bestowed on sinners through Jesus Christ, and let it be your fervent prayer, "Remember me, O! Lord, with the favor that thou bearest to thy people. O! visit me with thy salvation, that I may see the good of thy chosen, that I may rejoice in the gladness of thy nation, and glory with thine inheritance." Lose no time in coming to a decision. Many lose their souls by intending to become Christians at a future time. "Now is the accepted time, and the day of salvation." Remember, it is said to you, "My son, give me thy heart. I love them that love me, and they that seek me early shall find me." Who, then, would not prefer being a Christian? "Godliness is profitable to all things, having the promise of this life and of that which is to come." Ah! methinks, I would rather be a door-keeper in the house of God, than dwell in the tents of wickedness, and be banished from his presence forever. Surely in His presence there is fullness of joy, and at His right hand there are pleasures forevermore. Very respectfully yours,

SARAH GROVE.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Population of Wisconsin.—The population of this State, on the 1st day of June, of last year, was 305,121, showing an increase in two years and a half, of 94,575. There has been an increase in every county, with the exception of St. Croix, which shows a decrease since 1847. For the past two years the increase in the population has been at the rate of about 40,000 per annum. The principal element in this rapid increase is immigration from abroad.

Population of Connecticut.—The population of Connecticut, by the U. S. census of this year, is ascertained to be 382,000, which is a gain of 62,000, or 20 per cent. from 1840. This is a greater increase by 3,000 than the whole increase of the population of the State from 1800 to 1840.

North Carolina Coal.—Professor Johnson examined carefully the Coal region in Chatham and Moore counties, for a space of fifteen miles in length by four or five in width, in all of which he found undoubted evidence of a deposit of minerals, which he pronounced to be of the best kinds of bituminous, semi-bituminous, and anthracite. The indications are, he says, that the deposit is thirty miles in extent, by four to five wide, comprising a space of about one hundred and fifty square miles. We learn, also, that the Professor found the deposit as much as seven feet two inches in depth—a greater depth than any similar deposits in England.

[Fayetteville (N. C.) Observer.

The first Printed Book.—It is a remarkable and most interesting fact that the very first use to which the discovery of Printing was applied was the production of the Holy Bible. This was accomplished at Mentz between the years 1450 and 1455. Of the first printed Bibles, eighteen copies are now known to be in existence, four of which are printed on vellum. Two of these are in England, one being in the Greenville collection. One is in the Royal Library at Paris.

Of the fourteen remaining copies, ten are in England—there being copies in the libraries of Oxford, Edinburg and London, and seven in the collections of different noblemen. The vellum copy has been sold as high as $1,300.

Postmasters.—A Postmaster in Pennsylvania recently had judgment given against him for the price of subscription of several years to a newspaper, on the plea that he had not given sufficient legal notice to the publisher to stop it, and had continued to receive the numbers for several years, and sell them for the postage! The magistrate decided that merely returning a copy of a paper, with stop this written on it, without post-mark or other indications of locality, was not sufficient or legal notice; but a written notice, with name, place, date and reason, must be sent to the publisher, and franked, that it may be taken out by him.

Low Salaries.—The following table shows the salaries to be paid to the government officers in the State of Michigan, as determined by the new Constitution—Governor $1000; Judges of the Circuit Court $1500; State Treasurer $1000; Auditor General $1000; Superintendent of Public Instruction $1000; Secretary of State $800; Commissioner of State Land Office $800; Attorney General $800. These salaries cannot be increased by the Legislature, and the officers are allowed no fees or perquisites for the performance of any duties connected with their office.

Missouri and Iowa.—The Suprme Court at Washington has decided the disputed boundary question between Iowa and Missouri against the latter, that the boundary made by the Commissioners shall stand as the true line between the two States.

Death of the fat-boy.—This often heard of boy died in New York on Saturday, the 1st inst. His name was George Robinett, and was a native of Indiana. His age was 23, and he weighed 400 pounds.

Census of Maine.—The total population of Maine, as given by the census returns, is 583,026; increase since 1840, 81,230.

One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Tracts for Russia.—The Russian Government has accepted an offer from the friends of the good cause in Petersburg, to supply the army through its officers with 100,000 tracts, and the navy and military hospital with 50,000 more. Of 79 different tracts approved by the censors, it has been arranged to print 2,000 each; and the American Tract Society have appropriated $1,000 to the important purpose. It is the only way in which the Gospel can be preached in the Russian language by Christians of this country.

Election of U. S. Senator in Rhode Island.—On Friday, the 31st ult., Gen. Charles T. James was elected Senator of the United States by the Legislature of Rhode Island, on the 8th ballot. Mr. James is deeply interested in the Cotton Manufacture, and will be found one of the most decided friends of the great measure advocated by the Whigs—a Protective Tariff. Gen. James is the celebrated Cotton Manufacturer to whose energy and skill we are indebted for the Cotton Mills at Lancaster and Harrisburg.—Telegraph.

Great Cave-in at Natchez.—A most ruinous falling in of the river banks, we learn from the Southern papers, took place at Natchez last week. The entire bank, including the whole width of the street, sunk, without a moment's warning, to the depth of 25 feet, nearly on a level with the water in the river. The disaster has not only ruined the street, side-walk and all, but has rendered the buildings unsafe and useless—Steubenville Herald.

New York and Suburbs.—The population of New York city proper is 515,394, and the number of dwellings 37,720. The population of Brooklyn is 96,850, and the number of dwellings 10,196. The population of Williamsburg is 30,686, and the number of dwellings 3,836. The total population of the three cities is 643,030, and the number of dwellings 51,770.

Philadelphia Commerce.—During the year ending on the 30th of September, 1850, the exports amounted to $10,001,445.—Vessels arrived, 518 from foreign ports, and 28,035 coastwise—an increase of 2,384 over 1849. Emigrants arrived, 13,615—6,784 males, 6.831 females; a decrease of 218 from 1849.

Census of Virginia.—The Virginia papers state that the white population of Eastern Virginia, will amount to 400,000, and of Western Virginia, 495,000. The entire population of the State will, it is said, be 1,400,000.

Death of a Member of Congress.—The Hon. David F. Kauffman, a representative to Congress from the State of Texas, died suddenly at Washington on Friday, the 31st ult. He was a native of Cumberland county in this State, where his relatives reside.

Missouri U. S. Senator.—After a protracted struggle in the Missouri Legislature, Mr. Henry C. Geyer has been elected U. S. Senator in place of Mr. Benton.

☞ The State of Iowa has ordered a block of marble for the Washington Monument, with the following inscription:—"Iowa—Her affections like the rivers of her borders flow to an inseparable Union."

☞ The New York Homestead Law went into operation on the 1st instant. It exempts from sale on execution for debts hereafter contracted, the lot and buildings thereon, occupied as a residence owned by the debtor, being a householder, and having a family, to the value of $1,000.

☞ The initiatory step in the movement for a regular steam communication between San Francisco and Canton, is about being taken by an enterprising merchant of the former city, who has purchased the well known steam propeller M'Kim, and intends running between San Francisco and Sandwich Islands.

☞ The Domestic Missions of the Methodist Church, according to Bishop James, comprise three hundred and thirty-seven missionaries. Connected with these are about thirty thousand church members.

☞ Henry H. Paine, of Worcester, Mass., has received by the last steamer from England his letters patent, which secure to him the benefits to be derived from his grand discovery, by the people of Great Britain.

☞ The Indiana Convention has passed a section prohibiting the Legislature from granting divorces; also, prohibiting lotteries or sale of lottery tickets in the State.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CONSTITUTION OF THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Agricultural Convention which commenced its sittings here on Tuesday, the 21st ult., organized a State Agricultural Society, the officers of which were named in connection with the proceedings of the Convention, and adopted the following

CONSTITUTION:

The name of the Society shall be "The Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society."

The objects of the Society are to foster and improve agriculture, horticulture and the domestic and household arts.

SECTION 1. The Society shall consist of all such persons as shall signify to the executive committee their wish to become members, and shall pay to the Treasurer, on signing the Constitution of the Society, not less than $1, and an annual contribution of the same amount; and also of honorary and corresponding members. The officers of County Agricultural Societies in this State, or delegations therefrom, shall be members ex-officio of this Society.

The payment of twenty dollars shall constitute life membership, and exempt the members so contributing from all annual payments.

SEC. 2. The officers of the Society shall be a President, a Vice President from each Congressional District, three-fourths of whom shall be practical farmers or horticulturists; a Treasurer; a Corresponding Secretary; a Recording Secretary; a Librarian; an Agricultural Chemist and Geologist, and such other assistants as the Society may find essential to the transaction of its business; an Executive Committee, consisting of the above named officers and five additional members.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

SEC. 3. The President shall have a general superintendence of all the affairs of the Society; in case of the death, illness or inability of the President to perform the duties of his office, the executive committee shall select a Vice President to act in his stead, who shall have the same power and perform the same duties, as the President, until the next annual election.

Vice Presidents.—It shall be their duty to take charge of the affairs of the Association in their several districts; to advance all its objects; to call upon farmers, to report as to the condition of Agriculture in their neighborhood; to ask for information as to the modes of cultivation adopted by different farmers; and as far as in their power, to make known the resources of their districts; the nature of its soil; its geological character, and all such matters as may interest farmers in every part of the State.

The Treasurer shall keep an account of all the moneys paid into his hands, and shall only pay bills, when audited and approved by the Executive committee; each order for payment must be signed by the President or the Chairman of the Executive committee.

Corresponding Secretary.—The duty of this officer shall be to write a correspondence with all persons interested in Agriculture, whether in the State of Pennsylvania or elsewhere, but especially with our Consuls in foreign countries, that new seeds, vegetables or live stock, may be introduced, and their fitnsss for cultivation and propagation in our climate be tested. At each stated meeting of the Society, he shall read his correspondence—which shall, either the whole or such parts as may be selected by the Society, form a portion of the transactions. He shall also correspond with the President, or other officers of each State Society in the United States, at least twice in the year, for the purposes of combined and mutual action, and to be informed of the result and progress of each other's efforts; also, to invite mechanics to forward models or implements for examination and trial.

The Recording Secretary shall keep the minutes of the Society, and of the Executive Committee. At the close of each year, he shall prepare for publication such parts of the minutes and transactions of the Society, as may be designated.

The Librarian shall take charge of all books, pamphlets, &c., belonging to the Society, and shall act as durator to preserve seeds, implements, or whatever property the Society may possess.

The Executive Committee shall transact the business of the Society generally, shall superintend and direct the publication of such of the reports and transactions as they may deem proper, and shall designate the times and places for annual exhibitions, regulate the expenditures, examine all accounts, and keep such general charge of the affairs of the Society as may best promote its interests. They shall select their own chairman, and meet monthly; five members shall form a quorum. They shall call special meetings of the Society when necessary.

SEC. 4. The Society shall meet annually on the third Tuesday of January, at Harrisburg, when all the officers of the Society shall be elected by ballot for the ensuing year, and until another election. They shall also hold a general meeting at the time of the annual exhibition, and special meetings whenever convoked by the Executive Committee. Fifteen members shall form a quorum for the transaction of business, but no member in arrears shall be entitled to the privileges of the Society.

SEC. 5. This Constitution may be altered or amended at the annual meetings in January, by a vote of two-thirds of the members in attendance.

CLERGYMAN'S LIFE.—To a person who regretted to the celebrated Dr. Johnson that he had not been a clergyman, because he considered the life of a clergyman an easy and comfortable one, the doctor made this memorable reply:—"The life of a conciencious clergyman is not easy. I have always considered a clergyman as the father of a larger family than he is able to maintain. No, sir, I do not envy a clergyman's life as an easy life; nor do I envy the clergyman who makes it an easy life."

POETRY.

WAR.

BY JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, JR.

The battle field! the battle field!
What wounded lie about—
The foeman has been made to yield,
And there has been a rout!
A battle day! a battle day!
O War! what dost thou cost?—
Ten thousand limbs are shot away—
A thousand lives are lost!

Give way! make room—the conqueror comes
With victory on his brow;
He saw his foes a while ago,
And he would see them now!
Some stand upon the gory plain,
And some in terror kneel,
And some are writhing in their pain,
Beside the victor's heel.

Some cry aloud in maddening rage,
And curse themselves with woe,
And others dare again to wage
A conflict with the foe.
And others fling aloft their arms,
And shriek a thirsty cry,
For water drops to cool their heat—
Then stagger back and die!

O, what a dreadful picture then!
No man saw such before—
The plain is strewed with dying men,
All stiffened in their gore.
A battle day!—a battle day!—
O War—how dear thy cost!
Then thousand limbs are blown away—
A thousand souls are lost!

Baltimore, Md.

Friendship.

How hard it is to find a friend
On whom we always can depend—
Sometimes we think the treasure got,
'Till trial proves we have it not.

Many, to serve their selfish ends,
Warmly declare they are your friends;
But soon as serving self is o'er,
Behold, they are your friends no more.

Others will act a part more base—
Always be friendly to your face;
You turn your back—then they your name
Expose to obloquy and shame.

Apparent friendship others show,
That you may confidence bestow;
Your secrets thus they oft obtain,
And use to injure your good name.

Those who of others tell you much,
My counsel is—beware of such,
They bring your neighbors' faults to view,
And absent, speak the same of you.

A faithful friend may well be prized,
But mere pretence must be despised;
Whene'er disposed a friend to trust,
Be always sure you prove him first.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

A protracted meeting will commence in the Bethel at Elizabethtown on Saturday, the 22d of February.

Another at Falmouth, Lancaster county, commencing on Friday evening, the 7th of March. Elder Harn is expected to be in attendance.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 11th of July, 1850, by Elder S. Bowser, Mr. GEORGE R. RAMSEY to Miss MARY ANN WOLF, both of York Co., Pa.

On the 23d ult., by the same, Mr. GEORGE FISSEL to Miss ELIZABETH HUFFMAN, both of York county, Pa.

On the 30th ult., by J. Winebrenner, V. D. M., Mr. HENRY WEBERT, of Paul's Valley, to Miss SUSAN STEEL, of York county, Pa.

On the 13th inst., by the same, CHRISTIAN E. HERSHEY to Miss MARGARET ANN GROFF, both of Lancaster county, Pa.

On the 28th of March, 1850, by Elder A. J. Fenton, ELIHU BROWN and ELIZABETH RAMSEY.

On the same, by the same, THEODORE FERENBERG and DIANA RAMSEY.

On the 5th of June, 1850, by the same, JEHU CUNNINGHAM and CHARLOTTE CLARK, all of Newburg, Huntingdon county, Pa.

On the 15th of August last, by the same, SAMUEL ANDERSON and ELIZABETH RAMSEY.

On the 16th of January last, by the same, LEVI BOREMAN, of Juniatta county, and REBECCA RAMSEY, of Huntingdon county, Pa.

"Oh, married love, each heart shall own,
Where two congenial hearts unite;
Thy golden chain, inlaid with down,
Thy lamp with Heaven's own splendor bright."

In October last, by Elder T. Strohm, Mr. JONATHAN FOX to Miss MARY ANN FORNEY, both of West Hanover.

In November last, by the same, Mr. DAVID SOULE to Miss CAROLINE MILLER, both of Linglestown, Dauphin county.

On the 6th inst., by the same, Mr. JOHN P. CHUBB, of Paul's Valley, to Miss SARAH ——, of Armstrong Valley, Dauphin county.

On the 11th inst., by the same, at the residence of Elder A. Miller, Mr. MICHAEL WOLF, of Highspire, to Miss CHRISTIANN SARCH.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—On Monday evening, the 3d inst., ANNA CATHARINE CLAY, daughter of Brother Henry and Sister Fanny Clay, aged 2 years, 9 months, 2 weeks and 1 day.

Departed this life, on the 23d of January, 1851, DANIEL WHISLER, son of Jacob and Elizabeth Whisler, aged 19 years and 30 days.

His time of sickness was five weeks and five days, which was the scurvy and fever. His mortal remains were interred in Diller's grave-yard, near Newville, Cumberland Co., Pa. Funeral services by Rev. Daniel Eckerd.

In Mifflin township, Cumberland county, Pa., GEORGE WHISLER, son of Jacob and Elizabeth Whisler, aged 21 years, 7 months and 3 days.

Funeral services by Rev. Daniel Whisler and Rev. Andrew McElvain.

On the 5th of January, 1851, ELIZABETH FINKENBINER, daughter of brother Abraham Finkenbiner, aged 5 years and 11 days.

Her mortal remains were interred in Knettle's grave-yard, in Mifflin township, Cumberland county, Pa. Funeral services by Rev. Daniel Whisler. W. W. WHISLER.

On the evening of January 27th, 1851, at the residence of her father, VIRGINIA E., daughter of David and Mary Carmony, in the 11th year of her age.

The deceased was characterized by a vigor and maturity of intellect rarely in the possession of one so young. And though stricken by a disease that resulted in a very painful dissolution, after an illness of only three days, she bore her affliction with the resignation and fortitude of one more advanced in years, referring very frequently---especially in the last day of her illness--to the trouble she feared she must be to her mother. Although enduring great agony, she was quite sensible to the last; and a little while before she died she quoted a passage of Scripture to her father, and exhorted him to live a righteous life, and take care of her little brothers.

On the 27th of January, 1851, near Reedsburg, Wayne county, Ohio, a son of Abraham and Susannah Grindle, aged 4 months and 18 days.

Funeral sermon preached by the writer, from Jer. 28: 16. D. NEIDIGH, JR.

At Linglestown, Dauphin county, Pa., on the 7th of December, 1850, BROSILLAH SEECHRIST, aged 6 years, 5 months and 28 days.

Deeember 18th, 1850, ANAMYRAH SEECHRIST. Funeral services by Elder T. Strohm.

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—WHEAT, per barrel,			$4 12	a	4 50
Do.	RYE,	do. - -	2 50	a	2 50
Do.	CORN,	do. - -	2 37½	a	2 37½
GRAIN—WHEAT, per bushel,			87	a	90
Do.	RYE,	do. - -	56	a	62
Do.	CORN,	do. - -	45	a	45
Do.	OATS,	do. - -	33	a	33
Do.	BARLEY,	do. - -	70	a	75
SEEDS—CLOVER,		do. - -	4 00	a	4 50
Do.	TIMOTHY,	do. - -	2 00	a	2 25
Do.	FLAX,	do. - -	1 25	a	1 25
BEEF, per cwt.		- - -	5 00	a	5 50
PORK, do.		- - - -	5 50	a	5 50
HAMS, per pound,		- - -	8	a	11
BUTTER, do.		- - -	20	a	25
LARD, do.		- - -	8	a	8
TALLOW, do.		- - -	8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.			6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,		- - -	15	a	18
POTATOES, per bushel,		- -	50	a	62
ONIONS,		do. - -	75	a	87½
APPLES,		do. - - -	37	a	62
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.			1 25	a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,		- -	37½	a	45
WOOL,		do. - - -	30	a	50
SALT, per sack,		- - - -	1 75	a	1 75
HAY, per ton,		- - - - -	10 00	a	10 00
PLASTER, per ton,		- - -	4 75	a	4 75

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—WHEAT, per barrel,			$4 62	a	5 25
Do.	RYE,	do. -	3 00	a	3 00
Do.	CORN,	do. - -	3 00	a	3 00
GRAIN—WHEAT, per bushel,			95	a	1 10
Do.	RYE,	do. - -	70	a	71
Do.	CORN,	do. - -	60	a	61
Do.	OATS,	do. - -	42	a	45
Do.	BARLEY,	do. - -	85	a	1 00
SEEDS—CLOVER,		do. - -	4 75	a	5 00
Do.	TIMOTHY,	do. - -	2 50	a	2 62
Do.	FLAX,	do. - -	1 40	a	1 50
BEEF, per cwt.,		- -	7 00	a	8 75
PORK, do.		- - - - -	7 00	a	7 25

Music Books—Price Reduced.

1. Evangelical Music—Patent Notes—Price five dollars per dozen.
Do. Do. Round Notes—Price four dollars per dozen.
2. History of all Denominations—Portrait Editions—Price two dollars and fifty cents.
3. Reference and Pronouncing Testaments—Price fifty cents.
4. Treatise on Regeneration—Price sixty-two and a half cents.
5. Five Hundred Sketches and Skeletons—Price two dollars and fifty cents.
6. Traveller's Guide to the West—Price fifty cents.
7. Wandering Soul—Price seventy-five cents.
8. Hymn Books, English and German, assorted, at different prices.

☞ For sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER and HICKOK & BARRETT, Harrisburg, Penn'a.

Dr. Christie's
Galvanic Belt, Necklace, Bracelets, and Magnetic Fluid.

THE acknowledged and extraordinary curative powers of these wonderful inventions is now so generally known and their sales and reputation throughout the whole country so extensive, that it would seem unnecessary to urge their merits further. But some late circumstances have occurred which render it a matter of duty to the public not to be altogether silent, for while the ephemeral nostrums of the day are trumpeted by columns through the Press and swallowed by quarts and gallons by the afflicted, and are found just good for nothing,

Christie's Galvanic & Magnetic Curatives,

have been quietly working their way among the most intelligent and respectable classes, and are constantly achieving cures in an alarming train of diseases, which have for ages baffled all the aid of medicine and all the resources of Science. These diseases are called and in these diseases medicine is of no avail whatever. It never does good, and it often does harm. Syrups, Extracts, Balms, Balsams, Elixirs, Bitters, Pills, Powders and Potions of every kind are alike worthless, for they weaken the vital energies of the already prostrated system; while under the strengthening, life-giving, vitalizing influence of Galvanism, as applied by this beautiful discovery, the exhausted patient and weakened sufferer is restored to former health, strength, elasticity and vigor.

NERVOUS COMPLAINTS,

These remarks relate to such diseases as NEURALGIA, TIC DOLOREUX, BRONCHITIS, PALPITATION of the HEART, WEAKNESS, and all FEMALE DISORDERS, such as NERVOUS HEADACHE, LASSITUDE and DESPONDENCY, which are only other names for Nervous Derangement; EPILEPTIC FITS and CONVULSIONS, which are known to result from a non-equilibrium of Electric influence; NERVOUS TREMORS, DEAFNESS, which is nearly always caused by torpidity of the Auditory Nerves and can always be perfectly cured by Galvanism when the organ is not destroyed; DYSPEPSIA, in its worst forms; PALSY and PARALYSIS, uniformly caused by a deficiency of Nervous Influence; CHRONIC RHEUMATISM, TORPIDITY of the LIVER, PAIN in the SIDE, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION, SPINAL and HIP COMPLAINTS, DEFICIENCY of NERVOUS and PHYSICAL ENERGY, and all those distressing complaints resulting from a DERANGEMENT of the NERVOUS SYSTEM.

In the above prevalent and terrible class of diseases and Nervous Complaints which are much more numerous than is generally imagined—

CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES,
Are an Absolute and Positive Specific.

The BELT is used when the body or system generally is affected: the NECKLACE for complaints of the Throat, as Asthma and Bronchitis, and of the Head: and the BRACELETS for all disorders of the arms and limbs, as Rheumatism, Palsy, Tremors and Spasmodic affections. These articles are simply applied as directed with the MAGNETIC FLUID which accompanies them, and when faithfully used they NEVER FAIL!

☞ The great peculiarity and excellence of the GALVANIC CURATIVES consists in the fact that they arrest and cure disease by Outward Application, in place of the usual method of Drugging and Physicing the patient till exhausted nature sinks hopelessly under the infliction. They strengthen the whole system, equalize the circulation of the Blood, promote the secretions, invigorate the entire energies, and can never do the slightest harm under any circumstances.

Since their introduction in the United States, only three years since, more than

75,000 PERSONS

including all ages, classes and conditions, among whom were a large number of Ladies, who are peculiarly subject to Nervous Complaints, have been

Entirely and Permanently Cured,

when all hope of relief had been given up, and everything else had been tried in vain! The beneficial results which have uniformly attended their use is confidently stated to be without a parallel in the annals of Medical Science. Clergymen, lawyers, and even physicians: ladies of the highest standing: distinguished persons holding elevated official stations: merchants, manufacturers, and mechanics: the poor and the rich alike: often whole families, among all classes, ranks and conditions, have equally been recipients, and have equally acknowledged the wondrous and often unexpected benefits which they have thus received.

☞ Let it be known and remembered that the only Natural Restorative for the Nerves is Galvinism, and that in all Nervous Diseases we should

"Throw Physic to the Dogs."

To illustrate the use of the GALVANIC BELT, suppose the case of a person afflicted with that bane of civilization, DYSPEPSIA, or any other Chronic or Nervous Disorder. In ordinary cases stimulants are taken, which, by their action on the nerves and muscles of the stomach, afford temporary relief, but which leave the patient in a lower state, and with injured faculties, after the action thus excited has ceased. Now compare this with the effect resulting from the application of the GALVANIC BELT. Take a Dyspeptic sufferer, even in the worst symptoms of an attack, and simply tie the Belt round the Body, using the Magnetic Fluid as directed. In a short period the insensible perspiration will act on the positive element of the Belt, thereby causing a Galvanic circulation which will pass on to the negative, and thence back again to the positive, thus keeping up a continuous Galvanic circulation throughout the system. Thus the most severe cases of Dyspepsia are permanently cured. A few days is amply sufficient to eradicate the disease of years.

MANY THOUSAND
Certificates and Testimonials

from the most intelligent and respectable persons residing in every portion of the United States, could be presented. These are now unnecessary, but a numerous selection embracing many statements of the most extraordinary character, sufficient to convince the most sceptical, may be had of the authorized Agent. The interested are particularly invited to call.

WONDERFUL RESTORATION!
☞ 77 Years Old!!!

Blooming Grove, Orange Co., N. Y., July 26, 1850.

To Dr. A. H. Christie, New York.

Dear Sir—Having been very severely handled by Rheumatism and other diseases, and having been cured in a most remarkable manner by CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC BELT and FLUID, I thought I would give a statement of my case, for the benefit of others. I had the Rheumatism last winter, and my legs swelled very much. My head was also very much afflicted, having so severe a pain over my eyes that I could scarcely see. At the same time, I was troubled by spasms, caused by the pain in my head, I suppose. My hearing had been getting poor for several years from a catarrh, so that in one ear I could scarcely hear at all. Having heard wonderful accounts of Christie's Belt and Fluid, I sent to your store and got them. The Belt was put on, and the Fluid used as directed, and I don't think I have had, after the first night using them, one minute clear pain from that time to this, being six months. The Rheumatism left my body entirely, after wearing the Belt a very short time, probably two weeks. Then I put on a Galvanic Necklace, and had not worn it two weeks, before my head was perfectly well. My hearing in both ears is entirely restored, the pain all gone, my sight is very good for a man of my age, (77 years in August) and I consider myself entirely well, having worked through harvest without the least difficulty. I consider my cure very remarkable, and therefore do not hesitate to recommend CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES to all persons afflicted as I have been. (Signed) PHINEAS TUTHILL.

AFFIDAVIT.

State of New York, Newburgh, Orange county, ss: Phineas Tuthill of Blooming Grove, Orange county, N. Y., who is personally known to me as a most respectable citizen and worthy of all confidence, being duly sworn deposes and says that the facts, set forth in the above statement in relation to his case, are entirely correct, and that he is now in the enjoyment of good health, caused as he believes by Christie's Galvanic Curatives. PHINEAS TUTHILL.

Sworn before me this 26th day of June, 1850.
S. W. EAGER, Justice of the Peace.

Weakness and Nervous Debility!

Dear Sir—I want another supply of Christie's Galvanic Curatives, immediately. This is an intelligent and reasoning community, and they see at once that the Curatives are constructed upon scientific and philosophical principles and must work effectually upon the Nervous System, in the case of Nervous Diseases. An estimable young lady in our town was afflicted with extreme Nervous Debility and severe pains in the head and neck. She put on one of the Galvanic Belts and Necklace and immediately became sensible of its curative and strengthening powers, and the next day was relieved of the severe pains, and raised from a state of entire nervous prostration to health and strength. I can mention several other cases equally wonderful.

Yours very respectfully, J. B. KNIGHT.
Panama, Chautauque Co, N. Y., Oct. 1, 1850.

☞ No trouble or inconvenience attends the use of DR. CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES, and they may be worn by the most feeble and delicate with perfect ease and safety. In many cases the sensation attending their use is highly pleasant and agreeable. They are accompanied by full and plain directions for use. Pamphlets with full particulars may be obtained gratis, of the authorized Agent.

PRICES:

The Galvanic Belt, Three Dollars,
The Galvanic Necklace, Two Dollars.
The Galvanic Bracelets, One Dollar Each.
The Magnetic Fluid, One Dollar.

PARTICULAR CAUTION.

☞ Beware of counterfeits and Worthless Imitations. D. C. MOREHEAD, M. D.,

GENERAL AGENT FOR THE UNITED STATES,
132 Broadway, New York.

☞ For Sale by Dr. W. K. MEHAFFEY, authorized Agent for HARRISBURG, PA.
Dr. GEO. ROSS, Elizabethtown, Pa.
Jan. 1, 1851.—6m.

Depositories of Our Books.

FOR the convenience of our brethren, and the public generally, we have established Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

GEO. F. GORDON, corner of 12th and Wistar streets, and BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, and LEWIS COLBY, No. 122 Nassau street, New York.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, Baltimore, Md.

JOHN H. CORNELIUS, New Berlin, Union county, Pa.

SPANGLER & BROTHER, Lancaster, Pa.

MARTIN and MENELY, Lagrange county, Indiana.

M. F. SNAVELY, North Bend, Iowa.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail Prices.
History of Denomination in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries, -	2 00
Wandering Soul, - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament, -	50
German Referenee Testament, - -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
German Do., - - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, - -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - - -	25
Harn on Feet-washing, - - -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, - - -	15
Traveller's Guide to the West, - -	50

EVANGELICAL MUSIC,
FOR
CHURCHES AND SINGING SCHOOLS.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us, and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music.

☞ FOR SALE at this office, and at our Depositories. EDITOR.

Missionary
SUBSCRIPTIONS AND DONATIONS.

FOR sustaining five Missionaries in the West--two in Iowa and three in Illinois, during the next Eldership year, commencing with April, 1851, and ending with March, 1852.

John Winebrenner,	-	paid	$10 00
William Reichart,	-	paid	5 00
Isaac Miller, -	-	-	10 00
J. H. Hurley,	-	-	5 00
Geo. U. Harn,	-	-	5 00
M. F. Snavely,	-	-	10 00
Jacob Miller, -	-	-	10 00
James Miller,	-	-	5 00
S. A. Brumbaugh, -	-	-	5 00
Thomas Strohm,	-	-	5 00
J. B. G. Kinsloe,	-	-	5 00
Abraham Sherich, -	-	paid	7 50
Abraham Swartz, -	-	-	5 00
A Liberal Brother,	-	-	20 00
A Liberal Sister,	-	paid	2 00
David Strickler,	-	-	5 00
James Casey,	-	-	5 00
Samuel M. Hoover,	-	paid	5 00
Susanna Myers,	-	paid	4 00
Charles F. Long,	-	-	5 00

Daniel R Long	5 00	Sarah Grove paid	2 00
Dr Geo Ross paid	10 00	Wm Brady	3 00

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED
History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of ALL the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa., MARCH 1, 1851. NUMBER 21.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

1. The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:
2. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
3. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
4. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
5. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
6. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
7. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
8. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
9. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
10. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

For Sale.

A two horse wagon, with good harness, a large body, and three eliptic springs, suitable for emigrants moving to the West, for sale at this office. Price low, for cash.

Cheap Travelling.

The fare on all trains of through passengers, from Albany to Buffalo, has been reduced to $6 60,—the same to take effect on the first of April.

Errors Corrected.

In sending out our bills last month sundry mistakes occurred, which we have been happy to rectify. These mistakes occurred in two ways,

1st. Because of the tranfer of some names from one Post-office to another. And,

2d. Because of the omission of dates, or times of beginning, in some instances, in transcribing the list last spring.

Some of these transfers were made during our absence last summer, and not being marked paid, their bills were made out and sent on by mistake. All we ask, in such cases, is, a simple notice.

Lunatic Asylum.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the State Lunatic Asylum, lately held in this place, it was resolved to open the Institution on the first of June next.

Mr. John Curwen, of Philadelphia, was appointed Superintendent, and William D. Staymaker Steward of the Asylum.

Another Dun.

As we greatly need funds at present, this, therefore, is to remind our delinquent subscribers, that we shall look for our dues between this and the first of April. If not paid by that time, the accounts will be made out and sent on for collection. We earnestly request, therefore, one and all who are in arrears, to pay up, and save trouble and costs.

Glorious Work of Grace, in Canton, Ill.

Hundreds of souls have been redeemed from hell, and are now sitting at the feet of Jesus. Two hundred and eleven united with the Church, eighty of them heads of families, eighty-one young ladies, fifty young men.

The work spread like fire! in all the surrounding regions. In one direction it spread twenty miles, burning up the dross and scum of sin and pollution. Scepticisms, Sectarianisms, Universalisms, Romanisms, Mormonisms, Millerisms, Tom Paine's Devilisms, all were scattered to the winds! The foundations of hell seemed to be shaken, Satan fell as lightning! The gay concert, the giddy dance, the fancy fair, the places of folly, sin and blasphemy, are changed for the prayer and conference meetings. A happier band of newborn souls never was. "Praise ye the Lord!"

Revival at Washington.

A glorious and powerful revival has lately commenced at Washington, Lancaster county, Penn'a.

Bro. J. Schoch, one of the Elders of the Church, wrote us on the 20th ultimo as follows:

"This is to inform you that God is working in a powerful manner among the people of this place. I have never seen such a time at Washington since I live here. From six to seventeen are forward of a night to seek the Lord. We have no preacher here but brother Brady, and he is considerably worn out.

"At the request of the brethren and people here, I address these few lines to you, wishing you to come to our help. Come, then, and help us to work while God is working so powerfully upon the hearts of the people. The meeting-house is quite to small at present. Write to me by return of mail, and let me know when you will be at Columbia, and I will meet you there."

Pleasant News from Fiatville.

Bro. J. M. Klein writes that there has been a small stir in Fiatville, Lawrence county, Pa. In his letter, dated the 15th ult., he says: "Some few have lately embraced religion at Fiatville. On last Monday I baptized four believers at that place. The Church is doing well, and are making all necessary preparations for the reception of Bro. Logue. They have got for him a pleasant location near the Bethel. I hope he will come on in good heart, and I think he will be well pleased with the brethren there."

A Proposition to Enlarge the Advocate.

We propose to enlarge the next volume of the Church Advocate, without changing the terms, provided we can get an increase of 500 subscribers. And provided 1000 of new subscribers can be raised, between this and the first of May next, we will enlarge it, and publish it weekly, for the same price.

At the same time, we will give every travelling and stationed preacher, who will procure five or more new subscribers, with advance payment, a volume of the paper gratis.

We have over 100 ministers, who might easily raise five new subscribers each, making in all 500—the other 500 might be raised by the membership.

Revival at Mechanicsburg.

The blessed work of God is still progressing. We have not been there since our last, but we have heard from there, every week, more or less. On the 18th ult. Bro. Haifleigh wrote as follows: "This is to inform you that the work of grace is still progressing gloriously. There is no telling when or where it will stop. There seems to be more interest now than there was a week ago. There were nine out for prayers last evening, some of whom were made happy in the Lord. Some 60-odd have been converted—to God be all the glory. The congregations seem to be increasing, and seriousness and solemnity in a great measure are characterizing the same. Pray for us."

On the 20th Bro. Wm. Hinny writes: "This is to inform you that the meeting is still in progress, and in some respects increasing in interest. We have had from eight to ten out almost every night. The worst feature, for the last two nights, has been, that none were converted.

"Bros. West and Haifleigh have been here, for the most part, for the last two weeks; but both must leave to meet their appointments. If you could make it suit to be with us over next Sabbath, we should be glad. If you possibly can come, do so."

Revival at Bainbridge.

There has been a good work of grace going on among the people of Bainbridge, Lancaster county, for the last four or five weeks. It commenced about the latter end of January last, and is still in progress. On the 12th ult. Bro. Wm. H. Wagner wrote as follows:

"Inasmuch as I know that you, as well as the readers of the Church Advocate generally, feel a deep interest in the prosperity of Zion, I have thought to give you some account of our meeting, which has been in progress the last three weeks. We have protracted the meeting through much opposition, not only from the wicked, but even some who name the name of Christ: but still, amidst all the discouraging circumstances, we looked up and prayed that God would display his converting power here, as well as at Mount Joy. Last night the windows of heaven were opened, and truly we had a pentecostal shower from the presence of the Lord. Eighteen presented themselves at the altar of prayer, and many more were pricked to their hearts. Brothers Price, Sandoe, Morenzo, and Jos. Brenneman, have preached during the meeting. Last night Bro. Ross held forth. He is to preach again this evening, when we hope the Lord will display his power more abundantly. Up to this time, there have been about fourteen hopefully converted to God, and some backsliders reclaimed."

Since the above was written, we have had no particular account from there, except that the work is still going on.

Telescope Misinformed.

The Religious Telescope of February 5th, in a short article, under the caption, "A Debate on Baptism," states that they had given notice "to publish a debate between Bro. A. Owen and a minister of the Church of God," but by "persons interested they were advised not to do so, because the arguments of Bro. Owen were not correctly published—that Bro. Owen had not the privilege of correcting his speeches, as agreed upon."

This information, so far as the reasons given for delaying the matter are concerned, is wholly incorrect. Bro. Owen's arguments were just as correctly published as Bro. Keller's; and Bro. Owen had the privilege of correcting his speeches as agreed upon: But the fact of the case is, that the gentleman was not satisfied with the privilege of correcting his speeches and arguments; he wanted the privilege of re-writing and re-modeling them.—This, being no part of the agreement, was objected to. And then, because he was not permitted to do all he wanted—to amend and bolster up his arguments, by striking out and adding, ad libitum, he got offended and would not do nny thing. These are the sober facts in the case, which we can prove from the manuscript and letters in our possession.—Why, then, did not the "persons interested" give the Telescope a fair, correct and ungarbled statement of facts as they occurred?

Will the Telescope copy this information, and let the public know that Bro. Owen had the proposition for a written debate offered him, in the first place, which he declined, and preferred an oral one. Bishop Erb and ourself, by agreement, had said debate reported by Mr. Drake, Stenographer, for the use of the Church Advocate and Religions Telescope. The parties had the right of revising allowed them, with a view of furnishing extracts and making verbal corrections; but certainly not to introduce new matter, or to re-write and re-model their reported speeches.

All this was communicated to Bro. Owen by letter and otherwise, and in every respect an equal chance and privilege offered him; but, simply because he was not allowed to take advantage of his opponent, by re-modeling his speeches, he drew off, and now, for obvious reasons, seeks to forestall public opinion by misrepresentations. This is all wrong, and ought not so to be.

Our Missionary Pledge List.

The project of sending five or six missionaries to the far West, was entertained with commendable favor and zeal at our late Eldership in the fall. Two agents were appointed to canvass the entire bounds of the Eldership, and solicit aid, to support missionaries in that field.

We have now four or five suitable missionaries, ready to take appointments and enter the field, provided they can have a reasonable support. This is all they ask, and as soon as it is guaranteed to them, they are ready to go.

But, as our agents have failed to do any thing, thus far, and as the time has fully come to decide the question whether that large and inviting field shall be occupied, or still continue to be neglected and suffered to lie waste? I do hope our rich brethren, whom the Lord has blessed largely with this world's goods, will come forward at once and say, by their pledges, or otherwise, let them go, they shall be sustained. Brethren, this cause is great, and good, and urgent. How can you shut up your bowels of compassion, withhold your means, and be guiltless? "He that knoweth to do good and doth it not, to him it is sin."

Come then, dear brethren, come quickly to the help of the Lord in the West! This is the accepted time to do so. Our brethren there earnestly desire and expect it. Suffer them not to be disappointed. Suffer not the cause of God to be injured for the want of means, which it is in your power to supply. A few hundred dollars appropriated to the cause of God there, may do more good than thousands can do here. However, there are plenty of means in the Church for supplying the East and the West, if there is only a mind to give them. Others have given their hundreds, per annum, for similar purposes, why may not we also? And seeing we now have the men, let us have the means likewise. How many will respond to this appeal before our next issue?

☞ He who hates his neighbor is miserable himself, and makes all around him feel so.

COR. EDITOR'S DEPARTMENT.

SABBATH MORNING

Preaching, at Philadelphia, Feb. 2.

J. FLAKE.

Luke 14: 14.—"And thou shalt be blessed, for they cannot recompense thee, for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just."

Our blessed Lord was a Missionary while on earth. He was engaged in going to and fro through the land of Israel, from Galilee the northern part thereof—through Samaria the middle—down to Judea, which is the southern portion of the land of promise. Beyond the boundaries of Canaan he did not go himself, for he said that he was not sent except to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. That is, his personal ministry was confined to that favored land, although his disciples at his command were to "go and teach all nations, preaching the Gospel to every creature." Paul went beyond his Master as a Missionary.

In the beginning of this fourteenth chapter of Luke, we are told that our Lord went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread, on the Sabbath day. He was invited, and no doubt a number of his disciples were with him as usual. There were many gathered, so as very likely to crowd the house of the honorable man.

Our Saviour was frequently in the company of the poor, for they are always plenty every where. In this respect Gospel ministers should do likewise—go and see them in their humble abodes—converse and read and pray with them, and do them all the good you can for body and soul. On this occasion he was in the house of one of the great men of the land, and if a preacher now is thus invited, let him go, and preach the Gospel, and the same holy law of God, which he preaches to the poor.

The master of the house was a Pharisee—a number of Lawyers, and Pharisees were present. The Pharisees were a body of people among the Jews who were very orthodox, in holding not only the truth—and the whole truth—but even more, for they held the traditions of the Elders also. They were very strict in outward things—paying tithes, even of the herbs of the garden—as well as the fruits of the field. But in spiritual religion, and the fruits thereof, some were greatly deficient, having much of the form of godliness—little of the power.

In the company assembled, there was one child of affliction. A man with the Dropsy—sore disease, from which may God preserve us. It was the Sabbath day, and being among the strict observers of the law, our Saviour asked, whether it was lawful to do good on the Sabbath. We perhaps would give a quick answer to the question, but they were silent. He healed the man—teaching them, and us—that to visit the sick, the poor, in order to comfort and relieve them, is lawful on this best of days. O Saviour of men, how great was thy wisdom, and thy love.

He afterward addressed the master of the house, who was a chief man among the fraternity of the Pharisees, and who may have been a pious, and liberal man. He tells him, that when he makes a dinner or a supper, in preference to inviting his friends, and rich neighbors—he should invite the poor—the maimed—the lame—the blind. He adds the words of the text—"Thou shalt be blessed, for they cannot recompense thee, for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just."

I do not understand our Saviour to forbid the shewing hospitality and kindness to kindred and friends, even if rich—but to urge upon our minds, that the children of want and affliction have a greater claim upon us, than our prosperous friends can have. Our parlors and our tables may entertain the friendless and destitute—the widow and orphan, to whom a dinner or a supper such as we could give, would be indeed a treat which seldom comes to them.

I therefore urge it upon those who have the ability and desire to make an entertainment, to follow out literally the Master's words, in this, as well as in other respects. Go and visit the afflicted, and destitute. Take them provisions—clothing—bedding—wood—coal—or give them money to buy for themselves. And invite them to attend meeting, and bring their children to the Sabbath-school. And when you feel like making a dinner or a supper, give an invitation to these children of misfortune, and let your good things be dealt out to those to whom it may be a luxury to sit at a good table, and let your house be filled—at the risk of soiling your carpets.

And what recompense shall I have? Will I be the gainer by it? Will my business be more profitable—my crops larger—my property more valuable—my speculation and trading more sure?

Probably not so—but you may be just so much out of pocket, and these "poor, and maimed, and lame, and blind," will not recompense you. You may have just so much less when the summons comes, "Arise and depart"—when the river of death rolls before you, and you get ready to cross it as well as you may. Its waters are sometimes very cold—and the shore beyond is dim—and you cannot see who are waiting there for your coming And you are dying all the poorer, because you heeded the Saviour's words—you have distributed to the poor, the friendless—and have not heaped up, so as to die rich, as others around you do.

And then, beyond this mortal life, "the better days begin." You find that the resurrection of the just is a reality. They are gathering from every land, and a strange power urges you onward toward the goodly heritage, where a multitude clothed in white raiment are seen. You find that your garments are also clean like theirs—they sing a new song—you join therein, and feel at home among them. Some of them you have seen before in the journey—others you have heard of—some dear friends are there. Heaven is nearer to earth than many suppose—and the resurrection of the just is also near.

An Incident

In Philadelphia, February 9th.—J. F.

"See wives and husbands torn apart,
The children's cries afflict my heart."

A poor colored woman with several children, has been before the United States District Court for two or three days past, charged with being a fugitive from slavery in Maryland. The person claiming her tried to prove, that 22 years ago she escaped, when 16 or 17 years of age. Great has been the sympathy and feeling in the public mind in her behalf—threatened with being torn from husband, and children, and home, and consigned to Southern slavery, as it exists in our favored land in the year of grace 1851.

Crowds have attended the investigation before his honor Judge Kane. The Senior counsel for the poor woman is David Paul Brown, whose fame as an orator is known abroad, and whose great powers as a Lawyer, are generally engaged in such cases as this, to assist the weak and helpless. Numbers of white ladies were present, who could feel for the woes of a wife and mother, sitting in the Court with the big drops of sweat upon her face, and her little children around her. She is said to be a member among the colored Methodists in the northern part of the city.

Late last evening (Saturday) she was released by order of Judge Kane, when the crowd of colored people put her and her children in a carriage, and drew it through the streets, past my place of sojourning, with great rejoicing. They first gave David Paul Brown a few cheers, and then passed onward toward the poor woman's home, whence she was torn.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

New Testament Words.---No. 6.

ATONEMENT—According to sectarian divinity, this word means a plaster, or covering. Hence they tell us, that Christ atoned the Deity—that he transacted a kind of mercantile business, by paying a debt, which sinners owed to God—that he appeased his Father's wrath—and some tell us, that he died to reconcile the Unchangeble God to man! with many such things not named in the Scriptures. But when we turn to the "Law and to the Testimony," we find that our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ is, himself, the Atonement, the Propitiation, the Reconciliation, or the means by which sinners are reconciled to God. Hence Paul says, Rom. 5: 11. "And not only so, but we also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the Atonement." "Whom God hath set forth to be a Propitiation, through faith in his blood."—Rom. 3: 13. "And you who were sometime alienated, and enemies in your mind by wicked works, yet now hath he reconciled, in the body of his flesh through death, to present you holy, and unblameable, and unreprovable, in his sight; if ye continue in the faith grounded and settled, and be not moved away from the hope of the Gospel."—Col. 1: 21-23. "For he [Christ] is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us; having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances, for to make in himself of twain one new man, so making peace; and that he might reconcile both unto God, [not God unto both,] in one body by the cross, having slain the enmity thereby."

From the above Scriptures it appears plain that the Atonement was meant for the benefit of man—to reconcile man unto God, and not to reeoncile or change the mind of God. God is the same now as before the RECONCILER came into the world. God is love, or he had not given his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life. The sum and substance of the Atonement, according to the New Testament, appears to me to be this: Jesus Christ is the One sent to bless us, by turning us from our iniquities; he had the word of reconciliation; with him God is well pleased; he is the righteousness of God; called the Lord our righteousness. All who obey him by faith and repentance; all who receive his testimony; all who come to God through him; all who receive him as their all, find forgiveness, and have peace with God through Christ the Atonement, whom they receive; such are restored to favor, being accepted in the Beloved, and complete in him. Such are made heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ. In Christ, our glorious Atonement, there is a sufficiency for each, for all, and forevemore. All who come to God through him; all who obey him in all things, have not only the promise of this life, but that which is to come; including eternal salvation. The notion that some people have, of receiving something from Christ, instead of receiving Christ himself, the Hope of glory, will never do to rest upon. Instead of being saved by the merits of Christ, or the atonement of Christ, those who believe are saved by Christ, in whom all fulness dwells.

Oh! how glorious does our Lord Jesus Christ appear, when we view him as the Propitiation, the Reconciliation, standing between God and man, to make peace. And, then, His terms of peace, what are they? Repentance toward God, and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, are the only terms which God requires of men, in order to be restored to his favor. This is plain from 2d Cor. 5: 18-20.—"And all things are of God, who hath RECONCILED us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation; to wit, that God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation. Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us; we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God." From the above we may learn, that God is now in Christ reconciling the world unto himself—not reconciling himself unto the world—not paying himself a DEBT which sinners owed him, called making an atonement, or atoning the Deity! But reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto those who believe in Jesus, and receive him as the Lord their righteousness.

Yours truly,
WM. JOHNSTON.

Zion's Joy and King.

"Let the children of Zion be joyful in their King."—Psa. 149: 2.

IT appears marvellously strange and hard to be accounted for, that a religion coming from God out of Heaven, founded on the Rock of Eternal Ages, and purporting to make men and women happy, should almost universally be considered in the eyes and estimation of the world, as a source of gloomy melancholy, and as destructive of all personal and social comfort. But, perhaps, after all, with a fair glance and proper investigation, it may be easily comprehended, to the full and determinate satisfaction of all who desire to be the subjects of Divine grace; "For a way-faring man, though a fool, need not err therein." Religion calls men from the pleasures of sin, and promises them far superior and sublimer pleasures in its stead. But unregenerated men, knowing nothing of spiritual joy, have no idea that any such thing exists; whereas the joys which they are to sacrafice, have afforded them many a delicious feast. Hence, till through faith in the Divine records, they feel the bitterness of sin, or taste the felicity of God's chosen, they will and must suppose that they are called to relinquish what is substantial and to grasp a shadow. But the Saints of old have invariably attested that religion's ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are paths of peace; and David, who was no incompetent judge of this matter, exhorts every subject of the Redeemer's kingdom to rejoice. "Let the children of Zion be joyful in their King." Jesus says, "Rejoice with exceeding joy, for great is your reward in Heaven."

I shall here endeavor to explain this exhortation. "Who are the children of Zion's King?" Not any by nature, seeing we are all children of wrath. Not any by profession, seeing they are children of disobedience. Nor yet by education, since it is evidently beyond the power of man to convey to others such principles and dispositions as are necessary to bring them into that near relation to the Church of God. We must, then, be born from above, through the influence of God's word and Holy Spirit; and till a supernatural change has been wrought on all the faculties of our souls by God himself, whatever we may profess or pretend to be, we are beyond the shadow of a doubt, aliens to the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenant of promise, living without God and a sure hope in the world. Who is their King? It is to Christ alone that this precious name belongs. He is, indeed, the King of all the earth, and has the whole creation under his control and at his command. But, in this sense of the word, many are his subjects who despise his person, hate his government, and reject his holy counsel; whereas, over Zion he reigns by the most cordial consent of all his people, there not being so much as one who does not know him, love him, serve him, and desire the very thoughts of his heart to be subjected to his Divine Law. On the other hand, he affords them his protection, supplies all their wants, and makes them victorious over all their enemies.

What is their bound n duty towards him! It is not only sufficient that they yield obedience to his will, as slaves to a tyrant, whom they fear, but they must also love his person and appearance, delight in his commands, be zealous for his glory, and rely humbly on his care and protection; in a word, they must ever rejoice in him. This is essential to the Christian character; and if we attain not to this spirit, we are certainly more inexcusable than the Jews, and obnoxious to a heavier and most fearful and inevitable doom. We say not, indeed, that the children of Zion are never to mourn; for mourning is both introductory to joy and highly consistent with it. Yea, it is even a very necessary ingredient to that joy which we ought ever to feel in the contemplation of Christ's character and offices; and the more fervently we love him, the more deeply shall we lament that our love and joy are so disproportioned to his worth.

Who is the object in whom we are commanded to rejoice? This is none other than our adorable Emanuel, who combines in himself all the perfections of the God-head, and all the excellencies of the most spotless manhood. Moreover, the love he has manifested towards his subjects, is such as infinitely surpasses our highest conceptions. He assumed our nature and died for us, while we were in actual rebellion against him. And what a delightful sway does he exercise over them! So light and easy is his yoke, that there is not one of his laws, no, not one, which may not very readily be summed up in this word, be happy. What rewards, too, does he bestow, not on a few of his favorites only, but on all his subjects. There is not one of them whom he does not make a king like unto himself, and place upon a throne like unto that on which he himself is seated at the right hand of God the Father. Shall we, then, abruptly refuse to rejoice, with exceeding joy, in such a King as this?

In conclusion of this communication, I would merely add a few words of admonition and caution to those who are going on their way rejoicing. There is, therefore, now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For to be carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin, but the spirit is life because of righteousness. Dearly beloved, take care that you make Christ, and not your frames or feelings, the object and ground of your joy. And guard against pride, self-confidence, and sin of whatever kind, knowing that such things will most assuredly vitiate and destroy all the happiness of the immortal and never-dying soul. David's advice must ever be attended to: "Rejoice with fear and trembling." For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor thiugs to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord—Priest and King.

Whom on earth but thee have I?
Who but thee for me would die?
Who can every case relieve,
Who can every blessing give.
Who can every sickness heal;
Who can mysteries reveal;
When impending storms appear,
Who can save or who can cheer.
Who can re-create the heart;
Who can life and bliss impart;
Whom have I in Heaven but thee?
Who on earth compared can be?

I remain yours, in the kingdom and patience of our Lord Jesus Christ,

SAMUEL M. HOOVER.

Carlisle, Pa., Feb. 3, 1851.

Leaves toru from the Scrap-book of Thought.

BY JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, JR.

Leaf the Fourteenth.

FATE.

THAT great demi-god of France, Napoleon, whose real religious belief was indefinable—at times Catholic, Mahommedan, and Atheistical—always ascribed in the course of his battles and victories, a certain degree of influence to Fate. His name has become almost synonymous with an expressed embodiment of its mysterious operations. Christianity recognizes a Providence alone in the disposal of human affairs, and easily discovers the finger of the Great I Am in the career and death of that wonderful man. But the mind is sometimes diverted by speculations, and it wanders unrestrained through theories and thoughts, delighted with mysteries and astonished at the apparent workings of Destiny and Fate. When thus abstractedly occupied, we are unconsciously astounded at the power of God—the threads of the Fates and the wheels of Destiny are under His Almighty guidance. Whatever strange coincidences in circumstances, facts in history, and truths in Nature, by admiring them, we are only adding credit to the greatness of His Omnipotence, and not the power of a blind deity of ancient paganism. Bonaparte was a profound genius, a mighty Cæsar, a powerful monarch,—but he was merely a play-thing of the Almighty—a gilded puppet, dangled on this stage of action by the Eternal, to exhibit His greatness and accomplish His ends. He was a living, breathing puppet, willingly becoming what he was, in order to gratify his inordinate ambition.

The supposition of Fate is imaginative and poetical. In truth, it originated in the "vain imaginings" and evil fancies of the antediluvians. But how much more truly poetical is the just idea of an invisible Divinity—an Omniscient and Omnipresent God who rules with mercy and judges with justice—who holds the globe in the hollow of his hand, and promises eternal bliss to the righteous creatures of his will. The Poetry of Divine inspiration shall resound through the courts of Paradise when the inventions of man are obsolete, and the world with its creatures are passed away. How truly beautiful, how rapturously poetic the schemes of Creation, Redemption and perpetual bliss! Away with the hob-goblin incantations of guilty dreamers—aside with the dark mysterious broodings and forebodings of a fabled Fate—among whose fitful vagaries, glooms and uncertainties, thousands have lost themselves—wandering through the terrible gate of Death in hopelessness and despair!

When the bloody hero of Gaul "submitted himself to the decrees of Fate," on the rocky island of his exile, he—blind creature!—was humbling his haughty crest to GOD!

Delighted with the shadowy marvellousness of the thing—or theory—many minds almost unconsciously approach its intracies, until entranced by the hallucination of virtual scepticism, they forget the brighter teachings of Reason, and perish without hope.

Let us contemplate the events of the past as we should. God is the supreme merciful director of Man's wayward courses—free agents as we are;—He causes our wickednesses to redound to our best advantage; if we are crushed it is because of our own faults—our own rebelliousness. There is no hideous embodiment of Fate—no pre-determining divinity—no Chance—"God is God, and there is no other."

Baltimore, Md., 1851.

Dignity of Preachers.

ALTHOUGH, Mr. Editor, preachers of a doctrine like that of the Gospel of the Messiah, should not presume to hold themselves in a very high degree above their fellow-men, as their superiors, yet there exists a necessity for them to maintain a certain dignity; such conduct and character as will not come on a level with the sayings, doings and fashions of the worldly-minded around them; and to the religious his deportment should be so exalted and exemplary, that to see him would be admonition; to hear him speak, edification; and to be with and about him, a desire would naturally awake in their hearts to be like him. But to be so requires judgment, resolution and much love to God and interest for the salvation of others.

The idea of a watchman on the walls of Zion pre-supposes him to be above all other men, and that to see him it is necessary for them to look up; but when he degrades himself from his elevation, by words or actions, they find him on a level with, and sometimes beneath themselves. O what a fall there is then! Loose, trifling, jesting conversation; laughing at the fooleries around him; unfair dealings; meanness or a miserly habit; greediness after the world; pride in dress; intemperance or gluttony in eating, especially at other people's tables; drinking wine or other fermented, malt or spirituous liquors; lounging about stores, work-shops, &c., idling away the hours that should be devoted to reading, study and prayer; chewing and smoking tobacco, till the breath becomes as fetid as a chimney; thus polluting the body, degrading the mind, insulting the Holy Spirit, who seeks to dwell in the man, offending those around him who loathe the filthy practice, debilitating the organic system, and bringing on disease and premature death; all or any of these things debase the preacher, and destroy his influence: and to this many may attribute their ill success in the work of the ministry. O how can the careless preacher expect to stand in the great day of Judgment! ZETHAR.

Hypocrisy.

A TRANSPARENT hypocrite would be a desideratum. Such a person would be a model by which to judge others. But unfortunately for our subject, none make such a profession. It is extremely difficult to form a true idea of something we have never seen. It may require much arduous toil to acquire only a faint and vague notion of it by description, whereas one glance at it, will give a full and clear conception of it. To illustrate the thought, suppose a person had never seen or heard of a ship, any attempt to describe it by words would fail: bring to your aid an engraving of it, and you add greatly to the plainness of your explanations: now, bring forth the object spoken of, and an impression of it is conveyed to his sensorium that eclipses all previous illustration. Although the hypocrite may deceive men, God is not mocked: He sees, and will punish.

HYPOCRISY has a compound meaning embraced in the words, simulation and dissimulation.

I. SIMULATION. This signifies the assumption of a false character. Nothing is more difficult than to "Assume a virtue though you have it not;"

yet the attempt is daily made, and signally fails. Simulation insinuates its powers upon every person. It is very natural to try to influence others to think better of us than we really deserve. It is quite congenial to our natures. And how frequently when merit is given to us that we deserve not, we tacitly acquiesce, as if there was truth in the decision. This is simulation.

But simulation pervades both the moral and religious world. Piety is often assumed when the heart is dark, depraved, deceitful. And too often is this garb usurped for base and intriguing ends. But in the end it will be discerned, and shame will cover the deceiver. In the meantime much injury may have been done. The injury may be temporal and eternal: temporally he may ruin friends and foes, and precipitately blast his earthly reputation, while he eternally darkens his hopes of future joy. The irreligious should remember that we can be hypocritical in other matters, aside from religion, and the guilty will be punished.

II. DISSIMULATION. This denotes the concealment of the true character. Among politicians this is a common vice, and quite too prevalent a sin in all classes of society. Persons showing their true character at all times are among the few. It appears to be part of the world's wisdom to deceive each other, and the one most adroit in concealing faults, is precisely up to the times. But let purity of motive influence men to act honestly, and with principle, and although they may be sneered at for their frankness, yet steady and certain success will eventually be their reward.—Hence we need less dissimulation, and more disinterestedness of purpose in society. Most persons are only friendly to you, if they can make you a profitable subject. And the true reason of this deception is, men know each other, and fear to act with kind intentions, because of this hiding of the real character. They know not who is true and pure, but that sterling integrity is a rare gem. This shows the disadvantages of acting a deceptive part. For utter ruin will event to those dishonest in their dealings and actions. God sees aright, and his wisdom and goodness will reward the meritorious, but his wrath will punish with condign infamy and anguish those guilty of mid-night hypocrisy and noon-day deceit.

G. R.

Elizabethtown, Pa., Feb. 3, 1851.

Answers to the Eastern Queries.

WOOSTER, Ohio, Feb. 7, 1851.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

SEEING in the 18th number of the Advocate that brother Rockafellow, of Mechanicsburg, and many others in the East, are anxious to know the object of a resolution, passed by the late Eldership of the Church of God in Ohio, touching the practice of receiving unbaptized persons into the Church, I have, as a friend, at least, to the resolution, ventured to take up my pen to give those brethren the desired satisfaction. There are, it appears, three queries which have arisen in brother R.'s mind, as to the object of this resolution.

1st. Is it to bring about a uniformity of action throughout the Churches, or is it unscriptural to receive unbaptized persons into the Church? In answer to this two-fold question I would say,

1st. That one object of the resolution is to bring about a uniformity of practice in this important matter: for as there is but one Lord, one faith, and one baptism, there can be but one proper practice.

2d. That it is contrary to the law of Christ to receive unbaptized persons into the Church.

2d. Do they hold that baptism is the door into the Church, after the manner of some?

I answer no. Christ is the door. Men and women become members of the kingdom or Church general, by virtue of a spiritual birth. Baptism is an ordinance in the kingdom; consequently, they must first come in: but there remains no room here for a question, whether they should be fellowshipped or received into local membership, before or without baptism; from the fact, that baptism is the very next duty commanded. Hence we hear Ananias say to Paul, "Why tarriest thou? Arise and be baptized"—not go up to Jerusalem and unite with the Church. Ananias understood the commission better than all that comes to. Hence he says, "Arise and be baptized;" and afterwards Paul made application to be received into the Church at Jerusalem.

3d. If it be unscriptural to receive unbaptized persons into the Church, is it also wrong to fellowship them in all the other ordinances of the Church? Answer—If baptism is the first duty commanded upon a profession of faith, which will not be denied by any, then I ask, how can they do anything to the omission of that duty, and do right? And how dare we teach anything else, either by precept or otherwise? And do we not at least encourage them, if not teach them to be disobedient, when we receive them or fellowship them in all the ordinances unbaptized?

But, if brother R., or some one of the good brethren in the East, or some one else on that side of the house, will be so kind as to assume the position that it is Scriptural to receive persons into the Church before they are baptized, and then point out the Gospel order, and show us where and when baptism should be attended to,—that is, where it has its place among the duties of local Church members,—then, I think, we shall be better prepared to say how far we should fellowship them.

Union of sentiment, feeling and practice is highly important and desirable in the Church of God. Yours in love,

ARCHIBALD MEGREW.

DOINGS OF THE West Penn'a Standing Committee.

THE Committee met, according to appointment, in the Bethel in Irvin township, Venango county, Pa., the third Saturday of February, 1851.

Whereas there has nothing been heard officially from Pittsburg, or elsewhere, against brother Dobson, therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee go to Pittsburg, and inquire into the nature of the case, as soon as possible.

Brother Richmond was heard from.

Whereas brother Richmond has given satisfaction for not filling his engagements with the West Pennsylvania Eldership, therefore,

Resolved, That he be excused, and have his license renewed.

Revival News.

DEAR BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

THIS is to inform you and the readers of the Advocate, that I commenced a protracted meeting at Siddenstown, York county, Pa., on Saturday, the first of February, which has continued ever since.

About 20 have already embraced religion, and there are still many more inquiring the way. From 12 to 18 are forward night and day as subjects of prayer, mostly heads of families. Brothers Moses M. Utley and James F. Machlan are my right-hand men in the ministry. May the Lord continue to work on, until this little city becomes noted for piety, is my sincere prayer to God. Pray for us all—especially for me, that I may be humble and faithful before God, while I may live.

JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

Letter on the Wing.--No. 1.

Third Series.

Departure—Arrival at Uniontown—Meeting at Frizelleburg—Persevering mourners—Number of converts—Aversion to public collections—Orthography of the name of Frizelleburg—Meeting at Oregon—Brethren there—Origin of name—Middletown—Change of name—Converts there—Meeting at Uniontown—Amount collected—Sickness and death—Prospects on the Circuit—New Meeting-house.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

As I have always been pleased with descriptive letters of travel, and as I think others may be like me in this particular, I now commence my third series of Letters on the Wing, and shall continue them during my travels this year, if the Lord permit.

On the 24th I left home for Uniontown, (Carroll county, Md.) and the surrounding neighborhoods, to collect Missionary funds. On reaching Uniontown I learned that a Protracted Meeting was commencing at Frizelleburg, and on that account my appointment (sent on before) was not published. I then repaired to Frizelleburg, where I found Elders J. C. Owens, T. H. Deshiri, A. Appler, and B. Fleagle. This was on Sabbath morning, and the house was crowded with an attentive audience. The meeting was continued morning and night for near two weeks, and resulted in the conversion of about six persons and the reviving of several luke-warm professors. I was astonished to see two things there: 1. How well the people turned out on week-day mornings; and 2. How persevering the mourners were when they once came forward to seek the Lord. A number of them declared they would not give up or leave the house until they found peace, like Jacob of old; and upon laboring on a while longer with them, they obtained the desire of their hearts. At this place, as also at Uniontown, as you know, the brethren are averse to the plan of lifting public collections for religious purposes, therefore, all I could do at the meetings was to announce my mission, and invite those who felt disposed to give, to do so after meeting. Some did so; others did not when I made a personal appeal; but many gave nothing. The aversion to public collections discouraged me very much in the work. The preaching brethren who first preached in those places must bear the blame for the views the brethren have on this subject. It is a strange notion, I think, to refuse to ask of our neighbors some of their means to aid in the cause of religion, especially in an age of light and liberty like ours. After spending over a week here very agreeably among the brethren, I left for Oregon, a settlement five miles North-west of Frizelleburg: The founder of this village wrote his name Frizelle; so it ought to be written Frizelleburg.

I had an appointment at Oregon Schoolhouse—good turn-out of people—spoke on the spread of the Gospel, Bishop Hughes' late lecture on Protestantism, and the calls for missionaries in the West—collections small—called on the Hollenberrys' and Garners', and was much pleased with their very kind treatment. They all gave something. This place got its name during the agitation of the Oregon boundary question some years ago, on discovering a line stone with the letter O cut on it, which the surveyor decided must stand for Oregon.

I next visited Middletown, a village about two miles west of Uniontown, (its former name, Muttontown, having been abandoned, and Middletown adopted.) Here the Applers' live. I stopped with them, and was kindly treated. In this neighborhood there is a considerable number of young converts; and I was pleased to see that some of the older converts were making themselves useful among them.

On last Sabbath morning I came into Uniontown, where I preached twice, and left on Monday for home. The whole amount collected was only about eight dollars. I attribute my poor success on this journey to the aversion to the public collection plan; and hope to do better at other places, when I go out again.

I left brother Abraham Appler sick in bed; and brother Benjamin Fleagle buried one of his little boys on the 8th. Owing to the affliction of his child, he and his wife were deprived from the privilege of attending the protracted meeting.

I think, from present appearances, that there are prospects of doing much good on the whole of the Uniontown Circuit, if the two preachers can hit upon a plan of co-operation agreeable to both in point of support, and according to the demands of the old appointments and missionary grounds. With a becoming zeal and industry on the part of both, I feel confident they will be amply rewarded before the year ends.

I did not stop to preach at Carrollton, for a particular reason; but understand the Church there is soliciting contributions towards building a Meeting-house, about a mile above Sandy Mount, on the Westminster road, and four miles south of that city. Westminster is now an incorporated city.

J. F. WEISHAMPEL, Senior.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 15, 1351.

Letter from Bro. Wm. Davis.

Johnstown, Pa., Feb. 4, 1851.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I drop a few lines for the Advocate, to let you and the brethren know how we are getting along in West Pennsylvania.

After I returned from the Eldership, brother Glenn and myself appointed three protracted meetings. One at Black Lick Furnace; one at the Brush Valley Bethel, and one at the Grass-hill Bethel.

The meeting at Black Lick was not as good as we would like to have seen it. But prospects are better since that.

We commenced the meeting at Brush Valley on Christmas. We truly had a heavenly time. On the first evening of the meeting the powers of darkness gave way, and some souls presented themselves before the Lord. On the whole, the meeting resulted in the best of consequences. In all, there were about 12 or 13 happily converted to God. The Church of God here is on the wings of love and progress.

We commenced the meeting at Grass-hill on New Year's Day. Here matters appeared rather hard. The meeting did not go off as well as we would like to have seen. Notwithstanding, amidst all discouragements, the Lord owned and blessed our labors to some degree. Some few souls presented themselves to the Lord. O! that the Lord would continue to awaken souls in this place. Brethren in the Lord, pray for me, that I may speak as I ought, and rightly divide the word of truth, as it is in Christ Jesus.

Yours, in Gospel bonds,

WM. DAVIS.

Letter from Bro. David Neidigh.

Reedsburg, Wayne Co., Ohio, Jan. 28, 1851.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I would again resume my pen to drop a few lines for the columns of the Church Advocate, and its readers in general. "As cold water is to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

According to previous appointment, brother Neil commenced a protracted meeting with the Church of God on the 28th of December, in the Bethel one and a half miles west of Reedsburg, where our late Camp-meeting was held. This meeting was continued some days. There was plain and pointed preaching. It took some hard labor, before the ark of the covenant began to move. On New Year's day the great Head of the Church visited his people with the out-pouring of his Spirit. The word of God and the prayers of his people, began to find way to the hearts of the people, and began to work as doth leaven among meal. At this meeting some seven or eight were hopefully converted to God, and a number that had almost gone down the cold streams of Babylon, were revived, and now are singing the songs of Zion again. Oh! may the Great Head of the Church keep them all faithful, is my prayer.

Another meeting was held, according to previous appointment, in Blooming Grove township, Richland county, commencing on the 11th of January. This meeting was preceded with a protracted prayer-meeting, and the result of the meeting was, some twelve, if I have been rightly informed, were hopefully converted to God, and one was buried with Christ in baptism, according to the ancient custom or Apostolic order. O! may the Great Shepherd and Bishop of their souls keep them all faithful, and preserve them from every evil, is my prayer.

Yours, &c., DAVID NEIDIGH, Jr.

Letter from Bro. A. Megrew.

Wooster, Ohio, Feb. 7, 1851.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I have been assisting some of the brethren in holding some special meetings. One at Union. There has been a gracious work there. Also, at Crooked Run. I have just returned from there. The meeting was yet in progress, and prospects very flattering. There were from 10 to 16 forward of a night seeking the Lord in prayer. There has also been a gracious work at the Brick Meeting-house, near Reedsburg. The preachers in charge will, I trust, give the particulars.

We are behind the times in Wooster. We held one protracted meeting. Bro. Howard done the preaching, but there was no visible good done, though some excellent preaching. Various are the opinions as to the cause of no revival here. The Lord probably only knows the primary cause. However, we intend to try again. To-morrow we commence another effort. Pray for us, and if we have any good news resulting from our efforts, we will give it to you. Yours as ever,

A. MEGREW.

P. S.—I am quite at a loss to know how to make my arrangements for the West—whether as a missionary, or otherwise. I am in suspense on this subject. Will you not try to relieve my mind soon, one way or the other?

A. M.

Letter from Bro. Geo. Diltz.

Woodberry, Bedford Co., Pa., Feb. 11, 1851.

Brother Winerdenner:—

At the request of brother Kyle, I will try to give some information to the readers of the Advocate of the result of the several protracted meetings held by brother Kyle on his circuit this winter.

The first was held at Martinsburg, of which you have an account already. This meeting was the means of saving a few precious souls from their sins, and of reviving the Church in that place.

Another protracted meeting was held at Sarah Furnace. The means and efforts put forth at this meeting caused considerable excitement among the people, and a number professed religion.

Another meeting was held at Bloomfield Furnace. This was quite an interesting meeting. There were as high as ten and eleven out to be prayed for, almost every night, for two weeks. There were a goodly number converted at this place, and a small Church of God erected. The converts of this meeting have as yet not all made up their minds to join. Perhaps they are afraid of persecution, if they would follow the Lord fully.

Another was held in Stonerook's Schoolhouse, at the head of Clover Creek. In this place brother Lininger preached, when he first operated in the Cove; and the people in that neighborhood thought very well of him and his preaching. I think there might have been a Church started in that place years ago, were it not for the blind leaders of the blind, who oppose the right ways of the Lord. But at the late meeting held by brother Kyle, there were a great many hearts affected, and almost persuaded to become Christians. Four were converted and two baptized. There will be one or two more baptized shortly. I believe if that place is well supplied with preaching, that ignorance and superstition will have to give way, and true religion be established before many years more.

The Church at Woodberry is in harmony and union at this time, and still increasing, a little, now and then. There were two baptized at this place, and five added to the Church, a few weeks ago. We will have a protracted meeting here some time in March, and we are expecting a good time. Pray for us.

Yours, &c., GEO. DILTZ.

Letter from Bro. David Neidigh.

Reedsburg, Wayne Co., Ohio, Jan. 29, 1851.

Brother Winebrenner:—

I would again resume my pen and drop some good news for the columns of the Church Advocate.

According to previous appointment, I commenced a protracted meeting, on the 18th of January, three miles north of Loudenville, Ashland county. This was a new place, and the doctrine of the Church of God was also something new to some of the people. Bros. James Johnston, J. J. Bear, and myself, held this meeting. It took some hard labor till we got the ice broke. This meeting was continued eight days. Four persons professed a saving faith in Christ Jesus our Lord, and a number have again been revived, and are now happy on their way to the good world. During this meeting three were buried with their Living Head in baptism. According to previous notice, on Lord's-day, the 26th, the people came to hear what the Church of God believed in reference to Church government: when we told them,

1st. That God had but one Church or kingdom.

2d. That all those that were begotten by the word and Spirit of God, are members of the Church of God.

3d. That God had given her a name above every other name.

4th. That God gives his children a name at the time of their birth.

5th. That any given number of believers united for the worship of God, form a Church of God, in any city, town or country.

6th. That she has a discipline, and a perfect one, the Word of God.

7th. That she holds to the belief and practice of three ordinances, viz: believers' baptism by immersion, the washing of the saints' feet, and the Lord's Supper, in the night.

Oh! may the good Lord hasten on the happy period when all unhappy divisions may be done away, is my prayer.

Yours truly, in the bonds of love,

DAVID NEIDIGH, Jr.

Letter from Bro. A. B. Slyter.

Gaines, Michigan, Jan. 29, 1851.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

I embrace the present time to inform you that we commenced our watch-night meeting with the Church in West Gaines on the last Saturday of December. The meeting continued on till a week from the next Sabbath, during which time there were nine converted, one baptized, and six united in fellowship. The people of God were much revived. We have some good times in this Western land. I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for I know it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.

I here wish to relate the death of my mother. She died at her residence in St. Joseph's Co., Michigan, August 3d, 1850, aged 59 years, 11 months and 29 days. She departed in the triumphs of living faith. She was a member of the M. E. Church about 37 years. She left a husband and seven children, and many friends, to mourn her loss; but we trust our loss is her gain.

My Post-office address is Cuba, Kent county, Michigan. Yours, in love and respect,

A. B. SLYTER.

OBITUARY OF Sister REBECCA WISE.

Died, on the 18th ult., at Shiremanstown, Cumberland county, Pa., after a short illness, Rebecca Wise, aged 29 years, 3 months and 10 days.

Sister Wise embraced religion about eight years ago, and after which she united with the Church of God, of which she remained a pious and devoted member until death ended her earthly pilgrimage. She was left a widow about three years ago, by the death of brother Aaron Wise.

About two weeks ago, she attended the meeting now in progress in this place. How uncertain is human life! I visited her a few days before she died. She seemed to be patient and resigned to her lot. Her mind was peaceful and calm, and I am told fell asleep with a smile on her countenance. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

J. HAIFLEIGH.

Mechanicsburg, Pa., Feb. 21, 1851.

OBITUARY OF Sister MARY WINGERT.

Died, in Landisburg, Pa., February 2d, 1851, Sister Mary Wingert, consort of Elder Henry Wingert, aged 59 years, 9 months and 29 days.

Sister Wingert was one of the fairest specimens of ransomed humanity. She was born in the town of Lebanon, Lebanon county, Pa., and at an early age intermarried with Henry Wingert. In that state she endeavored to fulfil her duty to him who was to share with her the ills and joys of life, soon endearing herself, by her propriety of life, her meekness and and forbearance—her mild and engaging disposition being all that could be wished for in the wife, and all that could be hoped for in the woman.

She embraced the Saviour in the year A. D. 1825, and soon after was buried with Christ in baptism. From that period until her death, she maintained the honor of God and the Christian name unsullied. She died, after a lingering illness, in the triumphs of faith, leaving seven sons and four daughters to mourn her loss.

The tidings of her death will send an aching thrill to many a heart, and occasion a void in the social sphere which will be long and sensibly felt. But to her surviving partner, and children, and friends, it is a source of consolation to know, that she met the monster with firmness, conscious of a fearless innocence and hopeful of a brighter resurrection, when she shall gain eternal life and lose all sense of pain.

Sister Wingert's remains were interred in the borough cemetery, and a discourse delivered in the Bethel by the writer of the above, from Psa. 39: 4. J. H. HURLEY.

Landisburg, Feb. 17, 1851.

Baptismal Hymn.

I

In the writings of the Gospel an ordinance we find,
And in the third of Matthew this ordinance enjoined;
Enjoined on all believers who witness, like the Son,
Who came and was baptized by his forerunner John.

II

Not by the river Jordan, but in the rolling stream,
Stood John the Baptist, dipping, when he baptized the Lamb:
Our ever-blessed Jesus out of the water came,
To show that we must follow and pattern after him.

III

There were infants brought to Jesus—they were for him to bless;
And all that Jesus blessed, they shall enjoy his rest:
Then come, ye tender parents, and bring your babes along,
Not for to have them sprinkled, for Jesus sprinkled none.

IV

You have read the third of Matthew, go, read it o'er again,
And you'll find there's none baptized but did repentance bring;
And if you'll follow Jesus, come be immersed like him,
For as long as you neglect it, to you it is a sin.

V

'Tis down into the water that we young converts go,
To serve our Lord and Master in righteous acts below;
We lay our mortal bodies beneath the yielding wave,
An emblem of our Saviour when he lay in his grave.

VI

This ordinance of Jesus, it is so firm and strong,
Hell cannot overthrow it, though it has strove so long;
For Jesus and his kingdom shall stand forever sure;
But the anti-christian powers they never can endure.

JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Seventh-day Baptists.—The Seventh-day Baptists are again petitioning the Legislature for the repeal of the act of April 22, 1794, which interferes with their religious views of the proper observance of the Sabbath. They are very numerous in Lancaster, York, Adams, Franklin and some other counties. As the law compels them to observe the first day of the week, and their consciences the "seventh, which is the Sabbath of the Lord," they complain, as they think, justly, of the burthen imposed upon them.—Journal.

Arrival of the Africa, and Safety of the Atlantic.—The Africa, from Europe, arrived at New York on the 15th ult., bringing intelligence of the safety of the Atlantic.—The machinery of the Atlantic was disabled in a gale on the 7th day out, and she was finally obliged to put back to Europe. She anchored in Cork harbor on the 22d of January, passengers and cargo all safe.

Daniel Webster.—The second Municipality, New Orleans, have voted $2,500 as a retaining fee to Daniel Webster, to secure his services in maintaining the rights of the city to the estate of the late John McDonough.

Banks.—The Banker's Magazine gives the annexed statement of the Banks in the United States:

States.	No. of Banks.	Capital.
Maine,	35	$3,548,000
New Hampshire,	22	2,205,000
Vermont,	25	1,225,000
Massachusetts,	130	38,260,000
Rhode Island,	63	11,179,872
Connecticut,	42	10,073,101
New York,	195	48,976,863
Delaware,	9	1,441,000
Louisiana,	5	16,600,000
New Jersey,	26	3,754,000
Pennsylvania,	58	18,609,781
Georgia,	17	5,829,215
Maryland,	24	9,052,873
Virginia,	35	9,713,100
North Carolina,	19	3,650,000
South Carolina,	14	11,431,123
District of Columbia,	4	1,182,360
Mississippi,	1	100,000
Ohio,	57	7,427,170
Kentucky,	26	10,180,000
Alabama,	2	2,000,000
Indiana,	13	2,082,910
Tennessee,	21	8,165,197
Missouri,	6	1,208,751
Wisconsin,	1	225,000
Iowa,	1	200,000
Texas,	1	300,000
Michigan,	6	762,090
Total,	865	$226,902,222

The World's Exhibition.—The London Times calls upon the citizens of London to set their houses in order for the reception of visitors to the Fair. The number out of the Kingdom, it supposes, may reach one million. 10,000 are to be there from Vienna alone, and of the 28,000,000 composing the British realm, London excepted, 1,000,000 will no doubt be there. The Times thinks that self-interest will take care of the feeding and sleeping, and it warns strangers in advance of long bills and extra fees. Two millions of persons suddenly added to the two millions of population which London possesses of its own, will certainly make the cost of board and lodging run up to a high figure. Visitors, therefore, had better see that their purses are well filled, and take care of them while there, for the Fair will be a splendid harvest for pick-pockets from all parts of the world.

Pennsylvania Railroad.—The Annual Report of the Board of Directers of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, has just been submitted to the stockholders. It comprises the period between October 1, 1849, and December 31, 1850. The receipts of the company on account of the capital stock, were $5,822,210. The disbursements, $5,095,496. Balance, $726,663. Amount of subscriptions yet to be collected, $1,013,640. Thus the availing means of the company for the prosecution of the work, amount to $1,740,303. The Eastern Division of the road has been completed to the Tyrone Forges, and in a manner entirely satisfactory to the Board.

Cost of Intemperance.—It is estimated that the annual cost of intemperance is, in France, $260,000,000; in Great Britain, $195,000,000; in Sweden, $65,000,000; in the United States, $40,000,000; and all this in addition to the cost of prisons, police, asylums, work-houses, &c., which are rendered necessary by intoxicating drinks.

☞ The Senate of Illinois, on the 14th ult., passed a homestead exemption bill, exempting $1,000 worth of real estate from seizure and sale under execution.

☞ The following list is said to exhibit correctly the order in which the several States stand in point of population, according to the present census;—1 New York, 2 Pennsylvania, 3 Ohio, 4 Virginia, 5 Indiana, 6 Tennessee, 7 Kentucky, 8 Massachusetts, 9 Georgia, 10 North Carolina, 11 Illinois, 12 Alabama, 13 Missouri, 14 South Carolina, 15 Maine, 16 Mississippi, 17 Maryland, 18 Louisiana, 19 New Jersey, 20 Michigan, 21 Connecticut, 22 New Hampshire, 23 Vermont, 24 Wisconsin, 25 Arkansas, 26 Texas, 27 Iowa, 28 California, 29 Rhode Island, 30 Delaware, 31 Florida.

The Gospel for China.—As the Chinese Testament, the new version, is now ready for publication, the Board of the American Bible Society has ordered, that of the $10,000 pledged to China, $1000 be paid as soon as practicable to the American Board of Foreign missions; $1000 to the Protestant Episcopal Board; 1000 dollars to the Presbyterian Board, and 1600 dollars to the Methodist Episcopal Board, to aid their respective missionaries in circulating said Testament in China. Further payments will be made as fast as the means of the treasury will allow.

New Era in New York.—A new era in New York began on Sunday of last week.—Mayor Kingsland has issued an order that the groggeries of every character and description should for the future be closed on the Sabbath, and also an order prohibiting the encumbering of Broadway with public hacks on the stands on the Sabbath.—Should the law be fully enforced against the grog-sellers, the fines will be an immense revenue. There are in the city about six thousand groggeries.—N. Y. Record.

Steamships.—Congress is now almost inundated with applications for new lines of steamships. Proposals for the establishment of eight new lines have already been presented, viz:—One from San Francisco to Canton via the Sandwich Islands; lines from Philadelphia to Liverpool, Rio de Janeiro and to Antwerp; one from Norfolk to Gibraltar; one from Baltimore and Norfolk to the African coast; one from New Orleans to Vera Cruz, touching at the mouth of the Coatzacualco; and, finally, one from Tehuantepec to San Francisco.

The Slave Trade.—The official returns made to the Foreign Office in London, show that from the year 1840, to the year 1848, inclusive, 594 vessels, containing 37,824 slaves, were captured by the British squadron, and 556 of them condemned. It has been estimated by the English statician McQueen, that the loss sustained by slave-traders in consequence of the captures or presence of African cruisers, from the year 1800 to 1847, was £30,240,000.

Advance of Two Millions by the Treasury.—The amount of uncoined gold dust and bullion now in the Mint at Philadelphia, deposited by Banks and individuals, somewhat exceeds six millions of dollars, which will, with the increased capabilities of that establishment, be converted into coin at the rate of 200,000 dollars per day.

☞ Capt. Erickson is now engaged in producing a steam carriage for use upon plank roads, by which immense loads may be transported at a good speed with a small cost.

The Glass Palace.—It is stated by a person writing from London to the New York Journal of Commerce, that a fee of ten shillings is now charged for admission to the mammoth glass edifice in Hyde Park, and that when finished, the price will be increased to a guinea, and reduced as the period of the World's Exhibition advances.

The Telegraph.—There are now 22,000 miles of Telegraph in operation in the United States; 12,000 on the Morse principle, and about 10,000 on the House and Bain principles. The Telegraph extends from Halifax to New Orleans, and as far West as Dubuque, Iowa.

The New Capital of California.—At the late election in California, the citizens decided upon Vallego as the permanent seat of Government. The Capital is a city laid out on the Bay of San Francisco, about twenty-five miles from the city of San Francisco.

Internal Commerce.—It is stated that the value of the internal commerce of the Mississippi and the Ohio, with their tributaries, amounts, for the year, 1850, to about $210,000,000.

☞ Mr. J. S. Cutts, of New York, has invented a knitting machine which produces a perfect stocking, all ready for the foot.

☞ Jenny Lind, it is now said, will remain in the United States another year, giving concerts in the smaller cities and towns.

Gold Dollars.—Counterfeit gold dollars are in circulation, and are well calculated to deceive the unwary.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INTERESTING FROM CHINA.

At a recent meeting of one of the French Benevolent Societies in Paris, Rev. Chas. Gutzlaff, the celebrated missionary, made an interesting statement, from which the following facts are derived:—

M. Gutzlaff said that the population of China was 367,000,000, a third of the human race. Finding himself in Asia without any particular object, he arrived in China in 1828, where, as a physician, he was well received. His Gospel labors have been rendered possible by the perfection with which he speaks the Chinese, and he was readily taken for a native, since his figure, his expression, and every thing about him resemble the Chinese. Gutzlaff believes that China can never be successfully evangelized but by Chinese.—The Emperor is very proud, and thinks himself the vicegerent of Heaven. In a moment of humiliation he read the New Testament, and has since permitted its circulation. Gutzlaff has been able to make some distributions at the foot of the Tower of Nankin and elsewhere. Sixteen editions of the New Testament and the entire Bible have been published. The converted Chinese have written some successful tracts for the use of their countrymen. Relations are opened with all parts of the Empire. The word is eagerly received, and Gutzlaff hopes that a million of Bibles may be distributed every year. Since the annunciation of the Gospel by Protestant missionaries, 3,000 souls have been converted.

From the Morning Star.

SCRIPTURE EXPOSITION.—No. 208.

His mischief shall return upon his own head, and his violent dealing shall come down upon his own pate.—Ps. 7: 16.

The general idea taught here is, that the guilty will be overtaken by a punishment similar to that which they intended for the innocent. "He that diggeth a pit [for others] shall fall therein." God brings this about. And it is such complete equity, that the world justifies it. We will give some examples in which this has taken place.

Haman caused a gallows to be erected on which to hang Mordecai, and was hung upon it himself. Esther 5—7 chapters. Those that accused Daniel and sought his destruction in the lion's den, were cast in themselves and destroyed. Dan. 6: 24. A man named Phalaris, constructed a brazen bull, in which criminals should be burnt to death, and presented it to the tyrant of Sicily. Phalaris was the first man burnt in it. In 1605 a party of Roman Catholics in England placed thirty-six barrels of powder under the Parliament house, for the purpose of blowing up and destroying king James I. and the Parliament. The plot was discovered; the conspirators fled, and as some of the principal of them made a stand for defence, some sparks fell on some powder, and they were blown up themselves. The inventor of the guillotine, a terrible machine for beheading criminals, felt the keenness of its edge on his own neck. Jeffries, a judge in England in the reign of James II., and probably the most partial, overbearing and infamous man that ever sat on a bench to try causes, when James lost his throne, was obliged to flee for his life, and plead for a refuge in prison. Those who established the revolutionary tribunal in France, about 1793, fell by it themselves.

But cases need not be multiplied. Justice does not slumber. It will overtake the guilty. If not here, it will hereafter.

F.

THE CONTRAST.

Should Christianity universally prevail—should its precepts be acted upon, in all the length and breadth of their requirements, there would be no occasion for bolts, nor bars, and penitentiaries!—Who believes that every man would become as an angel, and earth a paradise? In the providence of God, Infidelity did once prevail, Where? In revolutionary France. When? During that period so properly called "The reign of Terror." Yes, Infidelity did then prevail and triumph, for then the National Convention decreed that there was no God. The Sabbath was abolished; churches were closed or converted into "temples of Reason." Death was declared to be an eternal sleep; and the Bible was dragged along the streets of Lyons, in a war of derison and contempt. Yes, Infidelity then prevailed and triumphed; and most frightful was its reign. Its crown was terror; its palace-yard a field of blood; and its royal robes dripped and dripped with human gore! All France was, as it were, one vast slaughter-house, and the rulers of France as demons from the bottomless pit! O my soul, come not thou into their secret; unto their assemblies, mine honor, be not thou united.—Verily, "their rock is not as our Rock, even our enemies themselves being judges."—Dr. Baker's Revival Sermons.

HOW TO PROSPER IN BUSINESS.

In the first place make up your mind to accomplish whatever you undertake; decide upon some particular employment, persevere in it. All difficulties are overcome by diligence and assiduity.

Be not afraid to work with your own hands, and diligently too. "A cat in gloves catches no mice."

"He who remains in the mill grinds, not he who goes and comes."

Attend to your business, and never trust it to another. "A pot that belongs to many is ill stirred and worse boiled."

Be frugal. "That which will not make a pot will make a pot-lid."

"Save the pence, and the pounds will take care of themselves."

Be abstemious. "Who dainties love, shall beggars prove."

Rise early. "The sleeping fox catches no poultry." "Plough deep while sluggards sleep, and you shall have corn to sell and keep."

Treat every one with respect and civility. "Everything is gained and nothing lost by courtesy." "Good manners ensure success."

Never anticipate wealth from any other source than labor; especially never place dependence upon becoming the possessor of an inheritance.

"He who waits for dead men's shoes may have to go for a long time barefoot." "He who runs after a shadow has a wearisome race."

Above all things, never despair. "God is where He was." "Heaven helps those who help themselves."

Follow simplicitly these precepts, and nothing can hinder you from accumulating.

HOW COAL SHOULD BE CONSUMED.

Notwithstanding the general use of anthracite coal in families, few persons know exactly how to use it properly. The business is usually entrusted to servants, and as their experience has taught them—the more wood the more fire—they throw on the coal on the same principle, expecting the same results. This practice, however, destroys the draught necessary to consume the coal, and the consequence is that the sulphurous gases, instead of being consumed, are dispersed through the rooms of the house, to the injury of health, and frequently the spoiling of the food in process of cooking. No stove should ever contain, on a fair average, a greater layer than four inches of coal—less in a majority of cases will answer. A beautiful red heat is then generated, the coal parts with all its inflammable elements, and deposits its earthy matter in small particles in the receiver. Try the experiment and see the results. Anthracite would be the only fuel used for domestic purposes in every family, if the proper mode of making a coal fire was more generally understood.

[Philadelphia Ledger.

The Chinese Doctors.—The Chinese doctors are not paid for the number of doses they give their patients and the length of their sickness, but are paid to keep their subjects from being sick: the sick days of the subject are deducted from the doctor's yearly salary. The Chinese may well laugh at our barbarism, in the way of paying our doctors: but if we were to adopt the Chinese rule, our doctors would be very scarce, unless they had perfect command over our diet, labor, and exercise.

DON'T COMPLAIN.

A merchant was once returning from market. He was on horseback, and behind his saddle was a valise filled with money. The rain fell with violence, and the good old man was wet to the skin. At this time he was quite vexed, and murmured because God had given him such weather for his journey. He soon reached the border of a thick forest. What was his terror on beholding on one side of the road a robber, who with a leveled gun was aiming at him and attempting to fire: but the powder being wet with rain, the gun did not go off, and the merchant giving spurs to his horse, fortunately had time to escape. As soon as he found himself safe, he said to himself—

"How wrong was I not to endure the rain patiently, as sent by Providence. If the weather had been dry and fair, I should not propably have been alive at this hour. The rain which caused me to murmur, came at a fortunate moment to save my life and preserve to me my property,"

SUGGESTIONS TO THE YOUNG.

Rise early, and offer up your prayers to the Giver of all good. Enter steadily and fearlessly upon the duties of the day. Be determined that no trial shall overcome your patience, and no impediment conquer your perseverance. If your object be a good one, say, "I will try to attain it."—Never be found without an object. Ask yourself how you can do the most good; and when you have decided, throw your soul into the purpose. Never do good to obtain praise. Take a red-hot iron in your hand, rather than a dishonest penny. Do no bad action to serve a good friend. Be indulgent to others' faults, but implacable to your own. Wage war with evil, and give no quarters. Die for truth, rather than uphold a lie. Never court needless danger, nor fly from peril which duty imposes. Read good books, seek out good companions, attend to good counsels, and imitate good examples. Never give way to despondency. Does the sun shine? Rejoice. Is it covered with a cloud? Wait till the cloud has passed away.

RELIGIOUS STATISTICS OF CANADA.

1. The Province is divided by the Roman Catholics into five dioceses, viz:

Quebec, (Arehbishop,)	215	Clergymen.
Montreal,	219	"
Bytown,	17	"
Kingston, (with a Coadjutor,)	26	"
Toronto,	36	"

2. The Province is also divided by the Church of England into three dioceses, viz:

Quebec,	36	Clergymen.
Montreal,	48	"
Toronto,	148	"

3. The Province is further divided by the Wesleyan Methodists into eleven Districts; by the New Connexion and Episcopal Methodists into six each; and by the various Presbyterian Churches into Presbyteries, as follows, viz: Church of Scotland, six—Free Church, eight—United Presbyterian Synod, five.

We are always straining after some enjoyment beyond our reach, away in the distance. Some are longing for the season of winter gaieties, living on expectation of future parties, balls, lecture and the like; but such people never enjoy the now of existence. Retrospect and anticipation is the sum of all their pleasures. Give me a lively hope to sustain me to-day. I care not what season I am living in. When we cease to be children, toys should no longer amuse us.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 30th of January, 1851, by Elder E. H. Thomas, Mr. Josiah White to Mrs. Margaretta Shulenberg, all of Newburg, Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 13th ult., by the same, near Centreville, Mr. George Sudsberry to Miss Mary Ann Row, all of Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 11th ult., by Elder J. M. Klein, W. Daneee to Rebecca Warefield, both of Lawrence county, Pa.

On the 13th ult., by Elder D. Maxwell, Mr. Daniel Flenders to Miss Mary McGhery, both of Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 4th ult., by the Rev. Mr. Eggers, Mr. John E. Carmany, of Annville township, Lebanon county, to Miss Frances N. Landis, of Middletown, Dauphin county, Pa.

On the 16th ult., by Elder Simon Fleegal, Mr. Jonas Sheoner to Miss Catharine Forney, both of Linglestown, Pa.

On the 18th ult., by Elder Wm. McFadden, Mr. William Hiteshew to Miss Louisa Ann Sweigart, both of Carroll county, Md.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—In Portsmouth, near Middletown, Dauphin county, Pa., on the 11th of February, 1851, Elizabeth Geistwhite, consort of Moses Geistwhite, aged 31 years, 10 months and 25 days.

Sister Geistwhite called her friends and relatives to her just before her departure, and exhorted them to meet her Heaven. They promised her to do so. But she said to some of them, you promise, but I am afraid you will forget your promises. She died praising God. She has left a husband and six children, and a large circle of relatives and friends, to mourn her loss. But their loss is her eternal gain. Funeral services by the writer, from Exo. 32: 26. J. J. Miller.

Near Siddensburg, York county, Pa., on the 25th day of January, 1851, of the Scarlet Rash, John Edleblute, son of Bro. John and Sister Jane Edleblute.

The above named was always a very dutiful and obedient child, He arrived to the age of 4 years, 11 months and 23 days. He was buried in the Siddensburg Bethel grave-yard, and a funeral discourse delivered to an ordinary congregation, by Elder Solomon Bowser, from 2 Sam. 12: 23.

On the 10th of February, 1851, near Siddensburg, York county, Pa., David Reed, in the 59th year of his age.

A funeral discourse was delivered by the writer, from Prov. 14: 32, to an ordinary congregation.

Also, February 9th, Mary Elizabeth Nelson, daughter of William and Mary Nelson, aged 2 years, 10 months and 29 days.

Funeral services by the writer, to a large and weeping congregation, from Rev. 14: 13.

John A. Plowman.

On the 13th ult., Solomon Stoner, aged 19 years, 5 months and 3 days.

Near Andersonstown, York county, Pa., of the Scarlet Rash, John Bollinger, son of Abram and Mary Bollinger, aged 2 years, 4 months and 21 days.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

A protracted meeting will be held at Falmouth, Lancaster county, commencing on Friday evening, the 7th of March. Elder Harn is expected to be in attendance.

POETRY.

I Thank Thee, God! for Weal and Woe.

BY ELIZA COOK.

I THANK thee, GOD! for all I've known
Of kindly fortune, health and joy;
And quite as gratefully I own
The bitter drops of life's alloy.

Oh! there was wisdom in the blow
That wrung the sad and scalding tear,
That laid my dearest idols low,
And left my bosom lone and drear.

'Tis well to learn that sunny hours
May quickly change to mournful shade;
'Tis well to prize life's scattered flowers,
Yet be prepared to see them fade.

I thank Thee, God! for weal and woe;
And, whatso'er the trial be,
'Twill serve to wean me from below,
And bring my spirit nigher Thee.

GOD IN EVERYTHING.

There is a tongue in every leaf—
A voice in every rill;—
A voice that speaketh everywhere,
In flood and fire, through earth and air!
A tongue that's never still!

Missionary Subscriptions and Donations:

FOR sustaining five Missionaries in the West—two in Iowa and three in Illinois, during the next Eldership year, commencing with April, 1851, and ending with March, 1852.

Jno Winebrenner	paid	$10 00	Abraham Swartz		$5 00
Wm Reichart	paid	5 00	A Liberal Brother		20 00
Isaac Miller		10 00	A Liberal Sister	paid	2 00
J H Hurley		5 00	David Strickler		5 00
Geo U Hahn		5 00	James Cassy		5 00
M F Shavely		10 00	Samuel M Hoover	paid	5 00
Jacob Miller		10 00	Susanna Myers	paid	4 00
James Miller		5 00	Charles F Long		5 00
S A Brumbaugh		5 00	Sarah Grove	paid	2 00
Thomas Strohm		5 00	Wm Brady		3 00
J B G Kinsloe		5 00	Daniel R Long		5 00
Abraham Sherrich	paid	7 50	Dr Geo Ross	paid	10 00

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—WHEAT, per barrel,		$4 00	a	4 12½
Do. RYE,	do. - -	2 50	a	2 50
Do. CORN,	do. - -	2 37½	a	2 37½
GRAIN—WHEAT, per bushel,		87	a	90
Do. RYE,	do. - -	56	a	62
Do. CORN,	do. - -	45	a	47
Do. OATS,	do. - -	33	a	33
Do. BARLEY,	do. - -	70	a	75
SEEDS—CLOVER,	do. - -	4 00	a	4 50
Do. TIMOTHY,	do. - -	2 00	a	2 25
Do. FLAX,	do. - -	1 25	a	1 25
BEEF, per cwt.	- - -	5 00	a	5 50
PORK, do.	- - - -	5 50	a	5 50
HAMS, per pound,	- - -	10	a	12½
BUTTER, do.	- - -	20	a	25
LARD, do.	- - -	8	a	8
TALLOW, do.	- - -	8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.		6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen,	- - - -	10	a	12½
POTATOES, per bushel,	- -	50	a	62
ONIONS, do.	- -	75	a	87½
APPLES, do.	- - -	50	a	62½
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.		1 25	a	1 30
FEATHERS, per pound,	- -	37½	a	45
WOOL, do.	- - -	30	a	50
SALT, per sack,	- - - -	1 75	a	1 75
HAY, per ton,	- - - - -	10 00	a	10 00
PLASTER, per ton,	- - -	4 75	a	4 75

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—WHEAT, per barrel,		$4 50	a	4 75
Do. RYE,	do. -	3 00	a	3 00
Do. CORN,	do. - -	3 00	a	3 00
GRAIN—WHEAT, per bushel,		95	a	1 10
Do. RYE,	do. - -	70	a	75
Do. CORN,	do. - -	60	a	61
Do. OATS,	do. - -	42	a	45
Do. BARLEY,	do. - -	85	a	1 00
SEEDS—CLOVER,	do. - -	4 75	a	5 00
Do. TIMOTHY,	do. - -	2 50	a	2 62
Do. FLAX,	do. - -	1 40	a	1 50
BEEF, per cwt.,	- -	7 00	a	8 75
PORK, do.	- - - - -	7 00	a	7 25

Dr. Christie's
Galvanic Belt, Necklace, Bracelets, and Magnetic Fluid.

THE acknowledged and extraordinary curative powers of these wonderful inventions is now so generally known and their merit and reputation throughout the whole country so extensive, that it would seem unnecessary to urge their merits further. But some late circumstances have occurred which render it a matter of duty to the public not to be altogether silent, for while the ephemeral nostrums of the day are trumpeted by columns through the Press and swallowed by quarts and gallons by the afflicted, and are found just good for nothing,

Christie's Galvanic & Magnetic Curatives,

have been quietly working their way among the most intelligent and respectable classes, and are constantly achieving cures in an alarming train of diseases, which have for ages baffled all the aid of medicine and all the resources of science. These diseases are called and in these diseases medicine is of no avail whatever. It never does good and it often does harm. Syrups, Extracts, Balms, Balsams, Elixirs, Bitters, Pills, Powders and Potions of every kind are alike worthless, for they weaken the vital energies of the already prostrated system; while under the strengthening, life-giving, vitalizing influence of Galvanism, as applied by this beautiful discovery, the exhausted patient and weakened sufferer is restored to former health, strength, elasticity and vigor.

NERVOUS COMPLAINTS,

These remarks relate to such diseases as NEURALGIA, TIC DOLOREUX, BRONCHITIS, PALPITATION of the HEART, WEAKNESS, and all FEMALE DISORDERS, such as NERVOUS HEADACHE, LASSITUDE and DESPONDENCY, which are only other names for Nervous Derangement, EPILEPTIC FITS and CONVULSIONS, which are known to result from a non-equilibrium of Electric influence; NERVOUS TREMORS, DEAFNESS, which is nearly always caused by torpidity of the Auditory Nerves and can always be perfectly cured by Galvanism when the organ is not destroyed; DYSPEPSIA, in its worst forms; PALSY and PARALYSIS, uniformly caused by a deficiency of Nervous influence; CHRONIC RHEUMATISM, TORPIDITY of the LIVER, PAIN in the SIDE, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION, SPINAL and HIP COMPLAINTS, DEFICIENCY of NERVOUS and PHYSICAL ENERGY, and all those distressing complaints resulting from a DERANGEMENT of the NERVOUS SYSTEM.

In the above prevalent and terrible class of diseases and Nervous Complaints which are much more numerous than is generally imagined—

CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES,

Are an Absolute and Positive Specific.

The BELT is used when the body or system generally is affected: the NECKLACE for complaints of the Throat, as Asthma and Bronchitis, and of the Head: and the BRACELETS for all disorders of the arms and limbs, as Rheumatism, Palsy, Tremors and Spasmodic affections. These articles are simply applied as directed with the MAGNETIC FLUID which accompanies them, and when faithfully used they NEVER FAIL!

☞ The great peculiarity and excellence of the GALVANIC CURATIVES consists in the fact that they arrest and cure disease by Outward Application, in place of the usual method of Drugging and Physicking the patient till exhausted nature sinks hopelessly under the infliction. They strengthen the whole system, equalize the circulation of the Blood, promote the secretions, invigorate the entire energies, and can never do the slightest harm under any circumstances.

Since their introduction in the United States, only three years since, more than

75,000 PERSONS

Including all ages, classes and conditions, among whom were a large number of Ladies, who are peculiarly subject to Nervous Complaints, have been

Entirely and Permanently Cured,

when all hope of relief had been given up, and everything else had been tried in vain! The beneficial results which have uniformly attended their use is confidently stated to be without a parallel in the annals of Medical Science. Clergymen, lawyers, and even physicians: ladies of the highest standing: distinguished persons holding elevated official stations: merchants, manufacturers, and mechanics: the poor and the rich alike: often whole families, among all classes, ranks and conditions, have equally been recipients, and have equally acknowledged the wondrous and often unexpected benefits which they have thus received.

☞ Let it be known and remembered that the only Natural Restorative for the Nerves is Galvinism, and that in all Nervous Diseases we should

"Throw Physic to the Dogs."

To illustrate the use of the GALVANIC BELT, suppose the case of a person afflicted with that bane of civilization, DYSPEPSIA, or any other Chronic or Nervous Disorder. In ordinary cases stimulants are taken, which, by their action on the nerves and muscles of the stomach, afford temporary relief, but which leave the patient in a lower state, and with injured faculties, after the action thus excited has ceased. Now compare this with the effect resulting from the application of the GALVANIC BELT. Take a Dyspeptic sufferer, even in the worst symptoms of an attack, and simply tie the Belt round the Body, using the Magnetic Fluid as directed. In a short period the insensible perspiration will act on the positive element of the Belt, thereby causing a Galvanic circulation which will pass on to the negative, and thence back again to the positive, thus keeping up a continuous Galvanic circulation throughout the system. Thus the most severe cases of Dyspepsia are permanently cured. A few days is amply sufficient to eradicate the disease of years.

MANY THOUSAND
Certificates and Testimonials

from the most intelligent and respectable persons residing in every portion of the United States, could be presented. These are now unnecessary, but a numerous selection embracing many statements of the most extraordinary character, sufficient to convince the most sceptical, may be had of the authorized Agent. The interested are particularly invited to call.

WONDERFUL RESTORATION!

☞ 77 Years Old!!!

Blooming Grove, Orange Co., N. Y., July 26, 1850.

To Dr. A. H. Christie, New York.

Dear Sir—Having been very severely handled by Rheumatism and other diseases, and having been cured in a most remarkable manner by CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC BELT and FLUID, I thought I would give a statement of my case, for the benefit of others. I had the Rheumatism last winter and my legs swelled very much. My head was also very much afflicted, having so severe a pain over my eyes that I could scarcely see. At the same time, I was troubled by spasms, caused by the pain in my head, I suppose. My hearing had been getting poor for several years from a catarrh, so that in one ear I could scarcely hear at all. Having heard wonderful accounts of Christie's Belt and Fluid, I sent to your store and got them. The Belt was put on, and the Fluid used as directed, and I don't think I have had, after the first night using them, one minute clear pain from that time to this, being six months. The Rheumatism left my body entirely, after wearing the Belt a very short time, probably two weeks. Then I put on a Galvanic Necklace, and had not worn it two weeks, before my head was perfectly well. My hearing in both ears is entirely restored, the pain all gone, my sight is very good for a man of my age, (77 years in August) and I consider myself entirely well, having worked through harvest without the least difficulty. I consider my cure very remarkable, and therefore do not hesitate to recommend CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES to all persons afflicted as I have been. (Signed) PHINEAS TUTHILL.

AFFIDAVIT.

State of New York, Newburgh, Orange county, ss: Phineas Tuthile of Blooming Grove, Orange county, N. Y., who is personally known to me as a most respectable citizen and worthy of all confidence, being duly sworn deposes and says that the facts set forth in the above statement in relation to his case, are entirely correct, and that he is now in the enjoyment of good health, caused as he believes by Christie's Galvanic Curatives. PHINEAS TUTHILL

Sworn before me this 26th day of June, 1850.

S. W. EAGER, Justice of the Peace.

Weakness and Nervous Debility!

Dear Sir—I want another supply of Christie's Galvanic Curatives, immediately. This is an intelligent and reasoning community, and they see at once that the Curatives are constructed upon scientific and philosophical principles and must work effectually upon the Nervous System in the case of Nervous Diseases. An estimable young lady in our town was afflicted with extreme Nervous Debility and severe pains in the head and neck. She put on one of the Galvanic Belts and Necklace and immediately became sensible of its curative and strengthening powers, and the next day was relieved of the severe pains, and raised from a state of entire nervous prostration to health and strength. I can mention several other cases equally wonderful.

Yours very respectfully, J. B. KNIGHT.

Panama, Chautauque Co., N. Y., Oct. 1, 1850.

☞ No trouble or inconvenience attends the use of DR. CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES, and they may be worn by the most feeble and delicate with perfect ease and safety. In many cases the sensation attending their use is highly pleasant and agreeable. They are accompanied by full and plain directions for use. Pamphlets with full particulars may be obtained gratis, of the authorized Agent.

PRICES:

The Galvanic Belt, Three Dollars,
The Galvanic Necklace, Two Dollars.
The Galvanic Bracelets, One Dollar Each.
The Magnetic Fluid, One Dollar.

PARTICULAR CAUTION.

☞ Beware of counterfeits and Worthless Imitations. D. C. MOREHEAD, M. D.,

GENERAL AGENT FOR THE UNITED STATES,
132 Broadway, New York.

☞ For Sale by Dr. W. K. MEHAFFEY, authorized Agent for HARRISBURG, PA.

Dr. GEO. ROSS, Elizabethtown, Pa.

Jan. 1, 1851.—6m.

Music Books—Price Reduced.

1. Evangelical Music—Patent Notes—Price five dollars per dozen.
Do. Do. Round Notes—Price four dollars per dozen.
2. History of all Denominations—Portrait Editions—Price two dollars and fifty cents.
3. Reference and Pronouncing Testaments—Price fifty cents.
4. Treatise on Regeneration—Price sixty-two and a half cents.
5. Five Hundred Sketches and Skeletons—Price two dollars and fifty cents.
6. Traveller's Guide to the West—Price fifty cents.
7. Wandering Soul—Price seventy-five cents.
8. Hymn Books, English and German, assorted, at different prices.

☞ For sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER and HICKOK & BARRETT, Harrisburg, Penn'a.

Depositories of Our Books.

FOR the convenience of our brethren, and the public generally, we have established Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

GEO. F. GORDON, corner of 12th and Wistar streets, and BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, and LEWIS COLBY, No. 122 Nassau street, New York.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, Baltimore, Md.

JOHN H. CORNELIUS, New Berlin, Union county, Pa.

SPANGLER & BROTHER, Lancaster, Pa.

MARTIN and MENELY, Lagrange county, Indiana.

M. F. SNAVELY, North Bend, Iowa.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail Prices.
History of Denomination in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries, -	2 00
Wandering Soul, - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament, -	50
German Reference Testament, - -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
German Do., - - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, - -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - - -	25
Harn on Feet-washing, - - -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, - - -	15
Traveller's Guide to the West, - -	60

EVANGELICAL MUSIC,

FOR

CHURCHES AND SINGING SCHOOLS.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us, and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music.

☞ FOR SALE at this office, and at our Depositories. EDITOR.

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED

History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of ALL the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa., MARCH 15, 1851. NUMBER 22.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

1. The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:
   1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
   2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
   3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50

4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.

5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.

6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.

7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.

8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.

9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

For Sale.

A two horse wagon, with good harness, a large body, and three eliptic springs, suitable for emigrants moving to the West, for sale at this office. Price low, for cash.

Our Canals.

The Pennsylvania Canals were opened about the first of this month, several weeks earlier than usual, and are now doing a large spring business.

Sailing of Missionaries.

Elder James Colder and wife, Dr. Whiley and family, and a young lady, all missionaries for China, set sail from New York on Monday, the 10th inst. They have our prayers and best wishes for their welfare and success!

Lumber.

The annual tide of Lumber from the Northern tributaries of the Susquenhanna, has commenced its flow to the Southern markets.—Rafts are passing daily, and the report is that lumber is high, and will continue so, the winter not having been favorable for the getting of it out, for the want of snow.

Board of Revenue Commissioners.

This body, whose duty it is to equalize and adjust the taxes throughout the Commonwealth, met in the Supreme Court Room of the Capitol on the 26th ult. The Board meets daily, at 10 A. M., and 3 P. M. About four weeks will be required to get through with the business for which they are assembled.

Distressing Accident.

On Tuesday morning, the 4th inst., four men from this place went on to the river in a skiff in the neighborhood of Cox's Island, for the purpose of shooting ducks, when near the middle of the river the boat capsized, and a man by the name of Roberts, and one by the name of Klem, were drowned. Two others of the party floated down the river about two miles and were rescued.

A Call from Hiattsville.

The brethren at Hiattsville, Miami county, Ohio, have enjoyed a glorious refreshing, and wish Bro. T. Hickernell, Sands, or some one else, to pay them a visit soon, and preach for them and organize a Church. They say that there are about 30 persons ready to be organized into a Church of God, but that they have had no preaching for more than two months. They are anxiously looking for Bro. Sands, and hope he will soon come to their assistance.

White Hall Academy.

We bespeak the attention of our readers to an advertisement, in our columns, of the above Institution. It is handsomely and conveniently located, near Camp Hill, in Cumberland county, about two miles west from the Harrisburg Bridge.

The Principal, Mr. D. Denlinger, is a gentleman of experience and high standing, and a ripe scholar.

The Institution will be opened on Monday, the 5th of May next. Terms moderate. See Advertisement.

A Proposition to Enlarge the Advocate.

We propose to enlarge the next volume of the Church Advocate, without changing the terms, provided we can get an increase of 500 subscribers. And provided 1000 of new subscribers can be raised, between this and the first of May next, we will enlarge it, and publish it weekly, for the same price.

At the same time, we will give every travelling and stationed preacher, who will procure five or more new subscribers, with advance payment, a volume of the paper gratis.

We have over 100 ministers, who might easily raise five new subscribers each, making in all 500—the other 500 might be raised by the membership.

Money Wanted.

As we shall need all our out-standing dues for books and the Advocate this spring, we would again earnestly request our debtors, one and all, to do us the justice and favor to pay up their bills by the first of April next. In this please fail not.

But should these repeated duns be disregarded, by any of our friends and patrons, we hope they will be prepared to meet our bills, in all kindness, when we send them on for collection, after that date. Necessity is our apology for so doing.

Revival in Elizabethtown.

A protracted meeting commenced in Elizabethtown, Lancaster county, on the 22d ult., which is still in progress, and has happily resulted in the revival of God's work. About ten or a dozen have been converted, and several more are seeking salvation.

A revival has lately commenced in Falmouth, near Bainbridge, under the labors of brother G. U. Harn. Infidelity, Storrism, Universalism, and all manner of Devilism, has long been prevalent there. May God sweep them all away, and cause truth and righteousness to prevail.

Arbitration

Instead of War, for the Settlement of International Disputes.

In the U. S. Senate, on the 5th of February last, Mr. Foote, chairman of the committee on Foreign Relations, reported, with their unanimous consent, the following resolution:

"Whereas, Appeals to the sword for the determination of national controversies, are always productive of immense cost; and whereas, the spirit and enterprises of the age, but more especially the genius of our own government, the habits of our people, as well as the claims of humanity, the dictates of enlightened reason, and the precepts of our holy religion, all require the adoption of every feasible measure, consistent with national honor and the security of our rights, to prevent, as far as possible, the recurrence of war: Therefore,— Resolved, That, in the judgment of this body, it would be proper and desirable for the government of the United States, whenever practicable, to procure, in its treaties with other nations, a provision for referring to the decision of umpires, all future misunderstandings that cannot be satisfactorily adjusted by amicable negotiation in the first instance, before a resort to hostilities be had."

Mr. Foote stated that he offered this preamble and resolution by the cordial and unanimous vote of the committee, and added that he presumed the Senate would, on due consideration, adopt it without objection.

The above is in response to various petitions from Peace Societies, and is a measure so reasonable, so practicable, so important, as to commend itself to every reflecting mind. Let but this plan be adopted by a few of the great powers of the world, and a speedy end will be put to an evil which has cursed the earth ten thousand times more than slavery.

The Cheap Postage Bill.

The following table will show the postages on newspapers of the New Postage Bill, as compared with the present rates:

	NEWSPAPERS PER QUARTER.			More than
Miles.	Weekly	Semi-Weekly	Tri-Weekly	Tri-Weekly
Under 50, (new bill,) 5cts.	10	15	25
Present rate,	12	24	36	48
Over 50—under 300	10	20	30	50
Present rate,	13	36	54	103
Over 300, under 1000	15	30	45	75
Present rate,	18	36	54	108
Over 1000, und. 2000	20	40	60	100
Present rate,	18	36	54	108
Over 2000, und. 4000	25	50	75	125
Present rate,	18	36	54	108
Over 4000,	30	60	90	150
Present rate,	18	36	54	108

All weekly papers free within the county where they are published. Papers of less than 1½ ounces half these rates; and papers not over 300 square inches, one-fourth these rates.

Letter postage is reduced to the uniform price of 3 cents, if pre-paid, and 5 cents if not.

Missionary Pledges.

These come in slow. Notwithstanding our repeated appeals to the Churches, and especially to the rich men in the Church, for aid in this noble and benevolent cause; and notwithstanding the long and loud calls from our brethren in the far West, to send them preachers, yet how few have manifested any "bowels of mercies," and sent on their pledges! Although we live in an age of progressive improvement, in the arts and sciences, and although we possess vastly greater means and facilities of doing good, by spreading the true principles of Christianity than the people did in former ages, yet evidently, on this score, we are greatly behind the primitive Church. Then the disciples gave their all, and "went everywhere preaching the word;" now the greater part of the Church gives nothing, and go nowhere to do good, in spreading the cause of truth. Besides, the people of the world and sectarians all around us, are up and doing, whilst the Church of God, with all her heavenly light—her glorious liberty—her good religion, and her distinguished privileges, is doing little or nothing in the great and good cause of Missions; nor in its kindred cause of education. O! tell it not in Gath! Publish it not in the streets of Askelon! God pardon this our sin and shame! and stir us up to love and good works! Good religion not only purifies the heart, but opens the hand and leads to deeds of benevolence.

Pennsylvania Bible Society.

The 43rd Anniversary of the Pennsylvania Bible Society took place here on Wednesday, the 26th ult. In the evening a general meeting was held in the Presbyterian church, which was crowded.

The Rev. P. F. Mayer, D. D., of the Lutheran Church, the venerable President of the Society, was in the chair. The exercises of the evening were commenced with appropriate music by the Choir, after which the President offered a fervent prayer, and was followed by the reading of the 19th Psalm by the Rev. Dr. DeWitt, pastor of the Church.

A short statement of the operations of the Society since May last was made by the President, from which it appeared that the year just drawing to a close has been the most prosperous of any preceding one since its organization in the year 1808.

This noble institution has circulated in the State of Pennsylvania, since the year 1810, nearly five hundred thousand copies of the Sacred Scriptures—including copies of the New Testament.

After the introductory statement by the President, the audience listened with marked attention, to several eloquent addresses delivered by the Rev. Mr. Spackman of Frankford, Rev. Dr. Demmie, Rev. A. A. Willets, Rt. Rev. Bishop Potter, and the Rev. Dr. Parker, of Philadelphia. They were opened by the Rev. H. S. Spackman, in a happy, interesting and appropriate address. He was followed by the Rev. Dr. Demmie, in the German language. The Rev. Mr. Willets then delivered an able, eloquent and thrilling address, which gave new ardor and new resolution to every friend of the cause. He was followed by Bishop Potter, whose strong mind and highly cultivated powers had full play on the subject, and whose fervent appeals, uttered in unison with the impulses of his heart, made a strong impression upon the audience.

The address of the Rev. Dr. Joel Parker closed the meeting, and we need only say, that it was in every respect worthy of the talents, the learning and the fame of its author. The highest satisfaction was expressed by the large and most respectable audience that was present.

Bible Convention

On Thursday morning, February 27th, at 10 o'clock, a Convention of the delegates and friends of the Bible assembled in the Methodist Episcopal Church of this borough, and was opened with prayer by the Rev. Dr. Hodgson, pastor of the Church.

The following County Bible Societies were represented by delegates—Dauphin, Fayette, Lancaster, Lebanon, Montgomery, Philadelphia, Perry, York and Erie; also, the Theological Seminary Bible Society of Gettysburg, Shippensburg Female Bible Society, Landisburg Female Bible Society.

Gentlemen, active friends of the Bible cause, from Columbia, Lycoming, Mifflin, Dauphin, Cumberland, Blair, Montour, Sullivan and and York counties, being present, were invited to become members of the Convention, and take part in its proceedings.

The Hon. John C. Bucher, of Harrisburg, was chosen to preside, and the Rev. Nathan Stem, of the Episcopal Church, Norristown, to act as Secretary of the Convention.

The proceedings of the Convention were conducted with great harmony, and a laudable zeal was exhibited in behalf of increased efforts in multiplying and circulating copies of the Sacred Scriptures.

In the progress of the meeting the following resolutions were moved, discussed and passed.

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to prepare an address to the Ecclesiastical bodies in the State in relation to the interest of the Pennsylvania Bible Society, and the importance of co-operating with it, in the advancement of its laudable designs.

The Right Rev. Alonzo Potter, Rev. Dr. Demmie, Rev. Dr. Durbin, Rev. Dr. Berg, and the Rev. Albert Barnes were appointed on that committee.

Resolved, That it be recommended to the different County Societies to endeavor to add to the number of their auxiliaries in their respective counties, as one important means of extending their usefulness and increasing their efficiency.

Resolved, That the Convention earnestly recommend the formation of Bible Societies in the various Colleges and Theological Seminaries of the State as auxiliary to the Pennsylvania Bible Society.

Resolved, That this Convention have heard with pleasure, that the Pennsylvania Bible Society have resolved to give to the American Bible Society $5.000, to aid in the foreign distribution of the Bible, and that it be recommended to the County and other Societies in the State, auxiliary to the Pennsylvania Bible Society, to aid by their contributions in this work of benevolence.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Convention be presented to the session and trustees of the Presbyterian Church of this place for the use of their church, for the anniversary meeting of the Pennsylvania Bible Society, and also to the trustees of the Methodist Church, for the use of their church for this Convention.

The Hall of the House of Representatives having been obtained for the use of the Convention for the evening of the 27th, the Convention, after their morning session, adjourned to meet at 7 o'clock P. M.

The meeting in the Hall of the House of Representatives in the evening, was attended by a large number, including the Governor of the Commonwealth, the Heads of Department, members of the Senate and House of Representatives, distinguished strangers present at the seat of Government, and citizens of Harrisburg, together with the members of the Convention.

The meeting was addressed by the Rev. Mr. Hay of Harrisburg, the Rev. Mr. Willits, the Rev. Mr. Allen and Mr. Dulles of Philadelphia, the Hon. Judge Jones of Bradford county, and the Rev. Irwin H. Torrence, the agent of the Philadelphia Bible Society.

It was resolved, that the editors of the papers of this borough, and throughout the State, be respectfully requested to publish the proceedings of this Convention in their respective papers.

After prayer by the Rev. Dr. DeWitt, of Harrisburg, the Convention Adjourned.

COR. EDITOR'S DEPARTMENT.

Dying in a Large City.

J. FLAKE.

Philadelphia, March 3, 1851.

An acquaintance of mine, of very respectable family and standing, Henry ——, a young man of twenty-seven years, was engaged in business in one of the beautiful stores in Chesnut street in this city. The oldest son of pious parents, and himself married not quite a year ago, he was known and esteemed by many, and life very likely spread out before him like a long summer day; and well it might, for he had a pleasant lot.

Ten days ago he was at class-meeting, which it is said was on that evening especially, very good and edifying—he spoke remarkably therein, and, what was not common with him, was led by his feelings even to shout. Last Monday he went home sick—several days passed away under the weight of typhus fever, and with the stupor which is so common in that sore disease. On Thursday his father tried to rouse him by saying to him—"Henry, do you know me?" No, said the young man, I do not know you. "Henry, do you know the Lord Jesus Christ?" Answer, "Yes, I know him." "Is He with you now?" "O yes."

The next evening he breathed his last in peace, leaving kindred and friends, to weep, and get ready to follow. This afternoon they carry him to the last resting place which earth can give, and lay him in the same ground along with his mother, who two years ago left this vale of tears. It is a good thing to lie down in the dust among the saints of God.

I consider that his time was come. Who can tell the dangers and sorrows from which he has escaped? Weeping friends may say it is a mysterious dispensation, and wonder why it should be so. But the Lord does all things well, and blessed be his holy name. O to be prepared—sins forgiven—soul sanctified—life humble and holy. Let there be no pomp, or parade at our burial. "Nothing, as Wesley said, but the tears of those who loved him, and were following him to Abraham's bosom."

Strangers and Sojourners.

J. FLAKE.

"I dwell among mine own people."—Shunamitish Woman.

"We have no certain dwelling place."—Saint Paul.

I think it was the eminently pious and useful Philip Doddridge, who when he was in the city of Lisbon on account of his health, said with tears, that the road went from thence to heaven, as well as from his home in England. And so I suppose it is true that people can go to the good land from a farm—a prairie—or a mountain home—provided they have the fear, and the love of God in their souls. Some perhaps think it safer, and better to live in country places, where they can be more plain, and more humble. It seems singular that some branches of the Christian Church—such as the Dunkers—the Mennonites—are mostly country people.

But it seems to me that Christianity is just as well fitted for those who live near together in village or town, as for those who hold their meetings in a Barn, and go a hundred or two miles to attend their special gatherings from far and near. It is said in the book of the Prophet Malachi, that those who feared the Lord, and thought upon his name, spake often one to another, and the Lord hearkened and heard it. Therefore if they live near at hand, they can meet the oftener.

I have heard a good account of the brethren who live in and near Uniontown in Maryland. It is said that they hold to an inward religion, and are also zealous for the outward form. I am told that they are great advocates for plainness of dress, and have the ancient salutation of the kiss among them. Some think they are too particular in straitening those who come among them as to small things—perhaps it may be so—but are not most of our Churches too remiss, and negligent, as to holy living and self-denial?

Well, you love to live in the country, where you can have the free air of heaven to breathe—the pure spring of water to drink from—and nobody to crowd you in on either side of your dwelling. You think that if you lived in town you might be proud, or vain, and hardly could live a humble Christian life. Perhaps it is better for you where you are, and if you like it, so much the better it is.

Abraham and his family dwelt in tents—so did Isaac and Jacob, the heirs of the promise. You have a house—frame—or stone—or brick—it may be a large one—perhaps only a cottage. Cannot you think, and say with Doddridge, that you can go from thence, to dwell in the everlasting habitations the Saviour speaks of?

I love to live in a town; to me it is very natural and pleasant. Joseph and Mary lived in Nazareth—Lazarus and his sisters lived in the village of Bethany. John Bunyan was in prison in England, for some years, and there he wrote that beautiful dream, the "Pilgrim's Progress," which will go down to the end of the world.

"Sir, are you a Pilgrim?" You answer, "I hope I am." Are you not afraid to tarry so long in the town of Vanity? What are you doing? I am heaping op money, and adding house to house, and farm to farm, so that I may die rich. Will not that be pleasant?

O ye who are prospering in worldly things, and who belong to the "Brethren," or to the "United Brethren," or to any other Christian Church, take heed. I am acquainted with some of yon living in town, or village, or country place. Let me advise you "to make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness." Give to the poor—help the stranger—distribute to those who need—visit the sick—form Sabbath Schools, and teach the children—build meeting-houses, and help those who preach the Gospel, whether at home, or in the West.

Philadelphia, March 2, 1851.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

A Victim to Catholic Influence.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 1, 1851.

Mr. Editor:—

I send you for publication in the "Church Advocate" the following articles, which I have cut from the "Catholic Mirror" (of this city) of the date of November 9. By perusing my letter, to which the editor points with so much holy horror, contempt and dignity! you will at once see, that my object in asking you to publish the matter, is to have a little chance to reply to the Editor: C. I. White, Doctor of Divinity.

I would have noticed it sooner, but the D. D. hinted that he might "possibly indite a running commentary" upon my letter the following week; but he has probably concluded that he has so completely confused, confounded, contradicted, refuted, defeated tortured and tormented me in his inquisitorial, purgatorial, and tremendous editorial effort, that he deems me neither worthy of any further notice, nor deserving any more of his holy-Roman-Catholic-first-and-only-true-Church-on-earth denunciations. So now you will please just publish the matter sent, with thus much of an introduction; and after your readers have had time to read and decide upon my private letter to Caroline, the victim of Catholic pomp, mummery, modified Mesmerism and idolatry, then I will give them a few remarks upon the D.

D.'s strictures upon it, together with further particulars relative to the victim.

J. F. WEISHAMPEL.

From the Baltimore "Catholic Mirror."

COMMUNICATED.

SECTARIAN CHARITY.

The gentleman whose name is appended to the following erudite lucubration, is a minister of a small, obscure, and recently originated sect, known in Baltimore and certain parts of Pennsylvania, by the ambitious appellation of the "Church of God;" yet to show, we suppose, that there is only one step from the sublime to the ridiculous, they are sometimes called Winebrenneriuns, (from their founder, still living;) alias Feet washers, from a laudable ceremony by which they are periodically distinguished.—The literary effort in question is so decidedly rich in its way, so fair a specimen of the kind of argument, frequently addressed to the converts to Catholicity, that it is deemed proper to treat it with something more than the silent contempt, which is ordinarily the appropriate meed of such effusions.—Whether the Revd. writer be a Solomon in divinity, we leave our readers to judge; but no one certainly can doubt that he is a perfect, a finished gentleman. Otherwise he would never have felt himself at liberty, in writing to a young lady, to use the gentlemanly language, contained in the paragraph before the last, relating to "nuns" and "priests."

He says, again, in his fourth paragraph: "You know that religion is holy and pure."—Is it his holy and pure religion that makes him an adept to such language as that to which we have just alluded, or is he naturally a proficient? Alas! we greatly fear that there are, at the present day, some people who profit about as much by washing their feet, as Pilate once did by washing his hands. (St. Matthew, XXVII, 24.) Pilate breaks the 5th Commandment by consenting to the shedding of innocent blood; and imagines that he washes off the guilt by means of a little water.—Certain (Revd!!) folks of our times break the 8th commandment: ("Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor:) assert that "nuns" and "priests," against whom even the breath of calumny has never whispered, lead corrupt lives, and call them "an iniquitous set, who have destroyed the virtue of thousands of innocent female dupes;" and having thus broken the 8th commandment, these "saintly" (1) gentlemen walk leisurely up to Cove (2) Street, wash their feet or have them washed once in three months, (3) and then return home as innocent and self-justified as so many Pilates! Just about.—

Our object in giving publicity to the following classical and elegant production, upon which we may possibly indite a running commentary next week, is to give our community some idea of the sublime capabilities of certain (so called) Revd. gentlemen! The following is the letter: (Papers friendly to the diffusion of useful knowledge please copy.)

BALTIMORE, October 8th, 1850.

DEAR SISTER CAROLINE ———:

You always seemed to have a tender regard for me, as I also had for you, as a young sister in the Lord; therefore I hope you will do me the favor to read this letter, as it may be the only way I have to say a word to you, before leaving the city again.

Dear child, what have you done? Who hath bewitched you, that you obeyed not the truth? Is it possible that you have left the faith and turned to idolatry? Recollect that you have taken a step that will decide your fate in eternity, if you do not retrace it. Let me, as a sincere friend, call to your mind a few things before it is too late.

1. You know, that when you humbled yourself before God and sought the blessed Saviour by faith and prayer, you found not only peace in believing, but your soul was filled unutterably full of joy. 2. You know, that all the world could not have persuaded you out of your consciousness and certain knowledge that God had for Christ's sake pardoned your sins. 3. You know, that you then turned your face and attention to the word of God and to his ordinances, and made them the delight of your heart—and O what pleasure they afforded you! You know how often you met with your brethren and sisters in social and public worship, and vowed before God that you would never forsake his cause and people—that you would never give up your faith, that you then held so dear. 5. You know that you were the darling young sister in our little Church, that you so strongly defended; and that there were many prayers offered up to God by your brethren and sisters in the Lord, for you, that He might preserve you blameless unto the day of his coming. 6. You know, too, how your dear father doated upon you—with what anxious solicitude he watched over you—how his fond heart yearned over you. And although he thought a great deal of your sister Sarah, still he set his affections more fully upon you--and that he always rejoiced to believe you would be the last one of all his family to forsake the faith. But O see how you have wounded that tender father's heart!—see how the tears flow down his care-worn cheeks at the heart-rending thought of his dear daughter Caroline—his beloved child Caroline—his faithless daughter Caroline—his heart-wounding child Caroline taking the unholy steps you have taken. But see still a little further:

Think of your course for a few weeks past. You now pretend to think that you are improving your condition in religion. Let us examine your course. You know religion is holy and pure, and nothing deceitful or hypocritical is sanctioned, but is condemned by the word of God. But how have you acted?—You have been attending our meetings and visiting your friends; and while you were at the same time submitting yourself to the Mesmeric influence of Romanists and preparing yourself to take the fatal step and join that "mother of abominations," the Roman Catholic Church,—I say while you were preparing to leave us and Christ and join the old spiritual "mother of harlots," you acted the part of a hypocrite, in vowing your services to God and declaring you were determined to prove faithful to Him. To your friends you spoke against the Catholics; thus you practised deception and told false stories, all to blind your friends and gain time to make full preparation to make your destruction sure. Can you be so far blinded as not to see that such a course is wicked? And can those be good who practice or encourage such wickedness? O Caroline, you cannot be so blind! No! No!! I hope you see your inconsistency and will return to the Lord,—for you have forsaken Him.

King David sinned and seemed to hope he would not be detected, but when God sent the Prophet to him and pointed out his sin, David repented and prayed: Have mercy on me, O God, according to thy tender mercies!

You have sinned in this, that you have left off living a devoted Christian's life--and giving up the reading of that blessed Book, which has been the consolation of your heart ever since you were first converted to God, till of late. You have sinned in this, that you threw yourself under the influence of those who you were fully assured were unconverted and ungodly persons, and suffered them to cause you to forsake the God you loved and served, and place your affections upon priests--men you know not--men whom you do not (I think) believe to be what they profess to be, that is, holy men of God. O! can you be so infatuated, so blinded, so deceived as to persevere in this course? Can you say to Jesus, who was so merciful as to speak peace to you, when you wrestled, like Jacob of old, that you cannot trust Him any longer, but must trust to wicked priests? Can you say that you will not pray only to Him, but to the souls of the Bible saints, and to the souls of the so-called Catholic "saints," whose sins were forgiven by priests but not by God? Yes, by Catholic "saints," whose hands were bloody with the blood of those they murdered because they would not be Catholics? Are you not afraid to go another step? O pause! O think! O pray God to have mercy on you! Are you so lost to all sense of feeling and duty as to think the priest can save you? May the Lord reclaim you! O Caroline! Caroline! Caroline!—O Caroline! Caroline! Caroline! Hearken, hearken, hearken to the voice of warning!

Dear Caroline--You have not only astounded your father and family, and the Church; but those of the world who have heard it, cannot believe the report. Even unconverted persons think you are deranged--they think the priests and their lackey servants have bewitched you,--put a spell of Mesmerism upon you and deceived you. Can it be possible? Yes, it is possible. And if you are under such an influence, they will keep you under it as long as you are among them. I hear you are going to be a "sister of charity," so called. Can you not show your charity without being a Catholic nun? Did you never hear of the use that is made of nuns by the priests? Do you trust such an iniquitous set, who have destroyed the virtue of thousands of innocent female dupes! Do you think them better here than they are in the old countries? Can you forsake father, and mother, and friends, and the Church, and God, and Christ, to cleave unto priests? Can you risk your salvation in this way? No, I hope you will retract. Come back. Go home to your dear father,—tell him you have sinned—he will forgive.—Ask God to pardon,—He will forgive.--The Church will forgive.

But if you are resolved to become a denier of the faith--after having tasted the power of the upper world and the word of life; if after all this you fly to such a refuge of corruption, and give yourself up to hardness of heart, that you may believe lies and be damned, then let the responsibility rest upon you and those who have deceived you. My heart is sad! I pray for you, that you may be redeemed from this awful situation. In conclusion I ask, that if you will not retrace your steps--if my pleadings have no effect upon you; if you are fully resolved to deny our holy religion and leave us no hope of your return, I ask of you the favor to send me this letter back, that I may keep it and remember that I warned you faithfully. Must I say farewell?

J. F. WEISHAMPEL, SENR.

(1) The Winebrenneriuns wash each other's feet publicly in their meeting-houses, and call the ceremony "washing the Saints' feet."

(2) Their meeting-house is in Cove street.

(3) The interesting ceremony of washing the Saints' feet takes place every three months. None too often certainly.

The Rich Man.

THE person called in Scripture "the rich man," was not so bad as many suppose him to have been. To judge from some pulpit declarations, we would have him to be the very embodiment of all that was flagitiously criminal. We learn that he was wicked enough to be sent to hell, but nothing is said about the heinousness of his guilt; true, he wore "purple and fine linen," costly clothing, and being rich he paid for them. Does it criminate a man to buy such apparel and wear it? We opine not. Lydia was a seller of purple, and a pious woman. And we are told now-a-days that the seller and buyer of ardent spirits are in the same list. So we place the seller and buyer of purple. He "faring sumptuously every day" proves that he was no miser—the idea of a miser being one that is extremely penurious in his clothing and other necessaries of life. Yet here was a character precisely opposite; and he might, with more propriety, be called a prodigal. The probability is, that he was neither lavish nor niggardly.

Startle not when we tell you that the rich man was a professor of religion, for he calls Abraham his father. He was a Jew, and beyond a doubt a prominent one: and was a member of the Jewish Church. But he was not pious, and for this neglect was doomed to ruin. Moreover, we take it, that he was somewhat kinder than many making high pretensions to godliness. "A beggar named Lazarus was laid at his gate, full of sores." If a beggar full of sores was laid at our gate or door, would we take him in? We are pretty sure he would soon be driven away; and instead of the dogs being allowed to be his physician, in cleansing his sores, he would be driven away by their snarls. We would like to see the "rich man" at the present age, that would take such a diseased person in his house and provide for him. Christians, so called, send such to the poor-house quite summarily.

It was no crime for the "rich man" to be wealthy, for Joseph of Arimathea, and Zaccheus were both rich and yet good men.—Wherein, then, was he so depraved as to be sent to hell? Because he did not repent, and become converted. He had all the earthly blessings heaven could bestow but one, namely, religion. He had riches, health, prosperity, comfort, and yet was irreligious. Lazarus had pain and sore disease, pinching poverty and helplessness, but was converted, his sins were blotted out. One is now in heaven—the other in hell. "But now behold in the quick forge and working house of thought" how many rich men are yet in life—and only here and there a Lazarus. G. R.

Elizabethtown, Pa., Feb. 6, 1851.

New Testament Words.---No. 7.

APOSTLE.—This word signifies a messenger sent by a court, or one in authority on some important business, and furnished with extraordinary power to act for the person or court who sent him. In the New Testament we have an account of thirteen Apostles, namely, Jesus Carist, who was sent by God, and twelve more, that were sent by him. Jesus says, "As the Father hath sent me, so send I you." In Heb. 3: 1, 2, Jesus Christ is called the Apostle, "Wherefore, holy brethren, partaking of the heavenly calling, consider the Apostle and High Priest of our profession, Jesus Christ, who was faithful to him that appointed him." His character as an Apostle is a very important one, and ought to be well understood by all. He came out from God, as his Apostle, to preach good tidings to the meek, broken-hearted, and captives: to such his message is addressed, and by such he is considered as a great Apostle. By attending to the "gracous words which proceeded out of his mouth," as recorded by the Evangelists, we may have a correct view of his character and office as an Apostle.

After Jesus Christ was sent as the "GREAT APOSTLE," he chose from among his followers twelve, whom he called Apostles. These he sent to bear his name to the Gentile nations, and the kings of the earth. These were commissioned to go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature. How solemn their message! How important! "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; and he that believeth not shall be damned." They were divinely qualified, being endowed with power from on high; and they declared what they had seen, and heard, and what their hands had handled of the word of life. Paul, although the last called to the Apostleship, had also seen the great Apostle. "For this cause I have appeared unto thee, that thou mayest be a witness of what thou hast seen."—"Last of all he was seen of me also." As the great truth they preached turned on the certainty of Christ's resurrection, it was absolutely necessary that they should have seen the Lord. And to make their preaching the more convincing, it was accompanied "with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost." The Apostles never had any successors in office. They were the last to "seal the Law and the Testimony;" but they will continue to preach and testify by their writings down to the end of all time.

Some have thought that Christ had thirteen Apostles; but this would contradict the New Testament, which mentions only twelve. This was the first number—see Luke 6: 15-16—but Judas lost his Apostleship by transgression, and his bishoprick was given to another. This is mentioned in Acts 1: 17 to 20; but whether the Apostles were divinely directed to choose Matthias or not, is very uncertain. Be this as it may, it is evident he is not considered as one of the twelve Apostles of the Lamb. Soon after the Apostles had chosen Matthias by lot, the Lord Jesus appeared to Paul, and called him to be an Apostle, though he never saw the other Apostles until fourteen years after his conversion. He filled the place which Judas had lost; and as he was chosen by the Chief Apostle himself, he made up the number twelve, without Matthias, who might have stood as one pro tem., until Paul was called to the Apostleship.

Jesus Christ told his disciples that some of them should be killed. This happened soon after Paul was called. Acts 12: 1—"Now about this time Herod stretched for his hand to vex certain of the Church; and he killed James the brother of John with the sword." Then there were but eleven left, unless Matthias stood as one pro tem.; but whether this be so or not, one thing is certain, that Paul is considered one of the twelve, and when the twelve Apostles shall sit on twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel, Paul will be one of them.

Though the Apostles were a spectacle to the world, angels and men, and set forth last of all, as it were appointed unto death—and though they were considered the filth and off-scourings of the earth—pestilent fellows—turners of the world up-side down; yet they were the greatest blessing the world ever saw, excepting the Lord Jesus Christ. They were chosen of Christ to bind and to unbind: that is, to give all the law necessary for men to believe and obey. All other law-makers, who attempt to make laws for the Church of God, are usurpers; they shall have their reward. But all who hear Christ in all things, obey his law, as given by him and his Apostles, shall have everlasting life. Yours truly,

WM. JOHNSTON.

Another Revival.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

I again take up my pen in order to inform you and the readers of the Church Advocate, what the Lord has done for us on the York County Circuit.

After we closed the meeting at the Cross Roads, I commenced a protracted meeting at the Siddensburg Bethel, on the first day of February, which has now continued four weeks, and a good work has been done. Forty have been converted—15 baptized, and 35 taken into Church-fellowship. The Church now numbers 81 in all. A goodly number of the converts are heads of families, and are all doing well. Many of these dear brethren and sisters will no doubt be useful in the cause of our blessed Lord. I hope many of them will stand in our room, to defend the cause of God, when we are dead and in our graves.

Brothers Utley, Machlan, Bowser and Shaw have preached a few sermons during this revival; especially brother M. M. Utley has labored hard to forward the Redeemer's kingdom. The Lord bless him, and all the above-named brethren, for their labor of love.

Pray for me, dear brother, that I may be strong in the Lord, for I feel weak in body, having been but ten nights at home since I left the Eldership floor in October last. I preached about 80 sermons, besides exhortations and laboring with the sick, and with mourners, from house to house. May God strengthen me, both in soul and body, so that I may do all the good I can, the little time I may have yet to stay in this world of sorrow. No more at present, but remain your unworthy and affectionate brother and fellow-laborer until death. JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

Lewisberry, York Co., Pa., March 4, 1851.

Letter from Bro. Levi Merkel.

Near Shiremanstown, Pa.,
21st Feb., 1851.

Brother Winebrenner:—

Inclosed you have the money for the next volume of the Advocate, and at the same time a few thoughts for its readers, provided you think proper to give them a place.

In the 2d Epistle of Peter 3: 11 is contained, "Seeing that all these things shall be dissolved," &c. Now, this we know in a general sense, and in the understanding; but do we rightly and particularly lay it to heart? Let us once take each in particular somewhat closer into consideration.

Our yards, our lots, our gardens, our meadows, our groves and fields which we now cultivate with so much trouble and care, and with which our eyes are often delighted in our walks through the same: all these things shall be dissolved when we dissolve and die, or even before then; and what we look upon today as our own, will belong to another on tomorrow—our documents of emption or inheritance which we now save so carefully, he taketh to himself who succeeds us.

Our great or small houses, our convenient rooms wherein we have been dwelling many long years, the very places where we worked, rested, dined, and shall I say served God, or shall I say sinned? All these things shall be dissolved—soon we shall be carried out—others will fill our places; and if any pass in future, they will say, here A. B. used to dwell. And where will we then dwell, when people thus speak?

Our elegant or necessary bousehold furniture, which we adorn so much, and which claims much of our attention to keep in order; onr apparel and fine clothing, and whatever any one may have hid in chests and trunks, that is considered valuable and desirable: all these things shall be dissolved. Although thieves or war, fire or water take them not from us; still the moth, the rust, the rottenness and the worms will destroy them; and ourselves also, together with the winding-sheet, as the only and last of all these things that is given with us.

Do we possess riches, money and goods, a stock for many years? This treasure, which we have sought with so much labor and trouble, and now preserve with so much care and anxiety: all these things shall be dissolved. In a short time our souls shall be required of us—and whose shall it be, which we have gathered? A high station of honor among men, a considerable charge, and important service which we may render in this world, and even should we rise to the dignity and power of the presidency of this great nation: all these things shall be dissolved. In a short time the skeleton of a President can no more be distinguished from the bones of a beggar. Are we highly regarded of others, beloved, praised and flattered by them? All these things shall be dissolved, after a few days, and henceforth during an endless eternity it will be forgotten how we appeared in the eyes of men, and how we figured in this perishable world. Oh foolishness! Oh vanity! How many are forgotten and despised here who will appear in glory there; and how many are considered religious and pious in life, and pronounced blessed and happy in death, whom the Lord will not know in that day! All these things, and all these verdicts of men, shall be dissolved, and we must stand before the judgment and hear sentence of a holy and righteous God. Have we friends and relations; surely these are dear and precious things—things that afford us joy in life, comfort in our sufferings, and a support in old age—things that lie near our hearts, yea, even in our hearts. Alas! all these things shall be dissolved. We must leave our nearest and dearest upon earth, and if God is not our friend, we must, without any other friend to accompany us, go into eternity. Have we personal beauty, health, vigor, a good appetite and a (so called) firm bodily constitution: all these things must be dissolved—are so firm that the most insignificant incident may destroy them. Have we by nature or by diligence acquired good parts and gifts; have we ingenuity, learning, knowledge and wisdom in natural or even in spiritual things: all these things shall be dissolved; because knowledge, tongues and prophecies will finally cease and be done away as imperfect. All that we do in this world shall be dissolved: the most trifling that the day-laborer does—the most considerable that great men achieve. In the grave whither we are going, "there is neither work nor device, knowledge nor wisdom." What we do shall be dissolved: but "how" we do all things will be found in due time. The vain and evil that worldly persons do, think, speak or desire; the lust of the eye, the lust of the flesh, and the pride of life: all these things shall be dissolved. A burden they will reap therefrom. "He that soweth to the flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption."

The good and exercise of godliness that the children of God do, make, think, speak or desire; their prayers and tears, their denyings and sacrifices, their labors of love and sufferings; now these things also shall be dissolved; yes, they will pass away, but only as a good seed, out of which in due time a glorious fruit will grow up. All the suffering and joy of this life—all fortune, or misfortune, (so called,) days of prosperity and adversity, all that we meet with until death: it passeth away as a dream. In short, all that we here see with our eyes, we shall very soon see no more. These heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat. The earth also, and the works therein, shall be burned up. Also we ourselves; this our life shall vanish away as a vapor; and if this our life shall pass away, which hangs on a brittle thread, then all these things to us are already dissolved. Seeing, then, that all these things shall be dissolved, should not our heart say with the holy Peter, "What manner of persons ought we to be in all holy conversation and godliness?" The only thing that will be available in life and in death, will be holy conversation and godliness; and when all other things shall be dissolved, still this one thing will remain, and accompany us through death into a never-ending eternity.

Your brother,
LEVI MERKEL.

Letter from Bro. J. Myers.

PART I.

Ashland, Ohio, Feb. 21, 1851.

Dear Brother:—

This may inform you and the readers of the Advocate of the sayings and doings of some of the individual Churches and ministers in Ohio.

The various protracted meetings of this winter are pretty near over, hence as far as I have personal knowledge and information or otherwise, I may give you information concerning the results thereof. These meetings were extended over considerable territory,—as such, my attendance on them has been very much circumscribed.

Our old Ohio pioneer, Elder Wm. Adams, has not rested much on his lees this past year, and especially this winter. The consequences of his ministerial peregrinations have been quite cheering and encouraging. Among the Churches specially blessed by his visits and labors, was that of Smithville, Wayne county. The meeting there was protracted several weeks—many were the anxious enquirers at the altar—many found the pearl of great price, were immersed and united in church-fellowship.

Subsequently a meeting was held near Leakville, Ashland county, by Elder Neil, without, however, much visible good having been done. The good seed sown will evetually germinate, no doubt.

A little later a protracted meeting was held at the Brick Meeting-house, near Reedsburg, likewise under the supervision of brother Jas. Neil—brothers D. Neidigh and David Gill being also in attendance. I had the pleasure of being with them on Sunday after Christmas, and preaching a sermon in the evening to a crowded house of attentive hearers. Subsequently they continued the meeting for weeks, having a number of conversions, baptisms and accessions to the Church.

From there brother Neil proceeded to hold a series of meetings at Blooming Grove, Richland county; but subsequent information showed that probably a lack of faith impeded much good being done there. In a week from that a protracted meeting commenced at Vermillion Church, Ashland county. Circumstances rendered it convenient for me to preach three times there, on different evenings during the week. However, from some undefined cause, the anxious brethren and sisters were not gratified to see their wishes realized in the conversion of sinners. Still, the meetings were interesting, edifying and instructive to members and others. At this meeting Elders D. Gill and D. Neidigh attended, and spoke to acceptance once or twice.

I may as well now mention that brother D. Neidigh has been missionating through Ohio this winter, and has brought us the gratifying news that several revivals have attended his labors, and Churches organized, even as far West as Upper Sandusky.

On the 8th inst. our protracted meeting at brother John Briggle's house began. Here brothers Neil and Adams attended. But the rainy weather, muddy roads, and the great excitement at the Lutheran Church in Ashland, was probably the cause that this meeting was not more fully attended. However, with all this, a goodly number still attended. The ordinances of Feet-washing and the Communion were attended to on Monday evening, a new Church of some 13 members organized, and the faith of true believers strengthened.

To God he all the praise. The rainy weather still continuing, and the roads getting almost impassable, the meeting was dismissed on Thursday evening. The good that was done here, may he revealed and realized hereafter. It is not necessary for us to know every thing on the spot, although we would like it very much. However, God knows best.

At Wooster, too, they have had considerable reviving seasons. The old missionary Howard has preached considerable for them this winter. They had also a protracted meeting, commencing on the 8th inst., the results of which I have not yet learned. Business happened to lead me there on the 9th inst., being their fast-day. The evening was appointed for a general prayer-meeting. But, as I happened to arrive unexpectedly, I was solicited to speak to them. This I did with some reluctance. Being for a special prayer season, I preached on the text, "Pray without ceasing." I had liberty, and felt that it was not altogether in vain. Farewell.

J. MYERS.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Letter from Bro. Wm. Vance.

DESMOIN Co., Iowa, Feb. 9, 1851.

DEAR BROTHER WINERBENNER:—

I EMBRACE the opportunity of communicating a few things for the Church Advocate, if you think it worthy of a place in its columns.

We are still trying to go on in the good ways of the Lord, and truly his ways are pleasant to the Christian. Six families of us have located close neighbors, 12 miles due west from Burlington. Here we commenced laboring for God, to the best of our ability. We got the privilege of holding meeting in a School-house, every two weeks, which opportunity we improved in preaching, and between times in holding prayer-meetings. We have some very interesting meetings.

I organized a Church consisting of eight members: Brother Christian Dillinger Elder; brother Christian Landis Deacon. I have kept up my regular appointments, on to the present. Our congregations are on the increase. The house is generally crowded, and from the appearance some good has been effected; and I think there can be a people gathered for the Lord in this neighborhood, if the right means are made use of. The Church of God seems to be something strange to the people here. They wondered what her principles were; accordingly I tried to present them. The result has been, as is generally the case, some fell in love with them—others fell out with them.

There are numbers of religionists in this country. There are Methodists, Baptists and Congregationalists; and some of them seem to be well fortified. They have handsome, big meeting-houses, and our ears are frequently saluted with their church-bells. Yet true piety seems to he wanting, upon the part of many professors here.

We are happy to learn that the brethren in Pennsylvania are making efforts to send missionaries to Illinois and Iowa. We do hope and pray that God will bless the efforts made use of by the brethren, and reward them fourfold in this world, and with eternal life hereafter, for their labor of love. We would say to those that have volunteered, or that shall be sent to Iowa, don't be discouraged, or think that you will not find good-hearted brethren in Iowa. The little Church here are all anxious to have a missionary sent here. They are all willing to support him, so far as they can. I know that all are willing to divide with the preacher.

Old brother Landis, especially, is anxious that a preacher be sent us. His house was the preacher's home in Pennsylvania, and so it is in Iowa. His house is open for their reception at any time, and not only his house, but his heart, and money purse, too, is open to administer to their wants. He is a whole-hearted Christian. He aims to he governed by principles of right. I know that all will do their duty. There are a number of brethren scattered through this country, and all will do something for the missionaries. May God bless his ministers, and send them forth in the spirit of Christ. A great harvest is here, but laborers are few, at least of the right kind.

Brother Winehrenner, the Advocate is a welcome visitor with us: only it comes somewhat irregular. Why it is so, I cannot tell. I expect to send a few subscribers for the Advocate before long.

Yours in the bonds of love,

WM. VANCE.

Letter from Bro. John Hickernell.

VENANGO COUNTY, Pa., Feb. 18, 1851.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

THE time is coming when it is expected that I shall leave the Venango Church, and go to the appointment assigned me hy the Eldership. It may he of some interest to you to know something relative to the spiritual state of the Church here.

Last fall, in coming to this place, I found things as represented, so far as division and spiritual sloth was concerned; but the cause of the evil I shall keep in my own mind for the present. I have been laboring for the removal of the cause, and if we can judge from effects, the cause is rapidly terminating.—Numbers have heen confessing to God and to one another, and are praying for one another, that they may be healed. Among those the work of grace is reviving, and they are coming up to the work of the Lord, and the Lord is hlessing their lahors: sinners and backsliders are falling down at the altar for prayer and mercy.

We commenced a meeting on the 15th ult. On Sabhath evening seven were out at the altar for prayer, three of which professed hope in Christ. The meeting is still in progress. Five in all have professed saving grace, and the interest is still on the rise. It would do you good to be here and see the difference now and when you were here yourself. Love is abounding, zeal is inflaming, and the work is going on pleasantly. A few, but very few, are standing back. I hope, however, they may pursue a similar course with others, and catch the hallowed flame, and be happy in God.

Brother Hovis and myself held a meeting with the Church in Rockland township. Six or eight professed a hope in Christ.

We are still looking for brother Plowman to come on to his circuit. A goodly number of brethren are anxious to see him. We hope there will be no failure, We want men that will work. We have plenty of such that are satisfied with no appointments, and some that will fill from two to three. I say again, we wish to have such in our Western territory that will give themselves entirely to the ministry, and prove that they have been called of God by their works. It is true, we have a few whose circumstances will not admit of them taking a circuit. How it is that men can profess to he called of God to preach the Gospel, and remain at home Sahbath after Sabhath, and not preach scarcely a sermon in two month, I know not.

Yours in love,

JOHN HICKERNELL.

Letter from Bro. Wm. Johnston.

MARCH 3, 1851.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

SINCE I saw you last, my afflicted wife has gone to her eternal home. She died rejoicing in hope of the glory of God.

It is now my purpose, the Lord willing, to go to Washington circuit as early in April as I possihly can; and my sincere prayer to God is, that the Great Head of the Church may go with me, and make me as instrumental (Oh! yes, and more so,) in turning sinners from the error of their ways, and of reviving and encouraging the hearts of his dear children there, as I have been during the past winter in other places.

During the winter, I laid aside every other business, and as a Missionary went forth, declaring the glad tiding of the kingdom according to the hest of my weak ahilities, taking the word and promises of God for my rule, guide, and support, and blessed he the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, I have lacked for nothing—my family has heen well supported—I have seen many souls converted—the sons and daughters of Zion rejoicing—and my own soul and hody made so happy, that I could with the poet sing,

"My willing soul would stay
In such a frame as this,
And sit and sing herself away
To everlasting bliss."

And so I intend to go on, devoting my life to the dear Redeemer's cause, if my Heavenly Father permits me, he my days many or few. Pray for me, dear hrother, and may the God of all grace supply you with all needful hlessings while life shall last, and at its close, grant you a happy lot with all the sanctified, is the prayer of Yours in Christ,

WM. JOHNSTON.

Letter from Bro. J. Stomm.

HINKLETOWN, Pa., March 1, 1851.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

I SEE that the Lord is reviving his work all around, almost, except at our place. On the second of February I had three appointments; but owing to the great work at Mount Joy, I lifted my appointments, and started off for that place. On my arrival there I stopped with brother Miller. When I travelled on the Lebanon Circuit, brother Miller and wife were the first husband and wife that I baptized. They are yet among the faithful. I stayed at Mount Joy over Sunday, and left on Monday.

On Saturday, the 8th of February, I went to Adamstown, to assist hrother Keller to hold a meeting.

Brother Winehrenner, I cannot describe the meeting we had. However, brother Keller thought it was just before the break of day when it is the darkest. Would to God it was so, for it was very dark indeed. There is no want of sectarianism there. I left brother Keller on Monday—he stayed a few days.

On Saturday, the 15th, I left home for Martic, to help brother Price at the meeting, in that new house of worship, near Hoober's mill. I met hrothers Price and Sandoe in Lancaster—took dinner with our friend Carpenter—started for Martic, (the roads heing awful,) and after a wearisome journey, we arrived safe. Went up to the house in the evening—met with the Church and people of the neighborhood in that new house. On Snnday morning, after preaching, the money subject came up. After the usnal collection was taken up, the pledge list was introduced. When the meeting was closed, we fonnd that 40-odd dollars were collected. In the afternoon the same course was pursued; also in the evening. After the services were closed, we found that the collections and pledges were between 70 and 75 dollars.

The house is 30 by 30. According to the congregation, they exceeded every thing I have yet heard of. On Monday hrother Price and myself left again. Brother Sandoe remained there.

On Sunday morning, the 23d of February, I left for Eden, to fill my appointments, morning and evening. Eden is a place three miles from Lancaster city, at the New Holland turnpike. Mr. Buckwalter, from our place, moved there. His wife and mother-in-law are praiseworthy for their steadfastness, humility and lahor of love, while with the Church at Hinkletown. With them I shared many a hlessing, and they with me. They seemed to enjoy themselves while setting under my feeble voice. The Lord bless them at Eden. May they not taste nor handle forhidden things, but may they hecome a blessing to the people of Eden, while there—Amen. This place is as it has been for years. Yours, &c.,

J. STOMM.

Letter from Bro. Geo. Thomas.

WABASH Co., Indiana, Jan. 22, 1851.

DEAR BROTHER:—

I THINK it necessary to let the brethren in the North of my Circnit know what detained me so long from them. In the first place, myself and family have went through a serious affliction, which resulted in the loss of a heloved little danghter. Until very lately, we have had a very serious time of affliction, which has taken up my time, and involved me in doubts and difficulties, which I have been laboring to meet, before I could start again.

But now my family are all well again, for which we feel very thankful to the good Lord, and trusting to God, and my benevolent brethren on my travelling ground, to help me in my difficulties, I shall start this day to blow the gospel trumpet to the Churches, and a dying world. But, brethren, much depends on your aid in this matter.

During my stay at home, I have been preaching through the country, and held a large meeting in our own neighborhood, which resulted in a time of refreshing to the brethren, and the conversion of three souls to the Lord

Yours, &c., GEO. THOMAS.

Expectations in Iowa.

WE are very glad to see in the Advocate, that there is a prospect for a preacher or two to come to Iowa. I think that they can do well here. The harvest is ripe, and the laborers are few. Come, brothers, come, and the Lord will pay you for your labor. I will give five dollars, and there are others that will give more than myself.

Yours in Christ,

JOSEPH B. NICKEL.

Letter from Bro. John C. Foor.

PATTONSVILLE, Bedford Co., Pa., March 4, 1851.

DEAR BROTHER WINEBRENNER: —

I would ask, if it is possible that you with some of your travelling brethren, could not give us a call and preach for us in our place. We have no preaching here, that is worth-while going to hear. There are German Reformed, Methodists and Dunkers here; and they preach, it is true; but their preaching is to me like pouring cold water on a lump of ice, on a cold winter's day, that only increases the lump, by freezing and making it larger. Such preaching and such religion will not stand in the great day of accounts. So if you can send us some one, send us one that will give us the thus saith the Lord, and whose preaching is attended with the energy of the Spirit of the Lord.

I was glad when I saw in the Journal of your last Eldership, that there were two of the most able brethren to travel as missionaries. I thought they surely would be through this place; but I have not seen them yet.

Could it not be, that the brother that travels the circuit, that includes Martinsburg, could call and give us a sermon? I do think that if yourself, or brother Keller, or some other strong brother, would call here, there might be much good done, and some poor souls brought to see their danger, and fly to the outstretched arms of bleeding mercy. If they should come, let them call on me in Pattonsville, Morrison's Cove, Pa. I truly remain your brother and fellow-traveller in the Lord till death. Yours truly,

JOHN C. FOOR.

Letter from Bro. D. Kyle.

MARTINSBURG, Pa., March 5, 1851.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

I got home last evening from holding meeting eight miles east of Huntingdon, near the canal. This is a new place, and the people seemed anxious to hear what we had to say. I preached as plain as possible, the true faith of the Gospel, and kept nothing back. One was happily saved. This appointment will fall to brother Fenton, and it is as good an appointment as is on his ground. Those who got me to hold the meeting do not profess Christ, but desire meeting.

Yours, &c., D. KYLE.

OBITUARY OF Sister MATILDA COALTER.

DEPARTED this life, on the 7th of February, 1851, in Berry township, Schuylkill county, Pa., Sister MATILDA COALTER, consort of Elder Wilson George Coalter, aged 23 years, 9 months and 19 days.

Sister Coalter was a daughter of Elijah and Hannah Yarnall. At a very early period of life she sought and obtained favor with God. She was baptized by immersion by Bro. Libe, a very able and intelligent minister of the Evangelical Church.

Though sister Coalter had at one time suffered the love of God to leak out of her soul, yet, nevertheless, about three years previous to her death, she returned again to the Bishop and Shepherd of her soul. From that time on she was frequently made happy in the service of God, so as to rejoice and shout for joy and gladness, that her name was written in heaven. However, for the last twelve months, she has, by a lingering Consumption, been confined to her bed.

She bore her affliction with Christian patience and resignation to the will of heaven. She would often say, O I wish my time was out, that the Lord would take me home. She sometimes exhorted those that were standing around her dying couch, to serve the Lord with full purpose of soul, and try to meet her in heaven.

On the 9th of February, 1851, at 10 o'clock, her remains were followed by a large concourse of people to the sepulchral ground, and consigned to the grave.

Funeral services by Elder John Hepler, from Phil. 1: 21, and Rev. Mr. Dicker, of the Evangelical Association, followed in exhortation. W.

February 18, 1851.

OBITUARY OF Sister Sarah Elizabeth Barr.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

I FEEL that it is due to you, who kindly visited my daughter during her affliction, and the public in general, that I should say something respecting the cause of my daughter's affliction, inasmuch as it has been industriously circulated all over the town that she came to her death by being baptized in the river last fall. Of this report I leave you and all to judge, after I state the facts in her case, and give you a short sketch of her life and triumphant death.

SARAH ELIZABETH, eldest daughter of Washington and Ann Eliza Barr, was born February 28th, 1831, and died February 28th, 1851, aged 20 years.

In the winter of 1850, during the revival in the Methodist E. Church, she made up her mind fully to seek the Lord. Accordingly, she approached the altar of prayer, some twenty nights in succession, before she obtained relief. Some, indeed, would fain have persuaded her that she had found peace and was blessed, but this did not satisfy her. At length, however, she obtained the pearl of great price; and never, from that hour to the day of her death, did she doubt her conversion.

Some time in the beginning of May last, whilst amusing herself with the children in the evening, she was suddenly taken with a hemorrhage or bleeding from the lungs. By prompt treatment, this was arrested. It was, however, but a few weeks, until she received a second, and a third attack, which was also arrested. But a hacking cough followed, which finally settled on her lungs. During the latter part of the summer she often complained of feeling very unwell, and coughed much at night.

After she experienced religion, she had a longing and anxious desire to be baptized, and often spoke with the minister and brethren about it. From her youth up, she was convinced that immersion was the proper mode of baptism. Several sermons were preached in the E. M. Church, against the necessity of baptism by immersion; the minister arguing that sprinkling would answer every purpose. But failing to convince her, she made application to be baptized sometime about the last of September, when Dr. Hodgson consented to immerse her, together with another lady that had also embraced religion, and likewise refused to be baptized in any other way than by immersion. For some time before that, she complained much of being very unwell. Her mother suggested the propriety of having it put off until summer, when it would be warm. She replied that brother Hodgson would then be gone; to which her mother replied, well, you can get brother Winebrenner. You always loved him as a good man. Yes, said she, but she might not live till that time; and she preferred brother Hodgson, as he had never immersed any, and she had got religion under his labors.

Accordingly, on Sabbath afternoon, the 13th of October, she was baptized by Dr. Hodgson, in the presence of some thousand witnesses. For two or three weeks after her baptism, her health appeared much better. We heard no complaint, until the latter part of November, when she came home from prayer-meeting, being in the damp basement of the church. That night she took the chills, and fever followed, which continued until within a few days of her death, occasionally leaving her for a few days, and then returning again. When she commenced taking medicine, it would have no effect. She expressed her regret for the reports which had got in circulation about her being injured by her baptism. By it she was rather benefitted than otherwise.

During her affliction she was never heard to murmur or complain, but at all times manifested a willingness to go and be with the Lord. She bore her affliction with Christian patience and resignation. Death was no terror. She conversed freely on the subject of death, exhorting all to prepare to meet their God, and her in heaven. She gave directions respecting her funeral, and told us not to go in mourning for her, but that we should rejoice, that she was going happy. Friday, the day she died, was her birth day. She often wondered whether she would live to see that day. The evening before she died, the friends were assembled around her bed-side, expecting every moment to be her last. Her voice ceased to be heard, but her lips lisped the praise of her Redeemer. She would occasionally raise her hand, and with her finger point towards her promised rest. Then her friends commenced singing, "On Jordan's stormy banks I stand," &c., (her favorite hymn,) when all at once she revived, and could be distinctly heard singing or repeating every word of that beautiful hymn. When we sung the last verse,—

"Fill'd with delight, my raptur'd soul
Would here no longer stay;
Tho' Jordan's waves around me roll,
Fearless I'd launch away,"— it appeared as though her poor frail body could hardly retain her happy spirit. The next morning I approached her bed-side. She reached out her hand and requested me to feel her pulse, and wished to know whether she would soon go home. I told her that she might last till about noon. Bless the Lord, said she, a few more hours, and I will get home. Home, sweet home, sweet home!

"Jerusalem, my happy home,
Oh how I long for thee."

A short time before she died, some of her young associates came to see her, and bid her a last farewell. To them she spoke feelingly, exhorting them all to prepare to meet their God. "O!" said she, "what would I have done, if I had put off seeking the Lord until I got on my death-bed!"

To her mother she said, "Weep not for me, dear mother, we shall meet again! What would I do, mother, if you were in my place? I can better be spared than you."

"Dear father," she said to me, "you have been kind to me. You love me. I am going home. Oh, be faithful! Read your Bible—pray with the family, and we shall all meet again." In this happy state of mind she continued, anxious to be going, until 20 minutes of one o'clock, when she closed her eyes, and with a smile breathed her life out sweetly in the arms of her Saviour.

'Tis finished, the conflict is past,
Her wish is accomplished at last;
The months of affliction are o'er,
We see her in anguish no more.
The victory now is obtained,
Her wishes she fully has gained;
Then let us forbear to complain,
We soon shall behold her again.

The heaven-born spirit has fled,
And now she's entomb'd with the dead;
The days and the nights of distress,
She's gained her happy release.
She's gone her dear Saviour to see,
She's now where she longed to be;
That she's now gone from our sight,
With new and redoubled delight.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." On the Sabbath following, at 3 o'clock, she was followed to the grave by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. After singing, (as she requested,) the Rev. Dr. DeWitt addressed the large audience in a very plain and feeling manner, addressing himself particularly to the young. Dr. Hodgson, her pastor, offered up a solemn prayer. And in the evening he preached a sermon in the church, on her conversion and happy death, relating part of the above incidents; which, it is to be hoped, left a lasting impression on the minds of his crowded audience. W. B.

OBITUARY OF Sister SARAH FETROW.

DIED, in Fishing Creek Valley, near the Cross Roads, York county, Pa., Sister SARAH FETROW, wife of brother Daniel Fetrow, aged 40 years, 4 months and 28 days.

Sister Sarah embraced religion at the time of the great revival at the Cross Roads, eight years past, in the year 1843, under the pastoral labors of Henry Fishing, who was then preaching at that place. She was converted in the very corner of her house where she died, and from which we hope she went to Heaven, for she died in the full triumphs of faith, bidding her husband and dear children a long farewell, after which she fell sweetly asleep in the arms of her Redeemer.

In the death of this dear sister, the Church of God at the Cross Roads has lost an honorable member, her husband a kind companion and her dear children a loving and tender-hearted mother, who always, like an administering angel, would minister to their wants, in health or affliction.

She left a husband, three children, and a great many good friends, to mourn her departure. A discourse was delivered by the writer, from Job 14: 14, to a large and weeping congregation; after which her mortal body was conveyed to Grissinger's grave-yard, near Lewisberry. May God sanctify this afflicting dispensation of his Providence to the good of all her dear friends, and the community in general, is my sincere prayer to God.

JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

OBITUARY OF Sister Elizabeth Johnston.

DIED, on the 20th ult., at Manchester, Carroll county, Md., after suffering severely with a cancer in the breast, for about two years, Sister ELIZABTH JOHNSTON, consort of Elder

Wm. Johnston, of the Church of God. Her age was 39 years and 12 days.

Sister Johnston made a profession of religion at the age of sixteen, among the Baptists in Philadelphia, and from that time to the day of her death, she lived a pious and exemplary life, adorning the doctrine of God her Saviour by an upright life and conversation.

After her husband united with the East Pennsylvania Eldership of the Church of God, she also united with the brethren of the little Church at Sandy Mount, in this county, when that Church was organized. Although that was the first and last opportunity she ever had of engaging in social worship with the Church, yet she was strongly attached to its views and principles, believing them to be the fundamental principles of the everlasting Gospel.

But she is gone! and no doubt to the Church triumphant, as she died rejoicing in hope of the glory of God.

"Happy soul, thy days are ended,
All thy mourning days below;
Go, by angel-guards attended,
To the arms of Jesus, go."

The funeral services were performed by Elder Snyder, of the United Brethren.

By her son,
FRANCIS D. DECKER.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Revivals in a College.—The Presbyterian of the West, of February 13, has the following in its editorial columns:

REVIVAL IN OXFORD.—In our last number, we mentioned the fact, that an interesting revival of religion is now in progress in Oxford. By a letter from President Anderson, we learn, that it is a work of great power, and that the interest continues unabated.

There have been fifty cases of hopeful conversions, and more than one hundred anxious inquirers. Thus far, the revival has been mainly in the College and in Dr. Scott's Female Seminary, four-fifths of those interested being connected with these Institutions, and a majority of the whole, with the College. "But few," Dr. Anderson remarks, "are left among us, who are wholly indifferent. The Spirit seems to have taken possession of our halls. Many of the most promising young men are among the converts." Truly these are glad tidings of great joy. Such a revival in such Institutions is a blessing not to be fully estimated. May the good work go forward with yet greater power.

Improvement in the Manufacture of Paper. N. Adolph Roque, a French gentleman now in New York, has succeeded, it is said, after many years of patient investigation, in adapting to the manufacture of paper, fibres of certain filaceous plants, especially the banana and cloes. By this improvement, the present costly, laborious, wasteful and patchy "rag" process may be superseded by a raw material, easily procurable in large quantities, and susceptible of being safely and economically worked into a clear, strong, and durable texture.

Locusts.—A writer in a Baltimore paper says that this year is the time for the appearance of the seventeen year locusts, particularly in the States of Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Delaware.—They will begin to leave the ground about the 20th of May.

Christians Sentenced to Death in Madagascar. In June last, eight thousand Christians at Imrena, being assembled together one evening, in different places, engaged in religious exercises, were all arrested and condemned to death. Eighteen of them had already been executed, when all the rest found means of escape, fled to the palace of the Prince, and implored his protection. The Prince took them under his care. The fact having come to the knowledge of the Queen, she ordered her grand marshal and first minister, Rainnaro, to convey her orders to the Prince, her son, to surrender all these Christians for execution. The grand marshal proceeded to intimate this order to the Prince, who refused to obey it, declaring that the Christians were under his protection, and that if any one had the hardihood to force his palace, with a view to their seizure, he would put him instantly to death.

High words then took place between the Prince and the grand marshal, the latter intimating to the former that he was acting in open rebellion to the Queen, his mother. The Prince becoming impatient, and having strong motives for resentment against the grand marshal, drew his sword and aimed a blow at his head. It struck him on one side of the head, and cut off one of his ears. The generals present came to the rescue of the grand marshal, as the Prince was about to put an end to him. When the Queen heard of what had taken place, she squashed the whole affair, fearing a revolution at Imrena, for she knows that all the Aukova youths are partizans of the Prince, and that he is beloved by all the people and the army. The Christians are now in safety, and assemble themselves together in the evening, the government shutting its eyes to everything.

Population of Pennsylvania.—According to a statement published by the Superintendent of the Census in the National Intelligencer, Pennsylvania has a population of 2,341,204. This is about 20,000 more than has generally been allowed her, and indicates an increase, in ten years, of 617,-171—or nearly thirty per cent. She will gain one member of Congress, while New York will lose one, and Ohio will only retain her present number. None of the old States have increased in any thing like the ratio of Pennsylvania. The statement in the Intelligencer makes the population of the Union 20,067,720 free, and 3,070,-734 slaves; total 24,138,554. Pennsylvania contains more than one-tenth of the population.—Journal.

Important Discovery.—We learn from the Honesdale Democrat, that Mr. E. White, of that place, has succeeded in constructing a furnace by which glass is manufactured with no other fuel than anthracite coal. The result, adds the Democrat, is so completely satisfactory that Mr. J. Brokfield, the proprietor of the Glass-works, has dismissed all his wood-choppers, intending as soon as the fires are extinguished for the coming season, to rebuild his furnaces upon Mr. White's plan. Anthracite coal has never heretofore been used in any part of the world in the manufacture of glass.—Journal.

The McDonough Will Case.—NEW ORLEANS, Monday, February 17th.—In the McDonough will case the Judge has just given his decision in favor of the cities of Baltimore and New Orleans, and against the State of Louisiana and Maryland.

Iowa Legislature.—Rates of interest upon money have been abolished by the Legislature of Iowa. Parties are left free to pay what they please, the law interfering only so far as to compel the fulfilment of the contract, whatever it may be. The Legislature of Iowa has passed a law prohibiting the immigration of negroes, and requiring them to leave the State upon three days' notice of the law, under certain penalties. And also to abolish capital punishment.

A Large Builder.—A New York paper says that Wm. B. Astor, Esq., has contracted for the erection of one hundred and fifty first class tenement houses, principally on Fortieth street and vicinity and between Eighth and Ninth avenues. This is the largest building contract we ever heard of in the United States.

The Benefits of Cheap Postage.—The gross revenue of the British Post-office for the year ending January 5, 1850, was £2,-213,149; the cost of management £1,-307,248; the net revenue £840,787.—The number of money orders issued 4,-248,891. The number of letters transmitted, between 3 and 400,000,000!

Mrs. Judson on her way Home.—The latest intelligence represents the health of Mrs. Judson as very enfeebled, and so reduced that she feels compelled to leave Burmah and return to her native land. It states that probably she is now on her way home. Three children will accompany her.

Proscription of Clergymen.—In the Virginia Constitutional Convention, now sitting, the Committee upon the subject of qualifications for members of the State Assembly, have made a report, one clause of which disqualifies "ministers of the gospel and priests of every denomination" from holding seats.

New Counties.—The Iowa Legislature has passed bills organizing no less than FIFTY new counties, at its present session!

MISCELLANEOUS.

An Episcopal M. Minister Ordained a Baptist.

A correspondent of the N. Y. Recorder writing from Williamson, communicates the following information:—

Dr. Benjamin McSouth, of long standing among the Methodists, as a preacher of that order over twenty-five years, of good report and excellent gifts, was recently ordained as an evangelist, according to Baptist faith and order, thus to preach the gospel of the blessed Jesus to a perishing world. Brother McSouth is favorably known in this Association, and in many other parts. He bears good letters of high commendation from the Methodist Church and clergy, and his labors heretofore have been signally blessed.

"GOD'S WORK MUST BE DONE."

A poor negro one day brought a sum of money to his missionary and pressed him to take it for the missionary society. The missionary had his reasons for wishing him to wait a little, till he was better able to give so large a sum. The poor man, however, at once replied with great earnestness, "No! no!! God's work must be done, and I may be dead."

Work, reader, while it is to-day. God's work must be done, and very soon you may be dead!

POETRY.

The Philosopher's Stone.

BY H. J. BEYERLE.

'Tis said there lived, in times of old,
A man well versed in Wisdom's funds,
Who turned the rock to solid gold,
And pebbles into diamonds!

His head was silver-white with age,
And many furrows marked his face;
His features well betrayed the sage,
The man of meekness, man of grace.

And though his kind and tender heart
Has long since ceased to thrill his breast,
Yet do we know the magic art
This sapient man of old possessed.

Be honest, was his first great rule;
Deal uprightly with ev'ry one,
And then thy list of friends is full
When some bewail the last one gone.

Industrious, thou too must be;
Spend not an hour in idleness;
Be like an ever-bearing tree,
And thou wilt meet with all success.

Frugality, must have a share,
Within thy flaming, active mind;
Of what thou earnest have a care,
Give not a penny undesigned.

Let these three principles be thine:—
Work, save, be honest, until old,
And thou wilt have a fruitful mine
Of diamonds and solid gold!

Linglestown, Pa., 1851.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 7th inst., by Elder C. Price, Mr. JOHN KELLER to Miss ELIZABETH HOOVER, both of Lancaster county, Pa.

On the 18th ult., by Elder D. Kyle, Mr. DAVID L. KEAGY, of Bedford county, to Miss SUSAN NEWCOMER, of Perry county, Pa.

On the 27th ult., by Elder Henry Murray, Mr. ISAAC DEARDORF to Miss ELIZABETH STULLENBERGER, both of Stark county, Ohio.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—At Highspire, Dauphin county, Pa., on the 22d ult., MICHAEL LONG, in the 69th year of his age.

On the 16th of February, of Scarlet Fever, DANIEL FREDERICK, only son of Brother John and Sister Margaret Benedict, both members of the Church of God at this place, aged 4 years, 8 months and 27 days.

The deceased was an affectionate and interesting child. None that saw him could refrain from admiring him—none that knew him could avoid loving him. From the death of this interesting child, we should learn the uncertainty of earthly blessings, the shortness of their duration, and the necessity of being ready when our change comes.

Blooming innocence, adieu,
Quickly ended is thy race;
Thee caught up to heaven we view,
Clasped in Jesus' soft embrace,
Free from sorrow, grief and pain,
There forever to remain.

Transient sojourner thou wast,
Born to travel to the sky;
Just the Saviour's cup to taste,
Just to suffer and to die;
Then thy spirit took its flight,
Soaring to the realms of light.

Fayetteville, February, 1851. W. M.

Near Siddensburg, York county, Pa., of the Scarlet Rash, ELMIRA JANE MYERS, daughter of brother Samuel and Leah Myers, aged 3 years, 9 months and 12 days.

Funeral services by the writer, from Rev. 14: 13. JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

On the 5th of February, 1851, SARAH ELIZABETH BIGLEY, aged 10 years, 3 months and 21 days.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

A protracted meeting will commence at Elcock's School-house on Saturday evening, the 29th of March.

Another will commence at the Andersonstown Bethel, on Saturday evening, the 5th of April.

Another will commence at the Cross Roads on Good Friday, the 18th of April.

JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

Missionary Subscriptions and Donations:

FOR sustaining five Missionaries in the West--two in Iowa and three in Illinois, during the next Eldership year, commencing with April, 1851, and ending with March, 1852.

Jno Winebrenner paid	$10 00	Abraham Swartz			$5 00
Wm Reichart paid	5 00	A Liberal Brother			20 00
Isaac Miller	10 00	A Liberal Sister paid			2 00
J H Hurley	5 00	David Strickler			5 00
Geo U Harn	5 00	James Casey			5 00
M F Shavely	10 00	Samuel M Hoover	paid		5 00
Jacob Miller	10 00	Susanna Myers	paid		4 00
James Miller	5 00	Charles F Long			5 00
S A Brumbaugh	5 00	Sarah Grove	paid		2 00
Thomas Strohm	5 00	Wm Brady			3 00
J B G Kinsloe	5 00	Daniel R Long			5 00
Abraham Sherrich paid	7 50	Dr Geo Ross	paid		10 00
Samuel Wagoner paid	5 00	Joseph B Nickel			5 00

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,

By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat,	per barrel,		$4 00	a	4	12½
Do. Rye,	do.	- -	2 50	a	2	50
Do. Corn,	do.	- -	2 37½	a	2	37½
GRAIN—Wheat,	per bushel,		85	a		87
Do. Rye,	do.	- -	56	a		66
Do. Corn,	do.	- -	46	a		46
Do. Oats,	do.	- -	33	a		33
Do. Barley,	do.	- -	70	a		75
SEEDS—Clover,	do.	- -	4 00	a	4	50
Do. Timothy,	do.	- -	2 00	a	2	25
Do. Flax,	do.	- -	1 25	a	1	25
BEEF, per cwt.		- - -	5 00	a	5	50
PORK, do.	-	- - -	5 50	a	5	50
HAMS, per pound,		- - -	10	a		12½
BUTTER, do.	-	- - -	20	a		25
LARD, do.	-	- - -	8	a		8
TALLOW, do.	-	- - -	8	a		10
HARD SOAP, (Dried)	per lb.		6	a		7
EGGS, per dozen,	-	- - - -	10	a		12½
POTATOES, per bushel,	-	-	50	a		62
ONIONS,	do.	- -	75	a		87½
APPLES,	do.	- - -	50	a		62½
PEACHES, (Dried)	per bush.		1 25	a	1	30
FEATHERS, per pound,	-	-	37½	a		45
WOOL,	do.	- - -	30	a		50
SALT, per sack,	-	- - - -	1 75	a	1	75
HAY, per ton,	-	- - - - -	10 00	a	10	00
PLASTER, per ton,	-	- - -	4 75	a	4	75

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat,	per barrel,		$4 50	a	4	75
Do. Rye,	do.	- -	3 00	a	3	00
Do. Corn,	do.	- -	3 00	a	3	00
GRAIN—Wheat,	per bushel,		95	a	1	10
Do. Rye,	do.	- -	68	a		70
Do. Corn,	do.	- -	59	a		60
Do. Oats,	do.	- -	41	a		42
Do. Barley,	do.	- -	85	a	1	00
SEEDS—Clover,	do.	- -	4 75	a	5	00
Do. Timothy,	do.	- -	2 50	a	2	62
Do. Flax,	do.	- -	1 40	a	1	50
BEEF, per cwt.,		- -	7 00	a	8	75
PORK, do.	-	- - - - -	7 00	a	7	25

WHITE HALL ACADEMY,

Three miles West of Harrisburg, Pa.

THIS Institution will be opened for the reception of Students on Monday, the 5th of May next. The course of instruction will embrace the various branches of a thorough English Education, together with the Latin, Greek, French and German Languages, and Vocal and Instrumental Music.

TERMS.

Boarding, Washing, Lodging and Tuition in the English branches, per session, (five months,) - - - - - - - - - - $50 00
Latin or Greek, - - - - - - - - 5 00
French or German, - - - - - - - 5 00
Instrumental Music, - - - - - - 10 00

For further information, address

D. DENLINGER,
March 15.—2m. Principal, Harrisburg.

Dr. Christie's

Galvanic Belt, Necklace, Bracelets, and Magnetic Fluid.

THE acknowledged and extraordinary curative powers of these wonderful inventions is now so generally known and their sales and reputation throughout the whole country so extensive, that it would seem unnecessary to urge their merits further. But some late circumstances have occurred which render it a matter of duty to the public not to be altogether silent, for while the ephemeral nostrums of the day are trumpeted by columns through the Press and swallowed by quarts and gallons by the afflicted, and are found just good for nothing,

Christie's Galvanic & Magnetic Curatives,

have been quietly working their way among the most intelligent and respectable classes, and are constantly achieving cures in an alarming train of diseases, which have for ages baffled all the aid of medicine and all the resources of Science. These diseases are called and in these diseases medicine is of no avail whatever. It never does good, and it often does harm. Syrups, Extracts, Balms, Balsams, Elixirs, Bitters, Pills, Powders and Potions of every kind are alike worthless, for they weaken the vital energies of the already prostrated system; while under the strengthening, life-giving, vitalizing influence of Galvanism, as applied by this beautiful discovery, the exhausted patient and weakened sufferer is restored to former health, strength, elasticity and vigor.

NERVOUS COMPLAINTS,

These remarks relate to such diseases as NEURALGIA, TIC DOLOREUX, BRONCHITIS, PALPITATION of the HEART, WEAKNESS, and all FEMALE DISORDERS, such as NERVOUS HEADACHE, LASSITUDE and DESPONDENCY, which are only other names for Nervous Derangement; EPILEPTIC FITS and CONVULSIONS, which are known to result from a non-equilibrium of Electric influence; NERVOUS TREMORS, DEAFNESS, which is nearly always caused by torpidity of the Auditory Nerves and can always be perfectly cured by Galvanism when the organ is not destroyed; DYSPEPSIA, in its worst forms; PALSY and PARALYSIS, uniformly caused by a deficiency of Nervous influence; CHRONIC RHEUMATISM, TORPIDITY of the LIVER, PAIN in the SIDE, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION, SPINAL and HIP COMPLAINTS, DEFICIENCY of NERVOUS and PHYSICAL ENERGY, and all those distressing complaints resulting from a DERANGEMENT of the NERVOUS SYSTEM.

In the above prevalent and terrible class of diseases and Nervous Complaints which are much more numerous than is generally imagined—

CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES,

Are an Absolute and Positive Specific.

The BELT is used when the body or system generally is affected: the NECKLACE for complaints of the Throat, as Asthma and Bronchitis, and of the Head: and the BRACELETS for all disorders of the arms and limbs, as Rheumatism, Palsy, Tremors and Spasmodic affections. These articles are simply applied as directed with the MAGNETIC FLUID which accompanies them, and when faithfully used they NEVER FAIL!

☞ The great peculiarity and excellence of the GALVANIC CURATIVES consists in the fact that they arrest and cure disease by Outward Application, in place of the usual method of Drugging and Physicing the patient till exhausted nature sinks hopelessly under the infliction. They strengthen the whole system, equalize the circulation of the Blood, promote the secretions, invigorate the entire energies, and can never do the slightest harm under any circumstances.

Since their introduction in the United States, only three years since, more than

75,000 PERSONS

including all ages, classes and conditions, among whom were a large number of Ladies, who are peculiarly subject to Nervous Complaints, have been

Entirely and Permanently Cured,

when all hope of relief had been given up, and everything else had been tried in vain! The beneficial results which have uniformly attended their use is confidently stated to be without a parallel in the annals of Medical Science. Clergymen, lawyers, and even physicians: ladies of the highest standing: distinguished persons holding elevated official stations: merchants, manufacturers, and mechanics: the poor and the rich alike: often whole families, among all classes, ranks and conditions, have equally been recipients, and have equally acknowledged the wondrous and often unexpected benefits which they have thus received.

☞ Let it be known and remembered that the only Natural Restorative for the Nerves is Galvinism, and that in all Nervous Diseases we should

"Throw Physic to the Dogs."

To illustrate the use of the GALVANIC BELT, suppose the case of a person afflicted with that bane of civilization, DYSPEPSIA, or any other Chronic or Nervous Disorder. In ordinary cases stimulants are taken, which, by their action on the nerves and muscles of the stomach, afford temporary relief, but which leave the patient in a lower state, and with injured faculties, after the action thus excited has ceased. Now compare this with the effect resulting from the application of the GALVANIC BELT. Take a Dyspeptic sufferer, even in the worst symptoms of an attack, and simply tie the Belt round the Body, using the Magnetic Fluid as directed. In a short period the insensible perspiration will act on the positive element of the Belt, thereby causing a Galvanic circulation which will pass on to the negative, and thence back again to the positive, thus keeping up a continuous Galvanic circulation throughout the system. Thus the most severe cases of Dyspepsia are permanently cured. A few days is amply sufficient to eradicate the disease of years.

MANY THOUSAND

Certificates and Testimonials

from the most intelligent and respectable persons residing in every portion of the United States, could be presented. These are now unnecessary, but a numerous selection embracing many statements of the most extraordinary character, sufficient to convince the most sceptical, may be had of the authorized Agent. The interested are particularly invited to call.

WONDERFUL RESTORATION!

☞ 77 Years Old!!!

Blooming Grove, Orange Co., N. Y., July 26, 1850.

To Dr. A. H. Christie, New York.

Dear Sir—Having been very severely handled by Rheumatism and other diseases, and having been cured in a most remarkable manner by CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC BELT and FLUID, I thought I would give a statement of my case, for the benefit of others. I had the Rheumatism last winter, and my legs swelled very much. My head was also very much afflicted, having so severe a pain over my eyes that I could scarcely see. At the same time, I was troubled by spasms, caused by the pain in my head, I suppose. My hearing had been getting poor for several years from a catarrh, so that in one ear I could scarcely hear at all. Having heard wonderful accounts of Christie's Belt and Fluid, I sent to your store and got them. The Belt was put on, and the Fluid used as directed, and I don't think I have had, after the first night using them, one minute clear pain from that time to this, being six months. The Rheumatism left my body entirely, after wearing the Belt a very short time, probably two weeks. Then I put on a Galvanic Necklace, and had not worn it two weeks, before my head was perfectly well. My hearing in both ears is entirely restored, the pain all gone, my sight is very good for a man of my age, (77 years in August) and I consider myself entirely well, having worked through harvest without the least difficulty. I consider my cure very remarkable, and therefore do not hesitate to recommend CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES to all persons afflicted as I have been. (Signed) PHINEAS TUTHILE.

AFFIDAVIT.

State of New York, Newburgh, Orange county, ss; Phineas Tuthile of Blooming Grove, Orange county, N. Y., who is personally known to me as a most respectable citizen and worthy of all confidence, being duly sworn deposes and says that the facts, set forth in the above statement in relation to his case, are entirely correct, and that he is now in the enjoyment of good health, caused as he believes by Christie's Galvanic Curatives. PHINEAS TUTHILE.

Sworn before me this 26th day of June, 1850.

S. W. EAGER, Justice of the Peace.

Weakness and Nervous Debility!

Dear Sir—I want another supply of Christie's Galvanic Curatives, immediately. This is an intelligent and reasoning community, and they see at once that the Curatives are constructed upon scientific and philosophical principles and must work effectually upon the Nervous System, in the case of Nervous Diseases. An estimable young lady in our town was afflicted with extreme Nervous Debility and severe pains in the head and neck. She put on one of the Galvanic Belts and Necklace and immediately became sensible of its curative and strengthening powers, and the next day was relieved of the severe pains, and raised from a state of entire nervous prostration to health and strength. I can mention several other cases equally wonderful.

Yours very respectfully, J. B. KNIGHT.

Panama, Chautauque Co., N. Y., Oct. 1, 1850.

☞ No trouble or inconvenience attends the use of DR. CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES, and they may be worn by the most feeble and delicate with perfect ease and safety. In many cases the sensation attending their use is highly pleasant and agreeable. They are accompanied by full and plain directions for use. Pamphlets with full particulars may be obtained gratis, of the authorized Agent.

PRICES:

The Galvanic Belt, Three Dollars,
The Galvanic Necklace, Two Dollars.
The Galvanic Bracelets, One Dollar Each.
The Magnetic Fluid, One Dollar.

PARTICULAR CAUTION.

☞ Beware of counterfeits and Worthless Imitations. D. C. MOREHEAD, M. D.,

GENERAL AGENT FOR THE UNITED STATES,
132 Broadway, New York.

☞ For Sale by Dr. W. K. MEHAFFEY, authorized Agent for HARRISBURG, PA.

Dr. GEO. ROSS, Elizabethtown, Pa.

Jan. 1, 1851.—6m.

Music Books—Price Reduced.

1. Evangelical Music—Patent Notes—Price five dollars per dozen.
Do. Do. Round Notes—Price four dollars per dozen.
2. History of all Denominations—Portrait Editions—Price two dollars and fifty cents.
3. Reference and Pronouncing Testaments—Price fifty cents.
4. Treatise on Regeneration—Price sixty-two and a half cents.
5. Five Hundred Sketches and Skeletons—Price two dollars and fifty cents.
6. Traveller's Guide to the West—Price fifty cents.
7. Wandering Soul—Price seventy-five cents.
8. Hymn Books, English and German, assorted, at different prices.

☞ For sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER and HICKOK & BARRETT, Harrisburg, Penn'a.

Depositories of Our Books.

FOR the convenience of our brethren, and the public generally, we have established Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

GEO. F. GORDON, corner of 12th and Wistar streets, and BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, and LEWIS COLBY, No. 122 Nassau street, New York.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, Baltimore, Md.

JOHN H. CORNELIUS, New Berlin, Union county, Pa.

SPANGLER & BROTHER, Lancaster, Pa.

MARTIN and MENELY, Lagrange county, Indiana.

M. F. SNAVELY, North Bend, Iowa.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail Prices.
History of Denomination in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries, -	2 00
Wandering Soul, - - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament, -	50
German Reference Testament, - -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
German Do., - - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, - -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - - -	25
Harn on Feet-washing, - - -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, - - -	15
Traveller's Guide to the West, - -	50

EVANGELICAL MUSIC,

FOR

CHURCHES AND SINGING SCHOOLS.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us, and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music.

☞ FOR SALE at this office, and at our Depositories. EDITOR.

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;

ENTITLED

History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of ALL the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING

NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa., APRIL 1, 1851. NUMBER 23.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

LIST OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

Receipts on Volume Fifteen.

Names.	Am't paid	Names.	Am't paid
Attic Geo	$1 25	Kauffman A J vol 16	$1 00
Benedict Mary Ann	1 00	Lindley Timothy S vol 16	1 00
Bowman Geo	1 50	Linsey Joseph vol 16	$1 00
Bean Sam'l vols 14 & 15	3 00	Laird Mathew vols 14 & 15	3 00
Bolton John vol 16	1 00	Longenecker Benj vol 16	1 00
Buxstresser Jacob vol 16	1 00	Laishaw John vol 16	1 00
Bowo Miles	1 00	Lick Sarah vol 16	1 00
Baker Philip	1 00	Miller Andrew	1 50
Bergner Henry	1 50	Megrew Archibald	1 00
Bener Jacob vols 14 & 15	3 00	Musser Benj	1 25
Barkstrrsser Geo vol 16	1 00	Millisen Albert W	1 00
Brady Geo vols 15 & 16	2 00	Miller J J	1 00
Bretz Thomas	1 25	Musselman Ann	1 00
Brady Samuel vol 16	1 00	Merkel Levi vol 16	1 00
Badler John vol 16	1 00	Myers John	1 00
Beoller Jacob vol 16	1 00	McCreary Geo	1 50
Bowo Daniel vol 16	1 00	Manning J K vol 16	1 00
Barlet Jacob	1 50	Meerew Mathew vol 16	1 00
City Adam vol 15	1 00	McClanahan James	1 50
Conaugh Christian	1 00	Priest I W vols 15 & 16	2 25
Coulter Wilson G	2 00	Patton Jas C vols 15 & 16	2 50
Clinger Wm vol 15	1 00	Parker Samuel	1 00
Doman John J vol 16	1 00	Rohrer J E	1 00
Ewig Jacob	1 50	Ramsey Joseph	1 00
Fleegal Simon [Sept 15]	1 00	Ridenour Daniel	2 50
Fonacht Conrod	50	Slouffer Eliza	1 00
Freed Paul vol 16	1 00	Straw Gideon	1 00
Funk Abraham	1 00	Smith Mary	1 00
Flowers John vol 16	1 00	Sames Amos M	1 00
Gamms Richard	1 00	Searls E H	1 00
Golden Jacob	1 00	Stark Joseph	1 50
Goolen Jacob	50	Sherich Henry vol 16	1 00
Hall Thomas	1 00	Singiser Andrew	1 00
Helstand Henry	1 00	Shavely John vol 15	1 25
Hatton Mary A	1 00	vol 16	75
Hershey Margaret Ann	1 00	Switzer H'ry vols 14 & 15	1 00
Hummer Abraham	1 00	Stouffer J M vol 15	1 50
Hiney David vols 15 & 16	2 50	Shellenberger Jac'b vol 16	1 00
Heck Geo vol 16	1 00	Swyers Wm	2 00
Hostetter Abraham	1 00	Spery Levi vol 15	1 00
Hupert John vol 15	1 50	Sherich Ab'm vol 16	1 00
vol 15	50	Stoner Jacob vol 16	1 00
Hutton Israel	1 00	Schroll Geo vol 16	1 00
Harris Thomas vol 16	1 00	Tintsman John vol 16	1 00
Hanning F'k vols 15 & 16	2 00	Vandersaul Jacob vol 16	1 00
Hoverter Christian vol 16	1 00	Winebrenner C vols 15	2 00
Houtz Wm vols 15 & 16	2 25	[& 16
Isenberger Henry	1 50	Wingert John	1 00
Kenedy Geo	50	White & Miller vol 15	1 00
Wisherd David	$1 00	Whisler John vol 16	$1 00
Wagoner Samuel vol 16	1 00	Walters Geo vols 15 & 16	2 50
West Lauran	1 00	Wingert Geo vol 16	1 00
Widener J vols 14 & 15	2 00	Zearing Henry	1 00
Wagooer Wm	1 25	Zimmerman John vol 16	1 00
Wiley James	1 25

Advance Payment.

Those who want the Advocate for $1,00 per annum, will please bear in mind, that payment must be made, either to ourselves, through the Post-office, or to one of our accredited agents, before the first of May next.

Our Bills.

Delinquent subscribers may now look for their bills in a short time, and unless they are promptly paid, they will be put in the hands of proper officers for collection. All those who owe for two years and upwards, will have their papers stopped, until their old accounts are settled.

Revival at Orrstown.

There has been a stir among the people at Orrstown, Franklin county, and some dozen or more have professed salvation. Will Bro. Mackey, or some one else, give a full account of the work? We love to publish the doings of the Lord among the people.

Revival at Elizabethtown.

Meetings are still kept up, and the revival is still in progress, in Elizabethtown, Lancaster county. Bros. Sandoe and J. Brenneman are chief men among the people there, and are conducting the meetings. We may give particulars in our next.

General Eldership.

This body will hold its third tri-ennial meeting with the Church of God in Pittsburg, commencing on the fourth or last Sabbath in May next. The delegates from the East Pennsylvania Eldership are Brothers J. Flake, J. Winebrenner, W. McFadden, E. H. Thomas, A. Swartz, G. U. Harn, L. Slingluff, J. S. Gable, J. Rife, A. Hostetter, J. Schoch, and J. Brenneman.

Our Missionaries for the West.

We are happy to inform our friends and brethren in Illinois and Iowa, that we have succeeded in securing the labors of several able missionaries for next year, in the aforesaid States. In our next, we hope to be able to give an official announcement of their several appointments. They will probably reach their several fields of labor some time in June next. We hope our brethren in said States will receive them as becometh saints, and do all they can to open their way, and to supply their wants.

New Subscribers.

Now is the time to get new subscribers for the next volume. We hope to see a general effort made, throughout the whole bounds of the Church, to increase the subscription list of the Advocate. Remember our proposal to enlarge the paper, provided 500 new subscribers are obtained: and to publish it weekly, if 1000 are raised. The preachers can do much to accomplish this object, if they have a mind to. We hope they will try.

Our Next Volume.

The next and Sixteenth Volume of the Church Advocate will commence on the first of May. We hope our contributors will continue to aid us, in making the paper, what it ought to be, the exponent and advocate of the faith and practice of the Church, and the propagator of Bible truth and general intelligence. In the meantime, we shall double our diligence to improve the editorial deparment, with a variety of leading articles.

Foreign Bills.

Our subscribers will please to recollect that our laws prohibit the circulation of all foreign notes or bills under $5. We hope, therefore, they will send us gold or silver in payment for the Advocate, except they can get our small notes, or else lay together till they can send five dollars or upwards. At all events, send us genuine and par money. We have suffered much loss from bad money, and are heartily tired of it. Do us justice and love mercy.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered wishing to continue their subscription.
2. If the subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, the publisher may continue to send them till all charges are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the offices to which they are directed, they are held responsible till they have settled their bills, and order their papers discontinued.
4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publishers, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.
5. The Courts have decided that refusing to take a paper or periodical from the office, or removing, and leaving it uncalled for, is 'prima facie' evidence of intentional fraud.

☞ Postmasters are requested to keep a copy of the above rules, and show it to persons who may decline taking their papers out of their respective offices without having paid up all arrearages for the same.

Duty and Responsibility of Postmasters.

The following decision and recovery in the case of suit against a Postmaster in Pennsylvania, may serve to show the duty and responsibility of Postmasters in reference to the stoppages of newspapers:

Postmasters.—A Postmaster in Pennsylvania recently had judgment given against him for the price of subscription of several years to a newspaper, on the plea that he had not given sufficient legal notice to the publisher to stop it, and had continued to receive the numbers for several years, and sell them for the postage! The magistrate decided that merely returning a copy of a paper, with stop this written on it, without post-mark or other indications of locality, was not sufficient legal notice; but a written notice, with name, place, date and reason, must be sent to the publisher, and franked, that it may be taken out by him.

Our Trip to Philadelphia.

We made a flying trip to the city of Philadelphia, a few days ago. While there, we had a short but pleasant interview with Bros. J. Flake and J. F. Weishampel, our missionary agents. They will both start out on their agency in a short time, and call on the members of the Churches for aid in this noble cause of Christian benevolence. They will knock at the doors of the rich and poor and solicit aid. We hope none will put them off with trivial excuses, but cheerfully give them something, be the same little or much. May the Lord open the hearts and hands of the people, to do something worthy of this good and glorious cause, worthy of their high calling, and worthy of the memorable age in which we live.

Whilst in Philadelphia, we likewise made arrangements to get out a new edition of the Revival Hymn Book, on extra good paper and in superior binding. Orders can be supplied in the course of a few weeks.

New Fangled Doctrine.

The readers of the Advocate will find a pseudonymous article in this paper, entitled 'Another Dialogue," containing a strange and novel doctrine. Its author we greatly esteem. He is a young minister, belonging to the Ohio Eldership, of very respectable talents and promise. But, we deeply regret that he has fallen into bad hands, and is in danger of being carried away by diverse and strange doctrines.

We have admitted his article with some reluctance; yet it is in some of its features so glaringly absurd and unscriptural, that it carries its own refutation in itself, and therefore will, we think, be entirely harmless. However, when we get a little leisure time, we shall take in hand to show up its true character, by reviewing the unscriptural and anti-scriptural positions taken by its author, and thus counteract its pernicious influence, should it produce any, and establish the Church, more fully, in the true faith of the Gospel.

Sailing of Missionaries.

Elder James Colder and wife, Dr. Whitley and family, and a young lady, all missionaries for China, set sail from New York on Thursday, the 13th ult. They have our prayers and best wishes for their welfare and success!

COR. EDITOR'S DEPARTMENT.

Thoughts on Several Things.

J. FLAKE.

Mission to China.—Several Methodist Missionaries—male and female—sailed on last Thursday, the 13th ult., from New York, for China, among whom is brother James Colder, and his wife Ellen, eldest daughter of brother John Winebrenner, of Harrisburgh, Pa.

I consider that brother W. is honored in having a daughter engaged in so noble a work, as that of assisting in spreading the Gospel among the 300 millions of people who compose the Chinese nation. When England and Germany were in a savage state comparatively, two thousand years ago, the empire of China was a civilized nation, far advanced in knowledge and arts--even as they are at present. The Roman Catholic missionaries have been exerting themselves there a hundred years or more, but of late years Protestant missionaries have entered the field, and have been successful to some extent among the people, in the conversion of a few; and have also translated the Scriptures into the Chinese language.

The most of Christian men and women would probably shrink from the undertaking of going to the other side of the globe to spend ten years, if not their life, among a people learned, and refined, and polite, but strangely ignorant of the true God; and some of whose laws and usages are so cruel, and so revolting to Christian feeling and law. Let us then be glad that there are some few who find it in their hearts to leave parents, and friends, and home, and go among the heathen to preach Christ Jesus, and salvation through his precious name.

I have been acquainted for a number of years with Sister Ellen Winebrenner, who has gone along with this mission, as the wife of brother James Colder. I knew her from the time she was ten years of age, and know the high esteem in which she was held by those acquainted with her in the different Churches belonging to the Eldership. Naturally of a good mind and disposition, she has been favored with the advantages of a good education, and above all has that true piety without which all beside is in vain. She will, I hope, be faithful and useful in this good work; a comfort to her husband, and to the members of the mission at Fuh-Chau, in China, where they are to live and labor.

Missionary Intelligence.—I think it would be profitable, and gratifying, to many of the readers of the Advocate, if notices of Missionary enterprises were given in our paper from time to time. Looking around on Christendom at the present day, we may see much to complain of, and mourn over; but after all, there is much to rejoice in. Do not go from Dan to Beersheba, and then say, "all is barren." Lift up your eyes, the fields are whitening for the harvest. Do what you can yourself, among those near your home--your family--your neighbors--the Sabbath School.—Pray for, and sympathize with those who are laboring in the same good cause, even if they do not belong to your Church. If you have more light than they in the smaller truths of religion, so much the better for you, and so much the more zealous and useful you ought to be in the vineyard of the Lord.

Revival Intelligence.—Like cold water to the thirsty, so is good news of sinners turning to God. Let us rejoice that in various places the work of repentance and conversion is going on. The "Brethren" are a revival people —so they began twenty-odd years ago--and I suppose those were their best, and happiest, and most useful days, when most engaged in persuading their fellow-men to turn to God—and when they saw that humble instruments were employed by the Lord in this his great and blessed work.

Dear Brethren---you who have the gift of preaching---preach with all your might for the awakening and conversion of souls. And I feel like preaching in addition, the blessed doctrine of sanctification, or Christian perfection. Souls must be saved, or lost. Heaven on one hand---Hell on the other---striving to gain the souls of men as they pass from time to eternity. Then pray and preach the very best you can, if peradventure with God's blessing you may save some.

The Peace of God.--This is the form of blessing with which the ministers of the English Church bless the congregation, at the close of public worship. "The peace of God which passeth all understanding, keep your hearts and minds in the knowledge and love of God, and of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord—and the blessing of Almighty God, the Father —the Son, and the Holy Spirit, rest upon you, and remain with you forever. Amen."

Philadelphia, March 16, 1851.

Lights and Shadows.--No. 4.

J. FLAKE.

"When Christ, who is our life, shall appear."—St. Paul.

It is generally agreed that the close of the year 1850 is the close of the first half of the nineteenth century. I always feel glad, as I did in the days of boyhood, when I am permitted to see Christmas and New Year come again, and rejoice when Spring is near. And now I review the way and providence of God in my own lot, and confess that He has had thoughts of mercy toward me all my life long.

The ancient Church measured the year by the life of Christ, beginning at the first Advent, or Christmas. The life of Jesus on earth was in some respects like ours, and sometimes it differed. It was like our life, in that it was not all light. It had some bright seasons, and then others of sorrow and pain. O Saviour of lost men, well may it be said of thee, that thou wast made like unto us in all points—sin only excepted. And so thou hast become our merciful and faithful High Priest, to make reconciliation for the sins of the people.

And now another Christmas and New Year have come round, and I walk the streets of my native city in thankfulness to God, and go to the houses of prayer, and listen to the Gospel of salvation with the same reverence, and awe, and gladness, as when I first heard it, and felt its power, in the days of my youth. Every thing else changes, or wears out, but Christianity is always new; and the light which once shone out from the cross of Christ, still continues to shine from land to land, and assures us that the perfect day will soon appear.

The Apostle James asks the question, "What is your life?" He knew, and we know, that our mortal life is only like a feverish dream. Among those around me there are few that seem to have found rest to their souls. There are but few of the Preachers in the Eldership that have found the rest of faith—the Sabbath of of God's love. They have not gone on to perfection, as Paul exhorts us, and stopping near the foot of the ladder, they do not much preach the attainment of entire sanctification—or being made perfect in love. But after all, this is the great doctrine which we all should preach.

"Christ in you the hope of glory"—this is the believer's life. You must come to the experience thereof, if you would be happy, and have rest to your soul. Not merely to be blest in the day when you were converted to God—but to have Christ dwelling in your heart by faith--and have your life conformed to his life. When this experience comes, then pride and selfishness and bigotry will be gone, and so will a light and trifling spirit.

What the Lord teaches me by his word and Spirit, I feel disposed to urge on the brethren, that they also may see the light and walk therein. Let us therefore endeavor that this year fifty-one may be a good year—a year devoted to God. Let us pray that it may be a year of increase for the cause of God, in every part of the vineyard. Let us try to preach better, and more earnest, and spiritual—and not try for fine or fanciful preaching. And let us be prepared to die in peace with God, and all around us, if it should please God this year to call us away from this mortal life.

Philadelphia, 1851.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

Another Dialogue.

Minister—Good evening, N.

Neighbor—Sir, good evening, M.

M.—I am very happy to see you again, my good neighbor, as we had such a pleasant interview the other evening, on the subject of the establishment of the Church and baptism; and I have desired to renew the conversation, as I perceive that you have not correctly understood some part of our conversation.

N.—I thank you for your kindness, and shall be very happy to be corrected in any mistake I have made.

M.—In the first place, N., I will take your advice in regard to your figure about forcing the kittens' eyes, knowing the danger of spoiling them by so doing is great: we will therefore put on long patience. But I fear that some of these kittens have got so old, and that they have been so long afraid of wetting their feet, which you know is the nature of old cats, that they never will see.

N.—I acknowledge that all you have said is correct, but I don't like very well to be compared to kittens, that are not old enough to see. But then you speak of us as old cats, who are afraid of wetting our feet. Now, you know sometimes old cats will jump into the water, where they cannot supply themselves with sufficient game without doing so.

M.—I mean no harm by the figure used. We will now leave the figurative and come to the facts in the case. In the first place, you will recollect that in our previous conversation you occupied four-fifths of the time, although you were the inquirer; when in such case it is usual for the person inquired of to occupy the most of the time. Besides, it is said, the priest's lips should keep knowledge, and the people should seek the law at his mouth. But I discover that you are still in the dark. You will indulge me with the privilege of occupying at least as much time in this conversation as to make up what I lacked before. I will then only occupy one-half of the time.

N.—I acknowledge that you are correct, and will most cheerfully grant you half of the time; but, then, as I have many things in my mind that I received from early education, which, if you are correct, I shall have to give up, I therefore want an equal share of the time to defend them; and if they will not bear investigation, when tested by the word of God, I will with great pleasure renounce them.

M.—That is all right, my good N. We will come therefore directly to the point in hand, which, if I rightly understood your former conversation, there are two points upon which you were at a loss, and which, if satisfactorily settled, will of course settle all the rest, viz: The time of the establishment of the Church; and whether persons are legally members before or not until they are baptized. In the first place, we will attend to the Scriptures you quoted, which you think is evidence of the establishment of the Church previous to the day of Pentecost. First, Matt. 19: 28. This passage brother Winebrenner, and all other commentators of note, acknowledge to mean a change of dispensation. If this is correct, then the only question is, when did this change take place? and when did Christ sit down on the throne of his glory? and His Apostles also take their seats on twelve thrones, as significant of their authority? Let us hear David on this subject, whose tongue was as the pen of a ready writer. Forty-fifth Psalm, from the first to the seventh verse inclusive. Please read it for yourself. Have you read it?

N.—Yes, sir. I have read it.

M.—Well, do you think he was prophecying of Christ taking the throne, and that he is called God?

N.—Yes, sir. I have no doubt of it.

M.—Well, now turn to Paul's explanation in the first chapter of his Epistle to the Hebrews, from the first to the ninth verse, and then tell me when Christ took the throne, whether it was before or after he suffered?

N.—I will do so. I have read it, sir.

M.—What is the conclusion?

N.—Well, sir, it is evident that Christ did not take the throne till after he was raised from the dead, and had been with his disciples forty days, according to Acts 1: 3.

M.—I am glad you see that. I will give you a number more passages to look at. Read Psalm 132: 11, and 16: 10, and then read Peter's explanation in Acts 2d chapter, from the 25th to the 36th verse.

N.—I am well pleased with this course; and I don't know but what you will make me convince myself, without giving me your opinion. Well, I will read and judge for myself. Well, sir, it is true, that Peter and Paul both show that Christ did not take the throne, according to the prophecy of David, till he ascended to heaven. And now, sir, I just think of another passage in Heb. 8: 1, where Paul says, "We have such an High Priest, who is set on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens."

M.—Well, N., you are getting along very well. I will give you another passage or two to read, which will show you the time when the Father set the Son to be the head of this new Church. Read Eph. 1: 18 to 23. Will you read it carefully?

N.—Yes, sir. Well, sir, is it clear that his taking the throne as King, and his becoming head over all things to the Church, is the same thing, and did not take place till after he rose from the dead, and ascended on high?

M.—I will give you a few more evidences to look at. Please read Isaiah 2: 2, and onward; and Micah 4: 1, and onward; and then compare it with Acts 2: 17, and 1 Tim. 3: 15; and then tell me what you learn from these Scriptures.

N.—Seeing I have come to you as an inquirer, I will read them and give you a candid answer.

M.—Well, N., have you read those Scriptures?

N.—Yes, sir, I have.

M.—Please give me the conclusion you have come to.

N.—Very well, the conclusion I have come to is this, that those prophecies show clearly that the house of God, which is the Church of God, should be established, or organized, at a period of time distinguished by the term last days, and that Peter, when speaking under the influence of the Holy Spirit, on the day of Pentecost, shows from Acts 2: 17, that the last days had then commenced; and I don't know but what I shall have to give it up, notwithstanding all my previous education. But, then, what will we do with those passages I quoted? "Behold the kingdom of heaven is among you;" and "The Law and the Prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and men press into it."

M.—The Law and the Prophets were until John, does not mean to exclude John from being a Prophet, but includes him with the rest. Luke 20: 6. So the Law continuing until John, does not mean that when John was born, or when he began to preach, that the Law then ended. For the Law, which was the rule of government of the Church under the Mosaic dispensation, (Acts 7: 38,) containing types and shadows, could not be abolished till those sin-offerings, without which there is no remission, (Heb. 9: 22,) were fulfilled in the crucifixion of Christ. And further, how was the kingdom of God preached from the days of John the Baptist? Was it preached as having already come, or as being at hand? Peter says, 1st Epistle 4: 7, "The end of all things is at hand." Now, if Peter means by this, that the end of all things alluded to had not taken place yet, but only, that they were near, which was the case, then the kingdom was not yet set up, but was near, and soon to be established; which was evidently true, from the whole tenor of the preaching of John, Jesus, the twelve, and the seventy. Matt. 3: 2; 4: 17; 10: 1-6; Luke 10: 1-9; Mark 1: 15; 9: 1, and 11: 1-10. Now, if all these Scriptures, with many others to the same point, mean that the kingdom was establisbed, then there was a kingdom without a king on the throne. And further, as the law of the kingdom was to go forth at the time and place of the establishment, (as declared by Isaiah 2: 2, 3, and Micah 4: 1, 2,) and as the new Law, which is brought to view by Paul under the figure of a Testament, (Heb. 9: 15, 16, 17,) showing Christ to be the testator, and that the new law, covenant, or testament, could not be in force till after the death of Christ; then, if the Church or kingdom was established previous to that, then it was a Church without a head. A headless body, without a rule. A kingdom without a king or laws.

N.—Well, you have given us a long discourse this time, on the kingdom; but still I am at a loss to know how the kingdom was among them, or how they could press into it, if it was not already established.

M.—Very well, sir. We will endeavor to show you by a passage directly on this point. Paul says, Rom. 4: 17, that God called Abraham a father of many nations, though he was not at that time; but God only speaks of things that are not, as though they were. So the kingdom of God was among them, as though it were there. Yet it was only there in its unorganized state. The king was there, though not enthroned. The law was there among them, but had not come in force. For the old law was not yet abolished, and the subjects were there, in a prepared state, like the stones of the temple, but not yet reared. And Paul shows, from Rom. 7: 1-4, that those persons that are trying to be under the Law and the Gospel at the same time, are like the woman that gets married to another man while her first husband is living, and is living with two husbands at the same time. Now, to me, Neighbor, this looks very improper. But, then, I suppose they think it is very expedient in this our day, in hopes of getting or having more children. But, as says Peter, 2d Epistle 2: 14, "They are cursed children, that have forsaken the right ways." Again, you ask how they pressed into it? Just as far as it was preached unto them, and no further: unless they pressed hap-hazard, or by guess. It was preached as being at hand, and they pressed into its doctrine, as preached by John. As Paul says, Acts 19: 4; or as our forefathers pressed into this Republic, when they signed the Declaration of Independence, although it was not yet acknowledged as a Republic, only it was at hand, and existed in embryo.

N.—Well, M., I will think of your proofs and arguments. In the meantime, I would ask, how do you answer my questions from Heb. 2: 12, and Col. 1: 13?

M.—N., please read Psalm 22: 22, from which Paul quotes, which says, "I will declare thy name unto my brethren: in the midst of the congregation will I praise thee." Now, you say, that it was fulfilled in Matt. 26: 30. Very Well. Admit it; but who were Christ's brethren at that time? Were they Gentiles? No. For there was not a Gentile among them till some years after Well, then his brethren were all Jews. Was the Church spoken of by Stephen, in Acts 7: 37, 38, then dissolved? No. Then this was the Church or congregation alluded to, and not the New Church of which Paul speaks to the Ephesians, 2: 15-22. Again, Col. 1: 13. As Paul wrote this some time after the day of Pentecost, he here declares that God had delivered them from the power of darkness, and had translated them into the kingdom of God's dear Son. Now, this Church was established after the day of Pentecost, and not before. The only question then is, how did God deliver them from the power of darkness, and translate them into the kingdom? Was it independent of his Gospel and preachers, or was it by and through their instrumentality? Minister says it was through these means.

N.—Well, now, M., please tell us what is the door into the Church.

M.—Very well, N., we are glad to have the opportunity of correcting a mistake that you have fallen into, in supposing that we consider baptism the door. Now, this is not the door, for baptism is an act of the creature, or performed by the creature, with the agency of the minister; and certainly when the Lord built the Church, he did not leave it without a door; so that every convert and minister had to make a door every time one was to be admitted into the Church. No, no, my good N., baptism is not the door, but Christ says, John 10: 9. "I am the door." Then, if we can find how the sinner gets out of the world into Jesus Christ, then we shall find how they get into the Church, through the door.

N.—Now, minister, you begin to talk just right; that is just what I believe. I never did believe so strong in—

M.—Hold on; don't be so fast. Wait till I am through. Now let us first ask whether you believe that the Church is composed of naked souls, or whether you believe that the Church is composed of souls and bodies united?

N.—I believe it is a visible Church, and of course that it is for the reception of the whole man, soul and body.

M.—Very well. Then there is some precept for the mind or spirit to act upon, and also some act of the body by which it is recognized as coming into the door?

N.—This is also reasonable; and do the Scriptures say anything on the subject?

M.—Yes. Paul says, Gal. 3: 26, 27, "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." Now, here you discover that they come into Christ the door internally by faith, and by comparing this with Acts 2: 38, you will there see that repentance and other internal acts are required; and in the third place, baptism is an external act by which the body is brought, figuratively, into Christ, the door. Hence you learn that these steps, faith, repentance and baptism, bring us into Christ internally and externally. As we have had a long and pleasant conversation or interview, I will bid you good evening, Neighbor, till we meet again.

N.—Good evening, Mr. Minister.

MINISTER, Ohio.

New Testament Words.---No. 8.

BISHOP.—Our English word Bishop is from the Saxon word Bischop, and that from a Greek word which signifies an Overseer, or Inspector. Before the Christian era, the word was used by different nations to signify different kind of officers. Hence, amongst the Athenians it meant such as they sent into the provinces to subject them, and to see that every thing was kept in good order. The Romans gave the title of Bishop to those who were inspectors of bread and provisions. In the New Testament it means one who has the oversight, control and care of that which belongs to himself, or another. It signifies something very different from that which the Catholics, Episcopalians, Methodists and United Brethren mean when they say, The Bishop! The New Testament speaks of two distinct orders of Bishops, one above the other, or rather, one having the whole care and command of all the other Bishops.

1. Jesus Christ is the first or chief Shepherd and Bishop over all his Bishops. 1 Peter 2: 25—"But are now returned unto the Shepherd and Bishop of your souls." Christ is the head of the Church, and has the oversight and command of all his ministers, and all believers. Other head-Bishops, whether in Rome, England, among the Methodists, or anywhere else, have the whole command in their usurped dominions. They are, in my opinion, Anti-Christ, because they claim and take that to themselves which belongs only to Christ, who is the only head of the body, the Church. Christ, as Bishop, gave his Church and Bishops all the law necessary for them to believe and obey. He makes his Bishops, appoints, directs, supports and rewards them; and no one, or more, under the assumed title of Bishop, has any right to enjoin a single precept on others, unless that precept has been given by and found in the Law-Book of Christ, the BISHOP.

2. All the faithful ministers of Christ, who are ordained to take the oversight of the flock of God, are Bishops, or Elders, which is the same. Jesus Christ gave his Apostles to understand they were all brethren, and their office equal; no one was above another. The law concerning the Ministry, Eldership or Bishopship, (if you please,) stands the same now as it did then.

Every minister of Christ who takes the oversight of the flock, is a Bishop, one the same as another.—Acts 20: 28. "All ye are brethren"--and there is but one order of men to attend to spiritual things mentioned in the New Testament.--Phil. 1: 1. The Apostles were Bishops. Timothy was a Bishop. There were Bishops in the Church at Philippi and Ephesus. As the ministers of Christ are Bishops, none deserve the name but such as are called by him--sent by him--who preach HIM and nothing else--who obey HIS law and no other—who teach others the same, and set them an example by their own obedience—who are ordained according to the New Testament, and do the work commanded there.

Men who call themselves and love to be called Lord Archbishops, Right Reverend fathers in God, Doctors of Divinity, Masters, Reverends, The Bishop for others to make supplication unto—men who are called Presiding Elders, Eminent Divines, Clergy, &c., &c.,--men who are ordained according to their own fancy, and not according to the word of God--men who are served, instead of being servants, and who think themselves master-ministers above others--such men are not the Lord Jesus Christ's Bishops, nor do they deserve the name; but are mere creatures, and servants of an earthly master, or usurpers, who serve not the Chief Shepherd and Bishop of souls, and therefore ought to be avoided. So much for the word Bishop.

I hope the above will not be considered meat too strong for the readers of the Church Advocate, as my only object is, to place in true colors every unscriptural name and thing which men wear under the garb of religion, and to expose as human inventions every thing contrary to the pure testimony of the blessed Jesus. In doing this, I shall spare no sect or party, not even the East Pennsylvania Eldership, if I find them (or even think I find them) departing from the simplicity of the truth.

Yours truly, WM. JOHNSTON.

Fishers of Men.

The bulk of the Apostles were fishers, and were very industrious in that business, for when Christ called them to a better calling, they were either mending, or casting, or washing their nets. Their avocation was to catch fish, but Jesus told them, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men; and they straightway left their nets, and followed him."

They did what they were commanded; and hence were obedient men. For what end were they to do this? They were to become "fishers of men;" for Jesus said to Simon, "from henceforth thou shalt catch men."—Now, on the day of Pentecost "there were added unto them abont three thousand souls." They caught men on that day; and Jesus taught them to do it. But what were they added unto? To the Church. And that Church the Bible calls the "Church of God." The Apostles were true to their calling; they "caught men." This notable revival of religion took place in Jerusalem, and many Jews were converted. And it need scarcely be repeated that they left the Jewish Church and joined the Church of God. No doubt the unconverted Jews told them to stay with their former Church; but we do not find a single instance of it being done; no, they were to come out from among them, and be a separate and peculiar people.

As a Church we have been too remiss in enforcing this injunction. We have convinced people to become converted, and then too often forsook them, whereas we ought to have caught them. "The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep; and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep." And thus sectarians, with hyena rapacity, come to feed them false doctrines, and to devour them.

This impolitic course must be abandoned, and the plan adopted which the Bible teaches, namely, add them to the Church. Every minister of the Church must see the necessity of it. That is one of the objects of Church organization, and all should act it out. People ought to be invited to unite with the Church after they are converted. And then the cause will spread fastly and gloriously. The doctrine of taking converted persons into the Church is so plainly taught in the Bible, that the minister who fails to do it, will be considered an "unprofitable servant," because he added few unto the Church when he might have added many, and wo will betide him.

Some ministers have held meetings and not a few have been converted, yet went their way—and as a matter of course not one was added to the Church, but the different denomioations, with commendable industry and greediness, grasped them. Ought not such lack of zeal to be considered injudicious conduct? Truly, "the children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light." If the sects are so busy in adding to their various denominations, ought we not to learn a lesson? All should work, not only to get souls converted, and baptized, but to add daily to the Church such as shall be saved. This is the mission of God's ministers. May all fulfil it.

G. R.

Elizabethtown, Pa., Feb. 25, 1851.

Dedication of a New Bethel.

Brother Winebrenner:—

On the 15th of February, in company with Bros. Stomm and Sandoe, I went to Martic township, in order to dedicate to the service of God the Meeting-house near Martin's Mill, which has lately been erected. There are but seven or eight there who profess to be members of the Church of God. Those few, encouraged by the liberal offers of the people, undertook (not long since) to build a house of worship; and notwithstanding their poverty, and the many other impediments which have had a tendency to hedge up their way, they have at last been successful in their undertaking, and now have a good and commodious house in which they can worship, without any to molest or make them afraid.

Attached to the house they have an acre of land, the principal part of which was given by Mr. Hoover, and the balance by a good friend, whose name I do not recollect. Mr. George Martin, who has faithfully discharged his duty as Treasurer, informed me that the expenses of the house, exclusive of the work which had been done gratuitously, was $403,-46; money collected, $329,40; and that the balance due on the house was $74,06.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather, and the exceeding bad journey, we began to doubt the propriety of dedicating the house at that time. But after much hesitation, we concluded that we would do the best we could, and trust in God for the result. Accordingly, on Sunday morning, we for the first time preached a Dedication Sermon: after which we lifted a collection, and got what we could by subscription. We also lifted a collection in the afternoon and at night; and in all we collected and got subscribed the sum of $75, which more than balanced the debt on the house.

I consider that the Church of God at Martic, in connection with those who took such an active part in the work, deserve much credit for the liberality and zeal which they have exhibited in the erection of a house of worship at that place. May the Lord reward them, is my prayer. Yours truly, C. PRICE.

REPORT OF THE Standing Com. of the Ohio Eldership.

Chester Tp., Wayne Co., Ohio, March 3, 1851.

The Standing Committee of the Ohio Eldership met, agreeably to previous appointment, with the Church of God at Chester, and after the usual acts of religious worship, proceeded to transact the following items of business, viz:

On motion, it was

1. Resolved, That the Committee appoint two delegates to the General Eldership, and in case they cannot go, to represent the Ohio Eldership by letter. The delegates to consist of A. Holms and H. Murray.

On motion, it was

2. Resolved, That Bro. Dennis take charge of of the Washington and Middletown Churches of the Free-will Baptist Association, and supply them with preaching.

On motion, it was

3. Resolved, That J. M. West be released from the Stark County Circuit.

On motion, it was

4. Resolved, That J. M. West be appointed to take the Tiffen Circuit; Provided the foregoing Circuit will furnish him a house, and promise him a support.

On motion, it was

5. Resolved, That J. M. West receive twenty-five dollars from the Missionary Fund, to defray his moving expenses.

On motion, it was

6. Resolved, That a Camp-meeting be held near Brownsville, Knox county, Ohio, commencing on the 14th of August, 1851.

On motion, it was

7. Resolved, That a Camp-meeting be held in Summit county, Ohio, on the old camp-ground, near East Liberty, commencing on the 14th of August, 1851.

On motion, it was

8. Resolved, That another be held on the old camp-ground near Peter Sherich's, eight miles north-west of Wonster, commencing on the 21st of August, 1851.

9. Another to be held near Smithville, Wayne county, Ohio, commencing on the 28th of August, 1851.

On mntion, it was

10. Resolved, That the Committee meet again on the 5th of ———, 1851, with the Church of God at Union, Wayne county, Ohio.

A. HOLMS,
On behalf of the Committee.

Reading with Maps.

Mr. Editor:—

It may not be out of place for me to call the attention of your readers to the subject of reading with maps—I mean reading and referring to the maps for the localities, &c. I have adopted this plan latterly and find much more satisfaction in reading history than I ever did before. Especially have I been benefitted by referring to maps in reading the Bible. I have for some time been in possession of Mitchell's Ancient Geography and Atlas. The Geography gives a very interesting classical, as well as a sacred history of the world, corresponding with the Bible in the latter case; and in the Atlas, which contains about a dozen beautiful Maps, all the places mentioned in the Geography and Bible are to be found. So that in reading and referring to the maps, you bring before you the country and locality in the country of every place named, which is of vast interest in reading many parts of history, and without which many articles afford but little satisfaction.

From the benefit I have derived from thus reading, and the increased interest I feel in reading and referring on, I am prompted to urge upon you to keep for sale a stock of "Mitchell's Ancient Geography and Atlas," and recommend to your readers to get these works; especially the Bible students; and feel very saoguine that they will never regret the outlay. The retail price for both the books together is only $1,25.

J. F. W.

Reflections on my Brother's Grave.

By J. W.R., Tiffen, Ohio.

Thou art gone! Thou art known no more among mortals, but by recollection. Since thou hast passed away, the bright flowers, the beautiful green leaves, the small running brooks, and all the glories of spring, have passed away too. As I stood there in yonder church-yard, by thy lonely grave, the sear leaves falling around me, reminded me that so are my friends yearly dropping, and that I am like to one of them. The few short months since thou hast left us, have had their brights and shades to us: and we who are left in the world, have had our seasons of sorrowing and rejoicing. We have seen our friends laid low in death, and our brightest hopes die. But a short time ago, the hands of the busy multitude committed you to the dust; one whom I never can forget; one whom I loved; one who was loved by many, and one who was the hope of a dear family, the comfort of a loving wife, a refuge for his three dear little children, and one, alas! who now lives no more on earth, but lives with God in Heaven. Thou art gone, dear Thomas, but thou art not lost. From the evidence you left behind, and the words of confidence you gave us, we know your spirit lives in Heaven. Often have we seen you suffer here on earth, but you suffer no longer. Thy trials are ended and thy sorrows ceased. To us the winds and snows of winter have come, but

The storms that wreck the wintry sky,
No more disturb thy repose,
Than summer evening's latest sigh
That shuts the rose.

We often have seasons of enjoyment here, but these are brief, and too often followed by dark, desponding ones. But thy seasons of joy last forever—thy dust sleeps with us. Well, let it sleep on, till the trumpet of God shall sound, and re-animate it, and fashion it after his glorious body.

The Day of Judgment.

By Wm. M. H——n.

Great day of Judgment! Lo the parting skies
Reveal Jehovah to unnumbered eyes:
Ten thousand Saints the awful Judge attend,
And with a mighty shout from heav'n descend.
The last loud thund'ring trump of Gabriel shakes
Earth's firm foundations, and the dead awakes;
Now from the thousand, thousand graves they rise
To meet the dazzling legions of the skies.
The sea from out her gloomy caverns heaves
Unnumbered dead, and thick as autumn leaves
Bestrew her banks; now dead of sea and land
All hasten to obey the stern command
Which fills earth, sea, and all the welkin dome,
"Arise ye dead and to the Judgment come."
Behold the mighty ranks from every clime—
Forgotten nations of the olden time,
And all the living mingle with the dead
Now raised to hear their doom with joy or dread:
Now all the members of that mighty throng
With mingled joy and terror march along.
Behold arrayed upon the great white throne,
The Sacred Crucified—the Holy One—
That One who on the cross of Calv'ry cried
"It is finished—bowed his head and died."
Oh what heart-rending sounds of bitter moans,
And frantic agonies and hollow groans,
And wringing hands and piercing shrieks and cries,
From the prodigious multitude arise,
The mighty line of demarcation's drawn,
Some on the right—more on the left are gone:
Behold the mass upon the left; their pride
They call for mountains and the rocks to hide;
But there's no covert from the searching eye
Of Him who sits their every work to try:
With deepest agonies of soul they wait
That word which fixes their eternal fate;
"Depart ye cursed to eternal fire
Beneath God's righteous and vindictive ire,"
Falls from the Judge's lips; then like a swell
Of the mighty ocean they rush down to hell:
Lost, lost, forever lost, down, down they go
To doleful regions of despair and wo.
Then "Come ye blessed of my Father take
The glorious kingdom furnished for your sake."
Now see the glorious band of Saints arise
With all their dazzling legions of the skies:
Palms of victory in their hands they bear,
And crowns of glory on their heads they wear.
The songs triumphant to their Priest and King
With holy symphony they march and sing.
Now the emerald gates fly open wide
For the King Eternal and His lovely bride:
Life, life, eternal life, up, up they rise
To see that city with unclouded eyes.

East Sharpsburg, Pa., Feb., 1851.

☞ The cup that is full will hold no more; keep your heads and hearts full of good thoughts, that bad thoughts may not find room.

Letter from Bro. J. Myers.

PART II.

Ashland, Ohio, Feb. 21, 1851.

Dear Brother:—

Taking all things into consideration and striking the balance, the result, according to my conviction, is, that somehow or other, a considerable share of labor is lost, and a great disparity between labor and fruits exists.

Where the cause lies, I don't know. One thing, however, I do know, the default is not with the Lord. His promises are yea and amen, "Jesus Christ yesterday, to-day, and forever; with whom there is no variableness nor shadow of turning." Through all the gloomy clouds of discouraging circumstances surrounding me, I sometimes have a glimpse of the primitive land-mark—then I look at the Chart, the infallible word of truth, and make my calculations. Then I ask mentally, are we yet in that primitive simplicity, as when we first got through the strait gate into the narrow way? Do we simply trust in God, and consider that He has done all things well? Or do we think He has left some things unfinished, and that His work needs the aid of modern science, art, fashion and expediency?

The time was when the Lord called one man from his plough, a second from his work-shop, a third from his store, a fourth from his professional engagements, and yet another from his fish-nets, as it were, and commanded these to preach the Gospel. They were obedient to the Divine call, and met with abundant success wherever they went.

Now, what is the Gospel? Simply "glad tidings." Thus, it requires no special human ingenuity, fashionable equipments and qualifications—no particular knowledge of dead languages and classic lore, to tell good news. One neighbor can inform the other in child-like simplicity, without expending hundreds of dollars.

Sometimes I fear that the Lord will remove the candle-stick from the Churches, by being so choicy in the selection of their preachers—offering so many hundred dollars for first choice in a popular one—so many "almighty dollars" for No. 2—and some less for No. 3. This fastidiousness is more peculiar to stations than to circuits. I in my ignorance ask, is this right? Churches in fashionable, guilty, polluted, sinful towns of a few thousand of inhabitants, fancy that they must have what our modern cod-fish aristocracy call talented preachers, in order to rank with their sectarian neighbors—brethren imagine such talents will cause attraction, and wield a mighty influence in gaining proselytes to the truth. Sectarians succeed, by such measures, in making proselytes to their different creeds; but it will not answer for God's people. Good brethren, remember, "God's ways are not our ways, neither are his thoughts ours." By substituting our ways for God's ways, we may obtain a curse instead of a blessing.

By offering to recompense talents in a pecuniary manner, has a discouraging tendency on many worthy and useful brethren in the ministry. Old and well-tried veterans, who have been instrumental in the conversion of souls, and of organizing Churches, are laid on the light side of the scales of ecclesiastical appreciation.

When interrogated of the why's and wherefore's of passing by such old pioneers, no particular objection is made against them. It is said, "They are good and useful men—but"!!! Ah! take care, my good brethren; I fear we have butted too much—yes, butted many a useful brother out of usefulness.

What can we do in our own self-enthroned wisdom? Have we by means of the same, been building up Churches of God, composed of holy men and women—God-fearing and self-denying members—the light of the world and the salt of the earth? We may, it is true, by our ingenuity, swell up numbers, by collecting in the gay, the rich and fashionable. But, I ask, has not wealth and fashion, when in the ascendancy, always been the ruin of living Churches? These are facts which cannot be denied. Why, then, this hankering—this aiming and aping after the things of the world?

I have here simply committed my thoughts to paper, and might add many more of the same sort, did the limits of a common communication admit thereof. It is true, I have been censured, both East and West, of rather frequently exhibiting the dark side of the picture; but, indeed, I cannot call black white, white black, light darkness, darkness light, good evil, and evil good. And now the Church has various workmen and different characters, and they are all needed at times. While some, then, are always exhibiting the bright side of the picture, let others do the contrary, in order to keep things on an equilibrium.

Brethren in the ministry, let us beware, and keep in mind whose servants we are, for whom we are laboring, and where our responsibility rests. Let souls be our hire, and our recompense be in the resurrection of the just. Sooner than we should need and accept the support of the world and worldly-minded professors, and in consequence lose our zeal, our integrity, our holiness, and finally our souls, let us turn, like old Paul, to "tent making," or to any other honorable handiwork or calling, and employ our leisure days and evenings, of which we will find many, to the preaching of that full, complete and glorious Gospel, which is the power of God unto salvation to all them that believe—of which let us not be ashamed.

Farewell. J. MYERS.

Letter from Bro. David Neidigh.

Reedsburg, Wayne Co., Ohio,
March 8, 1851.

Brother Winebrenner:—

We find as cold water is to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country. Therefore I would again resume my pen to drop a few lines for the columns of the Church Advocate and its readers in general.

According to previous arrangement, I met with the Church of God in Upper Sandusky, Wyandot county, Ohio, and commenced a protracted meeting on the 8th of February, in the name of Israel's God. And, thank God, I found the brethren and sisters in a right spirit to enter into the work. I thought they had the spirit of Caleb: they entered with the strongest of faith into the work, with their servant, and so the meeting began. The first night of the meeting we held forth to a good congregation, and after services we gave an invitation for penitent souls to come forward to the altar. A number came to the altar of prayer, and thank God, one was hopefully converted to God. The meeting went on, and grew better and better. There was one night of this meeting, I think, I shall never forget. I thought of the circumstance in Ezra, when the foundation of the house of the Lord was laid: "They wept with a loud voice, and many shouted aloud for joy: so that the people could not discern the noise of the shout of joy from the noise of the weeping of the people, for the people shouted with a loud shout, and the noise was heard afar off."—Ezra 3: 12, 13. Truly, the people of God wept with those that wept; but when the dead were made alive, and the lost were found, and the angels began to clap their wings in glory for joy, the people of God then began to give praise to the Great Head of the Church, with up-lifted hearts and voices. This meeting was continued some twelve days. Twelve were hopefully converted to God; and among these converts are some young men that, I think, if they will live close to God, will make able ministers of the New Testament some day.

I intend to be brief, with the expectation that brother C. Pisle, of that place, will say something in reference to matters and things in that place, through the columns of the Advocate. At this meeting I also buried twelve converts in baptism, in the Sandusky river, in the presence (some say) of about one thousand spectators. The Lord was in the ordinance, and owned it in a powerful manner. Three of this happy number were of Bro. Christian Pisle's family, with whom you, Bro. W., and others, are intimately acquainted: also, with David and their twins, namely, Catharine and Ann Maria. Oh! may the young converts walk worthy of the profession which they showed forth in the ordinance of Christian Baptism, is my prayer.

1. Philip into the water went;
   Pray, reader, with what good intent?
   To sprinkle the good Eunuch's face?
   This never could have been the case.

2. Or, why go down into the stream?
   To us convincing it doth seem,
   He went down into it, 'tis plain,
   And came up out of it again.

3. Not until after conversion,
   He was baptized by immersion;
   This is the way for you and me;
   Then from tradition let us flee.

Yours, &c., DAVID NEIDIGH, Jr.

Letter from Bro. J. H. Hurley.

Landisburg, Pa., March 15, 1851.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

How true the saying, "Time is a dream." Time, with its ceaseless changes, has conveyed us, though almost unconsciously, through the period of another Eldership year, when the sweet and tender cords that link together congenial spirits are to be rent asunder, and the itinerant minister is to seek amid new scenes new friends. Truly, a change is to come over the spirit of our dreams. 'Tis sad to part with those we love, to bid adieu to endearing friends; yet now it becomes our duty, however painful it may be, to grasp for the last time the hands of many of our beloved brethren and sisters in the Lord. The stern decree that all things earthly must fade away has gone forth, and we see the effects of its withering, blighting influences in all surrounding objects, in the fading leaf, the pallid cheek and sunken eye, the crumbling monuments and ruins of once mighty cities and empires; although "There are bright, bright seasons of bliss below,

They fade as the fading leaf." [flow,

It is true, that our happiest seasons and most blissful moments must pass away, and that our brightest hopes and warmest anticipations as meteors flitting across the sky, which by their fleeting brilliancy leave but a darker void; as shadows seen by the dim twilight, which exist for a moment and then disappear forever.

Truly, time has a strong hand. I have spent one year pleasantly and very agreeably in Perry county. I beheld its grandest scenes and rambled over its remotest parts. I have reclined within its pleasant bowers, and listened to the soft whisperings of nature's melodies. I travelled over her lofty mountains, traversed her beautiful vallies, drank of her limpid springs, and shared of the hopitalities of her noble sons; enjoying many a pleasant season while proclaiming a crucified, but a risen Saviour, as the only source of real bliss and permanent happiness. But time has wrought many changes since I came to this place. Some noble spirits have fled to the realms of bliss. Some have been born into Zion, and others have made shipwreck of faith. But the time has come, in the Providence of God, when my professional duties call me to bid adieu to these beautiful mountains and rural vallies, together with all the fathers and mothers, brethren and sisters, and warm-hearted friends, to whom I am bound by the sacred ties of friendship and affection. Who can utter, without feeling, the word, Farewell?

To my brethren and sisters that I leave behind.—May the light of prosperity ever gild your pathways. May your lives be crowned with true happiness, and when your pilgrimage on earth is ended, and you fulfilled your destinies, may you sink to rest peacefully, as the setting sun sinks to repose behind the western hills, bathed in a flood of light and glory, not to sleep forever, but with a glorious hope of a life of immortality, in those blissful regions, where free and untrammeled your disembodied spirits may soar aloft, enveloped in a maze of glory, and enjoy forever the reward prepared for the righteous.

Yours in the bonds of the Gospel,
J. H. HURLEY.

Letter from Bro. Jos. Schoch.

Washington, Lancaster Co., Pa.,
March 10, 1850.

Brother Winebrenner:—

Of late the Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad. On the 16th of last month we held our usual evening meeting, when brother Brady preached; after which six came out for prayers, and one found peace. The next evening we held meeting again, when six came forward to the altar, and one found the Lord. On the next evening thirteen came forward to the altar—the next evening seventeen. We continued the meeting, I think, for seventeen nights. From six to eighteen were out every night. The result was, that forty-one found Him, whom to know aright is life eternal. May the Lord keep them faithful to the end!

Our esteemed brother Ross was here the greater part of the time. He labored faithfully and successfully, for ten nights, in the cause of God, and the Church here. He not only preached from the pulpit, but at the stores, in the streets, with the sick, and wherever opportunity afforded. I think I never saw the convicting power of God operating on the minds of the people so effectually as at this meeting. They trembled and wept. It was no hard matter to talk and persuade on the part of the brethren. It was truly an old-fashioned revival, like we used to have some eighteen or twenty years ago. However, I must say, I never saw so little concern manifested among the female part of the congregation. The truth of God's word seemed to operate more effectually among the male part.

It is sometimes asked, by those who oppose the work of God, why it is that only the weak-minded women make so much ado about religion? However, some women are stronger-minded than some of those would-be strong-minded men. Through the progress of this meeting those that yielded their hearts to the Lord were men, and men of good, strong, and (as the world would call them) sound minds. But, I think, when one gets religion, he is then in his right mind. May the Lord keep them faithful to the end!

Yesterday morning brother Brady preached. After services sixteen joined the Church. I hope and pray that they may prove worthy and faithful members of the same. In the evening preaching again by brother Brady, when eight more were added to the Church.

Yours as ever, JOS. SCHOCH.

Letter from Bro. A. J. Fenton.

Bedford Co., Pa., March 6, 1851.

Dear Brother Winebrenner:—

I am glad to inform you that the cause of God is prospering in this mountain country. To Him be all the glory!

We commenced a protracted meeting on the 28th of December last, at Ireland, Huntingdon county, Pa. The result of the meeting was as follows: Four converted, and a Church organized of five baptized believers, according to the Gospel plan. May the Lord help them to contend for the faith that was once delivered to the saints! And may He add to them daily such as shall be saved.

There is also a good work of grace going on among the people at Round-Nob. The meeting has been progressing for about three weeks. The number of converts has been about twelve—two baptized, and six added to the Church. May the good Lord continue to revive his work among the people at Round-Nob, until many more shall be brought into the fold of Christ. Pray for me, that I may hold out faithful until death. No more at present. Your brother in Christ,

A. J. FENTON.

The Advocate Weekly.

Brother Winebrenner:—

It is a pleasing thought to me that you have an idea of publishing the Advocate weekly, provided 1000 more subscribers can be got; but I protest against its being enlarged; because it is now full large for binding, and to make the pages still larger would be by no means an improvement. Let all hands go to work and get the 1000 new subscribers, and some take two or more copies instead of one, so as to get the paper out weekly; for two weeks is too long to wait for the paper, especially of late since it contains so much good revival news. Set me down for two copies if you get the number. J. F. W.

Notice.

Elders J. Neil, D. Gill and A. Megrew; and brothers E. Rice, Charles Huff, Henry Funck, Joseph Neil, —— Cramer, (father Briggle's brother-in-law,) and S. Chapman; all intend, by the leave of Providence, to start with their families, by the first of May, for the beautiful plains of Iowa. Pray for them.

A. MEGREW.

Letter from Bro. Thos. Hickernell.

Sidney, Ohio, March 10, 1851.

The revival amongst the Germans in Mercer county was still going on when I left. Twelve had been hopefully converted to God, and four baptized. Others were left to mourn over their sins. I baptized three last week at Hiattsville. Amongst those was sister Aston, from the East, and her sister, who lately embraced religion. I have also visited brother Whisler, from the East, and it appears he feels lost for want of the Church. He and family now live at Casstown, four miles east of Troy, Miami county.

I expect to start for the East about the first of April. I find there is a great deal of opposition against me going to Illinois, without my room can be filled here. Having been afflicted lately, rendered it impossible for me to get clear around my circuit, for which I feel sorry.

Yours truly, THOS. HICKERNELL.

NEWS DEPARTMENT.

Progress.—In the year 1809, says the Scientific American, there was only one steamboat in the whole world; now, who could count the number? They navigate the Nile, the Red Sea, the Ganges, the Clyde, the Hudson, the Ohio, the St. Lawrence, the Mississippi, the Thames, the Danube, the Rhine, and the golden-sanded Sacramento. America, Europe, Asia and Africa, exhibit in every steamboat a monument of the progress of invention. In 1830 there were were only thirty miles of locomotive railway in the world. Now, there are no less than ten thousand miles. America has no less than seven thousand miles, and will soon have ten thousand in operation. Massachusetts alone has more than one thousand, and Pennsylvania one thousand two hundred. In 1846 there were only fifteen miles of railroad in the State of New York; now there are nearly sixteen hundred. Then the slow canal-boat and stage-coach wound lazily up the Mohawk valley, and we remember well that it required more time to whip an old bolter into a canter than it now requires the iron horse to whistle itself from the crags of Cohoes to the rocky paths of the Little Falls. What with the steamboat, the railroad and the telegraph, as inventions for distancing distance, the ends of the earth are brought together, and civilization is fast finding its way into the most darkened corners of the earth.

Wealth of our Cities.—According to the United States census, Boston is worth nearly $80,000,000 more than Philadelphia. Boston property is returned at $214,000,000, while Philadelphia rates at $137,000,000, and New York at $260,000,000. The population of Boston is short of 140,000; Philadelphia, 410,000; New York, 515,000.

It will be seen that, dividing the property by the population, Boston is by a vast odds the richest city this side of the Atlantic, and probably in the world. Thus dividing the property, each Bostonian is worth over $1500; each New Yorker only $556; and each Philadelphian the small sum of $333.

Illinois Convention—Right of Suffrage.—The Illinois Convention have agreed to put a provision in the new Constitution which restricts the right of voting to citizens, instead of extending it as heretofore to inhabitants.

Washing Fluid.—Take one pint alcohol, one pint spirits turpentine, two ounces ammonia, (hartshorn,) one ounce camphor gum; mix all together, and bottle—cork tight—shake before using.

Directions for Using.—For every five gallons of water, about milk-warm, add one pint of soft soap; then put in three table-spoonfuls of the preparation. Soak the white clothes thirty minutes; then rinse or wring them out, rubbing them where the most dirt appears. Then put them in clear, cold water, without soap, and boil thirty minutes, and rinse them in clear cold water. The same preparation will answer for colored flannels and calicoes. Soak them thirty minutes, rub and wring them out. Then pass them through the water in which the white clothes were boiled, which will cleanse them sufficiently for rinsing.

This is a method which has been practiced in my family for some months, and I think it superior to any other I have known. It makes a great saving of time and labor.

Julia E. Hanchet.

West Stockholm, N. Y.

The Movement.—Sixty-five thousand dollars was raised and spent in 1850, by the American Colonization Society,—more than in any previous year.

Appropriations have been made, both by Virginia and Maryland, to aid in the work.

The Legislature of Ohio has asked of the General Government, the recognition of Liberia as an independent republic.

The Colonization Societies of Kentucky, Missiouri, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and New York, have petitioned their several Legislatures to make an appropriation.

The Alexander High School at Monrovia has gone into full operation.

The Massachusetts movement to found a College, is proceeding with vigor.

The line of African steam vessels is advocated by leading men in all parts of our country. Gov. Wright, of Indiana, urges it in his message. Various Legislatures have formally recommended it to Congress.—Colonization Herald.

Population of Ohio.—We are indebted to E. R. Campbell, Esq., Assistant Clerk of the Ohio House of Rrepresentatives, for a copy of an abstract of the population of Ohio, compiled from the returns of the seventh census. From the re-capitulation we learn that the total white population of Ohio, at the close of 1850, was 1,957,465. The colored population amounted to 23,495, thus making a total of white and colored of 1,980,960, or 19,040 less than two millions of inhabitants. At the beginning of the present century, Ohio had a population of 45,365; in 1810 it had increased to 230,760; in 1820 to 281,434; in 1830 to 937,903; in 1840 to 1,519,467: and 1850 to 1,980,960; making an increase in the last ten years of 461,493.

Methodist College.—The Methodist Protestant Church has been formed twenty years, and has yet no College. A charter is now obtained for an Institution at Cambridge, Guernsey county, Ohio, and a movement is in preparation for its endowment.—N. C. Inl.

Education in Iowa.—A normal School has been established in Jackson county, and two more are to be founded in other parts of the State. The School appropriation for 1851 is $25,000.

Great Fire in Carlisle.—A very destructive fire occurred in the borough of Carlisle, on the morning of the 12th ult. In the course of a few hours, no less than fourteen dwelling houses, twenty-two stables and warehouses, and one church (the Lutheran) were entirely consumed.

The loss is estimated at $50,000, only about $8,000 being covered by insurance. No lives were lost, but several persons were seriously injured. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

The Lutheran church was a substantial brick structure.

Missionaries sent by England.—The number of missionaries despatched by England are: By the Church Missionary Society, 137; Society for Converting Jews, 78; for the Propagation of the Gospel in foreign parts, 334; Wesleyan Society, 868; Baptist Society, 100; London Missionary Society, 171; Scotch Churches, 150; various other religious bodies, 100. Total, 1,438.

Illinois Settlement.—A plan is in contemplation by some of the colored population of Springfield, to emigrate to Liberia—The persons taking the lead in the enterprise propose to found an Illinois colony, and will probably ask a small appropriation by the Legislature, to assist them in their object.

Mr. Barnum and Father Mathew.—Mr. Barnum has presented Father Mathew with $500, accompanied by an eloquent letter, in which the services of the worthy Apostle of Temperance are warmly appreciated. This gift will relieve Father Mathew from the immediate pressure of embarrassing circumstances

American Chapel at Rome.—A correspondent of the London Chronicle is authority for a report that the American Protestant chapel, opened at Rome last year, under the auspices of Mr. Cass, the Charge, has been peremptorily closed by the Pontifical Government.

Vinegar and Oil.—It should be generally known that a small quantity of vinegar will generally immediately destroy any insect that may find its way into the stomach, and a little salad oil will kill any insect that may enter the ear.

War.—The Secretary of the Treasury estimates the cost of the Mexican war at $300,000,000. How much might this enormous sum have done for the civilization of the world, and the moral and spiritual good of perishing millions!

The Rothschilds.—It is said that the fortune of the Rothschilds is not less than 735,000,000 francs—about $145,000,000. They are the true money kings of the world, and control the policy of nations more, perhaps, than their sovereigns do.

☞The President's Proclamation, ordering out the army and navy of the United States to arrest a runaway darkey, is exciting a broad laugh throughout the country. It is the most absurd official paper that has appeared in the history of the Republic.—Albany Knickerbocker.

Indiana.—The Constitutional Convention has passed a section for the new Constitution, authorizing every voter of good character to practice law.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

In her late speech before her Parliament, the Queen made the following allusions to the late Papal aggressions in England:—

"The recent assumption of certain ecclesiastical titles conferred by a Foreign Power, has excited strong feelings in this country, and large bodies of my subjects have presented addresses to me, expressing their attachment to the Throne, and praying that such assumptions should be resisted. I have assured them of my resolution to maintain the rights of my Crown, and the independence of the nation, against all encroachment, from whatever quarter it may proceed. I have, at the same time, expressed my earnest desire and firm determination, under God's blessing, to maintain unimpaired the religious liberty which is so justly prized by the people of this country.

"It will be for you to consider the measure which will be laid before you on this subject."

In considering the speech touching on this topic, several of the most distinguished speakers arose to the highest indignation, and stated, that the claims of the Pope, and his late movements in giving them effect, were the grossest insult on the English nation, an insult such as no other nation on the globe would endure as that has.

We are glad to see that these encroachments are understood in England, that the Queen and her Parliament are sensible of them, and are determined to meet and resist them in every possible way, and consistent with religious liberty. Some correspondents state, that the clergy of the English Church thought all was secure against Papal influence, and thus failed to point out and warn against the corruptions of that apostate church. The excitement and alarm now existing will call attention on this important matter, and arouse to a kind of preaching and religious effort which have been required for many years in promotion of the cause of Christ, and thus we think that good will come out of seeming evil, and the wrath of Popery will be made to praise the Lord, who ruleth in heaven and overturneth for his own glory.

[Christian Chronicle.

DIGNITY OF TOBACCO.

We commend the following extract from one of our Monthlies to all lovers of tobacco, and especially to our ministering brethren who have a fondness for the vile weed. We wish them all joy of the select company into which their diseased appetite introduces them, and congratulate ourselves that we have never been initiated into the mysterious rites of so select a coterie.—Christian Chronicle.

"There are but three species of the whole animal creation, that are known to eat this vile plant. The first is the loathsome tobacco-worm, which feeds upon it in its green state; another is a species of African goat, the meanest of its kind; and the other—need I mention him—is the noblest of God's creatures—MAN! He in all stages of society, polished and christianized, debased and savage, rivals in his attachment to this nauseous weed, the most loathsome things of creation.

The whole system of chewing, smoking, snuffing and plugging, is so utterly filthy and unnatural, that it seems incredible how these practices could have insinutated themselves into civilized and genteel society. In no way can it be accounted for, except on the ground assumed that they afford a momentary animal gratification—a temporary inebriation. And what a pitiful excuse is this for such an enormous expenditure of money and of time, in addition to the disgusting effect produced upon those who do not use it."

HOW TO PREPARE SERMONS.

Rev. Dr. Stanford, in one of his lectures addressed to his students, on the composition of sermons, says: "I cannot deny myself the pleasure of stating, that many years ago I met a plain yet good old minister, who, in conversation with me on the subject of the composition of a sermon, very pleasantly said: 'I know of no better rule than the proportions observable in the structure of the human body. Let your introduction be short, like the head of man, round, and full of expression. Make up the body of your sermon of the solids of Divine truth; but be sure that Christ be the heart, and the Spirit of God, like the lungs, to produce respiration; the legs, to run after every class of your hearers; and a pair of arms tenderly to embrace them.' This may appear to you a little fanciful, but I must confess, however singular the description, yet to my mind it seemed worthy to be remembered."

ANCIENT PRICE OF LABOR.

In the year 1352, Edward III., wages paid to haymakers were 1d. a day. A mower of meadows 3d. a day, or 5d. an acre. Reapers of corn, in the first week in August, 2d., in the second 3d. a day, and so on till the end of August, without meat, drink, or other allowance, finding their own tools. For threshing a quarter of wheat or rye, 2½d.; a quarter of barley, beans, peas and oats, 1½d. A master carpenter, 3d. a day; other carpenters, 2d. A master mason, 4d. a day; other masons, 3d., and their servants, 1½d. Tilers, 3d., and their knaves, 1½. Thatchers, 3d. a day, and their knaves, 1½d. Plasterers, and other workers of mud walls, and their knaves, in like manner, without meat or drink, and this from Easter to Michaelmas, and from that time less, according to the dircetion of the justices.

TRUE COURAGE.—The truest courage is always mixed with circumspection, this being the quality which distinguishes the courage of the wise from the hardness of the rash and foolish.

POETRY.

The Christian.

BY WM. M. H——R.

I saw upon a dang'rous road
A man of martial mien;
The armor in which he was clad
Shone with a dazzling sheen.

Attracted by his martial dress
I hastily drew near;
The history of his life I sought
From his own lips to hear.

Then said I, "Stranger, whither bound—
In whose employ art thou—
What are thy future hopes of gain—
How is it with thee now?"

"I am a Christian," he replied—
"A soldier of the cross;
To all my future hopes of gain
Earth's sordid gold's but dross.

"By Calvary I chanced to pass
Where on the rugged tree
In agony my Saviour shed
His last life drop for me.

"The thoughts of such amazing love
Did so affect my heart,
That I immed'ately resolved
On pilgrimage to start.

I then received this martial dress—
This helmet, sword and shield,
Which proved of great utility
On many a hard fought field.

"When dangers thicken all around,
Still with these trusty arms,
I meet undaunted every foe,
Nor droop at hell's alarms.

"Sometimes I've thought my fighting o'er,
And all my dangers past,
When sudden darkness on my way
Its gloomy shadows cast.

"Though menaced thus, I'll ne'er give o'er,
Nor quit this holy strife,
Until I stand on Canaan's shore,
And grasp eternal life."

Then the old veteran faced about,
And hastened on his road,
Which from the land of sin and death,
Leads to the Blest abode.

Enamored with his pleasing tale,
I could not long forbear;
But from that moment I resolved
His hopes and fears to share.

East Sharpsburg, Pa., 1851.

"Come up Higher!"

BY JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, JR.

List to words of magic beauty,
Sounding from another sphere,
Bidding all achieve their duty—
Asking all to come and hear.
In celestial notes 'tis ringing
Music sweeter than the lyre;
To each spirit here 'tis singing—
"Mortal!—mortal!—come up higher!"

Hark! the words!—they thrill with pleasure
Every honest, thoughtful breast—
Telling of eternal treasure,
In a distant land of rest.
They are filled with potent presage,
Kindling up a heavenly fire,
While they hear the whispered message—
"Mortal!—mortal!—come up higher!"

It doth speak to every nation,
Country, tongue and land,
Offering pardon and salvation
With a free, judicious hand.
Listen—listen!—for we love you—
Hear the words you should desire—
Now the Spirit calls above you:
"Mortal---mortal---come up higher!"

See it hovers---weeping sadly—
O'er this reckless, careless world;
With the power it would gladly
Save the souls to ruin hurled.
For man it weeps its bitter tears,
Up from child to aged sire—
It lingers---speaks---then disappears—
"Fellow-spirit!—come up higher!"

Baltimore, Maryland.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On the 13th of January, 1851, by Elder A. J. Fenton, Mr. JACKSON LAMBERSON to Miss LYDIA RAMSEY, all of Huntingdon county, Pa.

On the 4th ult., by the same, Mr. JAMES BRIDENSTINE to Miss SUSAN HOOVER, all of Broad-Top, Bedford county, Pa.

On the 2d of February, 1851, by Elder A. Holms, Mr. ABRAHAM KEPLINGER to Miss MARGARET HOVERSTOCK, both of Tuscarawas county, Ohio.

On the 27th of February, by the same, Mr. JOSEPH JARVIS to Miss CATHARINE MCCLINTOCK, all of Holmes county, Ohio.

On the 25th ult., by Elder J. H. Hurley, Dr. JOHN F. WINGERT to Miss ELIZABETH MCKEE, all of Landisburg, Pa.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

"Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—On the 14th ult., in Wormleysburg, Cumberland county, Pa., MARY NEIDHAMMER, daughter of Daniel and Christiann Neidhammer, aged 1 year, 7 months and 13 days.

On the 16th ult., in the same place, HENRY BRETZ, aged 57 years, 4 months and 16 days.

J. J. MILLER.

On the 14th of December, 1850, at Broad-Top, Bedford county, Pa., EZRA ALLOWEYS, son of Brother John and Sister Sophia Alloweys, aged 3 years, 2 months and 16 days.

On the 21st of February, 1851, near Stonerstown, Bedford county, Pa., WILLIAM BARKSTRESSER, son of Brother John Barkstresser, aged 6 years, 1 month and 20 days.

On the 23d of February, 1851, GEORGE EDWARD, son of A. J. and Frances Fenton, aged 9 months and 6 days.

Departed this life, in York county, Pa., ELMIRA JANE, daughter of Michael and Catharine Strominger, aged 3 years, 8 months and 4 days.

Her disease was Scarlet Fever—sufferings short.

The fair and pleasing child's no more,
She is gone to her heavenly rest above,
And soon we must cross to the other shore,
And strike glad hands in unceasing love.

Funeral services by J. G. Kister, V. D. M.

Departed this life, March 14th, 1851, at New Rumley, Harrison county, Ohio, SUSANNAH GRAYBILL, in the 68th year of her age.

Her remains were interred in the United Brethren grave-yard. Funeral services by Elder Weben, of the United Brethren. She died in the faith of the Gospel of Christ. The day before she died she wished that her Lord would come and take her to himself, and she is now gone to her heavenly home, where she is free from sorrow and pain. D. G.

In New Cumberland, Cumberland county, Pa., on the 23d of March, 1851, MARGARET SNYDER, aged upwards of 38 years.

Funeral services by Elder J. J. Miller, from 1 Cor. 5: 1.

On the 5th of March, in Fishing Creek Valley, York county, Pa., ASA DANNER, son of Jacob and Susanna Danner, aged 13 years and 7 months.

Funeral services by the writer, from Eccl. 9: 10.

Also, on the 18th of March, in the same neighborhood, EMANUEL TROUP, son of Emanuel and Rebecca Troup, aged 2 years and 22 days.

Funeral services also by the writer, from Num. 23: 10. These children both died of the Scarlet Rash, which has been a general scourge in this place.

JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

In this borough, on Saturday, the 22d ult., ANDREW GRAYDON, aged 53 years.

In this borough, on Monday, the 24th ult., LAURA ANN, infant daughter of John and Rachel Ann Donehower, aged 5 months, 3 weeks and 2 days.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.

The following protracted meetings will be held on the York Circuit, at the following times and places, to wit:

April 5th at Andersonstown.
" 12th at New Market.
" 18th at the Cross Roads.
" 26th at Strailies.

Preachers and brethren are invited to attend the above meetings. Come up to the help of the Lord. JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

Missionary Subscriptions and Donations:

FOR sustaining five Missionaries in the West--two in Iowa and three in Illinois, during the next Eldership year, commencing with April, 1851, and ending with March, 1852.

Jno Winebrenner paid	$10 00	Abraham Swartz	$5 00
Wm Reichart paid	5 00	A Liberal Brother	20 00
Isaac Miller	10 00	A Liberal Sister paid	2 00
J H Hurley	5 00	Havil Strickler	5 00
Geo C Hain	5 00	James Cassy	5 00
M F Strivey	10 00	Samuel M Hoover paid	5 00
Jacob Miller	10 00	Susanna Myers pd E H T	4 00
James Miller	5 00	Charles F Long	5 00
S A Baumbaugh	5 00	Sarah Grove paid	2 00
Thomas Strohm	5 00	Wm Brady	3 00
J B G Knisloe	5 00	Daniel R Long	5 00
Abraham Smyrich paid	7 50	Dr Geo Ross paid	10 00
Samuel Wagoner paid	5 00	Joseph E Nickel	5 00
Jacob Vandersol paid	5 00	Sam'l Wagoner pd E H T	5 00
Joseph B Nickey	5 00

THE MARKETS.

Corrected semi-monthly for the Advocate,
By Jno. Wallower & Son, Com. Merchants.

HARRISBURG.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,	$4 00	a 4	12½
Do. Rye, do. - -	2 50	a 2	50
Do. Corn, do. - -	2 37½	a 2	37½
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,	85	a	87
Do. Rye, do. - -	53	a	53
Do. Corn, do. - -	46	a	46
Do. Oats, do. - -	33	a	33
Do. Barley, do. - -	70	a	75
SEEDS—Clover, do. - -	4 25	a 4	62½
Do. Timothy, do. - -	2 00	a 2	25
Do. Flax, do. - -	1 25	a 1	25
BEEF, per cwt. - - -	5 00	a 5	50
PORK, do. - - - -	5 50	a 5	50
HAMS, per pound, - - -	10	a	12½
BUTTER, do. - - - -	18	a	20
LARD, do. - - - -	8	a	8
TALLOW, do. - - - -	8	a	10
HARD SOAP, (Dried) per lb.	6	a	7
EGGS, per dozen, - - - -	8	a	10
POTATOES, per bushel, - -	62½	a	75
ONIONS, do. - -	75	a	87½
APPLES, do. - - -	75	a 1	00
PEACHES, (Dried) per bush.	1 25	a 1	30
FEATHERS, per pound, - -	37½	a	45
WOOL, do. - - -	30	a	50
SALT, per sack, - - - -	1 50	a 1	50
HAY, per ton, - - - - -	10 00	a10	00
PLASTER, per ton, - - -	4 50	a 4	50

PHILADELPHIA.

FLOUR—Wheat, per barrel,	$4 50	a 4	75
Do. Rye, do. -	3 00	a 3	00
Do. Corn, do. - -	3 00	a 3	00
GRAIN—Wheat, per bushel,	95	a 1	10
Do. Rye, do. - -	68	a	70
Do. Corn, do. - -	59	a	60
Do. Oats, do. - -	41	a	42
Do. Barley, do. - -	85	a 1	00
SEEDS—Clover, do. - -	4 75	a 5	00
Do. Timothy, do. - -	2 50	a 2	62
Do. Flax, do. - -	1 40	a 1	50
BEEF, per cwt., - -	7 00	a 8	75
PORK, do. - - - - -	7 00	a 7	25

WHITE HALL ACADEMY,

Three miles West of Harrisburg, Pa.

THIS Institution will be opened for the reception of Students on Monday, the 5th of May next. The course of instruction will embrace the various branches of a thorough English Education, together with the Latin, Greek, French and German Languages, and Vocal and Instrumental Music.

TERMS.

Boarding, Washing, Lodging and Tuition in the English branches, per session, (five months,) - - - - - - - - - - $50 00
Latin or Greek, - - - - - - - 5 00
Freneh or German, - - - - - - 5 00
Instrumental Musie, - - - - - - 10 00
For further information, address
D. DENLINGER,
March 15.—2m. Principal, Harrisburg.

Dr. Christie's

Galvanic Belt, Necklace, Bracelets, and Magnetic Fluid.

THE acknowledged and extraordinary curative powers of these wonderful Inventions is now so generally known and their sales and reputation throughout the whole country so extensive, that it would seem unnecessary to urge their merits further. But some late circumstances have occurred which render it a matter of duty to the public not to be altogether silent, for while the ephemeral nostrums of the day are trumpeted by columns through the Press and swallowed by quarts and gallons by the afflicted, and are found just good for nothing,

Christie's Galvanic & Magnetic Curatives,

have been quietly working their way among the most intelligent and respectable classes, and are constantly achieving cures in an alarming train of diseases, which have for ages baffled all the aid of medicine and all the resources of Science. These diseases are called

NERVOUS COMPLAINTS,

and in these diseases medicine is of no avail whatever. It never does good, and it often does harm. Syrups, Extracts, Balms, Balsams, Elixirs, Bitters, Pills, Powders and Potions of every kind are alike worthless, for they weaken the vital energies of the already prostrated system; while under the strengthening, life-giving, vitalizing influence of Galvanism as applied by this beautiful discovery, the exhausted patient and weakened sufferer is restored to former health, strength, elasticity and vigor.

These remarks relate to such diseases as NEURALGIA, TIC DOLOREUX, BRONCHITIS, PALPITATION of the HEART, WEAKNESS, and all FEMALE DISORDERS, such as NERVOUS HEADACHE, LASSITUDE and DESPONDENCY, which are only other names for Nervous Derangement; EPILEPTIC FITS and CONVULSIONS, which are known to result from a non-equilibrium of Electric Influence; NERVOUS TREMORS, DEAFNESS, which is nearly always caused by torpidity of the Auditory Nerves and can always be perfectly cured by Galvanism when the organ is not destroyed; DYSPEPSIA, in its worst forms; PALSY and PARALYSIS, uniformly caused by a deficiency of Nervous influence; CHRONIC RHEUMATISM, TORPIDITY of the LIVER, PAIN in the SIDE, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION, SPINAL and HIP COMPLAINTS, DEFICIENCY of NERVOUS and PHYSICAL ENERGY, and all those distressing complaints resulting from a DERANGEMENT of the NERVOUS SYSTEM.

In the above prevalent and terrible class of diseases and Nervous Complaints which are much more numerous than is generally imagined—

CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES,

Are an Absolute and Positive Specific.

The BELT is used when the body or system generally is affected: the NECKLACE for complaints of the Throat, as Asthma and Bronchitis, and of the Head: and the BRACELETS for all disorders of the arms and limbs, as Rheumatism, Palsy, Tremors and Spasmodic affections. These articles are simply applied as directed with the MAGNETIC FLUID which accompanies them, and when faithfully used they NEVER FAIL!

☞ The great peculiarity and excellence of the GALVANIC CURATIVES consists in the fact that they arrest and cure disease by Outward Application, in place of the usual method of Drugging and Physicing the patient till exhausted nature sinks hopelessly under the infliction. They strengthen the whole system, equalize the circulation of the Blood, promote the secretions, invigorate the entire energies, and can never do the slightest harm under any circumstances.

Since their introduction in the United States, only three years since, more than

75,000 PERSONS

including all ages, classes and conditions, among whom were a large number of Ladies, who are peculiarly subject to Nervous Complaints, have been

Entirely and Permanently Cured,

when all hope of relief had been given up, and everything else had been tried in vain! The beneficial results which have uniformly attended their use is confidently stated to be without a parallel in the annals of Medical Science. Clergymen, lawyers, and even physicians: ladies of the highest standing: distinguished persons holding elevated official situations: merchants, manufacturers, and mechanics: the poor and the rich alike: often whole families, among all classes, ranks and conditions, have equally been recipients, and have equally acknowledged the wondrous and often unexpected benefits which they have thus received.

☞ Let it be known and remembered that the only Natural Restorative for the Nerves is Galvinism, and that in all Nervous Diseases we should

"Throw Physic to the Dogs."

To illustrate the use of the GALVANIC BELT, suppose the case of a person afflicted with that bane of civilization, DYSPEPSIA, or any other Chronic or Nervous Disorder. In ordinary cases stimulants are taken, which, by their action on the nerves and muscles of the stomach, afford temporary relief, but which leave the patient in a lower state, and with injured faculties, after the action thus excited has ceased. Now compare this with the effect resulting from the application of the GALVANIC BELT. Take a Dyspeptic sufferer, even in the worst symptoms of an attack, and simply tie the Belt round the Body, using the Magnetic Fluid as directed. In a short period the insensible perspiration will act on the positive element of the Belt, thereby causing a Galvanic circulation which will pass on to the negative, and thence back again to the positive, thus keeping up a continuous Galvanic circulation throughout the system. Thus the most severe cases of Dyspepsia are permanently cured. A few days is amply sufficient to eradicate the disease of years.

MANY THOUSAND
Certificates and Testimonials

from the most intelligent and respectable persons residing in every portion of the United States, could be presented. These are now unnecessary, but a numerous selection embracing many statements of the most extraordinary character, sufficient to convince the most sceptical, may be had of the authorized Agent. The interested are particularly invited to call.

WONDERFUL RESTORATION!

☞ 77 Years Old!!!

Blooming Grove, Orange Co., N. Y., July 26, 1850.

To Dr. A. H. Christie, New York.

Dear Sir—Having been very severely handled by Rheumatism and other diseases, and having been cured in a most remarkable manner by CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC BELT and FLUID, I thought I would give a statement of my case, for the benefit of others. I had the Rheumatism last winter, and my legs swelled very much. My head was also very much afflicted, having so severe a pain over my eyes that I could scarcely see. At the same time, I was troubled by spasms, caused by the pain in my head, I suppose. My hearing had been getting poor for several years from a catarrh, so that in one ear I could scarcely hear at all. Having heard wonderful accounts of Christie's Belt and Fluid, I sent to your store and got them. The Belt was put on, and the Fluid used as directed, and I don't think I have had, after the first night using them, one minute clear pain from that time to this, being six months. The Rheumatism left my body entirely, after wearing the Belt a very short time, probably two weeks. Then I put on a Galvanic Necklace, and had not worn it two weeks, before my head was perfectly well. My hearing in both ears is entirely restored, the pain all gone, my sight is very good for a man of my age, (77 years in August) and I consider myself entirely well, having worked through harvest without the least difficulty. I consider my cure very remarkable, and therefore do not hesitate to recommend CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES to all persons afflicted as I have been. (Signed) PHINEAS TUTHILE.

AFFIDAVIT.

State of New York, Newburgh, Orange county, ss: Phineas Tuthile of Blooming Grove, Orange county, N. Y., who is personally known to me as a most respectable citizen and worthy of all confidence, being duly sworn deposes and says that the facts, set forth in the above statement in relation to his case, are entirely correct, and that he is now in the enjoyment of good health, caused as he believes by Christie's Galvanic Curatives. PHINEAS TUTHILE.

Sworn before me this 26th day of June, 1850.
S. W. EAGER, Justice of the Peace.

Weakness and Nervous Debility!

Dear Sir—I want another supply of Christie's Galvanic Curatives, immediately. This is an intelligent and reasoning community, and they see at once that the Curatives are constructed upon scientific and philosophical principles and must work effectually upon the Nervous System, in the case of Nervous Diseases. An estimable young lady in our town was afflicted with extreme Nervous Debility and severe pains in the head and neck. She put on one of the Galvanic Belts and Necklace and immediately became sensible of its curative and strengthening powers, and the next day was relieved of the severe pains, and raised from a state of entire nervous prostration to health and strength. I can mention several other cases equally wonderful.

Yours very respectfully, J. B. KNIGHT.
Panama, Chautauque Co., N. Y., Oct. 1, 1850.

☞ No trouble or inconvenience attends the use of DR. CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC CURATIVES, and they may be worn by the most feeble and delicate with perfect ease and safety. In many cases the sensation attending their use is highly pleasant and agreeable. They are accompanied by full and plain directions for use. Pamphlets with full particulars may be obtained gratis, of the authorized Agent.

PRICES:

The Galvanic Belt, Three Dollars,
The Galvanic Necklace, Two Dollars.
The Galvanic Bracelets, One Dollar Each.
The Magnetic Fluid, One Dollar.

PARTICULAR CAUTION.

☞ Beware of counterfeits and Worthless Imitations. D. C. MOREHEAD, M. D.,
GENERAL AGENT FOR THE UNITED STATES,
132 Broadway, New York.

☞ For Sale by Dr. W. K. MEHAFFEY, authorized Agent for HARRISBURG, PA.

Dr. GEO. ROSS, Elizabethtown, Pa.
Jan. 1, 1851.—6m.

Music Books—Price Reduced.

1. Evangelical Music—Patent Notes—Price five dollars per dozen.
Do. Do. Round Notes—Price four dollars per dozen.
2. History of all Denominations—Portrait Editions—Price two dollars and fifty cents.
3. Reference and Pronouncing Testaments—Price fifty cents.
4. Treatise on Regeneration—Price sixty-two and a half cents.
5. Five Hundred Sketches and Skeletons—Price two dollars and fifty cents.
6. Traveller's Guide to the West—Price fifty cents.
7. Wandering Soul—Price seventy-five cents.
8. Hymn Books, English and German, assorted, at different prices.

☞ For sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER and HICKOK & BARRETT, Harrisburg, Penn'a.

Depositories of Our Books.

FOR the convenience of our brethren, and the public generally, we have established Book Depositories in the following places, and with the following persons, viz:

GEO. F. GORDON, corner of 12th and Wistar streets, and BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY, No. 31 North Sixth street, Philadelphia.

D. APPLETON, No. 200 Broadway, and LEWIS COLBY, No. 122 Nassau street, New York.

E. LUCAS & CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

A. MEGREW and J. P. WINEBRENNER, Wooster, Ohio.

SARAH SADLER, Allegheny City, Pa.

JOHN F. WEISHAMPEL, Baltimore, Md.

JOHN H. CORNELIUS, New Berlin, Union county, Pa.

SPANGLER & BROTHER, Lancaster, Pa.

MARTIN and MENELY, Lagrange county, Indiana.

M. F. SNAVELY, North Bend, Iowa.

☞ Those who may want any of our works, may obtain the same by applying to any of the aforenamed persons.

List of Valuable Books.

	Retail Prices.
History of Denomination in the U. S.,	$2 50
English and German Dictionaries, -	2 00
Wandering Soul, - - - - -	75
Evangelical Music, - - - -	75
Treatise on Regeneration, - - -	62½
English Ref. and Pron. Testament, -	50
German Reference Testament, - -	37½
Revival Hymn Books, - - -	50
German Do., - - - - -	50
View of the Church, &c., - - -	37½
Almost Christian, in German, -	25
Young Christian's Guide, - - -	25
Harn on Feet-washing, - - -	25
Lyceum Spelling Book, - - -	15
Traveller's Guide to the West, - -	50

EVANGELICAL MUSIC,

FOR

CHURCHES AND SINGING SCHOOLS.

THE proprietor offers for sale, at reduced prices, the Evangelical Music-book, containing a great variety of popular Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Set pieces and Anthems.

This popular Music-book has been before the public for a number of years, and has received a very flattering reception among various Religious Denominations and Musical Associations.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

From the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia.—"The committee state that they have examined, as carefully as practicable, the 'Evangelical Music,' and cheerfully recommend it to the congregations under their care, as a good system of Church Music."

From the Minutes of the Bellefonte Musical Association.—"Resolved, That we consider 'Evangelical Music' the best work of the kind known to us, and cheerfully recommend it to all lovers of Sacred Music.

☞ FOR SALE at this office, and at our Depositories. EDITOR.

To Agents and Editors.

Agents are wanted in every part of the United States for the sale of the following

NEW AND HIGHLY INTERESTING WORK;
ENTITLED

History of Denominations.

Second, Improved and Portrait Edition, just published and ready for delivery.

This splendid and highly interesting work contains original histories of the rise, and progress, faith, and practice, localities, and statistics of

50 Religious Denominations,

Written expressly for the work, by as many eminent and distinguished men, belonging to the respective denominations.

It is likewise handsomely embelished with

24 Splendid Portraits.

of leading men, identified with the different leading persuasions.

In addition to this, it contains an Introduction giving short accounts of some smaller sects and parties, not regularly organized, and therefore not noticed in the body of the work. On the whole, it is considered a full and complete History of ALL the Sects and Religious Denominations now existing in the United States.

The volume contains 600 pages, is printed on good paper, and is handsomely bound with gilt backs and embossed sides.

Price $2 50 per copy.

A liberal discount will be made to travelling agents, who buy for cash, and canvass thoroughly.

The work is published and for sale by JOHN WINEBRENNER & Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

☞ EDITORS OF THE RELIGIOUS PRESS, copying this Advertisement, entire, well displayed, as above, without any alteration or abridgement, (including this notice,) and giving it three or four prominent insertions, will confer a special favor, and shall receive a copy of the work, (subject to their orders,) by sending direct to the publishers.

☞ No letter will be taken from the office unless post paid.

JOB PRINTING
NEATLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

JOHN FURGESON, Printer.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE.

A FAMILY PAPER---Devoted to the Diffusion of Bible Truth, Religious News and General Intelligence.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. "EARNESTLY CONTEND FOR THE FAITH WHICH WAS ONCE DELIVERED TO THE SAINTS." PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

VOLUME XV. HARRISBURG, Pa., APRIL 15, 1851. NUMBER 24.

THE CHURCH ADVOCATE

Is printed and published in Mulberry street, near the Railroad Bridge, Harrisburg, Pa.,

By JOHN WINEBRENNER, V. D. M., Editor.

TERMS AND REGULATIONS.

The Church Advocate will be printed and published semi-monthly, on a large super-royal sheet, on the following terms, to wit:

1. One copy paid in advance, - $1 00
2. One copy paid within the first three months, - - - - - 1 25
3. One copy not paid till after the expiration of the first three months, 1 50
4. No subscription will be taken for a less period than six months, and in no case shall the paper be discontinued until all arrearages are paid, except at the option of the editor.
5. Notices of discontinuence must be accompanied by a remittance of all arrearages, or they will not be noticed.
6. All communications and letters addressed to the editor, (except from regular agents,) whether they contain money, contributions for the paper, new subscribers, or any thing else, must be post-paid, in order to receive attention.
7. The preachers of the Church of God in regular standing, whether travelling or otherwise, are accredited agents for this paper. Any preacher who procures five new subscribers, annually, with payment, shall have his paper gratis.
8. In forwarding new subscribers or remitting money for old ones, write legibly, and always give the POST-OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE.
9. Everything of a business nature must be written separate and apart from other matters.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.

Fare Reduced.

The Harrisburg and Lancaster Railroad Company have reduced their fare to three cents per mile. They have also agreed to allow a draw-back on all articles coming from the Cumberland Valley Railroad and passing over their road.

Conestoga Bridge.

The Railroad Bridge across the Conestoga, about one mile east of Lancaster, was consumed by fire on Friday afternoon, the 4th inst. The fire originated from the sparks of a locomotive. The bridge, it is said, will be re-built in ten days. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

Notice to the Brethren in Michigan.

Brother David Dennis and others, from Middletown, Pa., hereby give notice to the brethren in Michigan, in Elder Slyter's neighhood, that they intend, God willing, to move from this to that country about the beginning of May next. They anticipate the pleasure of forming an agreeable acqnaintance, and of enjoying Christian fellowship among them.

Sixteenth Volume.

Our next and 16th volume will commence on the first of May. Now, therefore, is the best time for new subscribers to commence, and for old ones to make payment. Remember this, one and all, and act accordingly.

Wanted,

Numbers 2 and 6 of volume 14—and numbers 13 and 15 of volume 15 of the Church Advocate. We shall feel much obliged to our friends who have the aforesaid numbers of the Advocate to spare, if they will send us the same. We want them to complete some bound volumes. Who will be kind enough to send us some?

Revival at Jollytown.

Jollytown lies north-east of Wooster, Ohio, some six or seven miles. In that place, the Lord has glorified himself in the revival of his work. Brother Wm. Adams writes, "The work of the Lord is gloriously prospering in Ohio. I just got home last evening from Jollytown, Wayne county, where we closed a meeting which resulted in the conversion of about 25 souls. Seventeen were baptized, and 22 united with the Church in that place."

Adjournment of the Legislature.

The Legislature adjourns to-day, after a toilsome and laborious session of 98 days. They have done a good deal of work, though mostly of a local character. We may give a summary of some of the Acts passed in our next. We are glad to find that the project to avoid the mountain planes on the Portage Railroad, has found sufficient favor to be incorporated in the Appropriation Bill. The inclined planes on the Portage and Columbia Railroad will stand, as so many monuments of Pennsylvania folly, for ages to come.

Our Western Missionaries.

We had expected to announce in this paper, officially, the respective appointments of our missionaries for Illinois and Iowa. But, as the Missionary Board has not yet held a meeting, nor taken any definite action with regard to these appointments, we can make no official announcement of said appointments yet. We hope, however, the Board will meet soon, and take under its direction and auspices these brethren now ready to enter the fields or stations assigned them.

Our Missionary Agents, likewise, will do well to push their business, and collect the means required to sustain or aid our self-denying and well deserving minsionaries. He who has given the men, will also give the means, if suitable efforts are made.

The Grain Crops.

The winter grain, considering the open winter, looks remarkably fine through this country. The Spring having been thus far very early and favorable, the grain, grasses, and fruit, are all much earlier this Spring than they were last, and promise a rich and abundant harvest.

New Subscribers.

They are beginning to come. We are glad of it, and we make them all welcome. We hope they will continue to come by scores, till we have enough to justify an enlargement of the Advocate, and then, no doubt, they will still come, and multiply by coming. We want our agents and friends to be up and doing, between this and the first of May, all they can to increase our list. The young converts, especially, ought to be urged to take the paper. It will be a help to them in many ways. Let them try it, and satisfy themselves of its benefit and practical and utility.

Call for a Camp-meeting.

There was a young man converted at the Cedar Valley Camp-meeting, Ohio, by the name of Wm. H. Loveland, last summer, who resides in Huntsburg township, Geauga county, Ohio, and now wishes a Camp-meeting to be held there, about the middle of June next. He says he has the promise of ten tents, and expects more. He desires brothers Adams, Howard, Harn and others to attend, with a load of good singers from Wayne county. He states that there are some of brother Howard's old friends and acquaintances in that neighborhood, who are very anxious to have him visit them. Brother Howard had better go ahead a week or two of the time of meeting, and get things in readiness. He thinks there could be a Church formed, and a minister supported, in that county.

We hope the brethren in Ohio will attend to this call, and hold a meeting there, commencing about the 12th of June. Those who go to hold the meeting, are requested to bring with them an assortment of our books, and to stop with Edward Hulbert, or John Mullers, or Stephen Hallis, by whom they will be well received.

Visit to Middletown.

We had the pleasure of visiting and preaching to the Church of God at Middletown on Saturday and Sabbath, the 29th and 30th ult. This Church, in former years, was a kind of pattern Church, both in faith and good works; but from all accounts, she is not so spiritual and zealous of good works now as formerly. Why it is so, we know not, except it be the neglect of discipline and the deceitfulness of riches.

The discipline of the Church has, we think, not been exercised as faithfully by the officers as it might have been: and wherever, and whenever this part of righteousness is neglected, the result will be detrimental to the Church's spiritual interest. No Church can prosper and maintain her purity and spirituality, when her order, government and discipline are neglected.

Just so when riches increase, without a correspondent growth in grace. Some of the brethren at Middletown are increasing in goods and earthly possessions. Some ten or fifteen years ago many of them were poor, but now they are well off, so far as earthly treasures are concerned. But, O! the danger of riches and love of money! What have they not done? How many souls and Churches have been ruined by their influence? We greatly fear that these things have militated against the spiritual happiness and prosperity of some in the Church at Middletown. But, may the Lord save them in the hour of trial and temptation, and grant them grace to overcome, that they perish not!

Brother Mooney, their pastor, was sick nigh to death, but the Lord had mercy on him, and has raised him up. He is now able to preach again.

CONTRIBUTORS' DEPART'T.

THE RESOLUTION
Of the Ohio Eldership Reviewed.

There are in my mind three principal objections to the resolution of the Ohio Eldership, respecting the admission of church members. These are,

1st. Its want of Scripture authority.

2d. Its unreasonableness; and,

3d. It is to all intents and purposes sectrian, and at war with the spirit and genius of the Gospel, and subversive of the professed principles of the Church of God.

1st. The resolution wants the sanction of Scripture authority. Bro. Megrew, however, roundly asserts, that it is contrary to the law of Christ to receive unbaptized persons into the Church. If this declaration be correct, I suppose brother M. will be able either to point us to some statute law, making baptism a prerequisite to church fellowship, or give us a prohibition for receiving any person into fellowship unbaptized. From this assumption, one or the other he is bound to do. But what are his arguments in the premises?—Let us examine.

Two things he admits in which we both agree:

1. Christ is the door; and,

2. Baptism is an ordinance in the kingdom.

Now, if these things be so, converts must come into the house or spiritual fold before they are baptized. "But," says he, "there remains no room here for a question, whether they should be fellowshipped or received into local membership, before or without baptism; from the fact, that baptism is the very next duty commanded," (after conversion.) Here brother M. is begging the question. He assumes the very question at issue. If my mind was as easily satisfied as brother M.'s, I should not have proposed those inquiries. But, what is the clear inference from brother M.'s position? Why, that baptism is the door into the local Church. To prove this, he says baptism is the next duty enjoined; i. e., the first duty after they are in the kingdom. Though this may have been the case in some instances, yet it does not prove his position; unless he can show that baptism was an essential prerequisite to Christian or Church fellowship. He quotes Ananias to Paul, Acts 9, "Why tarriest thou?" Now, this text, with the attending circumstances, will prove too much for brother M. Ananias is the very first to receive Paul, or Saul, into the brotherhood, and administer baptism on that very account. He salutes him as brother Saul. Brother M. further says, "He commanded him to be baptized, not to go up to Jerusalem to join the Church." What has all this to do with the subject? Brother M. ought to know that Paul preached the Gospel three years before he went up to Jerusalem at all.—Gal. 16: 17, 18. Had he not been fellowshipped before this? And when he did go and assayed to join himself to the disciples, did they meet him with a resolution like that of the Ohio Eldership? Did they ask Paul, are you baptized? No. Barnabas simply gave a history of his Christian experience and character. Here, then, you will find, in the very proof text of Bro. M., quite another condition of church membership than baptism. It was Christian experience.

It will be understood by our readers, the point at issue is not, whether persons may not be baptized upon profession of faith, and before they formally unite with a local church? for all the ministers of the Church of God have acted on that principle from the beginning. But the question is, whether a resolution, by any ecclesiastical body, making baptism a prerequisite to church fellowship, is Scriptural? I contend that such a resolution is unscriptural:

1. Because it makes a new test of Christian fellowship, unauthorized by Christ or his Apostles.

2. If the doctrine itself was true, it is an unscriptural assumption for the Ohio Eldership to pass such a resolution, because it is, to all intents and purposes, creed making. But more of this in a future communication.

3d. The doctrine of the resolution is unreasonable:

1. It makes either baptism the door into the local church, or makes more doors than one. If baptism is the door, you must re-baptize backsliders. If you receive backsliders without baptism, and make baptism the door for young converts, then you make two doors—one for young converts, and one for backsliders.

2. It is unreasonable, because it makes a distinction between the conditions of Christian and Church fellowship. Those who hold the doctrine of the resolution, will fellowship unbaptized Christians out of the Church, or in sectarian Churches, but refuse to fellowship young converts in the Church of God.

3. It is unreasonable, because it leads to the most vague and inconsistent practice. Our Baptist brethren who hold these sentiments, will preach, and pray, and labor with Christians of other denominations, but will not commune with them. In other words, they will fellowship them in some of the ordinances of Christ's kingdom, but not in others; and Bro. M.'s arguments lead to the same result.

4. It is unreasonable, because it will in some instances force persons to be baptized without true faith in the ordinance, or drive them away from the Church. Some are honest, but cannot see at once their duty in this respect. Yet they wish to unite with the Church.

I shall now come to a close, promising at a future time, if spared, to offer some arguments in proof of my third proposition.

Truth and consistency are highly important and desirable in the Church of God.

Yours in the bonds of friendship and truth,

D. R. ROCKAFELLOW.

Mechanicsburg, Cumberland Co., Pa.

Keller and Owen's Debate.

HARRISBURG, March 25, 1851.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

In the Religious Telescope of the 12th inst. is another article on the Keller and Owen Debate. This has the signature of Mr. Owen himself. He appears in justification of the dereliction of Bishop Erb to have said debate published through the columns of the Telescope. As the corrections of Mr. Keller's speeches passed chiefly through my hands, you will allow me to state a few facts, and correct a few of Mr. Owen's errors!

1. In the first place, Mr. Owen challenged for a written or oral discussion. A written was preferred by Mr. Keller, and his challenge accepted. About the same day Mr. K.'s letter of acceptance was received, Mr. Owen wrote a reply, that he could not get the columns of the Telescope. This was quick work! How did he know he could not!

2. Mr. Owen never gave his consent for the publication of the debate in any form. Yourself and Bishop Erb first proposed having a verbatim report from the stenographer's pen; but this Mr. Owen told me he would have nothing to do with. So it failed. He then made an effort in the discussion to make the impression that the reporter was employed by Mr. Keller's side alone, when he knew that Bishop Erb was the originator of the plan of having a reporter at all.

3. As for the violation of the contract, Mr. Owen has used in this, as well as in his debate, his characteristic legerdemain. The fact is, that Mr. Owen was not present at all when the contract, as it is called, was made with Bishop Erb: Nor was he present at any conversation on the subject with the Bishop, till after the first articles appeared in the proof-sheet. So much for his first fact, to which he says he is witness.

"But," says he, "we only received the proof instead of the original copy." Well, Mr. Owen, what of all that? It was the proof verbatim et literatum et punctuatum of the reporter's manuscript, so far as your address was concerned; and the editor pledged to supply any verbal correction or quotation that you should make. And the only reason why the proof-sheet was forwarded was, that it was thought most convenient, and the printer had been waiting already. As for getting Mr. Keller's speeches, Mr. Owen never had a promise to that amount—they were needed for the use of the printer while Mr. Owen was correcting his own. Also, if he had come to the office, he was perfectly welcome to see the whole; but I was under no obligation to carry them to him, as I did his own, especially when the printer needed them. But what benefit could arise to him from having them, is hard for me to conceive. He was not authorized to re-write them, as he wished to do his own!!

4. He next says, "My speeches were published without even a verbal correction, while Mr. Keller's were thus corrected; and this they did with the corrected copy in their possession." To this I reply, there is but one word of truth in it. Mr. Keller's were verbally corrected. The other is a fabrication of his own—a mere dream. It is true, when Mr. Owen came with his entirely newly written speech from his own hand, stating that he supposed I had dictated to the stenographer and supplied him with material to write out Mr. Keller's speeches, and requested its publication in lieu of the reporter's manuscript, I positively refused such unfairness. I had never dictated to the stenographer, furnished him with material, nor changed a single sentence, at that time, in a single speech.

Mr. Owen was told, to let the whole matter go through press as it came from the reporter, with the exception of verbal corrections and supplying quotations, all of which he was permitted to do; and then, if he was not satisfied, but wished to write speeches, he should have ample chance, but he must remember others could write speeches as well as he!!

Mr. Owen then proceeded to correct some of his speeches, as he called it, verbally; but, instead of that, changing whole sentences, and in some instances the whole sense of the subject, and materially affecting the whole point at issue. No such liberty was ever taken with Mr. Keller's speeches, in any one instance. And simply because Mr. O. was not allowed this unprecedented advantage, he got twisted up into his snarl, and handed me back the uncorrected manuscript; after which I had to do the best I could in furnishing the quotations, without correcting any thing in his speeches. In some instances I gave his quotations more full, if at all different, than he read them.

As for the reporter's making Mr. O. "speak nonsense," he has done him no more injustice, in that respect, than he has Mr. Keller. If it was in place for me to exercise and pronounce my judgment, I would say that he has only neglected to report numbers of other instances where Mr. O. "spake nonsense!!!" As an instance, Mr. Owen spent nearly three days in proving, to his own satisfaction at least, that the pouring out of the Spirit was what was meant by the baptism of the Holy Spirit, and then, in his closing speech on the action of baptism, knocked the whole of his work in the head, by proving equally as satisfactorily to himself, that buried with Christ in baptism was buried with him in spiritual baptism.

5. He again says, "They did not publish according to reporter's copy." To this I reply, dare Mr. Owen say that a single sentence, changing the force of a single argument, has been altered? He dare not! I challenge him to compare the manuscript with the published debate. Mr. Owen, come do it if you dare!

But, I am now authorized to say,

1. That if the Telescope will publish the debate, and Bishop Erb pay his share of the reporter's dues, the editor can have the original manuscript, provided he will preserve it for future reference, if called upon. All the corrections we claim to make are of a verbal character, and to furnish quotations.

2. To show the public the character of Mr. Owen's corrections, his written speech will now be published. If any one will take the pains to compare the two, he will see that the stenographer's report is the best speech of the two. It will be published without alteration at all.

3. That Mr. Owen may have no longer room for this quibbling, if he thinks he has learned any thing, and can now do better than before, he can proceed to write as many speeches or letters, on the two questions at issue, or any others he may see fit to suggest, wherein the two denominations differ, and he can have a respondent; provided the Telescope will publish both sides, and the Advocate shall do the same. Mr. Keller has authorized me so to say. Fraternally, G. U. HARN.

I certify that I followed manuscript copy, as furnished me, in setting up the Keller and Owen debate—that as full justice was done Mr. Owen's speeches as Mr. Keller's. I believe no advantage has been taken of him at all. PRINTER.

The Superiority of our Knowledge in Heaven to our Knowledge on Earth.

"Then shall I know even as also I am known." 1 Cor. 13: 12.

AMIDST the many other glorious things that are spoken of the city of God—amidst the many other excellencies of that blessed place, where the saints of God shall take up their everlasting abode, this is one, that they shall be blessed with a high and exalted measure of knowledge. That noble appetite and desire of knowing which is implanted in the human soul by the great Creator, shall be there sweetly filled and satisfied. Our dimness and ignorance shall there be taken away, and we shall see God and his glories in clear and open light. Then, says the Apostle, "I shall know even as also I am known."

In the consideration of this beautiful Scriptural passage, I shall endeavor in the first place, to show that the people of God shall be blessed in heaven with a more full and glorious knowledge. We shall have a better knowledge of God. However, not an absolute perfect knowledge of God, for that would appear impossible; but notwithstanding such a knowledge of Him as shall satisfy the soul, and compared to which all our present knowledge of him is as nothing. We shall see him as he is. We shall see his face unveiled. All his perfections will then shine out with the brightest lustre. We shall have a better knowledge of Christ, for we shall be with him, and behold him, and converse with him. We shall see his face in glory. In this blessed vision of Christ Job rejoiced.—Job 19: 27. We shall have a better knowledge of the work of creation—we shall know more of the world than ever we could have known by dwelling in it—even more than the greatest philosopher. Then, thanks to his ever-blessed name, shall we see God's glories in every star, in every plant and vegetable, in every living creature, and more especially in ourselves, our souls and bodies.

We shall have a better knowledge of the work of Providence. So our Lord said to Peter. We shall then know how the world was governed—how we were preserved from evil and danger—how we were provided for, and why the very best and holiest of men were so much tried and afflicted; and why it was, and how it was, that all these things worked together for their everlasting good.

We shall have a better knowledge of the work of redemption. Then, honor and praise be given, we shall learn Christ's wonderful love from his own mouth. Then, adoration and homage to the Lamb that was slain but liveth again, we shall understand the Gospel in all its glories, its wisdom, justice, mercy and truth. Dark places will be made easy, and seemingly opposite places reconciled.—We shall know more in one happy moment than the learned, with all their labor and study, could ever acquire. In heaven there will be no mistake, no error.

We shall have a better knowledge of the holy angels. We now read of their number, beauty, strength and holiness, and their constant and vigilant attention to ourselves; but in heaven we shall be intimately acquainted with them, and converse with them. The patriarchs' sometimes had communion with them on earth, but we shall have uninterrupted and everlasting communion with them in heaven.

We shall have a better knowledge of the saints. Even those we converse with now we shall know better in heaven. We shall always be with them, and our peace and harmony be unalloyed and uninterrupted; for we shall have no disagreements, no estrangements, and no misunderstandings. We shall know more of their excellencies, and see them in all their beauty, splendor and glory. We shall know all our contemporaries, however distant as to space. The ancient worthies also, however distant as to time. Patriarchs, Prophets, Apostles, and all those more closely allied to us according to the ties of nature; parents, husbands, wives and children. The Apostles knew Moses and Elijah at Christ's transfiguration; and St. Paul tells the Thessalonians that they should be his joy, which they could not possibly be if he did not know them from others.

In the second place, I may proceed to apply and improve the foregoing consideration, that in heaven we shall have a more full and glorious knowledge, the use it may be of to us, and the influence it ought to have upon us. If heaven, then, is a state where the souls of the righteous shall be blessed with such additional and improved knowledge, and such noble and intellectual pleasures, how careful should every one of us, who have an immortal soul at stake, be to secure heaven to ourselves hereafter. Let us not rest in sin and ignorance, when we are evidently capable of being exalted to such glory and happiness at God's right hand. O, careless sinners! be stirred up to diligence, so that you may be found of God at last in peace. O, presumptuous sinners! take not the hope of heaven without the life and power—without the sum and substance of its reality.

If heaven is such a state of glorious knowledge, it should comfort Christians amidst present darkness and ignorance. How little do we know of God! As Job has it, how little do we know of his works!—how little of another world! But there every cloud and mist shall be taken away from our eyes.—What the learned have long sought for in vain, shall be fully understood and largely comprehended by Christians of the smallest capacities. They shall with ease and pleasure contemplate the sublimest truths.

If heaven is a state of such glorious knowledge, we should refer thither such things as now seem dark and mysterious to us. Let us shun all vain and idle curiosity, all desires of knowing things before the time. This would be unprofitable to us and highly displeasing to God. It was the fatal ruin of our first parents. Those who looked into the ark were struck dead. See our Lord's reply to Peter, John 21: 21, 22.

It should encourage us in the way of Christ and the way to heaven, that we shall be blessed with such knowledge there. O what noble entertainments will this afford us in a happy eternity! How should we then run our race, when there is such a reward and crown for us at the end of it!

Since we hope for such noble and intellectual pleasures in heaven, it should deter us from the present sordid pleasures of sin.—Shall we wallow in such mire, who are designed for such glory and happiness? Is it becoming a soul that is to contemplate forever God and his wondrous works, to employ its thoughts now on unworthy objects, to fix its affections on earthly and perishing delights, to waste its time and folly? Surely not. A sinful life, and a heavenly life, are inconsistent and incompatible with each other.

Since heaven is the place where we attain to the full and consummate knowledge of God, let us bear with those who are in heart and soul with us, yet in some minor points may differ slightly from us. They will know better in heaven, and we shall know better too. In the meantime, let us all strive to be of Christ, to have the temper of Christ, the love, humility and forbearance of Christ. Let us ever be charitable and compassionate one toward another. Nor let us suppose that we shall ever all think alike in every thing till we come to heaven. Then and there we shall know even as we are known.

Since heaven is such a state of glorious knowledge, let us wish and long for it. Let our souls cry out, O, when shall we leave these dark abodes, for the fair regions of light and blessedness which are above! When shall we leave our doubts, and fears, and uncertainties, and be confused, perplexed and harrassed with them no more forever! When shall we no longer seek after knowledge, and not be able to find it! When, O when shall that day of glory come, when we shall no more know in part, but know even as we are known! Such as these should be our pious breathings and holy longings after that state of full, permanent, and complete, and satisfying knowledge in that haven of eternal rest—the other and the better world.

Though the scoffer will deny it,
  And the atheist despise,
Though the infidel defy it,
  And deceivers publish lies;
Yet will it remain forever,
  E'en through all future age;
Its foundation will not sever,
  But outstand the scoffer's rage.

It has conquered persecution,
  It has triumphed at the stake;
It has outlived execution,
  And it will never forsake.
It will leap up in the future,
  O'er the head of every foe;
It will rise up to the heavens,
  With its subjects from below.

Stand around it, firm, believing,
  To the brave belongs the fight;
Watch ye well the false deceivers,
  And the issue will be right.
For this knowledge is the lever,
  That alone can move away,
The world from spheres of darkness,
  To skies of endless day.

SAMUEL M. HOOVER.

Carlisle, March 17, 1851.

A Report from the Matamoras and Juniatta Circuit.

Having now ended my labors on this circuit, and thinking that it may not be uninteresting to some of the readers of the Advocate, I will proceed to give a plain and correct statement of the different appointments connected with the circuit.

1. Matamoras, Dauphin County.—The Church in this place at present numbers about 35 members. Here I baptized two, and received two into the Church. The Church was in a good state when I left them. Love and union prevailed among them. My congregations generally were large and attentive.

2. Baskin's School-house.—This place is about two miles from Matamoras. There is no organized Churh there, but there are several brethren living near, who hold their membership in the Church at Matamoras, and their desire is to have preaching there.—While I travelled that part of the circuit, I preached regularly for them. My congregation was small, but attentive.

3. Mather's School-house, (Lyken's Valley.)—This place is about eleven miles from the above mentioned. There is no Church there, but a few persons who are favorable to the "Church of God." I preached occasionally, and in the German language.

4. Sponsler's School-house, (Clark's Valley.)—Here lives one family who hold their membership in the Church at Dauphin. This appointment belonged to the Dauphin circuit, but the people wanted me to preach there, to which brother Fleegal agreed. This is a pretty hard place. Still, I think, if this was made a regular preaching place, some good might be done.

On account of the difficulty of crossing the Susquehanna river at Clark's Ferry, since the bridge is burned away, I gave those appointments in charge to brother Fleegal, preacher on the Dauphin circuit, in the beginning of winter.

5. Red Hill Bethel, (Perry county.)—The Church in this place numbers about forty-two members at present. Here I baptized nine, and received eight into church fellowship. One was expelled, and one removed to the West. The Church here at present is in a good state.

6. Grubb's School-house, (Wild Cat Valley.)—At one time there was a flourishing little Church in this place, but through mismanagement it became scattered and dwindled away to a few, who still hold fast to their integrity. There are about six or seven members.

7. Millerstown.—Here I preached regularly, and received nine into the Church, and organized a Church consisting of nine members. Bro. Isaac Deaffenderfer was elected Elder, and Bro. Samuel Gable Deacon. The cause of God here is beginning to grow brighter. There is, however, one disadvantage which the brethren are laboring under—they have no comfortable place to preach in. I would like to see a meeting-house built there, which, I think, might be accomplished, if the brethren would exert themselves a little.

8. Bretz's and Ulch's, (Pfoutz's Valley.)—These two appointments I dropped, from the fact that I received no encouragement at all to preach for them. This place is famous for its "latitudinarianism and libertinism."

9. Gungill's School-house, (Turkey Valley, Juniatta connty.)—Here there is a small Church, consisting of nine members. My congregations generally were good. The Methodists there are quite friendly to us.—The prejudice and bigotry which generally characterizes those people, finds no place among them.

10. Good-will School-house.—This is a new appointment that I have taken in. There are no members there, but still there is an opening, and I think preaching should be kept up there.

11. Thompsontown.—This also is a new appointment. We held a protracted meeting there, which commenced on the evening of the 19th of March, and continued until the 19th. The result of it was, three professed conversion, two were baptized, and a new Church was organized, consisting of seven members. Brother John Hinkle was elected Elder, and brother Joseph Freed Deacon. Four of these members came over from the Baptist Church. We have the privilege of a fine meeting-house to worship in there.

While travelling on this circuit, I preached one hundred and eighty-nine sermons, baptized thirteen, received twenty-six into church fellowship, and organized two Churches: so that we have still been on the increase a little, and prospects are still growing brighter. To God be all the glory. A. SNYDER.

Newport, Perry Co., March 24, 1851.

Affliction.

BY WM. M. H——R.

Who has not felt the heavy hand of affliction, or the excruciating pains of some dreadful malady? The history of our past lives establishes the truth of the saying that "all flesh is as grass," and that the seeds of mortality are sown, and are germinating in the breast of every individual. We see the beautiful and sportive child, just treading the threshold of life, on whose cheeks "smiles and roses are blended," rejoicing in the full glow of health and youthful hilarity. We look for him after a little while, and find him prostrated by the hand of disease, or perhaps friendship testifying by bitter tears their grief at the early decay of one so full of promise. Thus through all the different stages of human life we find mankind exposed to the fearful ravages of disease and death. If we view affliction of every kind as the legitimate offspring of sin, how miserable must have been our condition if under all the racking pains of corporeal malady there was not some spiritual solace—some heavenly balm to cheer us in those trying moments, and to sweeten the dregs of that cup which would otherwise be intolerable! When disease is coursing the vital current of life, and striving to sever those tender cords that bind us to time—when the presages of death are before our eyes, how indispensable to a happy exit is religion: although when we review our past lives, we find many lines which we might wish to blot from the pages of our history, yet we are consoled by the pleasing reflection that though we have sinned, we have still an advocate with the Father. It is in affliction that we have the most striking proofs of our frailty: we then behold upon what a slender thread our lives are suspended, and feel our utter dependence upon God for every thing, whether of a temporal or spiritual nature. In seasons of prosperity and health, how prone are we to neglect our souls eternal interest—how liable to sacrifice our hopes of heaven at the shrine of worldly pleasure; but in the hour of adversity all our accumulated pleasures and amusements—all the objects that have hitherto administered to our happiness, have vanished like a vapor, and even their remembrance is a source of mental anguish. Oh, then how easily we distinguish solid comfort from transient pleasure! How transporting then to feel that heavenly solace—that preparation of heart which enables us to endure all our affliction with Christian resignation and peaceful submission to the will of HIM who "tempers the wind to the shorn lamb," and who follows the rod of affliction with the balm of consolation, enabling us in the midst of all our afflictions to rejoice in a blessed hope of immortality and eternal life beyond this vale of tears.

East Sharpsburg, Pa., March, 1851.

More News from York County, Pa.

DEAR BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

THIS is to inform you and the readers of the Church Advocate, that I commenced a protracted meeting at the Brick School-house on Saturday evening, the 8th of March, which continued for a week, during which time we re-organized the Church, by giving the right hand of fellowship to our dear brethren and sisters who had formerly been members, and also to others who had never united with the Church. We appointed brothers James F. Machlan, Jacob Swiler an John Cannon Elders; and brothers John Umberger, Isaac Mendonall and Frederick Mash Deacons.—The Church is now in perfect union and peace, and all our dear brethren and sisters appear to be spiritual and heavenly-minded—all sweetly pulling together in the bonds of love and Christian fellowship. The Church now numbers 28 members, four of which were converted during our meeting—two were baptized, and more promised to go forward soon. May they not be disobedient. Our meeting would no doubt have been still better if we could have continued, but as I had occasion to go home to stay for some time, and also on account of the sickness of some of our dear brethren, we closed the meeting for the present. Brothers John Cannon and Jas. F. Machlan were both sick, and I understand that brother Machlan is still poorly; yet I hope the Lord may still spare him, as he is much needed in this Church, and all over the circuit.

In conclusion I would say, we had good times in general this winter on this circuit. Ninety-two have been converted, 46 baptized, and 95 taken into church-fellowship, since I am on this circuit; and a goodly number more have promised to be baptized and join the Church. May the Lord bless them, and help them to do their duty. The Churches of God on this circuit are now in a good condition, so far as I know. I have for my part used every effort in my power to forward the cause of God here, and I am persuaded that our labor was not in vain, for God was with us, blessed us, and converted a goodly number. I still feel bound to die in the field of battle. I care not where my lot may be cast, so that I may only live right, die right, and go to heaven right. To this end, may God help me, for his name's sake. Amen.

JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

Lewisberry, York Co., Pa., March 19, 1851.

Organize Churches.

To follow after primitive times, it is not only necessary to be converted and baptized, but also to unite with the Church. The only Church established by the authority of God, is named in the Bible the Church of God.—And the man that wants to take pattern of the Bible, must unite with it. Now, it often happens that brethren and sisters emigrate to parts where there is no such Church; then is the time, and there the place, to organize a Church on the true basis. "Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." Individuals cannot be gathered together in God's name, when they name themselves after a man, or some other name that caprice may invent. Therefore two or three can be organized into a Church, and the foundation would be laid.—This is the plan that ought to be always adopted, and great and lasting good would flow from it.

Organize Churches in all places, and although there may be few members at first, additions will be made from time to time, for "God giveth the increase." But if no organization is made, those that might be gathered together, may get scattered abroad. "Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost."

G. R.

Elizabethtown, March 4, 1851.

DOINGS OF THE Standing Committee of West Penn'a.

1. Whereas J. A. Plowman declines coming to the appointment assigned him by the Eldership, brother M. M. Uiley take his place, in connection with J. Hickernell.

2. That brother Davis continue where he now is.

3. That D. Wertz take charge of Perryopolis, Cookstown, Bellvernon and Washington county, in connection with West Newton and McKeesport.

4. The following brethren to visit the Virginia circuit, to assist brother Ober, viz: J. Hickernell two visits; Daniel Wertz three; E. Logue two. Brother Ober to give them timely notice when most needed.

5. The ministering brethren in Athens and Meigs counties, Ohio, to pay punctual attention to the Churches and appointments in that section of country.

J. HICKERNELL,
E. LOGUE.

Bethany, March 22, 1851.

Letter from Bro. Frederick Kemp.

WHITLEY Co., Indiana, March 18, 1851.

DEAR BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

I TAKE up my pen to drop a few lines, to let you and the readers of the Advocate know something about the affairs in the West.

I have just returned from a visit that I made in Ohio, where I had a meeting in Mercer county, and where I endeavored to hold forth the truth of God in my weak manner. The Lord appeared in power, in the conviction and conversion of many souls. The meeting continued 19 days, during which time brother Thos. Hickernell assisted three days. Some 25 or 30 cried for mercy, and about 15 found Him of whom Moses in the law and the Prophets did write. It was a blessed time. I baptized nine, and organized a Church of eight members, and others will soon follow. I truly had a happy season during the meeting. I also assisted brother Sands to hold several meetings. The Word seemed to have a good effect, so that believers were revived in the Lord, and were made to rejoice. Sinners were convicted, and some few came out to be prayed for. No more at present.

Yours in the bonds of Christian love,

FREDERICK KOMP.

Letter from Bro. G. Sandoe.

HINKLETOWN, April 1, 1851.

BROTHER WINEBRENNER:—

THESE few lines will give you the particulars of the meeting at Elizabethown. The meeting at that place commenced on the 22d of February, and was kept up for upwards of five weeks in succession. On the 28th of March I left for home, and brother Demont proposed to stay over Sabbath.

During the meeting some 20-odd professed to find peace by believing in Christ, and God's children were greatly revived.

Sinners of Elizabethtown have passed through another season of grace; perhaps the last for many. Solemn thought! Sinners, tremble!

During my stay at that place I truly felt myself at home. The Church treated me with all due respect and cordiality. May the Lord let his choicest blessings rest upon the old and young, that they may live a life of peace and holiness:

Ever trusting in God's grace—
Ever looking for their heavenly rest.

Yours, &c., G. SANDOE.

MARRIAGE NOTICES.

"I saw two clouds at morning
Tinged with the early sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one."

MARRIED—On Tuesday, the 18th ult., by Elder J. Mackey, Mr. JOHN F. MCCLURE to Miss CATHARINE NAUGLE, all of Southampton township, Franklin county, Pa.

On Thursday, the 20th ult., by the same, Mr. RICHARD CARR to Miss CATHARINE HARMAN, all of Southampton township, Franklin county, Pa.

On Thursday, the 27th ult., by the same, Elder GEORGE U. HARN, of Harrisburg, to Miss MARY ANN BRICKER, of Carlisle, Cumberland county, Pa.

On the 23d ult., by Elder John A. Plowman, Mr. ANDREW HAMMOND to Miss SARAH ANN WATTS, both of Lewisberry, York county, Pa.

On the 27th ult., by the same, Bro. HENRY CHUMLICK, of Siddensburg, to Sister ELIZA WILEY, of Warington, York county, Pa.

Love is the golden chain that binds
The happy souls above,
And they are heirs of heaven who find
Their bosoms glow with love.

On the 16th ult., by Elder Wm. McFadden, Mr. WILLIAM H. COOPER to Miss HENRIETTA JARVIS, both of Baltimore, Md.

On the same, by the same, Mr. JONATHAN D. AYRAS to Mrs. ANN JACKSON, both of Baltimore, Md.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

'Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set, but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O Death!

DIED—Near Newberry, York county, Pa., on the 24th ult., of the Scarlet Rash, MAHALA BRADY, daughter of Abram and Sarah Brady, aged 3 years, 1 month and 22 days.

Funeral services by the writer, from 1 Cor. 15: 22.

Also, on the same day, in Fishing Creek Valley, of the Scarlet Rash, CAROLINE DANNER, daughter of Jacob and Susanna Danner, aged 7 years and 1 month.

Funeral services by the writer, from Matt. 2: 18.

Near Siddenstown, of the Scarlet Rash, MARY ANN GARDNER, aged 16 years, 7 months and 11 days.

Funeral services by the writer, from John 5: 25, 28, 29, to a large congregation.

JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

On the 26th ult., near Newburg, Cumberland county, Pa., of inflamation of the lungs, JACOB MYERS CORMANY, son of John and Catharine Ann Cormany, aged 9 months and 26 days.

Funeral services by Elder E. H. Thomas, from John 13: 7.

On the 5th inst., at the residence of Mr. Joseph Feeman, near New Cumberland, Cumberland county, Pa., CATHARINE ANN PETERS, aged 20 years and 6 days.

Funeral services by Rev. Mr. Sanks, from Rom. 13: 11.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Protracted Meetings.

The following protracted meetings will be held on the York Circuit, at the following times and places, to wit:

April 18th at the Cross Roads.
" 26th at Strailies.

Preachers and brethren are invited to attend the above meetings. Come up to the help of the Lord. JOHN A. PLOWMAN.

A protracted meeting will be held at Shippensburg, Deo volente, commencing on Friday evening, the 2d of May next. We hope to be in attendance, if the Lord permit. EDITOR.

Ohio Camp-meetings.

A Camp-meeting will be held near Brownsville, Knox county, Ohio, commencing on the 14th of August next.

Another will be held in Summit county, Ohio, on the old camp-ground, near East Liberty, commencing on the 14th of August.

Another will be held on the old camp-ground near Peter Sherrich's, eight miles north-west of Wooster, commencing on the 21st of August.

Another will be held near Smithville, Wayne county, Ohio, commencing on the 28th of August.

Missionary Subscriptions and Donations:

FOR sustaining five Missionaries in the West—two in Iowa and three in Illinois, during the next Eldership year, commencing with April, 1851, and ending with March, 1852.

Jno Winebrenner paid	$10 00	Abraham Swartz	$5 00
Wm Richart paid	5 00	A Liberal Brother	20 00
Isaac Miller	10 00	A Liberal Sister paid	2 00
J H Hurley	5 00	David Strickler	5 00
Geo U Harn	5 00	James Casey	5 00
M F Shavely	10 00	Samuel M Hoover paid	5 00
Jacob Miller	10 00	Susanna Myers pd E H T	4 00
James Miller	5 00	Charles F Long	5 00
S A Brumbaugh	5 00	Sarah Grove paid	2 00
Thomas Strahm	5 00	Wm Brady	3 00
J B G Kinsloe	5 00	Daniel R Long	5 00
Abraham Sherrich paid	7 50	D: Geo Ross paid	10 00
Samuel Wagoner paid	5 00	Joseph B Nickel	5 00
Jacob Vandersaul paid	5 00	Sam'l Wagoner pd E H T	5 00
Joseph B Nickey	5 00	Samuel Marker paid	1 00
David Kissinger paid	2 00

WHITE HALL ACADEMY,

Three miles West of Harrisburg, Pa.

THIS Institution will be opened for the reception of Students on Monday, the 5th of May next. The course of instruction will embrace the various branches of a thorough English Education, together with the Latin, Greek, French and German Languages, and Vocal and Instrumental Music.

TERMS.

Boarding, Washing, Lodging and Tuition in the English branches, per session, (five months,) - - - - - - - - - - $50 00
Latin or Greek, - - - - - - - - 5 00
French or German, - - - - - - - 5 00
Instrumental Music, - - - - - - 10 00

For further information, address

D. DENLINGER,
March 15.—2m. Principal, Harrisburg.